Straight From The Shoulder

Self-criticism may be a virtue...up to a point. But, when selfcriticism leads to confusion and loss of confidence, it is hard to lege Station this week transactfind much victor in it. And what is true of individuals must also Self-critivism, the habit of running down and discounting the principles and institutions of our Republic may account for our seemingly aimless drift in domestic and international affairs. So as far as the struggle against communism is concerned, both at home and abroad, Harliee Branch, a leading business executive and an outspoken believer in the American system, declares, "We shall never persuade 'uncommitted' people to adopt American institutions for which we ourselbes, display little enthusiasm or devotion; nor shall we influence others to reject socialism if we appear willing to foster and finance socialistic institutions not only abroad, but in our own land. Let's face it: We shall win this struggle only if we succeed in preserving our basic social, political and economie precepts; and we shall lose it, regardless of apparent diplomatic or military successes. If we end up with a governmental and economic system which is increty an inutation of the one we claim to resist.

Nature abbors a vacuum, and an excess of self-criticism is: currently leading as into a self-detecting philosophical vacuum.

10 YEARS AGO

(January 5, 1928)

During the month of December preceding the new term of District Court there have been more divorce cases filed than ever before within one month in Haskell County.

Fifteen cars of cattle were shipped from this city Saturday to the Kansas City Markets by Swenson Brothers from their ranch east of the city. A. J. Swenson was here looking after the shipment. This was a select bunch of cattle and will doubtless bring the top price in the northern markets.

A business deal involving two of Haskell's largest mercantile Taylor, daughter of Mr. and establishments was consummated last week when the Grissoni store was purchased by Courtney Hunt and Company, annonneement of which was made the latter part of the week.
