Procedures — not a waste of time

by A1C Greg Spraggins
Editor, Roundup

Some time has passed since aviators flew with only the seat of their pants and the thrill of flying holding them into their machines. 2nd Lt. Stephen Jones, UPT Class 87-03, recently had a similar experience, which shows that courage of flight is not only in the history books, but is alive and strong in the U.S. Air Force.

February 3, while flying at 21,000 feet on the return leg of a T-38 solo out and back, Jones' front cockpit canopy shattered in flight.

"I wasn't frightened," said Jones, "I was too busy trying to save the aircraft."

2nd Lt. Stephen Jones

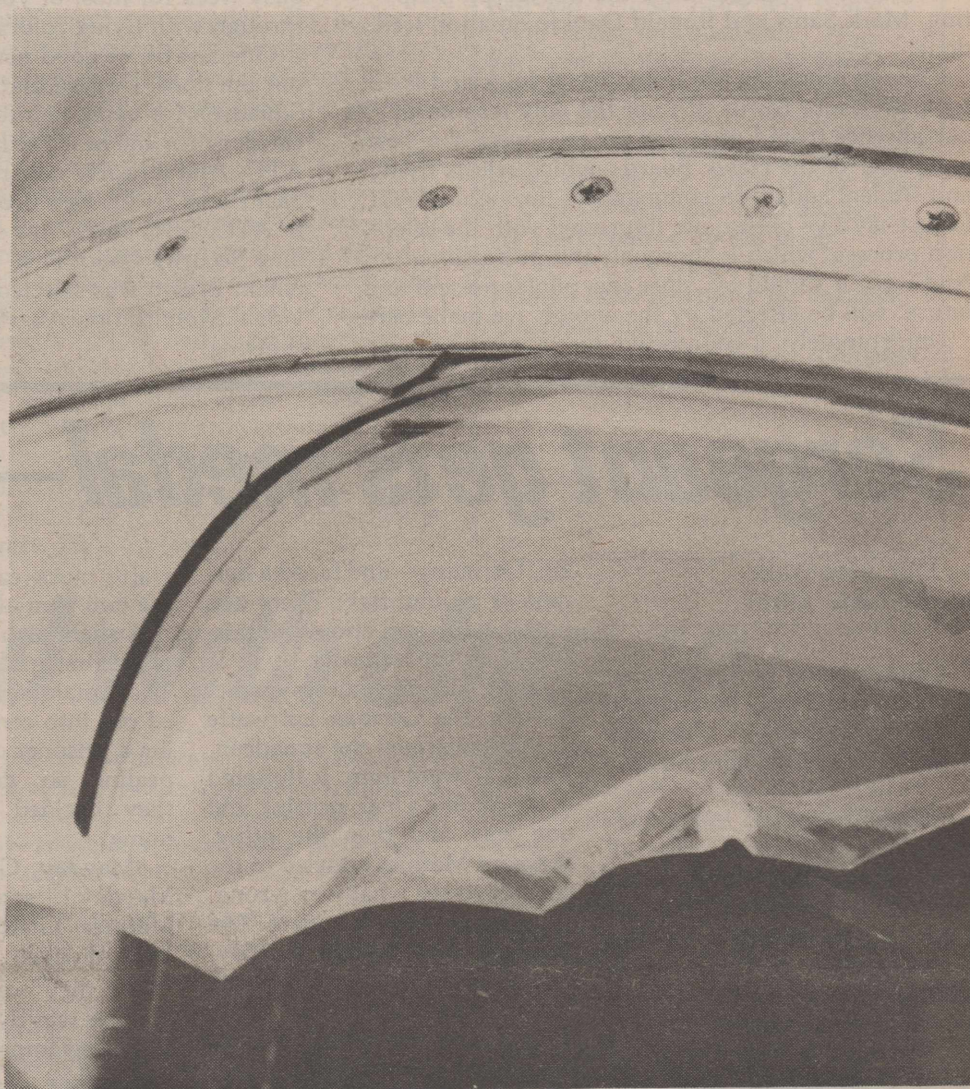

The sudden and explosive depressurization forced Jones' mask down and his visor up, and the debris from the canopy caused abrasions to his right eye.

While initiating an emergency descent and reducing his airspeed, he placed his visor down, his mask back on and sent an emergency signal to the controller's radar. "This kind of thing happens in our career field, that's why knowing emergency procedures is so important," said Jones.

Noise inside the cockpit was so severe that Jones could not hear any radio transmissions from the ground. Using an emergency radio frequency, he transmitted his situation, and that he was going to divert to Cannon AFB, N.M., which was 10 miles north of his position and in sight. Cannon Approach Control vectored nearby aircraft out of the vicinity while Jones observed an F-111 on landing roll out on Runway 22. Jones configured the aircraft and performed an uneventful approach and landing. "I was very thankful to have the training and presence of mind required to save the aircraft," said Jones. "Knowing emergency procedures is not a waste of time."

Post-flight inspection showed that the entire front canopy glass was gone, except for the jagged edges around the rails. The pilot's helmet and mask were damaged from the debris and two inch long pieces of glass were found embedded into the left side of the head rest. The cause of failure has not yet been determined, but is under investigation.

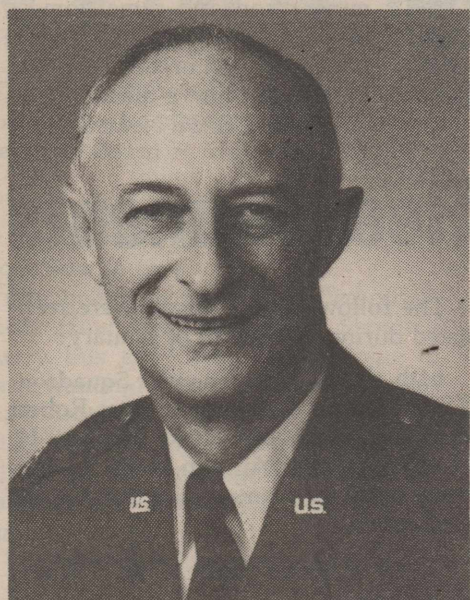

"Lieutenant Jones did a superb job recovering a badly damaged aircraft," said Col. William Drennan, Deputy Commander for Operations. "He reacted like a real professional."

Command Chaplain to address National Prayer Breakfast

Chaplain (Col.) Donald C. Ofsdahl

by Chaplain (Capt.) Robert C. Stroud

Each year, throughout our nation and military installations around the world, Americans gather to pray together for our land and its leaders. The annual National Prayer Breakfast has become a positive and uplifting institution. Our local observance of the Prayer Breakfast will be Wednesday, 7 a.m.

In speaking of the need for prayer, President Abraham Lincoln said, "I have been driven many times to my knees by the overwhelming conviction that I had nowhere else to go." Most of our nation's officials share President Lincoln's divine guidance. Since 1953 the National Prayer Breakfast is by its very nature nonsectarian. Individuals with differing political, philosophical and religious viewpoints gather together to uphold common values and aspirations. It is a gathering designed for all people, and every member of our Reese community is encouraged to attend.

Advance tickets for the gathering, to be held at the Officer's Open Mess, are presently available through the Base Chapel and unit orderly rooms. A few tickets will be available at the door, but it is advised that they be purchased in advance.

Chaplain (Col.) Donald C. Ofsdahl, Air Training Command chaplain, will be the keynote speaker. Chaplain Ofsdahl was ordained and commissioned as a pastor of the American Lutheran Church in 1963. He was commissioned as an Air Force officer shortly after that. He is a graduate of Concordia College in Moorhead, Minn., and Lutheran-Northwestern Theological Seminary in St.

Paul, Minn. Prior to entering the active duty chaplaincy, he served a civilian parish in Nasawauk, Minn.

During a distinguished military career, Chaplain Ofsdahl has been the recipient of the Legion of Merit, Meritorious Service Medal with two oak leaf clusters and the Air Force Commendation Medal with one oak leaf cluster. For service in Osan, Korea, he received the Expeditionary Medal.

Chaplain Ofsdahl is widely recognized as a skilled preacher, fine teacher and outstanding pastor. The respect he has earned from his fellow Air Force chaplains bears testimony to his sincerity and leadership by example.

The ticket price of $3.75 covers the cost of the individual meal. The other related expenses are covered by the Catholic and Protestant Reese Chapel Parishes.

NCO Leadership graduation

by A1C Robin Reams
Staff Writer, Roundup

Noncommissioned Leadership School Class 87-C graduated Feb. 6 at the Enlisted Open Mess. Senior Enlisted Advisor CMSgt. Coy Martin was the guest speaker.

"We need to have a winning outlook on life in general, and certainly for our Air Force career. If we feel, think, and look like a winner, then over half of the battle is won in our strive for success," said Martin to the 19 NCO Leadership School graduates.

The John L. Levitow Honor Graduate Award was presented to SSgt. David A. Boucher of the 64th Supply Squadron. Sergeant Boucher also received the Speech Award, World Affairs Award and the Commandant's Award.

Distinguished Graduates for the class were Sgt. Cherie B. Powers of the 3500th Mission Support Squadron and Sgt. Donald S. Taylor of the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron. Sergeant Taylor also received an Academic Award.

The Drill Award was presented to SSgt. Jon B. Johnson of the USAF Hospital-Reese. Sgt. James A. Hakala of the 3500th Mission Support Squadron was awarded the Leadership and Management Award.

Other members of Class 87-C are: SSgts. Richard A. White, Jerry Ballard, Gary T. McNeece and Sgt. Ronald J. Newsome from the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron; SSgts. Tony B. Moses and James D. Green of the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron; SSgt. Robert A. Williams of the 64th Supply

Squadron; SSgt. Patrick D. Garthwaite of the 64th Security Police Squadron; SSgt. Michael G. Nilsen of the USAF Hospital-Reese; SSgt. Brent W. Amos of the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron; and Sgt. Ava A. Smith of the 3500th Mission Support Squadron.

Members of Class 87-C from other bases were SSgt. Reuben M. Zulaica, from Kelly Air Force Base, Texas, SSgt. Jessie D. Mathews from Ellington Air National Guard Base, Houston, Texas and SSgt. Donald K. Wylie from Hensley Field, Dallas, Texas.

As I see it

By Col. James McIntyre
Wing Commander
64th Flying Training Wing
Reese AFB, Texas

Believe it or not, this article was phoned in to our Wing stenographer at 7:45 a.m. yesterday. You see, Karen and I have been at Randolph AFB since Monday, and even though I'm out of pocket, I couldn't pass up this opportunity to talk to all of you. I'll have to be brief. We're on our way to Lackland AFB to see four of our sharp Reese troops graduate with ATC NCO Academy Class 87-03, and later on tonight, I'm looking forward to addressing the class at their graduation dinner. Congratulations to our four graduates: TSgts. Gary Clarke, Joseph Stelpflug, Mark Sams and Ronald Dunkle on a job well done!

Though attending the festivities at Lackland is quite an honor for us, it's not the only reason for our absence from Reese. For the past week I've been a member of the Hawk Board—which selects flying and student squadron commanders throughout ATC. I must say I've been quite impressed with the selection process, which is thorough and professional. And well, it should be, since our pilots, present and future, will be affected by the choices we make here. Unfortunately, it sounds like we've missed a busy, spring-like week at Reese. I hear the recent good weather has helped our flying squadrons press forward to roughly four days ahead of the timeline. Thanks to all the line IPs and supervisors who continue to do such a super job in your demanding duties—we all appreciate it. I'd also like to add that I'm not surprised to hear that things are going well with the ATC Stan/Eval informal inspection and the ATC Accounting and Finance staff assistance visit. These visits plus a few more activities have made a busy week for most of you, and I know you'll come through with flying colors.

One last bit of good news before Karen and I step out the door. Congratulations to our Security Police Squadron for being named a finalist in the small unit category for the best Security Police Squadron in ATC. And a hearty congratulations to SrA. Felix Saenz and 1st Lt. Ken Brown for winning top honors in ATC. SrA. Saenz was selected as ATC's Outstanding Security Police First Term Airman, while Lieutenant Brown was selected as the Outstanding Individual Mobilization Augmentee Officer. Excellent showing!

Sergeant gets medal—like he predicted

by SSgt. Scott White
USAFE Public Affairs

Editor's Note: Some information was taken from an article in "Man's Magazine," February 1962, written by Glenn Infeld.

RAMSTEIN AB, West Germany—He heard the order all right. It echoed through the bloodstained headset that sat askew on his blonde head. But Army Air Corps Sgt. Archie Mathies gripped the B-17 Bomber's wheel even tighter.

"Dammit, I order you to jump. Now get out while you still can," blurted Col. Eugene A. Romig, 351st Bomb Group commander.

Sergeant Mathies continued flying the wounded bomber, which carried the unconscious pilot, Lt. Clarence R. Nelson, and navigator, Lt. Walter Truemper, back to the airfield at Glatton, England. His blue eyes fixed on the only operational gauge—the airspeed indicator—and the threatening tree line below. He was flying by guts.

Again Colonel Romig yelled—ordering, almost begging the men to bail out. "I understand, sir," said Lieutenant Truemper, "but this doesn't seem to be the day for orders."

The day was Feb. 20, 1944. It marked the start of a week called "Big Week," in which allied forces initiated all-out attacks on Nazi Germany's aircraft industry. It was also the day a 25-year-old miner's son from Pennsylvania was awarded the Medal of Honor.

Mizpah was the B-17's name. It and Sergeant Mathies had a bond, almost like a boy and his dog. That gun-welding sheet of metal was the flight engineer's life. They shared many moments during World War II.

The morning of Feb. 20 was like many others for the engineer. He rose early, attended his prelaunch briefing and headed toward Mizpah. "Someday she'll get me a medal," he said as he caressed the aircraft's side before take off.

Mizpah roared off the runway as it had many times before. Escorted by a troupe of P-51 Mustangs, it sailed with the squadron to the target—Leipzig, Germany—and faced a barrage of ground flak. There was nothing different about this mission, or so it seemed.

Then, like mosquitoes on picnickers, the German Luftwaffe aircraft swarmed the squadron. The B-17 went limp. It fluttered in the air like a leaf, drifting first one way and then the other. Sergeant Mathies crawled to the cockpit to see what was wrong.

He stared at a nightmare. The co-pilot, Lt. Ronald Bartley, was dead, sitting in a pool of blood. Lieutenant Nelson was draped over the wheel, unconscious and covered with blood. The cockpit was in ruins.

"Help me get Nelson out of here," Sergeant Mathies yelled to Lieutenant Truemper, the only uninjured crewmember in the cockpit.

Sergeant Mathies jumped into Lieutenant Nelson's seat, grabbed the wheel and pulled like he was yanking a coal car down the tracks in the mines with his father. The lieutenant grabbed the wheel too. Slowly, the aircraft's nose came up, fighting the two men all the way.

A slight sigh signaled the end of the first crisis. But now what? The remainder of the crew bailed out into certain capture. Being a prisoner of war wasn't appealing, so, despite the odds, they decided to fly Mizpah home.

"Mayday, Glatton, Mayday, Mayday," screamed Sergeant Mathies. Glatton's tower crew were shocked; it was Mizpah. Then they realized Sergeant Mathies was flying the B-17 and silence swamped the tower.

"Where is Lieutenant Nelson?" Colonel Romig asked.

"He's lying on the floor unconscious. Bartley is dead," said the sergeant.

Mizpah appeared on the horizon, flying more like a wounded duck than an Army Air Corps bomber. The fuselage was ripped. There were huge holes in the sides and one wing was nothing more than flapping metal. It was a flying miracle.

Repeated orders to bail out didn't work. Sergeant Mathies and the navigator said they weren't going to bail out and abandon the pilot who was too badly wounded to jump. Colonel Romig then decided to fly up, meet the aircraft, and help lead Mizpah in. Twice they tried landing, but Sergeant Mathies couldn't keep the aircraft's nose up.

As they swooped in for the third time, Colonel Romig yelled through his aircraft's microphone, "Pull back the throttles, Mathies, you're too fast. You're going to overshoot."

To the tower, the crash seemed to be in slow motion. The B-17 landed belly first, then bounced into the air. The left wing dug into the ground and Mizpah cartwheeled and burned. The guts Sergeant Mathies used to keep the aircraft up weren't enough to get him down.

"Crash" was the last word heard on the radio. All three men died.

Sergeant Mathies left Pennsylvania for World War II as a miner's son and came home a hero. He was right that day he patted Mizpah on her side. She, indeed, got him a medal.

Commander's Column

Talons over the north

by Col. William Drennan
Deputy Commander for Operations

There is one aspect of the 64th FTW mission that is vitally important, yet relatively invisible to most people here at Reese. I'm talking about our three northern tier Accelerated Copilot Enrichment (ACE) detachments at Ellsworth AFB, S.D., Grand Forks AFB, N.D. and Mi-not AFB, N.D. We have 64th FTW T-38s and personnel (both PCS and TDY) at these three bases performing a vital mission in support of Strategic Air Command.

The ACE program is jointly managed by ATC and SAC. The purpose is to provide aircraft, instruction and flying time to SAC copilots so that they may gain flying experience not routinely available in the right seat of a B-52 or KC-135. The program enables SAC to "grow" a better aircraft commander of the future. It's been in existence for about a dozen years and has been a resounding success.

The 64th FTW ACE operation is run by Maj. Mark Rogers. He oversees the three detachments on a daily basis, keeping both the operations and maintenance sides on track.

Maj. Dave Hensley, fresh from U-2s at Beale AFB, Calif., recently took over the Ellsworth detachment. He and his Maintenance NCOIC, TSgt. Tommy L. Royer, are looking forward to moving into their new combined Ops-Maintenance facility.

Capt. Carl Byers, the new detachment commander at Grand Forks, just arrived from Vance AFB, Okla. where he was a T-38 flight examiner. He and MSgt. Ronald Lewis, the Maintenance NCOIC, head an organization operating out of an excellent facility, providing superb support to the 319th Bomb Wing.

Up at Minot AFB, Capt. Karen Daneu is finishing up her three year tour as the detachment commander. She is one of the few commanders anywhere who has received a rating by Command inspectors of "Outstanding" on the primary mission. Her Maintenance NCOIC, MSgt. Ken Huhtala, runs an equally tight ship. The 5th Bomb Wing is proud to have such fine representatives of Air Training Command on its real estate.

The detachment commanders and NCOICs enjoy the support of skilled instructor pilots and maintainers at all three locations. Although geographically separated from Reese, these three ACE detachments are very much a part of the 64th FTW and meet the same standards of excellence as the rest of the Wing. They're hacking a tough mission every day—up North.

The Brotherhood of Man

*It's not the color of your skin,
Or the church you worship in;
Ever since the world began,
We've been the Brotherhood of Man.*

*It's not your Nationality,
Good looks or personality;
It's not money, wealth and fame,
That gives meaning to the name.*

*Red and Yellow, Black and White,
Poor recluse and socialite;
Each one's a member of the band,
We call the Brotherhood of Man.*

*For respect and love we all have need,
When sad we cry, when cut we bleed;
In God's image who is up above,
We were created by His love.*

*Though there are times we disagree,
Remember we're still family;
Love one another at God's command,
And be the Brotherhood of Man.*

Stress is associated with change

by Lt. Col. Phillip S. Marzolino
Chief, Wing Safety Division

I've never met a person who got up in the morning and said, "I think I'll have an accident today." Everyone I've ever known, including myself, however, has found themselves in the situation of having an accident.

The causes of many of these accidents can be determined. The vast majority, however, are written off as carelessness or lack of attention.

Psychologists have studied these careless accidents and learned a great deal about our susceptibility of having one. The main factor that comes through again and again, is that an individual who is under some form of stress is more likely to have an accident than someone who is stress free.

Most of us think we know what stress is, or at least some of the more common examples: a death in the family; waiting on a promotion list; marriage or money problems; or the pressure to produce at work. However, psychologists point out that pleasant occurrences such as a recent promotion, marriage, the birth of a child, falling in love or the purchase of a new home, are just as stressful as the more negative examples.

The key is that stress is associated with any form of change in our lives. This stress takes a toll on our ability to concentrate on the task at hand, particularly when it is a familiar or simple task, and we become more likely to have an accident. Additionally, these stresses are additive and build up inside each of us.

Obviously, we can't just sit in our homes to avoid an accident because we've been through a period of change. We can help ourselves by recognizing that we may be more vulnerable and taking some common sense precautions.

First, approach each task methodically and plan each step in advance, looking for accident potential as you go along.

Second, accept the fact that your powers of concentration are lessened; break what you are doing into smaller bits and take frequent breaks between the steps. This will allow you to concentrate more on what you are doing.

Finally, when you recognize you are starting to make more than your normal share of mistakes, knock it off! This is a warning signal that you're on the verge of becoming another statistic.

We've seen an upswing of the careless type of accidents at Reese since the beginning of the year. I'm sure that many of these had individual stress somewhere in the background of the accident, if we just had the technology to accurately measure it. Hopefully, through individual attention, we'll be able to turn this trend around.

What is the meaning of life?

EDITOR'S NOTE: This commentary was written by members of the Chaplain Resource Board at Maxwell AFB, Ala.

What is the meaning of life? It's a pretty big question, but each of us asks it from time to time.

Our questions may be worded differently: How can I be happy? Should I marry this guy? What am I doing in basic training? How can I deal with this supervisor? Should I go to college? What will I do when I retire? Why didn't that fellow see the stop sign? Why did she have to die? The meaning is still the same.

We hear many cries for help, sometimes from a family-member, a roommate or a co-worker. Sadly, some never find the answers they need.

Among young Americans, suicide is the third leading cause of death. Each year 250,000 to 300,000 youngsters attempt suicide. Approximately 5,000 succeed. And as President Reagan reminded us recently, drug abuse in our country is of almost epidemic proportions.

But there are answers. Life can be, and is, meaningful, rich and full. The answers are to be found through believing in, and being committed to, something greater than ourselves.

Americans honor the principles of freedom: life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. The defenders of the Alamo understood that the things worth living for also are worth dying for. Willingly they stood their ground, and fought and died for the cause of freedom. Their deaths testify that life has meaning.

As members of families and communities, we put the needs of others ahead of our own. We get up when the baby cries at night; we change a flat tire for the stranger who needs help; we work long hours and spend the money on others—not because we have to, but because we want to.

And as people of faith, we place our ultimate trust in God, who has created us and preserves us. As Abraham Lincoln said, "It is difficult to make a man miserable while he feels he is worthy of himself and claims kinship to the great God who made him."

The answers are not always simple, but they can be found—found in living, caring and believing. This year's Air Force Chaplain Service theme—Called to Excellence—includes the emphasis "living in search of meaning." Our faith reminds us that the road to a meaningful life is not a road we must travel alone.

BLACK HISTORY

M · O · N · T · H

This weekend concludes the events scheduled on base in celebration of Black History Month.

Tonight, the Black History Week Sweetheart Ball will be held at the Enlisted Open Mess. Tickets are $6.50, and may be obtained from Capt. Karen Evans, Ext. 3593, or Mr. Phil Thierry at Ext. 3640. The evening begins at 6 p.m., dinner will be served at 7 p.m., dancing begins at 8 p.m. The dress for the evening is semi-formal.

Tomorrow, the Hot Shot Basketball Tournament begins at noon at the Physical Fitness Center. All ages are welcome to participate, trophies will be awarded to first and second place winners.

Reese Hospital personnel will also be on hand Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Base Exchange Lobby for hypertension screening.

All events are open to the public. For more information, contact Capt. Karen Evans, Ext. 3593.

Kudos to...

1st Lts. Brian Gerrity and Scott Russell for enthusiasm and dedication to AF-ROTC Detachment 940 during the ATC Pilot Visitation Program. Both are outstanding role models and performed as superb representatives of Air Training Command...Col. Nicholas Costa, commander, Det. 940, Laramie, Wyo.

Major. C.L. Rufus Hutchinson for recent completion of the Air War College Correspondence Program. A superb achievement while fulfilling the demands of one's full-time job...Maj. Gen. Harold Todd, commandant, Air War College, Maxwell AFB, Ala.

News Briefs

Roundup deadline today

Due to the holiday Monday, the Roundup deadline has been moved back. All information must be submitted to Public Affairs, Ext. 3843, by 4 p.m. today, unless coordinated through the Roundup staff.

Pilot commitment to increase

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—The Air Force is establishing an active duty service commitment of eight years for pilots to increase force stability and experience. The new commitment will apply to those officers who enter Undergraduate Pilot Training on or after June 15, 1988, and will begin when training is completed.

This change will follow the June implementation of a seven-year pilot commitment. Together, these increased commitments will enhance readiness by providing a more experienced, stable pilot force while reducing total personnel costs. The new commitment will be outlined in forthcoming changes to AFR 36-51 and AFR 51-4.

Early release program dates

The Air Force has announced an early release program for enlisted personnel assigned in the CONUS with less than 16 years of service who have a Date of Separation from April 1, 1987, to Sept. 30, 1987—inclusive. This program is necessary to help reduce the shortage in the military pay account.

In addition, the Delayed Reenlistment Program has been suspended for all first term airmen who separate April 1, 1987 or later. For more information, contact CBPO Separations Unit, Ext. 3420, or the Base Career Advisor, Ext. 3168.

Bake sale/car wash sponsored

The Air Force Sergeants Association will sponsor a bake sale tomorrow at the Base Exchange, and a car wash adjacent to the Package Store at the same time.

Lost and found

The Security Police Investigation Section has the following lost or abandoned property: One female's wristwatch. Contact the Investigation Section, Ext. 3999.

Member maintains certificates

The requirements to file Air Forms 1256, Training Certificates in the Unit Personnel Record group has been eliminated. It is now the member's responsibility to maintain the training certificates in their own personal files. However, this does not apply for Professional Military Education certificates.

Members retiring or separating must also provide the Separations Unit with these forms to ensure they are listed on the member's DD Form 214, Certificate of Discharge or Release from Active Duty.

Pets in Reese Village

Reese Village residents are reminded that pets cannot be tied to any government property. This includes clothesline poles and trees. Also, pets must be under their owner's control at all times. Pets are to be kept at the back of the house only and base regulations prohibits more than two pets per household.

Military Comptrollers meet

The Reese Windmill Chapter of the American Society of Military Comptrollers will meet Tuesday in the reception room of the Officer's Open Mess. General business will be conducted and all members and interested personnel are encouraged to attend.

All night disco

The Mathis Recreation Center hosts an all night disco Feb. 21 from midnight to 5 a.m. The deejay will be Big Al and admission is $2.

Second vehicle authorized

All personnel who are separating or retiring are now authorized a second Privately Owned Conveyance—POC—in conjunction with separation or retirement. Authorization for second POC is requested by the member and approved by the CBPO.

All personnel interested in separating from active duty and returning to college should be aware that a recently approved MIP now allows members to apply for this release up to 90 days versus the former 30-day rule.

Youth Center dance tomorrow

The Youth Center is sponsoring a Valentines Dance tomorrow. The cost is $1 for members and $2 for non-members. Times are: 7-9 p.m. for pre-teens; 9-11 p.m. for teens. There will be plenty of door prizes and a dance contest. For more information, contact the Youth Center, Ext. 3820.

Fertilizer issued

Fertilizer will be issued to Reese Village residents Feb. 23-27, 8 a.m.-12:00 p.m. at Bldg. 2005 (located near the Sewage Treatment Plant).

Air Force Association meets

The quarterly meeting of the Air Force Association will be held Tuesday, at the officer's club. The meeting starts with a social hour at 6:30 p.m.

Dr. Bernhard T. Mitemeyer, the executive vice president for the Texas Tech University Health Science Center since November 1986 will be the featured speaker. He retired in February 1985 with the rank of Lieutenant General after 28 years service, the last four as the Army's Surgeon General.

Dress is coat and tie. Dinner will be rib eye steak and cost is $10. Make reservations to 1st Lt. Scott Poppleton by noon, Feb. 16 at 796-0472, or Ext. 3354.

Reese Manor Grand Opening set

Mr. Jim Dickson (right) receives his MIP award from Col. James McIntyre. Dickson suggested that casters be used on appliances in Base Housing to protect flooring, which resulted in a tangible savings of $2,083. He works in the Housing Management Branch.

Erleene Stolk receives an award for a MIP suggestion to eliminate the requirement for separate letters of justification on brand name items from Col. James McIntyre.

by Capt. Sandra Gellner

The grand opening for Reese Manor, formerly known as the MIP lodge, is scheduled for Feb. 20, at 1:30 p.m.

Several dignitaries will be joining Reese personnel for the occasion, which will be presided over by the father of the Model Installation Program, Mr. Bob Stone, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Installations. Also in attendance will be Brig. Gen. John Jackson, Jr., ATC Director of Plans, and Col. Ty Parker, Air Training Command Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff for Engineering and Services, who preceded Lt. Col. Paul Baker as Reese AFB's Civil Engineer.

"Reese Manor is here for your use and enjoyment," said Col. Mark Lillard, base commander. "This is your lodge. After all, it was built with money saved from your great MIP ideas. Everyone is welcome to join in the festivities."

Reese Manor can be reserved for private parties or meetings for groups up to a maximum of 50 persons by filling out a reservation form available at the Mathis Recreation Center. A $30 deposit is required for private parties. The deposit will be returned if everything is cleaned up and accounted for. A detailed list of the dos and don'ts will be available when reserving Reese Manor.

Reese Manor, Bldg. 735, located east of the Base Exchange, is particularly well suited for organizational meetings of groups such as the CGOC, NCOAGA, and wives' clubs, but is also suited for promotion and birthday parties, awards and recognition ceremonies and seminars.

"Visit the Mathis Recreation Center to reserve Reese Manor for your special function," said Lillard.

Education priority in '87

by Jeffrey Wilbur
Education Services Officer

In many ways, springtime is for new beginnings. That can also apply to you and a new or renewed interest in the many educational opportunities available at Reese.

The spring term for all programs will begin during the next few weeks. Over 60 courses will be offered, ranging from beginning college English to a graduate level management program. Four institutions are now represented at Reese. All have full-time staffs here to assist you.

South Plains College (SPC)

Over 45 courses will be offered. Included in this total are classes specifically required to be used toward your Associate degree with the Community College of the Air Force. Of particular interest is the Micro-Computer Technology program with four courses scheduled. The SPC computer lab at Reese is one of the finest in the Air Force—with 15 IBM compatible computers available. Registration will be Feb. 18-19. Classes begin Feb. 23.

Houston Community College (HCC)

Our newest programs are available from Houston Community College (HCC). Two different routes to earning your FAA Airframe and Powerplant license can be pursued. The "Part 65" program is for those who have had military or civilian aviation maintenance experience, while the "Part 147" program would be the one for those without experience. If you've ever thought about qualifying for the FAA license, now is the time to start.

Wayland Baptist University (WBU)

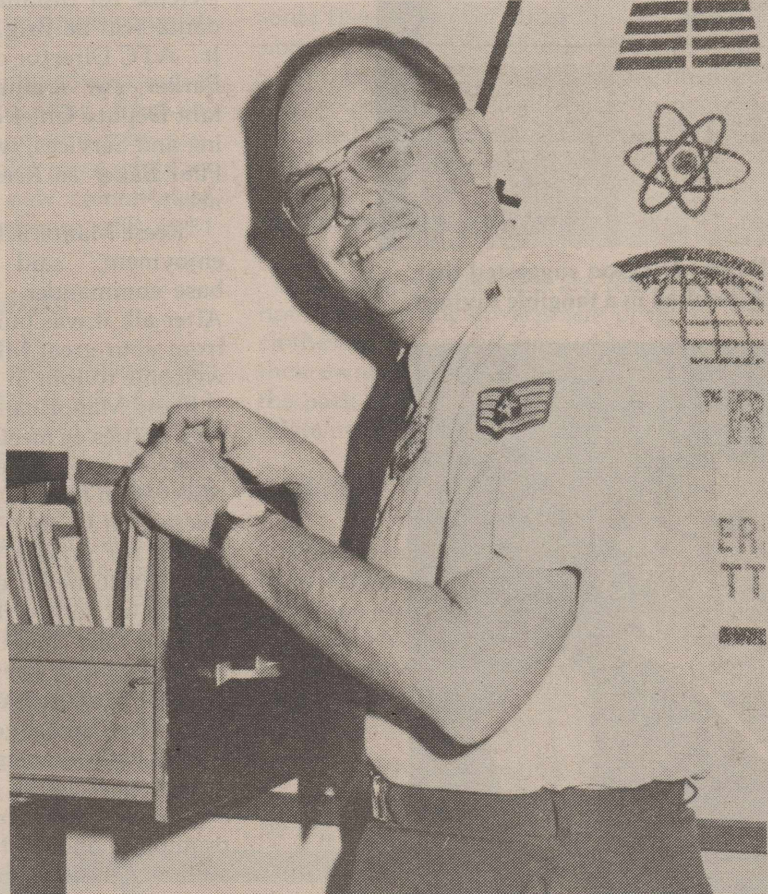

Courses toward your Bachelor's degree are offered. If you have an Associate degree, you may be closer than you think to completing this program. Courses available are primarily in the business and management area. They meet one night per week during the twelve-week terms.

Houston Baptist University (HBU)

This unique weekend program offers a Master of Science in Human Resources Management. The total program can be completed in 18 months.

Courses this term include Organizational Development, and Organizational Law.

For further information regarding all programs and registration times and dates, contact the Education Center, Bldg. 920, Room 139, Ext. 3634.

New superintendent selected

by SSgt. Jim Bourns
 Public Affairs Representative, FTD

The Field Training Detachment 429 has announced the recent selection of MSgt. Jerry W. Williams as the new superintendent for FTD 429.

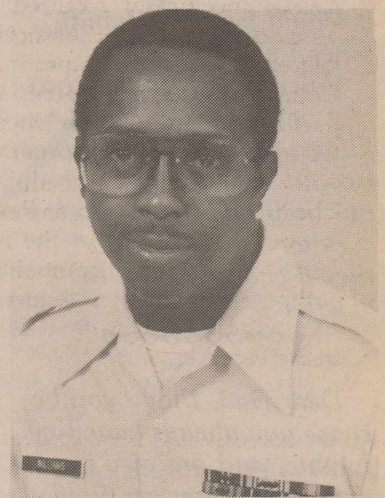

Sergeant Williams' previous assignment was Flight Supervisor/Inspector.

As the new superintendent, he will ensure that all instructors have the qualifications, technical proficiency and that all courses offered by the detachment meet or exceed Air Training Command standards.

Williams has a master instructor rating and has been teaching here since March 1982. Prior to being selected for instructor duty, he was assigned to the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron.

As the detachment's new superintendent, Williams' responsibilities are recruiting and interviewing personnel who are interested in becoming a maintenance instructor. Sergeant Williams invites anyone who is interested to come by, or call Ext. 3121.

Family members are warriors too

By Floy Westermeier
Scott AFB, Ill.

Project Warrior has become part of the Air Force vocabulary, but it may not have a definable meaning to some of the Air Force family.

It's most frequently explained as a concept stressing the need to think about where we are, how we got here and where we are going in military power.

Project Warrior representatives tell us we need to improve attitudes, identify issues and expand our understanding of war theory and practice.

Before the military community will, or perhaps can, take time to prepare mentally, physically and emotionally for a war that may never come—and we hope it doesn't—it must first establish a secure and comfortable home base.

The home has been the pivot for American families. Home has historically been the safe retreat for the nomadic military. And because the military family is a transient segment, it generally is a self-contained community.

Home, therefore, is part of the beginning of Project Warrior.

The family member's role in Project Warrior is one of understanding and support for the military member. From the time when the family tramped behind the armies to the present, they have kept the home intact.

Sometimes families are called upon to make sacrifices because they too must "reenlist" when the military member renews his or her commitment. The spouse must often take a dual role as both parents because the military member is away from home for varying lengths of time.

Sometimes, too, the families may not even know where the military person is. They exist with a phone number for comfort, a number which is only the first step in a series of relaying of messages. These spouses recognize the need for family and military unity. They are as dedicated to the preservation of freedom as the soldier who may someday lay down his life for that dedication.

Military families, no longer passive dependents, have become active and influential lobbyists for family issues. They are volunteers on base, in the local communities, at schools and at churches.

Working family members help ease financial burdens that might otherwise distract the military member from the mission. Most frequently, the working spouse tailors his or her job around the family's commitment to the military profession.

No matter how often these families have to move, they always establish new roots and rebuild the home.

This dedication to purpose and unity, this willingness to expand family horizons reflect the very commitment Project Warrior teaches.

"EXERCISE—EXERCISE—EXERCISE—We have a simulated T-38 crash on the south end of the runway..." came the dispatchers call over the radio for all fire department vehicles to respond.

The quarterly egress exercise, performed by all fire protection operational personnel consists of the physical removal of aircrew members from an aircraft in a troubled situation.

The object of the exercise is to gain entry to the aircraft, then perform a shut down of engines, securing of ejection seats and the removal of crew members.

Extraction time for crew members is the most important aspect of the exercise. In a real life situation, there is no room for error. The average extraction time for Reese personnel from the time of arrival at the site is 30-40 seconds.

Crew members participating in this exercise are 2nd Lt. Angel Velazquez from the 35th Flying Training Squadron and 2nd Lt. Colleen Warwick from the 54th FTS.

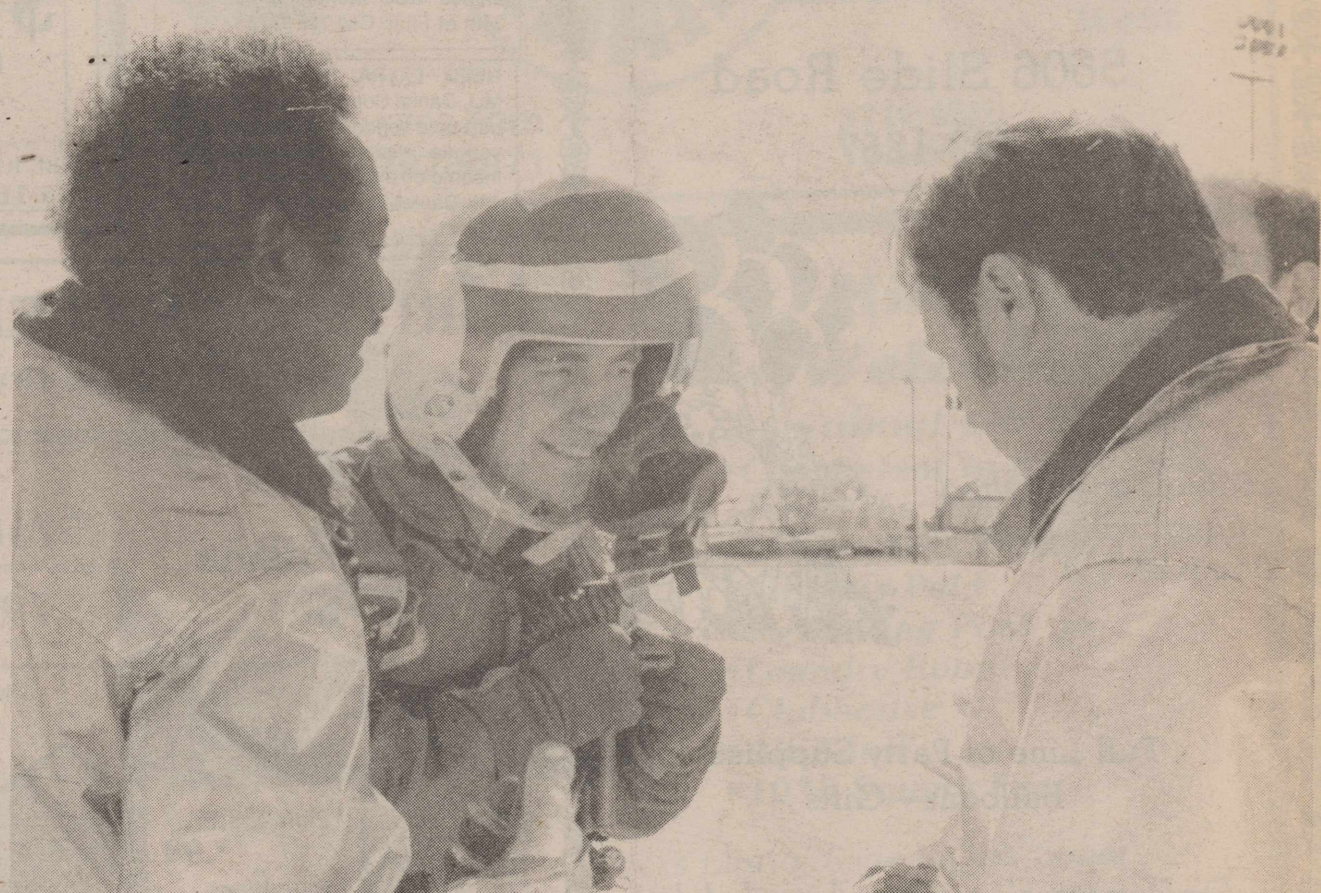

31 seconds

...into the exercise, crew members are lifted from the cockpit.

35 seconds

...during the final moments of the exercise, the crew members are carried to safety.

Exercise complete

Lollipops for kids

by A1C Robin Reams
Staff Writer, Roundup

The Greater Lubbock Chapter of The Retired Officers Association (TROA) has been providing lollipops to the Immunization Clinic at the Reese Hospital for sometime now. Retired Navy Capt. John Regland took advantage of a recent Well Baby Clinic Day to hand out the lollipops. Ragland emphasized, "We love our kids at Reese. We are happy to put a good taste in their mouth following their immunization."

According to the President of the Greater Lubbock Chapter of TROA retired Air Force Colonel Harold Womack, "We are proud to be a part of the Reese Community. Our project, Lollipops for Kids, is just one of many projects that we have participated in at Reese through the years," he added.

All officers, including active duty are welcome to join the chapter in its meeting held the first Tuesday evening of each month. For more information, call John Ragland, 799-0687, retired Army Major Haskell Taylor 799-6438, or retired Air Force Colonel Haynes Baumgardner 792-6719.

Instructor gets master rating

by A1C Robin Reams
Staff Writer, Roundup

SSgt. Cynthia Lewis, a T-38 maintenance instructor assigned to Field Training Detachment 429 has received a Master Instructor rating.

Some of the requirements that Sergeant Lewis needed to obtain her Master Instructor rating were: Earning a minimum of 40 college credits, course development, Professional Military Education, and in house Field Training Detachment training.

Prior to being an aircraft instructor, Sergeant Lewis was assigned to the 4th Organizational Maintenance Squadron.

SSgt. Cynthia F. Lewis receives her certificate from MSgt. Roger A. Hulslander.

Health alertGift that lasts a lifetimeby Sgt. Brent Coleman
USAF Hospital-Reese

The words "Blood Drive" can mean different things to different people. To some, it is the opportunity to help save a life, while to others, those words bring on a fear of the unknown.

Did you know that, nationwide, only three-six percent of the population donate blood used by all of us, and, at one time or another, over 60 percent of the population will need blood or blood products to stay alive. Those two facts alone are staggering. The hospitals here in the Lubbock area use, on the average, 100 units of blood every day, seven days a week, 365 days a year. As many as 15 units of blood are needed before an open-heart operation even gets started. With these few facts it is clear to see the need for everyone to give blood.

Some of the reasons people do not donate blood can be easily resolved. Some people may say "I already gave." Well that's great but everyone is eligible to donate every eight weeks. Others may say, "I can't stand the sight of blood" or "I hate needles." You do not have to watch the blood being taken and if you like needles, you may be a little weird. One reason I hear frequently is "I need all the blood I have." The fact is that your body will replace the fluid in several hours and the cells will be replaced in a day or so.

Everyone now is saying that donating blood will give you AIDS. This is simply not the case. No one can get AIDS, or any other disease, by donating blood. In fact, you are given a mini-physical examination before your blood is drawn. Several details are checked to make sure you are healthy enough to donate. Your pulse, temperature, and blood pressure is taken. You are then asked a few questions about your medical history and given a test for anemia.

I hope you think about this the next time you hear of a blood drive here at Reese or somewhere else. There is no substitute for blood. Nothing can be manufactured to do all the things that human blood can do. It is essential to life. I saw a sign once that said: "Blood is like a parachute, if its not there when you need it, you will never need it again." Please, give the gift that can last a lifetime, give blood.

Bottles hazardous to child's health

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Reese Dental Clinic brings you this article in observance of National Childrens Dental Health Month. It is the second in a series of four.

Most parents don't realize that a baby's teeth are susceptible to decay as soon as they erupt. Nursing bottle decay is a serious dental condition that can destroy the teeth of an infant or young child. The teeth most likely to be damaged are the upper front teeth, the ones that make a difference in a child's smile, but other teeth may also be affected.

Nursing bottle decay is caused by the exposure of a child's teeth for long periods of time to liquids containing sugars, such as milk, formula, fruit juice, and other sweet liquids. The sugars in these liquids are used as an energy source by the bacteria in plaque, the thin, invisible deposit that constantly forms on everyone's teeth. In the process, the bacteria produce acids that attack tooth enamel, eventually leading to decay.

All types of sugars can cause the bacteria in plaque to produce acids. However, it's not just what goes into the child's bottle that causes nursing bottle mouth, but how often and for how long a time the child's teeth are exposed to decay-causing acids.

Allowing a child to fall asleep with a bottle at naps or bedtime can do serious damage to the teeth over time. During sleep, the flow of saliva decreases, allowing the liquids in the nursing bottle to pool around the child's teeth for extended periods. This can lead to prolonged acid attacks on the teeth.

When putting your baby to bed, use only water in the bottle, or encourage your child to accept a clean pacifier. Infants should be taught to drink from a cup as they approach their first birthday. It's particularly important that if they are given juice it be offered from a cup, because the natural sweetness of juice makes it a favorite beverage. By using a cup instead of a bottle, a baby has less exposure of the teeth to the acids that can lead to decay.

Parents can protect a young child's teeth in a variety of ways. Before the teeth erupt, wipe the gums with a damp clean cloth or gauze pad after feeding. As soon as the teeth come in, in addition to wiping them off with a damp washcloth or gauze, you can brush the teeth for the child. If your community water supply is not fluoridated, ask your dentist about the use of fluoride supplements for your child. Dental visits should be started near the child's first birthday.

Providing only healthful snacks such as raw vegetables, nuts, peanut butter (without sugar), cheese, and plain (not flavored) yogurt, will start your child out with nutritious eating habits necessary for good dental health.

And don't forget to set a good example for your child by brushing and flossing your own teeth daily. Remember, most children start out with strong healthy teeth. With your help, they'll stay that way.

Honor Guard activities

The Reese Honor Guard will perform at the Sweetheart Ball this Saturday at the Enlisted Open Mess.

The group will post the colors for the Air Force Association banquet on Tuesday, and on Wednesday they will appear at the National Prayer Breakfast.

Both events will be held at the Officer's Open Mess.

The Honor Guard will also provide a demonstration of military honors to a troop of local Boy Scouts Thursday.

In past weeks the Honor Guard has participated in two funerals, the 3500th Mission Support Squadron Change of Command ceremony and the 64th Air Base Group assumption of command. They also were on hand at the monthly NCO status ceremony at the Enlisted Open Mess Jan. 30 to post colors, and then participated in the NCO Leadership School graduation Feb. 6.

Fatigues made that way

HEADQUARTERS, USAF—The Air Force Uniform Board (AFUB) and Military Clothing Sales Stores (MCSS) management received persistent complaints concerning fabric shading inconsistencies and poor fit of the fatigue uniform (0G507). Officials said shading inconsistencies stem from a combination of factors; the perma-press finish selected for durability and crisp appearance, the natural cotton fibers chosen for comfort, and the economical dye process used all contribute to less color fastness in this uniform.

Supervisors should recognize that neat, clean pressed fatigues satisfy appearance standards for the utility uniform and that shading discrepancies can be expected.

Officials offered a few suggestions for the care of the uniform:

- Fatigue uniforms should not be washed in extremely hot water because hot water is the method by which fatigue fabric is dyed and can contribute to the reversal of this process.
- If practical, shirts and trousers should be washed together.
- Ironing has no impact on color fastness and commercial spot removals, used in moderation, will not detract from color or appearance.

Officials added that the Aeronautical Systems Division is exploring fabric alternatives, but it is unlikely that fabric used in the utility uniforms can improve appreciably without accompanying price increases.

Aerobics is for everyone

by SSgt. Randy Pratt
Physical Fitness Specialist

There are a number of things real men don't do. We're told they don't eat quiche, they certainly don't wear tutus, and until recently, they didn't go to aerobic classes.

But times change. A recent survey by the American Fitness and Aerobic Association (AFAA) found that a third of the average aerobic class is male, up from only about 12 percent in 1983.

In fact, 14 percent of American men took an aerobic class at least once last year. There is even a new, Houston based organization, called 'Real Men Do Aerobics,' dedicated to the proposition that all men are created able to stretch and tone.

Attitudes may be changing partly because men now have good role models. Professional basketball players Moses Malone and Julius Irving have helped to popularize aerobic dance. A study by 'Real Men Do Aerobics' suggests that many men use their classes to improve their performance in other sports and to round out their fitness regimen. Men are using aerobics more as a cross-training alternative. Say, for example, that a male triathlete runs, bikes and swims. Aerobics will help him improve flexibility and coordination. Even world class champion bodybuilders attend aerobics classes to dissolve fat and attain that "cut look" before competitions.

A survey of men who participate in aerobics classes found that men are less interested in hip and leg work, and are more interested in abdominal and upper-body conditioning. Attending aerobics classes three times a week can do wonders in building calves and quadriceps (thighs). But, the real benefits from aerobics are flexibility and cardiovascular fitness.

The chief limitation for men, of course, is flexibility. Exercises that may be difficult for women are nearly impossible for men. In addition, many men feel uncomfortable with intricate dance moves, either because they can't do them or feel foolish. Complicated dance steps are difficult for us guys, and so are some of the flexibility exercises. We try to de-emphasize dance steps in our aerobics classes, and lean towards more calisthenics and strength exercises which most men can do with little practice. However, the majority of our participants are women with as little as ten percent of each class comprised of men.

Come on, guys! Get with it! Aerobics is not just for women any more. Fitness is for everyone. The Reese Fitness Center offers 14 free aerobics classes per week. For more information on locations and times, call SSgt. Randy Pratt, Ext. 6020.

HIGH RIDING STYLE—All Mazda B2600 4 x 4 models, including the SE-5 (above) and Standard (below), have 8.2 inches of ground clearance, which comes in handy when the off-roading gets rough. Standard skid plates on the oil pan and transfer case help protect the undercarriage from rock damage.
