Boatmen Bring in Heavy Hauls of Shrimp From Gulf

Paging State Marine Biologis Gordon Gunter.

Desiring further enlightment and with whetted curiosity, the Pilot garden flowers. For the ceremony decided to pursue the subject further, and immediately cracked the pages of a little used encyclopedia. We found the word shrimp, also a line drawing resembling the "bugs" they've been bringing in here by the boat load, bue we almost gave up with the idea that maybe these weren't shrimp after all. For almost a column the encyclopedia told about a shrimp that burrowed in the sand off the coasts of England and Scotland, that they were 21/2 inches long. Then we came to the last two lines: "in the United; States shrimps are chiefly used as bait by anglers."

...Think of all the bait for fishing that has been brought into Martha Morales, Margaret Stew-

Rockport is primping up for the benefit of visitors who will soon begin arriving here for summer vacations. Weeds and grass along the highways, the roadside parks and the bay are being cut, the beach is to be cleaned and smoothed-and if citizens generally do their part, vacant lots and home premises will soon be attractively groomed.

The lead in the pre-summer clean up is being taken by the County, the State Highway Department, the Navigation District and the City. These civic departments are bearing he brunt of the lead, and it is to be hoped that individual citizens will follow the chairman of the drive. lead. With the concerted effort of could be made exceptionally attractive to visitors. An atmosphere of tidiness and cleanliness would create a lasting and favorable impression on those who come here for rest and play.

High Tides this spring have made it impossible thus far to clean up and prepare the beach for summer swimming, but plans are to do necessary work there as soon as the water recedes to its usual level of

Shrimpers Get Highest Price In History

Shrimp boat operators this week had a field day out in the Gulf and for several days brought in record hauls and recieved the highest price in history here for their hauls.

During the run the past few days tons of shrimp have been brought in to local fish houses and thousands of dollars have been turned loose in trade channells here. Almost every boat that went out came back from the Gulf with heavy loads. Some of the boatmen made between a hundred and two hundred dollars in a single day.

In addition to the revenue for the boatmen, scores of people were given employmnt preparing the shrimp for shipping.

Rough weather in the Gulf prevented the boats from working some of the time this week, but with the wind abating prospects are good for continued shrimping in the Gulf within the next few days. If the boats continue to hit the shrimp in the Gulf there is every indication that record revenues may be enjoyed this season by ope-

ENEMY ALIENS

Some significant things are going on behind-the-scenes in the justice department. With the savageness of a commando attack, Attorney General Biddle has now launched an offensive against all enemy agents in the U.S. A., has given the green light to Big G-Man Hoover to move wherever he wants.

This came after Biddle had been prodded by the White House for dawdling. Now, however, he has gathered large dossiers of sensationone is great enough to split his con- al and incontestable evidence, and it looks as if several U. S. Fascists would end up behind the bars.

And along the Pacific coast, even the movement of 100,000 Japanese proved a terrific headache.

Therefore Biddle is working on the policy of picking out the dangerous groups among Germans and Italians, but leaving those whose loyalty seems OK. Many of them are oldsters who left Europe before the days of dictators. Many even have sons in the U.S. army. However, the job of sorting the loyal from the disloyal is going to be one of the toughest jobs the justice department ever faced.

Without Pity

By GRANT M. SASSAMAN

A TROPICAL sun beat down mercilessly upon the six gaunt survivors of the sunken trading schooner Pelican. They sat upon the gunwale of the lifeboat, drawn halfway out of the blue water lapping against the glittering white beach of the lonely island.

The young Second Mate's head was turned toward the green fringe of jungle beyond the beach. He had fleeting glimpses of ebony faces, malignant, cunning, watchful. He turned to the stern-faced captain who leaned, with arms folded, against the gunwale.

"But that would be as bad as murder, Captain!" The Second's blue eyes were filled with horror.

"There's no other way out." Caphis head towards the jungle, "are cannibals, but they keep their word. They said they'd supply us with food and water to reach the mainland if we gave up one of our men. It's just a question of one man dying-or

A grudging admiration for this iron-hearted sea captain stirred in Jorgen. The man was as hard as teakwood, as unyielding as wire rope. But, the going officer knew, if it hadn't been for that hardness in Somers, they would all have been dead long ago.

Somers was speaking to the huddled man. "Mister Jorgen," he said, indicating the Second with a jerk of his head, "has five sticks in his hand. All except Jorgen will pick one. The man who chooses the shortest stays behind."

The Second's mouth dropped in surprise and dismay. "Me-you?" Somers' hard gray eyes seemed o soften for an instant.

"I take my chances with the others," he said gruffly. "You're the youngest, and somebody must hold em. Let them choose."

Jorgen held the palm of his left hand under the lower ends of the sticks. The fingers of his right hand were cupped around them, halfway. The first man drew, then held his

Hitler's Scheme

From indisputable diplomatic sources your reporter learns that the Nazis hope to win, with their fifth and sixth columns, what they could not win on the battlefields. If the Russian campaign fails, Hitler is to be deposed-and the German General Staff will pose as the savior of the world from Bolshevism. There is only one rub-Hitler is planning it all to save himself from the allied armies and the armies of Germany.

The only thing Hitler has to offer the civilized world is his death. The only people more double crossed than the conquered are the appeastain Somers spoke harshly. "We're ers. The only people more brutally two hundred miles from the main- treated than captured civilians are land. These Negritos," he jerked the German industrialists, who gave Hitler his first money.

Hitler believes he can bribe American business men with their own bank deposits and the American people with the deeds to their own homes. The American answer will be with American scrap-iron-not on Nazi scraps of paper. Hitler's offer will be seventh heaven for the sixth column. But American business will not be fooled by Hitler's profits in dollars. The United States Constitution has paid too many dividends in peace and dignity. MacArthur, Stilwell, O'Hare, Wheless and Bulkeley are building a firm foundation for peace-with a wall for Hitler's back.

Scrambled Eggs:

The picture of wrecked Rotterdam, in the Times mag. is something the United Nations must remember to bring to the treaty table. It's a convicter. An unarmed town, destroyed to show how tough the Nazzys are. And a good argument for a deal that will keep them from ever getting tough again . . . Washington correspondents have a phrase for colleagues who will square social obligations by plugging their hosts' angle in their sheets: "They can be bought for a canape."

Lots of Congressmen would be jumpier than they already are if they knew their letters were being shown around. These are the soreheads who are being goody-goody in public but as Bund-loving as ever in private. It's the old racket of trading their faces for a few votes . . . It's going to be very interesting to see what the dailies, that have been warning there won't be any elections, will do about sponsoring candidates. They have a choice of admitting they have been lying or skipping all mention of the balloting. Which isn't a very smart limb to get yourself out on, Bud.

Archibald MacLeish, in an interview, discussed his hecklers, who have grown since he took over the Office of Facts and Figures. "The criticism most often expressed against me," he said, "is the fact that I am a poet. Not that I am a bad poet. Simply to call a man a poet is, apparently, to throw a bad egg at him" . . . He might have been answering a small-timer, who columned a crud about winning the war with poetry, "sock 'em with a sonnet." That's the crackerbarrel style of satire, the easiest kind to write. It appeals to the dopes by ridiculing education - very small

An editorial writer keeps repeating that we should win the war as quickly as possible, because peace is better than war . . . Do you have to have brains to figure that out? . . . How come nobody ever gives medals to critics for going to so many dull shows all season? This one was so dull both the Critics Circle and Pulitzer Committee agreed no show was worth a prize . . . This gives you an idea how temporary fame is. If DiMaggio doesn't get a hit one day—they boo him . . . Whatever happened to those people who said they had proof Hitler was dead? . . . Here's one to make you dizzier: "Blithe Spirit," the play, is barred from Army camps. Too risgay, they said . . . So what happens? . . . "Blithe Spirit" gives a performance for-you'd never guess . . . West Pointers!

Italy has celebrated the sixth anniversary of its empire-which has ceased to exist. A lost people clinging to a lost dream . . . It takes great-men to look big in defeat. Willkie, who missed the Presidency, and O'Dwyer, who ran second for mayor, are still good men for those offices . . . Did you hear why that New Yorker writer was rejected for military service? The doctors found out he had a brain murmur.

Sad to read about Graham Mc-Namee's death. He pioneered a lot of things on the networks. He was the first to get all het up about his subject. He had the kind of pipes that could convey excitement, as too many of his mockers haven't. He also was one of the few laughing m, c.'s who got away with it. The usual giggling feeder is an ear torturer. The straight man who laughed at the act's sallies never hit the big time. He was a sensation at Loew's Wichita but never played the Palace.

YOUNG ARTISTS

NEW YORK CITY .- I heard four young American artists one night, Mr. Maurice Wilk, violinist; Miss Virginia Lewis, mezzo-soprano, Mr. permiss Emanuel Vardi, viola, and Miss Vivian Rivkin, pianist; in a concert at Town Hall, arranged and conducted by Mr. Dean Dixon with the New York Chamber orchestra.

All the artists were excellent and the program was delightful. We should be thankful that, in our country, we can still give young artists an opportunity to be heard. The war. I think we should give every ever we possibly can.

The weather lately has been perfectly delightful. The voices of the children playing in Washington square float in our windows to add pleasant background to our thoughts.

One day was pleasant for many reasons besides the weather. Elliott and his wife, and Franklin Junior spent many hours of the day with me and we were able to catch up on months of separation.

One morning I looked at the photograph of the new air raid warden's coverall, as shown in the newspapers, and it certainly seems practical and easy to identify. I still pray that we shall not be put to the test of a severe air raid, and yet I am sure that if the day comes, we shall take it calmly. . . .

FRIDAY: THE DAY OF SUFFERING

LESSON TEXT-Mark 14:32-34, 44-46; GOLDEN TEXT-Not my will, but thine, be done .- Luke 22:42.

Suffering such as no man ever faced came upon our Lord in the arts are the one avenue not blocked night between Thursday and Friday by the hate which comes with as He prayed in Gethsemane. Hatred and condemnation were poured art expression our support when- upon Him as He went through the mockery of false trials on Friday.

> The important events of last week's lesson had taken place, the precious words of comfort and assurance had been spoken, and now as midnight brings the darkness of night to its deepest hue, the Son of Man goes alone into the depth of the garden where we see Him

I. Sorrowful unto Death (14:32-34). This Scripture portion uses many words to convey the depth of His soul's agony, as though it were impossible to express it in the faulty medium of speech. So it is, for our Lord here experienced something stain and dishonor of the world's

As Krummacher says: "Something approached Him which threatened to rend His nerves and the sight of it to freeze the blood in His veins." Little wonder that He was "sorrowful even unto death" (v. 34). It should break our hearts to see His loving heart break!

Since this was the road the Master trod, should not His servants tread it still? Service for Christ may call for passing through deep and chilling waters, but never as deep or as cold as those of Gethsemane.

Jesus took with Him into the garden the three who were closest to serve you well-the smart weskit. Him in the circle of disciples. He counted on their fellowship and sympathy in His hour of anguish. Merely to have them near Him, to know that they were there to watch and work, if your job requires this type pray even though they could not costume. Note the easy hang, obshare His holy burden, was to be a tained by starting with ample fullcomfort to Him.

How ignominiously they failed. You'll like this pattern. The spirit was willing (v. 38), but the flesh took the upper hand, and they slept! He was alone with His Size 14 weskit requires 1% yards 35-inch Father when He prayed that if it were possible the hour might pass from Him, but in true and beautiful submission said, "Not what I will, but what thou wilt."

II. Betrayed With a Kiss (14:44-46).

III. Condemned by Hatred and Cowardice (15:1-5). We have only a partial picture of the betrayal of Jesus in our lesson, but it is typical of all that took place, for it reveals the hatred-inspired false witness of the Jews, which, combined with the cowardice of Pilate, resulted in His being condemned to death.

When disaster strikes, the Red Cross is first in and last out. VOLUNTEER Special Services of the American Red Cross have been geared to meet war requirements and war priorities.

Although a shortage of materials has cut down production work, women who have sewed and knitted for the Red Cross will be glad to know that, under an agreement with the War Production board, a certain amount of wool and yard goods will be available for Red Cross workers, according to Mrs. Dwight Davis, national director of this Red Cross program.

The Red Cross Motor corps has been active since the early days of the First World war, but since last year its work has tripled. Many of the 6,576 members, on account of tire priorities, are restricting the personal use of their cars so that their motor corps work may be continued. Motor corps volunteers drive the ambulances which provide transportation for hospitals and Red Cross chapters, and hold themselves ready for service in any kind of emergency. Besides their basic training in motor mechanics and advanced first aid, many members are now studying map reading, stretcher drills, and convoy and ambulance blackout driving in co-operation with their local police and fire departments.

A new canteen aide corps has recently been formed in preparathis apron will protect your frock tion for wartime emergencies, when feeding of large groups of people such as evacuees or disaster victims may have to be hastily organized.

The other general wartime volunteer services of the Red Cross include home service to the families of the men in the forces, the hospital and recreation corps which brings cheer to the sick and wounded, and the staff assistance corps, which provides volunteers for all kinds of office work in hospitals, clinics and Red Cross chapter and to man information desks

"American women can help the war effort by savnig the increasingly precious metal containers in which they buy their lipsticks, their toiletries and other beauty aids". Mr. Carl Pool, Manager of the WP B's San Antonio Priorities Field Service advised.

"Adequate supplies of lipsticks, cleansing creams, powders, and other beauty items will probably be available," Mr. Pool said, "but wo- day evening at 7:30 o'clock. is no waste of containers, many of which will no longer be manufactured because of metal and plastic shortages."

The branch urged women not to throw away a lipstick container made of metal or plastic after the lipstick itself is used up. If women save these containers, they will probably be able to buy adequate quantities of refills. This has been the procedure adopted in England since the outbreak of the war, and is a practice which has been followed on the European continent for many years.

Other cosmetic containers which women were urged to save are cleansing cream and cold cream jars, and all types of bottles, including nail polish bottles. Especial care should be given to preserving the closures which most often are made of metatl or plastic.

If the necessity for use of nearly all kinds of metals in the war effort requires that jars be made only with paper, cellophane, or other non-permanent lids, the woman who has saved her old jar can transfer the cream or other preparation into it.

In addition, the Branch said that women should save mascara cases, vanities and rouge and powder compacts since only refills will be available in the near future.

Thes upply of lipsticks and most cosmetic items themselves will probably be adequate if women use no more than they need. Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Garner, of Dallas, are spending this wek in

ROCKPORT BOYS ACTIVE IN ARMED

Rockport boys are scattered far and near in the armed forces of our country and in every branch of the service. With nearly half the list in the army, the navy with about a third, the Air Corps comes next in popularity having 13 Aransas county boys, four are in the Marines, and five in the Coast Guard.

News of the men in service sometimes comes through the public relations department at their stations, or is brought in by some member of their families. The Pilot welcomes such information because it is of interest to all our readers.

May Quota Of Aransas Men Go Into Service

Another quota of Aransas County men were called to military service last week. In the group reporting to Ft. Sam Houston for examination and induction were Norvell Jackson, Orian Driscott Stewart. Floyd Cecil Brooks, Roy Ivey.

At the same time two other registrants were called from this county but their papers were transferred to other boards for delivery. They are Roy Albert Plant, transferred to Corpus Christi, and Samuel Darby Howell, transferred to

Two inductees were transferred here from other boards; Joe Dorethy from Kingsville, and Marvin E. Miller from California.

Called for examination but not to be inducted at this time were Otho Eaves and Clifton Mcelvee.

Dick Picton Commissioned In Air Corps

Corporal Dick Picton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Picton, was commissioned a 2nd Lieutenant in the Air Corps of the Army on May 11 having succesfully completed three months course at the Officers Candidate school in Miami Beach, Fla., according to advices from the office of public relations there. His duties will be in the odministrative and supply operations of the rapidly expanding Air Corps ground forces.

Dick is a graduate of Rockport of the Air Corps. High School, he attended Corpus tonio, for three years. He was em- ty, San Antonio. He was employed Arts Bldg., Houston, Texas. ployed in the office of Picton Lum- in the office of Westergard-Rice Westergard-Rice Bros. shipyard.

Every Friday night a bunch of us fellows get together over at Bill Webster's place. We wouldn't miss those weekly get-togethers for any-

There are seven in the group -Bill Webster, Judge Cunningham, Pete Swanson, Old Doc McGinnis the dentist, and young Doc Mitchell the M.D., the government man Bob Newcomb, and myself.

We don't play cards. We don't sing or carry on.

We just sit quietly and talk and drink a glass or two of beer.

I guess we discuss just about everything under the sun-politics, business, family affairs, music, farming, hunting, fishing, and what not.

But mostly we like to chew the fat about life's experience and a man's philosophy in these times.

To sort of help out the conversation, we've found mellow beer particularly relaxing. Every one of us likes the tangy taste of beer ... and now and then Judge Cunningham insists on ale for everybody.

You mightn't think that just settin' and talkin' would be so much fun. But it is. Particularly when a man begins to get around to the age of reason. Like us.

And it's wonderful how a few glasses of good beer help bring out good talk and good sense when men get together. There's something peaceful and friendly and human about beer that brings out the best in a man.

They call beer the "beverage of moderation." That "moderation" idea is good philosophy . . . maybe that's why good beer and good fellowship go together so well.

Seems to me there ought to be more of this quiet talk over a glass of beer. It sure straightens out a man in his thinking.

Anyhow, men ought to get to-gether and be friends. That's the way we were made. Why not try it more often-all of you?

urged that President Roosevelt be given additional "dictatorial economic powers" as a means of winning the total war.

"There must be no hesitation in giving them to President Roosevelt and upholding him in them," Mr. Hoover said in an address before the 26th assembly of the National Industrial Conference board.

Economic dictatorship, however, must not encroach on civil liberties, he declared. "From a philosophical viewpoint," he said he would like to see the "sixth columnists given a little more liberty."

"Criticism of the conduct of the war is necessary if we are to win the war," he added. "We want the war conducted right ... Democracy can correct mistakes only through public exposure and opposition to them."

Mr. Hoover did not define specifically the new dictatorial powers he advocated for President Roosevelt. He said, however, "We must start our thinking with a cold, hard fact; that the economic measures to win total war are just plain Fascist

Mr. Hull had been asked at a press conference whether developments in recent weeks on the home and foreign fronts encouraged him to believe in an early victory. In reply he pointed out that the powers and facilities of the United States have been developing on a more and more massive scale, not only for offensive-defensive operations, but for outright offensive war.

Making no effort to disguise the fact that he was increasingly impressed by America's growing power, the white-haired secretary suggested it was only natural that calculations as to the duration of the war should be made in the light of this fact. Observers pointed out that a num-

The problem of what to send a service man has been solved by the men themselves. Tobacco tops the list of gifts service men prefer from the folks back home, according to numerous surveys. If you have a friend or relative in the armed forces-Army, Navy, Marines, or Coast Guard-who smokes a pipe, or rolls-his-own, a pound of his favorite tobacco is very much in order. A big favorite with many service men is Prince Albert, the world's largest-selling smoking tobacco. Local dealers now are featuring Prince Albert in the pound can for the men in the service .-

to give in.

THE STORY SO FAR: Con Cameron an honest cowboy with no desire to shoot, is forced by circumstances to turn outlaw and join the Paramore gang, headed by one "Dud" Paramore. He had come into Wild Horse with the 20 Bar outfit and had immediately gotten into trouble with the town boss, Asa Brock, and his friends by defending another cattle man, Nevil Lowe, against Brock, Dynamite Downes and "El Muchacho." On the trail again he had met Lee Welsh and the Raniers. Welsh was killed by the Raniers, and when Con rode into Tivan, where Lowe is the new marshal, he was taken into custody as a murder and robbery suspect because of his association with the Raniers. He had thought Lowe was his friend, but public sentiment was against him, and Lowe had apparently forgotten about the Wild Horse incident. Con persuaded Lowe to wire Buzz Upperman, his old trail boss, and Caramba Vear at Wild Horse, but neither man could be located. Knowing that he hadn't a chance of escaping any other way, Con broke jail with Jeff Allmon and has now gone with him to join the Paramores.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER VII

Nearly a quarter-mile from San Marcos, Dud Paramore called a halt. He sent Gonzales ahead to scout the village and, while they waited, he talked to Con about the Raniers as he had been talking at the cabin. Apparently, his informers in Tivan knew all about official suspicion that Con Cameron and Comanche Linn were the same.

"Got no idee, huh, about what was on them Raniers' mind?" he asked for the tenth time. "Can't figure which way they'd head after they downed Welsh?"

"Nary idea," Con answered, a little wearily. "To hear 'em talk, you'd think nobody in the Territory stacked up ankle-high to a short snake. They are the hefty buscaderos, to hear 'em tell it. You and Ellis-just country boys."

The last he put in artfully, but maliciously. Dud's vanity was plain to be seen and it amused Con to prod him.

Gonzales came back at the gallop, a half-hour later. No officers were known to be around San Marcos, but Quill Hogan lay in one of the houses, terribly beaten by a stranger.

"Huh?" Dud cried incredulously. "Quill was whipped? Who's this done it?"

Gonzales shrugged and shook his head. He had seen the man, a big swaggerer, cock of the walk in the saloon. Turk was the name he went by. He had been in San Marcos give him all the trouble he can when Quill Hogan rode in. Quill had picked a row and Turk had drawn his gun. But instead of killing Quill, Turk had merely pistolwhipped him up and down the plazita, then knocked him senseless.

"Come on!" Dud yelled to his fol-

He hooked his horse into a rocketing gallop and the others jumped their mounts after him. Into San Marcos they charged, to slide to a dust-wreathed halt before a long adobe. Dud was out of the saddle before his horse came down upon four feet, and darted through the door. Big Yager lumbered after him with Gonzales catlike at his heels. Catfish Coyle and Kinky Odom swung down more deliberately and Jeff and Con were last. So when they stepped into the long, dusky room, the others were already at the bar.

Dud stood beside a dark, beardstubbled man who reminded Con of a gorilla, for thickness of body and length of arms. The Mexicans drinking at the pine counter gave Dud and this one room, and watched narrowly. But Dud only pushed a bottle to Turk.

Within twenty minutes the two had five drinks. Then Dud moved the bottle hospitably and when Turk's eyes went to it, Dud's right hand flashed to the white bone handle of Turk's Colt. He whipped it out, stepped quickly back and tossed it from right hand to left in legerdemain almost too fast for the eye to follow. Then, with high, shrill laugh, he stepped in again and replaced it in Turk's holster.

"Take your drink, fellow!" he drawled. "You-need it!"

He spat deliberately upon Turk's boots and turned his back. Turk's arm jerked. He drew fast and Dud turned back deliberately. Con

Then, instead of the roar he waited stiffly for, there was only a hollow click! and another as Turk recocked the Colt. It was Dud's pistol that bellowed as it snapped from the holster and flipped up. Three bullets, in all, Dud drove into the other's body. He leaned to knock the Colt from Turk's hand and slid back, head on one side, watching. Turk leaned heavily upon the bar, left hand upon the bloody front of his shirt. Then he crumpled and began to sag to the floor. Dud laughed shrilly.

"That's what always happens to tolks that come a-hunting Dud Paramore! Hey, Nicolas! Take care of this beef. We have got some dancing to do, us Paramores!"

In another big house the dance was going when the Paramores came in. There were more women than men and eight or nine heavily powdered, overdressed girls looked expectantly at the newcomers and giggled.

Dud yelled shrilly. Big Yager and

"He is outside in the darkness; he will kill you."

Catfish and Kinky and Jeff joined | "We can't buck that many!" the wolfish chorus. They swept down, Con trailing, upon the girls. Automatically, Con selected one who seemed a little younger, less per- gallop and went racing to a house on fumed and powdered. He put out his hands to her and she smiled pale moonlight he saw a dark mass sidelong up at him. Then Gonzales of horsemen, not fifty yards away. snarled in his ear and caught the girl's sleeve.

"Es mio! She is mine! You take another-"

"You are his girl?" Con asked in halting Spanish, holding her wrist. "I am yours, if you want me-and you can keep me!" she said.

Con whirled her deftly away from Gonzales and out among the dancers. She pressed close against him and looked wisely into his face.

Dance after dance Con kept her. Then Gonzales disappeared. He sat with her after the eighth or ninth dance, beyond the little bar. Jeff and his girl joined them for a drink and cigarette. The two girls chattered-chiefly about Gonzales' fury. Then a shabby Mexican appeared at Con's side out of the crowd. Con found his face vaguely familiar and tried to place him.

"I am your friend," the man whispered. "You gave back my money. Now, I pay: Gonzales will kill you! He is outside in the darkness. He will kill you, he has said to men at the door. So I slipped away to give you this word."

"I'll fix him!" he grunted. "I'll pack!"

He shook his head at Jeff, who two girls.

"Stay out of it," he said grimly. "This is my war."

He went with Jeff trailing across the end of the big room and to the side door. Someone muttered out there-a nervous sound. Then, from the right, away from the lounging group, there was the roar of a shot and a blast of flame. A bullet twitched Con's hair like a finger.

Automatically he drew his Colt, just as he had done a thousand times in practice. As it came level, pointing at the spot where that flame had blossomed, he let down the hammer, thumbed it back and loosed a second shot. Then he twisted inside the room.

The music stopped. The dancers cried out excitedly.

Then someone outside yelled that Gonzales was dead.

Con watched them carry Gonzales in. There was something about the sagging figure that reminded him of a dead rattler. A hand tugged at his sleeve. He turned to face Jeff -and take the tin cup Jeff held out. He lifted it and gulped down the drink, coughed and wiped his eyes.

"Thanks!" he gasped. "Well-Well, I feel better!"

"You hit him both times," Jeff said admiringly.

Dud shrugged; shook his head. "Nothing to stop our dancing!" he cried, and Con could not tell, from his high singsong, what he really felt. "Let's go!" Amelia took his arm and looked up at him with a kind of savage adoration. He shook his head. "No more for tonight, querida, I will sit by the bar for a time. You go with Jeff or another." She nodded and left him. He found himself a place in a dusky corner and watched almost without seeing while the dance continued as if Gonzales had not died. Then, about midnight, a boy came yelling for Dud and the music and stamping stopped short. "It is Nevil Lowe and a posse!" the boy reported shrilly. "They come quietly.'

Con followed Dud outside. The intermittent moonlight presently showed two men supporting a third, helping him onto a horse. This, Con learned by the talk, was the battered Quill Hogan. Dud yelled for the others.

"Come on, you nitwits! First thing you know that shooting posse'll be making red dollrags out of you-all!" Catfish Coyle reappeared and mounted. But Big Yager and Kinky Odom were missing.

"Hightail!" Dud commanded shrilly. "Hear them horses? That's Nevil Lowe and his damn' posse! We can't wait for 'em! They'll just get us all killed. Hightail!"

"Come on, Con!" Jeff urged him.

Con whirled Pancho with a furious snarl, snatching at his carbine. He hooked the sorrel into a the edge of San Marcos. In the

"Get back!" he yelled at them, sliding the Winchester out. "We've got you surrounded! Back, you nitwits! Back!"

As he began to shoot, holding low at the horses' legs, Jeff's voice lifted in a bellow, picking up the phrase Con had used. The mass of riders seemed fairly to blow apart as the carbine rattled. But a horse went down, and another. Scattered return shots came from the sides of the

"Come on," Jeff called to him. 'Big and Kinky's gone!"

He spun Pancho, and together they thundered away, with other horses pounding ahead of them. Out of San Marcos they galloped, with lead whining waspishly about them but not too close. They overhauled Big Yager and Kinky Odom; passed them with an encouraging yell. But a mile of alternate darkness and moonlight had been covered before Con saw Dud, Quill Hogan, and Catfish skylined.

Jeff and Con overtook them. Dud and Catfish seemed to have better horses than any of the others-including Hogan. Or, Con thought, perhaps the beaten man was not in condition to get the most out of was getting up from between the his mount. He lagged farther behind and made some indistinct answer when Dud yelled at him to keep up. The four spurred away from him, then became three when Catfish's horse slowed. As a trio, they slackened pace to a walk in the foothills of the Lobos and listened and let the blown animals get breath. "Well, sir!" Dud drawled cheerfully. "Nevil Lowe, he will be a disappointed young sheriff, tonight. Who was that shooting, after we left town? Big and Kinky?"

"Like hell!" Jeff answered before Con could speak. 'That was Con, stopping the posse."

"Listen!" Con grunted suddenly. "They're not so far behind right now. What do we do?"

"Why, I reckon the smart thing is to set right here and see about things," Dud answered.

They sat minute after minute, smoking, listening to the flat rattle of shots until the sound died and only the small night-noises of the hills could be heard. Dud grunted impatiently and moved his horse. Con checked him with a word.

"Wait! Somebody's coming. It might be our bunch." "Just one horse," Jeff announced. It was Catfish and he was panting as if he, not the horse, had been running, when he came up to them. Dud called a sharp question.

"Rubbed out! Whole bunch!" Catfish answered. "That damn' Nevil Lowe! Knocked Quill out of the hull -right at my elbow. Swear I heard four slugs hit Quill's back. Then it was Big. Me and Kinky kept ahead -awhile. Lowe stopped again. Opened up. Got Kinky through the head." "We'll make that son pay for it, boy!" Dud assured him flercely. "Don't you never think we won't make Nevil Lowe remember tonight. Come on, now! No use crying about

They rode in silence by twisting trails to the cabin. Nobody was in talking mood when they reached the place. They rolled into their blankets, but Catfish took his to the point used as lookout. He said that he was not sleepy; he would stand

They were up early, with the grim events of the night very heavy upon them all. Dud alone was cheerful-or pretended to be. He looked at them and swore that they were the sourest set of cowboys he had ever put eyes upon. From some hiding place he produced a jug of whisky and uncorked it.

The liquor brought no lightening of Con's disgust with this company. Instead, he thought of the misfortune which had put him here, as if in a trap.

Did you know that it is perfectly proper to wash the American Flag? Of course, you know it is disrespectful to display a badly soiled one, but perhaps you were a bit worried about trying to wash it.

A recent survey made by professional laundries reveals that flags made of woolen material should be washed and rinsed as other woolens: squeeze the flag through rich suds whipped up with a mild soap and warm, softened water of not more than 100 degrees Fahrenheit. Rinse in two or three changes of lukewarm, soft water.

Cotton flags should be rubbed lightly, but only lukewarm soft water should be used for the suds. Both wool and cotton flags should be air-dried.

Textile experts at professional laundries also point out that flags raised outdoors naturally deteriorate more quickly than those displayed indoors. If a flag launders well, its service period is increased with frequent washing.

WE'RE DOING OurPart

HOTELS of Southern California are doing their part in this great na-tional cause by maintaining normal facilities and operations in every department for the use of Ameri-cans seeking mental and physical release from strain and fag.

To facilitate the business of Americans, and in the interest of war production, there is augmented service at the great metropolitan hotels, of Los Angeles, Hollywood, Long Beach, San Diego and the other large cities of Southern California. There are no rations of fun at the

There are no rations of fun at the fine resort hotels located on the desert at Palm Springs; by the sea at Carlsbad, Coronado, Laguna, LaJolla, Santa Catalina, Santa Monica and Santa Barbara; and amid the beauties of Pasadena, Beverly Hills and Riverside. Health and energy still bubble from the earth at the famous mineral springs resorts.

Golf, tennis, riding, swimming, cycling, badminton and a multitude of other sports and recreations are still to be enjoyed every day of the year by the visitor to this sun-blessed land.

Hotel rates in Southern California will continue at pre-war levels. Nowhere is there a greater variety of hotel accommodations to suit every budget and every taste.

In spite of rumors, travel IS normal in Southern California. Trans-portation to and throughout the state IS normal, and hotel and resort life IS normal. For further particulars, consult the nearest travel or transporta-tion agent or your automobile club.
