PILOTING

The vaccination clinic to be held next week by the Parent-Teachers Association is a community service for which every family should be grateful and with which every parent should co-operate. Vaccination is the only practicable method known to science today by which humanity can be safeguarded against smallpox.

Because vaccination has been widespread for a generation—largely due to governmental agencies—and the disease better controlled than at any time in history, we are prone to forget the loathsomeness of smallpox.

Notes from a bulletin from the State Health Department mentions that "Smallpox has been the scourge of nations for many centuries." During the 18th century it caused terrible havoc over the entire world. It is estimated that 60,000,000 people died of smallpox in the 18th century. Every effort to control the disease proved futile.

Not until the year 1796 when Jenner demonstrated that an attack of cowpox protected the subject against smallpox, did the world sense a measure of relief from its eternal dread of the devastating scourge.

Since the number of cases of smallpox decreases in proportion to the number of persons vaccinated increases, the formidable enemy of antiquity has in modern times become an insidious foe lurking in the outskirts of unprotected communities, creeping into the homes of indifferent parents who have been lulled into a false sense of security, striking down the unwary person who claims immunity by any other method than vaccination.

That smallpox still exists in a virulent form is demonstrated by recent outbreaks in different parts of the civilized world. Statistics show a death rate of 18 per cent, but equally to be dreaded are the frequent after effects which may leave the patient with conjunctivitis, blindness, middle ear disease, gangrene, arthritis, heart and kidney complications, and disfigurements.

"There is no operation safer than vaccination" says Dr. George W. Cox, State Health Officer. "If done by a competent physician no possible harm can result provided the site of inoculation is given ordinary protection against anything that might cause infection." In Detroit in 1924 there were 817,000 vaccinations without one serious consequence. In 1925, 7,500 employees of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. were inoculated without one case of serious illness.

The individual who refuses vaccination is not necessarily taking a great risk for himself, because a majority of his associates have taken the precaution to do so and therefore protect him to a certain extent. But it is right to depend upon one's community to furnish this protection and take no part in it? And is it safe? There is ever present the possibility that a stranger in the street may have been contaminated and carrying the germ unknowingly. There is always the danger of travel, especially in congested areas. And is it worth the risk?

Army Inductees Return For Regular Assignments

Inductees released from entering active service for a two week period, left for permanent assignments Tuesday morning, going first to Ft. Sam Houston. The group leaving Tuesday were those selected from the Aransas quota sent July 20. They are Ramon De Leon, Floyd Rouquette, Jose Covarrubias, Thomas Delgado, W. B. Allen, John William Hawes, Samuel D. McCulloch, Guy W. Barber, Thomas L. Laird, Charlie H. Henning, Archie Salch, Maria McElveen and James Clinton left here over the week-end, to rejoin the others at the post. Tommy Winslow passed the army examining board last week and will report for active duty soon.

Run Off Elections Will Be Held August 22

Only One County Contest To Be Decided In Second Primary

Next event of importance on the political calendar is the second democratic party primary election on Aug. 22. Only one county office is to be decided by the runoff, that of sheriff, for which A. R. Curry and M. W. Haynes are candidates. State races will continue to be animated by the contest between Judge James V. Allred and Senator Wilbert Lee O'Daniel for the post of junior Senator. An unexpired term on the Railroad Commission is to be filled although Jerry Sadler contends that he is still in office, and the place not vacant. The political calendar is as follows:

August 2: First day for absentee voting for second primary. Reports of expenses should be filed with County Judge within ten days after date of first primary. August 10: State Democratic Executive Committee meets to canvass results of first primary election in all State and District elections. August 10: First day for filing second campaign expense account for second primary. August 14: Last day for filing second campaign expense account for second primary. August 19: Last day for absentee voting in the second democratic primary. August 22: Second Democratic Primary Election. Election judges to deliver one copy of official returns to County Chairman within 24 hours after ballots are counted. September 1: Last day for filing third campaign expense account for second primary. September 1: State Democratic Convention. September 7: Meeting of State Executive Committee to canvass results of Second Primary. October 14: Absentee voting for General Election begins. October 31: Last day for Absentee voting for General Election. November 3: General Election Day. November 9: Commissioner's Court shall canvass returns and County Judge shall certify results of election. November 18: State Election Board shall canvass returns of the General Election and declare the results of the election. January 1: County Judge to prepare certificate of election and qualification of all county and precinct officers and file same with the Secretary of State for commissions. It will expedite the issuance and delivery of the commissions if the County Judge will enclose the fee of one dollar for each certificate. January 12: Fortyeighth Legislature convenes. January 19: Governor and Lieutenant Governor inaugurated.

ARANSAS COUNTY WELFARE WORKER ATTENDS MEETING

BEEVILLE.—Twenty three welfare workers from Nueces, San Patricio, Aransas, Calhoun Victoria, Refugio and Bee counties attended a meeting in Beeville Wednesday. Among those present was Mrs. Lila Hagins, Aransas County worker.

To feed and clothe the troops in one Army Corps Area requires 98,000 miles of highway and 131 miles of government-owned railroads, connecting 20,000 buildings of nearly 2,500,000 acres of military reservations.

Information concerning activities of American Armed Forces in foreign lands is necessarily limited but the personal angles and attitudes of the men carrying out their various missions is something that can be told. This week the Pilot prints a letter from a pilot in the Ferrying Command, one of the most hazardous and grueling jobs in the service.

The letter is from Capt. Bill Bonnell of Fort Worth, formerly a pilot on the American Airways. Capt. Bonnell has been with the Ferrying Command since early spring, operating in South America, Africa, The Holy Land and now in India.

Mrs. Bonnell and their two children, Betty and Billy, were June visitors here with Mrs. Bonnell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Booth.

Dear Folks: Just arrived here for a few days stay—it seems that I have been put on detached service for the next two weeks with the Signal Corps, which is very much to my liking. —If only the equipment is available we will set up an airline system that will really work.

You have no idea what the boys have been flying through. With no radio aids at all we have flown our runs where zero visibility prevailed four hours out of five. That means we can fly only a compass course and hope we end up somewhere near our destination with enough visibility to find our way in.

Dust conditions here are fierce and strong winds carry the stuff for thousands of miles. I have

Navy Calls For Enlistments In Women's Reserve

NEW ORLEANS, August 3.—Applicants for the Women's Reserve, U. S. Navy, are now being received at the Office of Naval Officer Procurement in New Orleans, it was announced by Eighth Naval District Public Relations Office.

Lieutenant Katherine Luna, who has been chosen to head W.V.(S) recruiting for the Eighth Naval District has taken charge of the offices at 217 Camp Street, New Orleans, and is receiving applications to fill the initial quota of 125 officers.

As presently planned the Women's Reserve will be composed of approximately 1,000 commissioned officers and 10,000 enlisted women. It is desired that all states be represented.

The requirements for candidates are that the women applying be citizens between 21 and 50 years of age, be of good repute, meet the physical requirements and pass an aptitude test. They must have no children under 18 years of age. Wives of U. S. Naval Officers are not eligible for appointment.

The qualifications and fitness of the individual candidates will be passed on by a selection board located in New Orleans composed of Lieutenant Luna, Lieutenant W. J. Amoss and Lieutenant (junior grade) G. D. Brooks.

All inquiries concerning the Women's Reserve should be made in writing to the New Orleans Office, it is urged, so that a trip to the headquarters can be eliminated if unnecessary.

Women with specialized training in varied fields such as English, Chemistry, Business Statistics, Modern Foreign Languages, Mathematics, Transportation, Radio Engineering, Psychology, Mechanical Engineering, Journalism, Geography, Finance, Chemical Engineering, and Physics, are possible material.

Red Cross Class Learns Nursing Methods

Second Class To Be Given In Civilian Defense Program Underway

A visit this week to the class in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick being taught under the sponsorship of the Red Cross shows that much useful information and fundamental training is being learned by the young women who are taking the course.

The class is being held in the comfortably cool Red Cross quarters in the Meyer building, and is the second such course given by Mrs. J. P. Hanway under the Civilian Defense Program.

Lessons this week are nearly one-third way through the book and brought out animated discussions on quarantine, inoculations against common diseases, care of the infant and pre-natal care of the mother.

Other lessons have included control of communicable diseases, fumigation of sick rooms and persons contacting the diseases. Demonstrations are held in which the students take active part in learning proper bed making, handling and bathing of babies, and other procedures.

"The course aims to give women a reasonable knowledge of home nursing, care of ordinary illnesses, general rules of hygiene and procedure in case of emergencies," Mrs. Hanway said.

"Such knowledge may save many doctor's visits, as well as instruct one on things to do while waiting for the physician's arrival; and also enable a woman to render useful assistance to the doctor when needed."

An appeal for additional equipment for the instruction failed to bring in the needed supplies, but the members furnish necessary items and same have been borrowed.

The membership includes Mrs. Jack Davis, Mrs. Neal Miller, Mrs. Travis Johnson, Mrs. Birdie Keller, Mrs. L. W. Hunt, Mrs. Marvin Davis, Mrs. Herbert Mills, Mrs. Lottie Madden, Mrs. Lucille Clark, Mrs. Emily Box, and Mrs. Norvell Jackson.

Men In Training For 'Critical Occupations' May Be Deferred

Stressing the urgent need in our war program for skilled manpower behind as well as on the battle lines, General J. Watt Page, State Selective Service Director, has advised local boards of twenty-four "critical occupations" in scientific and specialized fields to guide them in the classification of registrants in those professions.

These "critical occupations" are listed in a bulletin sent to all State Directors by National Headquarters, Selective Service System, which also specifically outlines the conditions under which students in such fields may be classified or deferred from military service as "necessary men." The list includes: Accountants; Chemists; Economic; Automotive; Chemical; Civil; Electrical; Heating, Ventilating, Refrigerating and Air Conditioning; Marine; Mechanical; Mining and Metallurgical (including mineral technologists); Radio, Safety and Trans-

Subchaser No. 8 Jumps The Gun And Launches Self

There is a first for everything. In July of last year the first warship ever to be launched on the Texas Coast was launched at Rice Bros. & Co. shipyard here.

On Saturday last the first warship ever to be christened in the water was christened at the same shipyard.

Number 8, for which ceremonies had been scheduled for six p. m., launched herself with the aid of no one and with very few witnesses, two hours early.

The formalities of christening went ahead at the proper time with Miss Mollie Miller as sponsor. The Rev. T. H. Pollard made a short address.

Rockport Mercantile Sold To Grossman Bros.

The oldest dry goods store in Rockport changes hands this week with the purchase by Grossman Bros. Inc. of the dry goods department of the Rockport Mercantile.

Grossman Bros. Inc. is a well-known firm in this vicinity, operating stores in Corpus Christi, Victoria and Aransas Pass.

The new management will continue in the same location under the name of the purchasing firm. New stock has been added to that on hand and will continue to be added, the management states, and to offer high quality merchandise and service.

Fast Drivers Will Be Denied Tires Board Warns

Speeders were given a stern warning today by J. F. Bullard, chairman of the Aransas War Price and Rationing Board, that speeding tickets issued against them by either state or local police will cause them to forfeit their eligibility for new tires or retreads.

"Abuse of tires by speeding must be stopped," Bullard emphasized. "We have been advised by Mark McGoo, the Texas OPA Director that carbon copies of all speeding tickets issued on the highways by the Texas Highway Patrol will be forwarded to the local board."

City police and county officers are being asked to extend this same assistance in enforcing the vital wartime necessity for conserving rubber.

Bullard said the local board had been requested by the state OPA office to regard speeding as an abuse of tires and as reason for voiding a persons eligibility for new tires or retreads. After such an offense, the speeder will have to give the local board conclusive proof that he is observing the 40-mile speed limit imposed by the Office of Defense Transportation before he can again become eligible.

"OPA and ODT inspectors are beginning to take the license numbers of speeders," Bullard said, "and these numbers will be sent to our board. A lot of city delivery trucks and even big freight line trucks and public buses are ignoring the 40-mile limit. They may ignore it, but we are not going to. The next time those fellows apply for tires, if they've been speeding they will know that we mean business,

Lee McElveen Leases Barber's Meat Market

Management of the Barber Meat Market was taken over last week by Lee McElveen, formerly of Houston, who has leased the shop and will continue operation under the name of McElveen Meat Market. Both fresh and cured meats will be carried in stock.

McElveen has had several years experience in the market business. He is a brother of M. E. McElveen, with whose family he is making his home.

The market has been owned and operated by the brothers, Guy and Elmer Barber for the past ten years. Guy Barber was recently accepted for service in the army, leaving here Monday to go into active duty.

U. OF T. SUMMER TERM REGISTRATION CLIMBS

AUSTIN, July 31.—Nearly 18 percent more students are enrolled at the University of Texas than last year at this time a final check of second term summer registration made by the registrar's office revealed today.

Registration of men students is up from 2,060 to 2,499 and of women from 1,016 to 1,138. An average sewing machine contains enough copper to meet the requirements of ten .30 caliber machine gun bullets.

Effort Being Made To Have Children Immunized

In an effort to make this community one hundred percent safe against smallpox, the parent-Teachers Association will hold a free vaccination clinic Wednesday morning in the Red Cross rooms in the Meyer building.

Innoculations will be given by Dr. Charles F. Cron, county medical officer, assisted by a staff of women volunteers from the PTA. Mrs. Somer Smith, chairman of child hygiene with her committee has made arrangements for the clinic and will assist Dr. Cron.

There will be no charge for the service and all parents are urged to have school and pre-school children vaccinated. Serum may be furnished by the state, but if necessary the PTA will see that every child is supplied, according to Mrs. Paul Dupuy, president.

It will be necessary for children expecting to be vaccinated to have a written statement of permission signed by one parent.

The clinic will open at nine a. m., but the committee asks the children to begin arriving at 8:45 so that some of them may be prepared and the work go along without delay.

Pat Fletcher Enters Service At Randolph Field

Pat Fletcher, assistant district superintendent of the Atlantic Oil Co. will enter training for service in the armed forces at Randolph Field this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher and their two small sons, with Mrs. Tom Rooke, left early this week for Dallas where Mrs. Fletcher will make her home for the present. They have lived in Rockport for the past eight months. He is a nephew of Mrs. Rooke.

On the trip to Dallas the party will have a brief visit with Midshipman Paul Fletcher, who is enroute to Norfolk, Va., for active service.

Bad Dream Snake On Display In University Museum

For the first time outside of nightmares, you may know what a trilophosaurus looks like. A trilophosaurus is a 200,000,000 year old reptile and the first complete specimen of the nine-foot creature which once crept over Texas has just been assembled and placed on display at the Texas Memorial Museum.

The serpent heretofore has been known only through fragmentary skeletons, but the complete specimen—in a good many pieces—was recently discovered by a University WPA geological field crew out in Howard County, and the cross-word puzzle job of making all the pieces fit together has been completed.

Dr. E. H. Sellards, director of the museum, added that the specimen enjoys another distinction: It is the last which the Texas researchers expect to find for the duration of the war, since all the University's geological work is now concentrated in a search for minerals necessary to the war and field work in paleontological fields has been stopped.

ADEQUATE SUPPLY OF COSMETICS PROMISED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The Office of Price Administration today promised women an "adequate" supply of cosmetics, but warned that economies will have to be practiced to conserve materials that can be used in war goods.

"Some well-established practices will have to go—such as sending up clouds of powder during camouflage operations and scooping up huge handfuls of cold cream," the OPA said.

City Election Will Be Held Saturday

A city election to fill the vacancy on the city council left by Francis Smith will be held Saturday in the city hall.

Fred B. Hunt has been nominated the candidate, as alderman in Ward 1. Smith recently entered the army as a fireman and is stationed at Camp Hulen.

Dust And Heat Add Hazards To Duties of Ferrying Command In Far East

New Delhi June 17, 1942

Just arrived here for a few days stay—it seems that I have been put on detached service for the next two weeks with the Signal Corps, which is very much to my liking. —If only the equipment is available we will set up an airline system that will really work.

You have no idea what the boys have been flying through. With no radio aids at all we have flown our runs where zero visibility prevailed four hours out of five. That means we can fly only a compass course and hope we end up somewhere near our destination with enough visibility to find our way in.

Dust conditions here are fierce and strong winds carry the stuff for thousands of miles. I have tried to top the dust at 16,000 but couldn't. Here at Delhi it is unusual to have more than 1/2 mile visibility, the usual thing is 400 yards or less. Last trip in I could see only straight down from 200 ft. altitude, and yet we manage somehow to get in.

In addition to the dust, the heat has been awful. 100 degrees is considered a cool day—most of the time it's 110 to 130. The dust is extremely hard on our engines and we are having plenty of carburetor trouble. Maintenance is gradually getting better.

My last trip into Dinjon was a honey. I had 16 passengers and 2 Chinese plus all their clothing, sleeping bags, etc., full tanks of gas and a crew of four plus two Tommy guns. The weather at Dinjon was pretty sour and we entered the valley with a 700 ft. ceiling which rapidly went to 300 and then 200 with intermittent heavy rain. Not as bad as it sounds because we follow the river and can safely fly at ten feet over the water. When we were 40 minutes from Dinjon my right engine developed a dust clog in the automatic mixture control and quit me cold. We were 20 ft. off the water. It was a ticklish minute we had, feathering the prop and about half on and off instruments due to scud clouds right on the river. I was really surprised how well the old Sea Goose flew on one engine, we finished the trip that way.

Yesterday one boy had both the engines quit him one mile from Delhi airport. Visibility was 1/4 mile, and he set down on the sand without hurting any of the passengers. He knocked over a native temple made of mud bricks, left his wheels on a sand dune, killed a cow, but the ship was all in one piece! This may sound terrible, but don't let it worry you, we are rapidly getting things done and all of us feel perfectly confident that we can safely operate. Someday I will tell you about flying the hump into China.

Remember Bill Sanders at Barksdale. He and I bought a '35 Chrysler, spent two days working on it and now have some real transportation. We live out in New Malir, eight miles from the airport. The building is new but has no lights or water and the Chic Sale is slightly out of range for those suffering from Delhi-belly. Otherwise it is modern, with air mattresses and foot lockers.

Our Chrysler is the only means of getting in to see a movie, and (Continued on last page)

Russian Crisis Heightened as Nazis Push on Toward Caucasus Oil Fields; 4,000,000 Men in Service, Says FDR; Japs Resume Offensive in New Guinea

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Attorney General Francis Biddle (right), who headed the prosecution of the eight Nazi saboteurs before the military commission, is shown as he left the U. S. Supreme court in company with Oscar S. Cox, assistant solicitor general, after he fought the defendants' effort to have the Supreme court transfer their trial from the military to civil courts.

RUSSIA: Nazi Steamroller

Inexorably the Nazi's monster war machine had forced the Russians back mile by mile from Khar'kov to beyond Rostov in the lower reaches of the Don basin.

Throughout the cruel retreat of 250 miles Red Marshal Simeon Timoshenko had shrewdly played his string out. His formula: Fall back before the superior Nazi onslaught; contest every inch stubbornly; inflict the maximum damage on the invading Germans.

By thus staying his hand he had kept his own army intact and had forced the Germans to extend themselves. But the Nazi resources in men and machines had seemed to be without limit, for it was reported that 12 fresh divisions and 10,000 tanks had been poured into the conflict after the fall of Rostov.

Hitler was said to be willing to gamble the lives of a million young Germans to gain control of the Russian oil fields of the Caucasus. To turn aside the onrushing Axis flood, General Timoshenko had thrown his Red army reserves into a titanic struggle for the preservation of Russia.

The grimness of the situation was underscored by Premier Stalin's sharp order to his armies: "Not one step back! Every officer and man must stand his ground and fight to the bitter end."

Inspired by Stalin's appeal, Red forces defending the approaches to Stalingrad hurled the German thrust back. The Russians made a determined stand on the Don river south of Tsimlyansk, while on the north flank at Voronezh they dislodged the enemy from strong positions.

4,000,000 MEN: In U. S. Service

President Roosevelt told the nation that with 4,000,000 men under arms, the slack in America's food supplies is being rapidly taken up and shortages may be expected in specific things to eat. He emphasized, however, that there will be no shortage of food and that America will have enough to eat.

To illustrate his point, the President cited temporary shortages of meat in several sections of the country. A number of similar shortages are likely to occur, he said, and listed these reasons for the beef scarcity: 1—The usual off-season for beef; 2—People with more money than ever before trying to buy more expensive cuts; 3—Greater consumption of meat by the armed forces than they ever ate in civilian life; 4—The necessity of buying in advance for the services, which further tightens the shortages.

The problem of shortages, the President declared, lies in directly with the scrap salvage campaigns now under way—iron and steel scrap, waste fats, tin cans and rubber.

Mr. Roosevelt said he was appealing to every householder, every shopkeeper, every citizen "to dig deep into his attic, cellar, barn and backyard and turn in every ounce of scrap useful to war production."

ALEUTIANS: Unified Air Command

Vaporous as the fogs that haunt the Aleutian islands was the announcement by the navy of the creation of a unified command of all aircraft operations in that area.

The announcement was purposely vague, however, for as it explained, exact details as to command relationships and the exact location of headquarters could not be disclosed because they would be of value to the enemy.

EGYPT: Nature Aids Allies

Superior air power, reinforced mechanized troops and a desolate waste of quick-sand marshes combined to give the British defenders of Egypt the upper hand over Marshal Rommel's Nazi invaders.

The strengthened air power manifested itself in sustained attacks on the German fighting positions, devastating bombing attacks on Tobruk, Matruh and other key Axis supply bases by American as well as RAF planes. The augmented tank forces demonstrated their power in Allied advances from El Alamein on the Mediterranean to the Tel el Eiza sector and in the capture of a substantial number of prisoners and supplies.

Of the favorable factors—the third—the impenetrable marshes of Quattara remained as Rommel's biggest obstacle to reaching his goal of Alexandria and the Suez canal. This vast sink which reaches from the interior of the Sahara to within 35 miles of the Mediterranean coast at El Alamein, prevented the wily Axis general from attempting a flanking movement around the British lines. Although Arab caravans have crossed the tip of the Quattara marshes, the shifting dunes, the quick-sands and the marshy quagmires made the use of tanks and mechanized equipment impossible.

PACIFIC AREA: Japs in the Jungle

After giving Gen. Douglas MacArthur more than three months time in which to ship men, guns, fighter planes and bombers to the eastern edge of New Guinea, the Japs had resumed offensive movements against Port Moresby and extended aerial feelers toward the Allies' rear bases on the Australian mainland.

The Jap strategy was to advance toward Port Moresby by means of land patrols along a narrow trail leading toward a strategic mountain pass in the Owen Stanley range from their recently won base at Buna.

American and Australian troops demonstrated that they were prepared for the Nipponese infiltration tactics, for Allied patrols drove the Japs back from Kokoda area in the foothills. Specially trained in jungle fighting the Allied troops were able to meet the Japs on their own terms and to deal them their first defeat in a type of fighting that earlier had won Malaya and Singapore for them.

MISCELLANY:

WASHINGTON. — Jurisdiction of President Roosevelt's military commission was upheld by the Supreme court when that body denied the seven Nazi saboteurs the right to have their case heard in civil court. Chief Justice Stone made the announcement, holding that court was not granting the prisoners' plea to file writs of habeas corpus after an army tribunal had completed extensive hearings and testimony as to their guilt.

LONDON: Love is enemy agent No. 1 for British youths training with the royal navy to make commando raids. "It's not drunkenness and careless talk in pubs that causes us the most grief," said an officer. "It's love. We find that in most cases the offender who gives away vital information is a fellow who is not particularly impressive and is trying to be a big shot with some girl."

NEW YORK: New York motorists paying their license fees next year will receive a metal strip reading NY-43 instead of new plates.

U. S. MANPOWER:

Total Mobilization?

Mobilization of the total manpower of the United States—estimated at 60 million labor units—was forecast as work proceeded in Washington on the formulation of a national war service bill. This vast reservoir of man power would be assigned as part of the total war effort to essential services in factories, on farms, in laboratories and in educational activities training the nation's youth.

Sponsors of the proposed bill pointed out that it would not only do for this country what the "essential work" order had accomplished for Great Britain but provide additional directives as well.

Back of the sponsorship of the bill, was the urgent belief of the chiefs of the war administration that the longer the war goes on the more imperative will it be for the nation to assign each available man and woman to a specific task in the total war effort.

Looming as a possibility was the registration of 42,000,000 women between the ages of 18 and 65, supplementing the recent registration of all males between the ages of 45 and 64.

LEND-LEASE:

Much More Needed

Critics of the lend-lease administration found ammunition for their offensive when the Office of War Information disclosed that "somewhat less" than 12 per cent of this country's total munitions output was being shipped to America's Allies.

While acknowledging that this was "not as much as they need to do the job," the report declared that in shipments of planes and tanks the proportion was "much higher."

The OWI noted that cash purchases by foreign governments had brought the total war shipments to a figure higher than 12 per cent, but did not name the total.

Although admitting that the lend-lease program was not so large as they wish it to be, the OWI spokesman asked that "other considerations be taken into account."

FARM-BORN PROPHET:

Ford Sees Prosperity

Beginning the 80th year of his life, Henry Ford emphasized his unshaken conviction that beyond the present war lies an era of prosperity unparalleled in the world's history.

The farm-born industrial genius visualized an intensive development of the soil as a preventive of war and as the keystone of a new peaceful world order.

"Intensive production," he said, "means a world busy at work and a friendly, helpful exchange of goods. Such a world has neither time nor incentive for war."

Idle land, he added, was a hampering factor and he favored forcing it into production through higher taxation if necessary.

Summing up his philosophy of peace, he declared: "The intensive production of the world's goods, new goods to serve human needs and legitimate desires—that is the broad highway to peace."

HARRY HOPKINS: 17th Groom

Social historians recalled that 16 times before the White House had been the scene of weddings. Thus Lend-Admin Administrator Harry Hopkins and Mrs. Louise Gill Macy became the 17th couple to say "I do" in the historic old mansion on Washington's Pennsylvania avenue.

The close personal relationship between Hopkins and the President was emphasized by the fact that the wedding was held in the White House and witnessed by Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Social historians further recalled that it was 24 years since the last White House wedding had occurred. That was in 1918 when Alice Wilson, niece of President Woodrow Wilson, and the Rev. I. Stuart McElroy were married.

AIR POWER: 'Scourge the Reich'

Even as relays of his four-motored RAF bombers were raining 4,000-pound "block busters" on Hamburg's submarine yards, shipping facilities and war factories, Air Marshal Sir Arthur T. Harris warned Germany that unless it overthrows its Nazi war lords and makes peace, the combined forces of the British and American bombing fleets "will scourge the Third Reich from end to end."

No Prospects for the Disagreeing Young Lady

This story was told of Winston S. Churchill by Gertrude Atherton: "Shortly after he left the Conservative side of the house (of commons) for the Liberal, he was taking a certain young woman down to dinner, when she looked up at him coquettishly, and remarked with the audacity of her kind:

"There are two things I don't like about you, Mr. Churchill."

"And what are they?"

"Your new politics and mustache."

"My dear madam," he replied suavely, "pray do not disturb yourself. You are not likely to come in contact with either."

Telling time in the Navy is on the 24-hour system. Morning hours are from one to twelve, but afternoon hours are from 1300 to 2400 (midnight). So if you ask a sailor the time and he says "seventeen," subtract 12 and you get five o'clock in the afternoon. It's simpler if you ask him what cigarette he smokes. Chances are he'll say: "Camel," for Camel is the favorite cigarette among Navy men as well as among men in the Army, Marines, Coast Guard. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) Local dealers are featuring Camel cartons as gifts for men in the service from the folks back home.—Adv.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feet constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Three destroyers in 35 minutes—that's the navy's newest triple threat to enemy subs. The triple launching occurred at the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company in Kearny, N. J. The three destroyers were named in memory of naval officers.

RED RANGE

By EUGENE CUNNINGHAM
W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: Forced to run from the law to save his life when he is suspected of being the notorious "Comanche Linn," Con Cameron is trying to prove his honesty. With his pal, Caramba Year, he is working for Topoka Tenison, owner of the Broken Wheel ranch. Nevil Lowe, marshal of the neighboring town of Tivan, is after him but doesn't yet know that the "Twenty Johnson" of the Broken Wheel is the man he suspects of being Comanche Linn. Lowe's sister, Janet, is staying with the Tenisons. They are deeply attached to her, having lost their only child, a boy, when he was kidnapped many years before. Among the enemies of the Broken Wheel are Dud Paramore, Megeath and his friend Monk Irby, and the very tough Latimers. Con has already encountered all of them and has so far gotten the best of them. Megeath and Dud Paramore also hate Nevil Lowe and are trying to kidnap Janet. Riding out with Janet for a routine check on the cattle, he finds rustlers at work. All but one escape. Con gives him a chance and then is forced to kill him in self defense.

Now continue with the story.

"She saw a killing," said Con smoothly.

CHAPTER XVII

Con dropped from the saddle with a quick and wary look all around the horizon to see if any of the others were coming back. Nobody was in sight, not even Janet. He went to stoop over the cowboy; to turn him over. Apparently, one bullet had gone straight through the heart, but the other had struck not three inches from it.

"Crazy fool!" Con said bitterly, straightening. "Nobody wanted to kill you."

Janet leaned against the sorrel, just over the ridge that had sheltered her.

"I could see his hand going behind his back," she said in a flat tone. "You just sat there—"

She stopped short. He stared frowningly, but she turned to the sorrel and gathered up her reins to mount.

"I didn't expect him to pull one from the back of his overalls," Con admitted, watching her. "But I reckon I was suspicious of him without thinking about it. We'd better go on back. Somehow, I don't think the rest of 'em will bother anything in this pasture today."

"They thought four to one was enough. So did I. Then you began to shoot and— and everything changed in a flash. Let's go! Let's get away from this place; get away from—him!"

He nodded silently. "I certainly have scraped through some tight spots by the skin of my teeth and the help of plenty luck!" he said frowningly, thinking back. "I certainly have! Of course, when you know that you're walking on thin ice, you walk hawk-eyed—"

She laughed, but it was not a pleasant sound.

"Did you tell Caramba to back up that pretty story of yours about the old uncle and aunt in Chicago, and your days as an orphan, and the death of your father and mother in Harshide, Texas?"

"Caramba? I never did! Did that son of a gun tell you something? Why—"

"Old Perch is an odd character," Janet said thoughtfully. "I've known him for a long time and, of course, I know his peculiarities as—as a stranger wouldn't. One of his oddities is his memory of everything big and little that ever happened in what he calls the 'Skillet,' meaning the Panhandle of Texas. He—wonders why you chose such a name as Horsehide for this—ah—town of your story."

"Why, Horsehide is a good Texas-sounding name," he told her mockingly. "And when you're making a life history out of air, you haven't got time to think of every old saddle tramp you may run into, that knows every inch of the country. And old Caramba thought he'd make my tale stronger."

He snapped his fingers and grinned at her.

"I don't know just what to do about—that back yonder," he said, with elaborate carelessness. "Not much use telling Janton. He won't touch a case outside of town. But if we don't report it, they can use that against us."

He was thinking how unnecessary the shooting had been: still actually angry with the dead man for forcing him to shoot.

"I—suppose you do feel that way about it," she agreed. "You get used to that, don't you? But—you haven't done anything, in the Territory, that—hasn't somehow worked to good, have you?"

"Devil has kind of been fought with fire, no es verdad? I ought to get some kind of recommendation, even from the sheriffs who will chase me across the line at the end! Well, we're about home. Perch can do as he pleases, about notifying Janton. Oh!"

He looked carefully before him, holding his set smile.

"You've been talking a lot about my getting you away from Dud. I reckon I ought to tell you the truth about that and get it straight for you: Dud didn't like me a li'l' bit. He didn't like my killing Gonzales. He waited until he got two more hard cases in the gang, Dandy and West. Then he rigged it with Dandy to kill me. Poor old Jeff told me about it. So I was ready to leave. And when I found that Dud had you all tied up in a bundle, I knew it would make him fit to tie if I not only dodged his killing, but snatched you away from him. So—I did that li'l' bitsy thing!"

She was staring at him with face paper white.

"Oh!" she said explosively, and swung her quirt viciously.

The sorrel grunted and jumped under the slash of her blow, then went at racing gallop for the corals.

Perch was staring from Janet's sorrel to the house when Con rode up. He looked up slantingly.

"Now, what'd you do, that got her that way?" he inquired. "Come charging up, talking to herself like a mad hen, let go the reins and rolled out of that hull and jist skittered for the house. Wouldn't pass the time of day with me—"

"She saw a killing," Con said smoothly. "Four Helligo-off-with-your-stuffers thought the bay stallion and his mares would look better farther over. Happened, we ran smack into 'em and—"

Perch listened to his colorless account, mouth sagging.

"If that don't beat five of a kind! Four of 'em on you and they had to yellow dog it and one's counting the grass roots and two more leaking. I reckon one of the Mex' boys better ride in with a message to Janton. Maybe we better send a boy to Tivan, too. Let Nevil Lowe in on the business. He might want to come out for a looky."

Con was afraid of that very possibility, he thought sardonically. Let Nevil appear on the Wheel and he must disappear—either permanently, or without rousing the suspicions of Perch and the rest. So he seemed to consider the matter.

"Why, no use sending a boy clear to Tivan," he disagreed. "Topoka sent Nevil Lowe word of the Gracey murder, you know. He may be on the way here, right now."

"Oh! If Topoka sent word about that, then you're right. I thought he changed his mind. All right! I'll just notify Janton. And a couple of the peons can go up and put your rustler under grass. His horse is still there, huh? Well, if we let the Mex' take his outfit, they'll fight for a chance to bury him. Which carbine is the one that fellow dropped?"

"In my scabbard. One of the peons can have it. It's so worn it's not worth a sack of shucks. It—"

Movement at a corner of the corral caught his eye. He looked that way at the little man who was rising. Con stared frowningly. Perch looked, too, then laughed.

"Jist old Step. Don't let that way of his bother you, Twenty. He's like a mole: crawls along under the ground a piece, then pops up. He—"

"Never talked nobody to death, anyhow," the little man said snarlingly. "You get a good look at these rustlers, Twenty?"

Con described them as well as he could. The little man had faded blue eyes under graying red brows and the locks of hair straggling from under his battered hat were of the same grizzled reddish color.

"Nobodies," Step summed up in curt grin. "Outside Gloomy and them Rainers the whole pack at Heligo nowadays is nobodies— and nobodies! I'll send out the Martinez boys to bury that rustler, Perch. If you want to give the carbine away, Twenty, Ramon Martinez ain't got one and it'll make you a friend for life." He finished solemnly.

With Con's nod he took the old carbine from the scabbard and went off with odd lurching step—that still seemed to interfere very little with the speed, the ease and silence of his walking.

Late, that afternoon, Con found himself free of small chores about the corral, and he thought of Step. There was an unopened pint of whiskey in Con's bunk, brought out from Onopa. He got the bottle and slipped it into his shirt, then hunted the adobe house which Step lived in alone. The door was open and Con moved to stand in the door. Step sat comfortably upon a bench plaiting rawhide strands. He nodded and Con went inside.

"Perch was telling me you take a jolt sometimes," he drawled. "I happened to have a bottle of Onopa's strongest—"

Con leaned to pass over the pint. Step drew the cork deftly and lifted the bottle. He drank a third of the whisky and handed it back. Con took a short drink and returned it.

"I brought it over for you. Perch told me a li'l' bit about you. You must've seen plenty!"

Con waited for him to lower the whisky. He drank it as if it had been coffee, faded eyes a little brighter, weathered face softening slightly. There was something about him that compelled respect. Not only had he been a good man, Con thought, but—he was now a good man!

"I'll be sixty-five if I hang on till beef roundup's over," Step said, in a meditative tone. "Le's see you draw that cutter."

He put Con through his paces, made suggestions that instantly increased his smoothness and speed of movement, then got from his colchon, a bed roll with mattress, a pair of white-handled Colts that gleamed dully from constant care. For a half-hour he showed Con gunplay, what he called "limbering stunts" designed for nothing but developing dexterity, and "hideouts" of a dozen kinds.

"You won't never be fast as I am," he said in answer to Con's marveling remark. "No reason to be! You was faster'n nineteen out of twenty cowboys. I'd say you're faster'n ninety-nine out of a hundred, with jist the three-four changes you made in the movement. Now, there's some awful big li'l' things about killing a man, when you know you have got to kill a man: First place, if you go into a gunplay wondering whether to kill him or jist hurt him, you'll wind up biting the daisies from the bottom. Make up your mind about that before you start. Then you'll get down whatever you aimed to do—fast and slick."

"My old uncle told me something like that, and my experience has proved it. He told me never to make a motion to draw until I was dead-certain I had to draw, because an uncertain motion is a ragged, slow motion. He said, if you draw, do it fast and shoot at the end of it."

"He had the gunslick idee! Another thing: Don't think one second about what the other man's going to do to you! Keep your mind on what you're going to do to him."

There was much more of the same grim, expert advice, with a wealth of examples drawn from nameless battles of unnamed men over a half-century. When the bell-like clanging of the cook's triangle signaled supper, Con stood and stretched.

"I certainly do thank you for a college education! And I'd like to get a lot more of the same. Eating with us?"

"Nah. I like Mex' cooking. One of the Martinez women fixes me up with everything I want. See you some more. I kind of cottoned to you from the day you roped the colts. Not many I do. Topoka's the only one on this place I call amigo and I've known him thirty years."

But as he passed the kitchen door of the big house, Mrs. Tenison called him and he went that way with the carefully blank face he was learning to turn upon the world.

"Come in and eat with Janet and me, when you've washed," she ordered him. "No arguments! I need a man at the table."

So he splashed and combed and surveyed his battered face in the mirror, then went resignedly to sit down opposite Janet. Mrs. Tenison did most of the talking, while they ate at the big, handmade Spanish table.

"That poor woman was conscious for a few minutes, awhile ago," she told Con. "She says she didn't know the men who killed her husband. She's asleep again. I think she'll do, now. The boy will be out tomorrow. He thinks he's going to ride with you."

Janet looked everywhere but directly at Con and he followed her example. Mrs. Tenison seemed not to notice.

"I hope you don't feel put out about staying here. I hope you stay with us from now on. If—my boy had grown up with us, to be about your kind of boy, I would have been proud of him. He was a— a brave little boy, at four."

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

Washington, D. C.

U. S. FOREIGN LEGION

Most people don't realize it, but there are many enemy aliens who are officers in the U. S. army. In fact the army, true to the American tradition of the melting pot, is made up of American citizens of almost every national and racial background, including 2,720 German aliens, not to mention 2,790 Germans who are naturalized citizens.

The Italian total is 2,472 aliens and 3,781 naturalized. In addition, there are 644 Japanese in the army, plus 3,000 Japanese-Americans, formerly of the Hawaiian national guard, most of whom are assigned to the 100th battalion at Fort McCoy, Wis.

The army goes on the assumption that any man who wants to fight can be a good soldier. Of course, the "enemy aliens" are checked and double-checked before they are admitted for enlistment. The men who pass these tests are found to be even more zealous for the defeat of the dictators than the average American.

Latin-American Battalions.

To make the melting pot more complex, the army has a Filipino infantry battalion, and is forming a battalion for Norwegians in the U. S. and Norwegian-Americans. Instruction and conversation in this unit will be in the Norwegian language.

Equally eager to fight are thousands of Latin-Americans, especially from the nearer countries, such as Cuba and Mexico. The office of the U. S. military attache in Havana is flooded with applications from young Cubans who want to wear the uniform of Uncle Sam. Most of them would renounce Cuban citizenship if necessary.

But what they do not realize is that if they come to the United States, they are likely to be swept into the U. S. army, whether they like it or not. Within five days after entering this country, aliens must register for the draft, and they had better leave the country pronto if they don't want to be inducted.

Not yet arranged, but highly desirable, is a Latin-American battalion. There are now ten Latin-American countries which have declared war on the Axis, and thousands of their young men want to follow up that declaration with something more than police duty at home.

BACK-BREAKERS

An American diplomat returning from Italy tells this revealing story about the true sentiments of the Italian people.

In his office at the U. S. embassy in Rome he found a clerk, an Italian girl, crying. When he inquired what was wrong, she replied: "Oh, I'm ashamed to be an Italian. You remember what boasting the Fascists did about the Greek campaign?" They said: "We will break their kidneys." But everybody knows who really beat the Greeks; it was not our army; it was the Germans. But now—have you seen the poster on the streets this morning?" And the girl broke into tears again.

The diplomat looked outside at the poster, which that day was appearing all over Italy. It showed a Greek soldier lying on his face, with a steel bar across his back. On top of the bar was the Fascist insignia, and on the side, the swastika.

The caption read: "We said we would break their kidneys. Mussolini is always right."

Note: All reports from Italy tell of a growing disgust with the Mussolini government, and a growing hatred of the Germans. But the people are too cowed to revolt.

NO-CHAUFFEUR ARNOLD

Trustbusting Thurman Arnold hails from the small town of Laramie, Wyo., and he doesn't see any reason why he should hire a chauffeur to drive his car. So he drives it himself.

One evening, after he and Mrs. Arnold had been dinner guests of Mrs. Evalyn (Hope Diamond) McLean, they were going out the front door, when the doorman said, in his most elegant manner, "Shall I call your car, Mr. Arnold?"

With a dour expression on his face, Arnold said, "You can call it, but I don't think it will come."

CAPITAL CHAFF

The Thurman Arnolds are mourning over the fact that Angelica has eaten Henry Wallace's corn. When the vice president heard about it, he having given the Arnolds a present of Iowa hybrid corn, he remarked: "I hope the corn did Angelica some good." Angelica is the Thurman Arnolds' cow.

Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of Senator "No-X-Card" Pepper of Florida, walks to social engagements or takes the street car.

There may be a gasoline shortage, but you would never know it at Washington's Congressional Country club. On a recent Sunday there were so many golfers that caddies had to double up and carry two or three bags each. . . . On the same Sunday, motorists so jammed the highways between Washington and Eastern Shore beaches that cars were lined up for three hours waiting for the Chesapeake ferry.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Don't Rob Your Children

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

About four months ago I went with Mother to a lecture and afterward went in to congratulate the speaker, who is a friend. He introduced me to a young captain, who asked to call on me.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

EVERY little while you meet some mother, or perhaps some mother and father, who completely sacrifice their children to their own whims and comfort, and are rather proud of doing so!

They don't understand or even like children, and they make no effort to do so. They leave the children in hotel rooms, or drag them about in hot cars, neglect them, laugh at them, spoil them, criticize and ignore them at will. Everyone knows these badly fed, badly managed children, who are by turns shy and bold, and in odd ways both stupid and shrewd. Children who have been left to nurses whose companionship would in five minutes disgust their parents. Children who are lonely, bewildered and uneasy in childhood, and destined to be lonely, bewildered and uneasy all through their lives.

Rich Child Suffers Most.

These are by no means the children of the very poor. It would seem rather that they are the children of the most privileged classes. In poverty, in the crowded slums of New York's East Side or the packed tenements of the Bronx, there is always companionship, rivalry, excitement; there are always dishes to wash and errands to run and babies to tend. No, it's in the comfortable isolated mansions of the well-to-do that childhood suffers most.

One Social-Registered, extremely wealthy girl in whose case I was interested, hardly saw her own family for the first years of her life. When at seventeen, she was finally permitted to enter the drawing room she was a fat, giggling, embarrassed and embarrassing creature who spoke infantile French and German and Italian and so was supposed to be educated, but who told the eligible young man to whom she was introduced that her favorite game was "jackstones," and her favorite reading the "Oz" books, and who grabbed so eagerly at a box of candy and stuffed so much of it into her mouth that it was decided that Kathryn's introduction to society must be still further delayed.

Then there was the case of the unfortunate wife of George the Fourth, a princess raised in a German castle, but so noisy and dirty in her habits that the dignified old ambassador who went to bring her to England as the regent's bride broke it to her as gently as possible that her chances of holding the affections of George would be improved if she would make a habit of daily baths.

Neglected Human Contacts.

It is a strange thing that mothers who will spend time and money, who will worry for years over the book education of their children, often deny them the social help, the simple training in human contacts, in nice manners, in the making and holding of friendships, that is so much more valuable. It is a sad commentary upon our handling of our children that a book called "How to Make Friends and Influence People" has deservedly been a best-seller for years.

Here is a letter from a girl whose parents are apparently both highly cultured, well-meaning persons. But how they have failed Bettina!

"My mother is an angel, and my father is a very wonderful man," writes Bettina, from her home in the suburbs of a great eastern city.

ON THE HOME FRONT

With RUTH WYETH SPEARS

IF IT ever seemed to you that the walls and ceiling of an attic room were coming down on your head you know how the owner of this room felt before she began to experiment a bit with wallpaper and furnishings.

WALL PAPER WITH SMALL PATTERN AND BORDER MAKES ANGLES LESS DISTINCT—CURTAINS FROM CEILING TO FLOOR ACCENT HEIGHT OF ROOM

brought out angles with sharp shadows. Large designs made the room seem smaller. Wide borders made the ceiling appear to be even lower. But when a paper with tiny evenly spaced pattern and narrow border was tried all these defects seemed to melt away. The long curtains with ruffles on three sides also helped to make the ceiling seem higher. Pink and white striped material to repeat the wallpaper color was used for the chair cover and dressing table skirt. The chair is a remodeled rocker and the orange crate dressing table has hinged arms. Directions for them may be found on pages 4 and 19 of SEWING, Book 5.

Son Of Rockport
Couple Sees Battle
On "Yorktown"

Edgar Dickinson, better known among his Yoakum friends as
"Pete" has had some thrilling experiences since he joined the Navy last December.

Pete is the son of Mr. and Mrs.
Edgar Dickinson formerly of Yoak-um, but now living in Rockport.
For a time he was stationed at Pearl Harbor as Torpedo Man and graduated from there in May and was assigned to the Air Craft Carrier, Yorktown. He was on that ship when it was torpedoed during the battle of Midway.

Wedding Bells Ring At Harvest Moon
And Yuletide; Rockport Romeos
Wait For Leapyear

After starting the year with the highest score of any one month of all time, Cupid kept up a good average through May, then suddenly lost his aim on the month of June, when his batting average is supposed to reach the peak, he fell off to only eight hits, and for July, only four.

Records of Aransas County marriage licenses during the past ten years shows that January of 1942 was one of the four highest months with 19 licenses issued. The other high months were July and November of 1941 and September of 1940.

The depression years showed that Little Boy Love was discouraged along with everyone else. The count got up to 15 one time, but most months three to seven was average.
Often it was two, and once, January 1935, only one brave couple could see the rainbow.

Contrary to accepted opinion,
June isn't the most popular month with brides. In this county more of them march down the middle aisle in December and September.
May is next and then November.
June is just average, but this year
June and July were below average.

Leap year marriages always soar above the previous year; In 1940 the number was 157 compared to 93 the previous year, and in 1936 there were 82 against 59 the previous year.

The County Clerk issued 170 licenses last year and just half that many to date this year and seven months gone by, but the boom days are ahead.

proposing an amendment to Article III of the Constitution of the State of Texas by adding a new section thereto to be known as Section 49a, requiring all bills passed by the Legislature on and after January 1, 1945, appropriating money for any purpose to be sent to the Comptroller of Public Accounts for his approval, and fixing the duties of the Comptroller with reference thereto; authorizing the Legislature to provide for the issuance, sale, and retirement of serial bonds, equal in principal to the total outstanding, valid, and approved obligations owing by the General Revenue Fund on September 1, 1943; providing for the submission of this amendment to the voters of this State; prescribing the form of ballot; providing for the proclamation and publication thereof; and providing for the necessary appropriation to defray necessary expenses for the submission of this amendment.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:

Section 1. That Article III of the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended by adding thereto, immediately after Section 49, a section to be known as Section 49-a to read as follows:

"Section 49a. It shall be the duty of the Comptroller of Public Accounts in advance of each regular session of the Legislature to prepare and submit to the Governor and to the Legislature upon its convening a statement under oath showing fully the financial condition of the State Treasury at the close of the last fiscal period and an estimate of the probable receipts and disbursements for the then current fiscal year. There shall also be contained in said statement an itemized estimate of the anticipated revenue based on the laws then in effect that will be received by and for the State from all sources showing the fund accounts to be credited during the succeeding biennium and said statement shall contain such other information as may be required by law. Supplemental statements shall be submitted at any Special Session of the Legislature and at such other times as may be necessary to show probable changes.

"From and after January 1, 1945 save in the case of emergency and imperative public necessity and with a four-fifths vote of the total membership of each House, no appropriation in excess of the cash and anticipated revenue of the funds from which such appropriation is to be made shall be valid. From and after January 1, 1945, no bill containing an appropriation shall be considered as passed or be sent to the Governor for consideration until and unless the Comptroller of Public Accounts endorses his certificate thereon showing that the amount appropriated is within the amount estimated to be available in the affected funds. When the Comptroller finds an appropriation bill exceeds the estimated revenue he shall endorse such finding thereon and return to the House in which same originated. Such information shall be immediately made known to both the House of Representatives and the Senate and the necessary steps shall be taken to bring such appropriation to within the revenue, either by providing additional revenue or reducing the appropriation.

"For the purpose of financing the outstanding obligations of the General Revenue Fund of the State and placing its current accounts on a cash basis the Legislature of the State of Texas is hereby authorized to provide for the issuance, sale, and retirement of serial bonds, equal in principal to the total outstanding, valid, and approved obligations owing by said fund on September 1, 1943, provided such bonds shall not draw interest in excess of two (2) per cent per annum and shall mature within twenty (20) years from date."

Sec. 2. The foregoing Constitutional Amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of the State of Texas, at the next general election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1942, being November 3, 1942, at which election all voters favoring, said proposed amendment shall write or have printed on their ballots, the words:

Spotlight

of GRANTLAND RICE

THESE soldiers, sailors, marines, airmen and coast guardsmen have all the work they can handle, but they still have time enough left for arguments, debates and rebuttals of one sort or another.

Here is a camp query that covers practically every detail of baseball:

"To help clear up a lot of arguments we've had in this camp, would you mind answering the following: Who is (1) the fastest pitcher ever known; (2) the hardest hitter; (3) the best natural hitter; (4) the best base runner; (5) the best infielder, fielding and hitting?"

Grantland Rice

Here are the answers from this lookout:

1. Fastest ball pitcher—Walter Johnson, with Lefty Grove second.
2. Hardest hitter—Babe Ruth.
3. Best Natural hitter—Joe Jackson, with Nap Lajoie close.
4. Best base runner—Ty Cobb, going away. Max Carey next.
5. Best infielder—Honus Wagner, great infielder and greater hitter.

Ranking Golfers

Here's another barracks request, this time from a group of golfers:

"How would you rank the golfers from the viewpoint of stroke-making, all-around skill, winning or losing temperaments, putting? If we can get this settled it will shut off a lot of noise in this camp."

1. The best stroke-maker I ever saw, the straightest player, was Harry Vardon.

2. The best combination of stroke-making, hard work and putting belonged to Bobby Jones.

3. The best golfing temperaments I ever ran across were Johnny McDermott, Jerry Travers and Walter Hagen. McDermott and Travers were marvels at concentration. Hagen had less tension. He also had as much golf smartness.

The two best putters I ever saw were Walter Travis and Jerry Travers. In modern play this distinction goes to Horton Smith. Paul Runyan is close.

I've seen Harry Vardon play many rounds of championship golf and I can't recall ever seeing him play a shot from the rough or from a bunker. He was a bad putter, with a nervous stab. It was nothing unusual to see him take three putts from 10 or 12 feet.

About Bobby Jones

Capt. Bobby Jones, taking his training at Mitchell Field before being stationed in a southern sector, believes he worked harder around a course in championship play than anyone else. He was supposed to be "The Machine."

"I was far from this," he said recently. "Machines don't take sevens. Gene Sarazen used to say you can't take a seven on any hole and win. I had three sevens in my last round at Winged Foot in the National Open of 1929. I've had a flock of sevens, which meant I had to work my head off on the other holes."

Gene Sarazen

"The oddest seven I ever took was at Hoylake in the 1930 British Open. I was only 20 yards off the green in two, got into no trouble, actually didn't miss a shot, and yet took five strokes to get down for my seven here. How could this happen? The cup was on a mound. My first chip shot ran up fairly close, stopped, and then rolled back. My second one slipped by the cup, caught a deep slant and trickled 30 feet on beyond. Then I took three putts."

The Worst Temptation

"Championship golf," Bobby said, "is largely resisting the temptation to quit after one or two bad holes. You begin to feel you can't win, so why keep on punishing yourself? The winner has to work for it all the way, take his beating here and there, and then continue to work harder than ever."

"I believe the hardest-working golfer I ever saw is Ben Hogan. Ben works over every type of shot, even the ones that look simple. He takes nothing for granted."

"Hogan has made no attempt to master any variety of shots. He sticks to a few simple ones, concentrates on these, and never gets discouraged. Byron Nelson is another hard worker, although Byron can play more shots. But no one works quite as hard, round after round, month after month, as Hogan works."

"I had 18 years of tournament golf, from 12 to 30, and I know the nerve and mental beating one has to take if you are out to win. Just one lapse is enough to cost two strokes. There never was a golf shot that played itself."

'CHARACTER' LOANS
I mentioned in one of my columns the state banks of Holland, which make loans on a character basis, and Mr. Harry R. Langdon of New York city has written to tell me about the Municipal Credit union to which 29,000 government employees belong in New York city.

The interest rate paid to investors has been lowered, and at the same time the interest rate on loans by employees has been decreased, and the present interest rate is the lowest in the country. This credit union has passed the $5,000,000 mark, and in a magazine called The Bridge, which is the official publication of the Credit Union National Association, Inc., there is an account of 25 years of service to government employees.

These credit unions are growing all over the country, but they do not serve quite the same purpose since they are open only to certain groups of employees, and cannot be used by the average citizen in a community.

YOUTHFUL DRAFTEES

I have a letter which brings up a point that I have wanted to discuss in this column before. At one of my press conferences I was asked whether I would approve of the drafting of boys in the 18 and 19-year-old group. Frankly, of course, I hope we will not be forced to do this, because I feel that it is important, where boys show aptitude for further education, that they should have an opportunity to acquire it. It is probable that in times of war where boys are not anxious for more education, they will enlist since after the age of 18, enlistment is possible. If it does become necessary, however, to use younger boys on a draft basis, I think it should be done with the greatest discrimination.

This mother who writes me from Atlantic City, N. J., points out that her older boy had three years of earning his own living before he enlisted at the age of 21. I imagine that during those three years, she felt that he was safe-guarded by the fact that he was living at home and therefore could be watched over by his family. On the other hand she feels that her younger boy, who is 18, has never been anywhere except where his family has taken him; so if he were thrown with a mixed group today, he would not have the experience to know good companions from bad, and might succumb to the influences which three years later would not touch him. In other words, she feels that her 18-year-old boy is still a child, and this, of course, is true in many cases.

That is why I think draft boards, considering boys of this age, will have to consider first their physical development. Many an 18-year-old boy is strong enough to stand the strain. Others might not be. Secondly, mental and moral development are important factors to be considered. These two things will depend largely on the types of schools and homes in which these boys have been brought up. If they have been sheltered and made somewhat too dependent upon their elders, it would be too great a hardship to plunge them immediately into military service, and they should probably have some intermediary preparation.

NEW STUDENT OUTLOOK

NEW YORK.—I left Asheville, N. C., one afternoon, after a very interesting and pleasant visit to the International Student Service summer institute there.

Asheville college, which has housed the institute, was started about 50 years ago by the Rev. Mr. Pease, who founded the Five Point mission in New York city. When he retired he bought a farm near Asheville and shortly thereafter he and his wife took in five mountain girls, to help them obtain an education.

From that little beginning grew Asheville Normal Teachers college, which was a denominational college, largely supported by church funds, up to a very short time ago.

Most of its students come from a radius of a hundred miles around Asheville and belong to the proverbially large families of mountaineer farmers. The curriculum, therefore, has been arranged chiefly to meet their needs—home-making, handicrafts, a business course, and courses which would prepare them to teach in the country schools. These have been the things which these young people wanted and have had. They look like a bright and intelligent group, and not very different from the youngsters in our institute.

The college needs to find new support, new friends who are interested in seeing that these young people get a more liberal education. They are strong and fine, and they are deserving of help in the educational field, even from people who do not live in their own state.

A limited number of people have been interested in the past, but the college must make new friends, because the buildings need repairs, and more teachers are required. The president has a fine conception of what education for the world of tomorrow should be.

Learning to Fly 'Sky Pups'

The U. S. Balloon Barrage Training Center at Camp Tyson, Tenn., provides the training necessary for the handling, sailing and repairing of the huge bags which are flown as an aerial stockade against attacking bombers. These balloons are flown in critical areas to prevent enemy aircraft from bombing at low altitudes and can be raised to great heights in a few minutes.

"Alarm! Balloons aloft!" At this command, squads of balloon men rush to their posts, as pictured here.

Here is shown the motor-driven winch which winds and unwinds the steel cable controlling the flight of the balloon.

"A stitch in time." As tedious a job as peeling spuds is sewing up the rip in a balloon fabric. Here Sgt. Albert Kriebel is shown sewing miles and miles of seams (or so it seems to him).

Trainees, seated around their instructor, look like Lilliputians at a weenie roast.

Robert Kehr teaches the cordage class how to make a "monkey fist"—a knot used in the rigging of a balloon.

'Impossible'

By DUFORD JENNE
McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

THE words followed Mary to her room like a dooming sentence. In going down the hall of the boarding house she had passed Edith Lyman's room, and the door had been ajar. A group of girls were evidently discussing with Edith, who was a leader among them, some party planned for the evening; and Edith had said:

"Oh, we can't ask Mary! Ted wouldn't go with her—she's impossible!"

That was all Mary heard, but it was enough. She closed her door and stood in stricken silence. "Impossible"—how the word rang in her ears!

She was almost on the verge of tears when there was a knock on the door. She hastily controlled herself, and Edith stuck her bright head into the room.

"Hello, Mary, we're going out to a dance tonight, and couldn't you go?"

Mary's heart skipped a beat, but she was almost on the point of saying, "No!" for she knew she was being asked just to "fill in." But she was hungry to get away from the drab routine of her days, and said hesitatingly, "Yes, I'd love to go, Edith."

"O. K., then, Mary, Ted will take you."

Mary sat still a moment—Ted, one of the most welcome of the boys who came to the house, whose kindly, attractive face always had a pleasant smile for Mary.

She dressed as carefully as she could, and she was ready when Ted came.

On the journey to the dance hall, through the crowded subway, Ted's kindness and thoughtfulness pleased her and drove away some of the chill the word "Impossible" had left.

At the hall, she entered into the spirit of the evening with all her soul, warning herself that this chance might not come again.

When the evening was over, however, and Ted had left her with a kindly good-night and in the silence of her room she "looked stock" she was aware that he had shown no more than courteous interest in her.

"And I was so happy with him! If he would only ask me again!" she whispered to herself.

But he didn't, not that week-end, nor the next; and in the meantime, Mary brooded on the word that had condemned her so simply.

Finally, in desperation, she went to motherly old Mrs. Ober, who worked in some dressmaking shop, and told her the whole story.

Mrs. Ober listened, and said gently:

"Then, listen, my dear. Every girl has something of charm about her; and it is her duty to study in every way she can to bring it out. Now your—your dresses ought to be changed; it's not a matter of cost but of right choices. You see, some women have a gift for figuring such things out; and some haven't. Now, it's my business to help those who haven't; and suppose we see what we can do?"

Mary's eager agreement made the older woman smile, and they went ahead with their plans.

So the day came when Mary, while Mrs. Ober looked on with interested eyes, faced herself in her mirror in a real party dress. She was amazed at the change. Her bobbed hair had been changed in such a way as to bring out the oval of her face and the curve of her slim neck; and the dress, simple enough in design, did the rest.

"You see?" Mrs. Ober said, and Mary turned and rushed into her arms.

Things seemed to happen after that. She was hurrying down the hall to Mrs. Ober's room for the purpose of having a small change made in the dress when she met Ted at the top of the stairs. He looked at her with sudden, keen interest.

"Hullo, Mary. I hardly knew you! What is that—a new dress?" he asked with frank admiration in his eyes.

His glance set something to singing within her. "A real party dress!" she announced, as she slipped by.

Then came Edith's comment later on. "Midget, where did you get that bob? It's the work of an artist!" Then, happiest of all, came Ted with his own invitation to join him and his own special group at an evening dance.

It was in the quiet of one of the alcoves of the beautiful room outside the dance floor that he turned to her. "Mary, you are the same girl and yet you aren't, and I can't figure out what has made the difference. You remember the other time? I enjoyed having you with me then, but I feel now as if it were almost somebody else." He was smiling, but his ways were frank and he could not hide his puzzled thought.

Mary was chanting to herself, "I won't be lonesome any more," but she said to him: "The reason—oh, only a woman knows! But you don't think I'm 'Impossible'?"

He caught her hand in a tense grasp. "Impossible!—I should say not—and it's going to take a darned good man to get you away from me!" he said with decision.

Star Dust

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

PEARL BUCK, head of the East and West association, which promotes cultural understanding between the Orientals and ourselves, wants a list of movies which really represent American life. She ought to include "Pride of the Yankees," starring Gary Cooper, with Teresa Wright playing opposite him. It's the story of Lou Gehrig's life—shows an earnest, rather shy young man who loved his mother and worked hard, attaining success and the honest admiration and affection of his countrymen. A typical American, we hope.

It's too bad that the dim-out forbade the use of Kleig lights for the opening of this swell picture. Never did another picture have such a first night; it took place simultaneously in 40 RKO houses in New York, and more than 100,000 people attended it.

If Richard Haydn develops indigestion it will be the fault of the writers of "No Time for Love." That's the new Claudette Colbert-Fred MacMurray comedy, and Haydn eats in every one of his scenes. Might sound like heaven to some, but not to him!

They probably won't give Jerry Bulky a chance to dance in "Du Barry Was a Lady"; probably won't even know that she's a dancer. She's gone to Hollywood with a group of fellow models, and if they have an opportunity to do more than just look pretty they'll be lucky. New York models aren't very enthusiastic about Hollywood any more; most of them refuse to go. Even $200 a week for three months or so doesn't tempt them, since they may never face a movie camera in that time, and when they come home folks think they just didn't make good.

Sounds strange, but here's what we hear from Metro about an important role in Katharine Hepburn's picture, "Keeper of the Flame." The actor chosen will portray the star's husband, and will appear in seven important scenes before meeting death in an accident. After that he'll still be a key figure in the picture. But—he'll never speak a word. Swell chance to be paid for keeping mum!

The latest addition to the new crop of players recently signed by Metro is William Bishop, nephew of Helen Hayes. He's six feet two, with dark brown hair and eyes, and has won fame as a football player. He's played in stock and in various stage plays in New York; in two of them he supported his famous aunt. He has also appeared on her radio program. A coming star, maybe.

Another newcomer to the screen is Lenore Aubert, chosen by Samuel Goldwyn to play opposite Bob Hope in "They Got Me Covered." Born in Yugoslavia, daughter of a general in the Austrian army in pre-Hitler days, she worked in pictures in Vienna. She was discovered by a talent scout while appearing in a play in Los Angeles. Goldwyn did more testing for this role than he has for any in several years. It's a break for Miss Aubert—she has been signed to a seven-year contract.

Bob Hawk's "How Am I Doin'" show has been on the air for exactly half a year, and in that time 211 contestants have walked off with winnings totaling $15,213. The average take, according to Quizmaster Hawk, is from $10 to $480; Mrs. William Riley, a South Bend, Ind., housewife, is the top winner. Six contestants have gone over the $400 mark in the last 26 weeks.

ODDS AND ENDS—Ginger Rogers will play the title role in "The Gibson Girl," a romantic comedy in technicolor based on the lives of Charles Dana Gibson and his wife. "Lassie Come Home," story of a Yorkshire family and their collie, by Eric Knight, will be filmed in technicolor by Metro. . . . Those who recall Margo's moving performance in "Fanny" and other productions will be glad to know she'll act as well as sing in the CBS Caravan hour, Friday evenings. . . . Joan Blaine's getting numerous long distance calls from Private Charles Carroll, formerly her leading man in "Valiant Lady."

Summertime Means Picnic Time!
(See Recipes Below.)

Sandwiches Plus

Your fling with summer isn't quite complete without one or a dozen picnics with those sandwiches that taste so good, bubbling hot coffee and fresh, juicy fruit to top off that outdoor meal. You'll have fun with these simple things, even if you don't make a long trip in the family car to some far-away, favorite picnic grounds. Try the back yard, the parks, the beach or even that shady spot down the road a mile or so for this year's picnic.

Scrub your favorite picnic hamper clean and sun-dry it to assure your food freshness and cleanliness. Fill it to the brim with exciting sandwich combinations that your family will get such a surprise when they begin digging into the pleasant recesses of the big basket. Remember the salt for the tomatoes, paper napkins, paper plates, plenty of glasses or paper cups and, yes, a gay checked cloth to add atmosphere to the affair.

Are you in a quandary as to what sandwiches to make? Well, glance over the following combinations for some really tasty ideas in fillings:

Chopped bacon (broiled until crisp) and hard-cooked egg, moistened with mayonnaise or softened butter.

Sliced ham and American cheese, lettuce, sandwich spread.

Cream cheese, finely minced onion, chopped stuffed olives.

Chipped beef, ground fine, mixed with crumbled Roquefort cheese, seasoned with Worcestershire sauce.

Liver sausage, mashed, seasoned with chili sauce.

Summer sausage, ground with sweet or bread and butter pickles, moistened with mayonnaise.

Cucumber, chopped fine, excess moisture drained off, mixed with cream cheese, salt and pepper.

Peanut butter mixed with honey.

Tuna or salmon, flaked, mixed with lemon juice, finely chopped celery and mayonnaise to moisten.

Fillings combined generously with butter are often known as spreads. This facilitates the handling of sandwiches. Just spread the "butter" thickly between slices of bread and your sandwich is made, ready to be wrapped in waxed paper for picnicking.

Cheese Spread. Blend cream cheese with lemon juice and add 2 tablespoons butter to each package (1-ounce) of cream cheese. To this add one or more of the following: chopped watercress, green pepper or celery; pimiento, green olives, or nuts.

Sardine Spread. Cream 2 tablespoons lemon juice with ½ pound sweet butter. Spread this on toast or plain whole wheat bread. On top of this place tiny sardines, sprinkle with lemon juice and top with slice of toast or plain whole wheat bread.

"Make-your-own" sandwiches are loads of fun for picnics. Just pack your lunch box with meat loaf or ham loaf already baked at home. Provide the crowd with bread and butter, and let them slice the meat for their own sandwiches:

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: Your best bargains during the present can be found in eggs and cheese, so plan to fortify your meals generously with both of these foods.

The campaign to save fats is really getting under way, and it's good policy on your part to turn all excess fats to your butcher. Economy's yours if you use a variety of meat cuts in planning your menus. Best bargains can be found in the less used cuts such as liver, sweetbreads, heart, kidneys, rump roasts, etc.

Primary or unlimited production in canned fruits is decreed for the following items: peaches and pears (not whole), pectin, fruit cocktail, fruit for salad, and concentrates of grapefruit, lemon, lime and orange.

*Ham Picnic Loaf.

- (Serves 10)
- ½ cup quick-cooking tapioca
 - ¼ teaspoon pepper
 - ¼ teaspoon paprika
 - 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
 - 1 tablespoon minced onion
 - 1 pound lean ham, ground
 - 1 pound lean pork, ground
 - 2 cups milk

Combine tapioca with remaining ingredients in order given. Bake in a loaf pan in a hot (450-degree) oven 15 minutes, then decrease heat to moderate (350 degrees) and bake 45 minutes longer or until done. Serve hot or cold.

Munching on golden, crispy fried, cold chicken is many a picnicker's dream of the perfect outing. This is easily managed if you fry the chicken the night before, let it stand in the refrigerator, then wrap in waxed paper to take to the picnic the next day:

*Country-Fried Chicken.

- (Serves 6 to 8)
- 2 3-pound chickens
 - ¾ cup flour
 - 1½ tablespoons salt
 - 1 teaspoon pepper
 - Lard or shortening for frying
 - ¾ cup butter

Clean chickens and cut in pieces suitable for serving. Mix flour with salt and pepper and place in paper bag. Place several pieces of chicken in the bag, and shake to coat evenly with flour. Take out and fry chicken until brown, slowly, in the lard which has been placed in a heavy skillet. When all the chicken has been browned, dot with butter, cover closely and let cook for about an hour over low heat. Or, if you prefer, after chicken is fried, let cook in a moderate (350-degree) oven until done. Uncover during last 15 minutes of cooking time to brown and crisp chicken.

Potato salad made the old-fashioned way with home-cooked dressing is guaranteed to go over big with the family:

Potato Salad.

- (Serves 8)
- 6 potatoes, cooked in jackets
 - ¾ cup french dressing
 - 1 onion, chopped fine
 - 1 cup celery, chopped fine
 - 1½ teaspoons salt
 - 1 recipe cooked dressing
- Peel potatoes, and cube. Marinate in french dressing for ½ hour. Combine with other ingredients, and chill thoroughly before serving. Garnish with paprika.

Cooked Dressing.

- ¾ teaspoon salt
 - ½ tablespoon sugar
 - 2 tablespoons flour
 - 1½ tablespoons butter
 - 1 teaspoon dry mustard
 - 2 egg yolks
 - ¾ cup milk
 - ¼ cup vinegar
- Combine dry ingredients. Add egg yolks, blending carefully, then mix in butter, milk and vinegar slowly. Cook until thick in double boiler. Let cool before adding to salad.

ABRAHAM'S INTERCESSORY PRAYER

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 18:23-33. GOLDEN TEXT—The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much.—James 5:16.

Prayer has been the subject of thousands of books of sermons without end; yet how little it is actually practiced. Conferences are held to discuss it, and they attract large audiences, but at prayer meetings we find only a handful.

We are sure that "prayer changes things," and we agree that it is the most powerful force at man's disposal, but we go right ahead trying to change things in our own strength "O what peace we often forfeit, O what needless pain we bear, All because we do not carry Everything to God in prayer!"

Our lesson from the life of Abraham stresses one important phase of prayer—prayer for others.

I. The Nature of Intercessory Prayer.

1. It is a Privilege.

We speak of the burden of prayer, but let us also recall that it is a privilege. Abraham had been honored by a visit from the Lord. The covenant had been renewed and a son promised (Gen. 18:1-16). Then the Lord, because of His friendship with Abraham, shared with him (v. 17) His purpose of judgment on wicked Sodom and Gomorrah.

How glorious to be on such intimate terms with God—to know Him and to know His plans and purposes. Would you enjoy having such fellowship? You may through Jesus Christ and through the study of God's holy Word.

2. It is a Duty. Privilege brings corresponding responsibility. The two men went toward Sodom, but "Abraham stood yet before the Lord" (v. 22), to pray for the wicked cities.

Those who know God's plans are to share them in prayer. Those who have audience with the King of Kings are those to carry the blessed burden of prayer for others as well as for themselves.

Are we praying for our nation, for its President and leaders; for our city, for our church, our families, our children, our friends? The deeper the need, the greater the wickedness, the more we need to pray. If we as Christians do not pray, who will pray?

3. It is a Reality.

Some modern religious leaders would take all reality out of prayer by making it a sort of spiritual exercise which operates only on the soul of the one who prays, giving him new strength and a sense of well being. Undoubtedly the very fellowship with God which is inherent in true prayer is spiritually beneficial; but prayer is objective, not merely subjective. It deals with nations and cities, men and women, problems and sin and sorrow. It concerns every need of man—physical, mental and spiritual.

II. The Spirit of Intercessory Prayer.

1. Unselfish. Abraham had the assured blessing and promises of God. The cities were wicked and unrepentant. If he had taken the attitude of many church folk, he would have said, "It serves them right. Wipe out their wickedness." But Abraham prayed for them in complete unselfishness. Can those who know the spirit of Christ be selfish in prayer?

2. Bold and Courageous.

Note the reverent boldness with which Abraham pleaded the cause of the cities. God is not displeased to have us press our cause in prayer; in fact, the Bible reveals that He frequently answers according to the earnestness with which men pray. He has always honored and used men of holy courage.

3. Persistent.

No one—not even God—likes a "quitter." Remember those who were heard for their importunity? (Luke 11:8; 18:1-8). Many pray like the little boys on Halloween. They ring the bell and run. Abraham persisted; fifty, forty-five, forty, thirty, twenty, ten—perhaps he should not have stopped even there. God who saw his persistent faith went the rest of the way and saved the only four who could be saved, and even of those, three were infected with the wickedness of the place.

"Let us not be weary in well doing" as we pray, "for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not" (Gal. 6:9).

III. The Result of Intercessory Prayer.

God had to destroy the cities. There are some kinds of violent infection which must be destroyed by fire for the sake of others. Out of the destruction, however, God did deliver the righteous Lot.

God hears and answers prayers. That is not only the testimony of His Word, but of countless Christian men and women down through the ages even to our day. The one who would deny the efficacy of prayer must face an overwhelming flood of authenticated answers.

YES, your youngster is ready for hours and hours of play when you make her this cunning suit—in a stout durable cotton which "can take it!" We suggest seersucker, poplin, denim or broadcloth. The suit is trimmed down to essentials only—a topper which can be worn tucked in as a shirt, or as a jacket—overalls and an abbreviated romper suit for sun worship. The last named carries a sail boat decoration which can be applied as a bright patch of contrasting color.

Pattern No. 8166 is in sizes for 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 year olds. Size 2 years set takes 3½ yards 35 or 39-inch material. 1¾ yards ric rac to trim rompers.

Wrap-Over Frock.

WHAT a comfort, at the end of a hard day to slip into a cool, utterly simple frock like this one—shown in Pattern No. 8164. You'll find it a practical and attractive frock for the hurried morning breakfast—in fact it is a jewel in the wardrobe

NEW MATERIAL STOPS BULLETS FROM 25 YARDS

CLEVELAND.— Sand bags always have been considered good protection against bullets and flying shrapnel, but a Cleveland building supply Company thinks it has developed something more substantial and durable—blocks made of what they call "teleconcrete".

To test the claims Police, safety and civic officials and coast guardsmen adjourned to the company's plant and blazed away with 30-30 rifles and service revolvers.

The idea was to prove that a wall of the block laid around vital electric transformers and generators, would be more durable than sand bags as a protection against sabotage throughout the country.

None of the bullets pierced the block, even when they were well grouped. One wall was mortared. The other was simply blocks piled one upon the other. The effect of the bullets was the same on either wall.

The test walls were 16 inches thick, 12 feet by 8 feet. The core holes of the blocks were filled with sand. A Marlin 30-30 rifle was fired repeatedly as 75, 50 and 25 yards. No bullet penetrated more than 10 inches. Police pistol shots merely chipped the wall. A city detective stepped up with a 35 Remington rifle, he got no different results.

Three employees of Cincinnati, O., plant lived within three blocks of each other and drove 36 miles to work each day. Each saved 8,200 miles of driving a year by pooling his car through a Labor-Management committee.

MEN IN TRAINING

portation—Air, Highway, Railroad, Water; Geophysicists; Industrial Managers; Mathematicians; Meteorologists; Naval Architects; Personnel Administrators; Physicists (including astronomers); Psychologists, and Statisticians.

The National Headquarters Bulletin pointed out that all of these critical occupations require highly specialized periods of training of two years or more that all these occupations are needed in activities, which are necessary to war production and essential to support of the Nation's war effort, and that there are serious shortages of persons "trained, qualified or skilled" to engage in them.

Specifying that a student who is in training and preparation for one of these scientific and special fields may not be considered by his local board for occupational deferment "until the close, or approximately the close, of his second or sophomore year in a recognized college or university," the bulletin stated:

"There are many registrants who are in training and preparation to acquire the qualification or skill to engage in these critical occupations. Normally the period of training and preparation to acquire the necessary qualification or skill in these scientific and specialized fields extends over a period of four academic years in a recognized academic, professional or technical college or university.

"A registrant who is in training and preparation for one of these scientific and specialized fields may be considered for occupational deferment at the close, or approximately at the close of his second, or sophomore year in a recognized college or university if he is pursuing a course of study upon the successful completion of which he will have acquired the necessary training.

"When a registrant has completed his training and preparation in a recognized college or university and has acquired a high degree of training, in one of these specialized fields, such registrant should then be given the opportunity to become engaged in the practice of his profession in an activity necessary to war production or essential to the support of the war effort. In many instances following graduation from a recognized college or university, a certain period of time will be required in the placing of trained personnel in an essential activity, it is only logical that his deferment should continue until he has an opportunity to use his training to the best interest of the nation. Accordingly, following graduation a registrant should be considered for further occupational classification for a period of not to exceed sixty days in order that he may have an opportunity to engage in a activity necessary to war production or essential to the support of the war effort, provided that during such period the registrant is making an honest and diligent effort to become so engaged."

Equipment distributed in one Army Corps Area in one year includes 100,000,000 articles of clothing and footwear, 2,000,000 sheets, 1,000,000 blankets, 60,000 tents, 400,000 comforters, 2,000,000 dishes and 2,000,000 pieces of tableware.

Jester Opens His Campaign Friday Night

CORSICANA, Texas, August 5.—Opening his runoff battle for the State Railroad Commission, Beauford Jester will discuss the importance of his campaign in a radio speech to a statewide audience from his home town, Corsicana, at 9:30 p. m. Friday, August 7. The talk will be carried over a fifteen station network.

"Texas oil and transportation are vitally important to our war effort," Mr. Jester said. "Most of the oil that will fly our planes, power our mechanized divisions, and fuel the ships of America and her Allies will come from Texas. There must be no bottlenecks in Texas' oil production and transportation facilities.

"The people of Texas need a war veteran and a fully qualified Railroad Commissioner who will see to it that every industry regulated by the commission can and does function at its maximum in our war effort," Mr. Jester declared.

A native of Corsicana Jester is a graduate of Texas University and served from 1932 to 1935 as chairman of the university's board of regents. He interrupted his law studies to go overseas in 1917 as an infantry captain in the 90th Division. He saw action in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives. Returning to the law after the Armistice, he completed his studies and has practiced in Corsicana ever since. He has taught a Sunday School class in his Methodist Church ever since 1924, and since 1935 has been a member of the State Advisory Board of the National Youth Administration.

LOBSTERMEN PRIZE CRABS AS JAP SHIPMENTS STOP

JONESPORT, Me. — The war has brought the lowly crab into its own in tiny lobster communities along the Maine Coast.

Formerly, lobstermen would toss crabs which had infested their pots back into the ocean. Now, with the war stopping shipments from Japan, the procedure is being reversed and in some cases lobsters are being taken only if one happens to get caught with a crab.

Meat from the Maine variety of crab—known as the Cold Water Region Crab—is said to be more delicious and nutritious than the South Atlantic and Pacific varieties.

It takes two flat cars to carry the 65-foot barrel for a 16-inch battleship rifle.

we are proud of the wreck. For gas we milk the Sea Goose and I hope the censor doesn't go and tell on us. There is a modern movie house in Karachi and we see some fairly late pictures. They serve drinks before the show and in the middle of it they take an intermission for drinks and candy whether you like it or not.

The town is filthy, one good hotel, one or two passable eating places. Native beggars swarm like flies. And always one runs afoul of the holy cows which roam the streets unimpeded. The native one horse shays and ox carts, with driving on the left side of the street with right hand steering—well try it some time!

There are no women here except the natives, some of whom are very pretty even in that bed sheet and parlor curtain get up they wrap themselves in. And I have begun to notice that with every trip I make into town the gals look a shade lighter, must be the hot sun!

I found a small organ in town like our little Esty, which I bought for 45 rupees. It folds up into a small box and can be carried easily. We have fun with it in the barracks. Sometimes I carry it on a trip and play for the passengers. Last trip we had such lousy visibility we just let "George" do the flying while we put on a 15-minute show on the ship radio. An organ recital by Prof. Bonnell!

All announcements were spontaneous and maybe dirty—the songs were choice; and the boys all along the line for several hundred miles picked up the program.

I only hope we can get a leave sometime soon, this country is kinda hard on the fellows.

Always,

"...A SHARP ENEMY ATTACK WAS REPULSED DURING THE NIGHT..."

TODAY'S WAR communiques have a familiar ring to the men of Central Power and Light. For years, they've been fighting hurricanes, storms, floods, lightning and other natural enemies of good electric service.

When the real war came, they were ready. Ready for day and night duty. Ready to keep the lines hot with the precious electricity that powers air fields, training camps and war industries throughout South and Southwest Texas.

Demands for quick delivery of large blocks of electric power have been unusually heavy upon CPL in recent months, both for military and war industry needs. Yet, your electric service men have met these demands promptly. No military project has been delayed one moment for lack of ample low-cost power in this area.

Your electric service men knew the job because they learned it the hard way—the American way—from the ground up.

That's true right along the line. Many CPL managers and responsible employees began by digging holes, reading meters and climbing poles. Their initiative kept them climbing. Experienced business management, built upon the savings of thousands of Texans have given this area Electric Service equal to the best in the world. It's the reason South and Southwest Texas folks enjoy cold milk and hot coffee, clean rugs and clothes, accurate time and news electrically—all for about a dime a day.

Only a free people could have accomplished that.
