Aransas County Tire Rationing Board Named Rockport To Join in Salvaging for Defense

PILOTING

You should have heard Joe Caldwell here Monday, all bundled up in top coat and muffler, boasting with chattering teeth about how "warm and sunny it is in Port Lavaca." Joe's the new Chamber of Commerce manager there, you know.

Cold, hard-blowing northers of the past week even when the temperature hovered right at the freezing mark, failed to stop fishing here. Probably, nowhere else on the coast can people fish with as much comfort in cold weather as around the "fish bowl" here. Here they can drive their cars right up to the edge of the concrete rim of the basin and fish while sitting inside. They caught 'em, too, right during the coldest weather. Six pounds was the largest trout we got a report on.

Since the past week has brought the longest spell of cold weather this season, trout fishing in the bowl here should be the best yet—and that is saying a lot when you take the Thanksgiving hauls into consideration. Bright warm weather the next few days should bring a great crowd of fishermen here to try their luck in the fish bowl. News of the fine after-norther fishing here has been spread all over the state through Chamber of Commerce releases to hundreds of newspapers during the past week.

What will happen to America after the war? How will we meet our rising government debt, change our economy back to a peace-time basis and continue with our job of making America into the best place to live in the world?

Such problems are causing grave concern in the minds of many Americans at the present time. In a recent speech Dr. Robert G. Sproul, President of the University of California, pointed out some facts that should reassure us on these points.

After the war, he said, "the land and its resources will still be here; all of the knowledge of mankind from the beginning of history to the present will still be ours. . . . Such adjustments as we may have to make in our social and economic scheme will not destroy our democracy as long as we preserve inviolate its central and fundamental principle of respect for and recognition of the dignity and worth of the individual."

That concept of the individual has always been one of the foundations of our freedom. Because of it we are able to work where we please, save our money or spend it, worship as we wish and enjoy all our other liberties. Whatever happens in the months to come, we must remember that and let nothing destroy it.

B. A. Frandolig Dies at His Home Tuesday Night

Death claimed Mr. B. A. Frandolig, 86-year-old retired ship builder and resident of Aransas County almost all of his life, at 9:00 o'clock Tuesday night at his home here in Rockport.

Mr. Frandolig was born in old San Patricio of immigrant parents and was one of Aransas County's oldest citizens.

Funeral services, under the direction of the Cape Funeral Home, were held on Wednesday afternoon, with interment at the Rockport Cemetery.

Surviving the deceased are four sons, George, Frank and Will, all of Rockport, and John of Houston; one daughter, Mrs. G. C. Tankers, one brother, Francis Frandolig of Aransas Pass; and one sister, Mrs. Frank Neal of Galveston.

Collection of Old Papers to Begin Soon

Citizens Will Be Asked to Bring Papers to Collection Center in City

Rockport citizens will soon be able to join in salvaging old newspapers in connection with National Defense and salvaging and conservation program, Judge B. S. Fox, vice-chairman of the Civilian Committee stated.

Judge Fox reported that the frame building formerly occupied by the Frank Wesche Sign Shop had been secured for storage of the old papers. A press for bailing the old papers will also be secured immediately and arrangements will be made for transfer of the paper to a collection warehouse in Corpus Christi.

Fred Booth, who is assisting the committee in making arrangements to handle the old paper salvage campaign, said that he had secured the volunteer services of a man to remain at the Wesche Sign Shop building each morning from 9 o'clock until noon to accept paper brought to the building.

It was reported that the building would be ready for collections soon, and all citizens are urged to save and bring their old newspapers and magazines to the collection place. Those doing so will be lending assistance in the program for National Defense by helping to conserve vital material.

Details on the campaign will be given from time to time.

Rockport Women Reach Home After Car Wreck

Miss Mattie Johnson and Misses Marie and Ellen Johnson returned to Rockport early Wednesday morning after a harrowing journey home from Chicago, where they spent their Christmas vacation.

Planning to start home early, the party left Chicago on Tuesday, December 30th, so that they would escape most of the snowy weather then starting. But just as they reached the outskirts of the Windy City, their car, unable to stop because of slippery, icy pavements, ran into a van stopped for a red light, and was badly smashed from the impact. None of them were hurt, and the car was insured.

Bystanders aided the women in moving the automobile nearer the curb, supposedly out of the way of on-coming cars, but before the wrecker could come from a nearby plant, a car approaching from the rear, also unable to make his breaks stop his car, smashed their back fender. The women were not able to leave Chicago until Sunday.

They state that it was 5 degrees below zero when they left Chicago, and by the time they reached Bloomington, Illinois, the temperature had dropped to 10 degrees below zero. Mrs. Johnson and her daughters drove constantly through deep snows until they reached central Texas, and found the weather particularly unpleasant for driving over the winding roads through the Ozarks in Missouri.

Welfare Worker to Make Hdqts. Here

Mrs. Lila Hagins of Dallas, field worker for Old Age, Dependent Children, and Needy Blind for Aransas, Calhoun, and part of San Patricio Counties, will make the Rockport WPA office her headquarters in the future, it was announced this week.

Mrs. Hagins is connected with the State Welfare Board and will be in her office on the 1st and 3rd Mondays of each month.

Jim Hooper's Death Great Shock To Citizens

One of the greatest shocks and griefs that the citizens of Rockport ever experienced came Monday morning when the news passed from phone to phone "Jim Hooper passed away at midnight." He had been ill about two weeks and while his friends knew his condition was serious, especially since developing pneumonia last Friday, he was reported better Sunday afternoon; so the news of his death came as a distinct shock.

James G. Hooper was born in Rockport 56 years ago and had lived here all of his life. For 30 years he had been in the grocery business, a member of the firm of Hooper Brothers. In 1914 he was married to Miss Mamie McMullen. He was a very active member of Rockport Lodge 323 A F & A M and served in the capacity of Worshipful Master twice. He was also a member of the Christian Church.

Jim was known and loved by all races and creeds, by every man, woman and child in Aransas County. His courteous manner, sunny disposition and unflinching sense of humor endeared him to all who knew him and his presence will be greatly missed. So greatly had he endeared himself to the community that more than one person was heard to say that they felt like a member of their family had passed away.

Surviving are his wife, two brothers, G. M. Hooper of Rockport and Charles A. Hooper of El Paso; and one sister, Mrs. William McIvaine of St. Paul, Minn.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist Church Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock with Dr. George West Diehl of Corpus Christi, assisted by the Rev. A. D. Jamison of Rockport, conducting the services.

Interment was in the cemetery with Dr. Irving Dietz of Corpus Christi acting as Worshipful Master. Pallbearers were Travis Bailey, S. F. Jackson, Paul Clark Sorenson, John Klaeser, Fred C. Dieckrich and Charlie Roe.

A large crowd of sorrowing friends followed the body of beloved Jim Hooper to his last resting place and his casket was covered with a veritable blanket of flowers.

Cruser Brothers Join Armed Forces

Two more of Rockport's boys placed their names on Uncle Sam's roll call when two brothers, Finley Cruser and Merritt Cruser, joined the armed forces. Finley enlisted with the United States Coast Guard on December 27th and will be stationed at Galveston, and Merritt enlisted Monday with the United States Marines. He will probably be stationed at San Diego, California, but this is yet uncertain.

Moths Know No Season

COLLEGE STATION, Jan. 7.—Homemakers who haven't taken precautions against moths will profit by giving all woens and furs frequent brushing, cleaning, sunning and airing, even in winter, to get rid of all moth eggs.

Cameron Siddall, Extension Service entomologist, explains that the moth knows no season. It goes by temperature. Warm houses give moths eggs a chance to develop, so that the best prevention is to clean out cracks and corners of closets and storage places often. Unusual articles should be packed in moth-proof containers.

Navy Department Goes On 7-Day Week

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The navy ordered full operation seven days a week in all bureaus, boards and offices of the Navy Department, as well as headquarters of the marine corps and the coast guard.

The various bureau chiefs were instructed immediately to arrange schedules of military and civilian personnel in carrying out the edict of Secretary of Navy Knox. Individual employees will continue to work a six-day 48-hour week, the seven-day schedule being effectuated by rearranging weekly schedules of the naval and civil service personnel.

First Meet of Inter-Allied War Council

First Meeting of Home Hygiene Class Held Here Tuesday

Eighteen Rockport women met at the District Court Room Tuesday afternoon in the first meeting of the Class in Home Hygiene and Home Nursing under the direction of Mrs. J. P. Hanway.

The class will next be held on Monday, January 12th, and thereafter on each Monday and Thursday from 1:00 to 3:00 until the course is completed. The coming meeting will be at the City Hall Recreation Room, weather conditions permitting, since the District Court Room will not be available hereafter. If the weather is too disagreeable for the meeting to be held at the City Hall, Mrs. Hanway's class will meet at her home.

The maximum membership for this course is twenty women, which number is already enrolled on Mrs. Hanway's list, but several classes are being planned to take care of all who wish to take the study.

John Brooks New Member Of Perch Club

John Brooks is a new member of Rockport's exclusive Perch Club—a full-fledged member, with extra honors.

The extra honors come because of time of his entry into the club. The temperature was down near freezing, and a cold norther was blowing.

Then, too, Brooks' initiation came with a beautiful plunge over the side of a boat that carried him under water to the other side of the boat.

There is only one requirement for membership in the Perch Club: fall into the basin with your clothes on. Hugh Morrison and Wiley Moss are charter members. Brooks, an employee of the shipyard, will probably claim an honor office because of the low-standing of the mercury when he took his initiatory degree.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Sale of defense savings stamps quadrupled in December upon the outbreak of war.

Secretary Morgenthau said sales which he said were due mostly to efforts of newspaper carriers and retail merchants, totaled $25,650,000 last month. This was four times the November sales and exceeded all the stamp sales in the six months prior to November.

120,000 Tanks Set as Goal By President

CONGRESS TOLD NATION TO SEND ARMED FORCES TO ALL PARTS OF WORLD; OFFENSIVES PROMISED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—President Roosevelt, assuring the nation of ultimate victory in "a bloody war," told congress the war program for the next fiscal year would require $56,000,000,000 to help produce 185,000 airplanes and 120,000 tanks by the end of 1943.

To hit the enemy "wherever we can reach him," Mr. Roosevelt said American armed forces would operate all over the world, including the British Isles and the Far East.

Cheered time after time in the delivery of a message to a joint session of the house and senate, the president told of vast production plans which, he remarked grimly, would give the Japanese and Nazis "a little idea of just what they accomplished in the attack on Pearl Harbor."

He disclosed these production plans:

1942—60,000 planes (10,000 more than the goal set a year ago), 45,000 tanks, 20,000 anti-aircraft guns, 8,000,000 dead-weight tons of merchant shipping.

1943 — 125,000 planes, 75,000 tanks, 35,000 anti-aircraft guns and 10,000,000 tons of shipping.

Cabinet members in the president's audience were Secretaries Perkins, Labor; Jones, Commerce; Wickard, Agriculture; Knox, Navy; Morgenthau, Treasury; Stimson, War; Attorney General Biddle and Postmaster General Frank Walker.

Spirit "Never Higher"

Admiring the tense legislators and others gathered in the crowded house chamber that America may suffer further setbacks in this war, the president asserted that American fighters will "give it back—with compound interest—to the Axis."

A page boy, sitting in the aisle, led his elders in enthusiastic applause as the president asserted that the Japanese had failed in their plan to stun the American people by the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

A noisy demonstration came when he said that the Stars and Stripes again would fly over the Pacific Isles of Wake and Guam.

The first outburst of applause came early in the speech when Mr. Roosevelt said that the nation's spirit "was never higher."

When he started to outline the nation's new production program, applause greeted his enumerations, and a low whistle arose from the floor when he spoke of 45,000 tanks this year.

The president diverted from his prepared text to say of the armament program:

"I hope that all these figures I have given will become common knowledge in Germany and Japan."

Handclapping broke out when the president said that he and Prime Minister Churchill of Britain understood each other. Mr. Roosevelt's wish for Churchill's safe return home was seconded by applause from the senators and representatives.

County Allowed 5 Passenger Car Tires; 13 Truck

Bullard, DeWhitt and Wendell to Handle Tire Rationing for County

In accordance with national requirements during the present emergency, a Tire Rationing Board has this week been appointed to act for Aransas County and Rockport, as announced by Judge B. S. Fox, early this week.

Appointed on Saturday, January 3rd, the new board started functioning on January 5th and consists of J. F. Bullard, J. E. DeWhitt, and R. J. Wendell. The official title of the new organization will be the Aransas County Tire Rationing Board, and their duties, though not known in detail until information comes from Washington, will be to ration the sale of tires for both passenger cars and trucks in this county.

This new board was appointed by Judge B. S. Fox and Mayor J. Ed. Moore, in accordance with instructions from State Headquarters, with a specific recommendation that a farmer from the county and two other resident citizens be placed upon it.

Oaths have not been administered to the new board members, and this will be delayed pending the receipt of the regular form from Washington, which is expected within a short time.

Tire quotas per month for Aransas County have been approximated at five tire casings and six tubes for passenger cars, and thirteen tires and about the same number of tubes for trucks. Rationing will be under the direction of Washington, through the new board.

Former Resident Dies in Houston

News came early Friday morning of the death of Mr. Howard Clarke, retired architect and contractor of Houston, son of the late Dr. John A. Clarke of Rockport and uncle of Miss Katie Lee Clarke, also of Rockport.

The deceased was reared in Rockport and was well-known by all of the old settlers. His death came as a sudden shock to his family, since he was ill just a short time before his passing.

Surviving Mr. Clarke are his widow and three grown children, two sisters, Mrs. Kate Ezell and Mrs. J. Purseley of San Antonio, and other relatives, including a sister-in-law, Mrs. Annie Clarke of Rockport.

Miss Harrell Resigns Position Here

Miss Jessie Lee Harrell, former teacher in the Rockport Public School system, left Sunday for Richland Springs, where she immediately assumed her new duties as teacher there. Miss Harrell resigned here after three and a half years of teaching, and her services not only as a teacher, but also as a church and civic worker will be sadly missed.

Richland Springs is the new home of Miss Harrell's parents, her father: is the pastor of a Methodist Church there.

Houston Man and Wife Back for More Trout

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Flood are among out-of-town anglers here who are undaunted by the cold weather. They were here last week end and took away 98 trout, besides their limits in ducks and geese killed before the season closed.

They couldn't resist the thoughts of good fishing here and returned for another try at them. Mr. Flood is owner of the Houston Seed Company.

John Brooks is a new member of Rockport's exclusive Perch Club—a full-fledged member, with extra honors.

Rockport Women Reach Home After Car Wreck

Mrs. Mattie Johnson and Misses Marie and Ellen Johnson returned to Rockport early Wednesday morning after a harrowing journey home from Chicago, where they spent their Christmas vacation.

Handclapping broke out when the president said that he and Prime Minister Churchill of Britain understood each other. Mr. Roosevelt's wish for Churchill's safe return home was seconded by applause from the senators and representatives.

SALE OF DEFENSE STAMPS QUADRUPLED DURING DECEMBER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Sale of defense savings stamps quadrupled in December upon the outbreak of war.

Secretary Morgenthau said sales which he said were due mostly to efforts of newspaper carriers and retail merchants, totaled $25,650,000 last month. This was four times the November sales and exceeded all the stamp sales in the six months prior to November.

Morgenthau announced previously that sales of defense bonds also set a record of $528,000,000 in December.

County Allowed 5 Passenger Car Tires; 13 Truck

Bullard, DeWhitt and Wendell to Handle Tire Rationing for County

In accordance with national requirements during the present emergency, a Tire Rationing Board has this week been appointed to act for Aransas County and Rockport, as announced by Judge B. S. Fox, early this week.

Appointed on Saturday, January 3rd, the new board started functioning on January 5th and consists of J. F. Bullard, J. E. DeWhitt, and R. J. Wendell. The official title of the new organization will be the Aransas County Tire Rationing Board, and their duties, though not known in detail until information comes from Washington, will be to ration the sale of tires for both passenger cars and trucks in this county.

This new board was appointed by Judge B. S. Fox and Mayor J. E. Moore, in accordance with instructions from State Headquarters, with a specific recommendation that a farmer from the county and two other resident citizens be placed upon it.

Oaths have not been administered to the new board members, and this will be delayed pending the receipt of the regular form from Washington, which is expected within a short time.

Tire quotas per month for Aransas County have been approximated at five tire casings and six tubes for passenger cars, and thirteen tires and about the same number of tubes for trucks. Rationing will be under the direction of Washington, through the new board.

Former Resident Dies in Houston

News came early Friday morning of the death of Mr. Howard Clarke, retired architect and contractor of Houston, son of the late Dr. John A. Clarke of Rockport and uncle of Miss Katie Lee Clarke, also of Rockport.

The deceased was reared in Rockport and was well-known by all of the old settlers. His death came as a sudden shock to his family, since he was ill just a short time before his passing.

Surviving Mr. Clarke are his widow and three grown children, two sisters, Mrs. Kate Ezell and Mrs. J. Purselle of San Antonio, and other relatives, including a sister-in-law, Mrs. Annie Clarke of Rockport.

Miss Harrell Resigns Position Here

Miss Jessie Lee Harrell, former teacher in the Rockport Public School system, left Sunday for Richland Springs, where she immediately assumed her new duties as teacher there. Miss Harrell resigned here after three and a half years of teaching, and her services not only as a teacher, but also as a church and civic worker will be sadly missed.

Richland Springs is the new home of Miss Harrell's parents, her father is the pastor of a Methodist Church there.

Houston Man and Wife Back for More Trout

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Flood are among out-of-town anglers here who are undaunted by the cold weather. They were here last week end and took away 98 trout, besides their limits in ducks and geese killed before the season closed.

They couldn't resist the thoughts of good fishing here and returned for another try at them. Mr. Flood is owner of the Houston Seed Company.

Manila Falls to Japanese Invaders Following Strong Last Ditch Defense By Greatly Outnumbered U. S. Troops; U. S. Bans Sale of New Cars, Trucks

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

MANILA: Falls

Since the first detachments of Japanese troops had landed on the island of Luzon in the Philippines and had begun their push toward Manila, Americans had been hoping that the outnumbered forces of Gen. Douglas MacArthur would be able to hold out in their defenses outside the capital city.

But despite a strong last ditch stand Manila finally fell to the invaders. Dive bombers and tanks had smashed the American lines. Greatly outnumbered, the Americans had fallen back as the Japs succeeded in gaining control of the air.

In its communique telling of the city's fall, the war department said that all U. S. and Philippine troops had been withdrawn from the city several days before and all defense installations removed or destroyed.

"The loss of Manila, while serious, has not lessened the resistance to the Japanese attacks," the communique said.

As it appeared that the Japanese pressure on the Philippines was driving our Filipino-American defending forces steadily backward, despite the arrival of a certain force of American planes as reinforcements, the war of nerves was giving Tokyo the "jitters."

Although there were no direct dispatches from the Jap capital, in the Tokyo broadcasts there was considerable evidence of confusion, of an anxiety to learn what the Allied grand strategy was to be.

President Roosevelt, in his press conference, was mentioning reinforcements, plans that had been made in collaboration with all the Allies.

He talked of Kamchatka, a peninsula which reaches down to within easy plane reach of Japan itself. The Tokyo radio was warning Japs to be ready for air attacks during the New Year period, was talking of an American effort to get planes to Siberia via the Aleutian islands.

The news from Manila and the Philippines generally was creating great anxiety in this country, which

RUSSIANS: Back in Crimea

The southern Russian front, which had been subjected to extra German pressure while the Nazis were on the retreat in the central and northern sectors, suddenly turned the tide with the recapture of Kerch and Feodosya.

The first-named port was opposite the rich Caucasus oil region, separated from it only by two miles of water. These two miles the Germans had not been able to cross because of Black sea fleet activity.

Feodosya is about 100 miles further west, and landings were made simultaneously at both points, the Germans driven back, and an uncounted number of Nazis trapped between.

The German high command acknowledged the Russian landings "in force" and said that counter measures were being taken. Stalin complimented his general on the south, and then urged that the advantage be grasped and pursued.

"Free Crimea next" he urged his troops. The Russians still were holding on at Sevastopol, and Moscow hoped that the successes farther east would release pressure at Sevastopol and permit the garrison there, aided by sea-borne reinforcements, to take the offensive.

The Crimea was held by a combination of German-Italian-Rumanian troops, admittedly not the hardest to beat if the Russians are able to get a high-pressure drive going.

COMMANDO: A Hero's Tale

A story of black-clad, burn-corked Commandos on the North Africa front was the most thrilling story of the war thus far.

It told of the attack on General Rommel's headquarters by a small band of British "suiciders," and of the killing of the Commando's own commander, Colonel Keyes, son of the man who originated the idea.

The British Commando group hid in an arroyo during the night before the zero hour, within running distance of Rommel's headquarters.

At the time when the whole imperial offensive was to flare up along the line, they dashed forward, roused a sentry who opened a door, shot him dead and entered the building.

As Keyes, leading his men, threw open the main door behind which were Rommel's aides, he was shot dead, but a sergeant leaped over his body, hurled two hand grenades and then slammed the door shut, letting the bombs wipe out those within.

By this time the shooting and shouting had roused the whole garrison, who did not know what to make of it all. In the resulting confusion most of the Commandos escaped, but only after fighting a two-hour pitched battle.

Rommel, unfortunately for them, was away at a birthday party, and was not killed. The whole of his staff who remained at headquarters, was wiped out, however.

DRAFT: A Prelude

Seen as a prelude to the new conscription, which was to produce a trained army of 3,000,000-plus men was the army order recalling into service troops over 23 years of age.

First of these orders to be revealed was that of the Third Corps area, which ordered all such men to be back at their posts January 31.

The prohibition on these sales will remain in effect pending development of a rationing plan which will place an estimated 450,000 vehicles now in dealers stocks where they will do the most good.

Rationing will be directed by the Office of Price Administration, headed by Leon Henderson. This office also administers the tire rationing formula which has established quotas for every county in the country.

SINGAPORE: Must Not Fall

London, saying that "Singapore must not fall," had called on the American navy to aid them in holding out at this base, deemed most vital for the forthcoming allied drive against the Japs in the South Pacific.

One British spokesman had said: "Until our forces there can be built up, we shall have to rely to a great extent on the American navy to regain control of the Pacific."

DUTCH: Steal Show

Dutch sea and air arms under the command of Vice Admiral E. E. L. Helfrich, above, have inflicted severe losses upon Japan's invading forces. He is chief of the Netherlands navy and air force in the Indies. Lieut. Gen. Hein Ter Poorten is commander in chief of the armed forces.

See below DUTCH: Steal Show

The Dutch airmen and submarine crews continued to "steal the show" in the Pacific war, the fighting fliers ranging far out over the Pacific, largely in American-made planes, seeking Jap tankers reportedly loaded with oil stolen from north Borneo.

The N.E.I. commander in chief, Lieut. Gen. Hein Ter Poorten, pledged America that the Dutch alone could turn the tide against the Japs in the south Pacific if only they could get more planes and more anti-aircraft guns with which to fight off the Japanese warplanes.

Apparently there was no lack of Dutch bombers, nor of skilled pilots to man them, the shortage lying chiefly in fighter planes.

The submarines, keeping intact their promise of more than one ship a day, had sunk four more.

That they were faring far ahead and not just protecting home shores was seen in the announcement that these latest sinkings had been far from Batavia, way up at the east coast of Thailand. The vessels sent to the bottom were troop transports, landing Jap soldiers for the fight against Singapore.

In the meantime, the Dutch had sent a successful naval raiding party against the Japs near the central provinces of their own islands. The Batavia radio said several launches were destroyed, others were seized and that the Japanese living on the island were taken prisoners and interned.

When the British got out of north Borneo, they were said to have destroyed all the oil wells, or damaged them so that they could not be used. The Dutch revealed, however, that several Japanese tankers had been seen leaving there loaded.

The air force had been sent in pursuit, the Dutch pledging themselves to sink the tankers or not return.

HAWAII: 'Ready'

Victims of the Japanese "sneak attack" which decimated their strength in a few hours, Hawaiians had rejoiced finally that reinforcements to the plane and ship garrison now had the islands ready to meet all comers.

Although the exact nature of the reinforcements was kept a secret it was revealed that the army on the islands had enough planes to give any invaders a "lively reception."

Hero of the December 7 attack, Lieut. George S. Welch, 23, of Wilmington, Del., who shot down four Jap planes though he had to drive 10 miles to get to his plane, said he was "itching for another fight." He said:

"All of us would like to see them come back."

LIBYA: British Get Tanks

The British were polishing off General Rommel's remaining forces in North Africa at a fast rate, aided by a "rash rally" made by a force of nearly 100 tanks.

The British met this assault with such a withering fire from its mobile artillery and its American tanks that 22 of the enemy tanks were destroyed and 20 others put out of action with damage.

It was a demonstration that Rommel's retreat had been cut off, and that the sortie by the German tanks from the spot where Rommel's men were surrounded was a desperate adventure.

The locus of the attack was given as Agedabia, a point about 100 miles south of Bengasi, the Axis' former stronghold, now in British hands.

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion suggests that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys fail, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

DEEP WATER ISLAND

by ALAN LEMAY

INSTALLMENT SIX

THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Waterson, convinced by her lawyer, John Colt, that she has a claim to the island estate of grandfather Garrett Waterson, has come to Honolulu to attempt to gain control of the property. Then through a strange circumstance and somewhat against her will she finds herself on the very island, Alaska, with Richard Wayne or Tonga Dick, as he is known. He is a member of the Wayne family which has been in control of the island since the disappearance of her grandfather. They have found that Dick's uncle, James Wayne, who has been managing the property, is very sick. Dick tries to get Karen to work out a compromise settlement to her claims but she refuses. Late during the night Lilia, a native house girl, comes to Dick's room and tells him she has strange foreboding of evil. As they talk a rap is heard at the door.

Now continue with the story.

At the door when Dick opened it was the tiny figure of a kimonoed Japanese girl. Her hair, usually as neat as polished ebony, was down all about her face, and through it her eyes stared so widely that they showed the whites.

"Mister Dick—you come!"
"What is it? What is it now?"
"I tap on Mister Wayne door—I take Mister Wayne milk. Mister Wayne, he not answer."
"Well, did you go in?"
"No, no, no!"
"Where is he? In his office?"
"Yes—office. Plenty light but no speak. Something moves in there—I hear something move! But nothing in there will speak."

Dick Wayne drew a deep breath, and the air of the hall was so clammy upon his lungs it was as if he had breathed in the outer rain.
"All right!"

Once more he went striding through the house, the broad old floorboards speaking under his tread, and the tabs of the Japanese girl pattering behind him.

There was a line of light under the door of James Wayne's office; but as he reached for the latch the Japanese girl flattened herself against the wall, fearful lest she accidentally see into the room, and Tonga Dick Wayne himself hesitated. He knew what was within.

James Wayne still sat in the chair behind his vast desk, in the same place he had sat during so much of twenty hard driving years. But now his head was forward upon the desk, and by the slack emptiness of his uncle's hands Dick knew that this was the end.

All over the floor were scattered the ginger blossoms of a broken lei. When Dick Wayne had made certain that his uncle was dead, he picked up the scattered ginger blossoms, and, opening a case, threw them out into the night.

He went to the door. The Japanese girl looked smaller than ever, standing there with her back pressed tight against the koa-wood wall, as if trying to hide herself from things unseen. "Send the Missey here," he said.

"Missey Lilia?"
"No, no! The haole Missey."
"Yes, Mister Dick."
"As soon as you have sent the haole Missey to me, bring me Charles Wong."

As Dick turned back into the room he spotted one more of those inescapable ginger flowers under the corner of the desk. He picked it up and put it in his pocket. Then he went and stood at the window, looking out into blackness, unmindful of the cold spit of the rain. It seemed to him a long time before Karen came.

"Is—is something wrong?" Her words were faltering. "Has anything happened?"

Dick Wayne stared, astonished. Deep in his pocket his fingers were still rolling between them the petals of that last ginger flower; but Karen's eyes were uncommunicative and he saw that she did not so much as glance at the floor to make sure that the flowers were gone. Suddenly a terrible pity for this girl got the better of him and he shut his jaws.

"Dick," Karen cried out, "what is it?"

"He was unable then, pitying her as he did, to tell her that he knew she already had the answer to that.
"James Wayne is dead," he answered.

"This—is this a terrible thing."
"Perhaps not."
"What do you mean?"
Dick's voice was hard and bitter. "If you are going to take this island, perhaps it is better that you take it from me and from my brothers—not from the man who made it what it is."

Karen Waterson stood staring at him blankly. Until now it had seemed to Dick Wayne that nothing he had ever said to her had reached her completely in its full meaning; but now he knew that he had hurt her as definitely as if he had struck her across the face. The silence that followed had a strange hopeless quality about it, empty, yet singularly acute. Dick was glad that Charles Wong now appeared, moving quickly into the room.

Charles Wong went straight to the desk, but his eyes were questioning on Dick's face.
"Yes," Dick answered the unspoken question.
A wave of swift emotion crossed the Chinese secretary's face; he raised one hand and his fingers ran through his heavy hair.

Charles Wong went straight to the desk . . . "Yes," Dick answered the unspoken question.

"Get the doctor on the phone; get him up here at once. That is necessary for the proper reports. When that's done, get my brothers in Honolulu on the wireless phone; that I will be in Honolulu tomorrow night, regardless of whether they will be here by then or not. Then get me John Colt; I think you already know where in Honolulu he is."

"And—what shall I tell him?"
"I'll talk to him myself."

The Holokai did not weigh her hook until after dusk of the next day; but as she beat her way slowly out through the reefs, half an hour after sunset, Dick Wayne was glad that the day was over.

Tonga Dick had respected and admired his uncle, had understood what his uncle meant to Alakoa. Everything productive that Alakoa possessed had existed first in this one man's mind. They had all depended upon him and been guided by him; all of them except Dick himself had been controlled by him.

A careful conference had been necessary with James Wayne's physician. Being already familiar with the case, he had no trouble describing, in technical terms, the failure of James Wayne's heart.

"Could this have been caused by shock?" Dick demanded.
"A shock," Shimazu said with an oddly humorless locution, "would not have been necessary; but it would have helped."

Dick Wayne experienced no relief at this declaration. He was certain that Karen Waterson had been with James Wayne when he died, and that she had sought to conceal this. And he knew that almost anyone else, knowing these facts, would leap at once to a dark and savage suspicion. He found, however, that for himself he did not need Dr. Shimazu's report; he was already convinced, beyond any shadow of present or future doubt, that Karen Waterson had not killed James Wayne.

When they had communicated with Dick's brothers and with John Colt, Tonga Dick Wayne threw the radio cut-off switch.

What remained was a full day with Charles Wong, repeatedly interrupted by the visits of cane field bosses, mill superintendents, cattle foremen. It was turning dark before Dick and Karen Waterson at last drove steeply down the mountain toward the anchorage of the Holokai.

Later, after the Holokai had put out from shore, Dick and Karen found themselves sitting face to face across a completely set table under the cabin's skylight. The main cabin of the Holokai was trim and well lighted, but necessarily very small; here not even the hovering of the Chinese mess boy could spare them a sense of being shut in, very close together.

Karen's eyes rested unhappily upon her plate. Her fork fiddled with broiled pakai, but she was unable to eat. Her clear-cut poise had returned in the form of a reticent withdrawal; but behind the thin shell of that poise Dick Wayne was able to perceive that the girl was nervously distraught.

Tonga Dick Wayne ate, for no other reason than that he had not eaten in more than eighteen hours, and waited for Karen to speak. Now, surely, he thought, she would have something to say about her presence at the death of James Wayne.

Then presently he became aware, with a slow amazement, that Karen was not going to speak. She must have known who had picked up the broken ginger blossoms that would have given her away. But did she? Dick suddenly recognized that Karen perhaps did not know.

He let his eyes rest with some deliberation upon her face, and saw that she was uncommonly pale; it gave her an exceptionally fragile look. "It seems to me," he began, "that you might tell me—"

He let the question he had begun lose itself in the black race of the sea past the lee porthole.

"We're making fast time," he said. "We'll be in Honolulu before very long."

Karen murmured, "I'm glad." A little shiver ran across her shoulders, so that her two words made Honolulu seem a long-sought haven, for her.

"There's something I want to tell you, Karen."

She waited, relaxed and impassive except for that sense of strain behind her pale composure.

"I'm sorry I shanghaied you. I didn't realize what I was letting you in for."

"I'm not exactly used to being pushed about," Karen said.

"After all," he reminded her, "when you came aboard you believed me to be deceived even as to your name. And though your visit to Alakoa was against your will, you yourself, and your friend, John Colt, were partly responsible, I think."

Karen was silent.
"But I'm not all sorry," Dick said. "In spite of everything, I know you better now; and that has been worth while."

"I shouldn't have tried to fool you about who I was," Karen said. In spite of her concealed nervous tension, she seemed very tired, so that he could hardly hear her words. "That was a very silly mistake."
"There have been other mistakes," Dick said.

She met his eyes for a moment, and he wondered if she was thinking about a silent room, and a broken lei. He wanted to tell her that there was no reason for her to think about that; and that he believed in her completely.

Dick said morosely, "You and I ought to be able to talk to each other more easily than we do."

"Do we have to go into all that?"
"We can work these things out," Dick Wayne said. "You and I are the only ones who can."

Karen Waterson stiffened and sat back. "I can only say this—if there are to be any negotiations at all, they will have to be carried on with John Colt, not with me."

"If the case came to trial as it now stands," Dick Wayne said, "I have no doubt that you could win. After that would follow appeal after appeal, delay after delay; and even if you win in the end you'd be a white-haired old lady before your victory ever paid out. The Waynes won't give in because they can't give in."

"Neither," said Karen, looking at him directly, "do we intend to give in."
"What you mean is that John Colt won't give in."
"It's the same thing."

Dick Wayne looked at her queerly. "Is it, Karen? Are you in love with Colt? Are you going to marry him?"

CHAPTER VII

Karen looked at him steadily a moment.

"There isn't any reason why I should answer that," she said at last. "But I will. I have no intention of marrying John Colt. What I mean is that I believe I have a sound claim, and I am perfectly willing that the court should decide it. If your uncle had lived—"

She stopped, and a silence fell between them, that they noticed again the voice of the ship, and the rush and slap of the sea. Later, Tonga Dick began talking to her again, trying to tell her what his uncle had been. As Dick saw him. He was trying to make her see a man who had lived not for personal conquest, but for a dream. He was trying to make her understand that James Wayne had been a man who did not know how to use anything, for himself, beyond the bare necessities; one who took less from life than the salary of Charles Wong commended. He showed her his uncle breakfasting at 3:30 in the morning, so that he could be at work by a quarter of four. He was trying to make her see twenty years of labor, in which James Wayne had given every hour of his time, every resource of his mind, to making Alakoa what it had become.

She interrupted him, after a while. "Why do you tell me all this?"
"I'm trying to make you see that there is something there that cannot be measured in dollars and cents; and that even though James Wayne is dead, the fight for the things he stood for will have to go on."

The scene is Honolulu, and the dialogue begins: "Listen!"
The increasing roar sounded like the surging swell of voices from a distant stadium.
"Planes," he said. "Our patrol . . ."

He shook his head. "Too many." In the distance there were sharp explosions—like vicious blasts of thunder. They rolled and cracked and echoed. A blinding, jagged sheet of yellow flame rose and spread.

"Well, it's come at last . . ."
"What happened, sir? Was it bad?"

"Very bad. They caught us flat-footed. Approached very high. Twenty, maybe thirty thousand feet . . . The anti-aircraft boys held up their fire . . ."

"They knew just where to strike and what to strike with."

"They hit us with incendiaries the first time over . . . They caught the hangars at Hickam . . . and even went out of their way to set fire to Rogers Airport buildings and the barracks."

"The enemy gave us three blasts . . . It'll be days before we can patch up."

"Casualties heavy, sir?"
"They scored a direct hit on Schofield Barracks."

"Clipper service, of course, has been suspended. The Japs are reputed fond of shooting down unarmed transport planes."

"It was Japan that the United States was at war with."

"And Pearl Harbor, sir?"
"A mess . . . They scored direct hits on the foundries and on the pumping plant near the drydock. They burned the air station hangars . . . The hospital's all right, and they didn't hit any of the fuel oil tanks."

"Pearl Harbor was a cinch . . . All they had to do was follow the coast line and blast away . . ."

"But how could they get several hundred planes here?"
"God knows, Japan . . . wouldn't have enough aircraft carriers . . . My guess is that they got a couple of carriers through by traveling away from the regular shipping lanes. That . . . put 100 to 150 little shipboard fighters in striking distance . . ."

"The raid occurred at eleven forty-two . . ."

The bombing of the Island of Oahu had occurred at 11:42 . . . The President of the United States announced by radio to the country that America was at war with . . . Japan, whose fleets, even then, were headed eastward . . .

"Our country has known some black days, but none so black as this one. God help us all!"

Defense Uniforms Can Be as Smart as They Are Practical

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

NOW that thousands of women are engaged in defense service that takes them into factories and plants, or that keeps them busy on the farm, designers are confronted with a new challenge to create practical clothes that are primarily functional but are also chic and becoming.

In this program of clothes that are able to resist wear and tear, the first problem to be considered is necessarily that of finding materials that will give satisfaction from the standpoint of wearability plus laundability. Since sturdy cottons can "take it," they naturally are first in fabric choice. Denim holds forth at the top of the list in either solid colors or stripes (often combined for contrast). Then come coverts, manish tweed cotton suitings and that favorite of favorites—corduroy.

White duck, which holds an enviable record for perfect laundering, is particularly smart for young girls, who like snappy fashions and who are stationed in surroundings that demand they look immaculate. This fabric is suitable not only for overalls, but also for overseas caps, to keep stray locks from the eyes. To the left in the illustration above is a costume especially designed for American women at work in defense industries, on farms, or in the air. This "civilian defense suit" is cut on a pattern of simplicity that any woman can make for herself, even if she is a novice at sewing. Note that this suit of washable white duck is one-piece. This garment has convertible trousers which may be worn full or snugged in to insure protection from possible entanglement in machinery.

Uniforms for women must have certain basic protective details such as those mentioned above, and they must also be designed for freedom of movement. They must be easy to take off and on, with straps caught at the back so that overalls will not slip off at the shoulders, with snap fasteners at the ankles for comfort and protection.

Corduroy mix-mates give opportunity for bright color, style and service and all in one. They meet the farm girl's needs to perfection, and they are equally as useful and smart in the factory. Not only is the never-wear-out quality of corduroy a convincing argument in its favor, but corduroy has that something attractive about it that measures up to any wear required of it from work to play. It goes about town or trudges along country roads with equal adaptability.

The attractiveness of corduroy is shown in the illustration above by the culotte ensemble centered in the group. In this instance, a bright plaid cotton shirt is teamed with a corduroy culotte and vest. Corduroy shoes and cotton stockings complete a perfect outfit for all sorts of active wear. In this smart, good-looking ensemble one can confidently go about town on a shopping tour, feeling suitably dressed for the occasion.

Mixmate this vest of corduroy with slacks, shown to the right in the picture above, and you have a suit that gives the answer to a gay young farmerette as to "what to wear" about home during busy hours. Wear a corduroy beret with this suit if you must go into town on an errand, or whatever the call of duty may happen to be.

Bright Wool

What with all the glitter of sequins and spangle, it is a relief to turn to the lovely color-bright soft wool classics that fashion elects for style supremacy this winter. Undoubtedly these flattering little wools, fashioned as they are with studied simplicity, will be "stealing the show" during the weeks to come. These lovely classic wools make color their theme, and worn under winter furs, they lead the first-in-fashion group. Pictured is a charming model of Forstmann wool in a subtle green that goes beautifully with any fur. There is a restrained accent of sparkling gilt on the belt and front closing. Wear a flaring hat and carry a beaver muff.

Dutch Bonnets and Hoods Have Peasant Embroidery

A charming new fashion that is going the rounds this winter, to the delight of high school and college girls, is that of cunning little hoods or bonnets cut in the manner of Dutch bonnets or baby caps and made of bright felt. Or, if you prefer, they can be gaily crocheted. These are adorned with appliques of felt flowers in peasant colorings or trimmed in crocheted flowers. They tie under the chin, and they lend a most attractive dash of color to a wintry landscape. They're perfect with skating outfits, or to wear to and from dances, or to school.

Here's the Latest Style: Dresses With Apron Front

Here's the latest bit of fashion gossip. It's all about the dresses with cleverly designed apron fronts. This new fashion calls for a pencil-slim skirt, at the front of which there is a tie-on apron effect. Sometimes it is achieved with a cascade drape of material. Again it is a pleated tie-on that makes the apron. However, the cleverest of all, because it introduces the right print accent, is the applique of cut out floral prints. The effect is just about as charming as fancy can picture, especially if a corresponding touch of the print appears on the sleeves.

Evening Capes Sparkle With Beads and Sequins

Just as new as the coming New Year are the new evening capes, some long and some short, that are made of bright colored woollens handsomely and elaborately embroidered with sparkling stones or sequins or vivid yarns. A favorite color for these gay little capes is magenta. Jet beading on black or white wool also ranks high in chic.

Pattern 2993.

PIGHTAILS of wool are the chief lure to this crocheted cap that does for all winter sports including that of being decorative. Mittens and a scarf complete the set.

Pattern 2993 contains directions for making the set in 12-16 year sizes; illustrations of it and stitches; materials required. Send your order to:

War calls
have the right of way

In these troubled, wartime days the first duty of the telephone company is clear.

Our Army needs communication . . . fast, dependable communication to every part of this nation.

Our Navy needs it . . .

The industries which supply ships and guns and shells need it . . .

To provide that communication, the 28,000 men and women of the Southwestern Bell . . .
the entire physical resources of this company
. . . stand pledged.

The nation's job is our Number One job.
The messages of war must go through as quickly and as surely as it is possible for human beings to handle them.

In blackouts, or during local emergencies born of war condition, please use your telephone only for vital calls.

Your help will keep the wires clear
so that responsible officials may deal promptly with the situation.

Tire and Tube Prices Frozen

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—The government froze retail prices of new tires and tubes today at levels of the standard list prices issued by the manufacturers November 25. Acting to prevent profiteering under the tire rationing plan, which goes into operation next Monday, the Office of Price Administration moved into the retail field for the first time by issuing a formal price ceiling on tires, effective the same day. Wholesale tire prices, now stabilized under informal agreements with manufacturers, may be fixed under another ceiling if circumstances require. There is nothing that makes men rich and strong but that which they carry inside of them. Wealth is of the heart, not of the hand.—John Milton.

A SHORT while back we collected the opinions from over 40 well-known football coaches and trainers along the line of physical fitness — of getting back in shape. With-out exception they featured the legs and the stomach, especially the latter.

Grantland Rice

We've printed their diets and their suggestions — plain foods, simple foods — and not too much of it. But many of these coaches and trainers, who know their trade, brought in another angle — this was the mental side, which has direct bearing on the all-out war today.

"The best football player," a leading coach wrote me, "needs something more than size and speed and physical fitness. He must be able to sacrifice himself for the good of the team. He must be able to take punishment — and like it — for the cause he is fighting for. He must be willing to give up all outside pleasures that conflict in any way with the main idea, which is to win. Only those who have this frame of mind are really worthwhile. The others are only good when things are rolling their way."

"Football is no game for those easily discouraged. Mental fiber is even more important than physical fiber — and mental fiber means giving all you have in the direction of victory, no matter what the odds. We might call it 'intestinal fortitude,' a phrase the late Dan McGugin of Michigan and Vanderbilt invented."

The Big Word

Words, as a rule, are unimportant, when the air is full of flying steel. But in this same connection we still recall a conversation with a hard-bitten colonel of the First division in France early in 1918, when the German army, apparently, was about to break through.

I happened to bring up the matter of courage. The First division colonel gave me a cold look.

"Courage," he said, "is secondary. Most people and most nations have courage. The big word is 'fortitude.' This is a far more important word than courage."

"Fortitude, of course, includes courage. But it goes far beyond. Fortitude means both physical and mental stamina. It means the ability to carry on a job that might be dull and uninteresting. It means giving all you've got to give, outside of the spotlight. In a football way, it means the blocking back, who clears the road for the ball carrier. It means sacrificing yourself for the cause."

"In this war, those up around the front may get killed, but they get all of the excitement. Those back of the lines get the drudgery, minus the thrills. You'll find that almost all of those back of the lines would much rather be up there with the excitement. It takes more fortitude to do your work in a place where there is little chance for any thrills, little chance for any publicity or any reward."

A Leading Example

Some years ago I was talking with Bobby Jones about the brilliant golf record he piled up from 1922 through 1930. Bobby made no claim to any superior skill with wood or iron.

"Tournament golf," he said then, "is a game in which you just can't afford to be easily discouraged when you step into trouble, as everyone does. So I had to make up my mind to take a hard nerve beating — not a physical beating, of course. No one will ever know the time I felt like chucking it all, and maybe wait for another chance."

"I may be wrong, but I believe you can take more of a beating on the mental and nerve side than you can on the physical side. When I used to pick up those sevens in a championship round, and I got more than my share of those, the temptation to ease up and forget it all was pretty strong. You get the feeling there's no use fighting it out at that particular time."

This is all true. I recall Gene Sarazen, one of our finest golf competitors, once saying you can't win a big championship with 'sevens.' "I battle to try to keep from getting any sixes," Gene said.

WILLKIE AND F.D.R.

Seldom in political history has a President of the United States received such wholesome support on major foreign policy from a defeated candidate as Franklin Roosevelt has received from Wendell Willkie. Few people know how active Willkie has been behind the scenes.

For instance, Willkie has even done some missionary work on Joe Martin, chairman of the Republican National committee and opposition leader of the house. Willkie remains on very friendly terms with his old campaign manager, even though they differed on foreign policy.

Shortly after the congressional vote to repeal the Neutrality act, in which the Republicans nearly defeated Roosevelt, Willkie phoned Joe Martin.

"Joe," he said, "those Republicans who voted against repeal of neutrality are going to have a tough time being re-elected. They're going to find the country is behind Roosevelt on this."

The Republican national chairman replied that he would not only re-elect all the Republicans who voted against Roosevelt, but he would also elect a lot of new Republicans to fill the seats of the Democrats who had voted with Roosevelt. "Listen," said Willkie, "if you re-elect 80 per cent of those who voted against the President you'll be the greatest political genius of all time."

"And," said Willkie, in telling the story to a friend afterward, "a few days later there was Joe himself voting with Roosevelt for a declaration of war."

SHIP-BUILDING PROGRAM

The action of the house naval affairs committee in slashing the proposed expansion of our two-ocean navy was due chiefly to shortages of materials and construction equipment.

However, Rear Admiral Samuel Robinson, chief of the bureau of ships, ran into a blunt barrage of questions about the worth of the battleship under modern combat conditions. Committee members sharply suggested that in view of the battleship's record in this war, the navy might be wise to build no more.

Robinson contended that this would be impractical, since the United States needed battleships "if our enemies continue to use them for combat purposes."

"What is your honest private opinion of the battleship?" he was asked. "Do you think this type of ship is worth all the money it costs and the time and labor required to build them?"

"I'm sorry, gentlemen, but it's not my function to answer that question," sidestepped Robinson with a smile. "I'm not a policy man. My job is to build ships after it is decided they are needed. However, I have my own ideas about the battleship."

This drew laughter, and the admiral was pressed no further.

Robinson also was quizzed closely about the high cost of certain vessels which the navy proposed in the expansion program, chiefly an aircraft carrier at an estimated $85,000,000.

"Higher labor and material costs are the biggest factors," Robinson explained. "For instance, we have a new type of armor plate for our ships which is far stronger than that used by any other nation. It costs $60 a ton, three times as much as the armor plate we formerly used."

"How about the labor supply?" "We have plenty of labor to carry out our shipbuilding program," Robinson said. "Also plenty of facilities. Getting materials and machine tools is our big problem right now. However, the shortage doesn't amount to a bottleneck. In fact, production is running a little ahead of schedule and will be greatly expedited by next spring."

Kathleen Norris Says:

Teasing Is Innate Cruelty

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

When Maude and her husband came to us for their first dinner party as married people Dave, my husband, began teasing her. To my horror, he mentioned the name of the man with whom Maude had been in love.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THREE years ago, when I was 18," writes Janine, "my chum Maude and I thought we were deeply in love. Our two boy friends took us everywhere, dancing, skiing, to movies and night clubs, and we felt there was no harm in the intimate relationship that naturally resulted. I can truly say that no thought of hesitation or guilt ever crossed my mind.

"When I became engaged last year, however, I told Dave of that early affair. He immediately assured me that he was no angel and had not expected me to be one, and that he felt that sort of thing ought to be forgotten."

"Maude was also married some weeks ago, and after her honeymoon she and her husband came to us for their first dinner party as married people. We had a table of eight and everything went perfectly, except that Dave began to tease her, and to my horror mentioned the name of the man with whom Maude had been in love and asked her if she ever saw him.

"All this mystified Maude's husband. Maude called me up in a perfect panic the next day, saying she had not told me anything of her early affair and that Dave had simply infuriated her by his teasing talk. Immediately I told Dave he said that he would of course not go on with it, and added that he would never have thought Maude was that sort of a girl.

"You can imagine how this made me feel! I was so mad that we had what Dave called our first knock-down-and-drag-out fight, but we got over it and were friends again and decided to forget the whole thing and start fresh. But a day or two later he asked me how long my intimate relationship with my first sweetheart had gone on. I answered only for about three months, and nothing more was said. "Yesterday morning the paper mentioned the fact that Maude is on the women's committee to provide amusement for the men in camps, and Dave made a sneering reference to it; he said this was only in fun. But later Maude sent me a brief cold note, saying that they could not come to a buffet party that we are giving after the big football game, and I know they have given two dinners at least in the last month, but we have not been asked to their house yet, I am afraid Dave has carried his fun too far.

"Maude is my oldest friend, and we have talked for years of the pleasure we would have as brides doing our shopping and discussing our housekeeping together. Can you make any suggestion that may save me from losing her friendship and influencing Dave not to tease her or remind her again of the past?

A Fatal Flaw. A teasing husband, my dear Janine, is a much more serious matter than it sounds. Impulses toward murder, theft, arson and forgery are kept in order by the law, and by a man's natural fear of punishment. But teasing is a fatal flaw in the relationship between married persons, and I don't know of any cure.

Teasing is innate cruelty seeking an outlet. It veils its intention

IT'S NOT FUN

No one—not even the teaser himself—escapes the consequences of the hints that are dropped "all in fun."

"It's not fun for anyone concerned; when a husband begins to suspect that the jokes about his wife may have some basis in truth. It's not fun for anyone, when a wife loses her best friend because her husband just can't resist the temptation to make personal remarks. Kathleen Norris believes that those who enjoy teasing others have in their makeup a streak of real cruelty. "Teasing," she says, "is innate cruelty seeking an outlet." Don't be deceived by the fact that it is supposed to be a joke.

to sting and hurt under a merry mask of fun. It is always "just fooling."

When he carelessly and laughingly has threatened the actual foundations of a marriage, as Dave in his light-hearted banter with Maude, he retreats, coward-fashion, Dave pretends not to realize that he may have started suspicions in the mind of Maude's husband.

May Regret Her Secrecy.

You were smarter than Maude in that you made a clean breast of your own early weakness in the safety of engagement days, when Dave was so anxious to win you that nothing you could have done as a girl would deter him. Maude chose to keep her secret, and she may yet live to regret the deception.

You had better give up the hope of continuing your friendship with Maude; young wives almost always have to sacrifice their school-girl friendships to the claims of husbands, and the others. Make new friends, devote yourself—as I am sure you are devoting yourself—to the full-time job of keeping Dave happy and building for you both a sound and successful marriage.

But if he continues his teasing, and extends it pretty generally to all your friends, one way to spook his guns is to acknowledge cheerfully that David isn't happy unless he's teasing someone.

Say something like "He'll tell you that your children are undersized, Tom, and that if you'd been as smart as he is you wouldn't have had to pay that speeding fine, and that he knows you and Betty came here to dinner to get our insurance, but don't take it seriously. Dave is a darling in spite of it all."

No Perfect Solution.

This makes what ammunition Dave has in store decidedly wet. But it is not a perfect solution. There is no perfect solution for so serious a fault except the solution that must come from the tease himself, a genuine resolution to be considerate of the feelings and misfortunes of others.

In New York some years ago there was a complacent wife who couldn't sufficiently impress all of us, who had suffered in the general financial collapse, with the fact that she and her husband were luckier than ever and richer than ever.

"Isn't it wonderful?" she would babble happily. "Harry just got out of state but there was news that it was going to make that sensational rise, and just before the crash he sold our place for three times what it would bring today!"

My Week

ACTIVE ASSIGNMENT

In the paper, a few days ago, I read that our second son, Elliott, was assigned to an aviation unit and will be off on active duty again. This time it will not be, I am sure, over the wilds of Iceland, Greenland and Newfoundland that he will fly, as he did all last summer. I thought he was still taking a training course and secretly rejoiced with his wife in the comparative security of routine flying. Shortly, apparently, there will be three boys whose whereabouts for us are wrapped in mystery.

I left Washington one night on the night train and found my cousin, Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, waiting for me in New York at a very late hour to talk over certain changes in the organization for which she has done so much work. "Young America Wants to Help" has been a part of the British War Relief. Now, I imagine, they will redouble their efforts to help not only young people in England, but young people anywhere in our country who need it.

I love the photograph which recently appeared in some papers of young Colin Kelly and his mother. I think many people will be touched as I was, by the letter addressed to the "President of the United States in 1956" by my husband. He asked that this little boy be given an appointment to West Point because of the services which his father had rendered to his country.

Colin Kelly has a proud heritage and though pride can never remove the sense of loss which Mrs. Kelly and this little boy have suffered, still, in the future, it will mean much to both of them. Perhaps a child brought up in the shadow of heroism may find it always a motivating force in his young life.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS

In stopping at the headquarters for the celebration of the President's birthday for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, I found that Mr. Kieth Morgan was pleased and deeply stirred by the telegrams which he has been receiving from his chairmen throughout the country.

Apparently, being at war has not in any way lessened their interest in the war against this dread disease. They feel more intensely than ever that they must save the children by finding out how to prevent epidemics and how to care for those who are stricken. The strength of our children is the strength of our nation.

The heavy epidemics of infantile paralysis during the past three years have brought us 26,000 casualties in this particular war. We can ill afford such losses as these, and so, no matter what we give in other ways this fight must go on.

SEEDS TO ENGLAND

It seems queer, in winter, to be thinking about shipping seeds to England, but England can think about gardens earlier than we. I received a notice today that the New York Home Bureaus had sent more than $2,000 for the purchase of vegetable seeds to Mr. Donald Neville-Willing, who allows his home at 18 East 70th street, New York city, to be used as headquarters for the committee working for American Seeds for British Soil.

Mrs. A. W. Smith, the state leader of the Home Demonstration Agents in New York, writes me that one dollar's worth of seed will provide enough vegetables for a family of five. I can only believe that the English are better gardeners than we, for I am sure that the vegetable seeds that I buy for my own use cost me far more. I am not, however, a very good gardener, even by proxy.

COUSINS APLENTY

One night we had a rather large gathering of various family groups at Christmas dinner. The number of cousins was really quite amusing. I think the complications of family relationships, as regards my husband and myself, became completely baffling to our English guests.

When you tell some one, that the lovely lady sitting opposite him is your husband's half-niece, that she married your first cousin, and that he was her sixth cousin, whereas you are married to your fifth cousin once removed, and are also her sixth cousin and that her children, in order to simplify life, say "Uncle Franklin and Aunt Eleanor," when the relationship is really only that of a half great-uncle, you may well imagine that you have led anyone, no matter how great his interest in genealogy, through a maze from which there is no emerging!

A few old friends were here with us as usual, and we drank the usual toasts to absent family and friends, adding one toast in tribute to our British guests. After dinner, we had newscasts, featuring both the prime minister and the President, and then sang together for a while.

It will be quite impossible for me, of course, to thank the many people who have sent the President and me Christmas cards and telegrams, but I want to say here how grateful we are for their thoughts and the confidence and affection which so many of them expressed.

Borrowed Plumage

By MARJORIE AMES

(McCure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

ONCE more Jean read through the letter which had arrived to find her in a mood of despondency most unusual. Like a gleam of sunshine it had brightened the gloomy prospect of a Christmas away from home. To be sure, living with one's step-aunt didn't make much of a home, but even that was better than the dismal, deserted campus and the empty dormitory whose walls still echoed with the jolly laughter of departing girls.

And then had arrived this charming note from one of the university's most attractive graduates:

"My Dear Miss Gray:

"It will afford us the greatest possible pleasure to have you spend the holidays with us. We are entertaining most informally and will expect you Christmas Eve.

Cordially yours,
Marjorie Holden."

"Most informally!" Jean's brow clouded. Instinct told her that those two words had been inserted to intimate that her hostess did not expect her to come equipped with evening gowns and opera capes. Only—Jean had so much less than that!

"I can't go!" Jean winked back unaccustomed tears and stared hard at a picture on the wall in front of her. As her vision cleared she became aware that she was gazing at the group photograph taken after the last dramatic society play. What fun she had had! For one brief evening she had been a "star" and worn truly becoming clothes.

If only—Jean sat suddenly upright with eyes that sparkled. "I'll go to Mrs. Holden's and wear those clothes!" she cried ecstatically. Jean's inspiration was born of the fact that the dramatic society had issued a recent edict. Clothes worn in the annual plays were to be purchased and become the property of the organization and so be always available for future performances. Jean was property mistress and held the key to the wardrobe that contained them.

"If Mrs. Holden had not been abroad when we gave 'Nancy's English Cousin,' this little stunt might have been impossible," mused Jean, as the following day, she folded and packed the smart little serge dress she had worn in the third act. Three changes there had been, noted respectively in the stage directions as "a one-piece serge," "a simple party frock" and "a striking outdoor costume." Jean took all three.

Late Christmas eve found Jean sinking blissfully to rest, prepared to dream of the coming good times with the jolly crowd which had met her so hospitably at the station.

But the following morning at the gay, holly-decked breakfast table Mrs. Holden unsuspectingly turned Jean's happiness to ashes. "My brother, Jean, who came after you had gone upstairs last night. Why, you know each other!"

"Of course, we know each other!" smiled a singularly attractive young man. "I coached the play in which Miss Gray played a demure little English girl—and well do I remember her in the part!"

Yes, it seemed that Cary Endicott, who had made "Nancy's English Cousin" the success it had been, was Mrs. Holden's brother. Jean had known him simply as the popular young assistant professor, from a neighboring boys' college. And he remembered her well in the part. So, of course, he would remember the "one-piece serge" and the "simple party frock" to say nothing of the "striking outdoor costume!"

It seemed to her that she could read his very thoughts; could imagine him saying:

"Ah, yes, the young lady took advantage of the fact that the girls were away to tug herself out in stage properties. How did she expect to get away with it?"

But whatever the young man's inner thoughts, his outward attitude was one that any girl might have approved.

On one of the very last days of vacation the crowd set out on snowshoes across the hills. Cary had managed matters so that he and Jean lagged far behind the others. Suddenly, in a snowy but sheltered hollow, as the rest topped a distant summit and disappeared, Cary turned right about face and held out his arms. "Jean, darling, will you be my wife?" The abruptness of his words did not rob them of effectiveness.

Jean flushed furiously. "I—oh—why, how can you—after—these clothes?"

Assistant Professor Endicott's face expressed nothing beyond utter mystification. Then he shook his head. "I'm afraid—maybe I'm dense, but—"

And Jean had to explain her slim hands clenching themselves within the odd little English muff which was part of her "striking outdoor costume."

When she had finished Cary just stood for a moment regarding her ever so gently, ever so tenderly. Then, "Didn't you know, you funny girl, that men can live with clothes year in and year out and never notice them? It's the people that wear them that count."

And happy Jean, snuggled close in his arms, knew that he had spoken the truth.

Serve One-Dish Meals as Smart Budget-Stretchers (See Recipes Below)

Appetite Appeal Plus

Dents in the budget? Appetites wilted after the rich foods as a result of the double holidays? Well, you can smooth out those dents and at the same time perk up the jaded appetites by smart, simple, easy-to-manage one-dish meals.

To stretch that food dollar, you can use leftover meats and vegetables that are called for in these casseroles. Yes, and what's especially nice about them is that they're tops in vitamins and minerals because they're fortified with those perfect foods, milk and butter. As you're pouring out the milk from the bottle, remember it's just brimming and bursting with health-giving qualities.

Here's a meal-in-a-dish which has a luscious butter and bread crumb topping to recommend it:

- *One-Dish-Meal. (Serves 6) 2 cups diced carrots (6 medium carrots) 1 1/2 cups diced celery 6 medium potatoes, pared and sliced 3 tablespoons butter 2 tablespoons flour 2 cups milk 1 cup meat stock or 1 bouillon cube in 1 cup hot water 1 teaspoon salt 3 to 6 tablespoons grated onion 1 cup peas (canned or fresh) 2 cups diced leftover meat 1/2 cup sifted bread crumbs 3 tablespoons melted butter

Cook carrots, celery and potatoes separately in boiling salted water until tender. Melt butter, blend in flour, add milk and meat stock. Cook over direct heat, stirring constantly until sauce boils and thickens. Add salt. Combine sauce with remaining ingredients, except crumbs and melted butter, and turn into a buttered casserole or baking dish. Combine crumbs and melted butter, sprinkle over surface. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven 35 to 40 minutes.

Cabbage, one of winter's best vegetables, is featured in this casserole of tuna or salmon:

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE INFANCY AND BOYHOOD OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 2:25-35, 39, 40. GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man.—Luke 2:52.

"Nobody knows what a boy is worth And the world must wait to see; For every man in an honored place Is a boy that used to be."

Jesus was "only a boy" as He grew through infancy and childhood, but in that baby and that boy rested all the hopes of mankind. While He was not just like any other boy, yet His growth and development were normal, and we may learn much that will enable us to help the boy in our home, in our block, or in our church.

The mother of Jesus, in fulfillment of the law of her people, on the eighth day identified Him with the nation (Luke 2:21), and then at the end of 40 days brought Him, with her humble sacrifice, to present Him to the Lord. There a beautiful and prophetic scene took place as the Holy Spirit revealed to godly old Simeon His

I. Complete Salvation—in a Baby (vv. 25-35).

The Holy Spirit (not yet come as the indwelling presence in believers' hearts) had come upon Simeon, a man right with God and with a deep longing in his heart for the coming of the Messiah—"the consolation of Israel." He was assured of living until that day, and now as he waited in the temple the babe who fulfilled that promise was laid in his arms.

He blessed God as he broke forth in praise and prophetic utterance. Note the full conception of the work of the Redeemer—deliverance from bondage and fear of death, light to the Gentiles and glory to Israel, a stone of stumbling but also of rising again. A revealer of the hearts of men—yes, and One whose sacrificial death would pierce the heart of His mother.

One is glad that Simeon and Anna (v. 38) and "them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem" saw in Mary's infant son the Son of God incarnate, for round about was unbelief (John 1:11), hatred (Matt. 2:16), and indifference (Matt. 2:4, 5).

Is it not so today? Christmas has just been celebrated. How many saw the babe in the manger as Jesus the Saviour?

II. Perfect Development in a Boy (vv. 39, 40).

The period from infancy to accountability (12 years) is summed up in the full-orbed growth of the boy Jesus described in verse 40. The one business of every child from birth to 12, or somewhere around there, until the period of adolescence, is to grow without any sense of responsibility except obedience to authority; and obedience in the case of a child is always in order to give the child perfect freedom from everything else, without any sense of responsibility. That is the story of Jesus: "He grew!" (G. Campbell Morgan).

Growth is, first of all, physical. Jesus stands by the side of every boy and girl as the body grows from childhood to maturity, for He too knew that experience. We may talk to Him as an understanding friend about the physical needs and problems of our children. Let us remember that here, as elsewhere in Scripture, the physical body is recognized as important.

Mentally, He experienced growth. The strange, apocryphal tales about the child Jesus, representing Him as a man of mature wisdom in a child's body, do not compare even remotely with the beautiful naturalness of a keen-minded boy asking questions, observing, always learning. Boys and girls, you may talk with confidence to Him about your lessons, your growing interest in this exciting world of ours, of your need for guidance in learning. Be sure that He will understand.

The crowning touch upon the growing personality of the child is the spiritual. We read of Jesus that "the grace of God was upon him." "Grace," says Dr. Morgan, "is first, that which delights and charms. Grace, secondly, is desire to impart to others the things that make them happy. Grace, finally, is the activity that does this at all costs." A gracious child is an altogether delightful being; and when that graciousness is the result of the "grace of God" upon him, it is surpassingly lovely, for it makes him Christlike, even in the days of childhood.

Great and grave has been the neglect of the spiritual life of children for whom much has been done physically and mentally. Christian parents must not make that mistake—and they need not, for the Lord Jesus here too stands ready to counsel, guide, encourage, and strengthen them in every good purpose and deed.

Household Hints

When grinding dry bread, tie a paper bag over the outlet of the grinder to prevent crumbs from going over the table and floor.

It's better to wash soiled woolen garments through several sudsy waters instead of just one. It is easier on the garment.

Cook carrots in just a little water so you won't have to drain off any of the minerals and vitamins before serving.

One teaspoon of onion juice or half a sliced raw onion added to mashed potatoes gives them a different flavor.
