Man jailed on warrant

A 40-year-old Snyder man who was on parole from a 20-year state penitentiary sentence for murder was arrested on a "blue" or parole revocation warrant Friday afternoon.

A county sheriff's deputy took Nicolas Barrientez of 1404 Seventh St. into custody at his home at 1:45 p.m. and said later that Barrientez had been ordered arrested by the State Board of Pardons and Paroles to resume serving his sentence in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

Barrientez was on parole from an Aug. 27, 1982, incident in which he stabbed a woman to death, a spokesman for the sheriff's office said.

What grounds the State Parole Board issued the blue warrant on and how long Barrientez had been on parole were not immediately known, the spokesman said.

Other Friday and early Saturday arrests included two by city police, a 28-year-old man for driving with his license suspended (see ARRESTS, page 15A)

Planned trunk system includes Highway 84

Snyder's interest in the proposed Texas Highway Trunk System was voiced by Mayor Troy Williamson during last week's hearing in San Angelo.

Williamson reaffirmed Snyder's advocacy of a section of the trunk system, known more readily as the Port to Plains Highway. City Manager John Gayle and City Engineer Don Osborn were also among the estimated 225 people to attend the meeting.

The objective of the proposed highway trunk system, according to information provided by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, is to "designate a rural network of four-lane or better divided roadways that will serve as the principal connector of urban areas in the state, as well as major ports and points of entry from surrounding states and Mexico."

The trunk system is expected to be formally adopted by the Texas Highway Commission in March, following the series of statewide hearings.

The only road on the proposed system that goes through Scurry County is U.S. 84, which is also a part of the somewhat forgotten Port to Plains Highway, which extends from Lubbock to Houston and goes through Snyder.

Officials from Abilene also supported the Port to Plains route, and suggested as addition to the proposed system which would link Wichita Falls with Brownsville. Their proposed "Border to Border" route would, of course, include Abilene.

The Port to Plains Highway, connecting Lubbock with Houston, was designated as such in 1985. Much criticism followed from interest groups, particularly the Austin area, which was omitted from the route. The original route is U.S. 84 from Lubbock to Brownwood, U.S. 83 from Brownwood to Lampasas, U.S. 190 from Lampasas to Cameron, State Hwy. 36 from Cameron to Sealy, and Interstate 10 from Sealy to Houston. Although the Port to Plains Highway is shown on some information (see HIGHWAYS, page 15A)

Rebels won't attend Ortega meeting unless it is delayed

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Nicaraguan rebels said they would not attend a meeting with Sandinista government officials at the United Nations next week and proposed it be delayed a week.

Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega requested the talks for Monday and Tuesday after ending a 19-month truce with the U.S.-backed Contras fighters.

The Contras definitely will not attend next week, said Wilfredo Montalvan, a director of the Nicaraguan Resistance, by telephone.

"The date proposed by Ortega is a strategy of his political party to take us off guard," Montalvan said. "That is, he proposed that date for his convenience. Therefore, we propose that it be Nov. 13 to be able to prepare ourselves."

"And if Ortega thinks the only thing that is going to be discussed there is the unconditional surrender of our troops, he should forget that, since he is very wrong," he added. "Our demobilization is voluntary and will (occur) when you can observe that Nicaragua is taking true steps toward the route of democracy."

Nicaragua called the meeting — which would be the first direct talks between the two groups in more than a year — to discuss disbanding of the Contras.

An Aug. 7 peace agreement signed by Ortega and four other Central American presidents calls for the voluntary demobilization and relocation of rebels from Honduran camps by Dec. 5. The Contras were not a party to the agreement and have not agreed to disband.

Nicaragua launched an offensive against the Contras this week after Ortega ended the truce. He said he took the action because the Contras had begun returning to Nicaragua from base camps to which they retreated in 1988.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Nothing motivates like the last minute."

Don't forget that Tuesday is election day. There are several important Constitutional Amendments on the ballot—but none more crucial than proposition 8.

No. 8 on the ballot deals with bonds to build additional correctional institutions. Because of a growing crime rate, more prisons are needed in every state. Proposition 8 will help all of Texas and a large, positive turnout Tuesday by Scurry County voters is a signal to the state prison system that Snyder intends to be a good, long-term partner.

Proposition 8 not only is in the best interest of Texas, it is also in the best interest of Scurry County and its future.

Other recommendations concerning amendments on Tuesday's ballot can be found on the editorial page in Section B.

Your tax dollars at work: The Wall Street Journal reports that the EPA itself is the number one benefactor of the Superfund program. Out of the $4.4 billion spent so far, 60 percent has gone for administrative costs, management and research.

Only 36 of the 1,200 priority cleanup sites have been decontaminated. And $4.4 billion is the good news.

Over the next 50 years, $500 billion has been earmarked for the cleanup effort which means EPA will spend $300 billion just on maintaining itself.

Now, that's a waste du p.

Q—Is it true that county taxes can be paid May 20th, 1990 without a penalty, due to the roll-back election?

A—The deadline to pay taxes is Jan. 31. If voters determine that county taxes should be rolled back in the election set for Jan. 20, new bills will have to be made up and mailed out. The deadline to pay taxes would be postponed by the number of days between the date the original bills were mailed and the date the corrected bills are mailed. Anyone who has already paid county tax, or who sends in their tax prior to the election, will receive a refund amounting to the difference. However, if voters determine taxes should not be rolled back, the Jan. 31 deadline remains in effect, according to a tax consultant in Austin.

'Hamlet ESP' author to critique WTC play

The Western Texas College theatre students working in the production of "Hamlet ESP" this week will have a rare opportunity to meet the man who created this adaptation of Shakespeare's original play.

Paul Baker, who worked on the "Hamlet ESP" adaptation for almost 20 years, will be on the WTC campus Thursday night for the dress rehearsal and again on Friday for the opening night performance. A reception honoring Baker and his wife is planned from 7-7:45 p.m. Friday and the public is invited to meet the Bakers.

Baker will speak to the "Hamlet ESP" cast and crew Thursday night following the dress rehearsal. At noon Friday, he will meet with members of the WTC English faculty and others who wish to attend at "The Great Dane" luncheon in the Student Center faculty dining room. The meal will be Dutch treat and is to conclude by 1 p.m. This meeting will be of special interest to one of WTC's faculty members, Richard Lancaster, who was a student of Baker at Baylor University.

Baker is perhaps best known for his long association with the Dallas Theatre Center. He was active in the establishment of the Theatre Center in 1959 and directed over 40 plays while serving as director there. Frank Lloyd Wright designed the theatre, which was named the Kalita Humphreys Theatre after the Texas-born actress who made her stage debut in Dallas. Baker received the first Rodgers and Hammerstein award for outstanding theatrical contribution in the Southwest in 1961.

Born in Hereford in 1911, Baker received the Bachelor of Arts degree from Trinity University in Waxahachie in 1932 and was a student of Elsie Fogarty in London that year as well. He received grants from the Rockefeller Foundation for study at Yale University from 1937-39 and organized the Southwest Summer Theatre in Waco in 1939. During World War II, Baker served as U. S. Army Chief of Entertainment in the European Theatre of Operations and was presented the Legion of Merit for reorganization of the Entertainment Branch in 1945.

Baker and Eugene McKinney were presented the Chris Award in 1957 for their production of Baylor Theatre's "Hamlet" film which starred Charles Laughton and Burgess Meredith. In 1958, Baker received a prize at the Brussels World Fair Film Festival for the best short-run fiction film.

Jim Rambo, WTC theatre director, saw Baker's adaptation of "Hamlet" when it was presented by a traveling company from Dallas in 1977 at Tarleton State University. He has not met Baker but talked with him at his home in Waelder in making arrangements for the Bakers' visit here.

"Hamlet ESP" is not the traditional Shakespearean rendering. The main action of the play happens inside Hamlet's mind, and there are three Hamlets, sometimes all on the stage at the same time. In the WTC production, five TV monitors will become part of the action and this innovation may come as something of a surprise to Baker, Rambo commented.

"In the beginning, I planned to produce the entire play with only three hamlets and a few shadow characters," Baker once said. "I still believe that a viable production can be developed with no one else but the three Hamlets, though perhaps not as interesting or exciting as this one finally became."

The WTC production does include a full cast as well as on-stage technicians and dressers visibly seen. The three-night run will be a prelude to the American College Theatre Festival competition in Beaumont Nov. 16-18.

Tickets for "Hamlet ESP" are $5 for adults and $3 for students and can be reserved by calling the box office at 573-8511, extension 234. Performances are scheduled for 8 p.m. on Nov. 10, 11, and 12 in the Fine Arts Theatre on campus.

Court rules in favor of Edelman

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Investor Asher B. Edelman won a round Friday in his effort to block a dissident shareholder's plan to snatch control of Datapoint Corp. from the corporate raider.

A Delaware Chancery Court judge refused to invalidate Edelman's purchase of additional Datapoint stock, giving him more than 40 percent of the outstanding shares of the company as he seeks to thwart Martin S. Ackerman's attempt to remove the company's Edelmancontrolled board of directors.

At issue was a corporate bylaw that allowed Edelman-controlled groups to purchase stock after Sept. 7, the date Ackerman wanted as a record date for shareholders eligible to join with him in his consent solicitation.

Ackerman has complained Edelman is using Datapoint profits to speculate in other companies, depressing San Antonio-based Datapoint's value.

Underground gas storage tanks due upgrading

Owners of underground gasoline storage tanks in Scurry County and throughout the state have until Nov. 22 to decide whether they want to meet state requirements and upgrade their tanks or close them down.

To better inform persons affected of what is at stake two area meetings will be conducted by the Texas Industrial Waste Control.

The first is planned on Wednesday from 8:30 a.m. to noon at the Kiva Inn in Abilene. The second is slated from 8:30 a.m. to noon Thursday at the Holiday Inn in San Angelo.

According to Ben Jones, spokesman for Texas Industrial Waste Control, the purpose of these meetings will be to "establish dialogue to address the issue." A question and answer session will follow the basic presentation.

The seminars are free.

Jones described leaking underground storage tanks as the "biggest environmental problem" the state has faced in recent years.

Jones said leaking gasoline underground storage tanks can present a "fairly significant problem." The system has to be checked, kept in compliance with state regulations and owners have to be "responsible" or else the "state won't come through with any funds."

The state passed the Underground Water Protection Act on May 31 of this year, and Governor Bill Clements signed it into law.

Jones said the state began collecting .6 of one cent for every gallon of gas pumped since Sept. 31 in order to create a fund which can help owners to receive financial help in getting their tanks to meet state requirements. Some $5,000,000 per month has been collected since then, Jones said.

He said the state realized that this problem was so significant that it had to be battled at the state level and not just left up to individual owners. Owners can receive state help up to $1,000,000, of which they have to pay the first $10,000. He described the state's plan as a "million dollar insurance policy with a $10,000 deductible."

But "strings" are attached to this offer of state financial help.

(1) Tanks must be registered with the Texas Water Commission.

(2) Any work has to be done under the direction and express approval of the Texas Water Commission.

(3) Owners must bring their underground storage tanks into technical compliance of EPA and TWC regulations. Jones said their biggest fear is that owners through "ignorance" will not hear about or understand the program until the Nov. 22 deadline passes, and if their tanks are not registered by Nov. 22 then they will be ineligible for state aid.

According to Jones, contractors in the area are "probably doing 'fine job,'" but that it takes years to really understand what the regulations are saying because there are so many rules and regulations which have to be dealt with.

The Environmental Protection Agency first discovered the problem and as a result a law was passed in September of 1988 which specified criteria for regulating underground tanks, including testing, and upgrading standards and cleanup activities.

By Dec. 22 all tanks 25 or more years old have to either be upgraded or closed. The Texas Water Commission requires 30-day notification. That means the decision to either upgrade or close must be made by Nov. 22.

According to Jones, at least 25 or more percent of all underground storage gas tanks are leaking, and he estimates that from one out of three or four tanks in Snyder are leaking.

Texas Industrial Waste Control works throughout the state to clean-up leaks and upgrade underground storage gas tanks to present standards.

Jones said The Texas Industrial Water Commission is presently involved with a $1,000,000 clean-up in San Marcos. One tank leaked and pumped out some 4,000 gallons of gasoline spread over about 15 acres, resulting in 50 million gallons of water being contaminated.

A suction system was employed which means that a pump is in a dispenser and pumps gas from the tank through lines. The problem lay in the suction system rather than the tank itself: The leak began gradually and was worsened every time gas wasn't being pumped through the lines in the suction system.

Jones grew up in Quanah and has a degree in chemistry. He became interested in the environmental field some 15 years ago, and has been involved with cleaning up spills and other type environmental work ever since.

Woman guilty of currency violations

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — A woman who tried to buy a house with $100,000 she carried in a paper bag has been convicted of federal currency violations.

Prosecutors said when a title company in McAllen told Maria Cortez Lindsey it could not accept the cash, she converted most of the money into cashier's checks just under $10,000. Federal law requires banks to report transactions of $10,000 or more.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Jack Wolfe said Ms. Lindsey was aware of the currency reporting law and was trying to avoid such a record being made of the money.

The 32-year-old McAllen woman testified that her real estate agent told her to obtain the 10 smaller checks instead of one for the full $100,000 amount.

Standoff ends with hostage's release

HOUSTON (AP) — Police stormed a car Saturday in which a woman held her 15-month-old son hostage at knife-point for over 13 hours, rescuing the boy and arresting his mother, officials said.

Charges were pending against the woman, 24-year-old Tracy Levis, who has a history of psychiatric problems and once made a public suicide attempt, police said. The boy, Brandon Duke, suffered minor cuts during the rescue and was taken to a hospital.

His mother had held a 6-to-8-inch hunting knife near his throat during the standoff. She appeared to be hallucinating and neither made demands nor gave any explanation of her actions, police said.

"We consulted a physician as to how long the boy could go without any food or liquid," said

Dan Turner, a police spokesman. "The doctor said after 15 hours the boy would be in critical condition. So we took action."

Turner said the SWAT team used a "diversionary tactic," including a small explosive device, to take the car by storm and release the child.

"We rattled the car," Turner said. "By the time the mother knew what was going on, we had already secured the little boy. His safety was our top priority."

The incident began about 3 p.m. Friday, when Ms. Levis' mother, Barbara Levis, was apparently trying to take her daughter to a psychiatric hospital, and the boy was with them in the car. The two women got into an argument, and the elder Ms. Levis fled the car, police said.

"I thought it was an accident," said Keith Lampton, who saw the commotion and called police. "I looked over and I saw her face was all painted up like Halloween. She was yelling at her mother and waving a knife toward her."

The woman, whose face was smeared with makeup, was on some type of medication and told police negotiators she was hearing strange voices, police said.

At times, Ms. Levis nuzzled the curly-headed boy, bouncing him on her knees, patting and kissing him. The one time she came close to nicking the child with the blade, she immediately drew back the knife and checked the baby for wounds, said police spokesman Al Baker.

Several years ago, Ms. Levis threatened to kill herself with a pair of scissors or by diving into a bayou before she was tackled by police and taken for psychiatric evaluation, Baker said.

Actor recovering

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Adam Rich, the youngest star of the old "Eight is Enough" series, is recovering slowly from a virus that left him comatose for more than a month, his mother said.

"Adam was very ill for five weeks, but he's on the road to recovery," Francine Rich said Friday.

Rich's publicist, Jeff Ballard, said the former child star apparently became ill with a flu virus that settled in his brain and nearly paralyzed him for five weeks. He is recovering at a clinic in the San Fernando Valley suburbs.

Financial Focus

Mutual fund charges have long been a point of controversy. The fee that has gained the most attention is the "load" or acquisition cost, which is the fee paid when an investor purchases a mutual fund. Loads range from a maximum of 8.5 percent of the offering price to a low of 1 percent or less of the offering price. It's based on the amount of the investment and is clearly explained in the fund's prospectus.

A fund that charges no fee at the time of purchase may instead charge a fee when the fund is sold, or it may charge an annual fee for the expense of managing the fund. This is called a "no-load."

Complicating mutual funds sales costs even more, some groups offer funds either way—pay now or pay later. For example, in a special February 1989 report of mutual fund "loads" vs. "no-loads", CHANGING TIMES magazine points out one major group that offers two versions of each of its 22 funds.

The group's Class A Fund charges the traditional front-end load but collects a redemption fee of up to 4 percent and an annual fee of up to 1 percent.

Other funds charge annual fees, but usually those charges drop substantially after five or six years. If this is the case, an investor may want to be certain that he or she won't need to withdraw funds for the first few years.

Some traditional "no-load" funds may impose a "low load" of 3 percent or less on more popular funds. This is justified as advertising costs. After all, mutual funds must advertise in order to attract new capital.

How can an investor unscramble all these costs, charges and loads? He or she can begin by reading the prospectus. Also, the mutual fund page of most major newspapers should give a general explanation of how the fund charges although it won't state how much the fund charges. The following explanations may be helpful.

NL - No front-end sales charge.
p - These funds charge an annual fee. A fund can be listed as NL and still charge this fee. The prospectus gives the amount of the fee.

r - Watch for redemption charges. These charges can be permanent, temporary or declining. Funds with redemption charges can also pass as NL. Again, check the prospectus.

p and r - These funds charge both an annual fee and a redemption fee. Special attention should be paid to these charges. They can be expensive as well as confusing.

Whichever fund you select, don't be misled by the misconception that "no-load" means "no cost." Over the long haul, modest annual charges often add up to much more than a simple up-front load.

The congress is the largest single-breed horseshow in the world with more than 4,700 horses competing in 144 classes. Hays was one of 12 youths chosen from Texas to represent the Texas Junior Quarter Horse Association in team competition against 59 other teams. He also placed 7th in senior trail out of 78 entries and third in showmanship, competing against 149 entries.

CENTERVILLE, Texas (AP) — A grand jury has indicted a 30-year-old woman on two felony charges after a Halloween shooting at a daycare center seriously wounded a three-year-old boy.

Grand jurors in Leon County indicted Kenda Mahaffey of Norman on charges of reckless injury to a child and a charge that relates to carrying firearms at educational facilities.

District Attorney David Barron said Ms. Mahaffey was released from jail Friday on a $5,000 personal recognizance bond.

Kenny Archer, also of Norman, was in serious but stable condition Friday in the pediatric intensive-care unit of Texas Children's Hospital in Houston.

The boy was taken to a Madisonville hospital before being transported to St. Joseph Hospital in Bryan, where he underwent four hours of neurosurgery Tuesday afternoon.

He was flown to the pediatric hospital in Houston Tuesday night and has been on a ventilator in the intensive-care unit since then.

Ms. Mahaffey told Sheriff

Royce Wilson and Texas Ranger Connell Wednesday that she wore the pistol to the day care center as part of a western-style Halloween costume.

She said she carried the unloaded .22-caliber pistol to a party the previous weekend and was unaware that her husband reloaded the gun before she took it to the center, Barron said.

Ms. Mahaffey said she didn't know the gun was out of her possession until she heard Kenny shoot himself above the right eye about 9 a.m. Tuesday, Barron said.

About 10 other children were at the day care center when the shooting happened, but authorities said none of the other youngsters saw the shooting.

The day-care licensing division of the Department of Human Services is also investigating the incident. But Joe Sudderth, supervisor of the department's Waco office, said it would probably be a couple of weeks before any decisions are made regarding the center.

"There's a number of things involved that we're looking at," Sudderth told the Bryan-College Station Eagle. "We're monitoring the criminal investigation, and we have a staff member who has been to the center and interviewed the director, as well as the law enforcement officers."

Janice Roberts, owner of the center, was subpoenaed to testify, but Barron said the grand jury had no questions for her.

Sudderth said if no charges are filed against Ms. Roberts, she will probably keep her license to run the center. "I understand that (Mahaffey) has not been to the center since the incident," Sudderth said. "Since we have learned that she has been indicted, we'll notify her that she cannot go to the center as long as the investigation is pending."

Replaces banned Rose... Cincy hires Piniella

CINCINNATI (AP) — Lou Piniella, newly hired manager of the Cincinnati Reds, says the team has the talent to win in 1990 and he expects the players to have positive attitudes.

The Reds announced Friday that Piniella, former player, coach, manager and general manager with the New York Yankees, had signed a three-year contract to manage the Reds, who endured a disastrous 1989 season. The club skidded to fifth in the National League West with a 75-87 record, Cincinnati's first losing mark since finishing 70-92 in 1984.

Piniella, 46, whose contract will pay him a reported $350,000 annually, succeeds Pete Rose, who was banished from baseball Aug. 24 for his alleged gambling activities. Piniella told reporters he is not concerned about taking over the Reds after a season marked by the Rose scandal and a rash of injuries to key players.

"It's a new start," Piniella said. "The most important thing is to go to spring training and instill a positive attitude in the players. I don't think we'll have an attitude problem."

Piniella said he thanked Yankees owner George Steinbrenner for releasing him from a $400,000-a-year personal services contract that would have bound Piniella to the Yankees for two more years. Piniella had played 11 years for the Yankees, was twice the field manager and did an eight-month hitch as general manager. He said Friday he didn't want a third term as manager of the Yankees.

"It was time for me to go on the field somewhere else," Piniella said.

"I thought I did a good job managing in New York. The owner got a little impatient at times, but that's his prerogative."

Piniella becomes the Reds' 41st manager since 1900. The 1990 season opens in Cincinnati on April 2 against Houston.

Reds general manager Bob Quinn, a former Yankees general manager who worked with Piniella before being hired Oct. 13 by the Reds, said his familiarity with, and respect for, Piniella helped in hiring the new manager. Quinn said Piniella's effectiveness in handling pitching staffs was also considered a big plus.

"This club here has good pitching. They have a wealth of good, young arms," Piniella said.

Pecos turns back SHS, 12-10

59-yard pass play keeps Tigers winless against Eagles

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

Snyder has never beaten Pecos in football, and while most area fans thought this might be the year to break that trend, it simply was not to be Friday evening.

A 59-yard touchdown pass from Eagle quarterback Monty Medanich to Cruz Abila gave Pecos the lead at 12-10 with 11 seconds left in the third quarter and the purple and gold held on through the fourth period for the win.

The loss puts Snyder at 2-6 on the year and 2-3 in District 4-4A competition.

Pecos is also 2-3 within the loop but they have a season record of 4-4 after Friday.

Things started out well for the Tigers as Dewayne Cato slammed through the middle of the Pecos defensive line and scooted 38 yards for the first score in the contest.

Bert Merritt's extra point was good and with over half of the opening period left SHS was on top, 7-0.

Merritt tacked on a 41-yard field goal with :02 left in the opening quarter to end the Tigers' scoring early.

Pecos took the opening kick-off and immediately showed the crowd that they were going to try to run the football on the Snyder defense.

Cruz Abila picked up eight yards and Chris Stanford ran for four more to give the Eagles a first down.

The drive bogged down after the initial two plays and Snyder got the ball back on a punt.

On first and 10 from Snyder's 46 yard line Cato gained five of his 109 yards on 20 carries, setting up second and five.

Tailback Paul Anderson rambled for 11 yards to give Snyder a first down at Pecos' 38.

From there Cato struck again, sliding off tackle and zipping into the Eagles' end zone for six points.

Pecos kept the ball a little longer on their next possession driving 13 plays but coming up empty in spite of a personal foul call on Snyder and a 24-yard pass play from Medanich to Dani Talamentez.

Snyder was shut down in three plays on the next Black and Gold possession and they punted back to Pecos.

On third and eight from the Eagles' 35 SHS defensive end Jody Iglehart topped the quarterback and pipped him, knocking the ball loose. Linebacker Bart Morton jumped on the pigskin.

The Tigers drive stalled at the Pecos 24 after a four yard run by Cato and a nine yarder by Anderson and a pair of incomplete passes and a sack of Snyder QB Toby Goodwin.

On fourth and 20 Bert Merritt came on to kick a 41-yard field goal to up the score to 10-0 in Snyder's favor.

As the second quarter opened Pecos began an extended drive from their own 39 yard stripe and drove to Snyder's one using possession-type passes and running plays to pick up small chunks of yardage at a time.

On third and goal from the one, Medanich slipped inside on an option play and bounced over the goal line to close the gap to 10-6.

The two-point conversion was not successful.

The Tigers pranced down to the Pecos 22 on runs of four, three, six and seven yards by Cato added to a 10 yard gallop by Shelby Bufkin and 12 yards in two runs by Presley.

Merritt came on for another field goal, this one from 39 yards. The kick was straight enough but fell short of the crossbar about the length of the football.

Pecos took over on the 22 yard line where they promptly fumbled. An alert David Jennings pounced on the ball for Snyder.

SHS ran the clock out on the first half and went into the intermission ahead 10-6.

The Tigers received the kick-off opening the second half and they drove to within six inches of the Pecos end zone only to be stopped short of paydirt on fourth down.

Pecos now had to drive 99-plus yards, they were pinned deep in their own territory and they were behind 10-6 in the game.

Three plays would cover the ground needed for the score as Medanich hit Abila for what would prove to be the winning score, a 59 yard TD strike on first and ten from the PHS 41.

Snyder defensive back Bert

Merritt actually had pretty good coverage on the play but he fell at the last second and the Pecos running back was able to head to the end zone untouched.

Neither offense threatened after the Pecos pass play, though the Snyder coaching staff inserted Ed Rios at quarterback to try for a long distance connection late in the game.

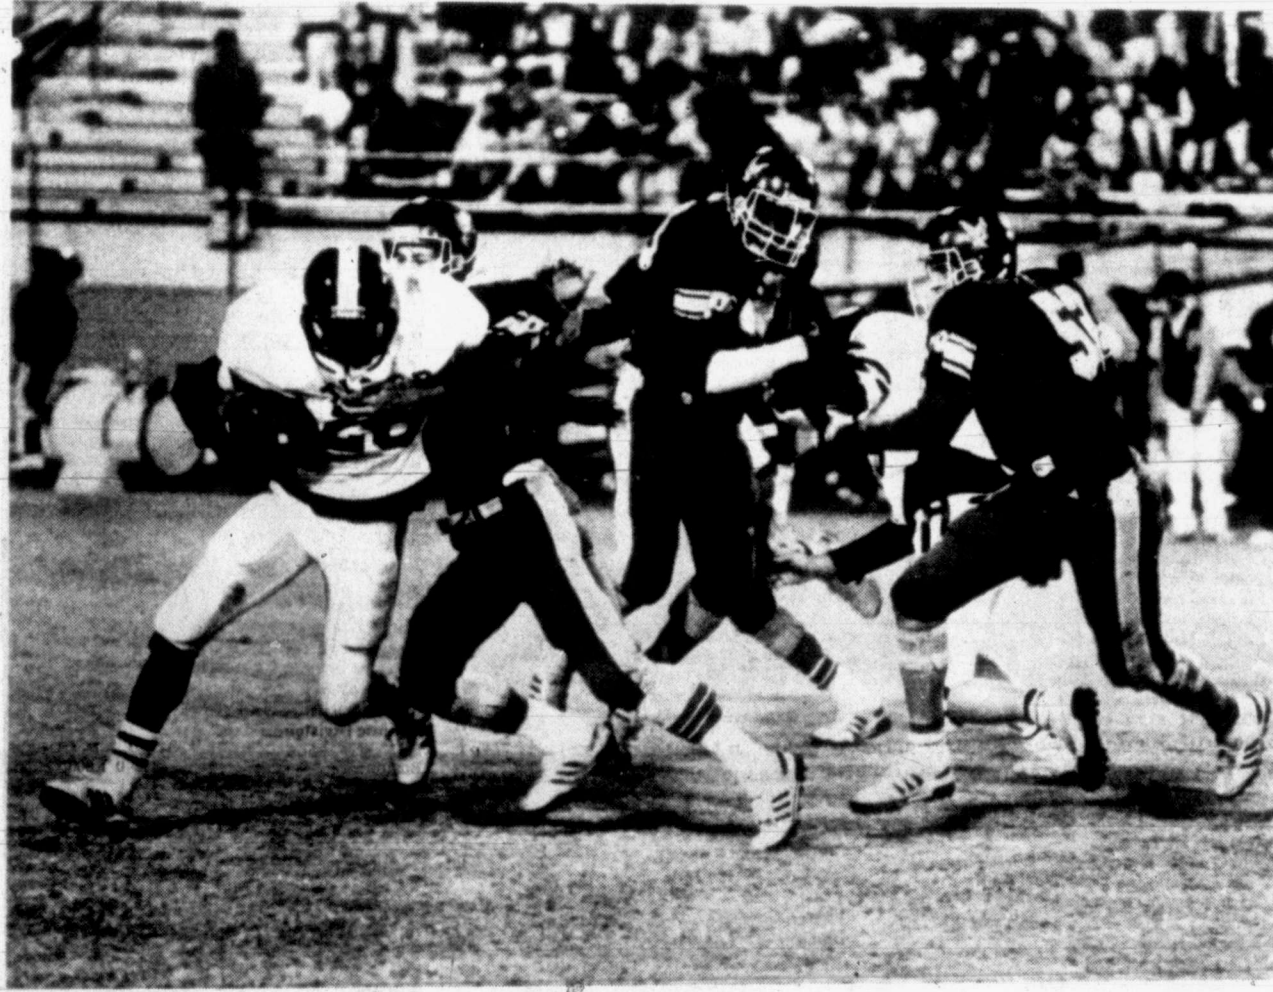

The Tigers' gained 218 yards of offense in Pecos while the defense, allowing an average of just 212 yards per game, was victimized for 280 yards, 187 passing.

Besides Cato's 109 yard performance, Anderson added 67 yards to the Snyder effort, Presley tacked on 24 yards on three carries and Bufkin pounded out 18 yards on five carries.

The loss, coupled with wins by Big Spring and Monahans virtually eliminate Snyder from the 4-4A play-off picture.

In other action in District 4-4A Friday night, Big Spring remained undefeated slipping past Andrews, 35-33, Monahans stopped Sweetwater, 21-7, and San Angelo Lake View edged Ft. Stockton, 21-19.

The Tigers face the Steers of Big Spring next Friday in Tiger Stadium.

Bulldogs defeated by Trent, 50-22

Ira's Bulldogs were the latest victims of defending 6A six-man champion Trent Friday night.

The Gorillas took a 50-22 win from Ira.

"It was a hard fought game," said Ira head coach Don Jones.

"We just didn't get the breaks. We had a couple of touchdown passes dropped or it could have been a really close game."

Greg Box scored on a pass from Shane Bearden that covered 11 yards and on a 12 yard run.

Tomas Juarez, the leading Bulldog rusher with 78 yards, plowed over from five yards out against Trent.

Craig McMullen added two PAT kicks for Ira.

Thank You

We would like to thank the many friends and relatives for the many things they have done for us since the passing of our beloved, Warren Boyd. You have surrounded us with love. Some prepared full meals, some made sure that the home and yard were in order, others checked several times a day to be sure that the family was alright. We would like to thank Dr. Pierce, Dr. Aycock, the nurses at Cogdell Hospital and Bell Cypert Seale. Since Warren had been a Fire Chief in the past the Fire Department performed many acts of kindness. We would like to thank the Members of the Fire Department who were pall bearers and the whole Fire Department for the beautiful floral arrangement. The service was so beautiful and we wish to thank Tom Holcomb, Eastside Church of Christ minister, for bringing such an uplifting sermon, to thank Mike Monroe for such a beautiful reading of the poem "What is a Fireman" and "Thoughts By Warren" written by Mr. Boyd in 1983. We wish to thank the Eastside singers, and the Eastside ladies, who prepared and served food on the day of the service. We wish to thank those that have sent flowers, cards and memorials. Many people have been such a source of comfort. They have said "We loved Warren and we love you." We pray that you will have such friends in your time of need and that God will bless you for being so kind to our family.

The Family of Warren Boyd.

mal maps as going through Austin and running north on Interstate 27 from Lubbock to Amarillo, a spokesman from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation district office in Abilene said that the only route he is aware of is the original one.

At any rate, the proposed trunk system would take in both routes.

Snyder representatives attending the meeting in San Angelo did not push for the proposed trunk system to include any other roads, such as the Big Spring Highway. The reasoning is that the system as proposed will include Snyder by the way of U.S. 84. Also, there are already a number of interest groups — to include Abilene representatives — who are asking for additions to the route. Obviously, the department cannot meet all of the requests.

Lebanon...

Aoun dissolves parliament

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Christian leader Gen. Michel Aoun said Saturday he had dissolved Parliament because it endorsed an Arab peace plan without his consent. But deputies seemed ready to defy him by meeting anyway to elect a new president.

Aoun, 54, summoned reporters to his bunker command post under the presidential palace in suburban Baabda, east of Beirut, before dawn and read a decree issued by his three-man military Cabinet.

Aoun, whose Cabinet is vying for power with a rival Moslem government, said he was dissolving the legislature because it violated the Constitution last month when it approved without his consent an Arab League-brokered accord to end the 14-year-old civil war.

The accord was endorsed by 59 of the 63 lawmakers who attended a special parliamentary session called by the league in the Saudi resort of Taif.

Aoun's move was aimed at preventing the legislature from holding a scheduled meeting in Beirut Saturday to ratify the peace accord and elect a new president.

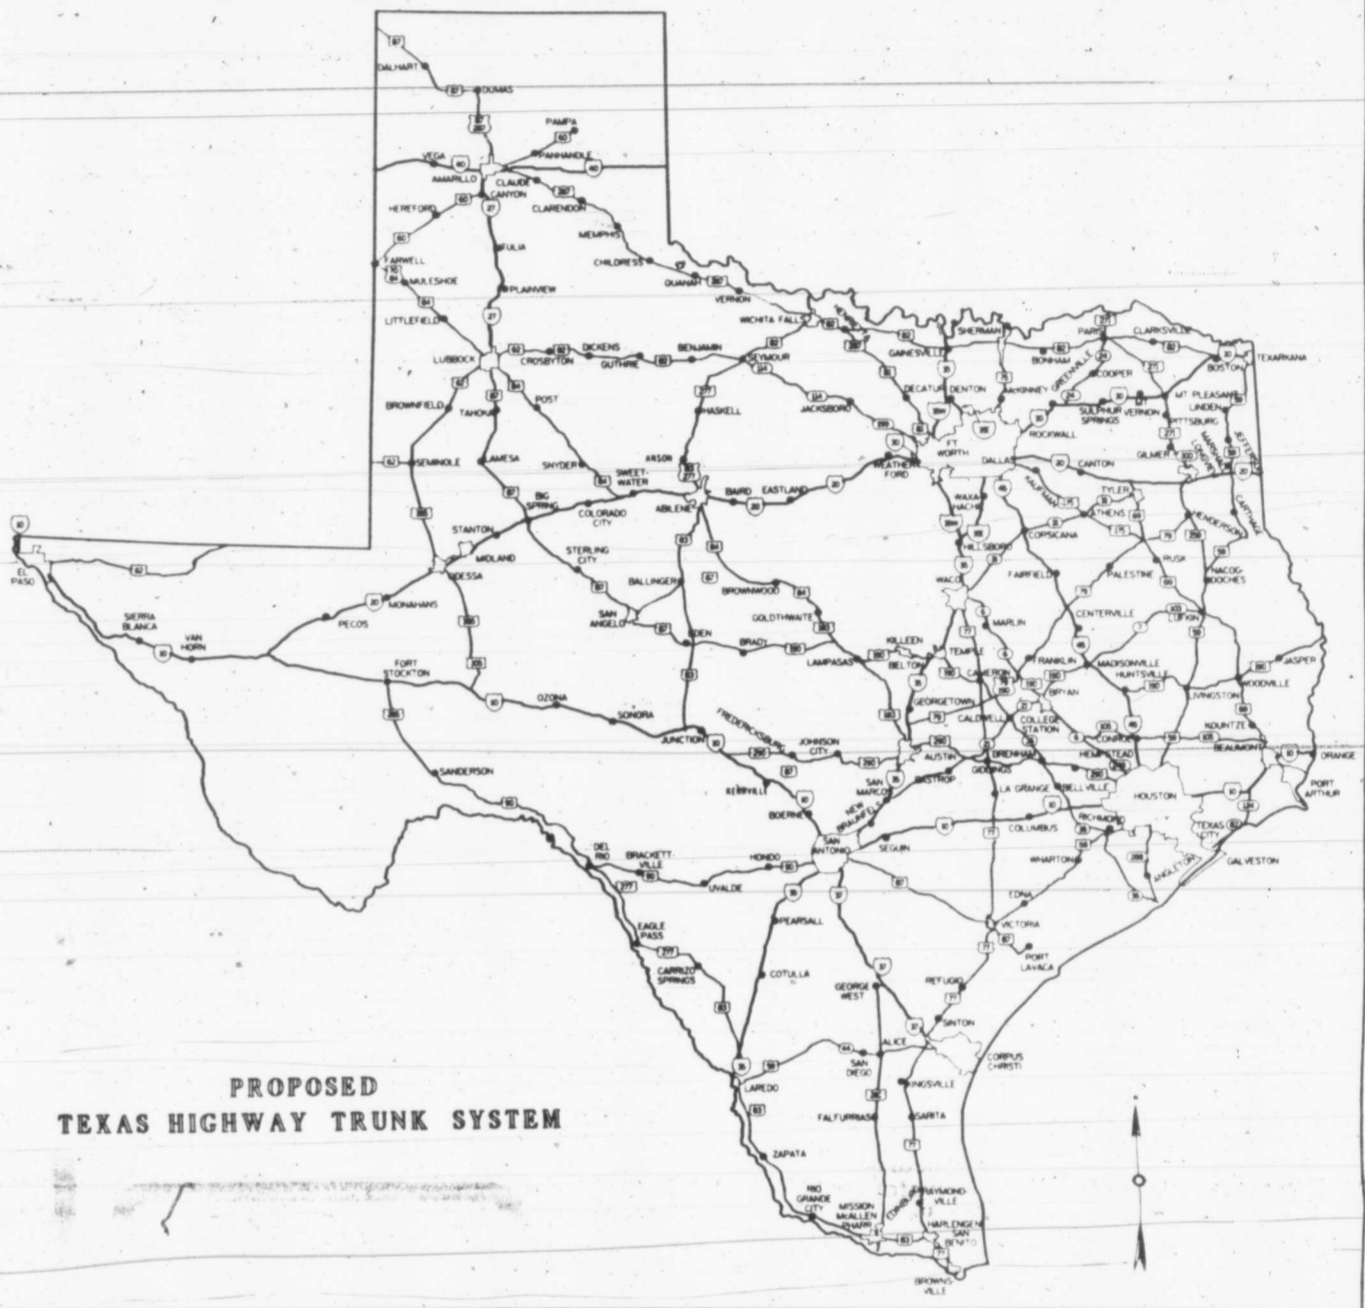

But sources close to Parliament Speaker Hussein Hussein, a Shiite Moslem, said he and about 50 parliament members in Lebanon and abroad agreed to go ahead and hold an electoral session later Saturday in Syrian-policed north Lebanon.

Aoun's supporters Saturday called a general strike that paralyzed the Christian enclave north of Beirut. Angry Christian militia members attacked east Beirut and the port of Jounieh, burning tires and shouting slogans against Parliament members.

Acting Prime Minister Salim Hoss, a Sunni Moslem who heads the Syrian-backed Cabinet that rivals Aoun's, rejected Aoun's decree.

"This is an unconstitutional, illegitimate act. It's null and void," Hoss said in a statement. For Results Use Snyder Daily News Classified Ads Call 573-5486

Refugees are filling embassy to capacity; more expected

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Thousands of East Germans who have jammed the West German Embassy will be allowed to leave without delay for the West, the official news agency CTK reported Friday.

CTK said an agreement was reached with East Germany allowing the would-be emigres "to leave directly" for West Germany. The West German government said they would leave as soon as transport could be arranged.

West German officials in Bonn said the estimated 4,500 East Germans packing the embassy would probably be transported Saturday to West Germany aboard five special trains.

More than 2,000 East Germans flooded into the Prague mission on Friday alone, many voicing bitter disappointment with promises of reform from a new Communist leader at home.

Harried diplomats tried to process the refugees. Thirty tents were erected and staircases filled with people to try to accommodate the influx just three days after East Germany lifted a travel ban to Czechoslovakia.

The overcrowding apparently forced the latest East German agreement to an exodus.

The arrangement announced Friday apparently allows the East Germans to go West without waiting for the cumbersome bureaucratic procedure of renouncing their East German citizenship through the East German Embassy in Prague.

Sources in Bonn suggested the trains this time would go direct to West Germany. This would avoid clashes that ensued in October when thousands of East Germans tried to board the rail cars going west as they passed through their Communist nation.

More than 12,000 East Germans have left their homeland since Wednesday, when East Germany's new leader, Egon Krenz, lifted a month-old ban on traveling to Czechoslovakia. Krenz's predecessor, Erich Honecker, imposed the ban to stop an earlier exodus of mostly young, skilled workers from the Communist country.

Honecker's ouster and indications Krenz might be open to some reforms did not sway some of the refugees.

"It's just the same hard-headed idiots as before," said a bricklayer from Karl-Marx-Stadt. "What's going to change? The corrupted socialism in our country is just getting new clothes, that's all."

"You've just got to use an open barn door to the West while you can," said a 25-year-old from Leipzig.

Some blamed Krenz himself for their decision to leave, citing his comments during a visit to Moscow this week that it is "not possible" to reunite East and West Germany.

Moonlighters ordered to pay

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A federal judge has ordered 13 San Antonio policemen accused of monopolizing off-duty assignments to turn over more than $7 million to the police union.

U.S. District Judge H.F. "Hippo" Garcia ruled last week in favor of the San Antonio Police Officers Association, which filed an antitrust lawsuit against the officers in May.

The lead defendant, Sgt. Robert Rudewick, and a spokesman for his attorney, Mayo Galindo, said Friday they were unaware of the judgment until contacted by a San Antonio newspaper.

James Champion, attorney for the Combined Law Enforcement Associations of Texas, said the $7 million judgment is "adequate and absolutely fair under federal law." The state association represents the local police officers association.

Garcia ruled that the defendants are liable for actual damages of $2,444,704. The figure represents the amount Rudewick and the others allegedly earned during four years of off-duty security work.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

This past October Dr. Leslie Butler, local chiropractor, and his wife, Bekky, spent a week biking in West Virginia. Even though the experience was "grueling" and they sometimes had to surpass what seemed like impossible obstacles at the time, they both said recently that they loved the experience and can't wait to go again.

"Sharing in nature's secrets did something special for me," Bekky said. "It was so peaceful and reassuring that the trip did something for me that I have never felt before. I feel reborn and I had a chance to regroup."

Butler said he didn't want the experience to end. "I'm definitely ready to go again. The best experience for me was when a deer and I faced each other on the trail. Usually I'm ready for a trip or experience to end no matter how much fun and pleasure it is. But this time was different. I would have loved to stay longer."

The Butlers began their vacation the last week in September, traveling through Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia, and Arkansas before starting the bike trip in West Virginia on Oct. 4.

En route to the bike trail, they made many stops and side trips and just generally enjoyed the change of pace and scenery.

The bike trail they followed in West Virginia is called Green Briar River Trail. It is 80 miles long and about the width of a railroad track.

Cass, a town located at the end of the trail, at one time was involved in the logging industry. The only route from Cass to Sulphur Springs was a railroad track. When the logging industry folded in that area, the tracks were taken up and eventually it became the Green Briar River Trail. However, the trail was very rocky, with some parts being harder to travel over than others, and that almost "did them in."

As Bekky explains, "Leslie was sure that the trail was paved and so at first we decided to just take the high performance bikes. But I wanted a mountain bike along just in case. If we had not had mountain bikes with us we would never have been able to travel that 80-mile bike trail and we would have been so disappointed if we had gotten there, discovered how rocky the trail was, and then not been able to do anything but turn around and go home."

A last-minute decision prompted the Butlers to order two mountain bikes. They arrived just barely in time for them to meet their departure date. They had to assemble both bikes before leaving.

Then they decided to order panniers, or bike luggage. When the panniers did not arrive as expected they waited an extra day. They ended up driving to West Virginia, but once they arrived they broke out the mountain bikes. They had not had a chance to break them in until this trip so in a way it was their "baptism of fire."

The Butlers said they went into this trip "cold turkey," meaning they had little or no information. They had no reservations and they did not see any other bikers on the trail. However, along the way, they did see a couple of fishermen.

When the Butlers had first heard about this trail they said they called West Virginia and all they received in the mail was a guide.

They traveled about 25-30 miles a day by bike and took many detours to see the sights and to visit tiny "communities" which had sprung up along the trail. They also camped out and that was fun because they slept in sleeping bags and encountered many animals including beaver, deer, wood chuck, snakes, and various birds, including eagles.

The Butlers said they started their bike trip "backwards" and rode to Cass first and then traveled to Sulphur Springs which lies at the opposite end of the trail.

They both described the ride to Cass as a "killer." They were exhausted, hungry, in a radio-dead area, and then they discovered that there was no motel and the bus only came through the town on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. They were there on a Saturday.

While in Cass they visited a basketmaker who "took them under his wing." First he explained that Cass residents wanted their community to be a resort community. In line with this philosophy, they were trying to attract creative people who could "fill up the shops."

Next the basketmaker told them to take his pickup and travel 20 miles to ask the owner of a bed/breakfast place if they had a room. They were lucky and secured a room for the night.

The next day they returned to Cass and since it was raining very heavily they said the

rived at the Green Briar River Trail in West Virginia. With their panniers, or bike luggage, fully loaded, they were ready to go. Butler carried from 50-80 pounds on his. Bekky had never ridden a fully loaded bike before. (SDN Staff Photo by Shirley A. Gorman) to do the same. You must be careful not to set your sights too high. If you force your adversaries to a high enough level, that in itself is a victory of sorts, since they will not always make their contract. Don't take away that gain by bidding on and taking a sure minus when you are doubled.

West's double was negative, and his partner bid three clubs over North's two spades. North kept on with three spades, and North-South were now too high. Still West, who surely had already described his values with that negative double, bid one more time. When this foolish four-club bid got back around to South, he panicked. If East-West could make four clubs, and four spades would be down only one, that would be better. So he bid four spades. And South was wrong on both counts. East-West would have been down one at four clubs. And South had to go down two tricks doubled at four spades. The right answer is obvious. Neither North nor South could be certain that even three spades was going to make. So they had an advantage when West bid four clubs. South should have passed quietly, hoping to take four tricks against the East-West contract.

Couple joined in evening ceremony

Nancy Thamez became the bride of Michael Steelman at 7 p.m. Sept. 30 at Calvary Baptist Church. Rev. Larry McAden performed the ceremony.

Mother of the bride is Teresa Thamez, and the parents of the groom are Grady and Laura Steelman.

Vows were exchanged before an arch decorated with greenery and pink and gray flowers.

Music was provided by Teresa Thamez, sister-in-law of the bride; Jayson Steelman, brother of the groom; and Bryan Tidwell, uncle of the groom. The trio sang "Walk Through This World With Me."

Given in marriage by her brother, Joe Thamez Jr., the bride chose a gown of silk peau de soie designed by Alfred Angelo. It featured a Queen Anne neckline. An A-line skirt was enhanced with seed pearls and lace. The full, sheer sleeves came together in a cuff of lace with rows of covered buttons and lace edging.

The groom was attired in a gray tuxedo with a pink bow-tie.

Latisha Thamez, niece of the bride, was flower girl, and Adam Wood was ring-bearer.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church following the ceremony.

The wedding cake was a three-tiered pink and white creation with pink flowers. Alicia Guerra created the confection. Terry Steelman, sister-in-law of the groom, served at the bride's table.

Sabrina Tidwell, aunt of the groom, served a chocolate cake from the groom's table.

The bride is a 1985 graduate of Snyder High School, and the groom is a 1988 SHS graduate. The couple resides in Snyder.

Couple exchanges vows in ceremony

Kathy Jean Rhodes and Howell Douglas Scott were joined in matrimony at 8 p.m. Oct. 6 at Northside Baptist Church. Bob Rhodes, father of the bride and pastor of the church, officiated the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Bob Rhodes, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Darby Scott.

Vows were exchanged before rainbow candelabra adorned with fresh greenery. White satin bows marked family pews. White and royal blue carnation arrangements on brass pedestals, along with green plants, completed the church decor.

Dave Brown, brother-in-law of the bride, lit candles during the ceremony.

Lynn Bethel was the pianist for the occasion. Stacey McIntosh of Houston sang "Til I Loved You," and "The Hawaiian Wedding Song," and Janet Davis of Snyder sang "Can't Help Falling in Love With You."

Escorted by her father, the bride chose a Bridal Original gown of white taffeta. The bodice was overlaid with lace, and the dress featured puffed sleeves and a cummerbund gathered to a large bow in the back.

A headpiece of white flowers and seed pearls, and the bridal bouquet of white gardenias with greenery and trailing ivy completed her attire.

Denise Brown served her sister as matron of honor. She wore a tea-length dress of royal blue taffeta with lace overlay. She carried a bouquet of royal blue and white carnations.

Darby Keith Scott, brother of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were Dave Brown, brother-in-law of the bride, and Amado Montalvo.

The groom was attired in a white tuxedo with royal blue accessories and a white boutonniere. The best man and ushers wore gray tuxedos with royal blue boutonnieres.

Katie Doty registered guests at a table covered in white featuring a royal blue and white bouquet.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church following the ceremony.

The bride's table was covered in white satin with a lace overlay. It featured an arrangement of royal blue and white carnations, and blue and white mints, handmade by Janet Davis.

The three-tiered white wedding cake featured cascades of royal blue and white flowers and ribbons. The confection was topped with a ceramic bride and groom in a gazebo. Sherry Springer and Debbie Early served at the bride's table.

The groom's cake featured a double-ring cake and a bronze cowboy statue. A basket holding a blue candle surrounded by small bales of hay completed the table. Susie Scott, sister-in-law of the groom, and Shirley Kelly, aunt of the groom, served at the groom's table.

BEEF INDUSTRY MUST REBUILD CONFIDENCE
Perception becomes reality, irrespective of truth or scientific fact, when enough people perceive it.

Media attention to cyanide residue on a few Chilean grapes, the Alar scare and the European Economic Community ban on imports of beef from animals implanted with hormones has increased the public's concerns about the safety of the U.S. food supply.

This kind of negative publicity and media advertising has created some of the concerns of consumers.

In a survey of elderly women in Houston who had stopped eating red meat, 41 percent said they stopped because of what they read or heard in the media.

A recent Burger King consumer trends report shows that 26 percent of the U.S. population is eating less beef and half of those say it is to improve their health.

To change consumer attitude and perception, we must use advertising, public relations and marketing.

Beef belongs in the American diet only if it is safe, healthful, palatable and contemporary in calories.

The industry must find a way to certify that beef is safe in a way that people have confidence that their children and grandchildren can eat it.

A survey by Food Marketing Institute has shown that of people who avoid certain foods because of safety concerns, one-fourth of them avoid meat and red meat.

Consumers are most concerned about hormones, antibiotics, residues and pathogens, in that order, but scientists and other professionals would list their concerns in the reverse order.

FDA Commissioner Frank Young has said that contamination by pathogens is much more important than pesticide contamination.

Some researchers rank food-borne diseases second only to the common cold. One estimate places the number of cases each year at 5 million, with more than 9,000 deaths attributed to food-borne diseases yearly. But much of the food-borne illness is related to poor handling by the consumer. FSIS of the USDA has blamed much of the problem on temperature abuse by consumers.

Yet, the beef industry could further minimize food-borne illness practices, bacteriacidal rinses and improving consumer education.

Additives are less risky. Studies have found no risk to consumers from use of antibiotics and anabolic steroids in the production of beef.

FDA guidelines on pesticide residues in the food supply provide a 100-fold margin of safety for humans. A FSIS-USDA report states that of 300,000 tests on 400 chemicals in foods in 1988 less than one percent of samples tested exceeded the FDA guidelines of safety.

Wood creaks in humidity

NEW YORK (AP) — When your house creaks and groans at night, it doesn't mean it's haunted.

"What you hear is the wood contracting and expanding as it picks up and gives off moisture," says wood specialist Julian Beckwith in Family Circle magazine.

The substance that gives wood its main structure — cellulose — attracts water from the air. Old buildings often make more noise than newer ones that have modern air conditioning and heating to keep the humidity constant.

"Such creaks are harmless," says Beckwith, adding, "I think they give a house personality."

Butlers enjoy their bike trip

 basketweaver took them halfway to Sulphur Springs. The ride the rest of the way down the mountain took from 4-5 hours and they got separated at one point because Bekky did not realize "that the car was farther away than I thought." It rained all day. This bike trip was a new experience for the Butlers in many ways. Bekky had never ridden a bike with luggage before. Butler carried from 50-80 pounds on his. Bekky called the first 10 miles an "experience" because she started spinning on the gravel and was almost afraid that she wasn't going to be able to make it.

However, they did get under-way and even though the trail was better in some places than others they managed to complete their trip.

Because the "communities" they visited did not sell fresh fruit they ate apples from trees along the trail. In addition, the Butlers do not eat meat so they ate different things like tomatoes, crackers, celery, raw peanuts, chips and bread. Bekky said that after four days of this type of trail eating they were "ready for a regular meal." Butler said special types of trail food can be purchased but they elected not to do that because they wanted to eat as "naturally as possible."

They encountered lots of trees across the trail, a "gift" from Hugo which had passed through the area a week earlier. Usually they could find some way around the trees, but one time they had to unload their bikes and carry them over the tree, and then return for their luggage.

The spring water they encountered was safe for drinking, but Butler said that in most cases the water has to be treated.

They passed through two tunnels which were totally dark. They had to push their bikes through with only a flashlight to guide them. At one point, they "ran" into a boulder which was right in the middle of the trail.

They also had some interesting encounters at some of the "communities" along the trail. The first day out they needed matches so Butler went into the nearest "community" for some.

Another time in another "community" they encountered an experience which could have been straight out of the movie, "Deliverance."

At the first one they visited that day, they stayed just a few minutes but during that time, without Bekky's knowledge, Butler told one of the locals who they were, where they were from, and why they were there.

Hours later Bekky was trying to secure a place where they could take a bath. She went up to a bed/breakfast place and started talking to a man working outside. He did not turn out to be the owner, but when he asked her if she was part of the couple from Texas she said she was "floored."

As it turned out he was from the other community, had talked with her husband, and later went to that establishment to do some work.

The man did point her in the right direction and she soon found the owner of the establishment. When Bekky asked her if they could buy two baths the woman was "stumped" at first because she had never sold baths before. But they settled on a price and the Butlers got to refresh themselves before returning to the trail.

Butler said he likened their experience to a scene from "Deliverance" because the people they encountered had that same "strangeness" that the hillbillies in the movie seemed to have.

One of the things which most impressed the Butlers was that the colors were just starting to change. They agreed that everything was "beautiful" and "impressive."

They took up bike riding about a year ago. In order to prepare for their bike trip they said they trained every day by either biking, running, or swimming. All their efforts paid off because in spite of obstacles and difficult conditions at times they were able to complete their goal and thoroughly enjoyed themselves in the process.

Usually they keep in shape by setting goals in biking, running or swimming each week. They usually try to do two activities on a daily basis.

Butler has always been athletic but Bekky didn't begin until she was 30 years old.

"Since I have become athletic I have realized that my health is better than ever," Bekky said. "I would feel cheated if I could not get up and breathe first thing in the morning."

Throughout the summer the Butlers also trained by entering as many triathlons as they could, including the "Hotter Than Hell 100" in Wichita Falls. Everything they did to prepare physically for their adventure "paid off" they said.

And they can't wait for another bike trip similar to their West Virginia adventure.

Frances Patiky Stein...

Designer protege sets out to make name for herself

NEW YORK (AP) — Frances Patiky Stein, who has been a major force at Halston, Calvin Klein and Chanel, is setting out on her own.

For three decades, according to the current issue of Connoisseur, Stein has quietly articulated a philosophy of affordable and appealing fashion.

Today she is designing a line of accessories which bear her name. They evoke pure, pared-down elegance, rejecting the fussy while retaining the functional and sensual.

Stein makes gold jewelry that looks soft and weighty yet feels light on the body. Her handbags have coquettish inverted proportions — a tiny envelope bag, for instance, with a giant clasp. They feel comfortable in your hand or over your shoulder.

"I try to design things that are irresistible visually, but they also have to work," she said. "A bracelet is great if you can pull it on and off and it doesn't get wound up in a typewriter or dribble into your plate when you are making an elegant gesture."

Stein's mentor was the late Diana Vreeland, who hired her straight out of college as millinery editor of Harper's Bazaar.

"She taught all of us that there was no middle ground; either it was wonderful or it was just to be ripped up and put in the wastepaper basket," Stein said. "Never be safe! Those were perhaps the most creative years of my life."

In the late '60s, Stein helped Halston, a milliner at Bergdorf Goodman, design his first two collections. His look was based on sweater dressing, a style Stein said she had been wearing since she was 18.

She was Calvin Klein's right-hand person in the '70s, and his emphasis on simple, well-cut clothes in natural fabrics and solid colors was very much Stein's. She was fired after a fashion writer referred to his collection as "The Calvin Stein Show."

For the past nine years she has been artistic director of Chanel's accessories, a period in which the company has grown astronomically.

"There are millions of women who don't have a concept of how to dress, nor do they have a focused interest," Stein said. "Perhaps because one has to recognize one's not so good points and good points — do you have a wide waist, short legs, big hips, broad shoulders, sloping shoulders, narrow waist? Proportion is the key.

"People manage to have a sense of proportion in what they do every day, like cooking. Now why is it that one can't spend two more minutes looking at one's body shape so she can dress appropriately?"

She said a woman need not spend the family income to look wonderful. "What is remarkable about accessories dressing," she says, "is that it's an investment; it's always going to work, over and over."

"Even though a handbag may be expensive, it certainly isn't nearly as expensive as a suit."

She believes in a small base of well-tailored, neutral color clothes and an infinite wardrobe of scarves, shawls, jewelry, belts and handbags.

"It's called making lots of pictures with stuff. It's called cooking," Stein told Diane Rafferty in the magazine's November issue. "You have basic stuff in your kitchen and some herbs, spices. Then you make 173 different meals with those ingredients."

Man pays taxes on land he can't find in Connecticut

HOPKINTON, R.I. (AP) — Shortly before Victor Nascimento bought 11-plus acres of land in 1970, he toured the wooded site, which a real estate agent said ran along the town's Blue Dot Trail, past Babbling Brook, and stopped at the old oak tree just over the Connecticut border.

But the tree has rotted and the brook has dried, Nascimento says, and he's baffled because he has been paying taxes on land he can't find.

Nascimento and his brother, who is now dead, bought the parcel for $2,100 and got a quit-claim deed, which gives them the right to claim the land but not to take any recourse against the seller should there be a problem with the title.

Nascimento and his wife, Lynn, of East Providence, and his sister-in-law, Lois, were so confused that they refused to pay taxes on the land for two years.

When the town threatened to sell the land to collect the back taxes in December, the Nascimentos paid the $455 tax bill. Nascimento said he would get a title search, although financial constraints won't allow that soon.

"I am an old Boy Scout, and it was my dream to own a piece of land," Nascimento says.

Arlene Violet, former state attorney general, says if they had gotten a title search and title insurance when they bought the land, they would be able to sue the title company if they could not find their property.

Violet says there are two recourses: Since the old oak tree, Blue Dot Trail and Babbling Brook are identified in the Nascimentos' quit-claim deed, they could look for other references to those landmarks, perhaps in older deeds, to try to claim ownership. Also, they could obtain topography maps, which are close-ups of the land, to find their parcel.

The tax collector agrees with the Nascimentos that the land exists. "There's a deed for it, so we're assuming that it exists," says Linda Czerkiewicz of Hopkinton. "They bought something."

Nascimento says the original documents filed with his lawyer were destroyed when the lawyer's garage burned years ago, and his real estate agent says he doesn't remember the Nascimentos.

"There's a chain of taxes people paid on this land, dating back to the 1800s," Nascimento says.

He says he bought the land from a Dean Edwards, who inherited the parcel from his father, Oliver Edwards. He says Dean Edwards died about two years ago.

"Oliver Edwards was an old-time Yankee," Nascimento says. "These Yankees can't pay taxes on land that doesn't exist."

Not only does he not know where his property is, he doesn't know how much it is worth.

"I believe it's quite expensive," he says, "let's put it that way."

And while he is determined to find his land, recent trips to the area have proved fruitless.

"You walk in the woods," he says, "and all the trees look the same."

Exercise can help to prolong life

CHICAGO (AP) — A short daily walk can go a long way toward prolonging your life, according to researchers whose study finds that even moderate exercise can help the most hard-core couch potatoes.

"The positive aspect of the work ... is that it doesn't take a lot of exercise to make the kinds of changes that over the long run will save us years," said George Lesmes, director of the Center for Exercise Science and Cardiovascular Research at Northwestern Illinois University.

Fitness gurus also welcomed the study in Friday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

"Hallelujah! They're finally making some sense out of this thing," said exercise video star Richard Simmons in a telephone interview from Los Angeles. "If you exercise, if you take care of your body, it's the best thing in the world. You do live longer."

The study by researchers at the Institute for Aerobics Research in Dallas indicated that if all the unfit people surveyed had become fit, the death rates might have dropped by 9 percent in men and 15.3 percent in women.

And it doesn't take much to get into some semblance of fitness, said Steven N. Blair, an epidemiologist and co-author of the study.

"The most sedentary, the most unfit can get a lot of benefit if they just can move up the scale a ways" to a level of moderate fitness, Blair said. "They don't have to become marathon runners."

Thirty to 45 minutes of brisk walking each day "will produce the moderate levels (of fitness) that are associated with much lower death rates," he said.

He added that fewer than 10 percent of adult Americans exercise at levels recommended by the surgeon general.

The researchers studied 10,224 men and 3,120 women for an average of more than eight years. Of those, 240 men and 43 women died during the study. It was a far larger study than previous ones of which the authors are aware, they said.

The subjects were first tested on a treadmill to determine their fitness level and then tested for blood-cholesterol levels, blood pressure and other general health factors.

They also were questioned about factors in their lifestyles that might affect longevity, such as smoking, as well as family history of heart disease.

DEAR ABBY: I recently attended a bridal shower for a friend and gave her two beautiful nightgowns. (Not cheap, either.) She and her boyfriend became engaged shortly after she found out she was pregnant.

A week before the scheduled wedding, she called it off because she found out her fiancé was using drugs heavily, and he told her that he had no intention of quitting.

She phoned me to tell me the wedding was off, then she asked if I wanted my gifts back.

I told her she could keep them if she wanted, or she could return them for the money, since times would be tight for her with the baby coming. Should she have kept them or not? I felt she put me on the spot by asking me if I wanted them back.

What is the correct thing for an ex-bride to do in that situation?

EX-BRIDE'S FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: When a wedding is called off, the "ex-bride" should return the shower and wedding gifts.

However, in this case, the ex-bride asked you if you wanted your gifts returned, and you suggested that she return them for cash because "times would be tight," which was a very generous gesture on your part. Please don't fault her; she's facing a difficult future.

***

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been very happily married for 14 years and have four children. My problem is my parents, who take frequent vacations and short trips.

Every time they return from one of their trips, they bring some kind of gift for each of our children and me — but there's never anything for my husband.

Although he has never said anything, I can tell he feels hurt. I would prefer that my parents bring presents for the children only and nothing for me if they can't bring something for my husband. My parents are very loving and generous people, but I'm afraid if I tell them how I feel, they might think I am ungrateful.

What do you think, Abby? Perhaps for my parents (or other people who are guilty of the same thing) read this letter, they will remember to bring something for everybody in the family — or nothing at all.

HURTING FOR HUBBY

DEAR HURTING: Tell your parents how you feel. Don't assume they might think you ungrateful. If they are truly "loving and generous people," they will appreciate your calling this oversight to their attention, and admire you for your sensitivity and caring attitude for your husband.

***

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know if it is proper etiquette to put on a wedding invitation, "Adult Reception Only" and also, "Monetary Gifts Preferred." I think that is so tasteless and would like to know if things have changed since I married.

APPALLED OUT EAST

DEAR APPALLED: Nothing has changed. Only those whose names appear on the wedding and reception invitations are invited. And to suggest that "monetary gifts" are preferred is in the worst possible taste.

***

CONFIDENTIAL TO "IN A GREAT RELATIONSHIP IN LAKE CHARLES, LA.": The best advice I can give you is to use these three phrases as often as possible: I love you. Thank you. I'm sorry.

***

DEAR ABBY: I very much appreciated all the letters about Down Syndrome children. I admired particularly the letter from the grandmother who admitted that it was a traumatic experience for the family and required a necessary period of adjustment.

I would like to share with your readers an article distributed by the Parent Program for the Washington State School for the Deaf. I keep it handy to read whenever I feel overwhelmed — when life throws me a curveball. I think the philosophy expressed in this article can be applied to every aspect of one's life — not just for the birth of a child with disabilities.

CAROLE MULLIGAN, SEATTLE

DEAR CAROLE: I agree. That piece deserves a nationwide audience. In fact, my staff discovered that the piece you submitted was written by Emily Perl Kingsley, the well-known author of the television movie "Kids Like These." Here it is:

WELCOME TO HOLLAND

"I am often asked to describe the experience of raising a child with a disability — to try to help people who have not shared that unique experience to understand it, to imagine how it would feel. It's like this ...

"When you're going to have a baby, it's like planning a fabulous vacation trip — to Italy. You buy a bunch of guidebooks and make your wonderful plans. The Coliseum. The Michelangelo David. The gondolas in Venice. You may learn some handy phrases in Italian. It's all very exciting.

"After months of eager anticipation, the day finally arrives. You pack your bags and off you go. Several hours later, the plane lands. The stewardess comes in and says, 'Welcome to Holland.'

"Holland???" you say. "What do you mean, Holland? I signed up for Italy! I'm supposed to be in Italy. All my life I've dreamed of going to Italy."

"But there's been a change in the flight plan. They've landed in Holland and there you must stay."

"The important thing is that they haven't taken you to a horrible, disgusting, filthy place, full of pestilence, famine and disease. It's just a different place."

"So you must go out and buy new guidebooks. And you must learn a whole new language. And you will meet a whole new group of people you would never have met."

"It's just a different place. It's slower-paced than Italy, less flashy than Italy. But after you've been there for a while and you catch your breath, you look around, and you begin to notice that Holland has windmills. Holland has tulips. Holland even has Rembrandts.

"But everyone you know is busy coming and going from Italy, and they're all bragging about what a wonderful time they had there. And for the rest of your life, you will say, 'Yes, that's where I was supposed to go. That's what I had planned.'"

"And the pain of that will never, ever, ever go away, because the loss of that dream is a very significant loss."

"But if you spend your life mourning the fact that you didn't get to Italy, you may never be free to enjoy the very special, the very lovely things about Holland."

***

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years in the Stars and Stripes in Japan, and I must say that I was shocked at your response to the woman who said her husband was 73 years old and was still chasing women.

You replied: "My dog has been chasing cars for years, but if he ever caught one he wouldn't know what to do with it."

Shame on you, Abby. That was a sexist remark. I am single, 43, and have a sexy Italian lover who lost his wife two years ago. He told me he was 63. He's short, square, and not very pretty, but he's very romantic and totally fulfilling. No woman ever had a better lover.

Last week he confessed that he was really 73! Abby, it's true what they say about Italian men.

SUZANNE

DEAR SUZANNE: And according to my mail, they say the same thing about French, Latin and American men.

Bakker is moved

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP)—Jim Bakker Friday received his expected transfer from a federal prison in Alabama to one in Minnesota to serve time for defrauding followers of his PTL television ministry, officials said.

Dana Newell of the information office at the Federal Correctional Institution at Talladega said Bakker was being transferred to the Federal Medical Center in Rochester, Minn., but she would not say when he left or when he was to arrive.

Bakker, 49, arrived at Talladega the night of Oct. 24, several hours after he was sentenced by a federal judge in Charlotte, N.C., to 45 years in prison and fined $500,000.

The Talladega facility often is the first stop for prisoners in the Southeast before they are sent to more permanent lodgings.

While in Talladega, Bakker was visited by his wife, Tammy Faye, and his brother, Norm.

1st depiction of 'oldest' dinosaur noted

CHICAGO (AP) — The oldest dinosaur may have been shorter than former basketball star Wilt Chamberlain and lighter than football star William "Refrigerator" Perry.

It was puny for a dinosaur. It scampered along on the toes of its rear feet but had "large claws on its forelimbs, used to grasp prey," said University of Chicago paleontologist Paul Sereno.

More importantly, Sereno and other scientists said Thursday they believe the first drawing of the ancient Herrerasaurus may reveal important clues into the evolution of dinosaurs.

"Before, only a few bones of Herrerasaurus were known," said Sereno. "Now, we have everything."

"Basically we have the first relatively complete idea of what the primitive form of the dinosaur looks like. This will help us in trying to figure out the pathways of evolution that proceeded over the course of many millions of years after that."

Scientists welcomed Sereno's work, presented Thursday in Austin, Texas, at meetings of the Society of Vertebrate Paleontologists.

"I think it's extremely important to know what the thing looks like in detail," said Nicholas Hotton, curator of fossils, amphibians and reptiles at the Smithsonian National Museum of Natural History. "If you've got that kind of information, you can tell which way evolution is going."

Sereno said the artist's reconstruction of the dinosaur — named after an Argentine goat herder — was based largely on the recent discovery of a skull and two nearly complete skeletons in South America.

Working with South American colleagues Alfredo Monetta and Jose Bonaparte, Sereno discovered the fossils in the foothills of the Andes.

The Herrerasaurus, which scampered the Earth some 230 million years ago, was Earth's first true dinosaur. "Basically, you go back further and you get dinosaur-type things but not a dinosaur," he said.

Herrerasaurus weighed a mere 300 pounds and stood between 6 feet and 8 feet tall. Sereno said the Chicago Bears' Perry weighs in at 325 pounds, while Chamberlain stands 7 feet, 1 inch high.

Like all other dinosaurs, Herrerasaurus roamed the earth for only a few million years before becoming extinct. Scientists aren't sure what doomed the tiny first dinosaur, Sereno said.

Dr. Gott Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Every year around the holidays, my husband seems very depressed. In the past, it has caused us to live separately. Recently, I've heard of a depression that is caused by inadequate sun. Could this be his problem?

DEAR READER: Many depressed patients show a cyclical pattern in their illness. Depression seems to be more severe around holidays, birthdays and anniversaries. Also, depression may affect people during the midwinter months.

Some experts believe that seasonal depression may be due to inadequate sunlight. For example, in northern latitude countries, such as Scandinavia, where winter days are short, people appear to suffer almost a cultural depression. This has led scientists to try artificial sunlight, in an attempt to make patients feel better.

In a surprising number of cases, this daily exposure to "sunlight" reduced the incidence and severity of depression. In the United States, where winter days are less forlorn, sunlight probably plays a less important role.

If your husband's depressive episodes were so severe that they disrupted his life and led to a separation, he could be helped by taking anti-depressant medication. This therapy should be administered under the supervision of a physician, preferably a psychiatrist. Anti-depressants often produce astounding improvement in patients, allowing them to function more happily and efficiently.

See if you can get your husband to a psychiatrist or mental-health center in your community. He may be a different man once he is medicated.

In addition, if sun deprivation seems to be a factor in your husband's depression, the doctor can suggest an appropriate way for him to obtain artificial sunlight. However, I believe that medicine will provide a more satisfactory answer to the problem.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Mental and Emotional Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 21-year-old daughter has been using Chap Stick for many years, as often as several times an hour. Without it, her lips are dry, cracked, bleed and are painful. Can you suggest how she can reduce her dependence on the product?

DEAR READER: Chapped lips can be a real problem to control, especially in dry climates, particularly in "lip-wetters" — people who, out of nervousness, constantly lick or bite their lips.

First of all, your daughter should find out why her lips chap so readily. Is she a lip-wetter? If so, she may need some help in breaking the habit. Is she constantly exposed to sun or dry, cold air? Such an environment can severely deplete lip oils and cause the skin to crack.

Does she have a skin disorder, such as psoriasis, eczema or excessively dry skin? Could she have developed an allergy to lipstick or to Chap Stick itself? These conditions may need the attention of a dermatologist. Ask your daughter to see a doctor, so her problem can be diagnosed.

Chap Stick is a good product, and it does protect lips from a drying environment. However, in my experience, it is not the solution for everyone. I've found that lanolin-containing balms are superior, because the lanolin penetrates the skin of the lips, adds moisture to the tissues and keeps the lips soft and supple.

Perhaps your daughter would be helped by trying one of the many available lanolin hand-creams. She should apply the substance several times a day, and rub it in well. If dry weather contributes to her chapped lips, she can apply Chap Stick right over the lanolin for added protection.

Medical practice is falling on hard times. For example, the issue of confidentiality is being eroded.

Time was when a patient could be at ease with a doctor during an office visit ... while the practitioner spilled his guts. The information was considered privileged between physician and patient. Now, the doctor can no longer express his inner feelings for fear they will become public knowledge.

Several years ago, I examined a man who suffered from severe anxiety. I thought he needed counseling, so I referred him to one of our local psychiatrists.

He took my advice. A few minutes into the psychiatric interview, the specialist really started to talk. He disregarded the patient's rather uninteresting history and launched into a lengthy description of his own tra-vails. Apparently, his marriage was on the rocks, he had a drinking problem, and his wife was threatening him with an expensive court action. The psychiatrist was severely distraught.

However, the patient was able to give him a sympathetic ear and lots of sound advice. After an hour of this, the doctor felt much better. So did the patient, who realized how truly well off he was; his anxiety disappeared. It was a mutually satisfying transaction, and the patient's — not the doctor's — insurance paid for the office call.

The psychiatrist subsequently left our community, and it wasn't until years later that I learned how helpful and discreet the patient had been. In fact, the psychiatrist had confided to many patients, and they assiduously kept their secrets until long after he had left town.

I doubt today's patients have the self-control and ethical commitment to shoulder such a responsibility. When doctors talk freely in their offices, they no longer can be assured that their problems and the details of their tawdry private lives will be kept confidential. This information is more likely to leak out and become town gossip.

I think this is the reason doctors are so jittery with patients. I've spoken with practitioners who are sure their blood pressures rise when patients enter their offices; the doctors experience all the symptoms of apprehension: dry mouth, flushing, rapid pulse and nervousness.

Many consumer-advocate organizations recommend that patients take family members with them to doctors' offices. Most experts urge gynecologists to have female chaperones in their examining rooms. The purpose of these ploys is to discourage doctors from sharing their innermost secrets because, once they do, they become the butt of uncomplimentary jokes in the community.

I am sure many physicians are so intimidated by their patients that the unhappy professionals don't feel comfortable in their own offices. They're extraordinarily tense and often fiddle with their ball point pens or toy with their stethoscopes. They are just plain relieved when patients leave, and they hope their clients don't think too badly of them if they have tried to garner some straightforward advice from an experienced patient.

All the publicity about malpractice, high overhead, work dissatisfaction and mounds of paperwork merely disguises the real reason why office practice is in trouble: Doctors no longer can rely on their patients to give objective opinions without, as it were, kissing and telling.

I advise all patients to be kind and attentive to their doctors and to keep what they hear confidential. Offer assistance if the healer seems troubled. Reassure the doctor that you are a trained, experienced patient. Remember patient/doctor privilege. Don't be judgmental; no matter how bizarre the practitioner's story, you've heard worse. Above all, make sure you get the doctor's correct Blue Shield number and insist that his receptionist fill out all the necessary insurance forms.

During the Spanish-American War, the Spaniards surrendered to the Americans at Santiago, Cuba, July 17, 1898.

Your Birthday

Nov. 5, 1989

Nov. 6, 1989

It looks like good old fashioned luck will play a key role in your affairs in the year ahead, especially in areas where you'll be trying to get an enterprise off the ground.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Everyone is likely to fare better in the long run today if the control of an important matter is in your hands instead of being run by a committee. Scorpio, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although you are likely to opt to stay in the background today, your ideas and suggestions will still have a strong effect on others. However, you might not receive credit for authorship.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Group endeavors look promising for you today, whether it is dealing with a big organization or just a large group of people at a gathering.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Important pieces could be coming together for you as of today and there is a possibility you may experience success both socially and commercially.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) What you leave unsaid today might serve you better than what you express. This is because others will use their imagination to fill in the blank spaces to please themselves.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It looks like Lady Luck may intervene in a matter that has been concerning you lately. As of today the picture could change from dark shades to bright hues.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Compromise is a very effective tool in your hands today and it can be used constructively to adjust arrangements where critical issues are at stake.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't be overly concerned about your compensation today regarding your work. If you do a good job, the rewards should be commensurate to your efforts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone will be saying nice things about you today that will enhance your image in the eyes of others. You might not hear what is said, but you'll feel its impact.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you're a positive thinker today, it will govern your actions and produce desirable results, especially in a situation you've been trying to pin down to your advantage.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your expectations will have a better chance of being realized today if you show others with whom you're involved that it could mean equally as much for them. Make sure everyone benefits.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conditions look bright for you today in the material realm. Strangely enough, however, your good fortune could come from being more lucky than logical.

An opportunity may present itself in the year ahead through a trusted friend who dabbles in unique enterprises. Study in depth what is proposed even if it is in an area with which you are unfamiliar.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Where domestic economies are concerned today you and your mate are likely to have a meeting of the minds, but this may not be true in other critical areas. Major changes are ahead for Scorpio in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may have to contend with some problems today that are not entirely of your own making. Your ability to resolve them effectively will be lessened if you begin to feel sorry for yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's best not to take large risks today in order to achieve nominal gains. Keep this uppermost in your mind if an associate presents you with a questionable proposition.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The forces you marshal today in order to advance your personal ambitions are likely to be inadequate. The supporters you really need might ignore you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A failure to use your own imagination and talents today is tantamount to quitting before you start. Don't give greater strengths to opposing factors than they actually possess.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A wise old adage reminds us to be neither a borrower nor a lender. This could be especially pertinent in any involvements you have with friends today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In advancing your personal interests today you might use tactics your companions find offensive. Be doubly certain the prize is worth the procedures.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you may lack the courage of your convictions and your intentions could go un-served. If you have no faith in your own ideas, why should others?

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you fail to keep your priorities in order today your nonproductive involvements could be given more attention than the responsibilities you're expected to perform.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The option to make your own decisions could be taken from you today if you put yourself in a position where you let your peers do your thinking for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Put more emphasis on resolving complications today than trying to find fall guys. Remedy problems first, then point the accusing finger later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Usually you think twice before risking your resources on "ifly" ventures. Today, however, you might leap into a loser impulsively.

New federal law...

Drug dealer given life with no parole

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A drug dealer caught at an airport was sentenced to life in prison without parole in what a federal judge said was the first application of a mandatory penalty Congress approved last year.

"That means you will have to stay in prison until you die," U.S. District Judge Elmo B. Hunter told James A. McKines, 38, of Las Vegas at the sentencing Thursday.

McKines was convicted by a jury of trying to smuggle eight soft drink bottles filled with liquid phencyclidine, the hallucinogen known on the street as PCP or angel dust, through Kansas City International Airport on June 8.

McKines had two previous felony convictions for trafficking in PCP, in Nevada in 1981 and in California in 1986.

The Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988 requires a mandatory sentence of life in prison without release for a third felony drug conviction. Hunter said it was the first time the law has been applied since it became effective.

McKines' lawyer, David L.

Owen Jr., said he would appeal the sentence.

"As mandated by Congress, this violates (the constitutional protection) against cruel and unusual punishment," Owen told the judge.

"I thought about the constitutional aspects," Hunter replied. "I am satisfied that the statute is lawful. I don't find anything cruel and unusual about it when compared to the damage drugs do to humanity. The law does not begin to cause the sadness and damage that one man can do selling PCP or cocaine or crack."

McKines, who has known since his conviction what his sentence could be, showed no emotion when the sentence was pronounced.

"I have nothing to say," McKines told the judge. "I just want to thank my lawyers for trying to help me."

McKines was stopped by Agent Carl Hicks of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration during a routine surveillance of flights arriving from the West Coast, a major source of drugs sold in the Midwest.

Vote Yes To Proposition 8 Tuesday, Nov. 7 Texas State Constitutional Amendment Election

Snyder did not make the short list for current prison construction, but Proposition 8 on the ballot may still have a direct impact on Scurry County and efforts to locate additional Texas Criminal Justice Department facilities here. The proposition calls for the issuance of up to $400 million in general obligation bonds to finance projects for three state agencies—including the TDCJ.

This is the most economical method of financing for the state. Prisons will be built in Texas because of federal court orders. Scurry County citizens should again show their support for prisons by voting YES on Proposition 8.

Members of the Economic Development Committee of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce believe that a big turnout of votes in favor of Proposition 8 will once again be a signal to TDCJ officials of local citizens' interest and support of the prison system.

This is a personal column. At least it's personal to me. I don't like war.

Now, that's not too personal a statement because I don't imagine there are very many people who do like war. At least, not anybody in their right mind.

I never fought in a war. I never served in the armed forces. I didn't fight in Vietnam.

And, as a student during the Vietnam War, I opposed it. Not actively. I didn't join in peace marches or protests. But I do believe that those who protested Vietnam helped end that war. And in that regard, certainly they were right.

But the rage over that unjust war also spilled over to include those who fought in it. They were scorned. And for the most part, they were forgotten as America tried to forget.

That's a tragedy.

It's a tragedy because the men and women who fought in Vietnam and Korea, WWI and WWII did so for America, liberty, democracy. They were, and are; the guy down the street, who — willingly or not so willingly — fought for freedom. They fought, sometimes in a direct threat to America, other times to preserve freedom overseas, under the flag of the United States.

SDN Opinion Page

All war is horrific. Vietnam was particularly so. Imagine, fighting a war in which the "powers that be" won't or can't commit themselves to win. And yet, it continued. It was a sad and tragic situation.

The guy down the street gave his life anyway to preserve what he was told — right or wrong — was a just cause.

Saturday, Nov. 11, is Veteran's Day.

No one likes to think about war. No one likes to dwell on the deaths, for regardless of the motives of our enemies in those wars, they were people too. You won't convince me that the guy next door in Germany, in Russia, in Korea, in Vietnam, in England, Japan and elsewhere wanted to fight either. Each fought because his country or his beliefs dictated him to do so.

But I think it's important to reflect back on Veteran's Day and Memorial Day. And remember that Americans gave their lives for what they believed in. They were asked to fight, and they fought.

I hope we never have another war. Another "conflict." But if it happens, I know Americans will respond.

That's a frightening fact, and a comforting fact. Because no one in their right mind wants war. And yet, it is reassuring to know that if situations get that extreme Americans will respond.

When Nov. 11 gets here, I hope you will take a few moments to reflect on Veteran's Day. On those who fought to keep America free. For that reason, they should be praised and honored.

I told you this was a personal column. I just want to say that I appreciate our veterans. I just want to say thanks, personally.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

Funny, the things you remember from funerals.

Recently, while I was in Dallas on business, my best friend's mother died. For eight months she'd been dwindling away to this vanishing point, and now she was gone. How eerie, we thought, that she would take her leave at a convenient time, when I could be there for my friend. My husband was asked to be a pallbearer, an honor we couldn't refuse, and a relay team of friends was set up to keep the kids here in Snyder. (That's the way it is when you live in a town where everyone has relatives but you.)

I remember the strangeness of it all. On a Monday morning, I was at the Dallas County Courthouse, watching white-clad inmates receive a stern lecture from a judge, negotiating elevators, and trying to find a spot in the District Attorney's office where I could observe without being observed. That afternoon, I stood next to a line of uniformed Dallas cops—my friend's co-workers—underneath a splendid October sky at Restland Cemetery, watching golden rays of sunlight slant through shaggy oaks to caress a baby blue casket covered with a spectacular spray of crimson carnations.

I didn't pay much attention to the service, because it always irritates me when a preacher uses someone's unfortunate demise as an excuse to preach a salvation message. (Forgive me, Lord, but it does.) Afterward, my friend clung to my husband and wept, and she didn't look anything at all like the tough-talking cop who led me through inner-city ghettos with one hand on her holster. She looked like a little girl who missed her mama.

After the limousines drove away, my husband took my hand and we walked over to my daddy's grave, where it rests quietly beneath a magnificent white marble sculpture of a man and wife, arm in arm, pointing heavenward. My mother chose the spot. He's been gone now nearly 18 years, but as I knelt at the headstone to brush away the acorns, unshed tears from the funeral suddenly poured off my face and splashed onto my hands, and I said simply, "I wish so much he could have lived long enough to see my book. He would have been so proud."

My husband said, "I'll drive." As we headed toward the car over unnaturally green grass in this peaceful big-city oasis, I said, "He'd have enjoyed his grandkids so much, especially my sister's twin boys. They look a little like him. All the grandkids are such sweet kids. It would have meant so much to him."

Kent didn't say, "I've heard all this before." He just squeezed my waist, realizing all too well the incredible sadness when a young man dies.

That night, at my friends house, there was no weeping. Instead, there was a joyous celebration of life. Eternal life, for one, which had rescued her mother from pain, and the life all our mothers had given us. We could all see her mom as she had been in life, right there in the kitchen, fluttering about, making something tasty to feed us, laughing; not as she had been at death, a 90-pound skinhead, struggling mightily to complete one sentence.

We shared funny stories; we laughed uproariously; we played obnoxious pranks on the grandkids. We knew, without saying it, that this is what she would have wanted. Upon reflection, I think it is what my mom would want too, and I know it is what I would want of those I left behind. I would want their laughter to ring out in a frank declaration of the joy of living.

But there was one thing I didn't tell my friend. I didn't tell her that, 18 years from now, she will still weep at her mother's grave.

Because the bittersweet truth of life is that you simply cannot know joy without pain. It's an exquisite price to pay, but, I think, a fair trade.

Letters policy

Following a long-standing policy and practice, the Snyder Daily News will not publish letters pertaining to a candidate or issue when an election has been called.

Opinions for or against an issue or candidate may be published in paid political advertisements.

All letters to the editors must be signed and must give the address of the writer. Letters should be of reasonable length, and the newspaper does reserve the right to refuse letters if they contain libelous material or information deemed in poor taste.

To the editor,

You talk about your policy, is it poor taste to tell the truth? The hospital board would not allow any questions. The commissioners court claims no authority over the hospital "at all."

You were also handed these papers and you asked no questions nor reported any of these facts, why? The District Attorney claimed "a conflict of interest," why? Will you please answer what questions you can and explain.

Fort Hood hosts film crew

FORT HOOD, Texas (AP) — A leather-faced colonel strides out of a Fort Hood airfield hangar and tells a group of the Army's best Apache helicopter pilots to get ready for combat.

In 72 hours they will support a Drug Enforcement Administration effort to arrest drug cartel leaders in South America.

"Our job is to make damn sure they get that chance," the colonel says.

It could happen. But this time it's Hollywood, not Holocaust.

Fort Hood is hosting filmmakers and actors Tommy Lee Jones, Nicolas Cage and Sean Young this week in a movie collaboration to create Wings of the Apache.

Army officials hope the movie, which has been in the works for two years at various air bases, will do for the AH-64 Apache attack helicopter what Tom Cruise and Top Gun did for the Navy's F-14 Tomcat warplanes — show superiority of American military weapons.

The story will tell of a U.S. military task force attack on the drug cartel's "unnamed South American country." And it will feature the special fighting abilities of the $10 million Apache, considered the first chopper maneuverable enough for air-to-air combat.

"Fort Hood will act mostly as an Apache-heavy backdrop to character acting scenes, with most of the combat and destruction taking place at Arizona sites. The movie will cost $16.9 million and will hit theaters next summer," said producer William Badalato, who also produced Top Gun.

Production officials use that movie — in which Cruise shoots down Russian MiG warplanes — to describe the spirit of Wings of the Apache. But they emphasize that their movie will have more depth and character development than its cousin.

More importantly for the Army, the film will put a positive spotlight on a helicopter that has weathered negative publicity about several mechanical malfunctions in its brief history.

The military temporarily grounded its Apaches on those occasions to make sure the problems weren't fleetwide and each time the choppers were approved again for use.

"One thing everybody has to understand is it's been in the field since 1965," said Fort Hood Apache pilot Bill Lee, who is flying the ship for the filmmakers. "It's a new airplane, and it's very sophisticated. Anything that sophisticated, you're going to have some problems with it."

"It's a good airplane. It's a great airplane actually. We enjoy the hell out of flying it. I think people will forget about the negative publicity the aircraft has had once they see the film and how terrific it looks. It looks fantastic on film."

Davis remembered in memorial service

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Hollywood friends of Bette Davis gathered at a movie studio to reminisce about the actress and pay tribute to what Angela Lansbury called her "astounding legacy" of films.

More than 500 people attended the memorial service on a Warner Bros. sound stage Thursday night. Miss Davis was associated with Warner Bros. for 18 years, though she often feuded with founder Jack Warner.

Miss Davis would fight for the roles she wanted in a time when actresses usually behaved — since studio chiefs considered them replaceable if they didn't, actor James Woods said.

"Bette Davis put herself on the line when she just didn't have to," in standing up for women's rights, Woods said.

Miss Davis died of cancer Oct. 6 in Paris at age 81.

"Thank God she worked as hard as she did in her prime," said Lansbury, star of the television series "Murder She Wrote."

"She has bequeathed to us all an astonishing legacy... bravura acting of the first order."

Woods, who worked with Miss Davis in the film "The Disappearance of Amy," said his viewing of her 1940s melodrama "Now, Voyager" inspired him in his own career.

"Miss Davis wrote poetry on the screen like Yeats might write," he said.

President Bush, in a telegram read by David Hartman, said, "How fortunate our nation is to have her contribution to the art of filmmaking."

Other celebrities attending were Roddy McDowell, George Hamilton, Lionel Stander and Robert Wagner.

A 38-minute highlight reel of Miss Davis' work was shown.

Her scores of movie credits included "Jezebel" and "Dangerous," for which she won Oscars, "Dark Victory," "The Petrified Forest," "The Little Foxes," "All About Eve," "What Ever Happened to Baby Jane?" and "The Whales of August."

With Lyndon Johnson...

Crewman recalls World War II flight

WACO, Texas (AP) — The only bombing mission Lyndon Johnson went on during World War II ended minutes into the flight because of mechanical problems and involved no combat, the navigator of the plane says.

The Waco Tribune-Herald reported in a copyright story today that navigator Billy Boothe, who was seated next to Johnson on the flight over New Guinea, says the only remarkable thing about the flight was that it ended when a magneto malfunctioned after the plane had been in the air for about a half-hour.

"We did take off that day, but we had to return to our base because of mechanical trouble," Boothe said in a telephone interview from South Carolina.

"It was just one of those things, one of the times when the pilot has responsibility for the whole crew."

In a book written by author Robert Caro and being serialized in The New Yorker magazine, Caro said Johnson flaunted a Silver Star he was awarded and embellished his war experiences.

Johnson made a fact-finding trip to the South Pacific at President Roosevelt's request in 1942. After returning to the States, Johnson bought a Silver Star and had it pinned to his lapel at several ceremonies in Texas, Caro wrote.

"I don't think any of the crew members were perturbed about it," Boothe said. "The way I looked at it, he was there on a mission to find out what we needed in the South Pacific."

"He got the Silver Star for the complete mission, not for that one flight," he added. "At least, that was my understanding."

Boothe said the Heckling Hare, a B-25, took off June 9, 1942, from Port Moresby, New Guinea, to attack Japanese positions across the Owen Stanley Mountains at Lae and Salamaua.

Not long after the plane carrying Johnson turned back, Boothe said, the other planes ran into heavy Japanese fighter attacks and many went down in flames.

Another observer died when fighters shot down the B-25 he was in.

Boothe's account differs from one included in "The Rugged, Ragged Warriors" written by Martin Caidin. Caidin said Johnson's plane developed generator problems but continued on to the target.

"Heavily attacked, while in this condition, by no fewer than eight Zeroes, the Heckling Hare survived only by dint of a stubborn defensive fire and brilliant evasive tactics," Caidin wrote.

Boothe said researchers asked to interview him in the 1960s about the flight with Johnson. He was on active duty with the Air Force and telephoned officials in Washington who told him that he should either reinforce the popular version of the raid or decline the interview.

He declined and had no other requests for interviews until the Waco newspaper called.

"I guess it's time for the truth to come out," he said. "I wanted to make a comment earlier about that not being the way it happened."

Boothe served in the Pacific until May 1943, logging "25 or 26" missions. He was awarded the Soldier's Medal for trying to rescue airmen trapped in a B-24 that crashed at Iron Range, Australia, in December 1942.

Boothe left the military after World War II, but was called back to active duty for the Korean War. He retired from the Air Force in 1966.

Author's new focus is on his children

NEW YORK (AP) — Playwright Larry L. King, who wrote "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," says his focus these days is more on his children than his work.

"I do not want them to remember their father as one who was so preoccupied with his own creations that he had little time for those he helped to create," King said in Sunday's Parade Magazine.

"I did not realize the importance of such things in an earlier time," said King.

EPA says town will comply with order

CRYSTAL CITY, Texas (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency has ordered Crystal City to allow cleanup crews onto its toxic waste-ridden municipal airport or face daily fines, authorities said.

EPA Regional Administrator Robert Layton Jr. on Thursday gave the tiny South Texas town two weeks to comply with the order or be fined $25,000 a day.

The Crystal City Airport has been on the federal Superfund list since 1984 because of high levels of cancer-causing toxins in the soil.

A defunct crop dusting company left the chemicals behind, and the substances were found to have saturated airport soil. Complaints by citizens prompted the discovery of the toxic wastes.

The airport is near a public housing project, a school and a city water well.

Layton said the EPA plans to bury airport soil polluted with arsenic, DDT and toxaphene in a pit with a multi-layer cap to protect against rainfall infiltration and erosion.

City Manager Alejandro Nieri said local officials believe burning the contaminants would be safer than burying them on the Crystal City Airport site.

The EPA order comes nearly six months after the city denied cleanup crews access to the airport property.

Halliburton Co. posts 68% hike in 3rd quarter profits

DALLAS (AP) — The Halliburton Co. posted a 68 percent increase in third quarter earnings over the same period last year, despite losses in its insurance services group, the company announced.

The oil field services giant attributed the overall improvement to increased demand in the United States.

Halliburton also gained about $8 million from the sale of certain vessels, a company report said Thursday. Without that income, the 1989 third quarter profits would have been 27 percent higher than those in 1988.

Earnings per share were 40 cents in the 1989 third quarter, compared to 24 cents per share in the third quarter last year.

Halliburton reported operating income of $59.7 million in the 1989 third quarter, up 47 percent from the same period in 1988.

"The outlook for continued improvement is good," said Thomas Cruikshank, board chairman.

He said the company's insurance group's losses in the third quarter resulted mostly from "inadequate industry-wide pricing in a number of insurance lines."

The insurance group's income fell from $6.6 million in the third quarter of last year to $800,000 for the same period in 1989.

Cruikshank said losses in construction bonding insurance lines are not expected to continue in the fourth quarter.

During the first nine months of 1989, Halliburton's net income was $87.5 million, representing 82 cents per share, compared to $81.8 million, or 78 cents per share for the same period in 1988.

Burns still strong

NEW YORK (AP) — George Burns is 93, but not too old to play God for a fourth time.

He hopes to begin filming "Oh, God! Book IV" as soon as he finds a script he likes, but meanwhile he's been promoting a new show-biz memoir, "All My Best Friends," and a new comedy video, "George Burns: His Wit and Wisdom."

Daily chores are made more difficult by arthritis, astigmatism and hearing loss, and he had a bypass operation at age 79, but Burns says he is looking toward the future.
