New SATO to benefit travelers

The Reese Scheduled Airline Traffic Office (SATO) officially opened its doors Feb. 2 in a ribbon cutting ceremony. The new office is located in Bldg. 15 (next to the base library). SATO can be used by active duty military and their family members, retirees, civil service and civilian contract personnel.

Hours of operations are 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Telephone numbers are Ext. 6144/6146 while the military Passenger Section extension is 6143.

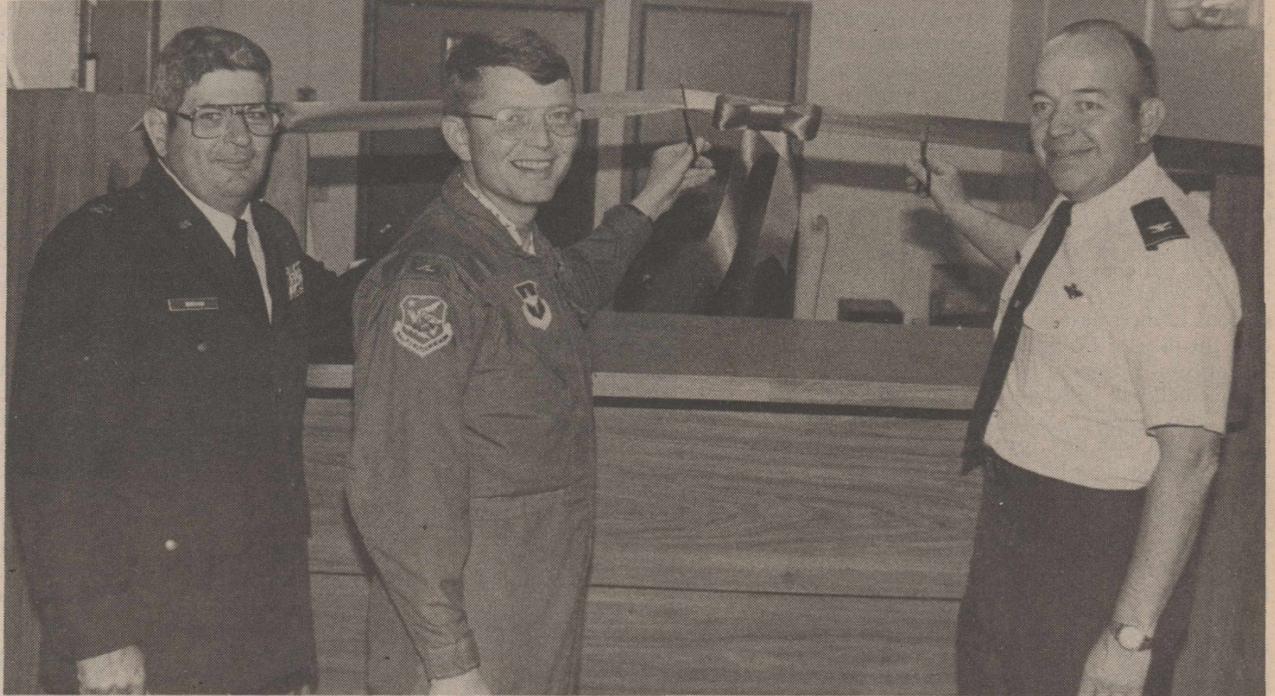

Doreen Butzer and Kathy Alvey are the SATO representatives while Sgt. Anthony Wilkerson is the Passenger Service Specialist. Doreen Butzer is not new to Reese or the military as she previously was an Air Force member in the Traffic Management, Passenger Section here. Kathy Alvey has established a career in airline reservations with various airline companies.

Sgt. Wilkerson will ensure all official travel needs are met by issuing Military Transportation Authorization (MTA) and any individual Transportation Requests (TR) for all official government travel.

The following services are offered by SATO:

Reservations, ticketing, advance seat selection, boarding passes and printed itineraries for both official and unofficial travel; tickets by mail and on site ticket refunds; group reservations and ticketing for both domestic and international travel as well as prepaid ticketing.

Travelers automatically get $150,000 worth of life insurance for each ticket purchased through SATO for both official and unofficial travel; baggage insurance, visa and passport assistance; discount parking at Lubbock International Airport; "Frequent Flyer" profiles; hotel and car rental reservations and Amtrak reservations and ticketing.

Other services available are seminar and meeting planning service; information and assistance with pet shipments; air freight and small package services; 1-800-USA-SATO after hours telephone for non emergencies as well as a SATO agent on call 24 hours for emergency ticketing for official and unofficial travel. In addition a SATO agent is available for briefing and presentations.

In addition, personnel may still register for prizes to be given away at noon, Feb. 13. The prize list includes: Two domestic round trip airline tickets from both American Airlines and Southwest Airlines; Two nights accommodation at the Barcelona Court of Lubbock and two hours of stretch limo service from the Elegance Royal Limo.

Also, two dinners and two movie passes as well as a week of parking at the Lubbock Airport Shelter Park. The Morale, Welfare, and Recreation Division will give away four recreation awards booklets while additional prizes will be given away by Delta, Eastern, Piedmont and TWA airlines and Avis Rent-a-Car.

Newest squadron gets new commander

by A1C Greg Spraggins
Editor, Roundup

On Jan. 20, Lt. Col. Kevin A. Collins took command of the 3500th Mission Support Squadron when Lt. Col. Michael Vizzone moved to the position of Deputy Air Base Group Commander.

Collins was serving as Chief of Protocol for Headquarters, U.S. European Command in Stuttgart-Vaihingen, Germany when he was notified about his assignment to Reese. He held that position from February 1984 to December 1986.

His extensive career began after graduating from University of Puget Sound, Tacoma, Washington as a Distinguished Graduate from AFROTC Detachment 900 in 1973.

His first assignment as Executive Support Officer of the 23rd Supply Squadron, England AFB, La., lasted from June 19, 1973 to Sept. 19, 1975. He then became the squadron section commander, 23rd Supply Squadron until Aug. 1, 1976. He later became the Chief of Central Base Administration for the 23rd ABG.

His first tour as a protocol Officer was at TAC Headquarters, Langley AFB, Va., from 1977 to 1980.

He then moved on to Washington, D.C. as the Assistant Deputy Chief, Air Staff Training Program, Executive Services Division, Office of the Vice Chief of Staff until June 1, 1981.

Following that assignment, he went to Nellis AFB, Nev. to begin work as an Executive Officer for the USAF Air Demonstration Squadron-Thunderbirds until June 20, 1983.

Collins attended the National Defense University, Armed Forces Staff College, Class 74, in Norfolk, Va. from Aug. 1, 1983 until Jan. 20, 1984.

"When I was told I would be the commander of MSS at Reese, I was very pleased. The squadron has a very good reputation," Collins said.

"The people in the squadron are superb," Collins said, referring to the 3500th. They are supportive and helpful and you get a good feeling from everyone you work with in the various organizations. "It's a good feeling to see so many people working together so well."

"Speaking of working well together," Collins said, "the people from downtown are involved with Reese. They make you feel very welcome. When you have a base that is supported by the community, it really makes a difference.

"In the Mission Support Squadron, the service we provide is caring for the needs of the people so the mission of the wing can be accomplished—which is to provide the best possible pilots in the Air Force," he said.

According to Collins, training is very important during this period when there are less PCS moves. "We are going to have to grow our own here at Reese to fill increasingly important leadership positions with added responsibility," he said. "We have to maximize the assets we have, such as PME and the education programs to help in the development of our people."

"I think 1987 will be a very challenging year, particularly for those of us in the support business," he said. "Due to the funding restraints, training issues, PCS cuts and working for quality of life for our people, we must be creative and innovative to succeed. I believe we have the people here at Reese to do just that."

Squadron has "Write Stuff"

by SMSgt. Jimmy L. Robinson

The 1958th Communications Squadron recently was named the winner of the Air Training Communications Division "Write Stuff Award" for the period Oct. 1-Dec. 31, 1986. This is the first of these awards given, as the program was just established at the end of last year.

The award is based on articles submitted and printed in base and command newspapers, hometown news releases, and community relations programs.

The award stated that it was presented "To the 1958th Communications Squadron, whose outstanding support of the Air Force Communications Command Public Affairs Program helped significantly in recognizing the quality and capability of its people, while providing the public with a greater understanding of the mission of the United States Air Force."

Lt. Col. Cliff Hardison congratulates A1C Mike Hinton after his flight. (See story and photos, pages 8-9).

Thunderbirds to perform

The Thunderbirds' 1987 schedule has been announced and Reese is on the list!

The Thunderbirds are scheduled to appear at Reese March 22. More information will be published as it becomes available.

Other appearances in the Texas area are: Vance Air Force Base, April 25; Goodfellow Air Force Base, May 2; Randolph Air Force Base, May 17; and Bergstrom Air Force Base, August 9. They will also perform at Tinker AFB, Okla. on Sept. 13.

The U.S. Navy Blue Angels will appear at Carswell AFB, Texas Oct. 31 and Nov. 1.

The Winning Attitude

There's no doubt, at Reese we play to win. The winning attitude is pervasive. That's true in everything we do—on and off the job. Even the Chiefs versus Colonels team sports competitions—while all in healthy fun—still demonstrate the value of team pride and unity. Competition keeps the attention level up, and sharpens our winning attitude, even among the near geriatrics.

For the Chiefs, rightfully savoring their recent bowling triumph over yours truly and the other Colonels, Monday morning's discussions at our monthly 6:45 a.m. Chief's/Colonel's Breakfast—about the type and order of future competitions—was still anything but conciliatory on their part. That's why they're "winners." Seemingly, most of the Chiefs are anxious to meet next on the basketball court, what with the likes of CMSgt's Larry Minzer, and Gene Richardson. However, here's how it will be. Racquetball will be scheduled next, before basketball. Then in March, with the help of our local CGOC, and with time for the DCM, RM, DO, and SG to practice up a bit, a basketball game of sorts will be played at the base gym. We'll make it open to the public as a fund-raiser, with proceeds earmarked for a worthy cause. No doubt this "competition" is sure to be worth your price of admission, for win, lose, or draw, each of these close-knit Reese "teams" will play the game with that Reese winning attitude.

Readiness Training—Prime BEEF Style

Last weekend, Saturday night in fact, Karen and I were being escorted around Reese by McKay, our pet Sheltie, ala rabbit and mouse hunter extraordinaire. The game was to thoroughly checkout every culvert and WWII building foundation. It was dark, maybe 7 p.m. or so, as we approached the north end of Hangarline Road, near the 54th FTS. Earthmoving equipment broke the silence, and we soon noticed a lot of activity around the backside of Bldgs. 100 and 102. Yes, CE troops were still at it then, well after sundown, preparing to lay badly needed cement in a route heavily traveled by IP's and students between their squadron building and the flightline.

Actually, about 50 of Lt. Col. Paul Baker's officers and enlisted folks spent all weekend training—Prime Beef style. They set up camp west of our runways, working a myriad of projects by day, and sleeping in tents by night.

Continuing McKay's walk, Karen and I found other groups of CE personnel busily at work elsewhere around the base, even as the hour approached 8 p.m. Carpenters were putting a wall in the Post Office, while others were constructing a new entrance for Capt. Dana Tartaglione's Supply Headquarters Squadron building. No doubt these Reese warriors slept well that night. During Friday night, Saturday, and Sunday, several needed sidewalk repairs were completed, along with the removal of old building foundations. Congratulations, Paul, to you and your people. The unusually high CE dedication here makes a significant difference at Reese, and helps to set us apart. Thanks.

Two Liners of Some Significance

• My sincere thanks to Chief Tom McKnight for taking time to personally take me to some areas in need of repair along the Hangarline Road side of our Maintenance complex. Once again, another perfect example of the level of pride and involvement that makes Reese so special.

• SATO is up and running, and well worth a visit to get acquainted with the improved services now available to all of us. Capt. John Gonzalez orchestrated a great "ribbon cutting" with superb briefings given to visiting dignitaries by TSgt. Bob Snyder of Transportation and Doreen Butzer, from the SATO office.

• MIP proposals flowed in during January in record numbers, three-times the number of innovative ideas we would expect in a month. Keep it up folks.

Welcomed Visitors

During this upcoming week, Col. Henry Green, the ATC/JA will be paying his first visit to Reese, well hosted, no doubt, by Maj. 'Sparky' Schwartz. Also, Col. Larry McVay, ATC/ACF, will come up from Randolph as his Headquarters Staff Assistance team concludes their look-see at Maj. Lee Cox's operation. Let's help Major's Schwartz and Cox extend the warm Reese hospitality to these welcomed visitors.

One Last Observation

Lt. Col. Fred Blosser was busily drilling on my chipped cuspid the other day when he suddenly remembered to offer me the newest "customer service" addition in our dental clinic. MIP dollar savings in the hospital have allowed the purchase of earphones for patients to listen to music during their various ordeals. Not bad at all, actually—multichannel selections and volume are easily controlled by the patient even without looking. To me, this is just one more in a whole list of examples that we can find around here where the good ideas of people who care about people make Reese's quality of life just a little bit better everyday. Thanks Doc.

Learning local lesson

by 2nd Lt. Cecily Christian
Deputy Chief, Public Affairs

As a newcomer to Reese and the West Texas area, I have tried to take advantage of opportunities for a smooth transition to this new lifestyle (which is quite different from the one I am used to on the east coast).

I began by venturing out into the city of Lubbock, but after weeks of driving down Slide Road, 50th Street and Loop 289, I kept finding myself at the South Plains Mall.

Eventually it got to be a bit rough on the paycheck, so I set my sights on meeting and getting to know the city and Reese people. I figured the best way to do this would be to get involved with some "extracurricular" organizations on base like the Company Grade Officers Council, the Black History Month Committee and the Society of American Military Engineers. Though varied in their goals and activities, it's been a good experience for me to learn about and socialize with different Reese groups.

Still, in my venture to meet people, I decided to pick one evening (last Friday in particular) to experience the after hours life of the Officers Open Mess.

I innocently strolled into the "Smoking Hole" to see what was happening when I made the vital mistake.

Before I knew it, bells were ringing, people were laughing at me and $11.40 worth of beverages was being charged to my O'Club account.

Thanks to the IPs sitting behind me who benefitted from my act, I very quickly learned a valuable Reese lesson. Believe me, I won't put my flightcap on the bar anymore.

I'm still on my quest to meet people, but I think my trips to the Officer's Club will be limited to the dining room. My wallet can't handle anymore lessons!

As a newcomer to this area, I can say to other newcomers that there are several organizations, facilities and activities available at Reese and in Lubbock to get involved in. It will take some effort, time and a few lessons on your part to find and enjoy them.

To all newcomers, welcome to Reese and if you happen to see a second lieutenant wandering around aimlessly, it's probably me. Stop, introduce yourself and say "hi." It'll be my pleasure to meet you.

Black History Month

Editor's Note: SSgt. Devette Washington, Deputy Commander for Operations, Representative for Black History Week, has compiled the following list of significant events in accordance with the theme for this year's Black History Month "The Afro-American and the Constitution: Colonial Times to the Present."

1770—Crispus Attucks of Framingham, Massachusetts, an escaped slave, died together with four other Americans in the so-called Boston Massacre. After escaping slavery, Attucks worked for twenty years as a merchant seaman. He was in the forefront of the group that taunted British soldiers in Boston and is commonly said to have been the first to fall from their fire. Massachusetts has honored him with a salute in Boston.

1831—The most momentous slave revolt in United States history occurred in Southampton County, Virginia. It was led by Nat Turner, who had on a previous occasion run away and then returned to his master. Approximately 60 whites were slain. Turner was captured and hanged. Several other blacks were executed for their participation.

1831—William Lloyd Garrison, with financial aid and moral support from prominent blacks, including the wealthy James Forten of Philadelphia, published the first issue of the militant anti-slavery newspaper, The Liberator.

1854—Lincoln University, the first Negro College, was chartered as Ashmun Institute at Oxford, Chester County, Pennsylvania.

1855—John Mercer Langston was elected clerk of Brawnhelm Township in Lorain County, Ohio, making him the first black to win an elective political office in the United States.

1895—W.E.B. Dubois became the first Afro-American to receive a Harvard Ph.D. He immediately embarked upon a successful career of teaching and research, principally at Atlanta University.

1904—Ralph J. Bunche was born in Detroit, Michigan. He graduated from U.C.L.A. summa cum laude in 1926, received a Master's degree and Ph.D. from Harvard. A champion of democracy and world peace, Dr. Ralph J. Bunche was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1950.

Tax tips

How will changes affect us?

by Capt. Donald B. Meyer
Deputy Staff Judge Advocate

The wrong amount of $2,800 as the maximum IRA contribution for each taxpayer both having income of $2,000 or more on Joint Returns was printed in the last 'Tax Tips.' The amount should have read $2,000.

Is the 1986 Tax Reform Act going to give me more deductions, a bigger refund, more itemized deductions, less exemptions, or even make me owe money to the IRS?

Let's look at some of the major changes and see how they will affect us. Last year there were 15 tax brackets with the highest being 50 percent. This year there are only five brackets, with the highest being 38.5 percent. While this appears to automatically reduce taxes, and some taxpayers will in fact pay less under the new system, many taxpayers will also be paying the same amount or more in 1987. Why, you ask? The Act has also eliminated or reduced many common tax deductions which middle contracting, it'll never happen on my watch! That viewpoint is all too prevalent, particularly among the military because of the transitory nature of our assignments, the limits of our stay in any one place. Happily, a number of things legislate against the perpetuation of that attitude.

First, not everyone shares that view and they plan for the future of our base, our command and our Air Force.

Second, we have a superbly dedicated cadre of civilians and many things do happen on their watch because it's longer and they care enough to plan ahead.

Third, there are the folks who don't accept that it can't happen on their watch. Those are the ones who don't answer, "I turned in a work order to CE." Those are the ones who make it happen on their watch.

We've all got to realize that our CE folks represent a limited resource and that budget constraints limit the amount of work we can contract out.

What does that leave? The users and self-help work. Look around at the POL folks who are refurbishing Bldg. 46 for offices and break area, the Supply Squadron Bldg. 246 fence and patio area, the TOT and FTD people who built the new classrooms in Hangar 70, to accommodate the new phase inspection docks in Hangar 92; which are in themselves one of the greatest advertisements for self-help—the Field Maintenance crew who landscaped their own building and all the things the OMS folks have done to their barracks. The list of people who care and get it done on their watch goes on and on.

No question, there are a bunch of things that can't be done self-help and they'll have to be programmed and contracted for the future as people have done before us and we'll do for those who follow us.

Few, if any of the people here now, were in on the planning for the headquarters building or the simulator complex and we're seeing a lot more of the work of the folks before us in the new

CE complex. The vehicle maintenance facility was planned on someone else's watch and is being done on our watch.

That's how it has to happen for those major programs, but we won't get those major projects done if we dilute the system with CE projects to do those things we can do for ourselves. Sometimes it seems tough to get them done with all the rest we have to do.

Last Saturday, while I was out looking around in my most overworked, undermanned shop, Fuel System Maintenance, SMSgt. Raul Rodriguez and his troops were painting their maintenance bays—in sections between aircraft rolling in and out for repair. Virtually a brush load at a time. They'll get it done on their watch.

I didn't ask them to do it. They just want it better, like all of us. I challenge all of you to look for things you can get done on your watch, and plan ahead so those who follow us will know that we set the stage for their advances, ON OUR WATCH!

income earners previously qualified for. This year taxpayers are even more likely to see less after tax money because the Act does not become fully in place until the tax years beginning after 1987.

One of the major changes of the Act deals with excluding from income, scholarships or other grants made after Aug. 16, 1986 and received after 1986. Stricter requirements have been laid out to include the recipient must use the scholarship in pursuit of a degree and can exclude from income only the amount of scholarship used for tuition, books, equipment, supplies and other required course fees. No longer may you exclude from income amounts spent on room, board and incidental expenses.

Interest expenses have also been and will continue to be drastically reduced. Under the old law (and on your 1986 tax return), all interest paid was deductible, if you itemized. This was a great deduction for itemizers in the higher tax brackets. For example, if Major Smith, an itemizer, paid $300 in interest on his credit card purchases for last year and is in the 25 percent tax bracket, he would in essence have paid only $225. He would have been able to deduct the entire $300. So for every dollar he deducts he would get an additional 25 cents off his tax bill. In this case he would reduce his tax bill by $75 ($330 × 25 cents). On his 1987 return Major Smith will only be able to deduct 65 percent of his total credit card purchases. In 1987, if he has $300 of total interest he can only deduct $195 and assuming he is also in the 28 percent bracket next year (remember 1987 rates will be in five different categories) he will reduce his tax bill by only $55. The personal interest deduction will be totally phased out by 1991 in the following increments, 40 percent in 1988, 20 percent in 1989 and 10 percent in 1990. A word to the wise is to limit your credit card balances or pay them off within your allotted interest free period because your interest deductions will be limited. For non-itemizers this really doesn't make a difference in tax effects but you might see a gain in financial effects. Credit card companies feeling the pressures of making their cards more attractive and faced with deduction losses are beginning to lower their interest rates.

Efforts should be spent on looking for cards with the lowest rates and lowest annual charges. Most financial tax planners generally agree the best strategy now is to pay cash wherever and whenever possible.

The legal office and unit tax advisors have been deluged with questions concerning the new W-4 Forms. Here's the latest information on these "simple" forms. The Senate Finance Committee has requested that the IRS simplify (again!) the new W-4 Tax Withholding Form. The committee sharply criticized the W-4, stating that the form will not increase the accuracy of information if employees cannot understand how to fill it out.

As of this date, the IRS has no plans to change the form and has attributed the increase in the length of the worksheet itself to an increase of explanatory material included for taxpayer convenience. Taxpayers should continue to fill out a new W-4 Form as soon as possible to avoid under withholding at the end of this year resulting in possible penalties.

BLACK HISTORY Month

February is Black History Month, an annual event which recognizes the many contributions made by black Americans towards the development of our nation.

Two groups from downtown Lubbock, the Zion Baptist and Pilgrim Baptist Churches, have been invited to join Reese in worship at the Base Chapel. The service will begin at 3:30 p.m. Sunday to kick off a week of special events commemorating Black History Month.

A "Place the Face" contest begins Monday at the Base Library. Pictures of famous individuals will be on display throughout the week. A ceramic coffee mug will be awarded each day to the first person who can correctly name the individual whose picture is on display.

The library will also have books on display featuring prominent black authors, leaders and historical events.

Tuesday, the Child Care Center will host a lunch consisting of fried chicken, mashed potatoes and gravy, corn on the cob, sweet potato pie, cornbread, fruit salad and ice tea. The cost is $2 at the door.

A Fashion Show sponsored by the Base Exchange and several clothing stores from downtown Lubbock will be held Wednesday at the Officer's Open Mess. A pay as you go luncheon will be held in conjunction with the show.

"Soul food tasting" begins at 6 p.m. at the Mathis Recreation Center Thursday. Entries in the Black History Month Essay Contest will also be on display.

The Essays will be judged Monday-Thursday by three judges from Lubbock. Winners will be notified Feb. 13. The winners of both categories will receive a $100 Savings Bond for first place, a $50 Savings Bond for second place, and a $25 Savings Bond for third place.

On Feb. 13, the Black History Week Sweetheart Ball will be held at the Enlisted Open Mess. Tickets are $6.50, and may be obtained from Capt. Karen Evans, Ext. 3593 or Mr. Phil Thierry at Ext. 3640. The evening begins at 6 p.m. and dinner will be served at 7 p.m. The dress for the event is semi-formal.

Reverend Lemuel Thuston is the guest speaker for the event. Rev. Thuston is from the Alexander Church of God in Christ, Lubbock. Cultural performance by Bright Moments Jazz Ensemble will be featured during dinner. Disco dancing will begin at 8 p.m.

The Black History Month schedule of events will conclude Feb. 14. Beginning at noon, a Hot Shot Basketball Tournament will be held at the Physical Fitness Center. All ages, male and female are welcome to participate, and trophies will be awarded for first and second place winners.

Also on Feb. 14, in the Base Exchange Lobby, Reese Hospital personnel will be on hand from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. for hypertension screening.

All events sponsored by Black History Month are open to the public. For more information, contact Capt. Karen Evans, Ext. 3593.

Schedule of events

Kudos to...

1st Lt. Dee Carda for superb airmanship and quick reaction during a recent solo flight back from Randolph. While ferrying the T-38 back to Reese, he quickly responded to an in-flight emergency of a local F-4. His timely assistance and excellent airmanship resulted in the safe recovery of the emergency aircraft... WM.L. Czervinske, San Antonio Air Traffic HUB Manager.

1st Lt. Sue Ross for outstanding achievement as a distinguished graduate of Squadron Officer School, Class 87-A...Lt. Gen. Truman Spangrud, commander, Air University, Maxwell AFB, Alabama.

2nd Lt. Matthew Murphy for outstanding achievement as a distinguished graduate of Officer Training School Class 87-05...from Col. Joseph S. Bleymaier, commander, OTS, Lackland AFB, Texas.

News Briefs

Parents night out scheduled

The Child Care Center will be holding their first parents night out Feb. 14. Deadline for reservations is today. There needs to be 10 reservations for the center to open.

If there is a reservation made and you fail to show or cancel, there will be a $5 no-show fee. For more information, contact the Child Care Center, Ext. 3541.

NCO Leadership School graduates

The Noncommissioned Officers Leadership School Graduation Ceremony, Class 87-C, will be held today at 6:30 p.m. at the Enlisted Open Mess. Guest speaker will be Reese's Senior Enlisted Advisor, CMSgt. Coy Martin. All commanders, first sergeants and base personnel are invited to attend.

Officers wives hosts banquet

The Reese Officer's Wife's Club function for February will be a sweetheart banquet, hosted by the wives of the 54th Flying Training Squadron Thursday. The dinner will begin at 6:30 p.m. and reservations must be made by 8 p.m. Monday. The program will be "The Hats Of An Air Force Wife," presented by Mrs. Dottie Conner of San Antonio, Texas.

Sergeants Association meets

The Air Force Sergeants Association holds its monthly meeting Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. in the Enlisted Open Mess Conference Room.

All night disco

The Mathis Recreation Center hosts an all night disco Feb. 21 from midnight to 5 a.m. The deejay will be Big Al and admission is $2.

Pets in Reese Village

Reese Village residents are reminded that pets cannot be tied to any government property. This includes clothesline poles and trees. Also, pets must be under their owner's control at all times. Pets are to be kept at the back of the house only and base regulations prohibits more than two pets per household.

Reese Bulletin has new look

The Reese Bulletin, a newsletter published bi-weekly by the Base Administration Division for official and unofficial notices has a new masthead.

Personnel are reminded that official items may be published twice while unofficial items will run only once. This is due to the limited space and the large amount of items received for publication.

Suggestion program pays off

An analysis of the Fiscal Year Suggestion Program reflects a banner year and reaffirms the efforts our people make to improve productivity and efficiency of operations.

Savings in Fiscal Year 1986 totaled $246 million. Said another way, we saved $30 for every dollar spent on awards and program administration. Since Fiscal Year 1973, savings realized through the Suggestion Program have grown to $1.5 billion.

Luncheon scheduled

The Child Care Center Luncheon will be held Tuesday, 11 a.m.-12:30 p.m. at the Child Care Center.

Fertilizer issued

Fertilizer will be issued to Reese Village residents Feb. 23-27, 8 a.m.-12:00 p.m. at Bldg. 2005 (located near the Sewage Treatment Plant).

Service awards given

The following personnel have received length of service awards: John R. Hinds, 64th Field Maintenance Squadron and Melba W. Lytal, 3500th Mission Support Squadron, 20-year award; and John R. Sanchez, 64th FMS and Bryan J. McManus, 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron, 10-year award.

Lost and found

The Security Police Investigation Section has the following lost or abandoned property: One female's wristwatch. Contact the Investigation Section, Ext. 3999.

Member maintains certificates

The requirements to file AF Form 1256, Training Certificates in the Unit Personnel Record group has been eliminated. It is now the member's responsibility to maintain the training certificates in their own personal files. However, this does not apply for Professional Military Education certificates.

Members retiring or separating must also provide the Separations Unit with these forms to ensure they are listed on the member's DD Form 214, Certificate of Discharge or Release From Active Duty.

Air Force Association meets

The quarterly meeting of the Air Force Association will be held Tuesday, Feb. 17 at the officer's club. The meeting starts with a social hour at 6:30 p.m.

Dr. Bernhard T. Mitemeyer, the executive vice president for the Texas Tech University Health Science Center since November 1986 will be the featured speaker. He retired in February 1985 with the rank of Lieutenant General after 28 years service, the last four as the Army's Surgeon General.

Dress is coat and tie. Dinner will be rib eye steak and cost is $10. Make reservations to 1st Lt. Scott Poppleton by noon, Feb. 16 at 796-0472, or Ext. 3354.

Health alert

Access to hospital care improved

by 2nd Lt. Anthony Terrazas
Director, Patient Affairs

The Health Care Finder's Initiative—HCFI—for Reese kicked off Friday, Jan. 23. Dr. Sarada Narendran, a civilian pediatrician from downtown, attended to the medical needs of our young patients from 8:30 a.m.-1 p.m. She is the first doctor under the HCFI to work in an Air Force hospital, another first for Reese!

Dr. Narendran graduated from Texas Tech's Medical School and currently serves on its clinical faculty. She has been in private practice since 1982. Because of Dr. Narendran's sincere concern for your children, she has agreed to see them in her own downtown office (in the afternoons) for your convenience. She is also married to a doctor, who is a gastroenterologist. They have two children, one eight-years-old, and the other, five-years-old.

Dr. Narendran's professional service on Friday was well received by her patients and welcomed by the Reese Hospital staff. The young patients, some tired of combating the common cold and the dreaded flu, were relieved by the availability of their same day appointment. The hospital staff is equally as happy that this service has improved your access to care. On Friday, for example, the military pediatrician (Dr. Childs) was not on duty because he had worked the night before in the Emergency Room. Therefore, Dr. Narendran provided a service that would not have been available.

The hospital is limited in many of the services that it can provide. As a result, programs like HCFI, which are directly linked to CHAMPUS, are of great importance in helping us provide the fast, quality service you deserve! It is your option to use the program because you are required by CHAMPUS to pay $4 for each visit, after the $50 deduction has been met. Dr. Narendran charges $20 per visit and $18 of that amount is paid by CHAMPUS. However, unless your family has paid the deductible for the year, you will have to pay the first two and a half visits. Keep in mind, with Dr. Narendran working in the Reese hospital, x-rays, laboratory work, and pharmacy are yours—therefore, no cost. Remember it's your option! Dr. Childs is your Air Force pediatrician and is there to serve your child's medical needs also. Dr. Narendran's spirit and willingness, to work as the Air Force's first Health Care Finder Provider in a military hospital, is both an honor and a privilege for the Reese community.

Dental Month—You Are What You Eat

Editor's Note. The Reese Dental Clinic brings you this article in observance of National Children's Dental Health Month. It is the first in a series of four on dental health.

A good diet is essential for proper growth and development and for keeping healthy. Like the rest of the body, the teeth, the bones, and the soft tissues of the mouth need a well balanced diet. A variety of foods, including vegetables and fruits, breads and cereals, milk and other dairy products, and meat, poultry, fish or nuts, should be present in everyone's daily diet.

Proteins, vitamins and minerals—especially calcium, phosphorus, and fluoride—are needed during childhood to help make teeth strong and decay-resistant. Since the teeth begin to develop sometime between the third and the sixth month before birth, expectant mothers need diets that provide enough of these nutrients for the baby's teeth too.

Most of us know that foods containing sugars can be harmful to dental health. Sugars are used as an energy source by the bacteria in plaque, the thin, invisible deposit that forms on everyone's teeth. Plaque bacteria uses sugars to produce acids that attack tooth enamel, eventually leading to decay. But it's not only sugars, it's also starches, such as those found in cereals, breads, and processed foods, that can cause the plaque bacteria to produce decay-causing acids. The amount of these fermentable carbohydrates (simple sugars and starches) you eat is only one element that determines the effects food has on your teeth. Many other factors are of equal or greater importance.

- Frequency of eating. Each time you eat a food that contains simple carbohydrates, the teeth are attacked by acids for up to 20 minutes. The more often you eat these foods, the more often decay-producing acids are formed.

- Physical characteristics of the food. Food such as raisins, dates, dried fruits, and toffee tend to stick to the teeth. As long as they remain in the mouth, the bacteria in plaque continue to produce enamel-destroying acids.

- Time needed to eat the food. Foods such as hard candy, cough drops, and breath mints stay in the mouth for long periods. Your teeth are under attack by acids the entire time.

- When food is eaten. Some research indicates that certain foods, such as cheese, peanuts, or sugar-free gum, may be "friendly" to the teeth. Eating these foods along with, or after, foods that contain carbohydrates may help to counter the effects of the acids produced by the bacteria in plaque.

To ensure that your diet promotes good dental health, develop sensible eating habits. Limit snacks. Read the labels on food containers. Labels list ingredients in descending order, with the ingredient present in the highest quantity listed first. If some type of sugar leads the list, try to eat that food as part of a meal, not as a snack.

From the standpoint of dental health, the following snacks are reasonable choices: nuts, peanut butter (without sugar), milk, cheese, plain (not flavored) yogurt, raw vegetables, popcorn, olives, sugarless gum or sugarless candy, and coffee or tea without sugar. Consult your physician about excess salt, fat, or caffeine.

Good dental health depends upon more than diet alone. Don't forget to brush your teeth thoroughly with a fluoride toothpaste at least once a day, floss your teeth daily, and visit your dentist regularly.

Prevention: where it's at

The room was filled with guests—a testimonial to the concern people at Reese have about their own health and fitness.

"I didn't know what a cholesterol was," SMSgt. Mike Custy told the 94 guests at the Reese Healthy Heart Luncheon. Sergeant Custy, recently a heart attack victim himself, was a merry-go-round of stress, caffeine, smoking and food until circumstances forced him to alter his lifestyle.

Sergeant Custy, the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron first sergeant, was the guest speaker at the Luncheon, which was a Reese first, and an Air Force first.

Health Promotion Coordinator, Capt. Charles Sinclair, emphasized that the purpose of the luncheon is to "show people that healthful food doesn't have to taste bland."

"Fruits and nuts and twenty vitamin pills a day aren't necessary to be healthy" he said. "We need to suggest tasty, filling, alternative foods."

Representatives from the Texas Health Department, the Lubbock City Health Department, the American Heart Association and Cardiology Associates of Methodist Hospital were present. Also in attendance was the flight crew from the St. Mary's "Flight for Life" team, a new emergency medical evacuation service for the South Plains. Chief of Aerospace Medicine Dr. Michael White, stated: "Prevention is where it's at. It's often hard to sell prevention. Our goal is to prolong life, to prolong careers, and to enhance quality of life for all we serve."

Family Services welcomes New Year's Baby

Family Services volunteers welcomed Reese's Project Stork New Year's Baby, Kyleigh Mirianne Bintrim, in grand style.

Kyleigh, the daughter of A1C Herbert and Aimee Bintrim, was born Jan. 22, 1987, at Lubbock General Hospital. She weighed in at seven pounds, 12 ounces.

Josiane Goupie, Project Stork Chairman, presented Kyleigh and her parents a host of special gifts. Among these were a crocheted hat, booties, sweater, and afghan. In addition, Kyleigh received an infant bathtub, car-seat, baby clothes, and a myriad of items to decorate and stock her nursery.

Since the program's inception at Reese in 1980, helping young airmen and their families upon the birth of a child has been the primary focus of the Project Stork layette program. Project Stork, an ongoing Family Services project, is open to all Reese personnel, grade E-3 or below, on the birth of their first, second and third child.

When a child is born, a Project Stork card is issued to eligible personnel by the hospital's maternity ward duty nurses or through the hospital's CHAMPUS office. The card must be completed with the parent's name and rank, child's birthday and sex, and it must be validated by the member's squadron commander or first sergeant as to whether this is the first, second, or third baby born to the member.

The completed card can then be presented to the Family Services' volunteer on duty during normal office hours, Monday-Friday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. At that time, a layette will be issued.

Reese personnel who are expecting a child can find out more about the layette program by calling Josiane Goupie, Project Stork Chairman, Ext. 3305.

Who's behind those jet engines?

by 2nd Lt. Philip Friend
64 FMS, Section Commander

The 64th Field Maintenance Squadron Propulsion Branch is the focal point for jet engine maintenance here at Reese AFB.

Each aircraft has two engines installed, and if they don't work properly, the planes don't fly. The branch is located in Bldg. 52. It consists of 130 military and civilian personnel who are divided into six shops performing maintenance 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The J-69 and J-85 shops are responsible for maintenance on the engines used in the T-37 and T-38 aircraft. They perform scheduled maintenance such as periodic inspections when, after a set number of flying hours, the engines are completely torn down, inspected, and rebuilt. They also do unscheduled maintenance on engines that develop problems while in the aircraft.

The shops utilize the Dock System: one crew is responsible for an engine from start to finish. This is a significant improvement over the assembly line type of system previously used.

The Accessory Repair Section maintains and repairs items such as afterburners, compressors, fuel nozzles and rotors for both engines.

The Flight Line Support Section installs and removes engines from the aircraft as well as doing minor maintenance and adjustments on other systems.

The Test Cell Section operationally checks the engines after maintenance has been performed but before it is reinstalled in the aircraft, making minor adjustments to insure optimum performance.

The Nonpowered AGE Section maintains all the associated carts, stands and trailers used during maintenance as well as the small gas turbine compressors used in other equipment.

These sections provide a unified production capability that can completely troubleshoot malfunctioning engines installed in the aircraft as well as accomplish the tedious task of completely disassembling and reassembling the engines.

The highly trained technicians of the Propulsion Branch have to be professionals (in every sense of the word) in order to perform their duties. People are rotated from one shop to another so their knowledge and experience can be put to the best possible use.

A jet engine is a precision instrument made up of hundreds of moving parts designed to microscopically measure tolerances to insure proper performance and reliability.

The engines operate at over 16,000 revolutions per minute and any component not in perfect working order can cause serious problems for the pilots and their aircraft. The engines assigned to Reese are unique in that nearly 100 percent of the components are repaired locally without Depot level assistance.

The 64th Field Maintenance Squadron Propulsion Branch has received high ratings on the last two ATC MEIs and in the past received the best 'Foreign Object Damage' rating in the Command, and also the ATC Safety Award. They currently have one of the lowest Test Cell reject rates and their quality maintenance allows the engines to stay in the aircraft longer than most bases in the Command.

The next time you hear the scream of a jet overhead, think of the folks who keep those planes in the air—the "Reese Maintainers."

SSgt. Ron Dunning of the Flight Line Support Section performs an engine inspection.

Sgt. Joe Davis of the Accessory Repair Section works on a brand new, state-of-the-art balancing machine to balance a J-85 compressor rotor.

The program is designed to develop a greater appreciation of teamwork between operations personnel and their wrench turning counterparts in maintenance.

Combine efforts

Program takes off

present A1C Mike Hinton a 35th Flying Training Squadron scarf after the incentive flight.

Col. Ramon Broerman (center) and Col. James McIntyre (right) congratulate A1C Mike Hinton and SSgt. Mike Hedum after their flights.

by 1st Lt. Scott Meisinger and Major Rufus Hutchinson

If you happened to be near the T-37 side of the flightline last Tuesday, you may have seen an unusual sight. After all, it's not often that you see a pilot kicking the chocks clear of the landing gear and marshalling the aircraft down the ramp in preparation for its morning launch. Better yet...when was the last time you saw a crew chief in the cockpit signaling "thumbs up" as he sat in a T-37 aircraft headed down the centerline of the taxiway? It happened this week at the kickoff of our newest operations/maintenance cooperation program.

The goal of this project, tentatively called Project Interface is to develop a greater appreciation of teamwork between operations personnel and their wrench-turning counterparts in maintenance. This can only be accomplished by providing a better understanding of the daily rigors encountered in both jobs.

Crew chiefs from the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron met with their respective pilots and went through the normal morning briefing and flight planning. At the same time, pilots from the 35th Flying Training Squadron lined up for roll call with the crew chiefs out on the flight line. This role reversal gave both operations and maintenance personnel a chance to experience first hand each other's jobs and respective problems.

Then, it was out to the flight line to preflight the T-37 aircraft for the crew chiefs' incentive flights.

SSgt. Mike Hedum and A1C Mike Hinton, Crew Chiefs of the Month for July and December 86, were flown in their T-37 aircraft by their 35th FTS instructor pilots, Capt. Tom Pfeiffer and 1st Lt. Paul Chapman.

Acting as crew chiefs for the launch were Capt. Robert Anderson and 1st Lt. Karl Buchberger who were assisted in their crew chief duties by Amn. Roy Paz and Amn. Dave Ramirez. Following the flights SSgt. Hedum and A1C Hinton were given the traditional "hosing down" by the fire department. Both the flying and the launching crews were congratulated by the wing commander.

Another motivational concept initiated under Project Interface is the "matching up" of a pilot with his or her crew chief and placing both their names on the side of "their" aircraft. Additionally, the flights in the 35th FTS have been matched to 64th OMS flights and the respective schedulers are matching the mission sorties with their respective flights more than 60 percent of the time. Through Project Interface, the crew chiefs and the pilots will develop a greater sense of pride and better understanding for each other's jobs.

By experiencing one another's long hours, rough weather conditions, and hard work, the 35th FTS instructor pilots and 64th OMS maintenance people will gain a new appreciation, thus working harder together to attain the mission of the 64th Flying Training Wing: "Training Tomorrow's Best Pilots Today."

This is just one more example of Reese people pulling together and setting the example for the rest of the command.

A1C Mike Hinton and SSgt. Mike Hedum receive the traditional "hosing down" from the Base Fire Department following their flights.

Evangelist to speak

by Mr. Bill Tynan
Chief, Public Affairs

Evangelist Dave Roever will be the featured guest speaker at the Reese Christian Fellowship at noon, Tuesday, in the base chapel.

Roever is an internationally recognized evangelist who carries a message of love to all those who hear his word. His message is rooted in his Vietnam combat experience when he was horribly burned by a phosphorous grenade. He attributed his ability to survive 15 major operations to heal the scars of an exploding grenade to a miracle of Divine help.

Roever says his ordeal only heightened his love for America and this theme is a part of his message which he has preached and lectured in 36 nations. In the United States and Canada, he had made frequent appearances at university campuses, high schools, concerts, youth conventions and churches of many denominations. He has appeared on national television shows such as the "Praise the Lord Program" where his audiences have found him both intriguing and inspiring.

Chaplain (Capt.) Roger Winburg promised all those in attendance one of the year's better programs. "We are fortunate to get somebody of Dave Roever's reputation here at the Reese Christian Fellowship. We have pastor Randal Ross of Trinity Church in Lubbock to thank for that. They are sponsoring Mr. Roever's visit to Lubbock."

"The chapel staff would like to invite all Reese personnel to attend the non-denominational meeting and enjoy a free lunch with us."

Base program receives FAA Approval

by Jeffrey Z. Wilbur
Education Services Officer

A new Airframe and Powerplant (A&P) mechanic program to be offered by Houston Community College (HCC) recently received full certification by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA). The certification allowing the operation of a full aircraft mechanic school was presented to Mr. Victor Linscomb of Rice Aviation, Inc., (the program's subcontractor), by Mr. Rick Martz of the Lubbock FAA district. Classes are scheduled to begin on March 2nd.

The completion of all requirements for certification makes the Reese program one of 149 FAA certified schools in the country, and the only certified program located on a military installation.

Courses have been offered by HCC during the past year. Under that program, military or civilian aviation experience is needed to qualify for the FAA A&P license. The new program will provide the opportunity for those without experience to complete all requirements for the license.

Further information on both programs can be obtained from the Education Center, Building 920, Ext. 3087 or 3634.

"Bold decisions give the best promise of success."

Send sweetheart a song

For only a few dollars the Mathis Recreation Center will deliver a singing telegram Valentine's Day greeting.

Volunteers dressed in satin will sing one of nine available messages for $3, and deliver a card selected by the sender. The messengers will also deliver a box of chocolate valentine candy for an additional $2.25.

Song lyrics range from a complaint about Air Force life for bosses to a not-so-subtle hint for requited love, to the tune of Oh, Tannebaum:

"Oh, Valentine, Oh, Valentine, you are my little honey.

Oh, Valentine, Oh, Valentine, I love you for your money.

Your hair is greased, your nose is long,

Your toes are curved, your breath is strong.

Oh, Valentine, Oh, Valentine, you are my little honey."

The singers will visit the individuals office or home (Base Housing only) and ask for the person receiving the telegram. They then sing the telegram and hand him/her a card and box of candy—if desired.

Persons who wish to send a singing message should sign up at the Mathis Recreation Center, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. The deadline for signing up will be Wednesday, 6 p.m. A limited number of reservations are available, so make reservations early.

The greetings will be delivered Feb. 13, the day before Valentine's Day. This will leave adequate time for reward or retaliation from those who are on the receiving end. For more information, contact the Mathis Recreation Center, Ext. 3787.

CBPO News

The following positions are now available:

MSgts. and SMSgt. are needed as Academic Instructors at the USAF Senior NCO Academy, Gunter Air Force Center, Alabama.

Group Study prohibited

by Sgt. David L. Ravsch
NCOIC, Enlisted Promotions

Periodically we are asked to explain the rationale that prohibits group study in preparation for promotion testing. To completely understand this policy, it is necessary to make the distinction between the objectives of the On-the-Job (OJT) Training Program and the Weighted Airman Promotion System (WAPS) specifically, the Specialty Knowledge Test (SKT) and the Promotion Fitness Exam (PFE).

The objectives of OJT are to develop and administer training programs to assist individuals in achieving proficiency and mastering essential knowledge needed to advance in skill levels or positions. Individuals must successfully demonstrate varying degrees of knowledge and job proficiency and successfully complete all phases of the CDC, including Volume Review Exercises (open book) and the End-of-Course Exam (closed book). Once all training parameters are met, and a skill-level is awarded, it is an individual's responsibility to maintain knowledge and proficiency on a continuing basis. This requirement is extended to all phases of the specialty—not limited to a particular job or function.

Unlike the OJT Program, the basic charter of WAPS is to measure an individual's relative promotion potential and promote the best qualified personnel to fill Air Force requirements. The tests are designed to measure individual's knowledge in a competitive environment. Career advancement under WAPS is directly related to self-initiated programs of individual study and effort. The responsibility rests with the individual to take the initiative to obtain and study the material—not the group initiative.

The underlying rationale that prohibits group study is the potential danger of a test compromise. Prior to testing, individuals are made aware, several times, that discussion or disclosure of the test contents is a violation of Article 92 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ) and the violation carries severe penalties. Examinees acknowledge understanding of these provisions by signing a form prior to testing. Inadvertent compromises are likely to occur in group study situations where individuals who have taken the current, or previous tests, may reveal test contents to members of the group.

The WAPS was established more than 16 years ago as a promotion system that was objective and visible. The Air Force policy prohibiting group study simple reflects the continued emphasis on individual effort and initiative.

Additionally, the policy against group study has the benefit of reducing the opportunity for test compromise—either direct and intentional or inadvertent. The policy is designed to protect the individual as well as protect the credibility of the entire promotion system.

Promotion tests should always reflect the efforts and study of the individual, not the combined wisdom—or lack of wisdom—of the contemporaries they happen to study with during a specific promotion cycle.

There's more than you hear

by MSgt. Michael T. Galvin
Base TEMPEST Officer

Since the beginning of the civilized world, man has been trying to discover what his fellow man is doing. He has used many ways throughout the ages to learn what the other person is up to, ranging from eavesdropping from behind an object to using complicated electronic listening devices that can be used at great distances.

One area that seems to be overlooked by many people, is sounds. Specifically, the sounds that originate from machines that are used to process classified information. These sounds can be detected by listening devices and translated into meaningful information by unfriendly countries. The program the Air Force uses to combat this type of listening is called TEMPEST. TEMPEST is an unclassified name referring to investigations and studies of compromising emanations. Compromising emanations are unintentional data-related or intelligence-gathering signals, which if intercepted and analyzed, disclose the classified information transmitted, received, handled, or otherwise processed by any electronic equipment.

The Air Force TEMPEST objectives are concerned with the control of compromising emanations at all Air Force organizations having equipment that process classified information. Program objectives are:

- To identify compromising emanations in equipment and systems;
- To apply effective control measures;
- To install equipment properly;
- To educate personnel;
- And to test equipment.

All electronic devices have components which emit unintentional emanations. Depending on the type of equipment and its environment, compromising emanations can be radiated through space as radio waves or conducted on telephone lines, water pipes, or any other conductor leaving the area.

Telephone instruments can be particularly dangerous as transmitters of compromising signals because their presence is often accepted as something apart from the electrical processing operation. However, the two sensitive elements in each handset and the ringing element can easily be activated into signals unintentionally emitted from nearby equipment that processes classified information. Typical equipment or systems which are considered TEMPEST vulnerable when processing classified information are audio/visual machines, computers and word processors, facsimiles, receivers and transmitters, tape recorders, teletype equipment, digital communications, and electric typewriters.

There is no one stereo-type solution to the compromising emanations problem. As a user of any electrical device which processes classified information, you should be aware of the TEMPEST data associated with the device.

To obtain this information, first contact your squadron/staff agency TEMPEST monitor, or the Base TEMPEST Officer, Ext. 3899. TEMPEST is an integral part of the overall COMSEC program which every user of electrical equipment which processes classified information must be knowledgeable of.

Many of us dream about looking great in the latest swimsuit fashion in the summertime. Do you?

If so, the time to start getting in shape is now, not when the swimming pools open.

The staff at the Reese Physical Fitness Center are trained to help guide you in an effective exercise program that can get you in shape.

The Reese Fitness Center offers three free aerobic exercise classes Monday-Thursday and two on Friday.

The classes have been going on for four months. "Most of the regular students in the classes have seen dramatic improvements in their bodies," said Fitness

Instructor SSgt. Randy Pratt. "Most of the people who come to class do so several times a week, I call them 'regulars' and it's visibly obvious they are losing pounds and firming up," he said.

"Some exercises that the regulars could barely do a few months ago are much easier for them now," said SSgt. Pratt. "Almost everyday someone from class tells me that she or he has lost up to 20 pounds since the classes began," he added.

SSgt. Randy Pratt, assisted by 2nd Lt. Sue Shankland, of the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron, conducts 14 aerobic classes every week.

"It is not too late to start now," Sergeant Pratt said. Bring your tired, sluggish or maybe lazy body to the Fitness Center and get into shape before summer.

For more information call SSgt. Pratt, Ext. 6020.

Volleyball victories

The base Co-Rec. Team continues its quest for the first place crown, with two consecutive victories last Monday evening. The base team posted scores of 15-10, 15-5 against the Jungle Ball team and 15-7, 5-15, 15-4 against Tuff-Nuff placing Reese in a two-way tie for first place.

Quail Hunt scheduled

The Reese Rod & Gun Club will host a quail hunt on Feb. 21, at the Matador State Game Park.

This will be one of the last opportunities to hunt quail before the close of the season.

The hunt will be open to members and non-members alike. More details will be given at the Rod & Gun Club meeting Tuesday, 7 p.m. at the Enlisted Open Mess. For more information contact 1st Lt. Mark Nabell, Ext. 3510.

Supply records checked

The Headquarters Command Equipment Management Team visits here Feb. 23-27. According to Maj. Ronald Tiehen, Chief of Supply, "It is essential that everyone involved with equipment accountability ensure equipment is inventoried and accounted for on supply records."

The team will have reviewed copies of all Custodian Authorization/Receipt Listings for validation of existing equipment authorizations prior to the visit.

The team members will be visiting essentially all organizations on base. Equipment will be physically surveyed to assure proper identification, utilization and accountability.

Additionally, the administrative maintenance of all custodian account folders will be reviewed to ensure compliance with AFR 67-23, Chapter 8 Section E, paragraph 8-20.

Special interest items will consist of equipment on hand which exceeds the Table of Allowance basis of issue, custodian knowledge, equipment excess program and accountability of work processing and computer systems.

Team members will also provide maximum assistance to resolve any equipment allowance and authorization problems the custodians may have. For more information on this visit, call the Equipment Management Section, Ext. 3222/3223.

It's Your Call

by SrA. Felix R. Saenz
Base Crime Prevention Monitor

It's your responsibility to keep your neighborhood safe. Don't be negligent. Don't think it's not your job to get involved when your neighbor gets ripped off. In order to make it in the Air Force, we have to work as a team. Team work is also the name of the game in the fight to reduce crime.

Several things have already happened this year:

- On Jan. 3, four tires on a vehicle were vandalized in a carport on Mitchell St.

- On Jan. 9, there was some flightline equipment stolen, including tool boxes and other miscellaneous items.

- On Jan. 11, the pinball machine in the BX Gameroom was damaged.

- On Jan. 31, a shed by the Youth Center was reported as being vandalized.

- On Jan. 27, the George St. barriers were damaged.

- On Jan. 27, a vending machine had been tampered with.

These are just a few things that have happened. People are still asking themselves, "Why should I get involved when/if my neighbor gets ripped off?"

Help us help you reduce crime! Report a crime! Crime Stop, Ext. 3400.
