The rest home will be called Clear View Lodge and it is located at 1504 North First, facing highway 24. It is being constructed by R. W. McConnell Construction Company, Inc., also owner and operator of the rest home.

With a 226 foot frontage, the building will contain 17,500 square feet, with sufficient space for 48 beds. The single-story, wagon-wheel type structure will have a pre-cast exposed aggregate and styrofoam installation with a concrete roof. It will be fire-proof and centrally heated and air conditioned. With plastic 3-dimensional flooring, Clear View Lodge will have a therapy room, beauty shop and barber shop, with plenty of off-street parking and recreational areas. Each bed will be equipped with a nurse alarm. McConnell is the owner of the Hillcrest Lodge at Snyder, and part owner of the Shady Oak Lodge, Abilene.

At full capacity, the home will have a staff of 25. The administrators and staff will all be local people, and local labor and material for the rest home is being used, McConnell said.

Prices will be regulated by the state, since it will be a licensed home for the elderly. "We are fortunate to be able to purchase the site here from Mrs. R. F. Pittman," stated Mr. McConnell, "for we believe it will be one of the most beautiful rest homes ever developed by our company."

R. W. McConnell's wife, Belle, is a former resident of this section of the state as she formerly lived at Ft. Worth.

Construction of the rest home is expected to be completed around the first of the year.

The minimum age for operating a five-brake horsepower motor scooter was raised to 15 years," the guest speaker said.

"Upon conviction of driving without a license, a motorist is subject to a fine of up to $200 for the first offense and increasingly stiffer penalties for each successive conviction. Any person who is convicted of driving while his license is suspended or revoked, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $25.00 nor more than $50.00, and shall be imprisoned not less than 72 hours nor more than 6 months," Terrell pointed out.

TAX MAN SAM SEZ:

Since 1954, Dads have been able to claim a dependent child as a tax exemption even though the student worked during the summer and earned more than $600 and was required to file a tax return. Last year, IRS made a check of the most common telephone calls and the fourth most common question—accounting for 6% of all telephone calls was the question: "My son made more than $600. Can I claim him as a dependent?" The answer is, Yes—if he is a bonafide student and a bonafide dependent. The son can also claim his own exemption on his return.

$8 Million Cotton Research And Promotion Program Is Approved

"This gears us up for one of the most intensive campaigns ever waged by an agricultural commodity to expand its markets," the president of the Cotton Producers Institute declared today upon approval of an $8 million cotton research and promotion program for 1968.

Russell Giffen, Fresno, Calif., pointed out that the grower-financed program approved by the Secretary of Agriculture doubles the industry's direct investment in cotton research and promotion.

He emphasized, on the other hand, that it is not a new venture but "represents a significant augmentation of the work now being carried out by the Cotton Producers Institute and National Cotton Council."

"Ability of the cotton industry to attract matching funds from those with a mutual interest in various areas of research and promotion—plus activities already being carried out by public and private agencies—promises a total effort three or four times that represented in the CPI budget," Mr. Giffen added.

The $3.3 million promotion budget of CPI calls for more than 200 ads in 20 national magazines, magazine-retailer projects, a much larger volume of advertising in conjunction with stores at the local level, and manufacturer-retailer and trade ads.

Heavy promotion of cotton piece goods, apparel, and home furnishings will be continued with major retail chains. There will be an expansion also in television and other projects.

Advertising will point up cotton's superiority in comfort, maintenance, appearance and durability and stress these benefits to the consumer.

Ten problem areas are listed in the $2.7 million research budget: (1) insects, (2) diseases, (3) weeds, (4) yield-quality, (5) mechanization, (6) processing-handling-marketing, (7) mill product development, and (8) cottonseed.

Approximately $800,000 is allocated for improving the quality of cotton textiles and textile products—particularly durable press cottons. Another $400,000 is budgeted for research aimed at strengthening cotton competitively in such markets as suits, sheets and pillowcases, work trousers, and floor coverings.

Initiated in 1961 as a division of the National Cotton Council, the original Cotton Producers Institute has been dissolved and its programs assumed by a new organization of the same name.

Its Trustees represent all cotton states and were chosen by more than 50 certified producer organizations in a series of state meetings.

Made of entirely of cotton growers, the Institute earlier this year was designated the producer organization to initiate and develop a cotton research and promotion program. This is in accordance with an order approved by growers last December in a referendum.

As in the case of the original CPI, the staff and services of that National Cotton Council will be used to carry out the activities. This follows action by the Council's Board making the staff available to service the program and a unanimous request by CPI Trustees that this relationship be continued.

The program is being conducted under a CPI contract with the Cotton Board. This Board is made up of 20 members and an equal number of alternates chosen by participating cotton producer organizations. It receives all funds paid in by growers.

Collection of $1 per bale from growers, as provided in the Cotton Research and Promotion Order, became effective on bales produced and ginned on or after June 10, 1967. "Collecting handlers" designated by the Cotton Board remit direct to the Board.

ETERNAL FLAME NEEDED HELP

DURING THE 5TH CENTURY A.D., fire worshipers near the Caspian Sea visited shrines where "eternal flames" seemed to burn without need of fuel. The hoax was exposed in 1900, when excavation of one of these shrines revealed a secret clay pipe leading from a crack in the altar to a natural gas reservoir.

THE CHINESE WERE AMONG the first people to learn that natural gas can be used as fuel. By 1000 B.C., gas from wells they had drilled to depths of 2,000 feet was being used to heat brine, evaporating it to salt. They transported the gas through pipes of hollow bamboo.

TODAY, MOST GAS PIPELINES are still hidden underground. But not in secret; the 750,000 miles of lines now in use in the U.S. constitute the nation's largest privately-owned transportation system. And the pipe is steel, first in strength and dependability for over fifty years.

Rolling Plains Cotton Growers Make Recommendations for 1968

A national production of 12.8 million bales, at the very most, could be expected under the kind of 1968 cotton program recommended in Lubbock this week at the USDA hearing. More than likely less than 12 million would actually be raised. The majority of growers speaking at the meeting advocated leaving the program as it is and simply lifting the penalties now levied on skip-row planting patterns to get increased production needed to service cotton's markets in 1968-69 season.

"But there is another side to the coin," said Charles Stenholm, executive vice president of the Rolling Plains Cotton Growers. "That far too often we farmers fail to look at that side that deals with the future, not just next year."

The market off-take for 1968-69 is now expected to total about 14.2 million bales including 9.4 million bales in domestic channels and 4.8 million for export uses. Carryover stocks, now expected to be at a normal level of about 7 million bales by the start of the next marketing year, will contain no significant cushion in the more desirable qualities.

These and other factors mean next year's crop must be adequate to meet domestic and export demands in various quality ranges or cotton will lose markets to foreign growth or to synthetic fibers, according to many reliable sources. And market loss by such default may be gone forever. This is the key policy area where cotton differs in large measure from such commodities as wheat and feed grains.

"Export markets are the real key to the future of a healthy cotton industry, especially here in the Rolling Plains," said Stenholm. "70% of the cotton we grow ends up in export markets. From 1956 to 1960 U. S. exports averaged 6 million bales per year. From 1961 to 1966 U. S. exports averaged 4.3 million bales. Had we maintained our exports at the 1956-60 rate we would have never built a surplus of cotton that caused our current dilemma."

"Now," continued Stenholm, "we have the real opportunity to regain our share of the world market but we find that the tight supply of longer staples and resulting higher prices are already raising foreign producers to boost their acreage. With better yields than last year, foreign production may go up a million bales, even though wider price differentials among qualities may result in short staples comprising a greater portion of the exports of American cotton during the next season.

"I hope that our farmers will stop for a moment and examine the past, present and future of cotton," said Stenholm, "before arriving at any conclusions regarding the 1968 program. Many of our farmers apparently have grown to like planting 65% of their allotment in cotton. They have indicated they want to continue doing this while getting full federal payments and temporary price rises that could be expected when government policies create shortages."

"But what kind of future are we building for cotton when we spend a dollar a bale for building U. S. markets, we clamor for a six million bale export of cotton so that we may regain world markets and then say we do not want to raise the cotton to sell in 1968? Our price problem is a short term problem but decisions made now can affect us greatly in the future."

To achieve a sound healthy future for the cotton industry, RPCG testified in Lubbock that adequate supplies of all qualities of cotton must be maintained in 1968. However, if farmers interests are kept foremost in mind, any changes in the cotton program or 1968 must be made using restraint, good judgment and fair-mindedness. With this in mind, RPCG made the following recommendations for 1968:

1. That exports during the 1967-68 year total at least six million bales.
2. That skip-row planting be allowed without penalty.
3. That mandatory diversion be kept at 12.5 per cent of allotted acres.
4. That voluntary diversion be allowed of no less than 12.5 per cent of allotted acres with full payment.
5. That government programs that give away U. S. cotton should to the greatest extent possible encourage the use of these qualities of cotton in surplus.
6. That projected yields for all States, counties and individual farmers be fairly administered in 1968.

Incredibly Complex Construction Is Underway At Site of HemisFair

Spearheading one of the most massive building booms in Southwestern history is the incredibly complex construction now underway on some $50-million worth of massive pavilions and exotic lagoons on the 92-acre site of HemisFair 1968, at San Antonio.

Much of the work in progress is on the $10.5 million City of San Antonio Civic Center, the $10 million Institute of Texas Cultures, and the $6.75 million United States Exhibit.

Construction starts are scheduled this summer on many of the major industrial pavilions, such as General Motors, Ford Motor Co., IBM, General Electric and others.

Pavilions for the thirty foreign governments expected at the Texas World's Fair are either completed or nearing completion.

Plans for the exhibit and the entertainment that will occupy these structures are keeping pace.

Visitors to HemisFair between April 6 and October 6, 1968, will find 92 acres of enchantment and excitement. Exhibits and food from many foreign lands, new entertainment from throughout the world and the many constant wonders of modern exhibit will greet the expected 7.2 million visitors.

Soaring above it all will be the 622-foot Tower of the Americas, the tallest observation tower in the Western Hemisphere, with its revolving restaurant giving diners a panoramic view of the international exposition and the South Texas countryside.

Construction on the concrete spire has reached the 450-foot mark and is creeping up at a rate of 10 feet per day.

Latest foreign government to announce participation plans is Venezuela, which joins previously announced Mexico, Spain, Switzerland, Peru, Bolivia, Panama, Honduras, Canada, Philippines, Republic of China, Tunisia, France, Nicaragua, Germany and Korea. A total of 30 nations is expected.

Major industrial exhibitors include the Coca-Cola Co., Eastman Kodak Co., Ford Motor Co., General Electric, General Motors, Gulf Insurance Group, Humble Oil and Refining Co., IBM, Lone Star Brewing Co., Pearl Brewing Co., Pepsi Co., Inc., and Southwestern Bell Telephone (with American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and Western Electric).

Much of the exposition's current workload is involved with planning the vast and varied entertainment program and the amusement area of the exposition. Music will range from opera to rock, and will include many folk groups from the participating nations. All of the entertainment will be new, and most of it will be free.

Ingenuous and fascinating rides which have never been seen in this part of the world will be featured. Some will be imported from Europe, some from Expo '67, and some will be designed especially for HemisFair 1968.

The Good Earth

By Mrs. B. F. Cobb

As there are several classes that call for dried arrangements, now is a good time to collect specimens of dried materials for the coming flower show to be held in connection with the Haskell County Fair, Dried Sour Dock makes interesting line material...this plant is plentiful around lakes and in damp places. The seed heads of dock are already dry and will require no time in preparation...just spray with hair spray to help prolong the use of the dock. Turpentine weeds are beginning to dry...these tiny seed pods (when painted) resemble a cluster of daisies. Bare grass (yucca) makes a seed pod that can be used in many ways in a dried arrangement. The pods are very attractive. (Continued to Page 2, Section 2)

DEAN MARTIN SLAPS JEAN SIMMONS IN "ROUGH NIGHT IN JERICHO" SCENE

Martin was a bit worried about his first-time switch casting as a deep-eyed villain in Martin Ruckin's production for Universal of "Rough Night in Jericho," in which his costars are George Peppard and Jean Simmons. Photographed in Technicolor, the dramatic adventure story comes Friday and Saturday to the Texas Theatre. In an abrupt departure from his customary characterizations he portrays a despotic town boss. When Miss Simmons attempts to thwart him he repeatedly slaps her so hard she reels and falls to the floor. In another sequence he overpowers her with sheer strength when she tries to halt a hanging. Anyway, the always mild-mannered and respectful-of-womanfolk Martin was so concerned that he actually might hurt Miss Simmons during their screen altercations that he put in his apologies well in advance.

Flags Is Open Only Weekends

Over Texas is now open on weekends, with hours on both Saturdays and Sundays from 10:00 a. m. to 8:00 p. m. This schedule will remain in effect until Six Flags closes for the season on November 26.

Previously the closing date had been announced as October 29. Mr. Angus G. Wynne, Jr., president of Great Southwest Corporation, owner/operator of the popular tourist attraction, said that "in order that Six Flags may comfortably handle the unprecedented large number of advance ticket holders as well as individuals expressing their desire for Six Flags to stay open through November as it has in previous years, we are extending the season for one month."

One of the highlights of the season at Six Flags Over Texas occurred recently on August 21 when the total number of visitors to the historical-theme park since opening in 1961 passed the 10,000,000 mark.

Executive Director of the Texas Tourist Development Agency, Frank Hildebrand, commented on the attendance milestone by saying, "According to surveys, Six Flags is maintaining its position as the most popular single tourist attraction in the State of Texas."

A STRENGTH OF FREEDOM

Although there are no two individuals alike in all the world, the human animal does have some common characteristics, both good and bad. One of the better ones seems to be that the greater the person's education and awareness of current events, the more anxious he is to express his opinion on issues affecting his life or his nation.

Judging by all the uproar that various minorities are raising in the United States about everything from the personal integrity of our highest public officials to birth control, civil rights and the Vietnamese war, it would appear that this country must be succeeding in educating and sparking the intellectual involvement of a good share of its citizens. Admittedly, not all of this protesting makes good sense and some may border on the downright illegal. But short of offending public decency or endangering the national security, the right of free expression of opinion is fundamental in our government system.

It seems likely that as the Soviets achieve their purpose of raising the educational level of their people, more Russians will want to think for themselves, and what is worse from the Kremlin point of view, express their opinions freely. In the age of mass education and communications, the human urge to express an opinion may gradually make inoperative the machinery of oppression.

The Sportsman's Corner

by Ted McCawley, Kinsington Wild Life Expert

During the winter months, woodchucks spend their time holed up in hibernation—except for their legendary annual February ritual of forecasting the duration of winter. By late spring and early summer, however, they are up and around, busily digging up farmers' fields and eating tender grass shoots. In fact, they are real pests to most tillers of the soil—hence their classification as varmints.

Today's farmer is getting a hand from a growing number of shooters who find varmints sporting targets without peer. Equipped with rifles specifically designed for the job, such as Remington's Model 700 "Varmint Special," they're helping to control these pesky and prolific creatures.

OUTDOORS -IN- TEXAS

By Vern Sanford

No artificial bait is superior to the real thing. Often, however, an artificial lure can be manipulated in such a way as to appear more life-like than the real McCoy.

But let's talk about live bait. Trouble with live bait is that too many fishermen simply put these natural baits on their hooks any old way. Then they cast them out, and expect the fish to grab them eagerly.

An important thing to remember about bait fishing is to use baits that are indigenous to the water in which you're angling. A frog might not produce a bite if fished in a spot where there are no frogs. But drop one in a pond where frogs are abundant and more than likely you will find a taker.

For example, let's consider the clear-running Llano River which snakes down through the granite and limestone country of central Texas. Two of the best baits to use in this stream, for both catfish and bass, are hellgrammites and crawfish. Both are plentiful here. You can find them around shallow riffles and by overturning large rocks. Both baits really pay off.

So, fish natural baits where they appear natural.

A friend from Brady was telling me about an incident on Brady Creek, a small stream near this central Texas community. He'd been fishing for catfish without success. Then one of his acquaintances came up the bank with a heavy stringer of channel cats. He said he'd caught them on jumbo yellow grasshoppers...which were profuse along the grassy shoreline.

My friend put a "hopper" on his hook and tossed it out. He had plenty of weight to carry it to the bottom. For about thirty minutes he fished with no offering. Then he happened to notice a grasshopper misjudge its flight and fall into the water. Immediately there was a fast swirl and the "hopper" disappeared.

Eureka! That was it! He reeled in, removed the weight and captured another lively grasshopper. He hooked it through the collar behind the neck, and pitched it into the current. Old "hop" gave a few frantic kicks on the surface then vanished in a swirl. From that one spot my friend picked up nine nice cats.

Answer, of course, was to fish the bait without any hindering weight so that it would appear alive.

Often you can take channel cats simply by halting earthworms on a hook and putting the bait right on bottom. Channel cat root along the bottom and feed both by smell and sight.

Black bass, on the other hand, feed visually. A black prefers something moving and alive.

To catch bass, take a large worm and affix it to the hook so its ends are free, where it can wiggle. Use no weight. Simply let the worm float with the current and brace yourself for action.

I've taken numerous bass by "free fishing" a minnow; that is, using it without any weight. I prefer a thin wire hook, about a 3/0. In this case the minnow should be large, about 3 inches long or longer. Hook it through the hips just behind the dorsal fin.

Toss it beside a submerged stump or alongside a weed bed and let it struggle as it winds.

The Good Earth...

Maize, corn leaves, wheat, oats, Johnson grass heads, canna leaves and corn tassels are all good for arrangements when fresh or dried.

Next month or not later than the middle of November there will be many interesting dried materials that will make beautiful arrangements for Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Driftwood makes attractive containers for both fresh and dried arrangements. Lots of interesting specimens can be found around the lake or along a creek. A stiff brush, clover, and a good paste wax are some of the things needed to turn a piece of wood into a thing of beauty. Scrub all dirt and rough pieces of bark off, leaving only the smooth wood. If a light wood is desired, soak the piece overnight in strong chlorine, or other bleach water. After the wood has dried it can be waxed to a gloss or with less rubbing the wax will leave an attractive dull luster that is natural looking.

If dahlias are to be exhibited, be sure to burn the stem so it will not bleed, or dipping the stems in hot water will give the same results. Be sure to condition flowers by emerging them in water that is so warm you can just hold your hand in it.

All woody plants can be split or pounded at the end before they are put into water. Never leave foliage in water when the arrangement has finally been made. Water soaked foliage causes quick spoilage and flowers wither faster. I am sure that all Haskell Garden Club members know all this, but without a reminder we often forget some important point.

Mrs. Carlton Couch, Sr. has worked long and hard on our new year book, knowing her love of flowers and parliamentary procedures I am sure it will be a very well prepared schedule of things to come in Garden Club Year. In spite of little rain blossoms. Let's make trees and shrubs the make Haskell know beauty.

Average Paycheck Higher, But Purchasing Power Is Lower

The average paycheck posted another high in July, after a similar performance in June, but its purchasing power remained below year-ago levels, the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported.

Gross weekly earnings reached a record of $102.14 for production and non-supervisory workers on private non-farm payrolls in July. That was $2.30 more than in July 1966, because of higher hourly earnings (up 10 cents to a record of $2.66). The average work-week, at 38.4 hours, was down two-thirds of an hour from a year ago.

Spendable earnings—gross pay minus Federal income and social security taxes—reached new highs of $83.60 for the average single worker and $91.10 for the worker with a wife and two children. In both cases after-tax pay was up about $1.60 since last July.

After adjustment for Federal tax deductions and higher prices, the spendable earnings of a worker with a wife and two children were down 1.0 per cent from July 1966. Real spendable earnings have been trailing year ago levels for 12 months in a row.

Despite the reduction in the average worker's purchasing power, total purchasing power has registered gains in 1967 because of rising job totals: 702,000 production and non-supervisory workers were added to payrolls (a 1.6 percent increase) over the year, raising their number to 45.5 million.
