MONTE WILLIAMS

Surely, by now, everyone has decided to make a serious plunge into 1973 with every intention of progressing even more than in 1972. It would certainly be nice if everyone did take this kind of attitude for the coming year. However, times haven't allowed everyone to feel this way to date. It's a known fact that some people don't try to progress at all and some simply can't. For those who, for some reason or another, truly can't, I can understand. But for those who don't even try, nobody understands.

In this day and age, if a person makes an honest effort, from his young days to his old, then he has filled an important part in this old world. He has played his roll, which probably is as important as anyone else's.

Nathaniel Hawthorne put it this way, "Every individual has a place to fill in the world, and it is important, in some respect, whether he chooses to be so or not."

It seems to me that this would be true and if it is we all have something to strive for. Most people probably already do what they feel make them important but some do not. I say, for those who don't feel important, to strive for progress in every possible way. With continued work and pursuit, chances are one will find, with time, what makes him important in our world today.

Raymond Greenwood, our loyal chamber manager, was telling me just the other day about his first cold sweat. He said he was hunting up in his folks territory when it all happened. He and a friend and his friends little brother were out hunting. Rabbit hunting, I might add. Greenwood says they were parked on a little dirt road, resting after they had all done some shootin' at this cottontail. All of a sudden, a highway patrol car pulled up behind them. Out stepped the patrolman and right on up to Greenwood's car. Raymond said that he knew right then that this guy would never believe that he was sipping pure egg nog. Nor would he probably believe that the factory had somehow accidentally mislabeled the six-pack of coke at his feet. And he wasn't positively sure how the patrolman would react about the loaded shotgun, 30-30, and two pistols in the back seat. All turned out well though. After a few routine questions, a good check of the trunk and a good stiff reprimand, the hunters were on their merry way. The holiday was a real goodie.

Burk has been relatively quiet and happy over the holidays. Everyone seems refreshed from all the good times and rest. At the same time, 1973 is off and running. Here's hoping that we can all work together during the new year and make it the most prosperous ever for our city.

The long awaited Boomtown Restaurant, downtown Burkburnett, held its official Grand Opening last Saturday at 11:30 a.m. A good number of local citizens were on hand for the ceremony waiting for that first cup of coffee and lunch. Shown in the doorway cutting the ribbon is Boomtown owner, Lenwood Tuttle being assisted by Chamber of Commerce President Reid McCandless.

Safe Holidays Reported

With the Christmas-New Year's Holiday now at an end, a survey of the crimes and accidents involving Burkburnett residents shows that this was a busy time of year in more ways than one. The traffic accidents which have plagued the entire state of Texas with perhaps a state record and the highest fatality toll in the United States can be seen here as well.

The accidents involved no fatalities but more than one case shows extensive damage to the vehicles and in one instance the driver of an automobile was taken to Wichita Falls General Hospital. The accident involved an International Truck and a 1963 Mercury Comet driven by a Burkburnett resident. The wreck took place on Highway US 277-281 where the driver of the truck fell asleep and hit the Comet which in turn hit a reflector pole. The Gold Cross Ambulance was called and the truck driver was rushed to the General where he was treated and released. The Comet had extensive damage ranking a code six on the police department's scale of seven. A fifteen-year-old Burkburnett resident backed into a pump in the Greenway Fina Station, at 418 S. Avenue D. The pump was knocked down but a large amount of gas did not spill as the pump is controlled electrically and the power automatically cuts off the gas line when something of this sort occurs.

On December 29th at the intersection of Third Street and Kelly a 1973 Tornado Oldsmobile ran into a dump truck. The accident was caused by improper lane usage in turning as the Tornado turned in front of the truck. Only minor damage was done and no one required medical treatment.

On Avenue D and Glendale Tuesday evening one vehicle was traveling too close to another car which resulted in a collision again resulting in no major damage. Another accident involving a Chevrolet Cheyenne and Impala on December 28th occurred as a result of the Impala failing to yield the right of way to an oncoming car at 900 block of Sheppard Road across from the Jiffy. The Impala was turning into the Jiffy parking lot and apparently did not see the oncoming Cheyenne. A ticket was given to the driver of the Impala. Sheppard Road saw its share of accidents as a Delta 88 failed to yield after coming out of the overpass and hit an oncoming car. The 1964 Rambler was travelling down an expressway exit when the accident occurred.

Five persons were arrested for public drunkenness in Burkburnett over the holidays, but have been released on bond. Two other arrests took place when teenage boys were released to their parents on bond for theft under $5.

A fire extinguisher was stolen from the Fire Station #1 which was valued at over $50, an aggravated assault charge was filed the first day of the New Year, and on the last day of '72 the plate glass door of Boomtown Restaurant at 221 E. 3rd was shot by a BB gun or a pellet rifle. The Burkburnett Police Department has no suspects at this time.

"Echreusous" Has Reached Burk

"Echreusous" characterizes a Texas artist as an outstanding artist of today, but also distinguishes Lippard Furniture Store as an exclusive dealer in this new technique of painting, created by Jack White of Austin.

According to Pat Lippard, interior designer and owner of Lippard's, echreusous is a Greek word meaning "being done out of gold." White's echreusous technique involves using 14 carat gold leaf on glass which makes his technique most unique and in popular demand throughout the United States.

White creates this technique by outlining his subject in black on the back of the glass, and then overlaying it in gold. The object in the painting is brought out in gold against a background of color in reds, greens, or bronzes. The backgrounds are then run through different processes to reach a gold leaf effect.

His popularity has definitely spread to Burkburnett. Mrs. Lippard said that she has already sold 37 paintings by White. She has 14 paintings now which are being displayed in the "Added Touch," a new accessories room recently added to the store.

All Lippard's White's originals are framed in 4x5, 8x10, 16x20 and 24x30 paintings, ranging from $19.95 to $400.00. One particular painting, "The Bronc," a 16x20 painting of a cowboy riding a bronc, sells for $300. "The Bronc" has been appraised for $575 by a Texas certified appraiser.

White, appearing at his exhibitions in a western hat and leather jacket with his trademark of two small paint brushes stuck in the hatband, is a self-taught artist. Once an architect, he feels that being self-educated in art has freed him to develop his own style, uninfluenced by other artists.

White's echreusous paintings can be found in the private collections of Lyndon Johnson, governors, senators, and many celebrities, as well as in downtown Burkburnett.

Concerning Chamber Banquet

Plans To Be Made At Burk C Of C Luncheon

The Burkburnett Chamber of Commerce will hold its regular monthly luncheon next Monday with the program time being allotted to laying plans for the upcoming Chamber Banquet. The annual banquet, set for February 3, will have a little different agenda than past banquets. This year there will not be a guest speaker and instead several groups will be providing the entertainment. "We hope to have about three different groups for entertainment. I think that this will be more enjoyable to those attending than a regular speaker," stated Raymond Greenwood, chamber manager. Tickets for the banquet are on sale now at the Chamber office and will soon go on sale at several other locations in Burkburnett. Tickets are priced at $2.50 each. This year special tables of 10 places will also be set for either individuals or businesses to purchase. "This year you can reserve a table and treat your friends, special customers or your employees to the Chamber Banquet," stated Greenwood.

Burk Vo-Ag Girls Strong In Number

by Sedelta Vertle

"It has been a challenge, very enjoyable, and certainly different teaching girls Vo-Ag and there is one evident thing: What the girls lack in individual strength they make up in numbers," commented Mr. Fite, a BHS teacher who has the responsibility of teaching the first girls' Vo-Ag class in Burkburnett.

Fite told the Informer/Star that this is a course which is offered in other schools, but not in this immediate area. The Vo-Ag program is very popular all over Texas, and Burkburnett is no exception, but since girls are becoming more and more interested in the project and because the girls applying for the program this year are exceptionally equal to the Vo-Ag curriculum then the course was offered.

In reference to the exceptional attitude the girls have this year, Mr. Fite commented that he feels the two classes of girls that he teaches have a broader understanding of the Agriculture program than ever before. This may be attributed to the fact that many families in the Burkburnett School District own farms and therefore livestock. The girls are in contact with animals and are interested; they have brought this interest to school with them.

The curriculum offered to the girls is basically the same used in the training of boy Aggers. The scheduled classes meet once a day and without the regular emphasis on written work or testing. The main emphasis is on the care and feeding of animals which the girls take as projects. The animals may include calves, lambs, pigs and chickens. The livestock is kept on the student livestock is kept on the student's farm or the student farm area. This is the heart of any Vo-Ag program and is treated as such by Mr. Fite who commented, "The animals these girls choose for their projects of course give them knowledge of the feeding habits of that particular animal, but even more important it teaches them responsibility. If an animal is caged up and unable to care for itself, then the students must realize that this is their responsibility. And they have. These girls even lean toward making pets of their projects. They are attached to their animals."

"Actually girls seem to be more interested in this kind of work than the boys I have taught. The girls seem to be more eager, more interested, and really more willing to work than boys," he continued. The girls themselves were obviously enthused, but relaxed sitting in the Vo-Ag building.

Though they do not receive grades in the usual manner, they are graded on their individual projects, participation and other such programs. "Don't expect an easy grade by taking Girls' Vo-Ag, it is fun, but you are expected to work," commented Kathy Landers.

The other girls agreed and added that they took the course because they have been raised around livestock and are therefore interested in this course. They stated the class was a good way to learn about other types of animals and that they thought the class had been well worth the effort.

The class is presently preparing for the Show Circuit Season which will take them to Wichita Falls for a livestock show the latter part of this month, and to Fort Worth, San Antonio, Houston and back to Wichita Falls throughout the remaining school year. The object of the shows is to acquaint the students with the circuit and to give them an opportunity to sell their animals and make a little profit.

All in all the course seems to be working reasonably well with both teacher and students enthused about the new course and its effects. This is just another example of how Burk-

By Mrs. Alma Teague Knight

"Behold, The Man, Jesus"

Mrs. Alma Teague Knight, long-time Burkburnett Sunday School teacher whose family helped establish pioneer churches in north Texas, will realize a life-long dream Sunday.

She will be honored at an autograph party to be held from 1:30 to 3 p.m. at the First Baptist Church to announce her new devotional book, "Behold the Man, Jesus."

The cloth bound book, a combination of devotional poetry and prose, treats of the life of the "Man, Jesus, from the manger to the Cross."

Although a life-long Baptist, Mrs. Knight points out that the book is not "doctrinal in concept" but "simply carries a message in poetry and prose which I feel obligated to share with others since God has been so gracious in His gift to me."

The book has been published in a limited edition by Nortex Offset Publications.

Mrs. Knight, who resides at 308 North Berry Street in Burkburnett, is a member of the First Baptist Church where the Rev. Lamoin Champ is the pastor. Her husband, C. E. Knight is a deacon in the church.

Mrs. Knight was the seventh child of eleven children born to Bartow B. and Veola E. Teague and grew up on a farm in the Cottonwood Community near Olney.

Her grandfather and a neighbor, Lewis Biewett, gave the land for the community's school which also served as a "house of worship" for three local congregations, Baptists, Methodists and Presbyterians.

Her father was chairman of the school board and also served as Sunday school superintendent and choir director.

"My parents were very devout Christians and we were taught at a very early age to love God and His holy word, to honor the flag, to uphold the Constitution, to obey the laws of our land and to respect the rights and privileges of others," Mrs. Knight said.

After the oil boom, Mrs. Knight's family moved to Olney where she later met and was married to Charles Edgar Knight. They have one son, Charles Dwayne, who is married to the former Carole Ann Armstrong of Burkburnett. They have two children, Kimberly Ann and Randy Dwayne and reside in Wichita Falls where they are members of Westside Baptist Church.

Mrs. Knight's father and grandfather were Baptist deacons as is her husband with other members of her pioneer family both deacons and ministers in Baptist Churches.

"Perhaps the greatest joys of my Christian life," Mrs. Knight recalled, "has been in working in little mission churches and helping children to attend Sunday School and learn about God."

In the early 40's, she and her husband moved to an oil lease north of Farmer, Texas and were able to start a Sunday school. Then they managed to get enough Baptists together to call a pastor, the Rev. Johnny Barrett who is now the present pastor of Loving Baptist Church.

Mrs. Alma Teague Knight

Later they moved to Graham where they became charter members of Bethel Baptist Church, a mission of Oak Street Baptist Church.

She served as the first W.M.U. president and also Sunday school teacher. The first poem she had published by entitled "Back to Bethel" and was published by the Graham Leader. Concerning her writing, Mrs. Knight said: "Early in life I felt the urge to write down the inspirational thoughts which filled my mind as I looked up into the heavens above or felt the overwhelming heatness of God's presence in the beauty of nature."

"I believe that true poetry and prose is a gift of God. It is the inner thoughts of man speaking, painting a picture in words and can come only through inspiration. I am truly grateful that God has chosen me to receive what I believe is one of His most blessed talents to mankind."

A free lance writer, Mrs. Knight is a member of a national writers club and the International Platform Association.

FACTORY AUTHORIZED SERVICE HAROLD'S TV SERVICE 224 E. 3rd. Burkburnett dated January 1, 1973. The message was signed by L. Patrick Gray, II, Acting Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Those of us who have been privileged to serve in the law enforcement profession know that the responsibilities of that profession are among the most challenging to be found in contemporary society. To meet the demands of his varied duties adequately, the peace officer must have an abundant measure of intelligence, honesty, judgment, neatness, decisiveness, courage, and physical stamina.

These qualities have distinguished the best members of the law enforcement profession. They must continually be sought in the selection of law enforcement personnel. An officer who has all of these qualities will find himself in performing his duties to meet the high standards of his profession. Lacking any one of them, an officer may fall short in times of greatest need, when the balance of justice, or even life itself, is at stake.

It is extraordinarily difficult to fill the role which is the essence of law enforcement, that of protector. The role demands that a multitude of goals be met, yet in reality they often cannot be met. In a conflict, where law enforcement responsibilities must often begin, even to the skeptic the law enforcement officer becomes a tower of strength to whom the rest of us turn for assistance. He is the one person on whom many must depend for a remedy to the predicaments of life.

But there is another side to the law enforcement officer—a more gentle side of which we seldom hear. To see a police officer comfort those who are grief-stricken over the death of loved ones, to watch him selflessly risk his life to save another, to observe him giving assistance to the helpless, to share his assurances to a lost and fearful child, to learn of his commitment to helping underprivileged youths, and to know that he has spared a life in circumstances that gave him every legal justification to take it to witness law enforcement at its finest.

Humaneness, a genuine concern and compassion for a fellow human being, is, to many, an unexpected quality to find in a profession which deals so often with violent situations. Yet it should not be. It is a trait which is absolutely necessary for the kind of law enforcement we all want. At the outset of this new year, it is an appropriate time for the law enforcement profession to rededicate itself to cultivating the quality of humaneness in its members.

Well here I am again, back in the column writing business. One "friend" remarked that he thought Ralph Nader had probably called me back and for me to keep trying to get one column right. Anyway, he said he knew I wasn't "back by popular demand!"

I hope that through this column I can bring the activities of the Chamber a little closer to the citizens of Burkburnett as well as the Chamber membership.

I think the downtown merchants deserve a little special recognition for sponsoring a community Christmas tree and helping to promote the old-fashioned Christmas spirit.

Special thanks, however, goes to the numerous persons that came out and presented Christmas carols during the last week before Christmas. Those performing during those afternoons included persons from the First Christian Church, High School Chorus, Junior High Group, Church of the Nazarene, Jan Lee Baptist, Central Baptist, Cashin Baptist, First Baptist Church and Joel Groves, the minister of music there who provided the piano for each of the performances.

Hope all the Christmas and New Year holidays were happy ones for you and yours.

COUNTY AGENT NEWS

B.T. HAWS--Wichita County Agricultural Agent

In recent years, farmers have had conflicting views on an important subject--Fall and Winter Fertilizing. These different views are possibly due to differences in soil and management conditions, environmental factors and the farmer's point of view.

A good evaluation of fall and winter fertilizing depends on the advantages one gets from such a practice. Some advantages include, first, avoiding periods of unfavorable weather immediately prior to the planting season; second, preventing disturbance of the soil and losing moisture before planting; third, utilizing labor and equipment during a period when many farming operations are at a standstill; fourth, taking advantage of "off season" prices; and fifth, avoiding temporary local shortages of some fertilizers.

Among the disadvantages are, first, some of the needed nutrients can be lost if applied too early; second, certain forms of nitrogen may be readily lost in certain soils and under certain conditions; and third, environmental factors such as temperature and rainfall may cause fertilizer losses before they are utilized by crops. As fertilizer is applied, consider what happens to each nutrient in the soil. Application of nitrogen prior to planting should be considered only if ammonium forms are used. Maximum efficiency from nitrogen can be expected when applied just prior to the period when it is used by the crop. Nitrogen in the nitrate form may be leached or lost through denitrification in water-saturated, alkaline, clay soils. The application time of phosphorus is less critical since it does not move far from the application zone. However, the need for high amounts of available phosphorus in the immediate seed or root zone will help determine the application time.

Potassium may be applied in fall, except on sandy soils where high amounts are needed on grass and legume crops, greater efficiency has been achieved with two or more applications.

Are you thinking about using fertilizer for your crops? If so, a soil test can be a valuable source of information and a profitable investment.

A soil test indicates the level of available soil nutrients. Common tests are for pH, calcium and magnesium, and levels of nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. Levels of micronutrients such as zinc, iron and manganese can be obtained upon request.

Two important requirements are needed for getting valid information from soil tests. The first is reliable laboratory procedures which indicate the availability of nutrients correlated with field data. The second requirement for reliable soil test results is a good sample. Samples should be carefully collected and be representative of the field on which information is desired.

Two aspects of sampling need emphasis. First, divide the field into uniform sampling units. The unit should be uniform with respect to color and texture as well as past cropping, fertilization and liming. The second important factor is the number of cores or slices of soil included. A good sample should have soil from 10 to 15 spots in each designated sampling unit. Each slice of core from the plow layer should be put in a clean plastic bucket and thoroughly mixed. About a pint should be sent to the laboratory.

Information on profitable fertilization practices can be obtained from soil tests, provided laboratory procedures are calibrated for Texas soils and samples are carefully collected. Additional details on soil testing is available at the Extension Office.

FARM REVIEW

In 1972 Southern Forests Produce Over 9 Billion Board Feet

Current figures and future projections on forest products output, timber growth and inventory reflect the rising national stature of Southern forests and forest industries.

For example, 1972 production of Southern Pine lumber is estimated by the Southern Forest Products Association at 9.3 billion board feet--10 percent higher than the 1971 figure, 27 percent higher than in 1970 and 64 percent higher than in 1960. This indicates strong reaction by Southern producers to surging housing demand and the growing prominence of the region as a source of lumber and other forest products.

The year now coming to a close was the first since 1950 that Southern Pine lumber output has passed the 9 billion board foot mark. Production dropped sharply in the 1950's but began an upward trend in the early 1960's that is still in progress. Increases in the region's timber supply, made possible by extensive reforestation and forest management, have been largely responsible for steady expansion of existing forest industries and the creation of new ones, such as the Southern Pineplywood industry, born in 1963.

A report on the outlook for meeting future national timber demands, issued this month by the Forest Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, indicates that economic and environmental demands on Southern forests will become increasingly large in the years to come and that the region should further intensify its forest management programs.

Forest Service figures show that the net volume of softwood timber standing in Southern forests (mostly Southern Pine) has increased by 15 percent since 1960 and by nearly 50 percent since 1952. This was largely accomplished by raising growth to levels exceeding harvests. But further increases in the growth rate will be required to meet future needs.

Commenting on the outlook nationwide, the Forest Service says that demands for wood products have increased by 70 percent in the last three decades and that similar substantial increases are expected through the end of the century. The Federal Agency thus stresses the urgency of the need for intensifying timber growth rates on domestic U.S. forests, "especially on the 296 million acres of non-industrial private lands which make up three-fifths of the commercial forest land base."

For the most part, the non-industrial private lands are concentrated in the Eastern half of the United States, with 139 million acres in the South having the greatest growth potential from the softwood sawtimber standpoint.

At present, the non-industrial private holdings are producing an average growth of wood per acre of only 36 cubic feet a year--considerably less than half their potential, according to the Forest Service. Major increases in growth rates on such holdings is the goal of the Third Forest program initiated a few years ago by the Southern Forest Products Association and other forest industry and landowner organizations.

This effort, which is directed at both softwood and hardwood areas, seeks to provide a million small, non-industrial private landowners with stronger financial incentives and technical assistance in practice wise forest management.

Ft. Worth Rodeo Judges Named For Performances

Fort Worth Rodeo judges and other personnel have been named for the 55th presentation of the World's Original Indoor Rodeo, held in conjunction with the 1973 Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show Jan. 26 through Feb. 4, reports W.R. Watt Jr., general manager of the Stock Show.

Judging the riding and timed events and deciding which of the over 500 cowboy contestants share in the more than $90,000 rodeo purse will be Dallas Chartier of Benkelman, Nebraska and Jim Mihalek of Broomfield, Colo.

Chartier, 32, took first place in bull riding here in 1970 and has made repeated trips to the National Finals Rodeo in Oklahoma City as a bull rider in his 17 years as a member of the Rodeo Cowboys Association. He lives on a 100-acre quarter horse ranch near Benkelman. He is respected for his bull riding ability and overall knowledge of the sport.

Mihalek, one of the top bareback riders of the past decade, was runner up for the 1964 bareback riding championship and finished 1966 in ninth place and 1967 in fifth place.

After 15 years as a member of RCA, the 33-year-old rider spends most of his time judging rodeos and training horses. He does contest, but on a limited basis.

Bill Minick, rodeo stock contractor, announced that Neal Gay of Mesquite will serve as rodeo manager, a post he held in 1972. Pickup men will be Dan Taylor of Doole, near San Angelo, and Wayne Vold of Dewinton, Alberta, Canada. The pickup riders are in the arena during bucking horse contests to assist the riders in getting off their mounts after the ride.

These men are among the best when it comes to pickup riders," Minick said. "They are a small bit of insurance against rider injury."

Rodeo secretary will be Randy Spears of Dallas. He has been associated with Minick for several years. Time keepers will be Madona Eskew of Ardmore, Okla., and Berva Don Taylor of Doole. The young ladies will also carry the colors during grand entries.

Chute boss, the man who keeps the rodeo events moving, will be Bud Yale of Keller. Yale, 26, has been with Minick for five years. As a business major at the University of Texas at Arlington, he was on the Dean's Honor Roll.

Rodeo tickets by mail are accepted at P.O. Box 150, Ft. Worth, Texas 76101.

Ag Department Suggests Increases Of 1973 Acreage

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recommends that Texas growers of fresh spring vegetables in 1973 plant four per cent more acreage than in 1972. USDA suggests that grower increase plantings of spring cantaloupes five per cent and reduce spring watermelon acreage by five percent.

Landscaping—An Essential Part To Planning A New Home

Planning a new home? If so, have you given as much attention to planning the landscape as you have to arranging the home's interior?

"The landscape of a new home should be planned carefully since landscaping is a major investment," points out Everett Janne, landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. He notes that to adequately landscape a new home requires between 10 and 20 percent of the combined cost of the house and lot.

Southside PTA Meets Tues.

Southside PTA will meet Tuesday, Jan. 9, 7:30 p.m. at Southside Cafeteria. The program for the evening will be given by Joe Singer on Drug Abuse.

Nursery is provided and the public is invited to attend. A basketball game is scheduled for Jan. 13 at the Jr. High Gym at Southside next fund raising event for air conditioning. More about that in next week's paper.

What does this cost include? Major items are grading, drivers, patios, retaining walls, fences, planting and professional services.

"Ideally, the house and grounds should be planned as a unit before actual construction starts," contends the Texas A&M University specialist. "With such advance planning, the house can be designed so that maximum use is made from existing features. Also, good planning will minimize the need for grading, cutting or filling with soil."

In planning the landscape, consider existing vegetation, lay of the land, prevailing seasonal winds, views, shade and building setback lines. Also, consider the type of outdoor activities that you and your family enjoy, advises Janne. "If your home site already has features that are pleasing to you, don't change them unless necessary," cautions the specialist. "Take advantage of existing features that are desirable to you."

"A landscape that accents a new home just doesn't happen," adds Janne. "There is no substitute for adequate prior planning."

Sports Afield

By Ted Kesting

No more than 30 years ago, teaching a Labrador, Golden or Chesapeake retriever to quarter ahead of the gun seeking and flushing upland game birds was considered very poor form. The retriever breeds' traditional duties had been twofold: To excel in marking and retrieving fallen waterfowl and to be used as "non-slip" retrievers which walked at the gunners' heels waiting to be sent to retrieve upland birds shot over pointing dogs.

But times have changed considerably, according to Gun Dogs Editor Jerome B. Robinson of Sports Afield. Bag limits have dwindled and fall seasons have grown shorter. The hunter today must be versatile and so must his dog. He may hunt for pheasants and ducks in the same day, and he wants one dog that can assist him in both pursuits.

Increasingly since World War II, the old traditions which grew from the development of specialized breeds are being cast aside. It is common now to train pointing dogs to retrieve their own birds. Likewise, the retrieving breeds are becoming more versatile as more owners train them to quarter and seek upland game birds and to flush them for the gun before being called upon to perform their retrieving specialty.

As their versatility has grown, the retriever breeds today come closer than ever before to meeting the requirements of the one-dog hunter whose desire is to keep a single dog that "does it all"—retrieves ducks from cold and stormy waters, finds and routes out game birds within easy shotgun range, and happily keeps the family company the rest of the year.

Upland training, if it is begun at a logical spot in the retriever's training sequence, can be accomplished simply and quickly and goes hand in hand with training for waterwork.

Paul Gentner, nationally respected retriever trainer of Tealbrook Kennels, Kennebunk, Maine, has trained many retrievers for upland hunting. He feels that for effectiveness on pheasants in particular, a well-trained retriever is hard to beat.

"Take a shrewd old cock pheasant that wants to run rather than fly and finally holes up in the middle of the thick tangle of vines and briars," Paul explained. "A well-trained upland retriever will work his track in a manner that lets the gunner stay close to the dog. He'll bust in and rout a bird out of the thicket and most briar-covered areas—and he'll bring the bird back to you, no matter where it falls."

A good retriever has guts. He's not afraid to smash through the heaviest cover. He's intelligent and has a fine nose. He does not have the burning desire to run that a pointing dog has, therefore he is easier to control.

You'll never know how big a paycheck your brood cows can deliver until you winter 'em on

New Purina Range Breeder II

New PURINA RANGE BREEDER II is a high-quality supplement for wintering brood cows. It contains all the high-quality proteins, processed grains, minerals and vitamins (A and D) you get in Purina's all-natural protein Range Breeder Checkers plus a low level of urea. Only two percent, but enough to lower your wintering costs without sacrificing brood cow performance in any way.

A 5-year study with 400 Hereford cows at Purina's Oklahoma beef research ranch proved that calves from cows wintered on Purina Range Breeder supplement outweighed control-group calves by 19 lbs. per head. At $30 per hundred-weight, that's $5.70 per calf.

A 3-year Purina research study shows that cows fed on new PURINA RANGE BREEDER II performed at the same high level (and sometimes even better) than cows fed Purina's all-natural protein Range Breeder supplements and at lower cost: $1.00 per calf lower.

Let us show you how your brood cows can deliver a bigger paycheck (as much as $6.70 per calf) with new PURINA RANGE BREEDER II.

Couple Exchange Vows At First Assembly Of God

MRS. STAN SAYLOR

Mr. and Mrs. Stan Saylor will live in Burk Burnett when they return from a wedding trip to Chickasha, Oklahoma.

The former Miss Jan Green and Saylor exchanged vows Friday evening in the First Assembly of God Church. The Rev. John Hocker, pastor, officiated. Candelabra and greenery decorated the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Goldie Green, Burk Burnett and L.I. Green of Wichita Falls. She is a graduate of Burk Burnett High School and is employed at Wichita General Hospital. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Irven Saylor, Brusett, Mont. He was graduated from Garfield County High School, Jordan, Montana.

The ante-bellum gown was designed by the bride and made by her mother of rose point Chantilly lace and satin. The bodice and four-tiered train were of lace and the skirt was satin. A crown of rosebuds and seed pearls held her veil and she carried feathered carnations and lilies of the valley with an orchid.

Miss Nancy Elliott was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Carla Webb, Joyce Mathis, Ruthann Jackson of Byers and Bev Saylor of Brusett, sister of the bridegroom. The maid of honor wore a formal gown of kelly green velvet trimmed with seed pearls. Bridesmaids were identically designed dresses of red. The maid of honor carried red carnations and the bridesmaids bouquets were peppermint carnations.

Len Green, the bride's brother was best man. Groomsmen were Scott Hudson, Wichita Falls, Dave Futch, David King and Tommy Krampota. Sheila and Jeanne Shirley were candle lighters. Flower girl was Sheila Smith and ring bearer was Shannon Sullivan. Ushers were Tommy Quinlan, Wichita Falls and Carl Sullivan.

The bride's mother was hostess for the reception in the National Room of the First National Bank. Guests were registered by Dyane Reynolds. Serving the guests at the reception were Willa McCalip and Pat Smith.

MRS. BROOKS HILL

North Texas Students

Mr. & Mrs. Brooks Hill Reside In Denton Following Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Hill, Jr. are living in Denton following their marriage Dec. 23 in the First Baptist Church chapel. The bride is the former Miss Susie Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Elliott. The newlyweds are students at North Texas State University. She is a graduate of Burk Burnett High School.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Hill of Austin, and was graduated from Reagan High School, Austin.

The Rev. Lamoin Champ, church pastor, officiated at the ceremony before an altar decorated with candles and white gladioli.

The bride wore a long white bridal-satin dress with lace bodice. She carried a cascade of white carnations on a satin and lace covered table.

Miss Tona Coleman of Denton was maid of honor and Miss Deby Lawson of Falls Church, Va., niece of the bride was bridesmaid. They wore cranberry satin gowns and carried nosegays of pink carnations. Misses Lea Anne and Leslie Lawson of Falls Church, Va., nieces of the bride were flower girls. They wore cranberry satin gowns and wristlets of pink carnations. They carried white baskets filled with cranberry and pink rose petals.

Jeffery Elliott, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. He wore a jacket made of cranberry crushed velvet and carried a heart shaped white satin pillow.

Mike Edwards of Denton was best man. Ushers were Karry Elliott, brother of the bride, and Gordy Brown, Denton.

A reception was given by the bride's parents in the church parlor. A three-tiered cake, baked by the bride's mother, was served by Mrs. Herbert Lawson, Falls Church, Va., sister of the bride and Mrs. Karry Elliott, sister-in-law of the bride.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at Ramada Inn in Wichita Falls Friday evening.

Frances Jo Perry Marries Rodney Robin Of San Antonio

The marriage of Miss Frances Jo Perry and Rodney Arnett Robin was solemnized Saturday afternoon in the First United Methodist Church, Burk Burnett. The Rev. Don Youngblood, minister of the First United Methodist Church in Iowa Park, officiated before a candle arch and twisted candle trees with white candles and baskets of white gladioli looped together with white satin roping.

The bride is the daughter of Francis L. Perry and the late Mrs. Perry of Burk Burnett. Robin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Robin of San Antonio.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her wedding a full length gown of white velvet with white Spanish lace accenting the empire waist and stand up collar. It was fashioned with long full sleeves with wide barrel cuffs, lace accents on cuffs, full length mantilla veil edged in Spanish lace, forming a long train. She carried cymbidium orchids surrounded by white carnations and forget-me-nots.

Miss Patti Cheryl Perry, sister of the bride was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Rebecca Shafer, and Miss Beverly Torrence of San Antonio, Miss Linda Fisher of Wichita Falls and Mrs. Clay W. Norris of Burk Burnett. They were attired in full length Sapphire at the neckline and empire bodice. Each carried nosegays of a single white cymbidium orchid.

blue velvet gowns, Juliet style, with silver and pearl accents

Potter-Hibbs Wed In Burk Ceremony

Miss Ethel E. Potter and Rickey O. Hibbs were united in marriage Saturday evening. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Lamoin Champ.

The bride wore a floor length gown, a gift from her brother, made of white satin with lace overlay, which was designed and made by her grandmother, Mrs. Nora Stone of Wichita Falls. She wore a corsage of pink carnations.

The brides attendant was Miss Francis Price of Burk Burnett. She wore a blue dress and a corsage of pink carnations.

The grooms mother, Mrs. O.B. Hibbs, wore green with white accessories and the bride's mother, Mrs. Robert W. Stone wore a black gown with silver accessories. Both mothers wore white carnation corsages.

A reception was held in the National Room of the First National Bank. The bride and groom's 3 tiered cake was made by Miss Francis Price. It was decorated with yellow roses and trimmed with green.

Ethel is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Stone, 108 Terrace, Burk Burnett, and the late James E. Potter.

He's working now on your 1983 electric service.

He's one of the engineers at Texas Electric who is charged with the job of making sure this area continues to have enough electricity.

Developing our power system is a complex assignment. It requires teamwork, training, knowledge and experience. It continuously involves weighing alternatives in the selection and arrangement of facilities that will keep our power system reliable and efficient, and environmentally sound.

Ten years ahead may seem a long time, but in our business that's the normal planning cycle.

We're already at work on construction projects that will be completed in 1978. By then we will have added more than 2,000,000 kilowatts—about 2/3 of our present generating capability—as well as related transmission and distribution facilities. And we're now planning into the 1980's.

Being able to meet the electric service requirements of our customers tomorrow depends on sound planning today by the people at Texas Electric.

Sergeants Retire After 20 Years

SHEPPARD AFB, TEXAS--Four sergeants at Sheppard Air Force Base received their certificates of retirement and Air Force Commendation Medals during ceremonies Friday afternoon held in the Center conference room.

Major General Robert L. Pettit, commander of Sheppard Technical Training Center, made the presentations.

Recipients were all from the USAF School of Applied Aerospace Sciences, Sheppard. They were Master Sergeants Raymond G. Estep of 3760th Instructor Squadron; Raymond G. Newton of the 3774th Instructor Squadron; Technical Sergeants Robert J. Bolden of 3750th Student Squadron; and Elmer W. Cornwell of 3773rd Instructor Squadron.

All four have completed 20 years of military service.

Sergeant Estep, who is retiring in Muskegon, Mich., earned his medal for meritorious service as an instructor supervisor, Department of Communications and Missile Training from November 1969 to December 1972.

Sergeant Newton, who is remaining in Wichita Falls, received his decoration for service as an instructor supervisor in the Electrical Power Production Specialist course in the Department of Civil Engineering Training.

A military training instructor with the 3750th Student Squadron, Sergeant Bolden received his medal for service as instructor with several student squadrons and the Student Leader School of 3750th Student Group from September 1969 to December 1972. He is to live in Iowa Park.

Sergeant Cornwell received the First Oak Leaf Cluster to the Commendation Medal for service as an instructor in the Fundamentals Branch, Department of Aircraft Maintenance Training from March 1970 to

Lieut. Richard Ranker Earns Achievement Honor

SHEPPARD AFB, TEXAS--First Lieutenant Richard Ranker, commander of the 3774th Instructor Squadron, School of Applied Aerospace Sciences at Sheppard was honored recently at Holiday Inn East in Wichita Falls.

Inkeeper Everett E. DeZell presented a Holiday Inn Special Achievement Award to Lieutenant Ranker. The 74th instructors are sponsored by the Holiday Inn East in the Squadron Adoption Program.

The lieutenant was presented an engraved plaque in recognition of his "devotion to duty and outstanding service to the United States Air Force."

December 1972. He is to live in Clovis, N.M.

Another sergeant in the 3773rd Instructor Squadron of the School of Applied Aerospace Sciences, Master Sergeant Cecil E. Rush received his retirement certificate during ceremonies Friday morning conducted by Chief Master Sergeant A. W. Kingery, chief of Reciprocating Aircraft Branch, Department of Aircraft Maintenance Training.

Sergeant Rush will retire in Burk Burnett following 21 years of military service.

Charles Hoffman Receives Award

SHEPPARD AFB, TEXAS--Master Sergeant Charles P. Hoffman, Jr., of Sheppard's School of Applied Aerospace Sciences, Field Training Department, Detachment 910 located at Hahn Air Base, Germany, was recently honored for his educational achievements.

Sergeant Hoffman received the University of Maryland Certificate of Scholarship and the U.S. Air Forces Europe Distinguished Educational Achievement Award. They were presented by Major Larry G. Lighty, Detachment commander.

Sergeant Hoffman maintained a 3.60 grade point average for 15 semester hours while attending classes offered overseas by the University of Maryland.

Four Sheppard Men Honored For Duty

SHEPPARD AFB, TEXAS--Four Sheppardites were recently honored by their duty organizations for outstanding performance of their respective duties.

Staff Sergeant Edward L. Burkhalter of the School of Health Care Sciences was selected Junior Instructor of the Month for December. Sergeant Burkhalter is an instructor in the Medical Service Specialist Course at the School.

Senior Instructor of the Month for the Department of Aircraft Maintenance Training, School of Applied Aerospace Sciences, is Technical Sergeant Richard D. Wiedauer. Junior Instructor of the Month for the Department is Staff Sergeant Julius I. Jackson.

The department also named Airman David R. Baumgartner III as the Student of the Month.

Perkins, commander of 3750th Maintenance and Supply Group during center staff meeting Wednesday. Looking on are Lieutenant Colonel Robert H. Broeding and Harold O. Blow of the RECON program. This is the third consecutive year that Sheppard has received this award. It was presented to General Pettit at the ATC Commanders Conference.

SHEPPARD AIR FORCE BASE

Airmen Certified As Technicians

SHEPPARD AFB, TEXAS--Two airmen at Sheppard AFB were recently certified as biomedical equipment maintenance technicians by the Association for Advancement of Medical Instrumentation.

Certification was granted to Senior Master Sergeant Richard F. Ahl of the Regional Hospital and Technical Sergeant William R. Cole of the School of Health Care Sciences. They became the first at Sheppard to complete the requirements for recognition by the national association.

Certification is granted to those with a combination of education and experience who can successfully complete a six-hour written examination. The two non-commissioned officers are both graduates of the Medical Equipment Repair course at the School of Health Care Sciences, and have both served as instructors as well as in the field maintaining medical equipment systems.

The certification of the two sergeants brings the total of certified biomedical equipment technicians in the Air Force to six. Estimates are that approximately 200 additional Air Force people are eligible to apply for certification.

SHEPPARD AFB, TEXAS--CERTIFIED--Senior Master Sergeant Richard F. Ahl, left, and Technical Sergeant William R. Cole get together to talk over a piece of complicated medical equipment. The two sergeants--Ahl from the Sheppard Hospital, and Cole from the School of Health Care Sciences--recently became the first at Sheppard to receive certification by the Association for Advancement of Medical Instrumentation. Both are biomedical equipment maintenance technicians. There are presently only four others in the Air Force who have received certification. (OFFICIAL USAF PHOTO)

For 6 Years Now, 2 Years In This Location, We Have Been Trying To Completely Satisfy Our Customers; For Instance

Right around the middle of December, this 1969 Chevrolet Truck, owned by Newton Crane, was rolled and damaged extensively. The cab and front end of the vehicle received the most serious damage but rear end damage was also delivered from the crash. The truck was turned over to Clyde's Paint and Body Shop, 101 West Third in Burk Burnett for repair.

In short days, it was easy to realize that the men at Clyde's Paint and Body Shop had been hard at work. The damaged truck had been totally dismantled in order to repair and replace the many wrecked parts. This particular picture is worth a thousand words as it displays many hours of skilled labor at work.

The time wasn't long before the doors at Clyde's Paint and Body Shop were opened and out rolled the finished product. This marked the end of weeks of hard labor for the paint and body experts at Clyde's. In the end, those that rebuilt the pickup were proud of their work. But they are especially proud of their ability to satisfy, completely, customer after customer.

Clyde Ulery, George Jackson, Dale Curry, and Mario Castro, thank the people of Burk and the surrounding area for making their business a success.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS FROM THE VETERANS ADMINISTRATION AND INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE

The Veterans Administration

Q--I am to be discharged from the service soon, and am interested in applying for a GI home loan. Where do I obtain the necessary information and forms, and how can I prepare for it now?

A--Upon separation you will receive your DD Form 214. Send a copy of this separation form with a letter stating your intention to buy a house to the nearest VA office. You will receive a certificate of eligibility for a VA insured loan. The lending institution which finances your home will require a copy of the certificate.

Q--I received a General Discharge from the Army. Am I entitled to any GI Bill benefits?

A--Generally, this type of discharge entitles you to the same benefits as an Honorable Discharge. Apply at your nearest VA Regional Office.

Q--A veteran's widow receiving pension died on June 15 and had in her possession a VA check for the month of May. Is this check payable to anyone?

A--The check must be returned to the disbursing office which issued it. It may then be paid, upon submission of a claim to the nearest VA office, to any children entitled to VA death benefits, or, if no eligible children, then to the person or persons who bore the expense of the last illness or burial.

The Internal Revenue Service

Q--May a firm increase its merit plan more than 5.5 percent for new control years beginning after Nov. 14, 1972? A--No. Wage increases under merit plans are now subject to the 5.5 percent standard. Previously, the Pay Board permitted an additional 1.5 percent above this standard for employee units with qualified merit plans.

Merit exceptions already granted may operate until the current control year expires. However, this exception will not be permitted in any control year starting on or after November 14, 1972. Q--Can an employer still get the 1.5 percent exception to the Pay Board's guidelines for employees with a history of below average wage increases?

A--No. The so-called "catch-up" exception expired on Nov. 13, 1972.

Q--Is there a short form Category III employees can use to request pay increases above 5.5 percent? A--Yes. The short form PB-3A may be used by both employers and employees to request approval for pay increases in excess of 5.5 percent for employee units of fewer than 1,000. Forms are available at all local Internal Revenue offices.

Q--Must a 30-day notice be given if rents are increased by only 2.5%?

A--Yes. The landlord must notify each tenant of any proposed rent increase, with respect to any transaction after December 31, at least 30 days before the date the increase is to become effective. A landlord would be in violation of notice requirements even if the rent increase charged without proper notification was lower than that allowed by the rent regulations.

However, if a landlord is exempt from controls, he is exempt from the rent increase notification requirements. For more information on these notice requirements, see IRS Publication S-3026, "How to Stop a Rent Violation." It's available free by dropping a postcard to your Internal Revenue district office. Q--What procedure must a public utility follow before it can raise rates?

A--Price increases are subject to approval of the state or local regulatory body that controls the particular public utility. If the regulatory body has received a certificate of compliance from the Price Commission, then any decision made by the regulatory body is binding. If a regulatory body has not received a certificate or if the certificate has been revoked by the Price Commission, then decisions on rates are subject to the Price Commission review.

Q--Are there any special provisions in the stabilization regulations for organizations which are exempt from income tax?

A--Prices and wages of tax exempt organizations are controlled; however, the dues paid to these organizations are exempt. Also, the proration and reporting requirements are waived in certain instances.

Take Care Of Your Canine

Advances in veterinary medicine have led to increased longevity for pets but special problems still crop up in older animals either as a direct or indirect result of aging.

An older dog may suffer from a variety of major and minor ailments that do not formally afflict younger pets. Among the most important problems are kidney disorders, deafness, arthritis, eye disorders, prostatitis and abdominal swelling.

Kidney ailments, ranging from too frequent urination to an affliction in which the dog retains his urine, are quite common in older dogs. A common disorder is nephritis, an inflammation of the kidneys.

If your dog appears thirsty and drinks more water than usual, it may be a sign of nephritis and you should take him to your veterinarian for diagnosis.

Deafness is also common in older dogs. But precautions can be taken either to postpone or avoid it.

If your dog begins to turn his head in a strange manner or paws persistently at his ears, you should suspect an infection, though his ears might only need a good cleaning.

Remember that you can do irreparable damage to the dog's ear if you dig into it yourself. So if the difficulty appears even mildly serious, consult with your veterinarian immediately.

Arthritis is another ailment which the older dog may suffer from. One way to help is to keep him away from cold, wet or drafty places. Your veterinarian may recommend medication or injections to alleviate the pain.

Almost all dogs will have some cloudiness in their pupils as they grow older. This is called nuclear sclerosis - a natural compaction of lens fibers that usually decreases vision though not to the point of blindness. Cataracts are a more serious problem, usually resulting in blindness or very limited vision.

If your dog hesitates to jump on his favorite chair or balks at entering a darkened room, examine his eyes. If you see a bluish discoloration he may have a cataract and professional treatment will be required.

In the older male dog, there is the problem of an enlarged prostate known as prostatitis. The enlargement of the prostate gland may lead to difficulty in urinating. If a dog cannot urinate, his bloodstream will retain toxic substances that can spread throughout his body. So if you notice your dog is having difficulty in passing urine, you should go immediately to your veterinarian.

Any abdominal swelling that is more than a collection of fat (obesity is also a problem in older dogs) should be brought to the immediate attention of a veterinarian.

The swelling may be a result of a heart or liver ailment. Or it may be the result of an accumulation of tumors. The swelling is rarely a condition that will clear up by itself. Delay in treatment may jeopardize your pet's chances of recovery.

There are many other ailments - major and minor - that afflict older dogs. The most important thing to remember as your dog grows older is that owner awareness and regular checkups are the keystones of a successful geriatric program.

If your dog has regular checkups, you can be reasonably sure of protecting him against serious ailments. And if you take him for an examination as soon as you suspect something is wrong, you will be able to bring most ailments under control.

PASSING THE TORCH
The space program has brought immeasurable benefits back to Earth. These have shown up in terms of better materials and design of consumer products, in new techniques and tools in medicine and surgery, in improved management procedures and quality control.

The chief executive of one of the nation's leading aerospace firms, the company to build the space shuttle, has described the profession of engineering as "... a bridge for putting to use, for the benefit of all mankind, the total knowledge of the world." His company has been a leader in bringing the benefits of space technology back to Earth. But if the technology necessary to maintain the security of the nation, solve our social and environmental problems and move to build a better life for people everywhere is to be developed, it must be carried forward in the next generation by the young people who are choosing their careers in high schools and colleges today. The industry leader describes the work which his company is doing with public school systems, with student groups at the college level and with universities and technical schools to broaden...

It is this kind of creative thinking and work by leaders in the aerospace industry which will help assure our national security and in the long run build dedication and pride of student awareness and understanding of the importance of technology and social problems in the students' minds.

achievement in young minds now developing. It is the next generation that must in its turn create the technology and gain the realistic understanding of social and political problems required to move ahead toward a better life for all people.

SHORTAGE OF COMMON SENSE
This nation is needlessly facing an energy shortage. This fact is emphasized by Dr. Wilson Laird, director of exploration for the American Petroleum Institute. He notes that reserves of oil and natural gas are "becoming critically low", but that the U.S. is nevertheless not running out of oil and gas. What is needed is more exploratory drilling.

Dr. Laird states that, "We have, still in the ground, almost four times the amount of oil and gas that we have produced throughout our history. But we have been living off our available reserves for some time now, and they are becoming critically low." He further observed that only 2 percent of the Continental Shelf surrounding the U.S. has been touched by exploratory drilling -- yes, "We currently get 17 percent of our total oil and natural gas from marine wells... At the present time, many companies are awaiting approval of leasing bids for additional water acreage in the Gulf of Mexico..."

Dr. Laird offered a number of recommendations that would help steer the country away from the peril of an energy shortage. He called for expediting the movement of gas and oil from Alaska, the creation of a climate that will encourage investment and exploration in drilling, and the building of a balanced approach to energy-resource development that will give recognition to economic, environmental and national security goals. Achieving these things will take a great deal of common sense. It is time the American people and their representatives in Congress and elsewhere show some of it.

KNOWLEDGE GAP

Too many of the nation's youth envision the businessman as an individual who spends his time grubbing around for more and more of those delicious profits, oblivious to the needs of mankind. Although this picture is tragically out-of-date, one out of five high school seniors "think our free enterprise system is so bad it needs to be completely overhauled," according to a White House Conference survey cited by Mr. Louis W. Menk, chairman of Burlington Northern Inc. He said, "Obviously our young people are seriously underinformed. I think the American free enterprise system, as effective as it has been, should expand its public information efforts immediately and begin a nationwide program designed to open communications with the great mass of American high school youth."

Profits have never been the only goal of the dedicated entrepreneur. But the trick is to instill understanding among those of the younger generation of how private enterprise satisfies the most fundamental desires of man. Only when youth takes to heart the fact that profit - making private enterprise operating in a free market works better than anything ever before invented to fulfill all aspects of human need will we have the makings of leaders with the knowledge and foresight to build a better world for us all.

MAXIMUM FREEDOM OF CHOICE

Promotional techniques of individual retailers are constantly changing. For example, much has been heard in recent years of the growth of "discounting." In simplest terms, this is but another form of promotion. Some merchants push discounting--advertise the elimination of all frills and emphasize bare bone price cuts--for the same reason that other merchants turn to other forms of promotion. They seek a competitive edge.

But this is only part of the story. In the fluidity of the free market, other merchants take other steps to offset the attractions of discounting. Of late, independent stores seem to have been turning more and more to trading stamps. For instance, in the area of Philadelphia, according to "Supermarket News," trading stamps just about faded out as larger chains turned to discounting. But now independent supermarkets--and smaller chains--are introducing trading stamps as a means of meeting the competition of larger discount merchants. One such independent merchant notes, "I feel trading stamps in a supermarket contributes something different to the business. Stamps can make a total impact on sales. They can create a new image for a market... A certain number of food customers still like stamps, and they will come into the market that offers them... We've been able to generate a volume increase of about 20 percent overall, from giving out stamps."

The important thing for consumers to remember is that it is the flexibility of the free market which makes the American economic system work, and it is the constant interplay of promotion and advertising, blended with changing consumer demands that preserves market flexibility. Out of all this, the consumer retains maximum freedom of choice.

ROUND THE TOWN

by Sylvia Lohoefer

Just in time for the 1973 classic - SUPER BOWL, by Marty Ralovsky of the New York Times. This book is an illustrated history of the curious combination of sport, pagentry, money, and mayhem, with a section comprised of statistics, records, and directory of every man who appeared on a super bowl team.

J. Frank Dobie liked to write about people who were interesting. His wife, Bertha Dobie, has compiled a collection of his stories in OUT OF THE OLD ROCK.

I NEVER HAD IT MADE, by Jackie Robinson is an honest autobiography by one of the great baseball stars of all time.

Helen Hayes and Anita Loos met and talked with all kinds of people, in all kinds of places to learn about and write about New York City. Their book, TWICE OVER LIGHTLY, is the spirited account of their explorations.

ADDICTY, A DOCTOR'S ODYSSEY, by Dr. James Dewitt, is the story of his addiction to drugs and alcohol and his return to a sane, and respectable life assisting young people who need help with drug and alcohol problems.

For the "do - something" crowd, we have two new books on crochet - VOGUE GUIDE TO CROCHET and THE FAMILY CROCHET BOOK. Also, HANDMADE RUGS FROM PRACTICALLY ANYTHING, by Jean Ray Laury; HOW TO PAINT ANYTHING - the complete guide to painting and refinishing - by Hubbard H. Cobb; and WITH LOVE AND ELBOW GREASE - a guide to antiquing and decorating - by Elizabeth L. Browning.

Fiction: SPEAK TO ME OF LOVE, by Dorothy Eden; THE INNOCENTS, by Margery Sharp; WITNESS FOR THE CROWN, by Richard Gordon; AUPRES' de ma BLONDE, by Nicholas Freezing; THE CAMERONS, by Robert Crichton; and GREAT WESTERN SHORT STORIES.

In the South, woods arson destroys nearly half a billion trees a year.

Wildfire in the South. There's no future in it.

Nearly half of all forest fires in the South are set on purpose. By woods arsonists - kids out for a thrill or grown men carrying out a grudge with matches. Last year alone, it amounted to over half a million acres of senseless destruction. If you think this is nothing to be proud of, let's put a stop to woods arson. Now

Raisins 'n Spice Make Cookies So Nice

Packaged instant oatmeal with the raisins and spice included makes them so easy to prepare! What a quick way to get extra nourishment into those lively pixies who live at your house. Oh, but you're a nice mommy, they'll say as they munch away. Are Raisin Spice Cookies a labor of love? Not really — there's more love in these than labor. And what could make a busy mother happier? (Note: Big daddies seem to love them, too.)

RAISIN SPICE COOKIES

- Makes 3 dozen
- 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
 - 1 egg
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla
 - 1/2 teaspoon soda
 - 1 teaspoon milk
 - 1/2 cup shortening soft
 - Three 1 1/2-oz. pkg. instant oatmeal with raisins and spice, uncooked
 - 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
 - 1/2 cup granulated sugar

Heat oven to moderate (375° F.). Sift together flour, salt and soda into bowl. Add shortening, sugars, egg, vanilla and milk. Beat until smooth, about 2 minutes. Stir in oatmeal. Drop by teaspoons onto greased cookie sheets. Bake in preheated oven (375° F.) 10 to 12 minutes.

MISS LAMONA SUE CHAMP

Champ Announces Engagement

The engagement of Miss Lamona Sue Champ to Terry Eugene Martin is being announced by her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Lamoin Champ, 821 Preston, Burkburnett.

Terry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin E. Martin, 1908 Huff, Wichita Falls, Texas.

The wedding will be May 25, 10 or 11 or anytime during the day on January 11.

Vernon Regional Junior College Sets Spring Registration Jan. 10-11

Registration for the 1973 Spring Semester at Vernon Regional Junior College will be held on January 10 and 11 from 8:30 through 12:00 a.m. and 1:30 through 4:00 p.m. in the Student Union Building on the VRJC campus.

Students whose last name begins I through Z will register on January 10, and students whose last name begins A through K, plus students who missed the previous day, will register on January 11. Evening only students may register from 7:30-9:30 p.m. January 10 or 11 or anytime during the day on January 11.

Students who are required to take the American College Test and have not done so may report to Room C131 in the Academic Science Building on campus Tuesday, January 9, at 1:30 p.m. to take the Residual ACT. A fee of $7.00 will be collected at the time of the examination.

Students registering should park in the north parking area on campus, and begin registration at the north (rear) door of the Student Union Building.

Make Your Good Health Resolutions In 1973

It's that time of the year again when people all over the country sit down to write their New Year's resolutions. Or if we don't do that, we at least think about ways to improve the quality of our lives and attempt to accomplish certain goals. Texas health officials urge you to place "good health resolutions" at the top of your list this year.

Here's some thoughts on resolutions for you and your family, from the Texas State Department of Health.

Promise to give your body at least as good care as you give your car. Periodic examinations are the best way yet devised to detect bodily disorders while they can still be treated successfully, so let your doctor look you over thoroughly at least once a year whether you're ailing or not. Make it twice yearly if you're middle-aged.

Dental troubles may not kill you, but sometimes they can make you wish you were dead. So check in regularly with your dentist, too.

Too much weight contributes to high blood pressure, and may be associated with hardening of the arteries and various forms of heart disease. Also, it means impaired vigor, greater surgical risk and greater danger from otherwise minor illnesses.

A good, approved exercise regimen will keep your body in shape, tone up your heart muscles and put the spring back into your step. There are many pursuits which people of all ages may undertake in order to get the needed exercise.

While jogging might be all right for some, brisk walking may be recommended for others.

The statistics linking smoking to cancer and heart disease continue to pile up, and it is tougher and tougher to rationalize the habit. If you still smoke, now's the time to quit. Resolve also to impress the health hazards of smoking on the minds of teenagers in your home.

When driving, consider that every other car is being driven by a madman, and when walking trust motorists only as far as you can see them. Never mix drinking and driving. Most vehicle deaths stand far above accidental deaths of all other types.

Resolve to take full advantage of every advancement in medical science aimed at benefiting you and the family, but always on competent medical advice. Start by checking the immunization records of your entire family as a safeguard against diseases and their complications. Remember, certain immunizations are now required by state law for all school children.

Getting plenty of sleep is another resolution which will be of benefit. In the rush-and-pace of modern living, an individual may overlook the importance of rest. But it is essential if your body is to recharge itself after a day of activity.

Nutrition goes hand in hand with proper rest. To provide your body with the essential nutrients to make it function properly and most efficiently, proper diet is necessary. Our stores are crammed with different, tasty and nutritious foods, so resolve to put the proper ones on your table.

Promise to obey local and state laws pertaining to health protection. For example, if your town has a dog leash law, adhere to it. It is a public protective device and you are the public. If you own pets, be certain they are kept in good health.

Last but not vitally important, give an occasional thought to such awesome problems as water conservation, pollution abatement, juvenile delinquency, drug abuse and the growing number of elderly people in our society. Lend your support as a responsible citizen to community efforts to solve them.

Your health should be of great concern to you. So get the good health habit by putting some healthful resolutions to work. You'll be happier, live longer and enjoy life more.

BULLDOG BASKETBALL

In The Spotlight
Player Of The Week
Danny Nix

NOTE: Danny Nix is a fine example of the talented cagers at BHS and along with his teammates the Bulldogs are off to a good start in District play by crunching Stephenville 65-55. The Informer Star will feature some of the outstanding Bulldog players each week as the Birk team continues to rack up wins.

"I like basketball a lot and I hope that I can continue playing in college with a scholarship," reflected Danny Nix, Varsity BHS basketball player who has racked up as much as 34 points in a single game for the Bulldogs.

Danny has been playing team basketball since seventh grade. He has played throughout his four high school years, with two years on the junior Varsity team. This year he plays guard for the Birk Round-ballers. In college he hopes to major in Physical Education and eventually to become a coach.

"I think the team is doing really good this year, we've only lost twice and I am hoping we take the District Crown," he commented.

Danny was recently elected captain of the Birk team along with Mike Miller and Larry MacMahill. He also serves as President of the senior class and is a member of the Student Council.

Since Danny is planning a collegiate career in basketball and because he has a strong determination to help the Bulldogs win the District crown in basketball he helps aide the already spirited team. The very fact that he was chosen as a captain exhibits the praise of his teammates as to his fantastic performance in the Pampa Tournament where he scored 34 points. All the individual effort he displayed and of course the vital teamwork exhibited by the entire squad helped Burkburnett gain the gigantic trophy now on display in the trophy case at BHS.

Guidelines of Life

THE FORWARD LOOK by J.E. Dement, Pastor, Church of God

There is much said these days about the "Forward Look" in the fields of industry, medicine, engineering and manufacturing, as well as in practically every other enterprise that pertains to the development of our economic and political life. We are truly living in a push button age, and as we stand at the threshold of a new year, we cannot help but wonder what the days will bring forth. In practically every nation they are crying "peace", and men of great renown are desperately working toward a federated world, which they believe to be the solution to the sickness and disease that has thrown society into a caldron of despair. While they cry "peace and safety", we find there is no peace but "sudden destruction cometh". What is our "Forward Look" for 1973? Have we forgotten the things which are behind, and are we looking forward to those things which are ahead? As we stand at the brink of the future, we sometimes ask "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" Always remember Christ is the answer to all our problems. Many we look forward to the future with hope in Christ to lead and guide us in the sure path.

Bringing The Outdoors into Your Room

The greening of America is with us everywhere! Plants are enjoying a big business boom and have taken to every room and corner of the house as decorating focal points. Fresh plants and all that go with them are the symbol of endless summer. The back to nature basics are evidenced everywhere as accessories not only in plants but in wood, straw, rope and countless other natural materials. One material that has improved on nature, much to home decorators and "do it yourself" addicts delight, is simulated brick. Here it's pictured in a corner-pocket park that's easy to duplicate in any room of a house or apartment. Here's how:

First, select a room with at least two hours of good sunshine. Decide how many plants you can realistically care for. The number and size of your plants will determine how big a corner park you'll need. Cover the corner flooring with heavy-duty plastic bags, the type used for refuse or leaves. This will protect the floor from leaks or spills. Next, cover the bags with stones. These are available from garden supply centers or from your own backyard, although white stones do look best. The stones will contribute to sustaining humidity if plants are frequently watered and misted, a step essential for all healthy greenery.

In selecting plants remember you don't need to spend a fortune to achieve a lush look. The illusion of large plants, usually quite costly, can be achieved by inverting a large bucket or waste paper basket, placing a plant on top of it and then masking the container with additional greenery. Small border bricks and circular tree trims are available at lawn and garden centers, housewares and hardware departments. Send for a free pamphlet detailing the corner garden and other clever decorating ideas. Write Home Service Center, Dept. P, Rubenmaid, Inc., Wooster, Ohio 44691.

To finish the garden and make it picture perfect, take long strips of border bricks and line both sides of the stone area. Work from the stones out until you have built up four or more rows of bricks. This gives a decorative effect to your garden. Since the bricks are easily cut with household scissors you can change the size of your garden at whim. Border bricks are washable and their appearance will not change from water marks.

Weekly Health Tip from Joe Gillespie

Have you heard about lecithin? Reliable claims are that it tends to reduce cholesterol levels, eliminates liver spots, relieves dry skin and psoriasis, stimulates sexual vigor, relieves arthritic pain and improves brain activity. Lecithin is found in vegetable oils, egg yolks, liver and soy beans. It is available in granules or powder; one or two teaspoons can be added daily to cereal, soups or stews.

Walnut trees with figured grain throughout the trunk are found only at rare intervals. Only about one tree in a thousand has a grain that is more or less figured.

NEWS OF NUTRITION

THE IMPORTANCE OF VITAMIN B6

Without proteins, we would be unable to sustain life. And without vitamin B6 -- known scientifically as pyridoxine -- we would be unable to use these vital "building blocks of life."

Vitamin B6 has many important roles in metabolism, particularly in the formation of certain proteins and in the use of fats. It also aids functioning of the nervous system.

Present in meats, grains and vegetables, vitamin B6 is only needed in minute quantities for good health. It is believed that about 2.5 milligrams daily should be enough for most adults.

Recent tests indicate that women who use birth control pills may develop a much greater need for vitamin B6 than women who do not use them. As a result, a special dietary supplement has been developed that not only contains 25 milligrams of pyridoxine, but also other vitamins and minerals women who use oral contraceptives are known to need each day. The new supplement is now available at drug counters everywhere.

Unheralded and, for the better part, unknown to the general public, pyridoxine is one of the more important vitamins required by human beings.

Tammany Hall, an American patriotic society which developed into a powerful political machine, was named for Tammany, an Indian chief.
