One Day 4-H Community Service gives back

Six Sherman County 4-H members came to the local library on Saturday, October 10, 2015, to participate in a community service tree planting project.

For one hundred years the Texas A&M Forest Service has been providing leadership in protecting and sustaining the state's trees, forests, and related natural resources. The first efforts of a few forest patrolmen on horseback in East Texas have grown into today's network of protection statewide. TFS makes Texas stronger by imparting best land management practices to landowners, grants for training and equipment to fire departments, and information, tools, and resources to communities. In the recent drought affecting our state we truly experience the impact they make on each of our safety and how much we appreciate the role they play across our state. To help celebrate their 100 years of service to our community, the Sherman County 4-H program planted a Bur Oak tree for our annual One Day 4-H Community Service Project. Along with planting the main tree, each child took home 1-4 trees for themselves to plant where they desire. A total of 21 trees were planted this past Saturday in Sherman County!

Shown in the picture are Holly Sladek, Levi Springer, Bryce Killian, Bret Barnard, Russell Spurlock, and Bo Engelbrecht, thank you for your help and if you would like to see the Bur Oak tree, it is located on the north part of the library's lawn with a TFS sign in front.

Differences between electric and hydraulic systems

Have you ever seen the old-style, heavy-duty, electric-driven systems? They were a way to improve. Make sure to read between the lines - and we don't mean the oil lines.

Fact is, Reims' Tractor, Pump and Alternator electric drive systems are, and have always been, among the most reliable and most efficient made available to the farmer. They are the only systems that can be used to power the electrical energy requirements of electric and hydraulic systems. You will be amazed by the difference you can save by going electric.

Reims Dealer-Professionals are ready to share other cost-saving reasons why more and more growers are choosing Reims irrigation systems.

Talk with a Reims Dealer today.

Readers Visit Legacy

By Paula Nusz

Legacy Assisted Living residents of Dalhart, Texas, were visited by the 5th grade class from St. Anthony's Catholic School on Monday, September 28th. Mrs. Jamie Halbert brought her group of fifteen children to read books to the residents. They brought books that covered a large range of topics which made story-time more interesting. Two Legacy residents have great-grandchildren in this class. That makes the visits extra special for both the great-grandparent and the child. This group of youth will be making monthly visits to Legacy as their community service project. In October, the group will come to Legacy and assist in making caramel apples. Thanks to the children for their happy faces and kind words during their visit.

Pursuit of Happiness: What is Love? Part Three

In his novel "Corelli's Mandolin" Louis de Bernières wrote "Love itself is what is left over when being "in love" has burned away..." Romantic love, "eros" is highlighted in this novel centered around the lives of characters in various stages of being "in love." In the end, it is not until the intense flames of the passionate "eros" love are somewhat quenched that couples generally get down to the real work of loving each other. It requires emotional maturity to stick around when it is time to harness the passion and channel it towards building a mutually beneficial relationship. As in my case, the understanding for building such a relationship is oftentimes missing when a child is raised without the opportunity to witness the genuine effort required for constructing a home on a foundation of respect kindled by true affection. In a home where there is a total commitment to preserving and growing the spousal relationship, the children are at least able to observe the intensity required for relationship building and can thus acquire the necessary skills and tools to replicate the same type of nurturing environment in their own homes.

It is usually through the mature lens of retrospection we clearly discern there is a deep chasm between being "in lust" and showing REAL love. When I kissed my first prince/frog I was "in love." Oh my! The joy of finding my one true love. There was just one problem—there was not enough maturity between the two of us to remove ourselves from the center of the universe long enough for the other to get a moment of sunshine. Just like infants, our only true mantra was "...but what about me...?" Those tiny sparks of affection were soon trampled underfoot and ground into dust by immaturity, selfishness and self-centeredness. As it turns out, in most cases founded only on strong physical attractions, it soon becomes apparent that a lasting relationships requires much more than passionate embraces and whispered sweet nothings.

It is my belief, that those with a foundation in giving and receiving the unselfish "agape" love, can turn what begins as a strong physical attraction into a mutually effective and durable spousal covenant. This does not mean, however, that those of us that start life without the benefit of such skills cannot develop them. In fact, I believe that 1 Corinthians 13 is a blueprint for learning to truly love (as myself) the "neighbors" that share my home. Home is the place I should practice being meek, kind, temperate, and patient. I assure you, there is no better place to practice peacemaking than with a spouse!! I should always look for, hope for, pray for, and believe for the best in my spouse. In Ephesians 5:28;33 I am required to behave lovingly (respectfully and appropriately) toward my spouse and vice versa. I am to be considerate, placing his well being ahead of my wants. Looking at this list from scripture I am pretty much a dismal failure!! I try to be good but often fall short. Isaiah (64:6) expresses how pitiful are our attempts to be holy. He compares them to "filthy rags." This however, does not mean God discards my attempts to pursue righteousness as trash. No! No! The opposite is true. God knows that deep down I am selfish and often operate from motives that are not pure. He is patient and loves me in spite of my human frailty and gives me the Holy Spirit to guide toward spiritual maturity. That's what's marvelous about the love of Christ. I am filled with joy from the knowledge that God accepts me as I am, prunes and shapes me, gently draws me to him, gives me a lifetime to grow, picks me up when I fall, and has plans to spend eternity with me. These ever-inspiring thoughts are at the root of my happiness.

Meditation: Am I loving my spouse?

Bones consist of around 50 percent water and 50 percent solid matter. They are hard, strong and, like muscle tissue, very much alive.

Time out with Rog:

The old saying "bend but don't break" was applied heavily on Friday Night!! We met a foe that played tough rough football! We traveled to a football stadium that has a great atmosphere for a Friday night football game. You should have been there. But at the end we came out victorious! BM said "I'm ready to get home but it is going to take a long time to get there and it's not right when it takes two tanks of gas to get to a district football game!!!! And this reporter said to BM "It's going to be shorter because we scored that last touchdown!" This reporter would like to thank the McBryde's and Metcalf's for a nice meal at the Red River Steakhouse at McLean, Texas. This week we play at the Panhandle Panther Den so bring your safari gear and let's bring home a Panther. Our hometown of the old ball coach!! This week we play an old ex Stratford football player that got his learnin from Stratford Elk Football, but hopefully he will have a brain freeze on Friday night!!! So let's all meet in Carson Co. for an Elk victory on Friday night! The second district game is just as important as the first district game because it is the second district game. Let's all pray for Michelle Carpenter. Thank you Lord for the rain and everything you have given us. Once an Elk always an Elk!

Travel

(NU) - Airlines tried to raise fares 12 different times last year, says JP Morgan analyst Jamie Baker. Although only four attempts were successful, the vigor to raise fares is alarming. With these new pricing demands, road trips could be a more affordable and flexible option for families.

American highways have a built-in network of small businesses to support travelers. When families need to stop for the night, roadside hotel chains like Knights Inn accommodate the weary. Knights Inn offers affordable rates, complimentary breakfast and loyalty points discounts.

Wedding

(NU) - It's one of the toughest decisions for any bride and groom—and, no, we don't mean where to seat feuding relatives at the wedding reception. We're talking wedding bands, symbols of eternal love, the most important pieces of jewelry a man and woman will ever own.

In the search for the perfect wedding bands, many couples turn to platinum to ensure they get the best value for their money. With a bevy of styles and a range of prices—platinum bands can be purchased starting at $1,000—it's easy to find a ring that best suits the bride's personality.
