Local effort nets near 2 tons of food

Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts and Snyder Jaycees collected about 3,700 pounds of food Saturday for the county food bank — a total they said could be considered a success but one they expect to improve on next year.

"They had 3,620 when I left, and it was probably 3,700 before it was over," said Jaycees president Danny Engle. "Next year, we'll go door to door, instead of just letting them put bags out."

"If anybody got skipped, didn't get their bag picked up, they need to call Gentle Dove Ministries at 573-8729, and somebody will pick it up."

Engle noted that the focus of the drive this year was in distributing grocery bags as newspaper inserts and then depending on people to remember the drive and put out bags on their front porches.

He said he and another Jaycee went door to door in trailer parks and apartment complexes, but the drive would have probably been more productive with a more extensive door-to-door effort.

FOOD, FOOD, FOOD — Boy and Cub Scouts joined Snyder Jaycees in their "Scouting for Food" food drive for the county food bank Saturday. Pictured at Gentle Dove Ministries at 1411 25th St., where the food bank is operated, are Boy Scout Michael Patterson, Jaycee David Hines, Marvin Applin and Clint Doty. Magness to represent the county

A 43-year-old Lubbock attorney has been appointed to represent Scurry County in a federal lawsuit that has been filed against the county and District Judge Gene L. Dulaney in connection to the early 1989 firings of the county auditor and his chief assistant.

Bruce Magness, a 1971 Texas Tech University Law School graduate who worked six years as a Lubbock Avalanche-Journal reporter, said in a telephone interview that he did not know what new deadlines, if any, had been set for discovery, or evidence-gathering, and pre-trial motions.

Magness is a Brownwood native who grew up in Fort Worth and Amarillo and served from 1972 to '75 in the Army, in the Judge Advocate General's Corps following his graduation from law school.

Certified as a civil trial law specialist by the Texas Board of Legal Specialization, Magness gained wide attention with his 1986 federal lawsuit to force the United States Farmers Home Administration to release funds to farmers — a suit that was filed in behalf of the Farm Aid movement.

Magness was a partner in the Lubbock law firm of Hurley & Sowder from 1976 to 1986, when he opened his own office.

Lubbock attorney Brian Quinn, who filed the federal suit against Dulaney for former Auditor Bernhard Bartels and former auditor's office assistant Ann Walton, said he was not aware of U.S. District Judge Sam Cummings having set new deadlines for discovery and pre-trial motions.

Cummings did grant an extension of deadlines, however, when recently granting Quinn's motion to include Scurry County as a second-party defendant in the suit against Dulaney.

The suit seeks back pay, reinstatement and unspecified compensatory and punitive damages for Bartels and Walton. County Attorney Lealand "Pete" Greene decided not to represent the county in the case, he said, because of the necessity of pursuing his private law practice in Dulaney's court.

On wastewater status...

City slates public meeting

The status of the city's wastewater treatment and disposal project will be the topic of a public meeting this evening, held in conjunction with a called City Council board meeting.

The board meeting is scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

The purpose of the public meeting is to present alternative methods of treatment and disposal and to provide information regarding the impact of new and proposed regulations affecting the project.

Citizens are invited to attend and are encouraged to provide input to the city, which is seeking funding for the project through the State Revolving Fund, administered by the Texas Water Development Board.

The council meeting will primarily address three issues:

—The results of a municipal water distribution computer analysis conducted by the Lubbock engineering firm Parkhill, Smith and Cooper.

—Presentation by Joe Smith of First Southwest Company on the possible financing of improvements to the water plant.

—And, to consider authorizing the staff to enter into an agreement with Parkhill, Smith and Cooper to provide engineering services for the construction of a 6 million gallon a day solids contact clarifier at the water treatment plant.

Hitchhiker fulfilling dream before returning for degree

By WENDY BARNETT
SDN Staff Writer

A college graduate who said his idea of a cross-county trek was a "romantic notion," shared his adventure with Snyderites last week.

David Segal, 23, of Rye Brook, N.Y., started hiking in Savannah, Ga., and found Snyder along his path through Texas en route to northern New Mexico and Arizona, and eventually to San Diego, Calif., where he plans to end the journey.

Recently graduated from Cornell University with a degree in biology, Segal plans to attend graduate school at the University of Utah and seek a Ph.D. in genetics. Upon completion of the bachelor's degree, he wanted to take some time off and do something memorable.

Memorable it is for the former backpacking instructor at Cornell. He said he is meeting more people than he ever thought possible, and contends the myth about people being overly cautious in this day and age has proven to be just that — a myth. Bill and Billie Hartsfield met Segal outside Lawrence IGA supermarket where he was doing some shopping for an overnight stay. Usually he camps out on the side of the road, out of the sight of traffic, yet close enough to seek help if needed. But on this occasion, Segal spent the night with the Hartsfields.

Segal said people often strike up conversations with him, then, once there is a mutual trust, he is usually invited to stay indoors overnight. That is, of course, when he's near a town.

"Texas is so widespread, with the towns so far apart, a lot of times I'm not anywhere near a town at dusk," he said. Following the night at the Hartsfield residence, they took him back where they found him, the IGA parking lot.

The "rule," as he called it, allows him to walk the entire distance of his route, keeping away from larger cities. He camped outside Dunn Wednesday night, and aware that Snyder has museums, made a point to come through town on his way to Lubbock, where he plans to spend Thanksgiving with a family he has never met.

Along the way, he has met people who have sent him "down the road," to stay with friends or families in other towns. "I'm proud to report that southern hospitality is alive and well," he said. When he's near a town on Sunday, Segal tries to attend church services. So far, he's attended a six-hour black Pentecostal service in Mississippi and an hour-of-silence Quaker meeting in Austin.

Back at home, Segal has a mother, father, and older brother charting his progress. "At first, my mom was horrified. She thought it was the worst possible thing I could do," he said. Now, he tries to call his mother twice a week, and people he meets along the way are calling her and sending her letters and newspaper clippings.

Carrying a huge backpack, Segal is proud of his high-mileage (see HITCHHIKER, page 9)

Congress faced with two important issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress' race to adjourn for 1989 by Thanksgiving is running into problems from two measures that have proven intractable all year: deficit reduction and eliminating Medicare benefits for long-term illnesses.

Lawmakers planned to search for solutions to those standoffs today, following an unusual Sunday session dominated by closed-door negotiations but little floor action.

"I remain determined we will be able to complete action in order to adjourn ... by Thanksgiving," Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, told his colleagues.

But judging from the path in front of them, that might not prove easy.

The House planned action today on a new version of the $14.6 billion foreign aid bill which President Bush vetoed Sunday. He complained that the measure provided funds for a United Nations agency that financed forced abortions in China, but liberals and conservatives were expected to clash over aid to violence-torn El Salvador.

House-Senate bargainers renewed their effort to decide how to roll back the 1988 catastrophic health care law. The legislation provides coverage to elderly patients with long-term medical problems that otherwise could lead to financial ruin.

When enacted, the measure had bipartisan and popular support. But well-organized lobbying by seniors objecting to the surtaxes they must pay to finance the program — reaching $800 this year for the most well-to-do — has convinced lawmakers to undo the program.

The House wants to repeal the entire measure, but the Senate wants only to eliminate the surtax and most benefits, leaving coverage of hospital costs and other minor provisions intact.

The two chambers agreed Saturday to terminate the program, but that deal unraveled Sunday. Legislators remained determined to reach a new compromise, rather than returning home to angry constituents.

JUST HIKING THROUGH — David Segal of Rye Brook, N.Y. passed through Snyder recently on his cross-country hike which originated in Savannah, Ga., and will end in San Diego, Calif. While in town, Segal spent the night with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hartsfield. (SDN Staff Photo)

Rigs decline

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of working U.S. oil and gas rigs declined by five this week to total 1,040, after posting increases 10 times in the past 12 weeks.

The total, however, showed 117 more working rigs than for the same week a year ago, Baker Hughes Inc. reported Monday. Last week, the count increased by three to total 1,045.

Baker Hughes' rig count — the widely watched industry index of drilling activity — reflects the number of rigs actively exploring for oil as of last Friday, not the number of rigs actively producing oil.

Two departments earn accreditation

DALLAS (AP) — The Arlington and Amarillo Police Departments have become the state's eighth and ninth police forces to receive national accreditation, an official said.

Both departments got the news Saturday after the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement met in Houston. The Texas additions boosts the number of nationally-accredited police forces across the country to 129.

"We're very proud to be in such a small fraternity," said Arlington Police Department spokesman Dee Anderson. "It's a very big step for us. It's a culmination of four years of work."

The Arlington department applied for accreditation in 1985. It has 380 sworn officers and 120 civilian employees.

Accident said issue in mayoral race

ALTON, Texas (AP) — The state's worst school bus accident has been the talk of the town for two months and become an issue in the mayor's race.

Handbills distributed to the front yards of most of Alton's 2,700 residents Nov. 12 accused Mayor San Juanita Zamora of using satanic powers to embezzle donations sent to City Hall for the families of the 21 students who died in the accident. The mayor denies the charges.

Written in Spanish, the leaflets were titled: "We Have to Unmask the Devil." The rolled handbills were unsigned. Police are investigating, but Chief Manuel Martinez said he's not sure whether any laws were broken.

The incident has outraged the mayor and county officials.

"When you lose a family member, the only thing that can cure that loss is time," said

Hidalgo County Judge J. Edgar Ruiz. "But these families are being reminded of (the accident) and they have been reminded of that constantly for the past two months."

"It's like putting salt in the word with all this bickering and fighting," Ruiz told the San Antonio Express-News.

Nearly $60,000 in contributions were sent to the Alton City Hall, all of which was turned over to a trust fund at a bank in neighboring Mission, city secretary

Lesvia Peralez said.

The funds will be distributed by a Mission School District committee, she said.

Meanwhile, a special mayoral election is set for Jan. 20. In a four-way election May 6, Ms. Zamora won by nine votes, 208-199 over Salvador Vela, who later challenged the election.

A state district judge ordered a new election because a charter amendment to extend the term of a member of the City Council was enacted by the council instead of voters.

Woman gets research grant

VALLEY MILLS, Texas (AP) — A 10-mile back-packing trip over a remote mountain village in Greece began with a telephone call worth $235,000 to one Texas woman, a published report said.

Jennifer Moody was preparing to lead a group of students into the mountains to conduct an archaeological survey last summer when she got a mountains surprising phone call.

"It was like that old TV show, 'The Millionaire,'" Ms. Moody told the Waco Tribune-Herald. In the defunct TV series, a rich man sent million-dollar checks to people who didn't know him.

In Ms. Moody's case, her benefactor was the Chicago-based MacArthur Foundation, which awarded her with a $235,000 grant to be paid out over five years.

"At first I thought it was a joke. But right then, I just didn't have time to think about it," she said.

The MacArthur Fellows Program was created with funds left by the late Chicago banker John MacArthur and his wife, Catherine. It helps recipients work at whatever they want, at their own pace, without worrying about living expenses or filing reports to account for how the money's spent.

MacArthur Fellows do not apply for the grants and applications are not accepted for the awards. The grants are given to "extraordinarily creative and promising individuals," according to a program brochure.

Names of writers, scientists, artists, activists and others are suggested by 100 anonymous "nominators" who serve for one year.

The 37-year-old Fort Worth native recently returned from the Greek island of Crete. She said she plans to spend the winter in Valley Mills, which is about 20 miles northwest of Waco.

Ms. Moody earned a bachelor's degree in classics and anthropology from the University of Texas. She usually spends "spring through October" in Crete, before returning to Texas to record her findings.

Since she uses subjects ranging from geology to botany to study life, Ms. Moody describes her work as "interdisciplinary."

Space station: project needs mission

WASHINGTON (AP) — If all goes according to plan — and there's every likelihood that it won't — a space shuttle will leave its Florida launch pad in March 1995 carrying the first pieces of America's space station into orbit.

Ten flights and 28 months later, by the same shaky timetable, the parts flown up piece by piece will have been assembled into a place where men and women can live and work for months at a time, looking down at the Earth as they silently drift across the sky 250 miles high.

By August 1999, seven years late but just in time for the 21st Century, the space station will be finished, serving as a basic research laboratory for medicine, astronomy, space physics, and as a staging area for manned flights to the moon and beyond.

Mostly what stands in the way of this rosy scenario is money.

Space Station Freedom, as it is named, began as an $8 billion, 10-year project when President Reagan announced it in 1984. It has grown into a 15-year marathon likely to cost $19 billion or well over $30 billion, depending on whose figures you use.

From the start, the space station has had problems with money as well as with identity and purpose. Former Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin summed up the feelings of many in Congress when he called the space station "a project in search of a mission."

NASA administrator Richard Truly, a former astronaut, considers the space station "the cornerstone to our future in space," but admits the program has had a sputtering past.

"In the last five years, Space Station Freedom has undergone 11 major reviews, has faced nearly continual readjustments of its budget, has had a great deal of management turnover and has experienced several configuration and schedule changes," he says.

The management turnover reached its peak in May and June of this year when three top space station executives left NASA.

The budgeting process for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1 — the year in which the design phase ends and cutting of metal begins — illustrates the station's travails.

President Bush proposed that NASA get $2.05 billion for the space station, but the House Appropriations Committee in July decided to chop off $400 million. With that prospect, the space agency made plans for a 20 percent reduction only to readjust when actual appropriations ended as $1.85 billion.

"The thing that's really tough is the funding instability in the program," says William T. Lenoir, the NASA associate administrator and former astronaut who reversed a trend and returned to the agency from private life this year to take charge of the space flight and space station programs.

"In June of every year we don't know what the hell we are going to get in October," he says. "This year, beginning in June, we slowed the progress of the space station down because if we had continued to build on schedule there was a real danger that we'd get to October and be firing contractors and laying off civil service (employees)."

The House Committee on Science and Technology authorized three-year funding for NASA to give space programs some stability. However, congressional appropriations committees who vote the actual money have not gone along.

So NASA has to live with the uncertainty.

"We are very much prejudiced to starting to construct the space station in March 1995," Lenoir says. The choices then boil down, he says, to "can we start either less of a station in March 1995, or can we start in 1995 and let it take longer (to complete)? And last on our list is, 'Okay, we can't start in 1995.'"

The station is America's big project for the next decade. Even President Bush's space goal for returning Americans to the moon and then pushing on to Mars requires that a space station be in place first.

Concert cut short

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A country music concert to benefit people with AIDS was halted after a tear gas canister was hurled into the lobby of the building where the event was being held, police said.

No one was injured in the incident Saturday night, and fire and emergency medical crews helped clear tear gas vapors from the Texas & Pacific building, authorities said.

About 2,000 people were listening to the country band Mason Dixon when the canister was thrown in the lobby about 10:40 p.m., said concert-goer Leo Russell of San Antonio.

The concert was sponsored by the Texas Gay Rodeo Association.

Russell said he and others inside the building suffered burning noses and throats from the tear gas. Many fled through a back door.

"When we went around front, we saw there had been a lot of people in the lobby," Russell told The Dallas Morning News. "They were outside coughing and crying."

Police said they had received no complaints about the incident late Sunday.

Texans getting good buys on turkeys for Thanksgiving

By The Associated Press

Prices for frozen turkeys in Texas supermarkets are the cheapest in years this holiday season because of a 5 percent nationwide increase in production.

Holiday shoppers also are finding that bins in produce departments are overflowing with pecans, which are a little more expensive than in 1988, but still are lower than they have been on the average.

Another holiday item — Christmas trees — will be filling up outdoor lots in a week or two. Prices should be comparable to or slightly cheaper than last year.

Holiday harvests in Texas are generally down, but they have remained huge across the nation. One exception is pecans, but there is a 100-million pound carryover from last year's bumper crop.

In Houston supermarkets, turkey prices of 49 cents to 77 cents a pound are commonplace. One chain is offering the big birds for 29 cents a pound, with a $30 minimum purchase.

Prices also are low in Dallas, where one chain has advertised turkeys for 39 cents per pound.

"Retailers seem to be in a race to see who can sell them the cheapest," says Pat Crane of Fredericksburg, president of Sunday House Foods, a turkey growing and processing firm that is a subsidiary of Houston-based Granada Foods.

Trade reports tell of retail prices as low as 9 cents a pound on the East Coast. But turkeys cost grocers substantially more than that low price.

"If I had whole turkeys to sell right now, they would be 67 cents a pound in 1,000-pound lots," said Roane Lacy Jr. of Plantation Foods in Waco.

Retailers are using turkeys as loss leaders, luring customers into their stores for a big-ticket shopping visit. "They give you the turkey to get you on the soap," Lacy said.

Raising a turkey costs about 40 cents a pound, live-weight, Crane said. He and Lacy agree that producing turkeys this year has been little more than a break-even proposition.

Playing for what you need

By James Jacoby

Declarer needed either the queen of spades to fall or the club suit to take care of a heart loser. Since it did not seem likely that East, who had overcalled with two hearts, would have as many as three spades, declarer won the ace of hearts and tabled the ace of spades. When East discarded the nine of diamonds, complications set in. Now the defenders had a sure trump trick, the ace of diamonds and apparently two heart tricks. At least South had held his trump losers to only one by playing the spade ace first. So declarer played a low trump toward dummy. West played the 10, dummy took the king, and another trump was played. West won and played another heart, and East quickly took two heart tricks and the ace of diamonds. One down.

"Bad luck, partner," exclaimed declarer South. "If the queen of spades comes down, we have an easy 10 tricks."

"Yes, I see. But shouldn't you try to make the hand? Although it risks going down one more trick, you should play for West to hold four clubs. If you play club ace, club to the king, and back to dummy, putting in the 10 when West follows with the nine, you will be able to discard a losing heart on the fourth club."

SWC race narrows; includes four clubs

By The Associated Press

Arkansas fans can start making holiday hotel reservations if the Hogs can handle Texas A&M University in a nationally televised collision in College Station the day after Thanksgiving.

Defending champion Arkansas can all but assure a New Year's Day date in the Cotton Bowl if the Hogs snap A&M's 21-game SWC home winning streak.

The 1:30 p.m. showdown on CBS-TV has all the trappings of a championship game because both teams have only lost once in the SWC.

Arkansas would have only a game against weak Southern Methodist left.

Things are tougher for the Aggies, though.

If coach R.C. Slocum's crew handles Arkansas, it would still have to beat Texas on Dec. 2 at College Station to be assured of getting to Dallas.

Texas Tech and Texas stayed alive for the SWC's host team berth in the 1990 Cotton Bowl with hard-earned victories on Saturday.

Tech outlasted SMU 48-24 as James Gray scored four touchdowns and rushed for 232 yards. Texas rallied for a 31-17 victory over Texas Christian. In the other game, Rice beat Baylor 6-3, the Owls' first victory over the Bears since 1981. Both Tech and Texas have two league losses.

Here's what it would take for the four teams remaining to make it to Dallas on New Year's Day:

—Texas. The Longhorns have to beat Baylor and Texas A&M and A&M would have to beat Arkansas and Tech would have to lose to Houston to make it a burnt orange Cotton Bowl.

—Texas Tech. The Raiders would have to beat Houston and A&M and Arkansas would both have to lose another game.

—Texas A&M. The Aggies have to beat Arkansas and Texas.

—Arkansas. The Hogs have to beat A&M and SMU.

Tech is lined up to go to the All-American Bowl in Birmingham, Ala., on Dec. 28 if the Raiders miss out on Dallas. Duke is the likely opponent.

The loser of the Arkansas-A&M game is expected to get a bid to the Dec. 30 John Hancock Bowl in El Paso. Pittsburgh is the likely opponent.

The guest team in the Cotton Bowl is expected to be Tennessee, which beat Mississippi on Saturday.

All-American Bowl officials were on hand to witness Tech's hard-earned victory. SMU's Mike Romo had 408 yards passing to keep things interesting.

"I'm just tickled to death to win the game," said Tech coach Spike Dykes. "We still have a bunch of kids who still think we'll go to the Cotton Bowl. That's how stupid we are."

Tech plays at Houston in a 4 p.m. game on Saturday and Dykes said, "We better change something up defensively for Houston or there won't be enough bulbs in the scoreboard if we

In the other league game on Saturday, Baylor is at Texas in a 1 p.m. clash.

Cowboys drop to 1-10

'Hail Mary' at halftime swings momentum

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Miami Dolphins are tied with the Buffalo Bills atop the American Conference Eastern Division thanks to yet another Dan Marino "Hail Mary" special.

The Dallas Cowboys were cruising along with a 14-3 first-half lead and one second on the clock Sunday when an anvil dropped out of the sky to kill their confidence.

Marino heaved a 48-yard rain-bow ball to the 6-foot-3 Andre Brown who outjumped five Dallas players. Brown came down on the 1-yard line and fell into the end zone to stun the Cowboys. Dallas left the field with a 14-10 lead and never scored again in a 17-14 loss.

"That was a shot in the arm for us and a shot in the back for them," Brown said.

Indeed, it helped shoot the Dolphins to a first-place tie with the Bills at 7-4.

The streaking Dolphins have won six of their last seven games. Dallas dropped to 1-10 in its second worst season in 29 years.

Marino, who played with hurting ribs, said: "I didn't see the catch myself. I just threw it up. I'm told he caught it in full stride and there wasn't even a real fight for the ball. I guess I got lucky."

He added, "They played us tough and were full of fire. I guess that pass put the fire out."

Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson conceded the "Hail Mary" killed his team's chances.

Tracey Eaton intercepted a pass by Steve Beuerlein, returned it 13 yards and then lateraled to Donaldson for another 14 yards to the Raider 36 with :46 left to play in the half.

Harris' second touchdown catch in as many weeks padded the Oilers' halftime lead.

"It changed the momentum of the game," Donaldson said. "They were down 17-7 instead of 10-7. We practice pitching the ball after interceptions in practice."

"We call it the 'West Coast Weave'."

Raiders coach Art Shell decided a quick-strike passing attack was the only way to catch the Oilers but it didn't work.

The Oiler defense had the answer once again. They picked off three interceptions, recovered two fumbles and sacked two quarterbacks four times for 30 yards in losses.

Beuerlein completed 10 of 25 passes for 149 yards and three interceptions.

"We weren't able to stop them on defense," Shell said. "Offensively, we never got anything going. We just need to regroup and get ready for next week."

Western Texas will travel to Ranger today for the third contest between those clubs this season.

WTC has defeated RJC in both other games.

$25,200. MONEY FOR COLLEGE.

The Army can help you earn up to $25,200 for college with the Montgomery GI Bill Plus the Army College Fund.

And there's another way we can help you succeed in college--by offering you learning experiences that will help you develop the self-confidence and discipline so important to achieving college goals.

Here's how we help you earn money for college. You, as a soldier, contribute $100 a month from your first full twelve months' pay-checks (for a total of $1,200). Then the government and the Army contribute the rest (up to $9,600 from the government and up to $14,400 from the Army).

We can help you get the money and develop the characteristics that will help you achieve success once you enroll. For more information, call your local Army Recruiter.

Protesters pack Wenceslas Square

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — About 100,000 demonstrators packed downtown Wenceslas Square today in the largest anti-government protest in this Communist nation. Police did not interfere. Protesters demanded a new government and free elections, and loudly supported a general strike students and artists had called for Nov. 27.

The rally followed three days of increasingly angry protests over recent police violence against peaceful demonstrators in downtown Prague.

Also today, students began a sit-in strike at Prague universities to protest police attacks on demonstrators, and a Communist leader for the first time condemned the bloody crackdown Friday. Banned playwright and prominent activist Vaclav Havel canceled a trip to Sweden to protest the violence.

Hitchhiker is fulfilling dream cookstove. "It burns unleaded gasoline, and it gets an amazing 1,500 miles to the tank."

"Trying to stay away from fast food, as it can get expensive on such a long journey, Segal eats oatmeal for breakfast, usually a sandwich for lunch, and canned food for dinner.

Segal was going to be married. He was invited to spend some time with them when he passed through Houston. The couple, newlyweds of four months, was settled in their new home and Segal stayed with them for about 11 days.

Also today, students began a view at the Snyder Daily News. Raising his Merrell boots and pointing to the worn sole, he said, "I'm trying to get a new pair." He bought the boots, which have lasted some 1,500 miles, at wholesale when he told the company of his cross-country hiking plans.

According to unofficial reports, student strike committees were negotiating with university authorities at the Technical University in Prague and the downtown Film Faculty.

On what Segal calls "more than just a walk," he met a couple in Alabama who were going to be married. He was invited to spend some time with them when he passed through Houston. The couple, newlyweds of four months, was settled in their new home and Segal stayed with them for about 11 days.

Segal will spend the Christmas holidays with an uncle in Denver, Colo. He said, "I have no great love for cold weather," so he's going to stay in Denver through January.

"Now that I'm more than half way, they will know I'm serious, and hopefully I'll be getting a free pair of boots," he added.

Obituaries

Ramon Johnson

Services for Ramon "Ray" Johnson, 60, of Big Spring, formerly of Snyder, were to be held at 3 p.m. Monday at Union Baptist Church with Rev. Jim Moseley, pastor of the church, officiating. Burial was to follow in Hillside Memorial Gardens.

Interviews also come with the territory of doing something different, especially in smaller towns, according to Segal. He was first interviewed in Plains, Ga., where he was trying to meet Jimmy Carter. Mr. Carter was in Japan, but his niece, Mandy Carter, interviewed Segal for the local newspaper.

What began as a romantic notion is blossoming into the "experience of a lifetime" for David Segal. Since July 29, he has met many people, and seen some "wild and crazy things," but he has not given up on people. With people's natural fear of strangers in mind, Segal ventured off, where, he said, "I never know what I'll find around the next bend or over the next hill."

Mr. Johnson died Friday in Big Spring.

Born Sept. 7, 1929, in Knox City, he married Nadine Branscum April 6, 1958, in Hamlin. He was a retired derrick hand.

Survivors include his wife, Nadine, of the home; two daughters, Teresa Griggs of Big Spring, and Rhonda Roemer of Snyder; one son, Roy Johnson of Big Spring; three grandchildren; and two sisters, Alva Camp of Knox City, and Earl Campbell of Andrews.

Mr. Border

Services for John David Border, 47, of Hermleigh, will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday at Calvary Baptist Church, with Rev. Larry McAden officiating. Burial will follow in Snyder Cemetery.

year-old man was also arrested for public intoxication.

A 19-year-old man was taken into custody for DWI and unlawfully carrying a weapon at 10:44 p.m. Saturday in the 1800 Block of Scott Ave., and a 27-year-old man was arrested an hour later on the same charge by state highway patrolmen two miles south of Snyder on the Colorado City Hwy.

Five accidents are investigated

Police investigated five minor traffic accidents over the weekend, including one in which both vehicles had to be towed from the scene but neither motorist required medical attention.

At 3:30 p.m. Saturday at 25th St. and Ave. Q, a 1986 Ford driven by Kathryn Drummond of Colorado City was in collision with a 1977 Buick driven by James Davis of Rt. 2.

At 8:02 a.m. Saturday at 24th St. and Ave. O, a 1988 Chevrolet van driven by Mary E. Ramos of 1509 21st St. was in collision with a 1975 Pontiac driven by Doris R. Brown of 2300 Ave. I, after which both vehicles were towed.

Terry W. Miller of 213 33rd St. was eastbound on 37th in a 1988 Dodge Aries when the deer ran onto the roadway from the north

Miller told the investigating officer that he braked just before impact and that the deer "continued on his way into the pasture," apparently unfazed by the collision.

Elderly farm couple accused of killing many transients

CHILLICOTHE, Mo. (AP) — People in Livingston County say it's a friendly place. Folks trust each other, and nobody ever imagined it as a site for a series of slayings.

But three bodies were pulled from hidden graves in a barn Oct. 16. A week later, a body was found in another barn, shot in the head like the others. And up to nine men are missing.

Last week, an elderly farm couple in the northwestern Missouri county was charged in three killings, and people here say they're shaken by one of the largest and strangest murder investigations in the state.

Prosecutors say Ray Copeland, 75, and his 68-year-old wife, Faye, hired drifters to buy cattle with bad checks, conspiring to keep the proceeds when the animals were resold and killing the transients to keep them from talking.

The Copelands were charged in the three deaths in which the victims have been identified. They could face the death penalty if convicted. Their lawyers say they will plead innocent at a hearing set for later this month, and accuse prosecutors of running a "media circus" against their clients.

Dale Johnson of Chillicothe made his first-ever visit to the county courthouse a week ago to watch the Copelands arrive for their arraignment. Like others in this town of 10,000, he's shaken by the case.

"It's a friendly community. Everybody respects everybody," he said. Usually, news about gruesome killings comes from big cities, Johnson said, but "it's close to home this time."

Authorities acting on a tip arrested the Copelands on Oct. 9 and charged them with conspiracy in connection with a bad check. That day, officers began digging on the 40-acre farm where the Copelands have lived for 24 years.

Officers found no bodies at the site near Moresville, about 10 miles west of here. But in the following two weeks, four bodies were found at two farms where Copeland had done odd jobs. The investigation into the fourth death is continuing, as is the effort to find the missing men. Sheriff Leland O'Dell said 100 sites in the county have already been searched.

The victims whose names are known — Paul J. Cowart, 21, of Dardanelle, Ark.; John W. Freeman, 27, of Tulsa, Okla.; and Jimmie Dale Harvey, 27, of Springfield, — are described as transients who worked for the Copelands.

All had stayed at a mission in Springfield, 180 miles to the south, where Copeland recruited his workers. Prosecutors believe they all died during the past two years. The names of the nine others have not been made public. But they are also believed to have worked for the Copelands during the past three or four years, authorities said.

The Copelands remain jailed on $500,000 bond apiece. And the man whose tip led to the investigation remains jailed.

McCormick, 57, said he began working for the Copelands on July 26 and was recruited from the same mission where the dead men had stayed. He left Aug. 10, shortly after writing the checks that led to the charge against him.

In a telephone interview from jail, McCormick said Copeland told him "I'd get a chance to gain some respect. That's how he got me interested." Copeland offered $50 per day plus room and board, and set up a checking account for McCormick to buy cattle.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Could you explain why some eye doctors have senior citizens wait months until the eye is right for cataract surgery, while other patients go into an eye-care center and have them removed immediately? Is the wait serving any great purpose?

DEAR READER: To achieve the most satisfactory result from cataract extractions, eye surgeons formerly had to wait until the cataracts "matured" — until they were fully developed. Today, with modern techniques, such as lens implants, patients need no longer postpone cataract extraction. When vision is compromised, the cataracts can be removed.

Nonetheless, many ophthalmologists remain conservative by recommending surgery only when a patient develops a significant visual handicap. The reason for this is that no surgery carries a guaranteed good result. Even in reputable medical centers, cataract extraction carries a small but definite risk: Sight in the operated eye may be diminished as a result of surgery.

By waiting until vision markedly deteriorates, the prudent ophthalmologist knows that, should the operation

Dr. Gott

be less than successful, the patient will be no worse off. This is preferable to a bad result in an eye in which the pre-operative vision was largely spared.

Many ambulatory eye-surgery centers depend on volume for profit. Therefore, the doctors in these centers may choose to operate sooner. By performing more operations, they maintain their substantial incomes. This is not in the patients' best interests. Fortunately, this is by no means the rule, but the practice is sufficiently common to cause concern.

In general, when a patient's cataract is dense enough to prohibit reading print with glasses under good light, it is ready for removal. Patients with borderline vision should obtain a second opinion (from an ophthalmologist unaffiliated with the eye-care center) before consenting to surgery. Patients considering cataract surgery may find a brochure called "Clear Vision Ahead" helpful. It can be ordered by writing 3M Vision Care, Dept. VC89-05, Box 33600, St. Paul, MN 55133-3600.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "An Informed Approach to Surgery." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My parents and grandmother live together. My mother and grandmother have smoked all their adult lives and within the past year have come up with arrhythmias. What role, if any, does cigarette smoking and second-hand smoke play in this ailment?

DEAR READER: The nicotine in cigarette smoke is a heart stimulant, sometimes causing irregular cardiac rhythm (arrhythmia). Although arrhythmias commonly occur in non-smokers, too — and do not usually indicate heart disease — I'd be suspicious that your mother and grandmother may be exhibiting inappropriate heart stimulation, as a harmful effect of their smoking. They should check with a doctor, follow his advice and kick the smoking habit.

The case against side-stream, or second-hand smoke, is less clear. Its effects on the body depend on the length of exposure and the concentration of the inhaled smoke. In any case, this smoke is decidedly unhealthy for other family members.

Most family doctors are eager to help their patients stop smoking and might choose to prescribe nicotine chewing gum in conjunction with a smoking cessation program (now offered by many hospitals and community agencies) or even, perhaps, hypnosis.

Teenager held in 2 slayings

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A 15-year-old boy is being held by authorities in connection with the shotgun slayings of two other teens, officials said Sunday.

The victims of the double slaying on Saturday night were identified as Billy Joe George II, 17, of Amarillo, and Richard David Glasscock, 19, of Canyon.

Randall County sheriff's deputies were notified about 7 p.m. Saturday of the shootings that occurred at a mobile home park about 12 miles southeast of Amarillo.

The two teens were found dead at the scene, officials said.

George's body was found in the living room of a residence and Glasscock was found in the passenger seat of a pickup.

The name of the 15-year-old has been withheld by police because he is a juvenile.

Officials bracing for flood of refugees

DALLAS (AP) — Charities and legal assistance agencies in Texas are bracing themselves for what they expect to be a new flood of refugees from El Salvador.

About 30 lawyers attended a training seminar on political asylum litigation over the weekend at Southern Methodist University.

The seminar, sponsored by Proyecto Adelante, the State Bar of Texas, Catholic Charities and the South Texas Pro Bono Asylum Representation Project, was aimed at combating what officials say is a critical shortage of lawyers willing to assist political refugees.

Vicky Stifler, an attorney for Proyecto Adelante's Project Forward, a legal service representing Central American refugees, said the slayings of six Catholic priests in El Salvador is sure to have set many in that country packing.

"I have no doubt the ones who make it out will be coming this way," Ms. Stifler said. "They travel by land, foot and bus so they won't be arriving tomorrow. It'll be a few weeks before they start trickling in."

Ms. Stifler is the only full-time paid worker for Proyecto Adelante, where the majority of the clients are Salvadoran. She and a volunteer handle about 1,300 cases a year.

"We haven't had to turn anyone away so far, but we're not going to be able to continue if we don't get some help," Ms. Stifler told the Dallas Times Herald.

TI breaks ground on research place in Tsukuba, Japan

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Instruments plans to hire hundreds of Japanese scientists and engineers for its new research and development center in Tsukuba, Japan, the corporation announced Sunday.

TI-Japan Limited, a subsidiary of the Dallas-based high-technology firm, broke ground Monday for the $40 million center in the community known as "Science City," about 40 miles northeast of Tokyo.

The center "strengthens TI's strategy to increase penetration in the Japanese semiconductor market," said Pat Weber, president of TI's semiconductor group.

"To really compete in the world computer chip market, we've got to serve our customers wherever they are in the world," said Norman Neureiter, vice president, corporate staff, in Dallas. "In dollar value, Japan today has the largest semiconductor market in the world."

"We've concluded that we need to have our own R&D operation over there."

Neureiter said TI will begin staffing the 240,000 square-foot center in 1991 with "several hundred Japanese scientists and engineers over four to five years."

The Tsukuba center will be involved in design of advanced materials and integrated circuits with applications to markets such as computers, telecommunications, automotive and advanced consumer electronic products such as high-definition television.

"This is an extremely important development in the history of TI in Japan," said Akira Ishikawa, president of TI-Japan. "It emphasizes TI's long-term commitment to serve the Japanese market and address the needs of our Japanese customers."

Earlier this month, TI announced that it is building an applications research center in Avezzano, Italy, focusing on semiconductor products for the European market. TI's primary research and development activities are located in Dallas.

The Tsukuba center strengthens TI's 27-year presence in Japan, Neureiter said. TI first began operations in Japan in 1962 with sales activities in Nagoya and Tokyo. The company initiated semiconductor production at Hatogaya in 1968.

The Hiji site for semiconductor production followed in 1973, Oyama for electrical controls production in 1979, and Miho for semiconductor production in 1980.

TI has four integrated circuit design centers in Japan, the most recent opened in Osaka earlier this month.

TI-Japan is the largest American supplier of semiconductors to the Japanese market and is a wholly owned subsidiary of TI. It employs 5,000 people in Japan.

Texas city displays 230 miles of lights

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) — When it comes to decking the halls in holiday fashion, big cities have nothing on this East Texas town.

With 230 miles of lights draped on buildings and homes, Marshall may be the most brightly lit city anywhere at Christmas.

Boasting 2.5 million bulbs — that's 100 for every man, woman and child — the town becomes a lighted wonderland that city officials hope will attract some 500,000 visitors this season.

"This year we've increased our lights by 30 percent, and have doubled our efforts to expand lights to all areas of the community," says Mike Norrell, chairman of Marshall's third annual "Wonderland of Lights Festival."

It took 8,000 hours, the equivalent of four people working full-time for a year, to put the lights on buildings, lampposts and Christmas trees around town.

The city also boasts "the world's largest Christmas card, a 786-square-foot card containing works from local artists and the signatures of 12,000 people."

Free guides are provided and tourists are encouraged to visit the city's 8-foot-by-10-foot real gingerbread house, listen to an "Orchestra of Angels," and talk with St. Nick during his nightly visits.

"The response to this event is unbelievable," says Patti Harris, Marshall Chamber of Commerce manager. "This time last year we had one inquiry from a tour bus company about our lights. This year we already have more than 150 tours booked."

Getting the community organized wasn't difficult, she says.

"We wanted to present the ultimate Christmas dream to our visitors," she says.

Marshall residents like to point out that they put up more lights than: the Rockefeller Center in

New York, which has 11 miles of strands; the Country Club Plaza in Kansas City, Mo., which has 9 miles; or the Festival of Lights in Natchitoches, La., which has 18 miles.

It all started when the Marshall News Messenger ran a brief editorial urging citizens to light the downtown area for Christmas.

A woman responded, donating $25,000 the first year and has since given more than $100,000 to the festival. Other residents have chipped in as well.

"There is nothing the volunteers won't do," Ms. Harris said. "Except maybe climb the courthouse dome and put lights on the top. We have to pay someone to do that ... and are glad to do it. It's high up there."

The festival includes church tours and the chamber offers a 45-minute bus tour, along with maps for driving and walking tours.

Adoption Week Celebrates Joy And Acknowledges Sorrow Too

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The week of Nov. 19-25 is National Adoption Week. Because of the positive attitude you have expressed toward adoption, and your apparent understanding of both the joy and sorrow that adoption brings to those involved, you have the potential to influence the attitudes of millions of people.

Will you kindly publish a particularly meaningful letter concerning adoption?

NEDRA RANDOLPH,
ADOPTION COUNSELOR,
HOUSTON

DEAR NEDRA: With pleasure:

DEAR ABBY: My daughter just turned 10. On her birthday, I shed a few tears. I wish I could have held her and told her all the things a mother should tell her daughter when she turns 10. I wish I could have dressed her up and put ribbons in her hair, and ridden the merry-go-round with her until we both got sick, then laughed ourselves silly rolling down hills in the park.

I also said a little prayer of thanks for having made the decision 10 years ago to give her up for adoption. I was barely 16 and wanted my daughter to have a better life than I could have given her.

I feel confident that the parents who were blessed with her can give her what I could not and will love her as much as I do.

I pray my daughter realizes that it was not for lack of love that I gave her up, but because my love was brave and mature enough to let her go when I was but a child myself.

I pray that when she is 18, she will decide to look me up through an adoption search group and we will meet again. The last time I held her tiny hand, she was only 10 days old.

Until then, my thoughts and prayers are with her and her parents.

HOPEFUL IN L.A.

DEAR HOPEFUL: Are you aware that biological parents can register with International Soundex Reunion Registry, P.O. Box 2312, Carson City, Nev. 89702? Adopted children may also register, and when they become legal age, if both parties are registered and want to find each other, a match is made.

Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to the above registry, requesting Soundex forms.

I have dealt with the people at the registry for many years and have found them to be efficient, honest and in total agreement with my feelings that neither the identity of the birth parents nor the adopted child shall be disclosed unless both parties are agreeable to a reunion.

DEAR ABBY: I will never forget a letter you had in your column from a young adopted girl who asked you how to go about finding her "real" parents.

I recall reacting very strongly to that letter because I was also adopted — a fact I had known all my life. I can't remember when I first found out because Mom and Dad told me as soon as I was able to understand what adoption meant. They told me I was a very special child — that they had their choice of babies, and I was the one they chose.

When I was a kid, I used to brag about it because I felt so "special." Now I realize that my parents may have gone overboard because they didn't want me to feel insecure or inferior to my friends who were being raised by their biological parents.

Because I've made no secret of the fact that I was adopted, I've had people ask me if I know who my "real" parents are. I simply reply, "I know who my real parents are. They are the people who fed me, clothed me and taught me right from wrong. They are the ones who sat up with me all night when I was sick and waited up for me when I stayed out later than I should have. They paid for my education and convinced me that I could be whatever I wanted to be. I owe them more than I can ever repay."

I'm married now and I have children of my own, which makes me appreciate my parents even more because I know how hard it is to be a parent. So why should I go searching for my "real" parents? I found them the day they found me.
