Fish Bowl 'Tonnage' Draws Many Out - of - State Anglers

Auxiliary Firemen Training Starts Mon. Night

A new day is dawning for the home town merchant. His wares are fast becoming more and more in demand. The tough sailing of the past two decades will now become easy sailing. Reason: It will soon be "horse and buggy days" again-only there won't be any horses or buggies to speak of. So, people are going to buy the this week announced the initial things they need at the nearest meeting of the Auxiliary Firemen point of supply.

Mr. Home Town Merchant, how. ever, is not going to be without competition-even with the demise of autos and tires. He must carry ample stocks to meet the needs of a community, and he must sell the people on the fact that he can supply their needs, along with quality and price. Don't forget the mail order houses! Even though mail order houses don't pay any city, county and school taxes, they do put out alluring advertisements in the form of well-planned catalogs. Biggest Budget in World's History' For Expanding of U.S. War Program Will Cost Nation 56 Billion Dollars; Russians Continue to Push Back Nazis

SOMEWHERE IN CHINA.-Veteran Chinese soldiers of this type, pic tured at a railway station "Somewhere in China," are advancing toward Malaya to aid the hard-pressed forces of the British against the Japs. It was reported that veterans of this type took part in the slaughter of Jap troops in the Changsha, China, sector.

TAXES:

Billions on Billions

Americans who had been given grim satisfaction by the President's stirring message to congress faced with what courage they could muster the huge bill that will have to be paid, 56 billions of dollars.

Congress, to a man, had told the President "we will give you the money." OPM had said, "We can and will do it," and labor said, "we will not stop working." And the country, with surprisingly little grumbling, but with no small measure of worrying, decided to dig down into its earnings to foot half the bill this year.

Twenty-seven billions of dollars, taxes of nine billions on top of 18 billions were to be levied to meet as much as possible of the due bill as it is spent.

On the basis of 130,000,000 people, the expenditure in taxes for the federal war program, added to whatever local and state taxes might be levied, would be $204 for each person, man, woman or child; $813 for a family of four. That of course able to pay shouldering the larger portion of the burden.

The "overall" war expenditure estimate was thus brought to 131 billions, or three times the total cost to this country of World War

Mr. Roosevelt frankly had told newsmen it was the biggest budget in the history of the world. Government authorities said it was twice the estimated annual war expenditure of Germany.

On top of the taxes, it would be necessary to borrow 32 billions. The national debt, therefore, would skyrocket to $110,000,000,000, or about three times the huge figure of June.

The nine extra billions, the President said, would be divided into seven billions in direct taxes of various types, though he said he opposed a general sales tax. The other two billions would be in the form of new social security taxes.

Existing taxes of all descriptions would be continued, and they have been estimated as due to produce 18 | ties of booty taken.

The war allocations had been split as follows: 181/2 billions for the army; 17 billions for supplement but unspecified items; seven billions to the navy; 71/2 billions for the leaselend program; 11/2 billions for the maritime commission's merchant ship program, the rest for miscellaneous purposes.

Perhaps a billion can be lopped off of non-defense government activities, the President said-that is

THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Waterson, convinced by her lawyer, John Colt, that she has a claim to the island estate of her grandfather, Garrett Waterson, has come to Honolulu to attempt getting the property. In an effort to find out something about the Wayne family, now in control of Alakoa, the island, she accepts a date to go sailing with Richard Wayne or Tonga Dick as he is known throughout the South Pacific. Against her wishes he takes her to Alakoa and there they find that James Wayne, Dick's uncle and manager of the property, is very ill. Dick attempts to work out a compromise settlement with Karen but she refuses. The first night of their visit James Wayne is found dead. Next day Karen and Dick start back for Honolulu. On the way Dick attempts to explain to Karen the Waynes' interest in the island.

Now continue with the story.

Karen's next words were faintly contemptuous. "If you think that your brothers are capable of standing against such a man as John

Colt-" He shrugged impatiently. "Karen," he said, "I am the one that you are against now. Don't you Karen faltered and her eyes dropped. But she said, "Yes; yes, of course. I suppose it always did have to come to that, in the end, didn't it?

Suddenly Dick reached across the table and caught both her hands. "I don't want to go to war with you,' he said. "I don't think you want to go to war with me. Do you?"

"It doesn't have to be war," Dick said. His voice had neither pride nor distance. "It can be anything you want to make it."

Suddenly he came to his feet, stepped around the little table; and though she sprang up he caught her in his arms. Her face pressed hard against his blue jacket, so that she smelled tobacco smoke, and salt spray. He spoke to her almost inaudibly through the sudden tumble of her hair.

"I don't want your island. I don't want anything on the face of the sea, except one thing. You know what that is. I want you."

Her arms went around him then, and she clung to him. "I don't want the island either, Dick . . ."

"If it brought you into the Pacific, I guess Alakoa served its turn." "You-you'll have to see John Colt," Karen said. "Somehow you have to fix it all with him."

She felt the breath go out of him. "Colt?" he repeated. "In God's name, why Colt?"

"Everything he has left has gone son I'm here.'

His arms loosened, then, so that she swayed away from him; and he held her shoulders between his two

"You feel so definitely tied to John Colt as that?" "I have to stand by him, noweven now," Karen said. "I couldn't possibly do anything else."

She saw his eyes harden, and disengaged herself from his hands.

"You hate John Colt so much?" "My uncle would never have yielded one inch of Alakoa to John Colt," Tonga Dick said. He spoke slowly, but to Karen it must have seemed that his words carried an implacable finality. "Neither will I; and neither will my-brothers, while I live." "I'm sorry," Karen said. "You mean?"

"There's nothing more to be "It's war, then?"

"There-there doesn't seem to be

She was in possession of herself again. "You might say," Karen told him, "you might say to the Chinese boy that I would like a cup of black coffee."

He turned away from her, shouting to the mess boy in a furious bellow that shook the lamps in their gymbals.

As he did so a great lift of the sea swung a porthole of the Holokai high above the water; and through the thick streaming glass Karen saw

"John," she said, "have you thought of compromise with the Waynes?"

"You talked with them?" he asked. "No one but Tonga Dick. And it's impossible to learn anything from him until he's ready to have you know."

to be in the way of chic and refreshing novelty. It's going to be a most exciting time for prints from now on. Not only are they putting in a much earlier appearance than usual, but they are strikingly novel in both color and design. Smartly in keeping with the vogue for bright touches to add warmth and color to the winter wardrobe, charming rayon prints are appearing in such an out-of-the-ordinary assortment that they set a new high in zestful color and originality.

Speaking of the unusualness of new print design, you'll be thrilled with the charm of the new lace prints which fashion enthusiastically features this season. They are simply stunning! In some instances the lace motifs are so strikingly realistic it almost seems as if they were appliqued to their background. However, you will find it is really artfully printed patterning. Many of these lacy prints are combined with gorgeous florals.

It is just such lavish lace designs s pictured to the right in the foreground of the group illustrated that are calling forth ohs and ahs from print-seeking enthusiasts. Here the patterning captures the delicate tracery of lace paper doilies and the color glory of chrysanthemums for a striking print design on fine acetate rayon jersey. The styling of this winsome midseason dress conveys a message of soft draping and a very important message it is, too, for the newer silhouettes are making a feature of slenderizing drape technique.

An outstanding treatment found in the new prints is that of widespaced, brilliant florals that con- (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Watch for these handpainted effects, multi-color bouquets or single flowers spaced widely over backgrounds of fine rayon crepe in solid tones.

Be on the lookout, also, for the new and fascinating feather prints. Soft plume effects are being importantly featured; also graceful palm fronds that look very tropical when green widely-spaced ferns or palms are printed on white grounds. Other important prints that take you into the realm of small, bright effects carry interestingly diminutive plumes, formalized medallions and curlicues, or exotic paisley pattern-

See the stunning dress worn by the figure seated on arm of chair, as shown to the left in the picture. The luxurious rayon crepe used for this newest and smartest of afternoon dresses glories in an exquisite flower and feather patterning in many colors. This deftly draped and molded-to-the-figure frock is a typically last-minute creation which answers the question of what's new for immediate wear.

Ballerina' Dress

frock is full-skirted and anklelength. It really is a forerunner of the short-length evening dress. Young, pretty and so new is this dainty dress. The prettiest of materials go into its making. Lovely prints yield beautifully to the ballerina silhouette. Perhaps most charming of all are the ballerina dresses made of lace. The bodices that top the ballerina skirts are purposely styled with the utmost simplicity, have short sleeves, fit snugly and add to their lure with deepcut square or heart-shaped necklines.

A most significant sidelight on the ballerina vogue is that the junior and teen-age girls are so fascinated with the idea they are adopting the fashion for daytime dresses of touch of crochet somewhere about gay chintz and crisp cottons.

Lack of Punctuality

Never before have we noticed the lack of punctuality that has been dominant this year. Many students are as much as 10 to 20 minutes late every morning and at noon. Not only are we late at the beginning of the morning and afternoon sessions, but a great many make it a habit to be late to every

Coming into class late is hard the individual, on the teacher, and on the other students. It is hard on the teacher because he has probably already taken up the home work, and if he has started the discussion or explanation of some problem, he will have to begin again for the latecomer's conence. It is hard on fellow stuis because a late entrance alpoint that is sometimes the key street in London about 1845. to the whole situation—we cheat ourselves out of a quarter of an hour of free education!

If we look on our report card, we will note that punctuality counts on our citizenship record. No doubt many citizenship grades are changed from "Satisfactory" to "P" or "U" because that person forbids his children having anyis often tardy.

Even if we don't care about a grade or how much we lose in Education, just sto pand think of the bad habit being formed and the trouble we will have breaking it later in life when our job may swing in the balance. So let's be more considerate of the teacher, the other students, and ourselves.

SYNTHETIC RUBBER INVENTED BY TEXAS COLLEGE CHEMIST

AUSTIN, Jan. 14. - Governor Coke R. Stevenson said he will approve a deficiency appropriation if one is needed by the University of Texas for completion of research on a new substitute for Issuance of the warrant waited waited on formal application from the university.

The new rubber substitute is the invention of Dr. Eugene Paul Schoch, veteran director of the University's Bureau of Industrial Chemistry.

Details were withheld today as the University hastened to patent the process before a premature ncement at San Antonio should disrupt the plans.

Dr. Schoch has been working in the research division of the University under an agreement by which the University obtains patent rights in all discoveries. Profits from royalties on processes will go into the University's research fund to finance further investigations. Dr. Schoch's plan differs from other synthetic rubber processes. thetics produced from petroleum or guayule. It was expected also that the Schoch rubber will outwear the present type of rubber tires. Double mileage was mentioned as attainable.

Gas now burned in flares in the state's oil fields as a safety precaution can be used to manufacture the new tire material. Production of the Schoch rub-ber is planned as a joint national and state undertaking. The state already has financed the research through the University of Texas and U. Schoch rubber on a big scale. Schoch and Dean W. R. Woolrich of the University of Texas went over the project with O'Daniel and Governor Stevenson here Monday night. Secrecy was requested in order that the University might have time to perfect some details before making patent application.

Washington, D. C. AN INSIDE STORY

Here is the inside story on what happened in all the fuss and furore over the Free French seizure of the St. Pierre-Miquelon.

The story illustrates a very imeign policy has got to pull closer todepartment officials might have thought twice about slapping British policy in the face—especially at sitting in the White House working on plans for closer Anglo-American co-ordination.

The crux of the situation was that belongs. So, his Tennessee dander up, Mr. Hull cabled U. S. Ambassador Winant in London to take up the matter with the British government.

Ambassador Winant, in turn, went to Malcolm MacDonald, minister of colonies, who was unset that the United States and Britain should be working at cross-purposes, and telephoned his friend Lord Beaverbrook back in Washington to have Churchill straighten the matter out with Roosevelt.

By that time, Sam Reber, in the state department, had telephoned R. E. Barclay of the British embassy wanting to know what the British were up to, and every Anglo-American co-ordinator seemed to be in every other Anglo-American co-ordinator's hair.

(Bell Syndicate-WNU Service.)

Women have a share in the world catastrophe. Make "I will be afraid of nothing" your first rule. Yes, even if death is going to be your share, and the boy doesn't come home from the wars-face it.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THE strangest years of her history and the greatest crisis she ever has faced are immediately nent gridiron star before we were flag on St. Pierre-Miquelon, Secres ahead for America. She has always been a friendly country, willing to let other countries solve their problems and worship their gods in their own way, not afraid of her weaker neighbors any more than they were afraid of her.

But all this has been mies" now, we are to be the world's arsenal and to at-And you, the quiet mistress us all out of a chaos into which the blindness and stupidity of the na-

They talked world brotherhood, world peace, world distribution of opportunities and necessities 20 years ago. But nobody meant those on St. Pierre-Miquelon. And he felt promises or took the slightest interest in their fulfillment; blockades went on; mandatory powers were not released; children starved and their mothers and fathers went mad for revenge.

These conditions will be repeated in a few years when the war is over, for the men who are responsible for it are not dealing honestly with their peoples now, and are not apt to change afterward. No, they will retire, wealthy and unpunished, as they did 20 years ago, leaving sorrow and ruin and bitter change for all the rest of us to face.

Make Family Unafraid. Your share is to make the little unit that is your family, and if possible your group, self-sufficient and unafraid. Begin this very day to change your house into a place to which a man and children love to return at night. No worry, no fears and complaining, no violent discusor around your fireplace. Just and who will bear her own share of the burden when and if it comes.

Make "I will be afraid of nothing" your first rule. Your faith will affect every member of your family. Yes, even if death is going to be your share, and the boy doesn't come home from the wars, face it, Three million American mothers will be beside you. Life won't ever go back for any of us to what it was. But face it, and in love for those who are left, and who will grieve less, will suffer less, if you always show a smiling face, learn to bear the unbearable.

For a second rule: Get out of debt. Whatever your income is, live on exactly two-thirds of it. Save; buy a little farm, and when you own it, buy another, to rent. Get your feet solidly on the ground for what is coming; for each one of us who can take care of a neighbor will have to do it then. Cut down everywhere you can.

Maybe your income is inflated now, is much larger than it was before defense activities began. If that is so, try to live as simply as before, and invest in national bonds, or in those few acres of real estate that and potatoes, closet sheives filled

And now for a third rule: See that the family income does not | riches of life lies in sharing.

KEEP YOUR CHIN UP! That's what the women of this and every country are going to have to do-keep their chins up. They are going to have to smile, even when they would rather have a good cry. And they are going to have to make "home," in spite of sorrow, hard work and sacrifice, a peaceful and courageous place. Kathleen Norris believes that a better world is in the making. She says that the more fully we understand the suffering and injustice others must endure, the better able we will be to help build a truly civilized society. There may be fewer millionaires when this is over, but there will probably be fewer poverty stricken slums and pale children looking with bewildered eyes on a heartless world.

STUDENT FEDERATION

One Sunday morning I left New York city for Minneapolis, Minn., for I had promised some time ago to spend a little while at the convention held there by the National Student federation. This organization is composed of the elected heads of student government bodies and can be of great value in directing the thought and activities of these young college people, many of whom are going to be leaders of their association. I read an editorial written by Dr. Alvin Johnson, the director of the New School for Social Research, in New York city, in their bi-weekly bulletin, and I could not help thinking how valuable a stimulus to young people this type of short article might be.

The outstanding thought in it is, that in the past, at the end of periods of great crisis, we have tried to reconstitute the past to the future:

the possibility of penetrating the taunter . . . rays. Reason is, after all, a kind of infra-red ray."

We should use our reason to understand the meaning of the past and to shape our action in the future. We have learned what not to would feel yourself heavily bur- do. Have we the courage and foresight to begin to build a new order when this crisis is over?

Since mentioning Mr. Louis Adamic's "Two Way Passage" I have finished the book. I thought it showed keen insight into the various strains which make up the United States. Whether his plan for a twoway passage is possible, just as he describes it, or not, only time will show. One thing is sure, this two-way passage must serve to interpret what we have accomplished in this nation by way of good will and better understanding.

to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

• It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy It, It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

 When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—snows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.) ICHELE MORGAN, the French actress who will make her American film debut in RKO's "Joan of Paris," will take to the South Seas her second picture. That is, she will unless some new twist of world affairs makes the South Seas undesirable as a background for a picture. Nowadays, so many changes have had to be made in a hurry in so many scripts that motion picture executives are prepared for anything. Anyway, Miss Morgan is slated to do "Challenge to the Night"-a South Seas romance.

Madeleine Carroll has had to do a bit of plan-changing herself. She was determined to go back to England, you know; had got a year's leave of absence and was set to go home and entertain troops or do anything else that would be useful. As soon as "My Favorite Blonde" was finished she'd be on her way. But our entrance into the war has changed all that; she'll stay here, and probably play a lead role in "Her Perfect Mate."

"A reed shaken with the wind?" No. "A man clothed in soft raiment?" No. "A prophet? Yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet. For this is he, of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face. . . . Verily I | them on that new set of tea towels say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist." Such was the testimony of Jesus (Matt. 11:7-11) about the man who in our lesson of today bears his testimony concerning Jesus. I. John: the Preacher of Repentance (vv. 1-3). The times in which a man lives without protest or effort. But not so 000,000. with John. The period in which he lived is graphically brought before us as we consider the names of civil and religious leaders mentioned in verses 1 and 2. Tiberius Caesar, the emperor, was virtual dictator, "talented, ambitious, cruel, licentious, infamous, inhuman" (Van Doren). Pilate was the governor of Judea, who later condemned Jesus Soften yeast in potato water, add to the cross. Herod was a seducer and murderer. Annas and Caiaphas shared the infamy into which the priesthood had fallen.

God needed a man with a flaming message of judgment, and He a word from God-"Repent"-which stirred the whole countryside. But he had even a greater mission.

II. John-the Forerunner of Jesus (vv. 4-6).

He humbly identifies himself as the voice in the wilderness prophesied by Isaiah. His was the important duty of preparing the way for the coming of the Lord Jesus.

The picture is that of the preparation for the coming of an oriental monarch. When he "was about to make a journey, a servant was sent before him to prepare the highway. Valleys needed to be filled, hills lowered, crooked places made straight, rough ways made smooth. Thus, before men would be ready to receive Christ, moral obstacles must be removed, men must repent of their sins and turn from them"

(Erdman) Isaiah says that "all flesh shall see the salvation of God," something which God has made possible, but which we have not even yet fully carried out. The gospel is universal in its character-for all mankind. This prophetic word will, of course, have its complete fulfillment when the King comes to reign. Then "they shall teach no more every his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall all know me, from Here are some tempting sandwich | the least of them to the greatest

III. John-the Follower of Jesus (vv. 15-17).

The humility of the man, his recognition of true greatness in Christ, his willingness to efface self, is seen in the words of these verses and in such other passages as John 1:29-30, where he directed his disciples to Jesus, whom they followed, and John 3:26-30, where in response to the effort to make him jealous of Jesus because his (John's) disciples followed Him, John replied, "He must increase, but I must decrease." He was glad to be the Cooked ham ground with sweet friend of the Bridegroom who rejoiced when the bridegroom came Cream cheese with orange mar- (John 3:29). He declared himself unworthy to loose the latchet of Christ's shoe (Luke 3:16).

The Christian virtue of humility is evil spoken of by a world of force and hatred, but it is still precious in the sight of God, and the ornament par excellence of Christian character. "Be clothed with humility: for God resisteth the proud and giveth grace to the humble" (I Pet. 5:5)

As he put himself in the background, John put Christ forward as the one whose baptism would not be a material element, water, indicating the inward change of repentance, but would be with Holy Ghost fire, cleansing and transforming life.

However, the Christ who comes as a Saviour to the repentant one, comes also as the flaming fire of judgment upon the impenitent. There is wheat and chaff in the world of men, and the fan of Christ will soon separate the wheat which goes into His eternal garner from the chaff which He will burn with unquenchable fire.

Our God is a God of unfathomable grace, but He is also a God of severest judgment upon those "that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ." Read the solemn words of II Thessalonians 1:7-9. It is an awful thing to reject the Saviour, and thus to make Him our Judge.
