It would be a fine thing if the Foderal Government would take fell advantage of the facilities Texas offers in carrying out the deiense building program. This could be done by sending more defense contracts down this way, where construction goes forward on schedule- where workmen and their employers get along - and where differences are ironed out without costly strikes. Texas' representatives in both the National House and Senate have strong arguments to present in sending Aransas Pass defense industry to their state, namely, that the state is comparatively free from discord; that labor agitators do not have the upper hand; that Texans, whether employee or employer, have a high sense of patriotism, and that they will get the job done.

We all want peace, says

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THE only persons who are happy today are those who believe in the infinite power and goodness of God, and who ask Him, with the faith of children, to bring good and peace and brotherhood out of the sad, mad tangle into which men have gotten the world.

This doesn't mean that only clergymen, rabbis, monks and nuns can claim today that inner sense of security and confidence we call faith. One doesn't have to renounce the things of the world.

But the worry and pressure of the times are so great that many women today don't dare stop to pray. They get themselves into absolute frenzies of fear, hate and resentment as they take in news reports, and argue breathlessly with anyone and everyone who will listen.

The talk that goes on at family dinner tables today is enough to disrupt even the most devoted groups. Father opines gloomily that democracy is dead and the country headed for ruin. Mother wishes that European nations had some sense, and had seen this cataclysm coming; then we would not have gotten into such a fix. Pamela is sure that if Mother and Dad just came down to headquarters with her every morning, they'd know that this is our war as much as it is England's. Grandmother says she doesn't know what America's coming to, when she has to ask some other nation humbly for permission to feed starving European children. And Tom, departing with his books for college, observes that democracy doesn't exist in any country in the world except in Russia. Gee, Professor Brown is swell when he tells them about Russia!

Makes Praying Difficult.

Under these circumstances, how hard it is to turn to prayer. The inevitable weary hopeless feeling en. But it does mean dismissing is. "if God is all power and all good, | all distressing and fearful thoughts why was this allowed to happen?'

Well, it wasn't "allowed" to happen. It is no accident, this seething horror of murder and hate in Europe. It is as much the logical fruit of what has been going on there for a thousand years, as the raging forest fire is the result of carcless campers, scattered cigarettes, abardoned fires. For a thousand years nations that should have been good neighbors and friends, nations whose sons and daughters have interchanged colleges, enjoyed the same sports and books and operas, influenced each other's pattern of clothes and manners, have been planning wars rather than cultivating peace. And after every war the "winning" nations have imposed conditions as cruel as they dared upon the "losing" nations. Taxes have been quadrupled, territory has been seized, customs rates and tariff costs cleverly adjusted to work the absolute ruin of the once liked and admired neighbor, and armies of occupation have moved in to maintain food blockades and destroy the selfrespect and the comfort of the conquered people.

For a thousand years! With no shelling peas for supper, confide peace treaty ever maintained, and them to God's keeping; give that each war more terrible than the time to thought of God's power.

Blind and Deaf Radio Operator Beats Obstacles

First Man So Handicapped To Get License 'Hears' Code Vibrations.

NEW YORK .- Leo Sadowsky, 21 who recently received a license as an amateur radio operator from the Federal Communications commission, although he is blind and a deaf mute, told through an interpreter how he achieved his ambition.

Mr. Sadowsky, interested in radio since he was a child, began studying to be an operator five years ago. A few weeks ago he passed the examination and became the first blind deaf mute licensed amateur radio operator in history.

Mr. Sadowsky was born deaf, and has never learned to speak. When he was almost two years old, he was playing with a salt shaker which fell to the floor and broke. A piece of glass struck the pupil of his left eye, making it useless. As he became older, the right eye, overtaxed, weakened, and at the age of 16 he became totally blind.

Teacher Discourages.

Five years ago, when he began study at the Institute for the Education of the Blind, his teacher, Robert Gunderson, tried to discourage him from radio work, saying that the subject would be almost impossible for a deaf person to master. He turned Mr. Sadowsky out of the class five or six times, but the youth refused to be dissuaded and his persistence eventually won Mr. Gunderson to his side.

Radio code signals were taught to him by means of a buzzer, on which he could lay his hand and feel a is also blind, prepared a special ing." course for him in Braille characters. Later he learned to receive short wave signals through a switch attachment which received radio signals and cut them from a frequency of 2,000 to 3,000 cycles a second to 200 cycles or less. The lower frequency caused a vibration which he could feel through his hands.

When he was ready to take his examination, a new difficulty came Government regulations state that short wave signals must be transmitted through earphones. It is difficult for Mr. Sadowsky to feel vibrations through earphones but he learned to do even this by a switch which received the signal and then relayed it by sending a 60-cycle current through the earphones.

Means Much to Him.

The fact that he is now a licensed amateur radio operator means much to Mr. Sadowsky. Until now their fingers on his palm. His own home radio set, which will soon be installed, will put him in touch with some 6,000 amateur operators all over the country. His station number is W2OFU. Other amateur operators have sent him their numbers, asking that he tune in and get acquainted. Through use of the Morse code he will have a wider contact with the outside world than he has ever known.

His present ambition is to perfect some method of making it easier for other deaf-mutes to use radio sets.

How R.A.F. Saved Legless Ace in 20,000 Foot Jump

LONDON. - Calling the episode the "most dramatic five minutes of the war," the Daily Express told how the Spitfire planes of legless R.A.F. Wing Commander Douglas R. Bader's squadron covered that ace's 20,000 foot parachute jump over German territory last month. Bader told his squadron he must leave his plane and his second in command promptly gave the order to "see him safely to the ground, nothing else matters."

"So as he floated down, the Spitfires spiralled around him in a protective coil, their circles ever shifting as he drifted with the wind lower and lower until he had only a few hundred feet to go," the paper said. "They watched him come to earth. They could do no more."

By agreement with the Germans. who captured Bader, the R.A.F. dropped another artificial leg to replace the one he damaged in the parachute landing.

Lady Gridder Is Match for Flirts

Mashers Invite Wrong Girl To Go for a Ride.

CHICAGO.-What Mr. Buttercup Whosis and Mr. Sneezy Gezunt never knew until too late about Miss Eleanor Koziel, 19, was that her professional training had made her more than a match for the two of 'em. And maybe a few more.

Eleanor explained the situationnot complaining, you understand, but just stating the facts—to Sergt. Frank Czech of the Racine avenue gendarmes.

Well, the sergeant is no stenographer, so he's not guaranteeing the exact words Eleanor used, but he quotes her like this:

'All I know about these punks is that I've seen 'em around the neighborhood and talked to 'em a few times and they call each other Buttercup and Sneezy-so Whosis is a good enough last name for Buttercup and Gezunt is a natural for Sneezy, ain't it?

Bumps Help Youth to Get On New York Fire Force

NEW YORK .- A man must be at least five feet seven inches tall to become a New York city fireman, so here's what Gino Franceshini, 18, did to extend his five feet 5% inches: He devised a canvas sling that he strapped under his chin, flung an attached rope over a gymnasium chinning bar and used it daily in pulling himself off the floor. He captured some bees, rubbed honey on his head and hoped they would sting him and thus raise mps-but the bees died, He placed a thin mattress on a floor and lay upon his back for nearly 50 hours "to relax my bones." Then he had his father and brother carry him stretched out on an improvised stretcher to the New York university gymnasium where the firemen's examination was being held. Just before he got off the stretcher he struck himself on the head twice with a wooden mallet and raised two sizable bumps. The man with the measuring machine informed the youth he had gained five-eighths of an inch, but still was a half inch below standard. Gino passed the other physical tests, however, and was given conditional approval-provided that he can stretch that other half inch within six months.

Robin Goes Aristocratic As Pet of the Household

ST. JOSEPH, MO .- Mrs. Fred Hoffman was playing golf recently and found a robin that had blown out of its nest during a rainstorm. She took the bird home and fed it hard-boiled eggs.

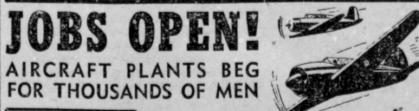

When the bird had recovered, Mrs. Hoffman put it in a tree so that it could fly away. The bird, which has been named Pete, refused to leave, hopping back to Mrs. Hoffman's door.

Pete's a regular boarder at the Hoffman home now and prefers hamburger, although the bird will eat a worm or bug caught by the neighborhood children. Pete refuses to have anything to do with other robins.

RADIO BROADCAST

FROM HYDE PARK.-We drove down to New York city after lunch one day and I had a visit from Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr and Dr. James Loeb Jr., who came to ask me to speak at a meeting. They allowed me a choice of dates in October or early December. October is already so filled with obligations and December is filling up so rapidly, that I had a very hard time deciding. I finally agreed that I would try to go, if certain conditions can be met, and if no one can be found who will do a better job than I.

Then I went over to the broadcasting station and went through the usual preliminaries of photographs and rehearsals. I wish my reading time would be the same at least twice, it would save the poor people who run these programs a great deal of trouble. As a result of the broadcast, I had a most entertaining telegram which reads: 'Face the fact that Communism and Democracy are not the same and see where that leaves you." It was signed: "An Isolationist."

DEFINITION OF DEMOCRACY

I must be very dull, because I thought I had made crystal clear that Communism and Democracy are not the same. I thought that I had given a fair definition of what Democracy really is! However, I am delighted to have an opportunity to say here that it seems to me that Democracy has one great advantage over Communism-it really requires the participation of every citizen in the choice of the people to fill government office.

Of course, it would be impossible to have a real democracy in a country which has not so far had, for at least two generations, free public school education and laws which protected people in their right to exercise fundamental freedoms of hought, of speech and of assembly.

Mr. and Mrs. "Isolationist," whoever you may be, facing the fact of this difference between Communism and Democracy, leaves me in just the position I was in when I made my radio speech.

ANOTHER NEW YORK TRIP

One day we caught the six o'clock plane for New York city and worked on my personal mail during an extremely smooth flight. I went home first, where I had a glimpse of Jimmie and Rommie, who were just starting out in their best bibs and tuckers to dine very gaily in celebration of her birthday.

Miss Thompson and I dined in a little restaurant on Sixtieth street near Fifth avenue, which we both like, and had a very leisurely and pleasant meal by ourselves.

The meeting called the next day by the Co-ordinator of Federal Security Services, Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, was a most inspiring occasion. It brings together not only the different agencies under that bureau, but all the other government agencies working in the area. Here were government representatives on a regional level, working out the problems which affected all their different agencies. Thereby, they accomplished results, which, if they had not met together once a month. probably would have taken weeks of correspondence finally to clear up.

In the afternoon, all the state officials joined the meeting. This meant that purely state responsibilities, and the points at which the state officials touch the federal gov- 3750 No. Booth St. ernment officials, could also become clarified because of personal con-

In addition, Lieutenant-Governor Poletti of New York state, state coordinator of civilian defense activities, and Maj. Gen. Irving J. Phillipson, representing the military interests of the area, were present. It seemed to me that this was as good a co-ordinating job as I had seen accomplished anywhere in the government.

Life is full of little coincidences, and I smiled when I thought that, only that morning I had read a letter which a young friend wrote from Bogota. She told most interestingly of the country and the life there and casually mentioned that they had been spending some very pleasant hours with Mr. Julian Bryan. Here I was looking at the picture made making pictures for a future film!

The other picture shown was done under the direction of Mr. Joseph Losey. It is a very charming picture of a nursery school in a rural area. Children are shown in all the activities that are possible in country surroundings. We see them at work and at play. The children range in age from two to seven years. It has no great significance, except that it brings the people who see it a realization of the value of the nursery school. This educational experiment is fairly new in our country. In Europe it has long been known.

LYNN SAYS:

An assortment of cookies, freshly baked and packed in tins with waxed paper between layers makes a delightful present for youngsters away at school and for friends you seldom see. When your own cookie jar has been filled to bulging, pack a few boxes from what you have and spread cheer to others, too.

Careful packing in tins with waxed paper will keep even small dainty cookies fresh for a long time. Some flavors like chocolate improve after they stand for some time. Chewy, nutty cookies are the more chewy and delicious after several days. Spicy cookies become moist and well flavored after standing.

What They Are

Just what is Form-what is Techthe matter up to P. Hal Sims, bridge lines through 40 years of competi-

"Form," says Mr. Sims, "is really style-the correct physical way of doing things. It is the popular as new champions come along with different ways of playing games.

"Technique is the best mathematical execution of form. I should say that technique is eliminating as much as you can the margin of error. It demands that you give more consideration to the percentage

"Tactics is the handling or direction of form and technique together. "Many times the failure to observe technique puts on added pressure. All the mistakes you make increase pressure. In bridge for example the first mistake you make in bidding or playing the hand will increase the pressure enormously. The same is true in golf, which opens with the tee shot. If you miss this stroke, you wade right out in the middle of increasing pressure.

The Many Angles

"I have always thought," P. Hal continued, "that Walter Hagen was always a master of technique and platter, tactics. Hagen's angle is this-a golfer plants his tee shot into the rough, partially stymied by a tree. In place of accepting the penalty he has incurred by a bad shot, he tries to save himself by some miracle attempt. The odds against this attempt may be 10 or 15 to 1. If he would play out safely and then gamble on one pitch and one putt, the odds would be much less. And the penalty much lighter. "How many average golfers will you see trying to play a wooden club from the rough. You'll see it often. They merely move from one trouble to deeper trouble, as a rule. By using the right technique they might still get a 4 on the hole or almost surely a 5. But overlooking the percentage matter complete-Most golfers could take away 8 or 10 strokes from their average rounds by using better technique.

The Case of Conn

"When Billy Conn met Joe Louis, Conn's boxing form was brilliant. "His foot action and his hand action was all that any one could ask. He made you think of style-just as Jim Corbett once did.

"But Conn's technique in the thirteenth round suddenly blew up. He had taken the lead because he kept moving around, giving Louis a shifting target. But in the thirteenth round he suddenly turned flat-footed and began exchanging punches with a much better puncher.

"Many will tell you Conn became flat-footed through the body punishment he had taken in earlier rounds. I don't agree with this for tion of 1/4 cups of bran cereal in the simple reason in the twelfth round Conn was at his best, swarming all over Louis. It was this round that made him so badly overconfident that he forgot all about technique and tactics. He overlooked Old Man Mathematics or Old Man Percentage completely. You couldn't blame him too much for this. It was the first time he had ever been within two or three rounds of a heavyweight championship. He lacked at this point the coolness and the experience needed to carry along a winning plan, which he actually had.

He Had the Odds

"There are those who say that Louis would have caught Conn anyway. Perhaps. But against much greater odds. Louis was almost sure to beat Conn in a toe to toe slugging match. The odds at slugging were 4 to 1 on Louis. The odds at longer range boxing were 3 to 1 on Conn. See what difference this makes? Things like this happen in sport every day-in every game. Better form can't win alone. It must have help from technique and tactics."

PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF THE ROCKPORT HIGH SCHOOL AS A SECTION OF THE ROCKPORT PILOT

Thursday, Oct. 16, 1941

First Publication of Student Newspaper Goes To Press

Why have school publications?

For the first time since the beginning of its history, our school is going to have a section in the town paper. All the articles will be written by high school pupils under the supervision of Mrs. Sone and C. D. Fulkes.

the school curriculum teaches the actual events in life about him. It line for the only extra point. provides abundant practice in definite planning. It develops judge- downs while allowing the Eagles the home and the school.

School publications will knit all the pupils together because it will be something that will be their own. It should make them proud to know that any outstanding thing they do will be published and appreciated by their fellow students.

This paper won't be all news, reports, and humor. There will also be an educational section consisting of book reviews, poetry, short stories, etc., written by the English

We think the students will enjoy this school publication because it will be of the students, for the students, and by the students.

An initial campaign which had been planned for a month or less to yield Leningrad, Kiev and Moscow had been going on for more than 17 weeks, and the yield had been Kiev.

Though knocking on the doors of Leningrad, entry had been denied, and there were many reports that this new plan of Hitler's to storm Moscow from a beginning distance of between 150 and 200 miles would call for the abandonment, for the present, of attempts to take the northern metropolis.

The observers, at the same time that they questioned the good sense of the all-out campaign for Moscow, admitted that if Hitler was to throw all his available forces into a blitz on the central front, Timoshenko's men would have to fall back, but whether Hitler could count on driving all the Russians out of western Russia before winter they believed to be dubious in the extreme.

There was a general feeling in Moscow that the attack was spurred on by desperation, that Hitler was feeling the effects of the unrest back of the eastern front, and believed he would have to have a big Russian victory before winter so that his front-line forces could be relieved to clean up the mess in occupied Europe, steadily becoming worse as winter approached.

This was the question of the alteration of the neutrality act.

The press was informed that the first congressional-White House conference on the bill was whether it would be advisable to take two bites out of the cherry or only one.

Would it, they discussed, be advisable to settle the question of arming merchantmen and extendng the right to American merchant ships to go to British ports separately, or both at once.

Were the question decided in the first method, congressmen asked to vote on Question A, whether merchantmen should be armed, would know full well that this question would be indissolubly linked with Question B, of whether they should dustry next spring, and many thouallow merchant ships to sail into would not be before them.

CHAPTER XXVI

From the Box 55 to Lee Hart's place it was eight miles across the hills. Jeff rode fast.

Before he had covered half the way to the hill ranch he heard the sound of firing far to his left. First a single shot, and perhaps a minute later two more. Though he listened for more, no popping reached his ears.

To Jeff there seemed something sinister in these breaks disturbing the silence? His imagination pictured a man peacefully hoeing a potato patch or mending a fence. From the direction of the report it might have come from Wade Scott's place. If so, Wade would probably have been whistling, his mind on a girl in Cheyenne who worked in the railroad restaurant, one he was expecting to marry in a few months.

Instead of taking the gulch he followed the rim, keeping to cover as he came close to the edge. Looking down, his gaze swept the clearing and picked up details. He saw two men crouched back of the barn. Evidently there were others in it, for as he stood there a puff of smoke came from the window opening in the hayloft. At least one man was stationed in the bed of the creek a hundred and fifty yards from the house. A shot from that point told him so.

There was a small alfalfa field to the left of the house. It ran to the draw leading up to the ravine. He could see the ditch crossing it in the direction of the house. Rank grass covered the edges. A wild idea jumped to his mind. Why not get into that ditch, crawl along it till he was close to the cabin, and make a dash to join the defenders?

Near the top of the ravine he picketed his horse, then moved down it cautiously. As he came round a bend in the gulch, he looked down into the little basin which held the ranch. Thirty yards below him a man crouched behind a large boulder, a rifle in his hands. He was watching the log cabin, evidently hoping to get a glimpse of one of the defenders. Lower down in the draw and fifty yards to his right another marksman was also waiting behind cover for a shot.

Jeff tiptoed forward, revolver in hand. He had not been a big-game hunter for nothing. No perceptible rumor of his movements reached the lank Texan toward whom he was soft-footing. Unwittingly the sniper helped at his own undoing. Intensely preoccupied with the job in hand, his mind was following a single track which led straight from him to the quarry in the cabin. When Brand was about ten strides from him he drew a bead and fired. As the rifle cracked Jeff flung aside caution and took the last stretch on the

The Texan whirled, too late. The long barrel of the .45 smashed down on his lifted forehead. His body swayed, and collapsed.

Nobody had noticed what had taken place. Jeff helped himself to the man's rifle and cartridge belt. He moved to the left and stepped down into the dry ditch he had seen from the bluff above. Crouching low in it, he crept forward. The alfalfa hid him, pretty well.

Crossing the field was a slow business. He went on all fours, dragging the rifle beside him. He was near enough the cabin to see lead fling splinters from the logs.

He called softly, "Hello the house," and when no answer came back to him he called again, more loudly. It was after his fourth atwered. "Who is it? What you want?" "Jeff Brand. I'm gonna make a run for the door. Fling it open for me when I give the word." There was a perceptible silence before the man in the house replied. "How come you there-if you're

Brand?' "Don't talk, you fool. Do as I say."

Jeff came out of the ditch running. From the edge of the valley he heard a shout. Somebody had discovered the Texan he had knocked out and was spreading the news.

The guns roared. He bowled over, all the power knocked out of him in an instant. That he had been hit he knew, though he felt no pain. Still clinging to the rifle, he tried to clamber to first thing. The darned fools are his feet. The ground tilted up at | crazy with the heat."

or two. The cabin door was flung open. Two men showed at the entrance. One ran toward Jeff, in long, reaching strides. The other covered the rescue, firing at the figures which had come into the open to get Brand. It was a matter of seconds. but they stretched interminably. The man reached Jeff, gathered him up, and plunged back toward the house.

They traveled at a road gait, not pushing their horses, for there was a long journey ahead of them.

When they talked it was mostly about a new enterprise in which they were to be partners. They had made an arrangement with John Q. Powers to buy the old Terry Ranch once owned by Calhoun's father, and with it a fine stretch of river land adjoining. Larry had lately inherited some money. This was to make part of the initial payment.

They came to the lip of a small mountain park and dipped down into it. Terry pulled up his cowpony and pointed to the opposite slope. A large body of men on horseback was moving down it.

"The Texas invaders," Larry said. "Yes, and we'd better get away from here," his companion decided. Too late, they wheeled their horses. The sound of a rifle shot roared across the park. Larry's horse went down and flung him. His friend raised the palm of his hand to give the peace sign, but the an-

"Yep. There's Lee down there with his stock. He isn't waiting to ask questions either."

"Don't blame him. He's on their list."

They reached the clearing, flung themselves from the horse, and raced for the cabin by the creek. Once inside, they slammed and bolttempt that somebody inside an- | ed the door. From the window Larry saw the leader of the regulators disposing of his men.
