ROCKPORT BOY JAPANESE WAR PRISONER

PILOTING

"Today the roaring machines in our war factories are playing a mighty battle hymn of planes and tanks and guns. The power of American industry has been turned against the Axis." That is the message Walter D. Fuller, Chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers gave in his recent address before the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

Asserting that days of sacrifice are ahead, Mr. Fuller said, "Modern war already has brought shortages of goods and materials, rationing of tires, gasoline, sugar and other things. We have had to tighten our belts, and we are digging deeper in our pockets than ever before."

"But patriotic Americans everywhere co-operate in any measures necessary to win this war. There is no sacrifice too great for victory. We can make no sacrifice today that would begin to equal the price all of us would have to pay in defeat. The cost of defeat would be permanent. The sacrifices for victory are only temporary."

Mr. Fuller revealed that only two years ago we had no munition industry, and no factories capable of producing tanks, but today we are ahead of schedule on the production of tanks, airplane production is over 3,300 a month; and ships are coming down the ways five and six months ahead of schedule.

"That is the story of victory in the making," Mr. Fuller maintained. "It is the story of what free men are accomplishing because they are determined to preserve freedom, liberty and democracy in the world. Hitler's coffin is on the American production line today."

When the production goals were set at 185,000 airplanes, 120,000 tanks, 55,000 anti-aircraft guns and 18 million tons of commercial shipping by 1943, some people called these 'fantastic'. They were so 'fantastic' in relationship to industry's ability to produce that these schedules are about to be increased! Yes, we are going to outdo the 'impossible'.

"But no one should get the idea that it has been simple and easy," Mr. Fuller declared. "It has taken blood, sweat and tears. It has taken planning and work. It has taken ingenuity and enterprise. The sacrifices have been tremendous. You know of many companies that have been squeezed out of existence by the pressure of war. There are many others that have had to sacrifice their domestic markets, built at huge cost over the years."

Gonzales Men Here For Fishing Trip
Riley Zumwalt of Gonzales and his guest Nathan McCarty of Douglas, Ariz., arrived Wednesday afternoon to fish here. They are guests at Fulton Family Cottages and planned a trip out to some of the reefs today.

Sugar For Canning Available Here
Emergency certificates allowing sugar for canning and preserving are being issued, according to J. F. Bullard, chairman of the local rationing board.

Miss Estelle Honaker of Shreveport, La., is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bracht for two weeks. Miss Honaker is a laboratory technician in Charity Hospital in Shreveport. This is her first trip to Rockport.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hanway made a brief trip to San Antonio this week.

Aransas Pass Rodeo Friday Night, Parade Saturday

Big Parade Scheduled For Saturday Morning

Rockport Band To March In Aransas Pass Parade And Play At Rodeo

Four thrilling rodeo performances, packed with the keen excitement of bucking broncs, high pitching steers and colored by daring riding of cowboys and cowgirls will be given at Aransas Pass this week end. Getting off to a flying start Friday morning at 10:30 with a long street parade led by three pretty cowgirl rodeo queens, the first rodeo performance will be given at 8 p. m. Friday night in an arena at the football stadium. Other performances will be at 2:30 Saturday afternoon, 8 o'clock Saturday night and the final show at 2:30 Sunday afternoon.

Rockport's school band will march and play in the parade Saturday morning and up front in the line of march will be Miss Violet Marie Brundrett, representing Rockport as one of three queens of the rodeo. The other queens will be from Aransas Pass and Ingleside. A booster caravan from Aransas Pass visited Rockport Wednesday afternoon on a swing over this section advertising the rodeo sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. Sam Kaufman, president of the Chamber of Commerce headed the booster delegation, and the school band along to play at all stops.

"On behalf of the Aransas Pass Chamber of Commerce I wish to express appreciation to the people of Rockport for their co-operation and especially thank Superintendent Black for permitting the school band to come to Aransas Pass and play for the parade and rodeo," Kaufman said.

Cap Rich is in charge of the rodeo troupe and promises every moment of the four shows will be packed with thrills.

D. R. Scrivner Asks Re-Election As Treasurer

D. R. Scrivner, County Treasurer of Aransas County, formally announces in this week's issue of the Pilot for re-election to the post he has held for many years. He is the dean of office holders in the court house in point of years of service and is known to practically everyone in the county.

Mr. Scrivner was the first white boy baby born in Rockport and his given names are "David Rockport". While at the present time he is devoting his energies almost entirely to the functions of office that has been entrusted to him for 44 years. In the early days he was one of the most active civic leaders in the city. He served for many years as a member and officer of the old Rockport Commercial Club and had a hand in the development of this section of the coast.

This veteran public official has met the approval of voters for re-election to the office he holds without a single exception, and is so well known, both personally and as to record of efficiency, that he can well rest upon the performance of duty in the past as his chief qualification for seeking re-election.

Mr. Scrivner's candidacy of course, is subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

Gayle Bros. Establish Office Here

Gayle Bros. Construction Co., of Houston, contractors for the sewer job here, have opened a temporary office in the Moore building, opposite the Humble station on the highway.

Frank A. Gayle, Jr., is superintendent in charge of the office, Miss Edith Bragdon is secretary, and G. W. Shivers is assistant superintendent.

Norvell Jackson Called To Military Duty

Call of Young Civic Leader Leaves Vacancy on Council and C. of C.

Norvell Jackson, young city official and civic leader of Rockport has been called into active duty with the U. S. Army. He left Rockport today (Thursday) for induction at Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio.

Jackson, serving his second term as city alderman from Ward 2 resigned that post Tuesday afternoon. His call to service will also leave vacancies on the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and in the Fire Department. He was a member of the Chamber of Commerce Board and the advertising committee and has been active in that work since the Chamber was organized. He has been with fire department since its organization and has been assistant chief.

Jackson is a son of Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Jackson and for the past few years has been manager of the Jackson Sales Company and agent here for Texaco.

Mrs. Jackson who is a member of the school faculty here, will remain in Rockport for the time being.

C. E. Townsend Announces For Commissioner

C. E. Townsend this week announced his candidacy for the office of county commissioner for precinct one in Aransas County. The office to which he aspires is not new to him, since he completed two terms as county commissioner and then did not seek re-election.

Townsend was County Commissioner from Jan. 1, 1921 to Jan. 1, 1925. He came to Aransas County in 1926 from Weatherford, Okla., and has resided here since.

"I feel that each commissioner is elected by his constituents to look after their interests and the interests of the whole county, and that it is the responsibility of each commissioner to stand by his own convictions in matters of public regard," Townsend said in making his announcement. "If elected I intend to act always upon my own convictions as to what I believe is right and best for all concerned."

"Promising you only to do what I believe is right at all times and to give the best service possible to all the people. I earnestly solicit your vote and support in the coming Democratic primary."

Thomerson No. 1 Water Superintendent

J. R. Thomerson last week took over his new job as city water superintendent, a position left vacant by Buckley Wright, who has gone into military service.

Thomerson has been living in Rockport since 1934, practicing his trade of plumbing here since that time.

Vacation Bible School Planned

Plans for a summer vacation Bible school, to be held soon are being made by the Rev. Almus D. Jameson. In connection with the course Rev. Jameson has attended a Normal School sponsored by the district Methodist Churches to present new ideas and methods in vacation Bible Schools.

He was present for a session held Monday in Corpus Christi, and another in Beeville. These meetings were conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Horace Kane, of San Antonio; and were called by Dr. L. U. Spellman, Corpus Christi.

No More Horseshoes—But Lucky!

Here is the 107th cavalry regiment, which has now been converted to mechanized mounts. The regiment is shown in a mass column speedily moving toward position from Fort Ord, Calif. The "steeds" range from motorcycles to jeeps and scout cars. So passed the 107th cavalry regiment, which had its origin in 1877 as the First City Troop of Cleveland, Ohio.

U. S. O. Opens Drive With Kick-Off Breakfast

Assigned a quota of $346.90, Aransas County has already raised $264 of that amount, with shipyard employees not yet contacted. The campaign for funds for the U. S. O. began here Monday morning with a kick-off breakfast held in the Bank Hotel.

Pat Mixon, chairman of the drive, presided at the meeting and outlined the plans whereby the committee expects to reach its goal at an early date.

Aiding with the campaign are Mrs. R. E. Black, Mrs. Fred Brundrett, Mrs. Carl Gray, Mrs. Floyd Huffman, Mrs. I. E. Allemang,

Non-Coms From Kelly Field Fish Here

Sergt. John Panos and Sergt. Joe Crady, both from Kelly Field spent Thursday through Sunday in Rockport; fishing and swimming.

These men have long called this their favorite resort, but have been unable to get down here for the past two years. They report many changes for the better.

Boat Men Busy With Hauling Out Program

Boat building and reconconditioning goes ahead in Rockport with both commercial and private owners hauling out their craft in preparation for the summer.

Morrison's Boat House proceeds with their regular schedule of repair and in addition are going over two pleasure boats from stem to stern. The Miss Helen belonging to Auge Packing Co., San Antonio, and the Heldenfel's Miss Jackie, are being scraped and painted.

Mills Wharf is a busy place with the conditioning of boats to lease to tourists, and work on privately owned property which is kept there. Two boats for the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission have been hauled out, as well as the A. C. Glass Chris-Craft, and another for Capt. Jandt of the Galveston Customhouse.

D. H. Caspary yesterday made the first run with the boat purchased from Shorty Townsend, which he has equipped for shrimping. It is a 38 foot vessel and has been repainted.

Expecting soon to be working out in the Gulf for the larger shrimp, S. F. Jackson is remodeling 2 boats along with his regular program of hauling out. "While the season has been good all along we believe the best is yet to come," Jackson said. He has recently purchased the Horace Brundrett speed boat and has re-named it the Neva.

Jim Hanway has had the Rusy hauled out and painted. Preston Paul is having a new engine installed in a tow boat, which is to be used on the army job which he is doing on Matagorda Island.

The hull of the Saltaire, which burned in the basin in March has been acquired by Carl Brundrett, and is to be rebuilt into a shrimp boat.

First Aid Course Completed Friday Night

Summer Class To Include School Students Planned

Fifteen members completed the first class offered here by the Civilian Defense Council in First Aid, with Allen Davis of Aransas Pass giving the final lecture and demonstration Friday night.

Davis is connected with the Caged Funeral Homes. He gave instruction on the handling of patients on stretchers, and the use of ambulances. C. C. Hayden, in charge of first aid for Rice Bros. & Co., has given the previous demonstrations for the course, assisted in instruction by Mrs. J. P. Hanway.

"It was a good class, but could have been better," said Hayden. "We were not able to issue certificates because no authorized instructor was available, and we needed more text books."

"We hope to have better equipment, more text books, and start another class soon after school is out," Hayden added.

High School boys and girls are expected to enter the next class, as well as adults, and in the meantime Hayden plans to take additional courses himself, so he may be made as authorized instructor and certificates in First Aid can be awarded those finishing the work.

J. H. Mills Announces For Re-Election

J. H. Mills, county commissioner of Lamar Precinct 3, this week enters his announcement for re-election to the position he has held with the exception of one term since 1928. He has been a resident of Aransas for twenty years and has been at Lamar for the past ten years.

Mills long record in office speaks for itself and reveals that the commissioner has been back of all progressive moves for the betterment of his precinct and the county. He will appreciate the vote and support of the people of precinct three in the coming Democratic primary.

Memorial Day Program Set For Rockport Cemetery

Memorial Day will be observed with an appropriate program at the Rockport Cemetery, Saturday, May 30, at 4 p. m. Mrs. S. F. Jackson will be in charge of the program.

Mrs. Simon Lee Sorenson is chairman of the flower committee for the occasion, Mrs. Mabel K. Bryant, chairman of the transportation committee and Miss Grace Smith, chairman of the flag committee. The program will appear in next week's issue of the Pilot.

Navy Relief Goes 450 Percent In Aransas County

Largest single contribution to Navy Relief, a check for $50, was made here, unsolicited, last week to Emory M. Spencer, Aransas County Chairman for this drive. The contribution came from the Humble Oil Co., and was turned in by Hal Parks, agent for Humble in Aransas Pass.

With this donation Aransas County goes 450 percent on its quota.

S. L. Baker Is Prisoner Officials Say

Seventeen Year Old Local Boy Alive in Jap Prison Camp—Marines Report

S. L. Baker, U. S. Marine Corps, is a prisoner of war in the vicinity of Shanghai, China, according to a communication received here yesterday by his sister, Mrs. E. W. Townsend, from headquarters of the U. S. Marine Corps in Washington D. C.

The Commandant's letter stated that a partial list of American prisoners captured by the Japanese Military Forces had come to the bureau through the International Red Cross. Baker's name was on the list, confirming the fact that he had been captured by the enemy and was alive. The only other information offered was that the place of internment was near Shanghai.

Mrs. Townsend was advised to contact her local chapter of the Red Cross as to the possibility of communication with her brother. Baker enlisted in the Marines in 1939, having his early training at San Diego, Cal. He was known to have been in the Pacific for the past eight months, and was on Wake Island when the Japanese opened hostilities in December.

Baccalaureate Sermon Set

Graduation plans and honor students of the senior class of 1942 are announced this week by R. E. Black, superintendent of the Rockport School.

Highest ranking student is Quentin Drunzer, who will deliver the valedictory address on Commencement evening. Roger Bracht is Salutatorian. Third ranking senior is Thomas George, with Natalie Smith being the highest ranking girl.

The Baccalaureate sermon will be delivered to the senior class next Sunday evening by the Rev. James F. Stanley, pastor of the First Baptist Church here.

The program for the Baccalaureate service is as follows:

- Processional—Mrs. Norvell Jackson
- Invocation—Rev. T. H. Pollard
- Student Quartette—Betty Wigginton, Shirley Johnson, Marvin Pollard and Harris Pollard
- Sermon—Rev. J. F. Stanley
- Benediction—Rev. Herbert Buckholt

War Effort Strengthened By High School Graduates

Armed Services, Industry, Farms Lure 1942 Students; Vocational Training Now Becoming Increasingly Important.

By WILLARD E. GIVENS
Executive Secretary, National Education Association.

IT HAS been estimated that over one million boys and girls will leave high school this spring with their diplomas. It is this same group of boys and girls, the youth of the nation, who were figuratively being spoken to when a commencement speaker said to a group of graduates before him: "You have seen more history than you have read."

During the first half of 1942, the pages of history have been turning fast, recording the names of men and their deeds in the greatest drama of all ages.

And now today, not only the high school graduate, but all those who have read the story of man's upward struggle from the early dawn of history to the present time, recognize the climax of history in which they are now living.

The significance of today. Only to the man who is in some measure educated is it granted to know what is going on about him and to estimate its significance.

The mental isolation of mankind in the not-so-long-ago unhappy days of the human race when one class of men was privileged to enjoy the culture and refinement of wide knowledge, and another class was doomed to live and die in vulgarity and poverty, is banished.

Today, high school students see themselves in the setting of time and events. In their hearts is a stirring that finds its expression in a common question, "What is my place in all this?"

Some of the boys may volunteer at once for service in the armed forces. The army has just announced that volunteers 18 and 19 years old may select training in the combat branch of their own preference—infantry, cavalry, artillery, tank corps, air corps, signal corps, or corps of engineers.

Many graduates will continue their education under the direction of the navy, which has in operation plans by which graduates may go on to college and pursue studies in which they may earn college credits and at the same time prepare for more effective service in the navy.

War Industries to Hire Many. Some thousands of these high school graduates, boys and girls, will at once enter war-industries to help manufacture the guns and tanks and planes upon which the fighting men on far-flung battle fronts depend.

The vocational training activities in Oakland, Calif., are typical of those in many cities near great shipyards or other centers producing the machinery of war.

A mechanized army calls for the utmost inventive and operational skills which the American people can produce. These Denver high school boys will know how to operate an electric semaphore if they should serve in the signal corps of the army.

Problems of Education Aired at Conference

At an annual meeting of the American Council of Education, Chicago, Ill., the following statements were made by educators: Roscoe L. West, president, State Teachers College, Trenton, N. J., said: "People know intuitively that education must focus on getting folks ready to live better in their community than they would have lived otherwise. And by community I mean the nation and the world."

Victory vs. Luxury

"John's older brother who finished high school in 1941 burned up the tires of his old jalopy on the highways at sixty miles an hour, either pleasure or business bent. John will ride a bus or walk to 'go places and do things.' Susan who graduates in 1942 will find that permanents, fluffy evening dresses, silk and nylon hose were luxuries that her older sister of 1940 did not bequeath to her.

workers, electricians, ship carpenters, joiners and other skilled trades.

There is opportunity of some kind today for youth everywhere. All can join in the "great adventure" in some capacity. This is true for girls as well as for boys.

The kinds of military work for girls to choose from are numerous, and announcements of further opportunities are expected from time to time.

Officers the impulse to seek service far afield is ill advised. There is also the home front. Whole states must be prepared to resist invasion from land, sea or air.

In hundreds of agricultural communities high school graduates will immediately lay aside their diplomas for cultivator handles and hoes.

The federal government in June, 1940, appropriated $15,000,000 to equip and staff the rapidly ex-

ALVA BRADLEY was practically the only man in the recent Derby day crowd at Churchill Downs who wasn't talking or thinking about the Derby winner.

It may be remembered in the past that the same Alva Bradley has had more than his share of baseball sorrow. The Oscar Vitt episode was the starter. That was the year Cleveland blew a pennant it should have won by a dozen games.

Naturally Mr. Bradley was not looking on the 1942 campaign through any rose-tinted glasses. He was all prepared for the worst.

About Boudreau
"we had full faith in Lou Boudreau from the start," Mr. Bradley said.

ALVA BRADLEY

spring and his men worked with him. He had not only their respect but also their friendship.

"Boudreau hasn't been out of college long and he brought the old college spirit back to our club. He refused to let Bob Feller's loss get him down in any way.

"At this point I'd like to say that none of us are claiming any pennant. The main idea is to hustle all the way and win all the games we can.

The Big Change

It was easy enough to see in the Indians' training camp at Clearwater, Fla., that Boudreau had done a high-class job in the way of switching Cleveland's mental attitude.

Boudreau set up an informal clubhouse where the bunch could get together to read, loaf or play cards.

Even that far back Boudreau said, "I don't know where we'll finish, but I can promise you we'll have a team trying hard every second of every game."

No one could figure then, with Feller absent, that the ex-Illini star was to get the pitching job that has gotten in the first starting weeks. Nor quite the heavy hitting. But Boudreau and his team have at least shown what a new spirit can do to a squad.

Looking Ahead

It will take another month to get the truer picture of the two pennant races. Despite the present club standings, the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Yankees are still the two teams to beat.

Before the season Leo Durocher figured that Dodger power would be more than Cardinal pitching could meet.

The Cincinnati Reds got away slowly this spring and they haven't been flaming balls of fire so far. But they also have better pitching than they have shown—and a better ball club, once it moves into its normal stride.

If any outside team is to crowd out one of the top three, rated by form, it should be Frank Frisch and his Pirates. They can hit their share, and if the pitching holds up they will be a threatening factor.

The main test doesn't come until the athlete has been baked out in five or six weeks of summer sun.

My Week

ANOTHER FULL DAY
NEW YORK CITY.—Another full day began at 10:30 with the opening of the campaign for selling war savings stamps in retail stores. The campaign is to encourage careful buying and to induce customers to take part of their change in Defense Stamps.

After that was over, I went to the annual meeting of the board of directors of the United States Committee for the Care of European Children. This lasted a long while. One or two people came to lunch. In the afternoon I attended a meeting of the committee of the Washington bureau of the International Student service.

REGISTRATION OF WOMEN

Connecticut's voluntary registration of women to fill its labor needs in the agricultural and industrial fields is under way. They were a little troubled because they thought the decision not to hold a compulsory registration of women at the present time might make women feel their work was not needed. As a matter of fact it is because localities have met their needs through such voluntary participation as this, that a national compulsory registration is at present postponed.

The decision was made by the various bureaus concerned with the Federal Security agency. I was interested to find they felt that if the need arose, compulsory registration of woman power could be put through very quickly. Classification of skills and of needs for the various parts of the country could be accomplished within three weeks. This speaks well for the efficiency which has been developed in the employment service and in the Bureau of Women in Industry.

COMMUNAL FEEDING KITCHENS

I wonder if, in some of our more crowded industrial areas, we have not been a little slow in developing communal feeding kitchens where the workers and their families may obtain good meals at reasonable prices. We have talked a good deal about the development of day nurseries, nursery schools and recreational facilities for older children, but I do not know how far this has been actually accomplished throughout the country.

Probably this information will be coming to us shortly in reports from the Office of Civilian Defense. I hope that where exceptionally good jobs are being done they will be written up in some detail for the benefit of other parts of the country.

Unemployment still seems to exist, particularly among older men and women. I am sorry to say that our minority groups are still finding that they are not always given jobs according to their abilities. Sometimes the employer is afraid to be impartial, sometimes the workers are prejudiced. The people who could do a great deal to bring about a change in attitude are the buying public, and they seem apathetic.

GIRL SCOUTS AND SALVAGE

HYDE PARK.—One day in New York city started bright and early, for at 9:15 I was due at 120 East 86th street to meet with a group of Girl Scouts. The owner of an empty store has donated its use to them and they are busy gathering salvage of many kinds.

Where they can make useful articles, they are setting up work tables and doing so. The other things they are turning over to the proper salvage agencies. They gave me a charming May basket, which one of the little girls kindly offered to take down to my apartment, since I could not quite see how I could manage the rest of the morning carrying a basket of flowers.

At 10 o'clock I faced an audience of high school and young college students at the Ethical Culture society. It was the last of a series of lectures during which these young people had considered the obligations of democracy from many aspects.

On leaving there, I had time to run into Holland House to see Hendrik Willem Van Loon's original drawings for the new edition of Erasmus' book, "The Praise of Folly." I enjoyed them, but liked particularly the painting of Mr. Van Loon himself. If no one had been looking, I might have walked away with it.

Then I did a recording for the use of the Children's bureau and reached home in time to have a few guests for lunch. Late in the afternoon, Miss Thompson and I reached Hyde Park by train.

A committee has been formed among certain members of the Phi Delta Kappa to eliminate racial discrimination. I am very happy to find that my own feelings that racial discrimination should be removed from an organization of this kind is shared by such people as Mr. Raymond A. Kent, president of the University of Louisville; Mr. John Dale Russell, secretary of the department of education of the University of Chicago; Mr. George S. Counts of Columbia university.

Broadway; he does one play a season there. If he's in New York, he knows he'll be in Hollywood, making a picture.

A midget clad in a chimpanzee's suit works with Bob Hope and Bing Crosby in "Road to Morocco." Naturally, when the comedians recognized friends among a group of studio visitors, they turned the "chimpanzee" loose on them. He screeched, grabbed them, ran amok; they fled for their lives, while Hope and Crosby sat back, looking a little too innocent.

Herbert Wilcox recently returned from making "They Flew Alone," in London; it's the story of Amy Mollison's life, starring Anna Neagle and Robert Newton. And what snags he ran into! He wanted Newton to play James Mollison—Newton was serving on a minesweeper. An appeal to the government got his release. Electric power at the studio was limited. All timber in the sets had to be used over and over. It took seven months to make the picture, but Mr. Wilcox feels that the very difficulties helped to give it an unusual quality of reality.

Did you like "Here Comes Mr. Jordan"? Then you ought to like Metro's "Three Guys Named Joe"—a tale of three happy-go-lucky pilots who perish while fighting in the Pacific, only to return in a series of post-mortem adventures and "adopt" the crew of another plane, and guide them in battle. Sounds a bit like some of those hilarious "Topper" films.

It has been years, and it seems like forever, since first there was talk of making a picture of Rudyard Kipling's "Kim." Metro has owned the screen rights for a good while, and is settling down to work now, with Mickey Rooney to play the title role, after he finishes "A Yank at Eton."

As a boy Joel McCrea used to play around a haunted house on a hill top. Some years ago, when Anne Harding was looking for a hill top to build on, he recommended the one on which that house had stood. She built there, later sold the house; now it belongs to Rudy Vallee—but he didn't know the site was haunted until told by McCrea, who's working with him and Claudette Colbert in "The Palm Beach Story."

ODDS AND ENDS—RKO is preparing its own picture of the merchant marine—"The Navy Comes Through," starring Pat O'Brien, Randolph Scott and Jackie Cooper. Greer Garson's become a basketball fan; she bought uniforms for the team of the 78th anti-aircraft artillery unit. Spencer Tracy gave his stand-in, Jerry Schumacher, a gold-tipped rabbit's foot when Schumacher joined the parachute troops; the rest of the "Tortilla Flat" company gave him a huge pillow—"for soft landings." "Wonder Baby Corey" is now back at work in "The Lone Wolf in Scotland Yard."

Kathleen Norris Says:

Young Marriage Is Unbalanced Business

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

When a girl of 18 marries everything is joyous tumult. Presents pour in; a dizzying number of frocks are bought. Grandmother's veil is brought out of the linen chest; a photographer takes pictures of little Betsey.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

MOST girls like the idea of marrying young. At 17, a normal girl, walking home from high school between two girl chums, feels in her soul that if she could have the excitement and glory of quietly announcing that she and Peter Baker are going to be married on her graduation day, she wouldn't care much what else happened or didn't happen in all the years to come!

"Betsey engaged!" gasp the aunts. "Why, mercy on us, how old is the child!" "I'll be 18 in June," Betsey reminds them demurely. But inside her nothing is demure. Everything is joyous tumult. Pride, thrill expectation, love of the nice boy who loves her so madly, all these keep Betsey's spirits at high level during her last weeks as a girl. Other things contribute. Presents pour in; dizzying numbers of frocks are bought; parties are given. There is an adorable little apartment to furnish; there is a sparkling ring; Grandmother's wedding veil is brought out of the linen chest; a photographer comes to take pictures of little Betsey half-hid behind the folds of it.

The Miracle of Marriage.

In all of this Peter's image becomes somewhat fogged in Betsey's mind. He is there, of course, loving and happy, but he is really much less important, in the eyes of an 18-year-old girl, than the fit of her wedding gown. Betsey in all her life has never been lonely, ignored, doubtful, hungry for friendship. By no possibility can she value Peter's affection rightly, or estimate this miracle that is marriage at its true worth.

No, it is all fun, for her. Betsey has smart little calling cards with "Mrs. Peter Arnold Baker" engraved upon them, at 18.

But at 19, at 20, the glow begins to pale. It isn't that she doesn't love Peter and dear little ridiculous Patsy, but Betsey isn't the center of attention any more. The other girls, who looked on impressed and perhaps a little envious, two years ago, are in the full swing of life's happiest days now.

Betsey is missing all of this; she is married. Peter has changed from the carefree sweetheart of a few years ago; he has a wife and baby to support now. "I was married at 18," Betsey can still say proudly. But it doesn't seem to matter any more. She is beginning dimly to perceive that the very young wife has an obligation that sits badly on young shoulders.

Hers Must Wait.

Janet is 36 now; she married at 18 and has two daughters of 16 and 13. Her husband had two girls by his first marriage also; they are now in their early twenties, going out a good deal, and never so happy as when their handsome father shares their social engagements. He gives them dances at the country club, little downtown dinners, and now that Emily, the oldest, is engaged to an army captain, the house is in a flurry of wedding preparations.

"From the moment I married Emmet," Janet writes aggrievedly, "everyone seemed to regard me as a settled old woman. I am not old, even now, but with two great girls at the awkward age I am not included in any young parties. Emmet wants Emily and Isabel to have everything; I thought, when we were married, that I would have the managing of his house and his children, but from the first Emmet's sister who lived next door, practically ran our house, and the girls were in school.

OLD AT 20

You can't expect, twenty years from now, to recapture the youth you lost by marrying at 17 or 18. If you try, you will probably become one of those pathetic middle-aged women who refuse stubbornly to grow old gracefully, thereby losing not only the joy of youth but the charm and peace of the later years. Not all such marriages turn out badly. But more often than not, when the novelty and glamour wears thin and marriage becomes the serious business it really is, the bride of less than 20 years begins to realize that she is no longer a girl. She is, at 20, already too old for her age.

"When they came Emmet was so delighted to have two young lady daughters to spoil that I was reduced to a working housekeeper's position, and anything my own girls wanted had to wait until their half-sisters had had a chance at the social whirl, a chance to go the right places and meet the right men.

"Just to give you an idea: Isabel, when she leaves the house, will call up to me, 'Two extra for dinner, Janet!' Emily borrowed a fur coat my aunt left me, 'just for this once' and has been wearing it all winter. When I spoke to Emmet about it and said I had intended to cut it into muffs for Jane and Diana, my own girls, he laughed and said that long before they were ready for muffs the coat would be moth-eaten anyway.

Inconsiderate Demands.

"I feel as if I had thrown away my life; no girlhood, really, no young-ladyhood of dancing and good times, maternal problems with the children of a man more than twice my age when I was only 18, and now nothing but slavery in a family of six, with constant problems of company, meals, parties, late hours, and the inconsiderate demands of two spoiled girls. Except for occasional help by the hour, my girls and I do all the work.

"Just now," the letter concludes, "Emmet is asking me to put a mortgage on our own home so that he can make the down payment on a home for Emily and Martin."

Well, little-girl marriages don't always mean total eclipse. But they almost always present problems that can be solved only by the sudden and painful growing up of the little girl. She doesn't long hold the proud position of a young queen, adored by her older husband, and hardly older, herself, than those children she is mothering so charmingly. For a few months or a year she does bustle about, identified in the shops as that pretty girl-wife of Doctor Brown; for a few years she talks with precocious wisdom, like a grave little girl playing mamma, about what she and Harry mean to do for Toddy and Nancy.

But very shortly she learns that even Titania, when she marries, has to keep a house comfortable and a cook pacified, that Toddy is an unpleasantly spoiled little boy who runs to his grandmother with all his troubles and makes a partisan of his father, and that Nancy doesn't like her and never will.

THURSDAY: THE LAST DAY WITH THE DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:14-30. GOLDEN TEXT—This do in remembrance of me.—Luke 22:19.

The last day! How quickly it comes, and how fleeting yet meaningful its moments.

We do not know what our Lord did on Wednesday of Passion Week. In all probability He remained in Bethany to rest in fellowship with His friends. Surely He needed that day of quiet, for that which had gone before, difficult and strenuous as it had been, was as nothing to that which lay before Him.

Late on Thursday He and His disciples came to the upper room where Peter and John had already made preparation for the observance of the Passover (Luke 22:8). This feast had (since that great and awful night of Israel's redemption out of Egypt's bondage) pointed forward to the Christ and to His cross as the fulfillment of the type of redemption by the shedding of blood. But now the hour had come for Him to give Himself in that death, and so He set aside the Passover (because it has been fulfilled) to establish the great Christian feast of remembrance—the Lord's table, which now shows forth His death till He come.

I. The Final Passover (vv. 14-18).

Our Lord looked forward with intense desire to the Passover which He now observed with His disciples, for it was the last celebration of that feast recognized by God. All that it had foreshadowed of deliverance and hope was fulfilled in Him who now sat at the table. He had moved forward with resolute purpose to this day when His mission on earth was to be accomplished, and He was to become the Christian's Passover lamb (1 Cor. 5:7).

The fact that He had looked forward to it with desire does not minimize the deep darkness of either Gethsemane or Calvary. Remember that, when in the garden He faced that hour and thought of the possibility of the cup being taken from Him, He said to the Father, "Not what I will, but what thou wilt." Praying concerning the same matter (in John 12:27), He said, "Now is my soul troubled; and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour: but for this cause came I unto this hour."

II. The First Communion (vv. 19, 20).

Taking the unleavened bread and the unfermented wine of the Passover which had just been observed, Jesus established a new feast, the Christian feast of remembrance, which we call communion or the Lord's table.

His words are significant, "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come" (1 Cor. 11:26). At the Lord's table His followers find spiritual strength in recalling His death for them, but they also find joy as they remember that He is to come again. They thus testify to the world that they believe and cherish these truths.

This feast is rightly called "communion," for down through the ages and until He does come the saints of God have at His table sweet communion with Him and with one another. Let us not neglect it!

Our Lord also spoke of the cup as "my blood of the new testament." The word "testament" means covenant. The Lord's table therefore speaks of our allegiance to Him, of our loyalty to our Lord, and our devotion to His service. That is why the Christian Church speaks of communion as a sacrament, a word from the Latin sacramentum, meaning oath, and essentially an oath of allegiance.

III. The Folly of the Disciples (vv. 21-30).

Someone may say, "That point does not belong with the other two. Both the Passover and the Lord's Supper are for the joyful remembrance of deliverance and redemption." The objection is well taken except for one thing—we are dealing with human beings as they are, not as they should be and could be by the grace of God.

Here in the inner circle of the twelve there was one traitor. It seems impossible, but apparently Judas had maintained such outward conduct as to turn no suspicion in his direction, even though all along he had in his heart the blackest of treachery against his Lord. A sad and soul-searching fact is here revealed, that it is possible for one to make a high profession of faith in Christ and even so to live as to give no cause for criticism, and yet to be unregenerate and in fact the enemy of Christ.

What about the strife regarding position? Shameful as we agree that it was, it still goes on in the church. Not even the remembrance of our Lord's death and the reminder that He is coming again is enough to keep men from wanting to be greatest.

Household Hints

As dried fruit is usually soaked before cooking, save the soaking water to cook the fruit in, thereby saving much of the food value of the fruit.

Only half the quantity of sugar will be required to sweeten stewed fruits if sugar is added after fruit is cooked.

If one-half level teaspoon of baking powder is added to every four eggs used in making a soufflé, it will not fall after it has been removed from the oven.

Small pieces of toilet soap that accumulate in the bathroom should not be thrown away. Add water enough to cover them and put on stove until dissolved. This makes an excellent soft soap.

Denver Visitor Is Member of Arapahoe Indian Tribe

Mrs. Harry English, of Denver, Colorado, now visiting in Rockport, does not look like an Indian but she is. Formally adopted into the Arapahoe tribe when she was a young woman, she was given the Indian name "Athoresa", which means "Star Woman".

Mrs. English, whose father was an army officer, spent much of her girlhood in Ft. Washakie, Wyoming. There she learned to know and understand the Indians. This knowledge she expressed some years later in a slim volume of prose called "Prairie Sketches".

The outbreak of the first World War found Mrs. English in Paris. She was sent back to her own country, but returned with a hospital unit. In addition to her activities in medical aid, she always sought out men from Colorado and Wyoming, and Indians for special attentions.

While making ward rounds one day in a base hospital near Paris she inquired again for Indians. A wounded soldier in a corner held up his hand. In the exchange of information which followed they discovered they both belonged to the same tribe, the Arapahoe. From this meeting grew a friendship which has lasted throughout the years.

His name was Bill Williams, he called her his White Mother, and the paths of the Indian soldier and Athoresa have crossed many times in the years since.

A more recent publication from Mrs. English' pen is the book "Limits of the Infinite" which is metaphysical in its theme.

Alumni Reception For Graduates Planned

Members Asked To Make Reservations

Plans for the annual reception honoring this year's graduates are being made by a committee from the Alumni of Rockport High School, according to Maurice Curry, president of that organization.

It has been the custom in the past for the committee to contact the Alumni individually for their reservations, Curry said, but this year, due to changed conditions which everyone will understand, members are requested to contact the committee instead.

Mrs. S. F. Jackson, Miss Ruth Lipscomb, or Miss Iris Sorenson, will receive the fees. The charge is 50 cents per person, and a member may take guests.

More detailed plans of the entertainment will be announced later.

DENVER PARTY HERE FOR VACATION

Mr. and Mrs. Harry English, with Elizabeth Pendleton Bales, and John Larson, all of Denver, Colorado, are guests of Rockport Cottages. They arrived Thursday for a two weeks stay.

This is the third trip to Rockport for Mr. and Mrs. English, and the second for Mrs. Bales. They like to fish and swim and consider this a favorite spot.

Miss Margaret Ingersoll of Lockhart spent Sunday here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ingersoll.

Mrs. John M. Townsend and Mrs. E. C. Jeffrey with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kemp and their son Kevin, left Friday for Oklahoma City where they will visit relatives. Mrs. Jeffrey will probably spend the summer there, while the remainder of the party will return in two weeks.

John C. Williams, Pioneer of Dive Bombing Seeks Another Fling With "Old Love"

John Cormichael Williams of Rockport and Victoria, former air instructor at Annapolis and one time executive officer of the Naval Air Station at Pearl Harbor, may soon be back with his old love—the United States Navy.

JOHN CORMICHAEL WILLIAMS Wanted War Last Year

Williams has had anything but a humdrum career of late in civilian life. He has practiced the professions of law and engineering, has managed factories and engaged in oil and real estate businesses, and at present is selling insurance. Last year he ran unsuccessfully for the U. S. Senate and was the only candidate to advocate the immediate declaration of war against Japan.

Although he hasn't had a dull moment since he left the service after pioneering dive-bombing and torpedo dropping from planes in 1925-26, Williams has turned again to the thrills of Naval Aviation.

"I'm on my way to Tokyo," he said recently in telling that he had passed all tests before the Naval Aviation Board in Dallas.

The conviction that a separate air force was vitally important to the military success of the United States has dominated the career of Williams, former naval officer, who as early as 1914 declared in open forum in Annapolis, "Air power within a decade, and certainly within a generation, will replace sea power as the most dominating military force in the world."

Advocating a separate air force since his midshipman days in the U. S. Naval Academy, Williams in 1924 made a series of radio addresses appealing for this organization and suggested schemes for increasing U. S. efficiency in the air. Ignored in this country, some of these ideas were adopted by Germany two years later in the program which brought that nation the great air power.

Williams' authority to speak on this subject comes of seventeen years experience as a commissioned officer in the Navy, ten of those years being spent in naval aviation. He expects to be returned to the service soon.

Born in Georgia in 1895 he was graduated from High School in Texarkana, and earned his appointment to Annapolis through competitive examinations. President of his class, and of the Y. M. C. A. he was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1918 assigned to the U. S. S. Michigan. For some time he served on the staff of Admiral M. L. Bristol, then High Commissioner to Turkey. He has received 13 letters of commendation on his duties, some of which are for instruction of midshipmen at Annapolis.

An early distinction in his career was his being the only midshipman with flight orders in World War I.

In 1922 Williams returned to Pensacola to begin aviation training, since which time he has seen service in Hawaiian and Caribbean waters. He was instrumental in instituting aviation training in Annapolis in 1925, and urged the same procedure at West Point, but with no success. Aviation has been established there, however this past spring.

He campaigned vigorously for to aviation, since that great general often plead with the government for a gigantic air force.

An ardent admirer of the Navy, John Williams still insists that, "The day has come when the Air Force must run the show."

In his campaign for the senate last summer Williams advocated an immediate initiative in the declaration of war on Germany.

"We should declare war tonight. Our powerful and courageous Navy our Pacific fleet will sink immediately the Japanese fleet, which is the greatest threat to our national security in the world except Goering's Luftwaffe," he urged.

"Our navy should take over every key land position in the world, including the Japanese mandated Islands, Greenland, Azores, Martinique, and Dakar. Land planes will win this war, and we must have key islands to base units of power, thus providing essential protection to our navy and merchant marine."

Since his days of active service in the navy, Williams has followed a varied career as engineer, attorney, and manufacturer, being manager for ten years of factories in Detroit. He came to Rockport four years ago and engaged in the oil and real estate business, maintaining offices here and in Houston, and more recently in Victoria.

He has a beach home in Fulton, and is at present associated with the Government Employees Benefit Association, of Washington, D. C., insurance agency for government employees.

This month Williams has voluntarily made a series of radio addresses encouraging enlistment in the U. S. Navy.

Rockport Enlistees In Naval Reserve In Great Lakes

Five Rockport boys who enlisted in the Naval Reserve advised their families here this week that they all are still together and stationed at the U. S. Naval Training Station in Great Lakes, Illinois.

While they are all stationed at the same base, the boys were assigned to various branches. Bryant Sanders, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Sanders is training in airplane mechanics. The Sanders now have two sons in the service; the other, Carroll, Jr., is a master sergeant stationed at Kelly Field.

Raymond, "Sam" Wix, son of Mrs. Robert Court, was made fireman, 2-c. George Adolphus, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Adolphus, was designated coxswain.

James Dietrich, son of Mrs. Claude Hosford, Aransas Pass, and W. C. Dietrich, and Burton Atwood are said to have been classified as apprentice seamen.

These boys expect to remain at their present assignments six weeks. They left here May 10 for Houston, where they were examined and accepted.

Nephew of Mrs. W. G. Harrist On Bataan

Mrs. W. G. Harrist recently received news here that her nephew Hugh B. McCoy of Abernathy, was on Bataan with General Douglas MacArthur.

McCoy was an airplane mechanic at Nichols Field when hostilities began. The latest word received from him was through the Red Cross which stated that on Feb. 17, he was "Alive and Well." His family received the letter March 10.

Fighting Men All Members Of World's Biggest Club - - U. S. O.

When men join the colors they join the biggest club in the world—the U. S. O.

The membership of the United Service Organizations includes every mother's son in the fighting uniform of Uncle Sam. By the end of this year there will be 3,600,000 of them.

Built at the very thresholds of camps and training stations, U. S. O. clubhouses welcome the off-duty fighter to their roaring firesides, their lounges and social halls.

There are 407 clubhouses. With 163 smaller operations, they give comfort and cheer, recreation and rest to all who shoulder the guns or make them. These operational units—570 in all—are busy in 269 communities of forty-three States. A chain of sixteen rings the world from Alaska to Hawaii and thence to the Canal Zone and bases in the Caribbean. From there the chain stretches north to end in Bermuda.

Manned by 1112 trained workers, the many chapter houses of this greatest of all fraternities, chalk up a monthly total of daily peak attendance well beyond 1,000,000 visitors, according to Ray Johns, director of U. S. O.'s field operations.

Although many U. S. O. clubhouses have been rented, borrowed, or donated, the Government has built more than two-hundred of them, and more are under construction. These Government-built quarters accommodate several hundred men at a time and conform to one of several sets of specifications.

Most are of "Type A." This is a two-story building of frame (sometimes brick) construction. On the first floor are a large lounge with fireplace and a still larger adjoining social hall with a stage. Directly off the lounge are three smaller club rooms, a shower room (an especially popular feature, according to Mr. Johns), lockers, soda bar, kitchen, check room, two wash rooms, storage room, and two small offices. The second floor, usually reserved for the U. S. O. staff, has a living room, three bedrooms and a kitchen.

As social factors of steadily growing importance, the U. S. O. clubs in overburdened centers of war industry often provide low-paid workers with their only recreational centers, Mr. Johns reports.

According to Dr. Karl Menninger and other nationally known leaders of mental research, such services play a vital role in helping to condition the national mind for victory.

Clubhouses draw their staffs from the personnel of U. S. O.'s six member agencies. These are the Young Men's Christian Associations, the National Catholic Community Service, the Salvation Army, the Young Women's Christian Associations, the Jewish Welfare Board and the National Travelers Aid Association.

One Delivery Of Ice Daily Is New Rule

Starting Friday, May 15, ice companies are forbidden by order of the Office of Defense Transportation from making more than one delivery per customer per day and are prohibited by law from making special deliveries or call-backs, according to Herbie Caraway, manager of Central Power and Light Company.

To save trucks and rubber for war purposes, ice companies and delivery concerns are further required to reduce their regular mileage 25 per cent from that of the same month in 1941, under the O. D. T's general order number 6, which will result in ice customers making fewer but larger purchases, and in greater storage of ice on the customer's premises.

Only exceptions permitted on special deliveries are in the cases of the armed forces, hospitals or in cases of emergency when public health, life and safety are imperiled. Ice chests, storage boxes and even old mechanical refrigerators are expected to be in demand by commercial ice users whose present storage facilities are inadequate for the new war conditions, Mr. Caraway said.

NOTICE SHIPYARD EMPLOYEES

The Government Employees Benefit Association of Washington D. C., has forwarded to me the large number of cards sent in by Rice Bros. & Co. employees seeking information on how to protect their salaries in event of accident or illness. In the near future I will call at the homes of these employees to explain in person the protection offered, viz life insurance, health and accident, and hospitalization and surgery.

Men With Dependents To Be Inducted Into Service Unless Engaged In Essential Industry

Many Selective Service registrants who have been deferred from military service solely because they have dependents will eventually be inducted unless in the meantime they become engaged in activities essential to the Nation's war effort, General J. Watt Page, State Selective Service Director, stated today.

"We are rapidly approaching the stage where everyone must be either working or fighting to win this war," General Page said. "War requirements—the demand for manpower by essential industries as well as the armed forces—will compel many local boards within the next several months to find selectees for their quotas among registrants who have dependents."

"Right now local boards are reconsidering all registrants with dependency deferments for two major purposes. The first is to eliminate from this class all men cannot prove that their dependents need their earned income for support in a reasonable manner and all who cannot prove that they did not acquire dependents to avoid military service. The second purpose is to distinguish between men who have dependents but are not engaged in activities aiding the Nation's war effort and those who are contributing for victory by their work as civilians."

"By making this distinction between those engaged in essential activities and those whose civilian occupations are not contributing to the war effort, it is desired to induce a voluntary movement of the latter into essential activities and thus release for military service men without dependents who must be deferred as 'necessary men' until they can be replaced at their work."

Persons engaged in nonessential activities, however, should not cease their present employment until their services are needed in some essential activity, General Page warned. He said:

"This voluntary movement from nonessential to essential activities should be a gradual, orderly, and economically sound transfer of manpower. The Federal Government will make known from time to time, the opportunities for training and employment in activities essential to the war effort so that this shift of employment may be made without unnecessary disturbance to the welfare of the community, the family, and the individual. Each individual registrant however, knows or should inquire into his own capabilities and the opportunity for employment in war industry, and should seek such employment without waiting for specific instructions from the Government."

When men with dependents are considered for military service, General Page emphasized, local boards will have regard for occupation together with the degree of dependency. Registrants who have the greatest degree of dependency, such as a dependent wife and children, will be the last group sought for military service, he said, provided that they have become necessary men in war production or supporting activities."

Rockport Boy Graduates In San Antonio

Announcement has been received here of the graduation of Charles A. Frandolig, formerly of Rockport, from San Antonio Vocational and Technical High School, May 29.

Charles is being graduated with honors, and has been commissioned a Cadet Major in the R. O. T. C. He is the only member of his class to be elected to the National Honor Society, and he will go into service in the Military Intelligence Bureau following commencement.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Huffman, and family returned last week from a trip to Washington D. C.

Mrs. Charlyne Hunt and her son, Joe Earl, spent the week end in Robstown, Mrs. C. O. Lowery traveled with them as far as Corpus Christi, where she stayed over Sunday.

New Pictures of India's National Leaders

As the clouds of war gather ever more densely over vast India, greater attention is focused on its leaders. At the right is Mahatma Gandhi, spiritual head of the Indian national congress party, who was instrumental in thwarting Sir Stafford Cripps' efforts at war unity. This new picture shows Gandhi walking with his secretaries and aides. At the left is Pandit Nehru, active and more belligerent leader of the same national congress party. ## Hawaii on Its Toes, Ready to Dish It Out to Japs

U. S. soldiers are now encamped throughout the Hawaiian islands, ready to meet any onslaught of the Japs. The gun at the left has been installed on what was once a huge private estate. It points toward the Pacific, and its crew keep guard day and night. The soldiers have erected showers at whatever part of the island they are encamped. Here amidst the gumbo-like mud of the hills they are primping up (right) for a hard day's work.

Mobile Optical Shops for U. S. Soldiers

Overseas soldiers who break or lose their spectacles on the battlefield will have them repaired or replaced in the field by mobile optical shops, the first of their kind to be attached to U. S. field armies. In this unit a total of 120 single lenses can be edged and mounted daily. This with other equipment make it possible to take care of the requirements of a field army of 300,000 men. Approximately 15 per cent of the men in the armed forces wear glasses.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Soviets Break Nazi Lines at Kharkov To Relieve Pressure on Kerch Front; U. S. Army Takes Over All Air Lines; Lower Wage Brackets Face Income Tax

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Pierre Laval's position grew more difficult as the United States in practical effect ceased to recognize Vichy control over Martinique and other French possessions in the Western hemisphere. Immobilization of French warships at Martinique followed conferences between American representatives and the resident French high commissioner. Above (center) is shown Laval with M. Cathala, (left) his minister of finance and M. Paul Marion, secretary of state.

RUSSIAN FRONT:

Nazis Seek Oil

With the rich oil fields of the Caucasus as the prize, Nazi and Russian Red army fighters locked forces in a combat which before the summer's end may determine the war's outcome.

Principal theater of the Nazis' newest conquest effort was the Kerch peninsula, gateway to the Soviet's farflung oil possessions.

While the Russians admitted that a German break into the Kerch defenses had caused a withdrawal to new positions, the Soviet communiques reported that the new line was being held in good order and that a heavy toll was being taken of the attackers.

Balancing this news was a report that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's armies further north had broken through the first German defense lines around the industrial city of Kharkov and were preparing for an invasion of the city itself. Success of the Kharkov offensive would mean that the German move toward the Caucasus would be forestalled.

Regarded as a grand dress rehearsal for the major Nazi spring offensive when drier ground permits greater movement, the present battles offered a test of the best arms which Axis and the United Nations could muster. German air concentrations were reported the heaviest of any used thus far in World War No. 2. Russian mechanical equipment included triple-turret American tanks and the latest design planes.

INCOME TAXES:

More Will Pay

Prospects that a single person making as little as $9.62 weekly and a childless married couple whose income is $23.08 a week or more will have to file income tax returns were seen in the action of the house ways and means committee in voting to lower the exemptions for married persons to $1,200 a year from the present $1,500 and for single persons to $500 from $750.

Allowances for children and other dependents would be left at $400.

More than 8,000,000 persons, it was estimated, would be added to the present fold of 17,000,000 Americans who file income tax returns.

Taxpayers could take comfort from the fact that the committee voted to retain the present 10 per cent earned income credit for earned income up to $14,000 a year. For example, a person earning $1,200 a year is permitted to deduct $120 from the amount which would otherwise be subject to the normal tax provision, provided his income is derived from wages or salaries.

MARTINIQUE:

Warships Immobilized

As French warships at Martinique were being immobilized, the United States came closer to its goal of completely neutralizing French possessions in the Caribbean sea.

While Vichy France had issued a note covering the situation, American representatives indicated they were "doing business" with Adm. Georges Robert, high commissioner of the French West Indies.

SHIP BUILDING:

Good News Ahead

"All around the clock, seven days a week" is the rate at which Uncle Sam's ship production machine is being utilized, it was disclosed by War Shipping Administrator Emory S. Land.

Good news for the future was held forth in the admiral's statement that the nation's shipyards will turn out 15,000,000 tons of new vessels annually after 1943 and will continue that pace "as long as necessary."

AIRLINERS:

Will Fly for U. S.

The war department's action in taking over the $100,000,000 commercial aviation industry emphasized again the United Nations' conviction that air power will be the determining factor in winning the war.

In a drastic order authorized by President Roosevelt, the army curtailed private aviation, requisitioned 55 of the nation's 250 palatial airliners for immediate military service and directed that 70 more be converted by the 17 airlines themselves into cargo carriers.

Virtual elimination of night flying was forecast in the new order. A change in air routes and the closing of many commercial airports for the war's duration was indicated.

Employees of the airlines including 2,200 pilots and 18,984 other personnel were given their choice of joining up with the air corps or the ferry command or remaining with war department-operated lines.

The war department's action followed the recent requisitioning of 83 airliners for service in the Near East and Far East.

AXIS SUBS:

Inland Attacks

When an Axis submarine slipped through the net of Canada's coastal defenses to torpedo and sink two ships in the St. Lawrence river, it marked the first time in history an enemy undersea craft had penetrated North America's inland waterways.

Increasing boldness of U-boat warfare all along the Atlantic seaboard was indicated by the sinking of seven additional United Nations' merchantmen in American waters. At the same time an enemy mine was discovered near the Florida coast.

Exact location of the U-boat attack in the St. Lawrence was not disclosed in the Canadian communique, nor were the names of the freighters sunk. That the same submarine was responsible for both sinkings was indicated by the fact that they both occurred "in the same general locality and at the same general time."

The St. Lawrence river is navigable to ocean-going vessels between its mouth and the city of Quebec, 500 miles upstream. The communique noted that both ships were sunk in the river and not in the gulf outside.

TIRES:

U. S. Wants Them

Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce, revealed that the Reconstruction Finance corporation had made available $150,000,000 for the purchase by the government of new and used tires and tubes now in the hands of consumers.

County tire ration boards of the Office of Price Administration and RFC agencies will be responsible for administering the plan, Mr. Jones declared. A voluntary system of tire purchasing will be tried out first. Should this fail, commandeering of civilian tires looked like the next step.

Coincident with the Jones announcement came a pessimistic report on the nation's rubber situation issued by the Office of Emergency Management. This report entitled "The Truth About Rubber" stated that U. S. production of synthetic rubber this year "may reach 28,000 tons," and "cannot be expected to be much more than 350,000 tons" in 1943.

Only by "slapping the Japs back in their islands" will the American people regain all the rubber they need, and return to prewar use, the report concludes.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

Washington, D. C.

RRs VS. SHIPS

It hasn't made headlines, but a battle royal has been raging between WPB Czar Donald Nelson and Transportation Czar Joe Eastman over the freezing of steel for the construction of railroad cars.

With less and less shipping moving along the coast, and more and more traffic by rail, the question is one of the most important facing the country.

What happened was that the War Production board froze all construction materials already on hand in railroad construction shops. The intention was to transfer these materials for use in building other types of cars.

However, Joe Eastman claims that these materials, chiefly steel, already had been bought and cut out for certain cars, in certain shapes, so the order merely will make the materials go unused, with car shops closing down.

Already, Eastman argues, certain plants of Pullman Standard are idle, at a time when all plants should be used to capacity.

Meanwhile railroads are groaning with traffic. Sugar is now being hauled by rail as much as possible from Florida to avoid submarines. Oil is clogged up in the producing fields for lack of railroad transportation. And with the sinkings of several Chilean ore ships, more iron ore has to be hauled from interior U. S. iron mines.

In view of all this, Eastman complains bitterly that Nelson won't release the steel and let the car foundries do the job.

INFLUENCING EUROPEAN LABOR

Here is one inside reason why Roosevelt leans toward labor. Basically, the President always has been pro-labor, and continues to be, even though he has become fed up with some labor activities in the past year.

But in addition, U. S. war strategists are convinced that the chief hope of revolution in Europe comes from labor. And most of the psychological warfare strategy being devised here is aimed at influencing labor in Germany, Czechoslovakia, Austria and the occupied countries.

Although not generally known, the nucleus of the old Social Democratic party which tried to create a real republic in Germany is still intact. When Hitler came into power, they moved to Czechoslovakia. After the Sudetenland seizure, they moved to Paris. After the downfall of Paris, they moved to the U. S. A.

Fifty Social Democrats from the old Reichstag are now in this country co-operating with U. S. officials. Furthermore, it is labor in the European occupied countries which is able to assemble or make radios. German labor listens to the radio far more than other classes. Some labor groups even have published very small "underground" newspapers on hand presses and these are distributed by hand.

German labor resents the long hours in munitions factories, the small pay and the lack of food, more than any other group. Also labor is about the only group which was not taken over completely by Hitler. The Communists, his chief opponents, now have long been underground, but secretly active.

To European labor Roosevelt always has been one of the world's greatest leaders. And one thought in the minds of war strategists is to show Europe that the rights of labor here will not be thrown completely overboard during war.

WALLACE'S FAVORITES

The men who came to Washington with Henry Wallace in the early days of the New Deal realize now that they picked a winning horse. Almost to a man, they have moved up to important posts in the government.

Claude Wickard was head of the corn-hog section in Wallace's AAA. Now he is secretary of agriculture. Milo Perkins was a lowly assistant to Wallace, holding down a desk in the outer office. Today, he runs the Board of Economic Warfare, as important as a cabinet post.

Paul Appleby was an assistant in the inner office. Now he is under-secretary of agriculture at $10,000 a year.

Chester Davis was head of the AAA. Now he is director of the Federal Reserve bank in St. Louis.

R. M. ("Spike") Evans was an aide to Wallace; now head of AAA. Sam Bledsoe, Roy Hendrickson, and Whitney Tharin were newsmen covering agriculture. Bledsoe is now an assistant to the secretary.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Secretary of War Stimson is held in the warmest personal esteem by army commanders. Hard-working and open-minded he never meddles in military operations and backs up his subordinates 100 per cent. Stimson is always at his desk by 8 a. m., and rarely leaves until evening, when he always takes home with him a big bundle of papers that he works over after dinner.

Good explanation of "Your Army" and how the draft works, has been written by George H. Jiler of the Bridgeport Post.

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

● In bringing you buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. This advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

PREPAREDNESS

Volunteer for Victory—offer your services to your Red Cross.

"WHAT can I do?" Now that we are at war, that is the question that every woman is asking herself. For those women who want to do a real job where they are urgently needed, there is the Volunteer Nurse's Aide Corps of the American Red Cross. One hundred thousand Nurse's Aides will help relieve the acute nursing shortage at home, according to Mrs. Walter Lippmann, who is the volunteer director of this Red Cross service. Trained nurses are daily being called for service with our armed forces. Local hospitals and health agencies are understaffed and overworked. Women who volunteer as Nurse's Aides will help safeguard the health of their communities.

A Volunteer Nurse's Aide performs many routine hospital duties and relieves the trained nurse for more technical work. She bathes and feeds patients, makes beds, takes temperature and pulses, assists in keeping records, does unsterile bandaging and attends to many details essential to a patient's comfort. She always works under the supervision of a graduate nurse.

Eligible for enrollment are American citizens or friendly aliens, between 18 and 50 years of age, with the equivalent of a high school education and in good health. A Nurse's Aide must complete an 80-hour intensive training course; 35 hours of class room instruction and 45 hours of supervised practice on hospital wards. She also agrees to serve 150 hours per year without pay in hospitals, prenatal, industrial or other clinics and public health agencies. The standard first aid course is a requisite for the first year of service and the Nurse's Aide may be assigned to Emergency Medical Field Units set up by Civilian Defense, to speed to the aid of civilians, wounded in air raids or disasters.

More than 12,000 Volunteer Nurse's Aides are in training or already trained, but many more are needed. It is too late when the bombs fall or an epidemic strikes. Prepare now and help safeguard the nation's health. Contact your local Red Cross chapter for information as to nearest training facilities available.

W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: Con Cameron is arrested as a robber and murderer when he rides alone into the town of Tivan. Someone had seen him on the trail with three fugitives, Lee Welsh and the two Raniers. They were just casual acquaintances Con picked up in Fronteras, but circumstantial evidence is against him. The marshal, Nevil Lowe, apparently does not know that Con is the cowboy who saved his life a few days before in Wild Horse, when Lowe was nearly killed in a quarrel with Asa Brock, Dynamite Downes, marshal of Wild Horse, and a deputy called "El Munchacho." Now jailed as a suspect, Con tells Lowe to wire Wild Horse and have his old trail boss, Buzz Upperman, or his pal, Caramba Year, identify him. Lowe does so, but neither Upperman nor Year can be located. So Con and another prisoner, Jeff Allmon, know their only chance is to escape. They have just succeeded in dropping to the ground from a window in the supply room.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER VI

Fiat upon their bellies in the ditch, the two waited. Jeff whispered to Con that his horse was in the corral behind the jail. He had heard Nevil Lowe order it brought there.

"So's mine. Corral gate's locked. So's the saddle-shed door. Our hardware's in a locked case in Lowe's office."

Clouds blanketed the sky, but occasionally the moon showed for a minute or two. In such an interval of pale light, they saw a dark group halfway between courthouse and cottonwoods, coming their way. Accompanied by furious snarling, the group moved nearer ditch and cottonwoods.

On the edge of the ditch above Jeff and Con some of the men halted.

Moonlight showed the grim business thirty yards from Con and Jeff; the dim shapes of horses under the giant trees; movement of the men beside them. Two men came at the trot from somewhere behind the building. Con stiffened automatically.

"Over!" one of the men panted. "We couldn't find them fellows downtown—"

"Half-over," Jeff grunted. "We seen enough."

The pair broke into a run and Jeff indicated a door standing open, giving upon a dark room. He led the way inside and Con heard him fumbling, then the click that was beginning to be familiar, of a lock yielding.

"Come on!" Jeff commanded. "Pick your hardware!"

They moved fast and surely to loop their horses, and saddle.

Very quietly, they walked the horses away and past the farthest house of Tivan. Then at the mile-covering hard trot, Jeff led the way into the rough north.

At dawn, Jeff looked familiarly around and called it more than twenty miles to Tivan—about twenty-five.

"House ahead a li'l ways. Across that hogback. The man's all right. Friend of Dud Paramore's. We can eat there. Rest, too, if you're galled."

An hour later, they came to a squat adobe house on a hillside. Chickens, pigs, a couple of gaunt and savage hounds, moved about the yard. Under a ramada—an open-sided, brush-roofed shelter—a good horse dozed.

In the doorway two fat and solemn youngsters stood with thumbs in mouths, black eyes wide. A big Mexican appeared behind them. His right hand, Con observed, was not in view. But when Jeff gave Dud Paramore's name, he grinned.

"Come in!" he said. "The house is your house."

While they ate beef and beans served by his smiling wife, he talked to Jeff. Con understood most of the words, but the pace was too fast for him. Jeff translated swiftly.

"Dud and his bunch had a fight three days ago at the Heart Ranch. Posse from Tonadura holed 'em up there. Perez, here, he was with Dud. Dud killed one of 'em—peeler named Cree from the Slash O. He always passed for a friend of Dud's and Quill Hogan that rides with Dud."

They sprawled and drowsed while Perez rode off to see if anyone was in sight on their trail. Con heard the rest of the story of Paramore's fight at the Heart. Cree's killing had apparently shaken the possemen and the Paramores had got away.

Perez came back before noon, grinning. He had seen a dozen men riding across the flats below the foothills, evidently looking for a trail. But they had gone past the little trail that led here.

Con listened to Perez giving detailed directions to Jeff. So when they rode away from the house, leaving some of Con's silver with the woman and the children, he had as good idea as Jeff of their trail.

Memory came of the grave, concerned face of Janet Lowe, as she tried to look at him without being observed. And he had ridden into Tivan so gaily sure that he would be a friend of the Lowes as soon as he met them! Several times he had noticed her study of him—as if wondering how so much viciousness as he, in the role of Comanche, was charged with, could be masked by the face he wore.

They rode deeper into the Lobos along a narrow valley and made camp at a spring of which Perez had told Jeff. As they smoked after eating the food Perez had given them, Jeff talked ramblingly, always cheerfully, of past and present and possible future. Listening, Con added touches to the picture already formed, of his odd, lawless cowboy—and wondered.

They rode out of the valley next morning across a ridge and down-slope toward another spur of the Lobos. On a dim cross-trail three Mexicans traveled with a train of burros lightly burdened. They had been to Tonadura to sell mesquite roots and were going home, still fifteen miles distant.

Con rode on, but Jeff stayed talking. When he came at the gallop to rejoin Con, he was roaring with amusement, carrying his hat, which jingled as he shook it.

"Fourteen dollars!" he gasped. "Was they took back when I put old Colonel Colt to gapping at 'em! I left 'em a dollar apiece so's they can buy drinks and forget trouble."

"Wait—a minute!" Con cried. "You mean you robbed those poor, hard-working devils?"

"Let 'em grub some more mesquite!" Jeff said cheerfully. "It's good, healthy work. This ain't much, but every dollar of it's round and will roll. Ne' mind how you get it, if you get it!"

Con looked at the Mexicans fifty yards away. One sat upon the ground with heads in hands, the very image of utter despair. Jeff was serenely dividing the silver. He recalled what Martino Palafox had said of him, that if he were crossed he was dangerous. He thought he had best try persuasion—first.

"This is certainly going to make you out the New Jesse James, to Dud's forty-five calibre crowd," he drawled. "Dud'll ask you what you've been doing. You'll say: Why, we just stuck up three great, big, fierce mesquite grubbers, and looky what we got—fourteen real dollars!"

He shook his head as Jeff stared uncertainly, kneed Pancho over and took the hat. Pancho jumped into the gallop and the Mexicans looked up as he charged down at them.

"No tengo mucho Espanol!" he said, smiling at them. "I don't have much Spanish. But my friend make joke with this money. Here! You take. Good, now?"

The man who was still holding his head hopelessly looked up incredulously. Then he ran to Con's stirrup, waving his hands and fairly spluttering. A younger Mexican grinned at Con.

"He say got sick wife—got hunger—very much need hard work money this. Bad if other man take—one time he kill him. Now—my bien! He good friend for you—make help sometime—"

They were still shouting thanks and goodbyes and waving when he and Jeff rode over the next ridge. Con looked expectantly at his companion, but Jeff seemed to have forgotten the matter. But when Con began practice of the quick draw, he watched critically.

"Por dios!" Jeff said at last. "You're plenty smooth and speedy. How come you never slapped leather with Quirk Ellis—or them marshals in Wild Horse?"

"Scared to," Con told him solemnly. "They might be faster. Then where would I be? No... I haven't got the slightest itch to be a gun-fighter, or collect notches. But in a hard-case country, I'm going to be able to hold my own. When I was no more than knee-high to a short Winchester, I knew where my uncle kept his hogleg. I used to sneak it out and practice. But he caught me, when I was about seventeen. And—"

—he showed me a handful of things; ways of cutting splits of seconds off the draw. He must've been hell on wheels, before he settled down."

They came in early afternoon to a log cabin on the bank of a swift, shallow creek, where five men played cards at the door.

A lanky, yellow-haired cowboy on the log doorstep grinned at them. The others turned to look their way. Con understood that their coming had been expected.

"Close squeak you had," the lanky cowboy said—as to old acquaintances. "Bet you heard hell gates dragged out that illegitimate, Fant, and the rest, and just missed you all."

"It was too close," Jeff admitted, swinging off.

"And when you got clear, you knowed there was just one safe place for you-all: with the only bunch that Johnny Laws ain't going to bother," Dud Paramore went on. He had a high, almost singsong, drawl, and his mechanical grin matched Jeff Allmon's. "So you come hunting me, huh?"

"You certainly got 'em eating out of your paw, Dud," Jeff told him admiringly. "I been telling Con, here, about your outfit, and how it was the only one to ride the Territory with. So I pulled out of Fronteras. All right for us to come here?"

"What you mean is—all right for you-all to stay," Dud corrected him. "Hadin' been all right to come, you-all would be biting daisies down the line right now." Dud gestured toward the other men:

"Most of the main bunch. Big Yager, that helped me rub out the sheriff and clerk at Tonadura."

The huge, stolid cowboy indicated grinned and jerked a thumb toward a slender Mexican whose short-chinned, flat-nosed face and beady eyes gave him a reptilian look.

"I reckon it was me and you poured the buckshot to 'em, Dud," he said in slow, husky voice. "But 'twas Snaky Gonzales that run out from behind the wall after we dropped 'em, to see what kind of fees they'd been collecting. I still think he held out on us. Hey, Snaky?"

Gonzales snarled. Then something about Con's expression seemed to infuriate him. He came to his feet with a wriggle, hand dropping to the pearl hilt of a dagger on his belt.

"Mebbe you don't like bah?" he cried. "You look by me and make face nose turn-up, hab? Me, I don't like your look. Mebbe I give you something nice—knife by your neck, hab?"

"Ah, Con's all right!" Jeff said hastily, with a quick side-glance at the grinning Dud, who was looking from man to man. "It's just a way he's got of looking at everybody. He ain't turning up his nose at nobody—"

"Keep out, Jeff," Dud drawled. "Every man kills his own snakes in the Paramore bunch. If Con ain't man enough to hold his own, hell with him!"

"Kill him, Con!" Jeff snapped. "No fooling with fists—"

Gonzales darted in, cat-quick, shifted feet flashingly so that he swerved right, then left, stooped with the dagger held against his shirt, point out.

Con had only lifted on his toes. He twisted, even faster than the knife man had done, to hook a terrific right to Gonzales' unprotected jaw just below the ear.

Gonzales' feet snapped from the ground. He seemed to hang bodily from Con's fist for the fraction of a second, then dropped sideways to the pine needles and sprawled motionless. Con took one step forward and stamped upon the thin blade of the dagger. Dud Paramore continued to grin mechanically. Then Big Yager slapped his leg resoundingly and whooped.

"Snaky forgot to ask Con could he please cut his heart out!" he cried, and Dud's grin widened slightly.

Gonzales moved jerkily, groaning. Con slid a hand to his Colt and watched coldly. The Mexican pushed himself up to sitting position and blinked stupidly around. Suddenly, he scrambled up with loud slap of hand on empty scabbard.

"Gonzales!" Con called sharply. "Miral! Look! It would have been more easy to kill you than to knock you down. But I let you live—that time. If you look at me again and touch knife or gun—"

He half-drew the pistol from his holster and Dud Paramore's singsong drawl cut in:

"Snaky! No mas! No more!" Paramore announced. "We'll hit San Marcos tonight. Big baile there. Lots of liquor. Lots of pretty gals to dance around. Paramore bunch owns Marcos."

"He's what I said," Jeff muttered. "Plain hell on wheels!"

Keep on Your Toes With Enriched Bread!

(See Recipes Below)

Bread 'n Butter

Bread is one of our oldest and best-liked foods. But bread, like many of our other foods, has changed considerably during the last two years. You haven't noticed? Well, it's been enriched and fortified with the B-vitamins, often called morale builders because of the fine things they do for your system, digestion and disposition.

Iron, the magic helper that peps up your system by making hard-working red blood cells, has also been added to bread along with vitamin B.

But not just bread has these new, essential elements. Flour that you use for your own baking has been fortified with the B - vitamins and iron. There isn't much difference in enriched flour or bread in ordinary bread or flour, except in some cases where the color is slightly creamy. But the nutritive value is so much greater that it's to your advantage to use it.

Although Saturday baking and the resultant shelves and pantries filled with crusty, sweet-smelling loaves of bread are becoming things of the past, perhaps you still feel the occasional desire to turn out a silky textured, moist, delicious loaf of good bread.

Rhythmical kneading is the secret of good bread. Rock the dough under the palms of the hands in three-quarter time until it gets the satiny-like sheen.

*Twisted Loaf.

(Makes 4 1-pound loaves)
2 cups milk
¼ cup sugar
4 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons shortening
2 cups water
1 cake yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
12 cups sifted flour (about)

Scald milk. Add sugar, salt, shortening and water. Cool to lukewarm. Add yeast which has been softened in ¼ cup lukewarm water. Add flour gradually, mixing it in thoroughly. When dough is stiff, turn out on a lightly floured board and knead until satiny and smooth. Shape into smooth ball and place in a greased pan. Cover and let rise in a warm place (80-85 degrees F.) until doubled in bulk. When light, divide into four equal portions. Roll each portion into a smooth ball. Cover well and let rise 10 to 15 minutes. Mold into loaves. For a twisted loaf, roll dough under hand to 2 rolls about 2 inches thick and longer than the length of the pan. Twist the 2 rolls around each other and place in greased pans. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in a moderately hot (400-425-degree) oven 40 to 45 minutes.

A nutritious coffee cake that is a tried and true sugar skipper adds zest to breakfasts. Made with either of the two dried fruit fillings given here, it is delightful:

Sweet Yeast Dough.

(Makes 2 12-inch rings or 3½ dozen rolls)
2 cakes yeast

Lynn Says:

Good things come in little packages. This little saying applies perfectly to the concentrated foods like dried fruits—prunes, apricots, figs, apples, pears, raisins and peaches.

Now more than ever before you'll want to use more of them because they can solve your sweet tooth problem, in addition to acting as important blood builders and keeping your body in good working condition because of their important vitamin and mineral values.

You can appreciate why they do all this for you when you realize that to make one pound of the dried fruit it takes several pounds of fresh fruit. For example, prunes require three pounds of fresh fruit to make one pound dried; raisins, four pounds fresh fruit, apples, six to nine pounds fresh fruit, pears and figs both require three pounds of fresh fruit, while apricots and peaches five and one-half pounds of the fresh to make the dried product.

This Week's Menu

*Oven-Baked Chicken
Green Peas Parsleyed Potatoes
Grapefruit, Orange, Strawberry Salad

*Twisted Loaf
Strawberry Sundae
Coffee Tea Milk

*Recipe Given.

¾ cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup honey
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
5 cups sifted flour (about)

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk, add butter, sugar, honey and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add flour to make a thick batter. Add yeast and eggs; beat well. Add enough flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on a lightly floured board and knead until satiny. Place in a greased bowl, cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. When light, punch down. Shape into tea ring rolls filling with fig or apricot filling. Bake in a moderate (375-degree) oven 25 to 30 minutes for coffee cake, 20 to 25 minutes for rolls.

Fig Filling.
(Makes 2 cups)
1 cup chopped figs
¼ cup orange juice
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped nuts

Combine figs, orange juice and rind, water, sugar and salt. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and cool. Add nuts.

Apricot or Prune Filling.
(Makes 2 cups)
1½ cups stewed, chopped prunes or apricots
2 tablespoons sugar or honey
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Combine the fruit, honey, cinnamon and lemon juice. Mix well.

Do you have a yen for old-fashioned, oven-baked chicken swimming in a thick, creamy sauce? Well, here's a recipe for you that you can fix early in the morning and put in your refrigerator until cooking time. You may use broilers, frying hens, stewing hens or roasters, but the cooking time varies with the age of the chicken. Broilers take about a half an hour to cook while stewing hens take about two hours.

*Oven-Baked Chicken.
1 roasting chicken cut up
Milk
Flour
Salt and pepper
½ cup butter or fat for frying
1 tablespoon onion, chopped fine
½ pound mushrooms
2 cups hot, rich milk

Dip chicken in milk and seasoned crumbs and flour and fry in skillet until a golden brown. Fry mushrooms in butter until brown (about 2 or 3 minutes). Sprinkle chopped onion over top of chicken arranged in casserole. Pour hot milk over top and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven until chicken is tender. Serve garnished with chopped parsley and a dash of paprika.

Dramatize the Salad.
Salad greens and fresh fruits occupy an important place in our diets in the spring, and a good salad is a distinctive part of any menu.

Our salad today features citrus fruits and strawberries which are a spring symphony themselves tossed on a bed of greens—watercress, romaine and leaf lettuce are perfect. A light french dressing will bring out the hidden flavors in the greens and fruits:

French Dressing.
3 tablespoons catsup
1 tablespoon vinegar
¼ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
2 teaspoons sugar
1 cup salad oil
1 onion, sliced
½ teaspoon paprika

Combine ingredients in order given and shake well in jar before serving.

Victory Fashions Prohibit Cuffs

Since clothing for this spring and summer is practically all manufactured and on the market, women and children likely won't be wearing many Victory fashions until fall or winter, says Mrs. Dora R. Barnes, clothing specialist for the A. and M. College Extension Service.

Women who do their own sewing, however, should become acquainted with recent orders of the War Production Board which will streamline ready made garments to save cloth. Skirts and coats will be narrower. Two-piece dresses are out. So are big sleeves, woolen inner-linings, patch pockets, capes, hoods, all-over tucking, and wide belts.

Like the men, women will give up cuffs on their slacks and the trouser legs may be only 19 inches wide. This should make them safer to wear, Mrs. Barnes says.

Where color is concerned, black, brown and blue may no longer be leaders, for these dyes are getting low. Gingham will be available as dresses may be more somber, the

Sweets Can Be Had Without Sugar

By observing several simple rules, homemakers successfully can substitute honey or molasses for part or all of the sugar required in their favorite recipes.

Hazel Phipps, Extension Service specialist in food preparation, says the characteristic flavors of molasses and sorghum make many foods more delicious. Both vary in moisture and acidity, she says, so the amounts she recommends for sugar substitution are "approximate."

It takes about 1 1/2 cups of molasses or sorghum to equal one cup of sugar in sweetness. Each cup contains approximately cup of water so the liquid in a recipe should be reduced in proportion. In products which are leavened, about one-fourth teaspoon of soda should be used for each cup of molasses or sorghum.

Miss Phipps gives this caution: Molasses and sorghum burn easily so the temperature for baking should be lower than the temperature for baking mixtures made with sugar.

Rules for substituting honey for sugar are quite similar. Mixtures with honey brown easily and high heat changes the flavor of honey, so cooking temperatures should be lowered. A cup of honey gives approximately the same sweetness as one cup of sugar, so the exact amount may be substituted. However, each cup of honey, like molasses, contains about one-fourth cup of liquid, so the liquid requirements of the recipe should be reduced one-fourth cup for every cup used.

Rev. Kelly To Give Baccalaureate Sermon At Skidmore

The Rev. J. H. Kelly will preach the Baccalaureate Sermon to seniors of the Skidmore High School Sunday, May 24, in the school auditorium there. On the same day he will be celebrant for the dedication of the Immaculate Conception Church, of which he was pastor for three years.

Father Kelly returned this week from a tour of inspection of Catholic Schools in the Corpus Christi District, having visited the Incarnate Word academy and the Sacred Heart school in Corpus Christi, as well as schools in Vattman, Falfurrias, Hebronville, San Diego and Alice.

M. B. Mullinax Named Game Captain

M. B. Mullinax has been made a captain by the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission in the Corpus Christi district, with Wallace Lassiter named mate. The appointments were made through J. B. Arnold, coastal director of the commission.

Mullinax was formerly mate to Capt. Bruce Preckwinkle, whose resignation became effective May 31.

long as the dyes hold out, and print materials in four colors are allowed until Sept. 1. After that, specialist says.

No grade A leather is now available for civilians' shoes. The men in the armed forces will have the best.

Principal headache for women just now is the price and supply of hose. Nylons are playing out. Silk hose are also becoming scarce, are expensive and of poor quality. Rayon hose, recently introduced to the market, appear to be durable but 18 hours is required for them to dry properly. One war-time innovation is bemberg hosiery, but these have not been tested by consumers thus far.

Mrs. Bruce Preckwinkle spent Tuesday in Corpus Christi.
