Immunization To Be Complete Before School

Senate Bill 27, as amended by Senate Bill 971, has now been signed into law by Governor Preston Smith requiring immunizations for certain diseases as a prerequisite for admittance to Texas Schools. Rules and Regulations for implementation of this law are listed below.

KINDERGARTEN AND GRADES ONE THRU FIVE
Vaccines	doses	last required	dose
Polio	3		Age 4
Diphtheria
Tetanus	3		Age 4
Measles	1		Anytime
Rubella	1		Anytime
Smallpox	1		in 10 years

GRADES SIX AND ABOVE
Vaccines	doses	last required	dose
Polio	3	since age 4 (age 19 yrs)
Diphtheria	3	within 10 yrs
Measles	1
Rubella	1
Smallpox	1		within 10 yrs

If the number of doses required have been received, but last dose was before time stated, then an additional dose of Polio, Diphtheria/Tetanus or Smallpox is required. All immunizations should be completed by the time school is entered. However, if this is not possible, all students will be allowed to enter their respective school systems during the Summer and Fall 1971 terms, with the provision that their immunizations against at least one of the aforementioned diseases will have been started by January 1, 1972, and all completed as soon as medically feasible.

Since many types of personal immunization records are in current use, any document listing each immunization received by year will be acceptable during the 1971-72 school year for either initiating or updating school immunization records.

Burk Burnett Couple Grow Giant Cucumber

When talking of Texas the first thing you hear is, things grow bigger in Texas. Maybe that is why Fermon and Louise Moore had trouble convincing friends that their 3 foot 2 inch long cucumber wasn't a watermelon. Friends listen in disbelief when Louise told of how fast the cucumber was growing and how large it was. The 3 foot cucumber measured 16 3/4 inches in diameter and grows at the rate of 1/4 inch per day.

The Moores didn't know the proper name for the cucumber but stated that they had heard it referred to as a Snake Cucumber. Louise stated that the cucumbers were normally picked when they reached 6 to 8 inches in length. Fermon added that they had let the cucumber grow due to the fact that seed was hard to get. He also noted that no special attention had been given the cucumber including not giving it fertilizer. He noted that the cucumber has grown naturally in the sandy garden where other plants fail to yield a crop. For anyone that still doesn't believe the cucumber story or the picture, the Moores live at 628 Cottonwood, directly behind Harden Elementary School and welcome anyone.

Bass Club Tournament August 21

The Burk Burnett Bass Club met in the First National Room Thurs., July 22, to plan their next Bass Club Tournament and to present patches to those fishermen who had caught a 4 lb. fish or larger. Those receiving patches were as follows: Chick Spires (5 lb. patch), Brent Spires (4 lb. patch), aided by Festus Spires; Roy Sutton (5 lb. patch); and E.J. Tatum (4 lb. patch). The next Bass Club Tournament will be held August 21. The Bass Club members may fish at any lake for the tournament, but must weigh in at Jerry McClure's home by 5:00 Saturday.

The next Bass Club meeting will be held August 26 in the First National Room.

boys were pronounced dead on the scene of the accident. The accident occurred when the south bound sedan went out of control on a curve. The sedan then collided head on with a gravel truck, driven by Dale Sims. The sedan was totally demolished. Mr. Sims, 32, of Lawton, Oklahoma was not injured. Darrell Lloyd, driver of the vehicle was the son of SSgt. and Mrs. Donald Lloyd. David Taylor was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Delley Taylor. His services were held at 2:30 Sunday at Owens & Brumley Funeral Home with burial taking place in the Burk Burnett Cemetery.

Your Texas Ancestors

by
DAMON VEACH

Mrs. J.M. Cornelius, Randlett, Oklahoma, 73562 is interested in the Pearce family. John Fredrick Pearce was her father, and he had several brothers and sisters, including Mel, Mollie Johnson and Bonnie Roper. His children Pearl, Cuba, Roy and Marvin. Little is known about their descendants. Pearl married an Ellis, but all contact was lost with her.

Any of these families are urged to contact Mrs. Cornelius.

Mrs. Earl L. Heitman, Rt. 1, Box 54, Eules, Texas, 76039 is interested in William Marion Francis Austin, who died in Titus Co., Feb. 1911. (This is Mrs. Heitman's grandfather who died 2 months before her father was born. Nothing at all is known about this family, and any help will be appreciated.)

Richard S. Runge, Rt. 1, Menard, Texas, 76859 is doing research on his family name and would like to locate a coat-of-arms on this family. Anyone interested in this German ancestry should contact him.

Mrs. Lois M. Behnke, 324 Bolliger Blvd., Fort Worth, Texas, 76108 is interested in the Richards, Woodside, Yocum, Hunt, and Reatherford families of Liberty, Jefferson, Stephens, and Eastland counties. Records from the family files indicate a connection to either the Cherokee or Choctaw tribe.

Mrs. Archie D. Dougherty, KD Ranch, Star Rt., Box 62, Clovis, New Mexico, 88101 is researching Claes Fredrik Kran, born in Sweden, who became Charles Franklin Crane after coming to America. He married Charlotte Russell Embry in Morgan Co., Missouri. She was a daughter of Barrell Embry and Lucinda Wheeler. They moved to Indian Territory, near Durant, later to Denison, later to Gainesville. Charles had a brother, August, and a sister, Sophia Emelle, who came to the U.S. and settled in Minnesota and New York, respectively. Little is known of the Embry family.

James Lee Kelly, III, P.O. Box 547, Silsbee, Texas, 77656 would like data on the Kelly or O'Kelly surname. James Kelly settled in Belton, Texas around 1860 or 1870 and worked as a stonemason on the state capitol at Austin. He was a native of County Cork, Ireland and married Cathleen O'Connor, a native of County Sligo. They were probably married in Darlington, England. Her father was a professor of political science at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland at the time of her marriage.

FHA Has Helped Local Economy

Farmers Home Administration, the rural credit arm of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, has helped the local economy of this area with a three-point attack on rural development, according to Charles M. McGilvray, County Supervisor for Wichita, Archer and Clay Counties.

These include loans to farmers to finance the purchase and improvement of real estate and pay operating expenses. These totaled $233,990. During the past year 26 families have secured loans from Farmers Home Administration that will enable them to move into modern new homes or to make improvements to their present homes. These totaled $306,510.

In addition funds were provided for the financing of six community water or sewer projects, totaling $748,100.

At year's end the outstanding loan total in the tri-county unit stood at $2,993,540, and was providing direct benefits to 2800 families in the area. Farmers Home Administration loan services are carried on in Wichita, Archer and Clay Counties through the agency's office at 309 Federal Building, Wichita Falls. Housing loans may be made for homes in the rural countryside, and in all towns of the counties except Wichita Falls and its urbanized surrounding area. Community facility projects may include service to rural towns of not more than 5,500 population and to other organizations operating on a non-profit basis, such as non-profit corporations, water supply districts and other political subdivisions.

Drouth Guide Is Made Available

What kinds of federal assistance are available to farmers, ranchers, farm workers, small business men, and others hit by the severe drouth in parts of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico?

Answer, in general terms, have been consolidated in a 16-page pamphlet prepared in English and Spanish by the President's Interagency Drouth Committee, Dallas. It's called "Guide to Federal Wm-ergency Drouth Help Available, with separate versions for each state. Copies of the pamphlet are available at county offices that handle U. S. Department of Agriculture drouth assistance programs and information, including County Extension Agent, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), Farmers Home Administration (FHA), and Soil Conservation Service (SCS). State and regional offices of Small Business Administration, Internal Revenue Service and Department of Labor also have copies for individuals who ask for it.

Information on federal assistance in the pamphlet has to be general because all programs are not effective in all counties of the state," points out George Hastings, chairman of the Interagency Drouth Committee. Specific types of assistance have to be requested, county by county, depending on need, Hastings said. Martin Garber, USDA representative and committee vice chairman, suggests that any farm operator or owner who needs assistance through the federal government should discuss his needs with his county ASCS, SCS, or FHA office. These offices know which programs operate in each county and can place requests for additional assistance that may be needed.

President urged that the Food box for Faith Mission be in the Church office by August 20.

Lois Reed gave a very interesting Bible study on "The Barren Fig Tree". She read Luke 13:6-9 and Leviticus 19:23. She taught in parables applying the parables to the twentieth century. Wedding Vows Are Read By McCarter-McDonald Sunday

Miss Janet Ellen McCarter of Peabody, Mass. and Oliver Forrest McDonald of Burk Burnett, Texas were united in marriage Sunday, July 18, at Saint Paul's Church. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Frederick McCarter of Peabody, Mass. and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin McDonald of Burk Burnett.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal empire gown of white satin with a high neck trimmed in daisies and satin buttons on the bodice. Her headpiece was a cluster of flowers and she carried a bouquet of spring flowers.

Jean E. Goldsworthy of Salem, Mass. was matron of honor. Martin F. Goldsworthy, also of Salem, Mass. was best man. Ushers were Frank Durgin of Peabody, Mass. and Paul T. McDonald of New York City.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at King's Grant.

The bride attended Salem Hospital School of Nursing. The groom attended Midwestern and is employed as a Medical Supply Officer. The couple left on a wedding trip to Nova Scotia. After the trip, the couple will reside in Fayetteville, North Carolina.

What's more symbolic of gracious entertaining than candles on the table? In addition to creating a romantic festive atmosphere, they are Great Transformers; they can give a plain woman an aura of beautiful radiance; and they can turn a less-than-stupendous meal into the illusion of a gourmet dinner!

Of course, candlepower does have to be supplemented with electric lights so people can at least see what they are eating, but the magic of those flickering tapers cannot be exaggerated—and I think every hostess should experiment with using them. Candles can have a formal look, but now there are those available—shorter and squatter—that add gay charm to less elegant occasions and many in glass-encased holders that are perfect for informal backyard or patio affairs. There are now a host of pretty candles in all lengths, widths and shapes for sale.

State Federal To Evaluate Education

The first state-federal cooperative program to evaluate new special education pilot projects which may have a national impact on the teaching of handicapped children will begin in Texas during the 1971-72 school year. The agreement, approved Saturday (July 10) by the State Board of Education, will link the Texas Education Agency and the U.S. Office of Education in a $1.8 million detailed examination of projects designed to test new tests of the state. The new federal role in the evaluation effort will be funded during the first year by a $500,000 grant from USOE's Bureau of Education for the Handicapped. This bureau is the first to cooperate with a single state in a research evaluation project. A separate $110,000 grant authorized under the federal Education of the Handicapped Act will support the Texas Education Agency's role in the project during the first year. Thirty "Plan A" programs -- special education pilot projects developed to integrate the handicapped child into the regular classroom -- will be given a thorough check by the state and federal experts. The first group of five "Plan A" programs was given a partial evaluation by the Texas Education Agency in 1970-71. The three-year project will be directed by Dr. Martin Kafman of the Bureau of Education for the Handicapped and Robert Winn of the Texas Education Agency's special education staff. "We'll be looking for more than the numbers of teachers trained or the total figures on children tested in this kind of evaluation," Winn points out. "We're going to look at the individual child and at how the new ideas in special education affect him." Specialists assigned to evaluate the 30 Texas projects will study the handicapped child and his relationships to the community, school dis-ric, school, classroom, and family as key factors in his emotional, social, and educational development.

During the first year, for example, teachers with one type of training may have had an outstanding success with a specific group of children. This type of training will be examined on a broader scale during the second year of the evaluation, then pinpointed for detailed cause and effect during the third year. These children will then be compared with control groups, possibly outside the state, to measure results of the special teacher training.

Approximately 9,000 children who have been taught in regular classrooms will be selected at given grade levels for the study. They will also be sampled according to handicapping condition and ethnic background.

Special education personnel from the 20 regional education service centers in Texas will be given special briefings by the Bureau of Education for the Handicapped to serve as local observers and coordinate data from the school districts, including school, classroom, family, and student variables.

The Texas Education Agency will focus its attention on administrative problems faced by local schools, regional service centers, and the state itself.

Do's And Don'ts For Texas Hunters Listed With 1971 Changes

There are some important new "do's and don'ts" for the Texas hunter.

The Parks and Wildlife Commission has enacted several statewide changes, and the 62nd Legislature added numerous other modifications to existing hunting laws.

Two of the new changes might be considered "liberalizations" of present laws—but they still carry certain limitations. One allows the removal of shotgun plugs to give the hunter more than three shots in succession.

However, the three-shot limit will still apply to migratory birds. These include ducks, geese and doves.

So if a hunter's main targets are doves or waterfowl, it probably wouldn't be worth his money to have a gunsmith remove the plug.

The other change allows hunting from cars. But this does not mean that hunters are allowed to shoot from public roads, rights-of-way or other prohibited areas.

Hunters may shoot native game animals and birds from a car on private property, but they aren't allowed to take migratory birds with this hunting method.

Hunting from aircraft is prohibited by a provision of this law.

One legislative bill makes it unlawful to take deer, elk, wild desert bighorn sheep with .22-caliber jetgun and rocket gun in general law counties. This change, in effect, makes this prohibition statewide, as the two cartridges already were outlawed in counties now under the department's regulatory authority.

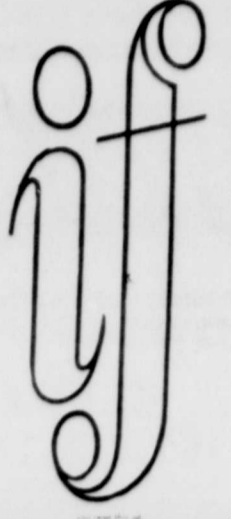

Some of the changes doubtless won't affect the average sportsman. One of these is a law prohibiting the shooting or taking of wild turkeys from the roost. Most hunters avoid molesting the birds' roosting sites, and landowners usually try to protect them.

Another change repeals the requirement that a permit be obtained from the Parks and Wildlife Department before killing a buffalo (bison). This change was prompted by the feeling that all the buffaloes in the state are actually domesticated and confined to fenced enclosures.

All the changes in game laws will be compiled in the department's annual Hunting Guide, which should be available to hunters before the 1971 hunting seasons get underway.

A careful check of regulations in the particular area to be hunted is always a good procedure for any sportsman who wants to make the most of his hunting trip.

Received a tape from Mark L. Landoll. Remember he is the pilot that cracked up southeast of Okla. City and was found 18 hours later with his passenger. I have not played the tape, and I will be as anxious to hear what you're going to read as you might be. Unless something personal or undesirable has been recorded I'll write as the tape dictates. This is Mark L. Landoll, stand by -- I have a reel coming off. Now, it should work a little better. I'm doing pretty good. I'm still in bed. My back is hurting pretty bad. As you know, I'm the gentleman that had the crash with the home built a little over a month ago and you wanted to hear about it. I decided to put it on tape instead of writing -- hope you don't mind. I suffered two broken ankles, a broken upper left leg, a broken vertebra, broken nose and facial cuts. Right now I'm doing pretty good -- getting around on crutches. I think I should be able to go back to work in a couple of months. Sorry to be so late to write, but I wasn't up to it until now. I first of all built my home built. Had Cougar plans, and I modified it quite a bit to my own likings, mostly little larger wings and a little different tail and a little odder and ends, and it was full folding wings, and kept it in the garage and pulled it to the airport. That worked beautiful. Sure hated to lose it. I figured it was worth around $3,000, but that's the way life goes. The reason I lost my airplane -- Well the day I went flying I was going to get refueled and the guy said, "Well it will take 15 to 20 minutes," and I looked at my tank and it was over half full and that was over an hour. I said I wouldn't need it -- I'm not going to fly but a few minutes, anyway. Well my indicator wasn't reading correctly, and I only had about 15 minutes. I ran out of fuel. I was at low altitude and in an area where I could not find a place to land and I tried to turn back to a new airport that was under construction, and I didn't quite make it. I was a little short of the runway -- about 10 feet low and hit a pretty good rise and I probably was on the verge of stalling, anyway -- when I hit or was stalling. This airplane is pretty good on stalls. You can keep it under control and bring it right straight down and doesn't fall forward unless you get it into a high steep stall then it will fall through other than that it won't. That's the way we came down. We came down and pancaked down. If we had been on flat ground I don't think either one of us would have been hurt, but we were on a rise and we stopped awful sudden. Little history behind the airplane -- I had been flying it for about four years. Now, we will have to wait until next week for more info as I can't complete the tape in the space I am allowed each week.

Affiliation Of SACS Is Announced By 3750th

The 3750th Technical School at Sheppard has been approved for affiliation with the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) it was announced Wednesday by Col. Thomas B. Miller, tech school commander.

Approval came during the summer meeting of the SACS executive committee in Savannah, Ga.

The association is the regional agency, located in Atlanta, which accredits educational institutions at all levels in 11 southern states. Included are all non-profit institutions of higher education in Texas. More than 9,000 institutions hold membership in SACS. Affiliation is the first step toward gaining accredited status. It is believed by Sheppard officials that this is the first time a military technical school has been accepted for membership in a regional accrediting association.

The application for affiliation was submitted in early June after an intensive study of membership requirements by the School Evaluation Division.

Discussions held in Feb. in Atlanta with Dr. Bob Childers, led to a visit to Sheppard by both Dr. Childers and Ted Boaz, Dean of Technology, Del Mar College, Corpus Christi, Tex., in early May. They recommended that the technical school apply for affiliation.

In early September 1970, Colonel Miller approved a proposal made by Lt. Col. Owen L. Dawson, Jr., chief, Evaluation Division, to undertake a project to determine the degree to which training being conducted by the tech school related to institutional programs in community colleges, technical institutes, and universities.

A second objective was to determine the contribution this training was making toward the national economy. Tech school's Dr. Lloyd Maxon was assigned as project officer. It was found that nearly all of the training conducted by the technical school to prepare Air Force personnel for job assignment has a direct utility in the civilian economy.

Many community colleges, technical institutes and universities grant advanced standing to technical school graduates and many companies give hiring preference to veterans who have completed Air Force technical courses.

A series of recent studies conducted by the Air Force Human Resources Laboratory indicates that many enlistees selected the Air Force preference to other branches of the service because of the educational opportunities it provides.

Nearly every day news articles appear concerning Air Force personnel who have used the available opportunities to further their education.

Accreditation, when attained, will provide visible evidence to students, parents and employees that the technical training provided by the 3750th Technical School is the highest quality.

Accreditation will also assure institutions of higher education, granting advanced standing to technical school graduates, that an independent educational accrediting association has conducted a thorough review of the school and found it to meet their comprehensive standards.

The next step toward gaining accreditation is the conduct of a self-study which was initiated last week. This requires an in-depth analysis of all facets of an institution to determine the degree to which it meets 12 quality standards established by the regional accrediting association.

These standards include philosophy and purpose of the institution, organization and administration, education programs, financial resources, staffing, physical facilities, equipment and supplies, student personnel services, community relations, long-range planning, learning resources centers, and placement and follow-up.

A working group will provide overall direction for the self-study. Col. Francis Jones, deputy school commander, is chairman and Col. Dawson is vice chairman. Dr. Maxon is project officer.

Jerry McCarley of the school operations division, Curriculum Branch, will handle the documentation.

Consultants include Col. (Ret.) Harold Layhee, interim institutional coordinator for Midwestern University; Col. Howard Hollerath, chief, school operations division; Lorne Davis, training plans branch; and Glen Schmitt, resources management branch.

Working group members from school headquarters include Lt. Col. Harry Smith Jr., school Administrative Division; Richard E. Justice, training operations branch; William Hudson of the Evaluation Division; and Joseph Mione and TSgt. Billy R. Noland of the Training Services Division.

Training Department representatives include: Aircraft Lt. George Fleming Jr. and Harold Grierson; Comptroller-Captain Richard O'Neill and Henry Vicari; Civil Engineering-Robert White and Sgt. Peter Schultz; Transportation-Msgt. Richard Roberts and Alvin Irby; Communications and Missiles-CMSgt. Duane Crawford and Joe Jones; and Field Training -- MSgt. Tevis Abbott and C.L. Thompson.

COUNTY AGENT NEWS

B. T. Haws
Wichita County Agricultural Agent

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service has assumed a vital cooperative role alongside other agencies in the intensifying battle against Venezuelan Equine Encephalomyelitis (VEE).

At the request of the USDA and the Texas Animal Health Commission, Extension personnel are helping to perform two major tasks, according to B.F. Yeates, Extension horse specialist. They are making a daily dead horse count and a daily sick horse count, reporting to officials at different locations. Their second job is to organize a county plan to assure that all horses are vaccinated as quickly and efficiently as possible.

Since the on-premise quarantine has been removed, this means that in many instances county agents will have to help to set up vaccination clinics and help arrange for horse-owners to bring their animals in so that the veterinarians can quickly complete vaccinations in their counties.

This involves having owners available to sign a release when the horses are vaccinated and identifying owners of horses left unattended in the county. Yeates pointed out that these absentee owners can cause delays in the vaccination of a large number of horses.

County Extension personnel have been developing organizations involving veterinarians, public health officials, and others through groups which were already functioning. County agricultural agents have involved their county program building committees and livestock and horse sub-committees in efforts to coordinate plans for their areas. Many are working with such organizations as veterinarian associations and horsemen groups.

Yeates said that the big problem is creating a real awareness to make sure that all horses are vaccinated. "The key to the success of the program is the interested, motivated, involved horsemen who will assist authorities and make sure we have a thorough and effective vaccination program," he commented.

He reminded horsemen that there is ample vaccine available to vaccinate all horses in the state and that the government is providing the vaccine. It must be administered by an accredited veterinarian. Interested horsemen should contact their county Extension office to find out the plan for their county and to determine how they can become involved and be of assistance.

Conserving Hay Is Important

With the reduced hay supplied in much of Texas this summer, hay producers need to make every effort to conserve quality and get the highest production possible every cutting.

The two main goals in efficient hay making are reducing moisture in the plants for storage and saving greenness and leaves. Windrows and mowers should be operated to minimize field exposure of hay.

A sharp cutter blade correctly aligned and properly mowed across the field will do the best mowing job. Cutters that aren't properly managed or operated can bunch, strip, crush, and bruise the plants so that drying and future handling are hampered. Besides these hindrances, a mower doing a ragged job can leave considerable amounts of forage uncut.

Prussic Acid Poison On Cattle Grazing

Several cases of prussic acid poisoning in cattle grazing Johnson grass and sorghum hybrids were diagnosed recently at the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory at College Station. In one case about 260 cows were turned into a Bermuda grass field with a large amount of wilted Johnson grass at one end. Twenty-seven of the cows died. In another case, 13 cows died from the poisoning. Poison levels in Johnson grass or sorghum hybrids may reach high levels when under drought conditions followed by a summer shower.

Screwworm Cases

Four new screwworm cases have been confirmed in Texas and one in Arizona, its first of the year. Single cases were reported in Menard, Refugio, Jim Wells, and Starr counties. None of the counties are in the northeast Texas area. Arizona's case was confirmed in Pima County near Arivaca. No new cases have been confirmed in the northwest Texas area but sterile fly treatment and spraying is continuing.

Raking or windrowing is the next place where hay producers can take steps to conserve quality and production. The ideal windrow is easily picked up by balers, choppers, and stackers. It should be uniform in size with no lumps or hollow spaces. The leafy parts of the plants should be on the inside of the windrow with the stems sticking out.

A uniform windrow will furnish a continuous supply of hay for smooth operation of the baler or stacker, and it will result in more uniform drying of the plants.

Always rake in the same direction as the mower traveled to produce proper windrows. Run the rake at a speed suited to the condition of the field and plants with the reel teeth tilted to make the desired windrow density. The reel teeth should be adjusted to within about one inch of the ground, and the plants should be raked when about 45 percent moisture is present.

What Is The Great Plains Con. Program?

What is the Great Plains Conservation Program? "GPCP is a tonic prescribed by the U.S. Congress and administered by Soil Conservation Service to heal the pain and scars of the DUST BOWL," reports Bill Lewis, SCS, Iowa Park.

GPCP provides assistance to landowners in planning and applying needed land treatment on a long-range basis. The landowner enters into agreement with the Secretary of Agriculture to carry out a plan according to a schedule acceptable to the landowner, but within ten years. Cost-share is available for items like brush control, terraces, etc. ranging from 50 to 80 percent.

Giving birth to the Dirty Thirties Era of U.S. history, the Dust Bowl included all or part of ten states: Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota, Montana, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas and Wyoming.

Newspaper reports of this Era describe Washington D.C. enveloped in a cloud of red dust. This same dust was reported far out at sea. The blowing sand blotted out the sun in the Dust Bowl and forced mass migration from this part of ten states. The sand buried tractors, wagons, and piled up on the side of houses.

This disaster of the 1930's had been building up a long time. In the Great Plains, thousands of acres had been stripped of natural grass. When the drought came, the soil dried up and began to blow.

The GPCP is helping to establish grass on barren rangeland, change some cropland to pastureland, and improve cropping patterns in the Dust Bowl region. You may apply for GPCP by contacting your local gas office.

Tax Man Sam Sez

Unfortunately the drought has forced many livestock owners to sell a part or all of their herd. The Internal Revenue Service provides a modified form of tax relief on the sale of livestock due to a drought. You are not required to pay taxes on any profit that you make on the sale of your herd (provided your sales for the year are in excess of normal sales) if you reinvest within two years with the same type of herd. An extension of this period beyond two years may be granted by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue Service in exceptional cases. Publication 225, the Farmers Tax Guide, spells out all the requirements on drought sales of livestock on pages 36 through 40. Local county agents and Internal Revenue Service offices have free copies of the Farmers Tax Guide available for you. IRS advises farmers considering a drought sale to obtain a Farmers Tax Guide and carefully check the rules in advance.

Veal, Beef, Calf Have Differences

The consumer who reads an array of meat terms in newspaper grocery ads and sees even more meat varieties in the store might be confused about the differences between veal, calf, and beef.

Age makes the difference in the terms. The age of the animal at time of slaughter also influences price and tenderness.

The term "veal" describes meat from dairy and beef animals that are less than three months old and which have been milk-fed. This meat has a fine velvety texture and is grayish-pink in color. It has little surface fat and little marbling.

Calf is the meat from animals that are older than 3 months. In these animals the carcass has developed beef characteristics but lack fat covering and marbling that enhances beef qualities. It can be distinguished from young veal by its redder and firmer meat that has some surface fat and some degree of marbling.

Beef is the meat of animals that are at least one year old. If the beef is USDA graded, the label will show its age. Mature beef is marbled only with the grade shield. Another type of beef is called aged or ripened beef. This means that meat is held under controlled temperature and humidity for a longer time. During this extra "aging" the exterior lean turns darker.

In aged or ripened beef, changes occur that make the meat more tender and juicy and help give it a distinctive flavor. Aged beef costs more because it is held longer. The longer refrigeration increases cost, as well as the loss caused by shrinkage and additional trimming.

The present church of St. Jude's Catholic community was first used July 28, 1968 after several years of celebrating Mass in the Burkburnett Town Hall. Prior to the residency of Father Pat Scanlan, beginning July 1967, Catholics of Burkburnett were served by priests of Sacred Heart Church in Wichita Falls. We are pleased to be able to put deep roots in Burkburnett and become a more active presence in this town. Our members believe that we, as a church, should be good neighbors to other churches in town and to the whole community. Our prayer is that we may fulfill that belief ever more perfectly, and we welcome all of our neighbors to all of our services.
