GAINED 516 PER CENT.

Haskell County Leads by Big Odds in Population Gain.

In the special report of the census bureau at Washington, D C., giving the population of eleven Texas counties Haskell county more than doubles any other county in the per cent. of its gain in population. The figures are:

Haskell county population census of 1910, 16,249 against 2,637 in 1900, being a gain of more than 516 per cent.

The next largest gain is by Jones county, which shows an increase of 244 per cent in ten years. The next largest gain is 32 per cent in Liberty county. Delta, an extreme East Texas county them were fed at the tables the candidates had no public lost 4½ per cent.

"We knew it!" Knew that Haskell was the Cap-Sheaf of the tallest stack in the biggest field (Texas) on the American continent. It was bound to be so, for when people began to look out this way for homes and got their eyes on the smooth, broad, bounding, fertile prairies of Haskell county they knew they had found IT and they just had to stay and they sent word back to the old neighbors and kin folks that they had lit in Cannan, the land of promise, and they are here making good with more a-coming.

"Making good?" Sure they are, when one farmer (W. E. Underwood) showed at the Haskell fair last fall sixty-nine varieties of staple products from his farm, garden and orchard, all grown by him that year! No country can show a greater capacity for diversification. And Haskell town, her county seat, has been doing things too. She was bound to, being the heart and center of such a country. guests. She leads West Texas towns, in fact most towns anywhere near her size in the state in the number of her public utilities and industrial enterprise-such as water works, fire department, sewerage, electric lights, telephone system, ice factory, oil mill, creamery, broom factory, ice cream factory, bottling works, electric supply house, street railway, etc.

Come and see us and we'll show you all of these and more.

OLD-AGE PENSIONS.

The expected has happened. A bill For old-age pensions has been introduced in the house of representatives. The introducer is William Bauchop Wilson of Blossburg, Pa., former coal miner, former international secretary of the United Mine Workers of America, who now makes a living for his ten children on a farm, when he is not lucky enough to be drawing a representative's salary, says Brooklyn Eagle. The provisions of the bill give $120 a year to each man or woman try. How can it expect a person over sixty-five years old to live comfortably on $120 a year? ## INSURANCE RATES ARE REDUCED Companies Have Thirty Days in Which to File Their Contest.

Austin, Texas: The Texas State Fire Rating Board made expected reductions and announced its findings. Four classes of rates are reduced and the aggregate is no small amount. The decision was reached in the office of Commissioner of Insurance Hawkins, who, while he had no vote as long as the other two members agreed, acquiesed to and concurred in the action taken. Apparently the session was harmonious and the former belligerents were as docile and friendly as could be. The order of the board as given out follows:

"Upon consideration of the evidence before this board relative to the general basis schedules and the specific schedules of rates which have heretofore been filed by fire insurance companies. respectively, with this board, and the application of such rates to insurable property in this State, it is considered, adjudged and held by this board that, except as hereinafter stated, and at least in the respects and to the extent hereinafter indicated, such rates are excessive and unreasonably high. It is therefore hereby ordered and directed by this board that, except as hereinafter stated each of said fire insurance companies shall, on or before Tuesday. the 5th day of July, 1910, publish and file with this board, in accordance with law, to become effective upon the date of such filing, such amendments of its aforesaid general basis schedules as shall provide for reductions of rates thereunder as follows, to-wit:

In addition to its regularcrew it carried a pilot engineer of the Chicago, Hamilton and Dayton road, who was practically in charge of the train.

AEROPLANES IN TIME OF WAR

Tests Demonstrate These Are Not Successful.

Hammondsports, N. Y .: That theaeroplane in its present state of development is far from being a satisfactory engine of war is the conclusion of Glenn H. Curtiss as a result of experiments in mimic bomb throwing which he has been conducting. The tests thus far, he says, have demonstrated two important points, first, that no aeroplane can be made into an efficient war machine until it is fitted for carrying two persons, one to act as pilot and attend to the motor, and the other to act as a gunner. Secondly, that the dropping of projectiles is a waste of ammunition, without a gun which can be aimed right from overhead and carry its missile to the target.

Rear Admiral Kimball's comment on, the test is as follows: "The present aeroplanes show many defects for war purposes. Lack of ability to operate in average weather at sea; signalling the approach by noise made Chief Justice U. S. ## IMPORTANT CHANGES COMING

Law May Be Passed Prohibiting Moving Pictures of Prize Fights In the State.

- Austin, July 6 .- There will be several important committee chairmanships in the House of Representatives vacant when the special session convenes, due to resignations of members since the adjournment of the regular session. Inasmuch as no one knows what the Governor will submit to the special session, no person can tell which committee will have the bills of importance to consider. The present speaker is Hon. John Marshall of Grayson county.

J. R. Bowman, private secretary to the Governor, was chairman of the public lands committee. He resigned upon accepting his present position. The senior member of the commission is Odom.

W. A. Trenckmann has removed from Austin county to the city of Austin, and gives up his membership. He was chairman of the insurance committee, with Vaughan senior member.

E. C. Gaines, chairman of the banks and banking committee, has moved from Comanche county and lives in Austin. The senior member .s Cureton. .

C. H. Jenkins, of Brown County, has been made associate justice of the Third Court of Civil Appeals and leaves the chairmanship of the committee on reforms of civil and crim-

T. W. Masterson gives up the chairmanship of the commerce and manufacturers committee and Kellie is senior member.

The Governor submits as the first subject matter the repeal of the present fire rating insurance law and the enactment of another in its place. The personnel of the insurance committee in each house follows:

Senate: Hudspeth, who represented El Paso before the board and protests against the rates, chairman; Watson, Terrel of McLennan, Veale, Willacy, Sturgeon, Stokes, Mayfield, Senter, Hume, Alexander.

House: Treckmann (resigned), chaliman; Vaughan, Brown, Hill, Keeble, Reedy, Brockerson, Robertson of

It has been intimated that the Governor would submit the subject of liquor regulation measures, such as three or five-mile law, "quart" law, etc. The House Committee on liquor traffic follows: Canales, chairman; Currey, Robertson of Travis, Bell, Chaney, Crisp, Flourney, Pharr, Bartlett, German Schofield, Cathey, Nelson of Kaufman, Bogard, Boswell, Lea, Pearson, Perkins, Graham, O'Briant, Leach. The Senate committee of like jurisdiction is judiciary No. 2, constituted as follows: Harper, chairman; Hudspeth, Stakes, Watson, Sturgeon, Alexander, Greer, Murray, Senter, Cofer, Real.

Another public intimation is that the Governor will recommend the convocation of a constitutional convention so as to submit the prohibition amendments. The committee on constitutional amendments is as follows: House: Hill, chairman; Mason, Hamilton of Childress, Standifer, Munson, Crockett of Mitchell, Anderson, Buchanan, Branch, Crave, Dalby, Flourney, Gaines, Lee, Porter, Rayburn of Veale, chairman; Cofer, Perkins, Watson, Stokes, Thomas, Masterson, Wein- and commercial fertilizers. ert, Brachfield.

Opposes Moving Pictures. Austin: One of the first measures that Gov. Campbell will submit to the special session of the Legislature, which will convene here in two weeks, will be prohibitive of moving picture exhibitions displaying the scene of the Jeffries-Johnson prise fight. Gov. Campbell, in conversation, has made it clear that he was apprehensive of a demoralizing effect by the exhibition of the pictures in Texas.

Texas Wants Postal Banks. Washington: Among the recent applications for the establishment of postal banks is one from the Chamber of Commerce of Port Arthur, Tex. A letter has also been received from a banker of Corpus Christi, asking that his bank be designated a depository for postal bank funds at Corpus Christi. The postal savings bank plan is finding strong endorsement from the directories of National banks in states which have state guaranty bank laws, judging from several letters recently received by Postmaster General Hitchcock.

Brewnsville Hearing Closed. Washington: Capt. Samuel P. Lyons' court-martial on charge growing out of the night attack upon Brownsville, Texas, by negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth infantry, has closed, after the testimony of Mayor Combe of the Texas town, was heard

The verdict will be announced later. The defendant officer was charged with falsifying his ammunition records to conceal cartridges which it te alleged the men of his company used in the shooting.

AIM OF FARMERS' SOCIETIES

Plan to Place Practical Object Lesson Before Masses, Illustrating Best Methods.

(By S. A. KNAPP.)

The aim of the Farmers' Co-operative Demonstration Work is to place a practical object lesson before the even our most enthusiastic members. farm masses, illustrating the best and most profitable methods of pro- give out ducing the standard farm crops, and lie that portion of the report which to secure such active participation in the demonstrations as to prove that the farmers can make a much larger average annual crop and secure a greater return for their toil.

This work shows also that there is no necessity for the general deterioration of farms and the too common poverty of the rural masses.

Briefly stated, the salient features of the rural lessons given by the farm demonstration work are as follows:

1. Better drainage of the soil. 2. A deeper and more thoroughly pulverized seed bed; deep fall breaking (plowing) with implements that will not bring the subsoil to the sur-

3. The use of seed of the best variety, intelligently selected and carefully stored. 4. In cultivated crops, giving the rows and the plants in the rows a space suited to the plant, the soil and the climate. 5. Intensive tillage during the growing period of the crops. 6. The importance of a high content Erath, Turner, Lawson, Fant. Senate: of humus in the soil; the use of legumes, barnyard manure, farm refuse

> 7. The value of crop rotation and a winter covering on southern farms. 8. The accomplishing of more work in a day by each laborer by using more horsepower and better implements.

9. The importance of increasing the farm stock to the extent of utilizing all the waste products and idle lands of the farm.

10. The production of all food required for the men and animals on the

11. The keeping of an account with each farm product, in order to know from which the gain or loss arises.

The demonstration work is conducted by a special agent who reports directly to the chief of the bureau of plant industry at Washington, D. C. The work now covers portions of 12 states, employing 375 traveling agents, and has many demonstration

The average farmer may continue for years to believe he has the best seed of the several crops he produces unless he is brought into direct public comparison and competition with other farmers, not in an exhibition where prizes are to be awarded, but in a mere exhibit of what the farmers expect to plant without any assorting.

REPORT OF ST. LOUIS MEETING

President Barrett Summarizes Mean-Ing and Prophecy of Recent Conference of Farmers.

President Charles S. Barrett of the armer Union and Educational assoclation, in a communication to the officers and members of that organization, summarizes the meaning and prophecy of the recent St. Louis national conference as follows:

The national rally of the farmers of America, held May 2-8 in St. Louis under the auspices of the Farmers' union was in effect a mammoth educational chautauqua which has never been exceeded, even aproached, by any gathering of farmers' chautauqua held for farmers in American history. In diversity of program, in number of speakers of national prominence and wide information, in freedom of expression and complete representation of bona fide farmers, I do not remember in my broad personal experience any previous assembly that even remotely deserves to rank with this one.

Every shade of opinion was represented, and every speaker had full swing for the presentation of his

Collectively the week was like nothing more than like a gigantic lecture course, in which each number was taken care of by qualified experts and the audiences to waich were among the cream of the intelligent and independent and thinking producers of the nation.

In this one week we obtained data and instructive information that we would have otherwise sought vainly ly stimulative to creative thought and action among the American farmers, will be shortly issued in book form, and circulated freely throughout the country. There will be a copy for every member or non-member who wants one.

Despite misleading and perverted reports sent out, the order during the entire week was perfect and the conduct a credit to the great organization under whose auspices the convention was held. No previous meeting of the Farmers' union has been pays a premium on knowledge, but it made the victim of so many untrue, unfair and misleading accounts by the press of the city in which it was held. A political tinge, in flat contradiction to facts, was given each report, the says nothing about it than all the seeming effort being to bolster up "honest Johns" in the neighborhood. sensation rather than to reflect accurately the proceedings of the week.

Reports made by the various committees were extremely enlightened, especially that from one committee delegated to ascertain by a census actual work being accomplished by the union in the individual states. Their aggregate findings indicate that practical enterprises and co-operative ventures are multiplying in a manner actually challenging the credulity of In a few days, it is my intention to demonstrates concrete evidence of the spread of the business of co-operative

The local and national press has had much to say regarding the Farmers' union entering partisan politics. There is absolutely no truth, not even the ground for speculation, in either rumors or reports. I have so often and forcibly reiterated that the Farmers' union shall not be embroiled in partisan politics, so long at least as I am president, that it seems needless for me to re-affirm that attitude. But my ceaseless anxiety to conclusively discredit such vague or outright rumors, leads me to again warn the membership that any story purporting to align this organization with a partisan movement is unauthorized, untrue and merits instant repudiation by every member having the welfare of the order at heart.

One of the most important features of the meeting was the overwhelming percentage of bona fide farmers present, and actively engaging in discussions. All but eight American states and territories were represented, and we had, as well, a large number of non-members as guests.

In the latter connection, and as direct result of the St. Louis rally, calls for organizers are coming from Rhode Island, New York and the Dakotas. In the former two states, especially, it is gratifying to know that Farmers' union sentiment is growing steadily. Some of the most intelligent, wealthiest and amongst the most progressive farmers live in that portion of America, and we will never be contented until we have strong organizations there, giving the finishing touch to the national tone of the organization.

At the last analysis, it is encouraging to reflect that every one left St. Louis well satisfied. I never saw a more amicable or harmonious meeting, or one in which the spirit of fraternity was stronger developed. It is notable, too, that each single development demonstrated that the American farmer is awake to his rights and more determined to enforce them than at any period in recent years.

Chicken Pests.

Chickens are attacked by a number of parasitic insects and nits, the most common being various species of chicken lice, chicken fleas and ticks. These pests when present in great numbers are a great drain upon energy of the birds. Capt. N. H. Chittenden at 70, Takes Long "Hike" Every Morning-Has Many Friends Among the Indians.

New York.-The sight of a gaunt and bearded man in sombrero and corduroys who daily turns in his tracks at the New Jersey end of the Fort Lee ferry, has awakened the curiosity of dwellers in the vicinity.

The appearance of the man is decidedly "Wild West," and the youngsters near the ferry who are astir at about seven o'clock mornings have had visions of redskins and buffaloes lately when the stranger has rewarded their vigils by coming on the

The western-looking one is Capt Newton H. Chittenden, the first explorer of the Queen Charlotte Islands, who although 70 years old, walks from Alpine, N. J., to the ferry, a distance of 13 miles, regularly before eight o'clock each morning as a "constitutional."

That Captain Chittenden deserves a nicely ornamented spot in the walkers' section of the Hall of Fame along with Colonel Weston and Mayor Gaynor is evident from his exploits.

In 1888 and 1889 he broke the record for long walks by making a continuous journey on foot diagonally across the continent from the Pacific to the Gulf of Mexico, a distance, including several hundred miles of side expeditions, amounting to 3,350 miles. He was accompanied by a pack burro.

The trip was for archeological and Chittenden considers it one of the severest of his career. He estimates that he dragged his donkey more than five miles through the overflowed bottoms of Louisiana.

Of the more than 200,000 miles which Captain Chittenden has covered in his 40 years of traveling, 25,000 miles have been on foot. Testimony of his researches are found in most of the famous museums in this country and in museums of Canada and England as well.

Among American pathfinders it is said that this explorer has devoted more severe labor to the accomplishment of his many expeditions than any other ten men of this country. His donations to museums have included many valuable relics and much data pertaining to the Indian tribes and prehistoric Americans.

Captain Chittenden has visited prac- in Washington. tically every Indian tribe on the continent and has lived with some of the distinguished old chiefs as long as six months, or a year. He has consequently become versed in several Indian languages. It is an interesting fact that, save on one or two occasions when protection from border rufflans demanded it, he never carried a weapon. Chief Edonsau of the Queen Charlotte tribe was Captain Chittenden's great friend. Poundmaker, chief of the Saskatchewan Crees, whom he visited during the Riel rebellion, was Jackson Park sanitarium for babies, another intimate. Others were American Horse, a great war chief of the Sioux; Red Cloud, Sitting Bull, Two Strike, and the noted Chief Joseph, who came to see him in camp on the Spokane river in the early days.

In the winter of 1908-'09 upon visiting Chief Manuel of the Cahuilla and Serano Indians of southern California he was invited to address the tribe at their flesta, and he remained in camp with them for 40 days.

As evidence of his pedestrian habits, Captain Chittenden in 1882, when provided with free transportation to and from the gold fields of Caribou, left the stage in the interior and proceeded 300 miles alone on foot among the various Indian tribes inhabiting that portion of British Columbia, Two years later, in the dead of winter, with the thermometer reaching 15 degrees below zero and the snow in places 15 feet deep, he walked alone over the mountains into the gold fields of Coeur d'Alene and then crossed the Bitter Root range into Montana a distance altogether of more than 300 miles.

Country roads are child's play to Captain Chittenden, whose pedestrianship has been devoted to rougher travel than that which his rivals have experienced. He attributes his unusual degree of endurance to inheritance and careful living. He has never smoked nor taken a drop of liquor, wine, or beer, and has not drunk a cup of tea or coffee in 40 years.

Its Usages.

Washington. - One of the most striking figures in Washington official life is "Princess" Kalanianaole, wife of the delegate from Hawaii. Since the election of "Prince Cupid," as he is popularly known, to congress, ten years ago, he and his wife have established a reputation for hospitality and have made a targe circle of friends.

"Princess" Kalanianaole, to give her the Hawaiian title, never fails to attract much attention at social functions. She is a fine type of Hawaiian womanhood and dresses sumptuously in the brilliant colors of which her countrymen are so fond. She is unusually tall and carries herself in the regal manner which is characteristic of her people. Princess Kalanianaole is fond of society and has readily adapted herself to Washington social conditions.

Before her marriage to the scion of Hawaiian royalty Princess Kalanianois was Elizabeth Kahanu Kaauwai, daughter of a native chilf of the island of Maui. Her marriage to "Prince Cupid," October 8, 1896, was the occasion of great rejoicing throughout the islands. Princess Kalanianaole was educated in English schools and took a finishing course in France. She is a thorough linguist, an artist of no small ability and an especially fine musician. She has been largely instrumental in creating vogue for Hawaiian music.

The native instrument of Hawaii, a variety of guitar which lends itself thnological research, and Captain readily to Kanaka folk music, is free of the pretty girl, "and," puckering quently heard in the drawing room of her forehead with an intellectual tour the fine residences in Massachusetts de force, "and laundry work."avenue maintained by the Kalanianaoles. Former Queen Lilliuokalani of Hawaii, the aunt of "Prince Cupid," is a much feted guest when she comes to visit her young relatives.

Princess Kalanianaole has a fine collection of native jewelry and curios. Among them is the war helmet of the national hero. Kalakaua I. Some bits of pottery which she possesses are of untold antiquity and are highly valued by collectors. The 'horuka," the native dress of the Hawaiian women, is shown in great variety in a collection made by Princess Kalanianaole. The garment is a sort of sublimated mother-hubbard and is often made of costly fabrics and even ornamented by precious stones. The princess possesses, by the way, some of the finest jewelry

Youth's Companion. German Alcohol Stills.

An authority on alcohol stills says that there are 20,000 farm stills in operation on as many farms in Germany. The German government permits the farmer to produce a certain amount of grain or potato alcohol, the amount depending upon the size and location of the farm and the annual demand for the product, upon the payment of a reduced revenue tax. Alcohol distilled in excess of the quantity allowed is subject to the higher rate of taxation. Denatured alcohol, however, is not subject to any tax.

SYNOPSIS.

Miss Patricia Holbrook and Miss Helen Holbrook, her niece, were entrusted to the care of Laurance Donovan, a writer, summering near Port Annandale, Miss Patricia confided to Donovan that she feared her brother Henry, who, runed by a bank failure, had constantly threatened her. Donovan discovered and captured an intruder, who proved to be Restinald Gillespie, suitor for the hand of Helen Donovan saw Miss Holbrook and her father meet on friendly terms. Donovan fought an Italiau assassin. He mat the man he supposed was Holbrook but who said he was Hartridge, a canoe-maker. Miss Pat announced bar intention of fighting Henry Holbrook and not seeking another hiding place. Donovan met Holen in garden at night. Duplicity of Helen was confossed by the young lady. At night, disguised as a nun. Holen stale from the house. She met Reginald Gillegie, who told her his lave. Gillespie was confronted by Donovan, at the town postoffice Helen, unseen except by Donovan, supped a draft for her father into the hand of the Italian sailor. A young lady resembling Miss Helen Holbrook was observed alons in a canoe, when Helen was thought to have been at home. Gillespie admitted civing Holen $20.00 for her father, who had then left to spend it. Miss Helen and Donovan met in the night, She told him Gill-spie was nothing to her. He confessed his love for her. Donovan found Gillespie was nothing to her. He confessed his love for her. Donovan found Gillespie and Donovan admitted love for Helen. "Well," she said, drawing the hood over her head, "who am I now, anyhow!"

"Don't ask me such questions! I'm afraid to say."

"I like your air of business. You are undoubtedly a man of action!" "I thank you for the word. I'm breathing hard. I have seen ghosts and communicated with dragons. She's here! Your alter ego is on this very veranda more angry than it is well

"And now," I said, giving her my arm," you will not forget the rules of the game! Your fortunes and your father's are brighter to-night than they have ever been. You hate me to the point of desperation, but remember I am your friend after all."

"You are contemptible and wicked!" she flared. "Let us go."

Gillespie's launch was ready when we reached the pler, and after he had handed her into it he plucked my sleeve, and held me for an instant.

"Don't you see how wrong you are! She is superb! She is not only the most beautiful girl in the world, but the dearest, the sweetest, the kindest and best. You have served me better than you know, old man, and I'm grateful!"

In a moment they were well under way and I ran back to the clubhouse and found Rosalind where I had left

"Oh, he is much more earnest than you ever could be. I never had any illusions about you, Mr. Donovan, You just amuse yourself with the nearest girl, and, besides, for a long time you thought I was Helen. Mr. Gillespie is terribly in earnest. When he was talking to me back there in the corner I didn't remember at all that it was he who drove a goat-team in Central park to rebuke the policeman!"

"No; I suppose with the stage properly set-with the music and the stars and the water-one might forget Mr. Gillespie's mild idiosyncrasies."

"But you haven't told me about Helen. Of course she saw through the trick at once."

Arthur Holbrook was waiting for us in the creek.

"It is all right," I said. "I shall keep the papers for the present, if you don't mind, but your troubles are nearly over." And I left Rosalind laughingly explaining to her father how it came about that she had gone to the casino in a scarlet cloak but had returned in a blue one.

CHAPTER XXII.

Mr. Gillespie's Diversions.

In my own room I drew the blinds for greater security, lighted the desklamp and sat down before the packet Gillespie had given Rosalind. It was lay, a brown commercial envelope, thrice sealed, and addressed: "R. Gillespie; Personal." In a corner was written "Holbrook Papers." I turned the packet over and over in my hands, reflecting upon my responsibility and duty in regard to it. Henry Holbrook, in his Larry." anxiety to secure the notes, had taken advantage of Gillespie's infatuation for Helen to make her his agent for procuring them, and now it was for me to use the forged notes as a means of restoring Arthur Holbrook to his sister's confidence. The way seemed clear enough, and I went to bed resolving that in the morning I should go to Henry Holbrook, tell him that I had "You seemed to be a very cheerful the evidence of his guilt in my possession and threaten him with exposure honestly with you-or me!" if he did not cease his mad efforts to

"You were starting for somewhere with an air of determination. Don't let me interfere with your plans." "I was going to the boathouse." I answered, truthfully.

"Let me come along. I am turned 65, and I think I am entitled to do as I please; don't you?"

"I do, indeed, but that is no reason. You are no more 65 than I am. The cap, if you will pardon me, only proclaims your immunity from the blasts of Time.'

"I wish I had known you at 20," she said, brightly, as we went on together. "My subjection could not have been more complete."

"Do you make speeches like that to Helen ?"

"If I do it is with less inspiration!" "You must stop chaffing me. I am to me." not 65 for nothing and I don't think you are naturally disrespectful."

When we reached the boathouse she took a chair on the little veranda and smiled as though something greatly amused her.

BOY TORTURED BY ECZEMA

'When my boy was six years old, he suffered terribly with eczema. He could neither sit still nor lie quietly in bed, for the itching was dreadful. He would irritate spots by scratching with his nails and that only made them worse. A doctor treated him and we tried almost everything, but the eczema seemed to spread. It "It's an exercise," said little Elsie's started in a small place on the lower mother, beaming with maternal pride, extremities and spread for two years until it very nearly covered the back part of his leg to the knee.

"Finally I got Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Pills and gave them according to directions. I used them in the morning and that evening, before I put my boy to bed, I used them again and the improvement even in those few hours was surprising, the inflammation seemed to be so much less. I used two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, the same of the Pills and the Soap and my boy was cured. My son is now in his seventeenth year and he has never had a return of the eczema.

"I took care of a friend's child that had eczema on its face and limbs and I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. They acted on the child just as they did on my son and it has never returned. I would recommend the Cuticura Remedies to anyone. Mrs. A. J. Cochran, 1823 Columbia Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 20, 1909."

In the Commissioners Court of Haskell county, Texas, March call term 1910.

Be it remembered that on this the 26th day of March, 1910, the same being twelfth day after the election while in special session for that purpose, the commissioners court of Haskell county, Texas, opened the polls and counted the votes of an election duly and legally held at all the regular voting places in Haskell county, Texas, on Monday March 14th, 1910, to determine whether or not the sale of intoxicating liquors should be prohibited in Haskell county. Texas, which said election was held in pursuance of an order of this court made and entered on the 15th day of February, 1910.

And it appearing after opening and fully and fairly counting the votes and ascertaining the result of said election that 1335 votes were cast for prohibition and 752 were cast against prohibition and that a majority of the qualified voters of said Haskell county, Texas, at said election did vote for prohibition.

Now therefore pursuant to act 3390, Title LXIX of the revised statutes of the State of Texas, the Commissioners Court of the county of Haskell in said State of Texas, does hereby declare that A majority of the votes cast at said election so held as aforesaid were cast for prohibition, and that said election has resulted in favor of prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors in Haskell county, Texas.

It is further ordered, published and decreed by this court that the sale of intoxicating liquors in Haskell county, Texas, be and the same is hereby prohibited. except for the purposes and un der the regulations specified in said title LXIX of the Revised statutes of Texas, until such time as the qualified voters of said Haskell county may, at a legal election held for that purpose, by a majority vote decide otherwise, and it is therefore directed that this order be published for four successive weeks in some weekly newspaper published in Haskell county, Texas, to be selected by the County Judge of Haskell county, Texas, and the clerk of this court is hereby directed to furnish said County Judge with a cetified copy of this order for publication in accordance with law.
