Reese detachment flies special mercy mission

It wasn't the normal mercy mission that Reese pilots may be asked to perform. However, it could be described as a mission of mercy.

Following a fire in a chemical storage area at Minot, N.D., the Environmental Protection Agency representative on the scene needed to get samples of the contaminated area to EPA headquarters in Kansas City, Mo., for tests.

Minot City officials asked the Air Force for help. Capt. Bruce Zimmerman, Reese's Accelerated Co-pilot Enrichment program Detachment assistant commander at Minot AFB, N.D., got the call for help. He found a training flight scheduled for the next day.

"We received the call at 5 p.m. and the aircraft, piloted by 1st Lt. Tom Larkin, from the ACE Detachment and 1st Lt. Rick Morris, of the 906th Air Refueling Squadron, took off from Minot AFB at 10:30 a.m. the next morning," the Captain said. "The samples were in Kansas City by noon."

"We didn't generate any new flights, so no government resources were wasted," Captain Zimmerman stressed.

The ACE Detachment, with headquarters here, provides flight upgrade training for Strategic Air Command pilots in T-37s and T-38s to save on the high fuel costs of training in the bombers.

Lieutenant Col. F. Roland Elder, 91st Combat Support Group commander at Minot, said, "Those guys in the ACE Detachment did an extraordinary job. They were very responsive to the needs of the community. We couldn't have supported the community without them."

AFA

'We serve nation, and those who serve'

The Air Force Association, a 230,000 member national organization that works to build grassroots support for Air Force people and a wider understanding for the need of aerospace strength, is conducting its local membership drive through May 29.

"Every single member can have a real impact on AFA's ability to serve both the nation and the Air Force," said AFA President Sam E. Keith. He added his belief that, by joining AFA, Air Force personnel will "strengthen AFA programs that bring all Americans, particularly those in the private sector, the facts about the dangers we face and the strength we need to be secure."

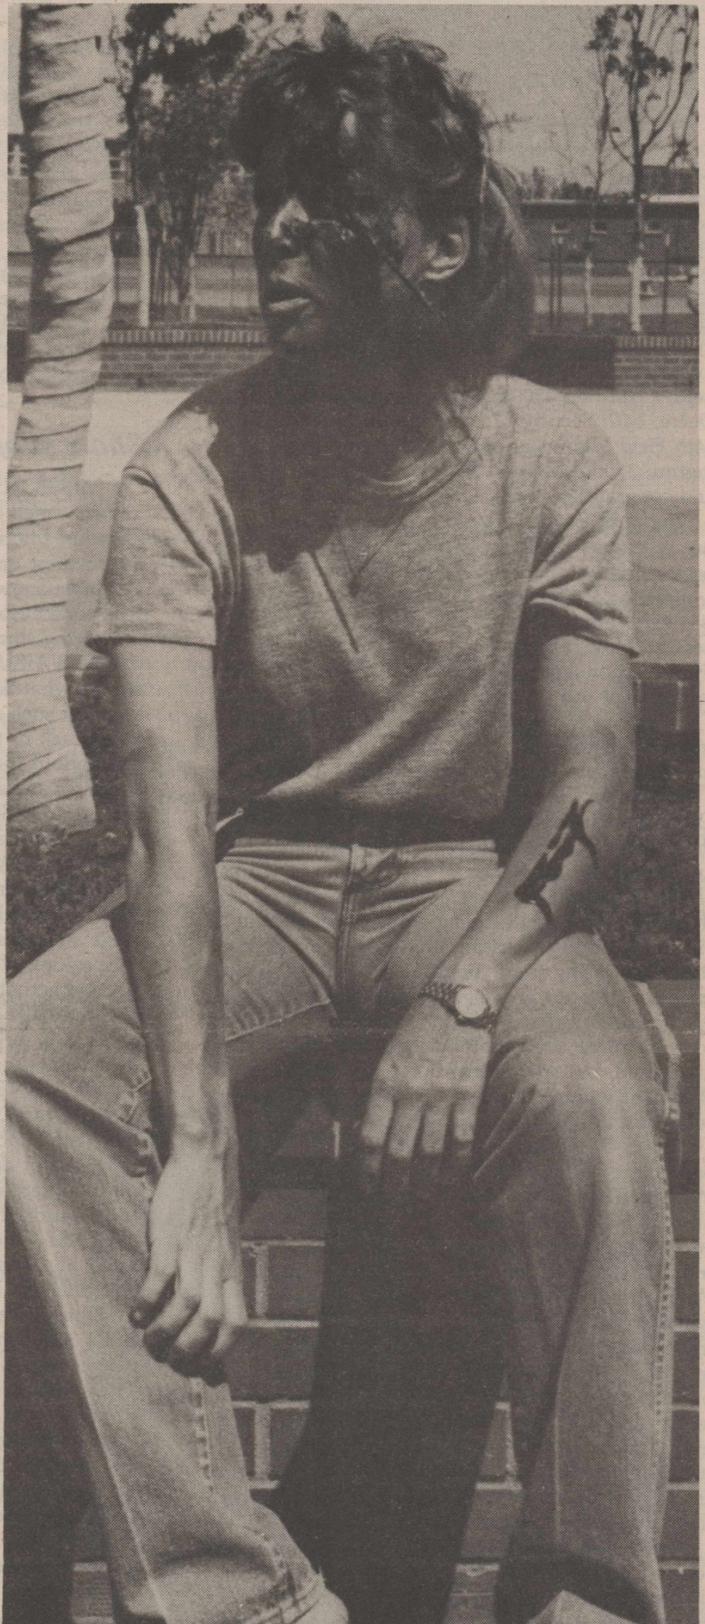

Key Air Force leaders have endorsed the AFA drive, including Air Force Chief of Staff, General Larry D. Welch and the Chief Master Sergeant of the Air Force, CMSAF James C. Binnicker.

AFA is open to all U.S. citizens, and AFA chapters are located in more than 325 communities throughout the country and at many overseas locations. These chapters provide an important forum for building local community support for military needs. Dues are $18 per year or $48 for a three-year period. Life membership is also available for a one-time fee of $300. AFA members enjoy many benefits including the highly regarded Air Force Magazine, eligibility for several low-cost insurance programs, automobile leasing and purchasing programs, automobile rental discounts, and an AFA/VISA card.

For more information on AFA and how to join, contact your unit representative.

Week recognizes small business

The Reese Contracts Division wants to remind everyone how vital small businesses are to our national defense, as they observe Small Business Week, May 10-16.

"Small businesses are the backbone of our economy," said 1st Lt. Robert J. Verica, chief, Contracts Division. History has recorded that small businesses played a vital role in the U.S. winning WWII by producing weapons and supplies.

Congress passed public law requiring contracting activities to set aside purchases with a dollar value of $25,000 or less for small businesses. "Although this sometimes results in a slightly higher cost," Lieutenant Verica said, "we fully support these laws and award the majority of our contracts and purchase orders to small business."

In 1986, more than $9 million dollars was spent in the small business program, and of that amount more than $6 million was spent in Texas with $4 million awarded to Lubbock small business.

"We are always on the look-out for new sources of supplies and services," the Lieutenant said. "If someone owns a small business, contact us. If someone knows of a small business, we ask that they make them aware of the business opportunities at Reese."

Small business can apply to be placed on the bidders list by filling out a bidders mailing list application. Forms are available in the Contracts Division, Bldg. 800, third floor. For more information, call 885-6127.

Reese folks take advantage of AF educational opportunities

It is Wednesday morning as I hastily take the opportunity to write a few lines for this Friday's Roundup before departing for Lackland AFB, Texas. You see, four more of our own have completed the ATC NCO Academy there—a significant achievement for each of them personally, and for the Reese team—and I intend to be there to congratulate them, on behalf of all of you, as they receive their diplomas during graduation ceremonies tomorrow morning. Next week, these folks will be back on the job at Reese, a bit better off for their efforts: TSgts. LeRoy Huffine, 3500th Services Squadron; J.D. Deere, 64th Security Police Squadron; Todd Koch, 64th Field Maintenance Squadron; and Mary Washington, 3500th Mission Support Squadron. Drop by and congratulate them when you get a chance.

No doubt about it, we have to count on our future leaders at all levels to take on much of the responsibility for their own self-improvement and completing Professional Military Education—PME—is a very important part of that. We do very well here at Reese, and that's great. Whether in residence, by correspondence, or in seminar, PME is an important part of our military life. The reason is simple: The Air Force gains, Reese gains, and YOU gain. It's tremendous to note that so many of the Reese community are participating, and doing so well.

Karen and I joined many others at the Enlisted Open Mess last Thursday evening to congratulate the graduates of SMSgt. J. T. Washington's NCO Leadership School, Class 87E. A couple of weeks earlier, I had the pleasure of spending an hour with the class at our PME Center—one of the best in the Air Force I'd say—passing on a few of my perspectives, answering some tough questions, and hopefully contributing to a better understanding of the Air Force. At graduation, 20 proud faces stepped forward to get their diplomas. All are to be congratulated, but special mention goes to SSgt. Paul Bauer for winning honors in speech, academics and selections as a distinguished graduate.

Besides PME, we're improving the opportunities for college and advanced degrees through Mr. Jeff Wilbur's Education Office every day. If you haven't already, stop by for a visit and get something worked out that meets your needs. Graduate programs in management are available through Houston and Wayland Baptist Universities and they are also working out something with Texas Tech. for those interested in engineering—check it out. Also, Community College of the Air Force—CCAF—enrollment has never been higher at Reese. As a matter of fact, let me take this opportunity to congratulate en masse the group of new college degree holders who will receive their parchments during graduation ceremonies at the EOM May 8 at 3 p.m. A tremendous personal achievement for all of you.

And as I'm thinking of education, a significant topic comes to mind—reading. Reading just for one's own enjoyment or edification is so important to expanding your world and getting the most out of life. But you have to practice. There is really no practical difference between someone who can't read and someone who can but chooses not to—think about it.

I'd like to plug "Big Al" Wallace's Toastmasters Club while I'm talking about educational opportunities for Reese folks.

Our local Sounding Board Toastmasters Club offers great opportunities for both civilian and military people to improve their listening, thinking and speaking skills—vital skills needed to progress in business, industry, and government. I'm encouraging supervisors at all levels to afford their civilian and military personnel the opportunity to attend the weekly Wednesday Toastmasters meeting at 12-1 p.m. at the Officer's Open Mess. If you have any questions, contact Capt. Allen Wallace, 1958th Communications Squadron, 3885.

Short subjects of some significance

• MISSION. The fair flying weather continues, and the smell of JP-4 is in the air. You are way ahead of the timeline, doing the MISSION—providing the best quality undergraduate pilot training available anywhere. That's our source of pride. Everyone at Reese plays a critical role, particularly in making sure our mission is done SAFELY.

• SELF-HELP. This special community demonstrates what SELF-HELP can do to improve lifestyles at such a fast pace that yours truly can hardly keep track of the new significant achievements throughout the wing each week. The maintainers surprised me again, namely the CASS troops (Central Aircraft Support System). Check out the CASS power plant, at the north side of our control tower—freshly painted, self-help, by the following proud Reese maintainers: Mr. Jim Pinnel, SrA. John Richard, and A1C Roger Brown and Rance Standridge and Amn. Chris Patterson.

Speaking of self-help—another weekend of high-spirited activity at the park has produced a lot of progress. The facilities going up are first-rate, and will no doubt benefit Reese folks and their dependents for years to come.

• READINESS. Our own Reese BEET members joined efforts with several local emergency agencies from the Lubbock community this past week to play out a major disaster scenario that was simulated by our counterparts downtown. That kind of superb cooperation, highlighted by Lt. Col. Dane Morvant, the BEET Chief, on TV news coverage, serves to make all of us that much more prepared. As I write, coincidentally, MSgt. Ron McCord in the Command Post has just notified us on the command net of a BEET input that will exercise the Reese team for the next several hours. Unannounced, as it should be. That's how we stay READY.

• EWC CHANGEOVER. The Enlisted Wife's Club has quadrupled its membership over the last year. This enabled the EWC ladies under the leadership of Jackie Rausch, the EWC President, and her staff to do a tremendous number of community services that benefit us all. During a formal ceremony, Jackie and her staff passed the reigns to this coming year's elected board members. Congratulations and best wishes to Linda Benitez, the new president. I know that you will keep the energy level and enthusiasm growing and growing.

• HEALTH. I want to thank Maj. Sparky Schwartz and his entire staff, for sponsoring this week's JAG JOG. What a great turn-out, with over 70 folks braving the cool, strong West Texas winds to belly-up to the starting line for either the 1.5 miles or 5 mile runs. Rumor has it that eight competitors dared to beat our JAG—risking some sort of judicial sanction I'm sure. Winners were TSgt. Peggy Smith for the women, CMSgt. Larry Byrd for the over 35 crowd, and Capt. Ted Knowles was overall winner with a 6:20 per mile pace. Congratulations to all.

• UPT AWARD. I just received word that one of our recent UPT graduates, 2nd Lt. Clifford Russell of Class 87-03, has won the Orville Wright Achievement Award as the best UPT graduate in ATC for the first quarter of 1987. That's quite an accomplishment and speaks well not only of his own skills, but of the skills of his instructors as well. Super job!

Final note

Little things mean a lot. Signs of pride are very easy to see. They include the usual, such as sharp looking uniforms, exchanging customs and courtesies, and a willingness to be involved in a worthwhile effort toward a common goal. Several housing occupants fly their flags—neighbors Stroud and Carda for example. I noticed one civilian employee stop his vehicle on 5th St. yesterday to get out and pick up a coke can. We all see these things daily—these little things. AS I SEE IT, that is what makes this community very special.

Kudos to...

2nd Lt. Tom Sferes and TSgt. Robert Snyder for their superb support of the AFROTC program. Their lectures on TMO functions were exceptional...Col. Elton Brian, commander, Det. 820, AFROTC, Texas Tech.

2nd Lts. Joseph Gaines, Donald Pickinpaugh and Joe Flud for the enthusiasm and professionalism displayed while conducting orientation simulator sorties for the Reese NCO Leadership School...Maj. Russell Jenny, chief, Operations Division.

Commander's Column

Wellness, prevention of the 80's

by Col. Roy L. Bobbitt Hospital Commander

The history of medicine, from ancient times, has featured many remedies for the ills of man.

Surgeons operate. Internists do it with medicines. In the late 1800's, the "public health" movement recognized the importance of "germs" in causing disease. Sanitation programs were started on a grand scale to separate people from germs, which was a big step toward prevention of disease.

With the increased cost of medical care, modern medicine has had no choice but to turn to the prevention alternative of the 80's—WELLNESS.

Wellness goes beyond disease prevention. It means more than not getting sick. Wellness is getting the most from your body: strength, endurance, flexibility, resistance to disease, long life, alertness, realizing the full power of the human body.

Nearly every organ has a tremendous reserve capacity which we call upon during times of need, as in the stress of warfare. A disease-free body is not necessarily a well body.

May is Wellness Month in America. Reese AFB will mark the month with special blood pressure checks, computerized life-style assessments and physical examinations for retirees.

The Surgeon General of the Air Force, realizing the tremendous cost of medical care and the effects of illness on unit effectiveness, had mandated the hospitals to serve as the focal point and catalyst for wellness. As usual, Reese has been ahead of the game for quite some time. The Surgeon General has defined several areas where we need to concentrate our "wellness" efforts. The senior doctor of Reese Air Force Base is asking you to:

Stop Smoking. Your lungs transfer oxygen to the blood over a surface area about the size of a tennis court. Smoking reduces this to the surface area of a handball court (or pool table). We all know the other health effects of smoking. What are we doing about it? Our Stop Smoking Clinic is an ongoing program. Had enough? Why not sign up through our Health Promotion Office, Ext. 3536. The DoD goal: a 10 percent reduction in smoking per year. That's 100 fewer smokers per year at Reese. Quitters can be winners.

Know Your Blood Pressure. Hypertension doesn't mean that you are "hyper" or under "tension." It means that your blood pressure is too high. This can result in a variety of long-term problems like stroke or aneurysm (blowout of blood vessels). Most cases of high blood pressure are the result of "essential hypertension," which means high blood pressure: cause unknown.

There is a treatment if it is identified early enough. Excessive salt in the diet also contributes to the problem. Certain groups are prone to hypertension: blacks, overweight persons and those who use a lot of salt. What are we doing about it? Every time you visit the clinic or dental clinic, your blood pressure is checked.

The Commissary is participating in a blood pressure check project for Wellness Month. We also offer screening for Retirees Appreciation Day, Black History Week and other occasions.

Keep Fit. Fitness: strength, power, endurance, balance, flexibility and agility. Perhaps the most important aspect for health is endurance—"aerobic" fitness.

Endurance exercise strengthens the most important muscle of the body—the heart. What are we doing about it at Reese? The Gym offers organized aerobics classes for active duty people over the lunch hour and in the evenings. There are special classes for dependents in the mornings.

Don't forget the intramural sports programs, run-a-thons and the weight room. Aerobics once a year is, well, dangerous. To be of benefit to the heart, it must be ongoing, at least three times a week.

Control Stress. I didn't say avoid stress. The career person of the 80s is expected to be a superachiever—a dynamic and tireless worker, active in the community, seeking an education and a model family member.

The conflicting demands on our mental energy creates great stress which must be dealt with. Stress is a fact of modern military life. If we can't cope, illness, fatigue, inefficiency, and even mental illness and suicide may follow. What are we doing about it?

Our Mental Health Clinic, Ext. 3739 offers a stress management course. The course teaches you to handle the stress in your life, to understand its cause, and to use tough situations to your advantage.

The classes are open to all. They do not result in a "mental health" record. Unfortunately, those who need it the most often do not have the time, or make time, to take advantage of this opportunity.

Eat Right. By now most of you have heard of our Coronary Artery Risk Evaluation (CARE) program. Its purpose is to identify those who are at high risk of developing coronary artery disease, which can result in heart attack. We need to watch our weight, limit our consumption of fat and cholesterol, and eat regularly. Unfortunately, heart disease often does not show until it is too late. We are trying to change that. CARE identifies high risk people.

Also, look for the "Healthy Heart" label in the Commissary. It is your guide to nutritious food.

Hopefully, you get the gist of the Surgeon General's message: prevention of disease is your responsibility. The hospital is the center for health care. You are the center for health.

25 grand, volunteers pamper picnickers

Over 200 volunteers and 25,900 MIP dollars have combined to take on what Col. James McIntyre, wing commander, has described as Reese's largest self-help project yet—the renovation of the Reese picnic area.

The renovation funds purchased 21 new picnic tables, 10 of which will be enclosed in individual concrete-floored pavilions.

Additionally, the three large pavilions are being renovated, and heavy wood construction playground equipment in a modular form, so it can be added to in the future, will be set up.

"Sixty-three eager DO and maintenance troops, with their own tools, kicked off the first Saturday as two of the three main pavilions were completely renovated with replacement of old wood, new paint and new screen and trellis work," said Maj. Hutchinson, wing project officer.

During week two, 103 Resources Management and Air Base Group personnel constructed 21 new picnic tables, 15 new trash receptacles, and two of the 10 individual picnic table pavilions. The team began work on the other eight individual pavilions also, as wives finished painting other areas.

"The renovation continues tomorrow," said Major Hutchinson, "but carpenters and roofers are needed to help finish. I am expecting another 100-plus self-helpers this weekend to put the playground together and complete the picnic pavilions."

"These people represent the 'Spirit of Reese,'" said Major Hutchinson. "Without their experience, dedication and support of the Reese community, projects of this magnitude could never be completed."

Over 200 volunteers have pitched in to help complete the picnic area renovation project.

Transportation moving up and out

Large steel girders and many busy people around Reese Transportation Division are attracting a lot of attention.

The two-fold project is a new Vehicle Maintenance Repair Facility to consolidate transportation maintenance under one roof and provide a vehicle operations facility for administration and fleet management.

Lee Slocum, superintendent, Cooper Construction Co., said, "With 25-30 men working on the project and the good weather we have had, we're making good progress."

"We are moving to modern facilities with modern equipment," said Chuck Byrd, Quality Assurance evaluator for transportation. "The new maintenance facility consolidates the battery shop, welding, body repair, upholstery, tire repair and radiator repairs into one building," he added.

"We're not having any problems keeping the wing's vehicles going with the construction going on," said Byrd. "Ninety-eight percent of the wing's 255 vehicles are in use."

The project, begun last August, is scheduled for completion by November.

Lightning: a killer

EDITOR'S NOTE: This information is courtesy of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, U.S. Department of Commerce.

When lightning strikes, immediate first aid may save a life. Many people apparently killed by lightning can be revived if prompt first aid is rendered. If an individual is not breathing, mouth-to-mouth resuscitation should be started within four to six minutes to prevent irreversible brain damage.

If the victim is not breathing and has no pulse, cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) is necessary. If an individual is unconscious, but breathing, they may recover spontaneously.

Victims that appear only stunned or otherwise unhurt may still require attention. Treatment for shock, and possible burns on the fingers, toes and next to buckles and jewelry should all be considered.

Red Cross first aid courses provide instruction on how to render aid to a person who has been struck by lightning. For more information on Red Cross courses offered, contact Capt. Benita Sampson, Ext. 3373.

Some tips to prevent being struck by lightning:

- When a thunderstorm threatens, get inside a home or large building or inside an all metal vehicle. Inside the home, avoid using a telephone except for emergencies.

- If outside, with no time to reach a safe building or an automobile, remember the following rules:

- Do not stand underneath a natural lightning rod, such as a tall, isolated tree in an open area.

- Avoid projecting above the surrounding landscape, as you would do if standing on a hill, an open field, a beach or fishing from a small boat.

- Get out and away from open water.

- Get away from tractors and other metal farm equipment.

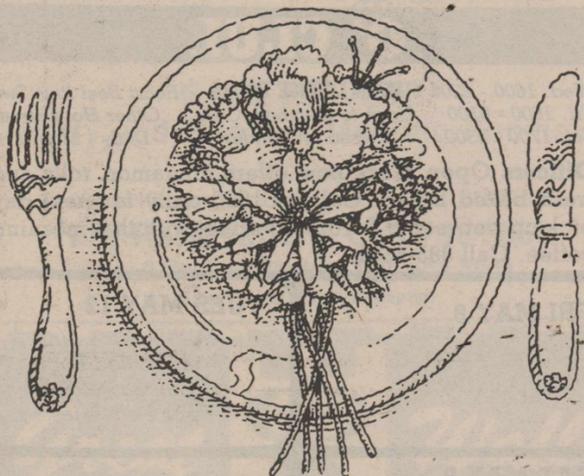

- Get off and away from motorcycles, scooters, golf carts and bicycles. Put down golf clubs.

- Stay away from wire fences, clothes lines, metal pipes, rails and other metallic patches which could carry lightning to you from some distance away.

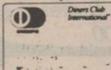

People from the Cooper Construction Company continue work on the new Transportation Complex. Officials said the building should be completed by November this year.

Better ways to do job

by Lt. Col. William Faris
Wing IG

More and more visitors are coming to Reese, and the type of visits are of some importance. It seems that the staff at Headquarters is emptying out to see the West Texas landscape.

These "Staff Assistance Visit" (SAVs) can be very valuable tools to help us ensure that we are doing things right. Our visitors are very knowledgeable on what the current important areas are. Use this expertise to your advantage.

If your area is inspected, ASK QUESTIONS! Make sure you know what the members of our Headquarters staff view as important.

Always look for better ways to do your job...that's what really makes you great. Also, review your past write-ups and ensure sound corrective actions are still in effect. "Repeat Discrepancies" can damage one's rating.

In ATC's most recent IG Newsletter, several areas were highlighted. Effective control of facility keys is one area that will be looked at hard. If you are a building manager, are you satisfied that you know who has keys? When was the last time you checked your records?

Another thing to watch for are "ATC Common Deficiencies." These are highlighted in UEI reports. As supervisors review their areas of responsibility, make sure problems don't come up.

A final note. Plan on the IG Team weighing you if you are within 10 percent of your maximum weight. During each UEI, the team has identified people from this group that are "over the line." At one base they also discovered that three of five overweight members were shorter than indicated on their AF Form 379. We all know what the rules are. Don't place yourself in jeopardy by being overweight.

What's that music?

by 2nd Lt. Ronald Taylor
64th Supply Squadron

Sometimes we get caught up in the routine of work and forget we're a military organization. One of the most important traditions within any military organization is recognition and respect for the flag they defend.

The morning flag raising ceremony is called reveille. AFR 50-34, Vol. I, specifies that all personnel will stop what they're doing, face the flag, and salute.

The evening flag lowering ceremony is called retreat. According to AFR 30-1: "If you are outside, you must stop what you are doing and face the flag. During the sounding of retreat you stand at parade rest, then come to attention and salute during the playing of the National Anthem or 'To The Colors'—you face in the direction of the flag (if visible) or the music. If you are driving a vehicle, you are to stop and sit quietly until the music ends."

We shouldn't need a regulation to help us render respect towards the flag. If you're outside when reveille or retreat is sounded, stop for a minute and remember the flag and those who've died defending her.

Pride in country and respect for her principles dictates where regulations go unheeded. Rules, traditions and local policy can often become confusing. A good rule of thumb to follow in regards to the flag is to do the utmost possible to display respect—you can't go wrong when your actions are above and beyond the law.

Reese BEET assists in Lubbock exercise

Eighteen members of Reese's Base Exercise Evaluation Team (BEET) assisted the staffs of three Lubbock hospitals and ambulance units Friday in tasking their ability to respond to a disaster situation.

According to Lt. Col. Dane Morvant, chief, Reese BEET, the exercise scenario depicted a civilian aircraft crashing onto the grounds of the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum. Between 60 and 80 "victims" with varying degrees of injuries were scattered among the simulated accident debris.

"It was up to the responding ambulance personnel to triage, or classify the simulated dead and injured "victims" according to the severity of their wounds," said Colonel Morvant. "Then the Emergency Medical Services, AID Ambulance and St. Mary's Hospital's Flight for Life helicopter personnel evacuated the victims to the hospital emergency rooms as rapidly as possible. Our hospital staff members evaluated both the disaster scene personnel and the emergency room staff response.

"The reaction of the exercise participants was quite good," said Colonel Morvant. "I was personally impressed by the fact that the large number of casualties were removed from the accident scene well within an hour of the start of the exercise."

Participants from the Reese hospital staff left their own field exercise in Post, Texas, came to Lubbock and then returned to Post. "They did a great job giving the Lubbock medical providers an objective look at their emergency response capabilities," Colonel Morvant said.

MSgt. Joseph Horton of Patient Affairs evaluates the diagnosis of an exercise "victim."

What makes people great?

by Reese Chaplains

What makes a person great? Many people in our society are wealthy, but not great; many are famous, but not great; many have power, but are not great. Greatness comes not just from achieving, but from achieving with integrity. This concept, "achieving with integrity," is a part of this year's USAF Chaplain Service theme, "Called to Excellence."

Joe Paterno, football coach at Penn State University, symbolizes this kind of honest achievement. In the past five years his teams have won the national championship twice and finished second once. In this year's Fiesta Bowl his Nittany Lions faced the University of Miami in the final decisive game of the season. Paterno told his players, "This is your national title; just go out and get it!" And they did.

Throughout the football world Paterno's program is recognized for its honest application of NCAA rules, for its emphasis on academics as well as winning, and for its concern for the individual athlete. Joe Paterno has shown that winning tastes even sweeter when you've played by the rules.

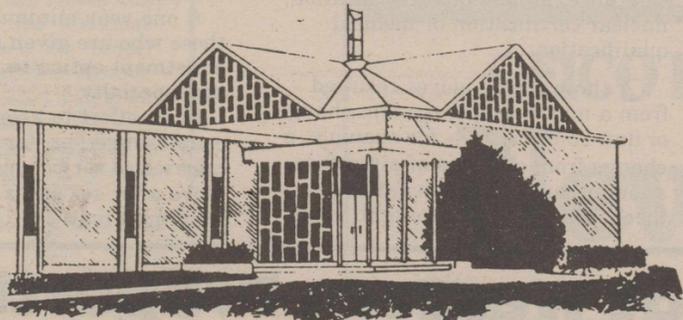

Leaders in the business community have known the same thing for years. Cliff C. Jones in his book Winning Through Integrity (Abingdon Press, 1985) says, "Smart people realize that ethical sensitivity is not just good for the soul; it is also extremely good business." We prefer to deal with an honest salesman and a company which will back up its products.

We know that a student who cheats hurts himself more than anyone else. Such cheating is a way to avoid learning the material being presented and can easily result in later failure in school, work or both.

In any enterprise, whether school, work, politics, the military, or any other phase of life, the dishonest person may appear to get ahead for a while, but in the end, the person who not only works hard but is also honest, responsible and caring, will accomplish things which last.

As Air Force members we are defenders of the values which have made our nation great. Here at Reese we have a tradition of excellence, based upon our mutual commitment to lead the way. People of strong principles are the backbone of our force. They are strengthened by their religious faith, their commitment to the people they love, and the belief that they are doing a job that needs to be done. The Air Force needs people who are set on excellence, and who achieve that excellence honestly—with integrity.

Time-on-station PCS waivers hard to get

By Sgt. Maj. Rudi Williams, USA
American Forces Information Service

Time-on-station waivers for reassignments are taboo in the United States for service members who have not completed a three-year tour. Exceptions to the directive are limited, according to a new DoD directive.

Time-on-station requirements were established "to stabilize the lives of service members and their dependents and to reduce permanent change of station costs," states DoD Directive 1315.7, "Military Personnel Assignments."

The minimum tour length for all assignments in the United States is three years, for both accompanied and unaccompanied tours, including those in Alaska and Hawaii. However, in Alaska, shorter tour lengths have been approved for such remote areas as Adak, Fort Greely, Clear, Galena, King Solomon and Shemya.

"Contrary to what a lot of people might think, the three-year time-on-station requirement has been on the books since December 1977," said a spokesman for the Office of Assistant Secretary of Defense for Force Management and Personnel. "We're just reinforcing the policy.

"There was no retainability standard, except you could be paid a dislocation allowance only once each year," he said. "Now, you must have two years' retainability for certain kinds of assignments before you can be moved. To move again, you must have three years, fall in one of the 14 categories or get a special waiver."

General or flag officers at the headquarters level must personally approve waivers case by case. That authority can be delegated to a colonel in the Marine Corps.

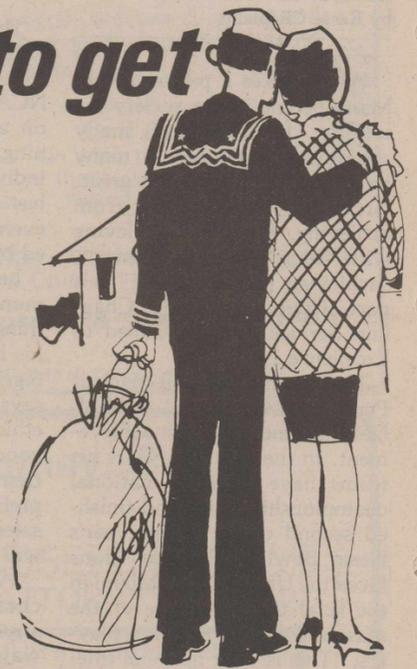

To reassign those with fewer than two years or those outside the 14 special categories requires approval by the personnel chiefs of the military services — a three-star general or flag officer.

The directive provides for case-by-case consideration for reassignments for such reasons as "job stress, requirements for fresh expertise or personal hardship."

Waivers may be also granted if a service member is considered the most qualified person for a particular position.

Among the categories of people who can make a permanent-change-of-station move without a waiver, even though they've served less than the minimum three years at one location, are:

- first termers;
- service members in sea-intensive skills who must serve two years of shore duty before returning to sea;
- those reassigned for training or education purposes;
- those reassigned for humanitarian reasons;
- service members reassigned to a different duty station in preparation for a unit deployment;
- doctors, lawyers and service members serving in other professional skills — these people can be reassigned without a waiver to validate professional credentials or to develop expertise in specialized skills before being assigned to independent duty without supervision;
- service members disqualified for duty after losing a security clearance, professional certification, nuclear certification or medical qualification;
- those whose moves resulted from a major weapon-system change or unit conversion — for example, a change from one type of aircraft to another, such as F-4 to F-15 or mechanized infantry to light infantry.

try. However, officials emphasized that the exemption doesn't cover moves associated with replacing a service member selected for a new weapon system or unit.

A one-year minimum applies to those who are given a re-enlistment option to retrain into a new specialty.

In an effort to keep military couples together, service members married to service members can move after serving a one-year minimum tour.

More and more kick smoking habit

by Anna Mercurio
Staff Writer
Air Force News Service

Smoking among Air Force people is down, according to a recent survey of about 12,000 airmen.

The results prove that the Air Force's one-year-old anti-smoking program is a success, said Capt. Joe Mazzola, program manager.

The survey showed that 48,000 fewer Air Force people smoke this year than last year—a 20.5 percent reduction.

Air Force began its anti-smoking program after a 1985 Department of defense survey on drugs and alcohol showed that almost half of all DoD military people smoked.

Air Force began to educate new and current active-duty members about the hazards of using tobacco products last year.

A mandatory course explaining the health risks associated with tobacco products is taught to basic trainees, Officer Training School, the Air Force Academy and Reserve Officer Training Corps.

Active-duty people are receiving information through professional military education programs. Additional information is supplied through base health promotion programs like "Well Aware."

Captain Mazzola emphasized that there are "proved health risks associated with somebody who is a heavy smoker."

"For a person who smokes a half a pack daily, the premature death rate is about 60 percent higher than for non-smokers, and jumps to 90 percent for people who smoke one to two packs per day," he explained. "Smokers also risk Bronchitis, heart attacks and strokes."

"If you want someone to quit smoking, you have to provide them the help to do that," said Capt. Mazzola.

Two new and important parts of the Air Force anti-smoking program are on-base smoking cessation classes and the addition of nicotine chewing gum to all pharmacies. The gum contains a mild dose of nicotine that helps some people successfully quit smoking, said Capt. Mazzola.

"The Air Force is very concerned about the health of all people," the captain said, adding that the emphasis on cutting the number of Air Force smokers will continue.

Air Force will conduct a follow-up survey later this year that will address the same issues and assess the effectiveness of the anti-smoking campaign and smoking restrictions in the workplace.

Reese AFB will hold another "Stop Smoking" clinic during the month of May. For more information, call Ext. 3536.

Leaders must be loyal, responsible

"Leaders have the responsibility to guide those below them, and be a loyal assistant to those above them," Col. William Drennan, Deputy Commander of Operations told the graduates of NCO Leadership School Class 87-E.

Award winners from the graduating class are:

SSgt. William E. Shembeda of the A.F.O.S.I., District 10, Randolph AFB, Texas received the John L. Levitow Honor Graduate Award, the Commandants Award and the Leadership and Management Award.

The World Affairs award was presented to SSgt. John H. Hammer from the 139th Mobile Aerial Port Flight, St. Joseph, Montana.

Distinguished Graduates in the class were SSgts. Albert Matysiak from the Air Force Commissary Services Squadron, Lowery Air Force Base, Colorado, and Paul Bauer, from the 64th Security Police Squadron here. SSgt. Bauer also received the Speech Award and the Academic Award.

Sgt. Bill L. Harrod of the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron received the Drill Award.

Other members of the class are SSgts. David M. Abrams, Richard J. Renk, Steven R. Bryant, Alton M.K. Burk III, and Timothy D. Holliday of the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron.

SSgts. Terrance A. Wright, Douglas W. Wolford, Michael J. Jankowski, Brian W. Oxford and Sgt. Reginald J. Williams of the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron.

SSgt. Cynthia D. Love of the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron.

SSgt. Mark S. Wilson and Sgt. Jimmie L. Wilks of the 64th Supply Squadron.

Sgt. Vicki C. Krajcovic of the 64th Air Base Group and Kwi C. Butler of the USAF Hospital-Reese.

CE holds planning conference

Reese's 64th Civil Engineering Squadron will host the third ATC Engineering, Construction and Environmental Planning Conference, Monday through Thursday.

The conference's basic theme will be "decentralization," and much of the discussion will focus on that in the areas of military construction programs, operations and maintenance, environmental programs and the Air Force Regional Civil Engineering Office. The role of base level environmental protection committees, asbestos abatement, contracting and funding outlook will be other discussion topics.

A field trip to include stops at Reese's new base civil engineering complex, Reese Manor, the Texas Tech University campus and the new athlete training protective facility is one of the conference highlights.

About 40 civil engineers from all ATC bases are expected to attend. Colonel John Pellek, director of engineering, construction and environmental planning at ATC headquarters, will serve as the command host for the meeting. Colonel Frank DeMartino, the deputy Chief of Staff for Engineering Services, ATC, will also attend the meeting.

SSgt. Richard T. Welch, NCOIC Military Pay Customer Service, tees off. Obviously frustrated with his putting, on the 3rd hole, a 186-yard par 3, he pulled his trusty 4 iron from his bag and shot a hole-in-one. Who needs a putter?

Triathletes sought

The Physical Fitness Center is planning its first ever Mini-Triathlon tentatively scheduled for mid-June. The course consists of a 300-meter swim, eight-mile bike ride and a two-mile run. There will be three person teams and individual participants. A minimal fee will be charged and awards and t-shirts will be given. Persons interested in the mini-triathlon are asked to call SSgt. Randy Pratt, Ext. 6020, so that final planning can take place.
