City OK's Removal Sight Obstructions

A new city ordinance which prohibits certain obstructions to traffic visibility and obstructions to pedestrian traffic on sidewalks has been passed by the Burk Burnett City Council and is in effect.

The first section of the ordinance states: Any person owning occupying or controlling any lot or other land within the limits of the city, on which trees, hedges, bushes and vines are grown, so that they project over any street, sidewalk or alley, shall prune such plantings to not less than seven feet above the public passageways.

Another section, dealing with traffic visibility, states that no sign, structure, wall or any other obstruction shall interfere with visibility between two feet and eight feet above the top of the adjacent roadway or average street grade.

Any plantings or structures violating the ordinance will be reported in writing to the owner or occupant of the premises for action.

If the obstructions are not removed within 10 days, it may be removed by the city at the expense of the property owner.

The owner is subject to a fine of not more than $200 with each day constituting a separate offense.

However, any building which had been constructed in accordance with previous building codes or requirements will be exempt from provisions of the ordinance.

Burk Writer Gets Certificate For Story Finish

Janette Wilson of 209 Laurel Lane, Burk Burnett, Texas 76354, has written an ending to a Jack and Jill finish-the-story feature, published in the issue of The Curtis Publishing Company's children's magazine.

The author will receive a special Certificate of Merit framed by Jack and Jill and signed by the Editor, Karl K. Hoffmann.

This entry was one of several hundreds submitted to the editors by boys and girls from all parts of the United States and throughout the world.

CHEERLEADERS READY FOR GRID SEASON

The Burk Burnett High School cheerleaders, with senior Lana Carroll as head cheerleader, are just about ready for another season of rousing cheers for the Bulldog gridder.

The girls, spry, beautiful and agile attended a cheerleader camp conducted by the National Cheerleader Association.

There they achieved the highest award given by NCA during their last three days, after receiving only a second place award in the first two-days of the five-day session.

After practicing all summer, they are getting ready for the school by painting the reserved section of the football stadium for the pep squad, and will conduct pre-school squad meetings to teach the group new cheers and chants.

The cheerleaders are Kathy Smith, senior, two years; Pam Fowler, senior, one year; Meredith Kelley, junior, two years; Linda Young, junior, one year; Berta Hancock, sophomore, one year, and Miss Carroll, a senior, two years experience, head cheerleader.

THE BURK BULLDOGS coaching staff will take their charges to Mineral Wells Friday night for the only scrimmage session of the season. Coaches are Charles Seagler, who joins the staff from Stanford-Fritch in West Texas; Gayhardt Jeanies, recently of Commerce; Robert Carpenter, Pat Smiley and Head Coach Bill Froman. The Bulldogs open their nine-game season with Iowa Park here on the night of September 13. Burk Star Photo

Bulldogs To Scrimmage Mineral Wells On Friday

Burk Bulldog football fans will get their first look at the 1968 edition of their favorite team in action Friday night.

That's when the A and B teams hold a scrimmage in a doubleheader slated at Mineral Wells.

The B team will take to the turf at 6 p.m., and the varsity squads will follow as soon as the field is cleared.

Meanwhile, back at the home field, Coach Bill Froman says the boys are looking well, after a day or so of heavy offensive drills without pads.

Several slots are still to be filled from a good selection of candidates.

At fullback, for instance, Mike Cardwell, Lanny Walker and Wendell Hobbs are battling for the one starting position.

All have been turning in fine performances, but the starter for Friday night is still in doubt.

At one position at least, the Bulldog mentor has few worries. That's at tackle, where Andarkes and Larson, both with experience, are returning for action.

The Bulldogs lost both starting ends from last year's team, and a host of prospective starters face Coach Froman.

These include Sprague and Sullivan, both of whom had seen plenty of action last year, and Mike Holland, Ken Youngblood and Rick Reasoner are ready to step into the vacancies.

The high school coaching staff started out the practice sessions with 55 candidates for the A and B teams, and the count has remained at that number.

WHY HALF A LOAF?

A few days back a letter went out from the office to a friend in a little town in Ontario, Canada. Very quickly it was back in the office with a notice on the envelope reading: "There is an embargo on all mail to Canada due to a strike of Postal employees."

In that same week, the Post Office Department in this country was waging a battle with Congress. There is no strike, just a threat of curtailed service. Prominent in the news was a report of a presidential commission which declared that the government's operation of the Post Office was a colossal failure. The solution? A government corporation to take over mail delivery and try to run it like a business.

The Constitution says: "The Congress shall have power to establish Post Office and Post Roads." So far as we can find, those twelve words comprise, in toto, the single socialist concept embodied in the Constitution of the United States.

But nine score years have wrought great changes in our land; not in the Constitution so much as in departures from it. There are more than 700 separate, tax free corporations being operated by the government today, in competition with private business. They range from a relatively small laundry at a Navy dock to the vast Post Exchange complex that encircles the globe. In total, the annual losses of these encroachments on free enterprise run into billions of dollars. The last compilation that we have seen puts the yearly loss in the vicinity of $20 billion — losses which must be made up by taxing business and individuals.

The creation of yet another government corporation does not promise relief from the inconvenience and frustrations of the service the government has been providing; nor does it protect us against the kind of shutdown which Canada is experiencing.

Perhaps a government corporation is a logical and necessary instrument in a progression from government operation to private enterprise operation. But any government corporation should be phased out on a prescribed time schedule and be part of a transition to a business operated mail delivery system.

Another tax-eating government corporation won't really solve the problem.

Businessmen can deliver fresh milk to your door every morning. Do you doubt that they can deliver the mail?

"I am more and more convinced that our happiness or unhappiness depends far more on the way we meet the events of life, than on the nature of those events themselves." — Alexander Humbolt.

News From The County Agent

The cotton square is the preferred food of the boll weevil. but as squares become limited boll weevils begin feeding on and depositing their eggs in bolls. This is the situation in several fields that are in advanced stages of maturity in Wichita County.

Once boll weevil punctured squares reach 15 per cent, of the squares in irrigated cotton, or 25 per cent of the squares in dryland cotton, this cotton pest should be controlled. If boll weevils are left uncontrolled over a period of several weeks when squares become limited, boll damage can be expected. Boll weevils usually do not attack the larger, more mature bolls. Under heavy boll weevil numbers, damage to the smaller bolls may range up to 50 or 75 per cent or even higher. As the smaller bolls become limited, boll weevils will feed on and deposit their eggs in the larger bolls.

Boll damage by the boll weevil not only decreases yield but also causes a decrease in quality.

This late in the growing season, producers can prevent yield loss and insure a higher grade by controlling boll weevil populations. Several applications in insecticide will probably be required to bring boll weevil population below an economic level. Further information on the boll weevil and its control can be obtained at the County Extension office.

Equipment used for the application of herbicides should be properly cleaned following each use, says County Agent B. T. Haws. Cleaning equipment that has been used to apply a water soluble chemical requires only a thorough flushing and rinsing with water. But, he added, equipment that has been used for phenoxy herbicides such as 2,4-D, 2,4-5-T, silvex, or MCPA is more difficult to clean and requires one of the following methods (For hand sprayers or field equipment).

1. Add a box of nonsudsing detergent to 30 or 40 gallons of water, run through the pump, and bypass for five minutes. Discharge the solution through the boom.
2. Partly fill the tank with a solution of 1 per cent to 2 per cent household ammonia (1 to 2 quarts in 25 gallons of water or 2 teaspoons per quart). Leave this solution in the sprayer (including hoses and boom) overnight. Drain and rinse thoroughly with water.

3. Use at least one-third of a tank of water. For each 10 gallons of water, add one-quarter pound of activated charcoal and one-eighth to one-quarter pound of laundry detergent. Agitate vigorously to distribute the charcoal through the water.

4. Wash the equipment for two minutes by swirling the liquid through the hose and nozzles.

5. Drain the tank and flush the system with clean water. Since rinse water may damage plants, clean sprayer away from all desirable plants. Spray equipment used to apply herbicides should be used only for herbicide application.

Proper care of spray equipment prior to storage will prevent deteriorating and insure a working condition for next season's use. Scrub the sprayer with a stiff bristle brush. Coat all iron parts exposed to the chemical with a rust inhibitor or light oil. Remove caps from the ends of booms and stand them on end to remove sediment. Remove, clean and reassemble filters.

An agribusines short course will be held in Wichita Falls on September 11 and 12. The meeting will start each night at 7:30 p.m. in the Texas Electric Service Company Auditorium, located on the second floor, at 904 Scott Street. This short course is co-sponsored with the Agriculture Committee of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce. This short course is for agribusines personnel such as owners, managers, employees of feed and seed stores, implement dealers, fertilizer dealers, processing companies, gins, elevators and others involved in agribusines. The general public is invited to attend. There will be no charge.

Fashion Forecast Masks Will Be "In"

Air pollution is threatening to make an indelible mark on female fashion.

With soot, smoke, ash and other matter pouring from auto exhausts, chimneys, smokestacks and municipal incinerators, an Army surplus gas mask may well become as familiar an element of fashion this fall as white calf stretch boots and a wrap-around shirtdress. While the gas mask isn't very chic, it does a highly effective job of protecting the wearer from pollutants in the air. At the heart of the gas mask for a full half century has been an activated charcoal filter which absorbs, or holds, the pollutants, while permitting fresh air to pass through unchecked.

Best known for its use in the cigarette filter which gives Tararetons the taste which makes smokers say they'd "rather fight than switch," activated charcoal takes on pollutants in our daily life in a variety of ways. It protects food from odors and contamination; it is used to purify the water in the reservoir systems of thousands of American cities; soft drink, beer and alcoholic beverage producers employ it in the production of their products.

And, outside the gas mask, it is still doing an excellent job of purifying the air we breathe. It is the key to the fresh air problem which faced designers of atomic submarines - craft which hover beneath the surface for weeks at a time without taking in any fresh air. Activated charcoal filters are also used to provide fresh, breathable air in space capsules and in "air conditioned" buildings from coast to coast.

SIX FLAGS TO BEGIN FALL SCHEDULE NEW $20,000,000 CALIFORNIA PARK DUE

The world's largest land-based oil derrick, which will be Six Flags Over Texas' newest attraction, is seen in this artist's rendering. Construction is already under way on this 300-foot "rig," which will be the tallest single structure at the popular 140-acre, $18,000,000 theme entertainment center located in Arlington, midway between Dallas and Fort Worth.

Arlington, Texas: Six Flags Over Texas will begin its fall operating schedule on September 7 and will operate on Saturdays and Sundays only until the 1968 season ends on December 1. Operating hours will be from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The popular historical-theme entertainment center, located midway between Dallas and Fort Worth, has set Monday, September 2, as the final day of the summer season, during which Six Flags has been open seven days a week.

Angus G. Wynne, Jr., President of Great Southwest Corporation which owns and operates the Six Flags Over Texas and Six Flags Over Georgia (Atlanta) entertainment centers, announced last week that the company will build a new 147-acre, $20,000,000 theme entertainment center in the Oakland/San Francisco Bay Area on the West Coast. The new park, tentatively named Six Flags Over California, is located east of Oakland in the city of Pleasanton.

"Modernize" TV Lead-In For Better Viewing

If your color or UHF TV picture is fuzzy or distorted, it may be time to inspect the antenna lead-in cable. Is it cracked? Corroded? Is it the flat ribbon or tubular type? If the answer to any of these questions is yes, you may want to consider replacing the cable. You need one that can transmit the full power of the television signal from antenna to receiver—and also eliminate annoying interference problems. Some purchasers of new color or UHF sets continue to use the old antenna lead-in installed years ago with their previous set. Belden Corporation, Chicago, which manufactures all types of television lead-in cable, has found that common flat-ribbon and tubular lead-in is adequate for most VHF black-and-white sets. It is not, however, good enough for color or UHF receivers. Independent laboratory tests indicate that a shielded twin-lead cable, with its special layer of shielding metal beneath a water-proof outer jacket, provides best color or UHF reception. Shielded cable is most effective in crowded urban areas where transmission-line pickup of interference from stray electrical signals and noise is more frequent than in fringe areas. In fringe areas, where signal interference is minimal, encapsulated antenna lead-in cable can be used with color or UHF sets, Belden advises. The encapsulated type does not have a metal shielding material, but its conductors are insulated from each other and are covered with a waterproof polyethylene jacket. Depending on your location, encapsulated or shielded lead-in cable could be your answer to clear, interference-free TV viewing enjoyment.

NUTRITION FOR ATHLETES

Some athletic coaches — perhaps the vast majority — won't like my saying it. But the truth is, there's a lot of food faddism practiced by athletic coaches in this country. Trick ideas, old wives' myths, and other nutritional nonsense are hoked up each year, especially for the football and basketball seasons. A great deal of this happens at the high school level. But don't excuse the college and professional sports coaches either. As a physician, I find it upsetting — and particularly so, when these kinds of ideas are also supported by some team doctors who obviously are shy in their knowledge of the scientific facts of nutrition. To be specific:

No Miracle Foods
There simply are no miracle foods, or food components, or mixtures of special foods that are going to improve an athlete's performance. He needs the same foods that are recommended for everybody else. If he follows the four food groups — milk, meat, fruits and vegetables, enriched and whole wheat breads and cereals — he'll be fine. But he needs them, of course, in greater quantities because he is using up greater amounts of energy at the same time that he is in a period of physical growth that is critical. Special supplements, wheat germ, tiger's milk — all this sort of thing that some coaches encourage — may have some kind of psychological advantage for a boy. But it also can be dangerous to delude him with notions not based on scientific fact that these foods may have some special effect.

Food On Game Day
I also have a special gripe with coaches about eating on the day of the game. Here again a sort of faddism takes hold and the impression is given that special performance will follow special circumstances. Thus, some coaches give special instructions for eating differently on game days. Well, certainly a boy should not eat a large meal and immediately rush out on the field of competition. But why not have faith that, especially in the case of football, he can have his regular breakfast and lunch and then at game time perform at his best. He does it on practice days during the week without upsetting his usual meal patterns. If he is good in practice why add further stress to game day and drastically changing when and what he eats before the game. Some coaches answer that they want to reward and treat their players special on game days. Fine, but reward him after the game. Don't disturb his metabolic patterns before the game. There is more to say on this which I'll continue next week.

On Top

The Bible, "God's holy word," is still the best seller, and most quoted book. From the original Greek and Hebrew this book has been translated into many languages.

Through the centuries men have devotedly studied and sought out the truth in the Bible. When one reads the Bible with an open mind, God's word is "as sharp as a two edged sword."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Watch Out For The Children Because It's Back To School

SPECIAL — "Watch Out for Children!" Because it's back to school for the nation's 51 million elementary and high school students.

Among the 9 to 19 year olds are more than half a million 4-H boys and girls who have a special interest in safety. They carry on safety projects to prove it.

These safety-minded youngsters work hard for school and community safety, and for home and personal safety as well. Their projects include campaigns to find and correct hazards that may cause injuries to pedestrians and motorists alike. Hazard hunts turn up articles left lying around the grounds and in parks.

Through their efforts to publicize and dramatize safety, the 4-Hers create posters, exhibits, appear on radio and television, and cooperate with local authorities. Older teens serve as junior safety club leaders and help young members with their projects.

Observing safety and abiding by safety rules in sports and play are high on the list.

Encouragement and recognition for safety efforts come from the Cooperative Extension Service, which supervises the national 4-H Safety program, and from the sponsor, General Motors.

By October 15, youths from 50 states will be named 1968 state award winners and delegates to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago, December 1-5. More than 4,000 will earn the county safety medal. The top 10 clubs in the state will receive safety certificates.

The big national prize is a $1,000 educational scholarship, which will be awarded to eight of the state 4-H winners who have compiled the most exceptional records of safety projects conducted over a period of years.

To be eligible for either a state or national safety award, the boy or girl must be over 14 years old.
