-YOUR FARM BUREAU-

A major objective of Farm Bureau policy is to create conditions which will make it possible for farmers to earn and get a high per family real income.

The problem of maintaining prosperity in agriculture is exceedingly broad and complex and involves many different lines of action not only in agriculture but also in other fields.

Price supports are an absolute necessity, but should be flexible enough to give adequate protection without stimulating production beyond demand. At the same time a support price should be maintained high enough for profitable production, thus avoiding an economic depression.

In recent years, a great deal of political wind has been expended about the support program. Reams of material has been written on the pro's and con's. Little has been said or written concerning acreage allotments. In fact, the laws setting up acreage controls have not been changed since 1937.

The Texas Farm Bureau farm program recommendations were for a flexible price support program based on overall cropland production with no acreage allotments for individual commodities. However, the present law includes acreage controls on basic commodities.

Application to the Federal Communications Commission for a grant to operate on maximum power was filed Friday by Wichita Falls Television, Inc., (KWFT Television, Channel 6) according to Kenyon Brown, president.

"We anticipate favorable action by the FCC within 30 days," Brown said.

"When we begin operation on the new power, service to the area already covered by Channel 6 will be substantially improved," he said. "The maximum power operation will increase our primary service area by 20 to 25 miles."

The area now covered by KWFT-Television is approximately 50 miles in radius.

Farmer-Stockman Cites Two Towns In Wichita County

The communities of Friberg-Cooper and Clara-Fairview last Thursday were honored with scrolls and cash awards for winning first and second, respectively, in the Farmer-Stockman Texas Rural Neighborhood Progress contest in District 3.

In the county to present the awards with appropriate ceremony were C. T. Richardson, of Dallas, editor of the Farmer-Stockman and E. C. Martin, administrative assistant of the Texas A&M Extension Service.

Thursday afternoon Richardson presented a scroll and a check for $75 to Mrs. Lois Crane, chairman of the Clara-Fairview community organization. Other officers are Mrs. E. J. Simons, vice-chairman; Wilbur Prechel, secretary. Twenty-six families in this area participated in the contest.

Participating in the afternoon program were Fern Hodge, district home demonstration agent, Vernon; Kathryn Sands, Wichita County home demonstration agent; Nellie Cobb, assistant H. D. agent; Glen Dunkle, assistant county agent; B. T. Haws, county agent; Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Simons, Jim Snoddy and Newt Crane.

Willie Morton was awarded the scroll and a $100 check following a picnic at the Friberg-Cooper community center. All the county officials also attended the fete there.

Editor Richardson highly commended the community residents and reminded them that 75 per cent of the nations leadership comes from rural areas.

He cited the purpose of the program . . . to preserve rural communities . . . and said the most important place in the world is the home neighborhood, that is the "only place in the world where everyone counts one."

During the evening, Paul Berend presented Morton with two trophies won by his sons in stock show competition. One went to Frank Morton who exhibited the champion steer at the Wichita County show and the other to William, who had the champion calf at Fort Worth. These trophies were given by Ralston Purina.

From where I sit... by Joe Martin

If You Can't Lick 'em—Join 'em

Just back from visiting with my daughter's family—and playing Grandpop to two of the cutest kids you ever saw. While there I picked up a couple of new ideas on child raising:

If your child's learning to use a pen, provide an old fountain pen—filled with bluing. Looks and writes like ink, but won't stain clothes or furniture.

Maybe you have a boy, like my grandson, who thinks he's too old for a bib—but isn't. A big cowboy bandana works just as well, and looks he-man to boot.

From where I sit, getting along with children is like getting along with grownups—it requires effort to see things from the other person's point of view. At my age, there's no accounting for tastes. Take my neighbor who keeps a parakeet and drinks coffee in the summertime. That seems strange to me... a man who's partial to hound dogs and cooling glass of beer. But I'd "childish" to say it was wrong.

Competitive Retailing Seeks Lower Cost

Everybody who reads 'Lil Abner knows that at last automation has hit Dogpatch with a vengeance. Mammy Yokum has developed a revolutionary hot dog machine. You just dump the ingredients in one end and an endless hot dog comes out the other, all ready to eat.

Nothing this remarkable actually exists, but at a food retailers' convention in Cleveland some startling glimpses of things to come were on display. Machines are available which can do practically all of the manual tasks in a food store. An automatic wrapping machine operated by one attendant can wrap forty packages of meat a minute. An automatic molding machine makes hamburger patties, sausages, mock chicken legs, or boneless veal chops right in the store, and it can turn out 2,100 hamburger patties an hour in almost any thickness or shape desired. Automatic scales print the exact weight, price and type of meat for self service operation marking. There are automatic baggers which weigh out and bag any desired amount of produce. The bad check artists are being taken care of by a new machine which photographs the cashier of a check from the waist up while simultaneously microfilming the check.

Once again our competitive free market system is working to give a better deal to the consumer. Store mechanization provides greater food variety and shopping convenience, along with the lowest possible price.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

TEMPLE, ARIZONA, DAILY NEWS: "The United States of America were visualized as so many republics, determined on handling their own affairs and looking to the Federal Government only for interational policy and guidance in matters of astrictly national character. We have moved so far away from that original principle that we have reached a point where all powers begin and end in a Federal government... It's a sorry come down for the American heritage; and if it isn't to sink any lower, people had better begin getting up on their hind legs and speaking up for it."

LEESBURG, FLA., COMMERCIAL: "There is little logic behind all the to-do about regulating and price-fixing gas production. Federal price controls show no promise of doing the job that competing private enterprise has done. What they do seem to promise is less gas supply by curtailing the necessary financial risk taking in gas exploration—a logical result of the uncertainties and confusions arising from absentee, over-all management by a bureau in Washington."

NORWALK, CONN., HOUR: "Earnings are being ploughed back into the business for expansion to a greater extent than ever. Competition for new markets compels the growth."

Still No "Guaranteed" Wage

Whether you consider it an example of industrial statesmanship or a long step toward socialism, Walter Reuther's GAW victory sets off another price spiral. In the case of Ford, Mr. Reuther estimates the "package" he won for his workers at 20 cents an hour, which includes, in addition to the epoch-making lay-off compensation plan, annual increases of six to eight and a half cents an hour for the next three years, a boost of nearly 17 percent in the creased cost of living allowance, a liberalized pension plan and increased employe insurance.

Thus, the contest is on among all the other unions to equal—or surpass—this United Auto Workers victory. That many will succeed seems a foregone conclusion. But how lasting this labor triumph remains to be seen. Most economists see in this new principle of company responsibility for laid-off workers a burden that small businesses can not carry, and hence an accelerated wave of mergers and an ultimate big business economy. With this will come that step-up in automation which Mr. Reuther himself views with so much alarm.

And while Mr. Reuther is quite right in his insistence that industry must look upon its workers as consumers, and that their purchasing power is vital to a healthy economy, there are even more millions of us whose pay is not boosted by union pressure tactics. When prices go up, we buy less. And no matter how high union wages are, there is less work to do.

Perhaps the automobile industry can deliver its new "package" to its workers and the same package, at the same price, to its customers. But certainly there are not many industries that can boost the payroll and not the price tag. If union leaders are genuinely concerned for the welfare of their members, they will temper their enthusiasm for Mr. Reuther's "victory".

Bring Home the BACON...

Do you "bring home the bacon" in the form of a regular pay envelope or check? Make sure that you KEEP a healthy slice of it for the future benefit of your family and yourself. Best "home for the part of your "bacon" that you aim to hold on to is in your savings account, where interest can add steadily to its size. Decide how much you can reasonably expect to save each week. Then faithfully deposit that amount in your account first thing every payday.

4-H Dates Set For August 4th

The Wichita County Joint 4-H Camp has been set for August 4, 1955. The 4-H Barn will be the scene of this event. Details are to be worked out by the county council executive board, junior leaders, and the district camp delegates under the guidance of the county agents and home agents.

The eight boys and girls who attended District Camp June 13-16 at Buffalo Gap were: Leighrene Thomason of Electra; Janelle Vollmer, Bill Kolter and Ralph Swinford of Cooper-Friberg; Richard Hinkle, Karen Prechel and Charlotte Simons of Burkburnett; and Norman Jones of Wichita Falls. These boys and girls will act as leaders in planning and conducting the county 4-H Camp which will offer all 4-H boys and girls of the county an opportunity to learn of safety, citizenship, swimming, crafts and recreation. Plans are to have Mr. Wilson from West Texas Utilities of Abilene here to end the one day camp with square dancing. Mr. Wilson was at Buffalo Gap with the District Camp and can teach anyone to square dance. A large group is expected to attend this joint camp so that they can go back to their 4-H clubs this coming year as better members.

August 9, 1955 has been the date set for the Wichita County 4-H Dress Revue. Special workshops were set up by Nellie S. Cobb, Assistant Home Demonstration Agent to help 4-H girls learn to sew, and with their sewing problems, so that they can plan and make garments to model in the Dress Revue.

The first of these workshops was held at Valley View High School May 27-June 6. The current workshop is being held at Valley Farms Community House. This workshop will end July 1st. July 11-18 a sewing workshop will be held at Electra for the girls of that area, and for the 4-H girls in and around Burkburnett one will be held July 22-29th.

Girls under 14 years of age will model in the Junior division and girls over 14 will model in the Senior division, and from these girls a participant or participants for the district Dress Revue will be chosen. Wichita Falls has been chosen as the place for District III Dress Revue to be held August 24th and 25th.

A 4-H Dress Revue is a rich experience for 4-H girls as it gives them a chance to learn about modeling the accessories they have chosen to wear with the garments they have made.

Charles Dickens

By R. D. Laney
As a boy one of the first to be read by me was "Twist." It is a remarkable story of the young novelist's life, already in his credit a number of including Pickwick, Oliver Twist, Nicholas Nickleby, David Copperfield, and the Old Curiosity Shop. . . .

their moments of strength, his stronger ones their vulnerable points. He was also able to show up, and effect correction of, social evils, without fostering hatreds. His love of people endeared him to all stations. For the death of good American literature during the first 150 or 200 years of white history of the country, apology is needed less than explanation. A new nation, like a new-born baby requires time before its special characteristics become discernible. Doubtless a distinctive American literature could have been postulated at the moment when the first permanent colonist set foot on American soil, yet generations had to pass before the emergence of those particular traits known as American. It was Washington Irving's admiration of Dickens works which led to his first visit to America, and the two of them at that time put in motion certain ideas about which they felt very deeply, regarding international copyright although the protection they desired for all writers, in all countries, was slow in developing. Dickens said, "I hope the time is not far distant when they, in America, will receive of right some substantial profit and return in England from their work and when we, in England, shall receive of right substantial profit and return in America for

ed by the time he returned in 1867. His notes show that he was profoundly impressed by the conditions of the mill girls in Lowell Mass., no fewer than 978 of whom were depositors in the Lowell Savings bank. He spoke warmly of the courtesy showed him by custom officers. Boston, he said in a letter to a friend, "is what I would like the whole United States to be." As for the whole United States the toast with which he completed his famous copyright speech was "America and England—and may they never have any division but the Atlantic between them!" It was Prof. William Lyon Phelps, Yale's famous orator, who once said, "When I read Dickens I feel as if, after having been out in a cold wind, I have come back to find a warm home and firelight." If you have read the works of this great novelist you will probably agree that none are better.

Members of the Boston Branch of the Dickens Fellowship, with headquarters in London, have kept the "memory green" by enacting the scenes of the novelists two visits to America, by dramatizing, from time to time, some part of his books. The interesting book, Dickens' Days in Boston, by Edward F. Payne, who for many years was president of the Boston branch, and diaries, records and old newspaper clippings reveal the impact of "Boz" on the city and explain the nickname the New York wags invented in "Boz-Town." Although his American Notes, based on that first visit, might have annoyed some readers, they nevertheless found much to approve in America. And the problem he attacked most violently, slavery, had ceased ed by the time he returned in 1867. His notes show that he was profoundly impressed by the conditions of the mill girls in Lowell Mass., no fewer than 978 of whom were depositors in the Lowell Savings bank. He spoke warmly of the courtesy showed him by custom officers. Boston, he said in a letter to a friend, "is what I would like the whole United States to be." As for the whole United States the toast with which he completed his famous copyright speech was "America and England—and may they never have any division but the Atlantic between them!" It was Prof. William Lyon Phelps, Yale's famous orator, who once said, "When I read Dickens I feel as if, after having been out in a cold wind, I have come back to find a warm home and firelight." Q—I am working for my Master's degree under the World War II GI Bill. My school does not offer a language course, and yet I need it in order to fulfill my Master's requirements. May I take a language course in a different school? A—Yes, so long as your school specifically designates the courses to be taken at the second school, and so long as the credits you receive will be accepted at full value.

Q—A friend of mine is a paralyzed veteran eligible for a $10,000 VA grant for a "wheelchair house," especially adapted for his needs. Would he also be eligible for a regular GI home loan to apply on the remainder of the cost of his house? A—Yes. The fact that he obtained a $10,000 VA housing grant would not deprive him of his GI loan benefit.

as sprays and more economical. Baits containing chlordane or toxaphene give quicker and longer killing action than sodium fluosilicate baits. The formula for poison bait is: Mill-run bran—25 lbs. Sawdust, three times the volume of bran, 3 1-2 bu. Chlordane, 1-2 lb. Toxaphene, 1 lb. Sodium fluosilicate, 6 lbs. Water to make a moist, crumbly mash, 10-12 gallons. Spread wet bait uniformly at the rate of 20 pounds per acre.

Check Crops Now For Grasshoppers

Wichita County farmers are urged to check their crops for grasshoppers, and to spray if necessary. Grasshoppers are doing lots of damage to alfalfa and cotton in the county. The time to control this insect is while it is small, according to B. T. Haws county agent.

Sterling Hayden Heads Three-Starred Cast in Republic's "Eternal Sea"

Sterling Hayden, who stars with Alexis Smith and Dean Jagers in Republic's stirring drama, "The Eternal Sea" shows at the Palace Theatre July 1 and 2, became an actor largely thru the faith and efforts of newspaper man.

In 1940 Sea Captain Sterling had just lost his ship in a storm. His friend, Tom Horgan, of the Associated Press in Boston, sent a photo of the ruggedly handsome Hayden to Paramount executives in New York.

Under contract, he made two Paramount pictures, "Virginia" and "Bahama Passage," both starring Madeline Carroll. But having taken Hollywood by storm and become a sensational box success, he quit it just as rapidly in September, 1941.

"Everybody treated me wonderfully, but I just had to get up and go," is his explanation.

Hayden is a native of Montclair, New Jersey, where he was born on March 26th. His family was well to do and both parents were of old American stock. His father, George Walter, advertising manager for a New York newspaper, died when Sterling was nine years old. His mother, Frances Simonson, native of Brooklyn, later married J. Watson Hayden.

When Sterling quit school he worked for a while on private yachts, then transferred to fishing boats. He earned the rating of able seaman, sailing off the Nova Scotia banks and fighting heavy weather for meager pay.

'Strategic Air Command' in Vistavision Reveals U. S. Super Striking Air Power

The cloud of secrecy surrounding the world's most awesome striking force is dramatically lifted by Paramount's tremendously vital film "Strategic Air Command," showing July 3rd at the Palace Theatre. The closely guarded gates that until recently remained shut to the public have swung open to give the nation its first full-scale look at the incredible planes and men of our top-secret atomic air arm. So important is this story, that Paramount cast it with six of its brightest stars—performers who by their proven dramatic ability were certain to give the moviegoers an excitingly revealing yet realistic, true-to-life portrayal. Heading the top flight list are James Stewart and June Allyson, and co-starred along with the two sweethearts of "The Glenn Miller Story" and "The Stratton Story" are Frank Lovejoy, Barry Sullivan, Alex Nicol and Bruce Bennett. No more stirring group of entertainers have ever been teamed in a single motion picture, and judging by the overwhelmingly enthusiastic reactions of some of the most distinguished audiences ever to preview a film drama, no finer or more grippingly authentic motion picture has ever been made. "Strategic Air Command" is not a war story. It is, in fact, the greatest peace story of the past decade. For the branch of the Air Force its name is entrusted with the preservation of the peace—by maintaining a destructive potential so fearsome that no nation will dare to attack us. It is of the special breed of men who have shouldered this toughest flying job on earth that "Strategic Air Command" treats—the men, and the women who wait for them and the fantastic planes that carry them.

James Stewart heads a six-star cast in Paramount's vitally important "Strategic Air Command," coming July 3rd and 4th to the Palace Theatre. The Vista Vision and Technicolor drama is the thundering story of the fabulous men and planes of our atomic air arm.

Is Your Car In Safe Driving Condition Now?

Traffic accidents are a disgrace to this country. Last year they claimed 36,000 lives. And the great scandal is that in most cases they are unnecessary. More care, more alertness, more respect for the rights of others, would eliminate the great number of accidents. Particularly inexcusable are the accidents which grow out of inadequate vehicle maintenance. Just how many accidents fall into this category can never be statistically established because in many fatal accidents the car, or cars, involved are so badly smashed that pre-existing repairs cannot be determined. But in spite of this fact, accident reports show that a significant number of vehicles involved in fatal accidents have one or more unsafe conditions. Very often such conditions can be present in an apparently normal car. Last year, in a voluntary, nation wide vehicle safety check program in which more than one million vehicles were inspected, one out of four vehicles checked was in need of maintenance attention to one or more parts affecting safe operation. In many cases, the automobile owners did not suspect this need. Obviously, then, the only way a driver can be sure his vehicle is in safe operating condition is to check and double check. It's a very simple matter to check for surface danger points. The driver himself can do this. Excessive tire wear, loss of brake efficiency, lights that are not working properly, and other obvious danger spots can be easily detected. But no driver should be satisfied with these surface checks. He should have his car checked regularly by a qualified mechanic. On these checks, the following points should be carefully checked: Headlights, read and stop lights, brakes, tires, steering mechanism, windshield wipers, muffler and exhaust system, window glass, horn and rear-view mirror. "Check your car, check accidents." is a pretty short sentence but it contains the only solution to one important segment of the traffic accident problem. An hour's conversation with a wise man is more helpful than a dozen books on the same subject. Call 52 For Your Printed Needs

Summer Feeding For Livestock

Protein supplements, minerals and plenty of roughage form the necessary combinations for keeping livestock healthy and growing during the dry, summer months when green grazing is short. Too many producers overlook the protein supplement and mineral part of this combination, according to B. T. Haws, county agent. Livestock need more than dry grass, often times the only feed available in mid-summer. Haws suggests supplementing the roughage, whether it be dry pasture, baled hay or bundles, with two pounds of cottonseed meal or cake for each animal daily. Research has shown that 41 percent protein supplements are the most economical to feed. Granulated salt and steamed bone meal supply the necessary minerals Haws, says. These may be fed free-choice separately or in combination. By creep feeding, producers can lighten the load on mother cows and market heavier calves. Start the calves on oats, Haws suggests, slowly reducing the oats and adding corn. When all green grazing is exhausted, the addition of 10 pounds of cottonseed meal to each 100 pounds of grain mix is recommended.

AUSTIN Highlights

A 95-page audit documenting investigations of irregularities in the Veterans Land board has been released by State Auditor C. H. Cavness.

Cavness emphasized through his report the need for additional field supervisors and investigators, who can check continually to prevent irregularities in the $100,000,000 loan program.

The audit covered the period from Sept. 1, 1951 to Jan. 4, 1955 (the last day Bascom Giles was commissioner of the General Land office and chairman of the veterans Land Board.)

Land Inquiry Shifts After winding up its sixth week of investigation before Justice of the Peace Travis Blakeslee in Austin, the court of inquiry into overall operations of the General Land Office moved to Corpus Christi.

Twenty land office geophysical inspectors stationed in Corpus Christi will be questioned there this week.

Rains Boost Crops Unusually favorable moisture conditions throughout Texas have brightened the crop outlook considerably, says the U. S. Department of agriculture.

Feed crops have made good development, according to USDA reports. Corn prospects are especially promising. Cotton prospects are "very promising."

Rains in scattered areas of central, eastern and northern Texas interrupted the harvesting of commercial vegetables, tomatoes in Central Texas and onions in North Texas.

Crops larger than last year are predicted for cantaloupes, onions, potatoes and watermelons.

Turnpike Bonds Biggest issue of "municipal" bonds in Texas history, was sold in Austin at an interest rate fractionally above 1.9 percent.

Several investment groups joined in buying the $58,500,000 revenue issue of the Texas Turnpike Authority, first of its kind in Texas, and re-offering them to the public.

News From The Congress

By FRANK IKARD

There has been much discussion in recent months concerning the need for strengthening and tightening the insurance laws in this state. About 25 bills have been introduced in this session of the Legislature to bring about improvements in the insurance laws, and several of them will pass.

It is well to remember that there are many kinds of insurance, among them are life insurance, fire insurance, health and accident insurance or any of the other types mentioned. The safest insurance from the policy holder's standpoint is usually in a company that has ample reserve to take care of just claims. This matter of how much reserves brings on argument. Most insurance companies can pay claims under ordinary circumstances, but when some unexpected event occurs, like the San Francisco earthquake and fire, which caused a loss of $300,000,000 in a single day, it is easy to understand that such large and sudden losses may strain the ability of some companies to pay just claims. An atomic bomb explosion could do the same thing.

Furthermore, there are some types of insurance companies that are not required to accumulate big reserves to meet emergencies. It is therefore a matter of common sense and sound judgment for a purchaser in insurance to learn something about accident insurance, automobile insurance, hail and windstorm insurance, burglary insurance, fraternal insurance, and still others. A law which applies to life insurance would not fit fire insurance which he plans to take out a policy. There are various types of companies, known as old line legal reserve stock companies, limited legal reserve stock companies, mutuals, both local and statewide, fraternal insurance societies and still others. Some of these companies do a big volume of business and are well managed; others which do a limited volume of business are also well managed. In fact, good management is essential in insurance matters just as it is in other types of business, and the better the management, usually the safer the company.

In keeping with the constitution, most of the laws passed at this session of the Legislature will become effective 90 days after adjournment. Quite a number of companies are being organized now before the new laws go into effect, and some of these companies may not have as much reserve as sound business judgement requires. Under the new law they must bring up their reserves to the required standard at some time in the future if they continue in business.

While the laws which are being passed thru the Legislature now are helpful and will safeguard the policyholders more than has been the case in the past, yet there is still need for the purchaser of insurance to choose a sound, well managed company rather than to shut his eyes and take out a policy without knowing something of the financial background and the ability to pay claims of the company from which he buys a policy. This is a most complicated problem, due to the various types and kinds of insurance that the public needs and should have and also due to the various types of companies that are trying to supply this need. It may require further improvement in the laws at the next session of the Legis-

The traditional Easter gifts make excellent centers of attention for children's pictures.

Easter Sunday Is a Day for Family Pictures

Ever the herald of Spring and the season of hope—Easter to most of us means a wonderful day when the whole family can get together in a round of happy activities. And if you feel as we do, that also means a fine time for you to have your camera ready to snap pictures that will help you relive those pleasant hours long after they are over.

Besides the Easter Parade of the family in their new Spring suits and bonnets, there is a whole parade of other picture-taking possibilities among the day's events—all of which deserve their place in any family album worth its weight in snapshots. First, when the youngsters wake up (it'll probably be the crack of dawn!), there's their excitement over the Easter Bunnies that have left for them. Then, it's still the children's shining hour when they have their Easter-egg hunt on the lawn or in the living room—with the breathless winner getting his well-earned special prize. All these should provide natural poses and expressions without any effort on your part. No need to say "See the birdie—or the bunny" on this day! Your wide-eyed small fry will be star-performers practically any moment that you choose to snap them.

Going to church, greeting minister and friends after the service, strolling along in the colorful Easter Parade—these are more pictures for you to capture. Here Mother or Dad should step out of the role of family photographer and ask a friend or neighbor to pinch-hit, so that all the members of the family can take their rightful places in front of the camera.
