INTRACOASTAL WATERWAY TO BE IMPROVED

PILOTING

A score or more of Rockport auto owners have full gasoline tanks today, and one filling station did a rushing business Wednesday night when rumor spread that gas rationing would go on during the night. It would be a good idea for motorists to keep their tanks comfortably full of gasoline from here on, so they won't be caught short when rationing hits.

How the rumor originated is not known, but it spread rapidly by word of mouth. In Houston cars were reported in lines, bumper to bumper for blocks in the vicinity of many filling stations.

Gas rationing will be a severe blow to Texas business, industry and the state's financial structure. It is estimated that the State will lose approximately $1,000,000 a day in tax revenue through rationing. This will materially affect counties and schools. Texas does not have the adequate transportation facilities of the east and rationing will affect the schedules of thousands of workers and many thousands more who depend on "getting about" in cars to make a living.

Not that it is news when he does it, but Charlie Cleveland went out this past week and in a short time got his limit in doves. It is surprising that he didn't top his dove hunt off with thirty or forty big trout.

Oscar that monstrosity that for years has set atop Mills Wharf with either gun or fishing pole to indicate whether it was time to go fishing or shooting, has another "enemy" who would do away with him. During the storm Oscar went but survived. Kay Bynum, former Pilot reporter, suggested that the dummy be done away with through a viking's funeral. (Personally we think old Oscar is a landmark and that he should be re-instated). Here is a letter from Kansas City "hoping, that Oscar is gone."

THE PILOT:

My sister, Mrs. J. H. Mills, sent me a copy of your paper about the storm. I have been there so much it is very interesting to look over the paper. I was very much interested in the article about "Oscar", for I was one of those who got a scare from that "Oscar".

I was visiting at Mills Wharf last March. On returning home one night, I found "Oscar" sitting in a rocking chair in my bedroom.

So here's hoping "Oscar" is gone. Glenn Mills was responsible for all of that.

Very truly,
MRS. ETHEL M. COX
Kansas City, Mo.

It gave us a great deal of pleasure this past week-end to greet a number of old friends from Gonzales. The group came down for fishing. Included were Fred Misenholder, J. E. Newberry, Arthur Vogel, Fred Scheske, J. Q. Short, and Marvin Renschel. Another group including, Mrs. Eugene Menking, Mrs. Dewey McKnight and Mrs. Drew Graves came in Monday. They visited Mrs. Simon Lee Sorenson, sister of Mrs. Menking.

Dr. W. T. Beard Dies In S. A. Hospital

Dr. William Thomas Bard, 57, San Antonio dentist died in a San Antonio hospital Monday and was buried there Wednesday. Dr. Beard was known here and was a stepson of Ed Rand, who owns beach property in Rockport.

IT JUST FIGURES OUT THAT WAY

John Sorenson supplies the following interesting statistical study on Allied and Axis war leaders. If you take the birth dates of Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini, along with the date each went into office, the time each has served and the age of each and add the dates of each the totals will be the same to-wit:

	Roosevelt	Churchill	Hitler	Mussolini	Stalin
Born	1882	1874	1889	1883	1879
Office	1933	1940	1933	1922	1924
Age	60	68	53	59	63
Time	9	2	9	20	18
Total	3884	3884	3884	3884	3884

Work Going Forward On Bass Boat Works At Fulton

Power Lines For New Boat Works Approved

Mill And Assembly Bldg. Erected; Dredge Work Done On Harbor

Work is progressing rapidly on the new Perry R. Bass Boat Works at Fulton, with a crew of a score or more men at work on various phases of building and construction. The woodwork mill and assembly building is nearing completion. Dredging for harbor improvement is underway.

The new boat works is being built to construct fireboats for the U. S. Coast Guard, according to Perry R. Bass.

"We have received government approval for power extension" Bass said. Work is underway putting in power lines to the new works, which will be the second boat building concern in Aransas county to construct boats for the government.

The new boats will be equipped for fighting fires along waterfronts where boats are kept, or where warehouses need fireproofing. The recent burning of the Normandie is said to be responsible for the government's decision to increase the number of fire boats.

Registration For Red Cross Ends Oct. 1

Miss Kathryn B. Monroe, director of hurricane operations for the Red Cross, announced today that registrations for assistance will close here on October 1.

"Anyone needing Red Cross assistance is urged to get in touch with me before that date." R. T. VanMetre, case worker here, said today.

A. C. Glass, banker; B. S. Fox, county judge; G. M. Hooper, grocer; Fred Diedrich, carpenter; and A. F. Dervage, tourist cottage operator of Fulton, were named last week as an advisory committee by Miss Florence A. Delaney, area director. The committee will meet one a week to consider cases.

At their meeting last week the committee approved awards totaling $956.00 for material, rebuilding and other rehabilitation work. It was announced that emergency operations here totaled $109.00.

Hugh Morrison New Manager Jackson Sales

Hugh Morrison, operator of Morrison's boat house, will become manager for the Jackson Sales Co. here on October 1, it was announced today. Ernest Silbersen and Ted Little now with the company are to relinquish connections on the first.

Silbersen is to go into the armed forces of the country and Little is leaving the company to look after other interests. Norvell Jackson, head of the company, has been in the army for several months.

Hatching Trouble for Nazis in Desert

Lieut. Gen. B. L. Montgomery, commander of the British Eighth Army, is shown here as he discussed a tactical situation facing the 22nd armored brigade facing the Nazis in the western desert. Under Montgomery's brilliant leadership Allied troops stopped General Rommel's drive towards Alexandria and Cairo and drove the Nazis back to the starting point of their last attack.

Shipyard To Have Four Basketball Teams; Need For Town Team

High School Football To Have Scrimmage On Friday Afternoons

Jim T. Mobley, acting school superintendent, reports that there may be quite a bit of inter-city athletic activity. The school is encouraging the organization of basketball teams and Mobley states that workers at Rice Bros. shipyard have organization of four teams underway.

Members of the shipyard teams have been practicing after work during this week and several good games are in prospect. Mobley urges that a town team or two be organized to enter into the competition.

Although there is no regular schedule of football games, the acting superintendent said that it may be possible to arrange an out of town game or two during the season if transportation can be secured for the squad. He said that there will be scrimmages between the school teams each week. First of the games at the school will be Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Rev. Pollard Attends Presbytery In San Antonio

Rev. T. H. Pollard, pastor of the Presbyterian Church here, left Tuesday to attend the regular fall business meeting of the Presbytery of Western Texas in San Antonio. He is expected home today (Thursday), and will conduct his regular church services here Sunday.

Byron Bushardt Buy Hunt's Cafe

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Bushardt have purchased the Hunt's Cafe from Mrs. Emma Hunt, taking charge of the cafe today. The new cafe owners here formerly operated a cafe and hotel in the hill country at Burnet.

Mrs. Bushardt said that the cafe here would be redecorated and painted on the inside as soon as workmen may be secured to do the work.

United Carbon Co. Building Second Pipeline To Plant

The United Carbon Company is now completing a second pipeline to its Aransas County plant, according to reports here. The line is said to tie into a gas pipeline near Refugio.

Carlton Weaver of the carbon company was in Rockport Tuesday securing rights of way for completion of the line.

Coast Guard Clarifies 'No Gun' Rumor

Ens. Sneering Says No Federal Regulations On Guns In Small Boats

Duck hunters will not be bothered with federal regulations regarding carrying their guns out in small boats for shooting, according to a statement this week by Ens. E. R. Sneeringer, U. S. C. G., captain of the Port of Corpus Christi.

Ensign Sneeringer issued the statement to clarify false information that has been current in some localities that the Coast Guard would not permit persons to carry guns in small boats. His statement follows:

"No regulations have been issued by this office, or have been authorized to be issued by any Captain of the Port Office, forbidding the carrying of guns in small boats. The only regulations issued from this office require that persons carrying firearms on vessels in the inland waters of this district shall be required to comply with state and municipal laws covering such firearms."

San Antonian Plans Year On Fishing Here

Sterling Freeborn has waited and planned for a whole year to come to Rockport and go fishing with his brother, S. M. Freeborn, owner of Forest Park Cottages. The San Antonio man, an employee of Duncan Field, arrived Monday well armed with fishing tackle, birth certificates, passes—and a lot of anticipation.

"I brought everything I thought I might need," Freeborn said. "I have been waiting and planning this trip for a year and didn't want to be cheated out of fishing after I got here."

The Freeborn brothers accompanied by their cousin, Virgil Dowden of New York City, made their first trip out after trout Tuesday and were rewarded with a nice string of forty speckled beauties.

City Sewer System May Be Re-Opened

City officials expressed hope this week that the sewer project may be re-opened by the government after an investigation of its need here.

A group of officials from the Navy's Engineering Department at New Orleans were here Tuesday investigating the project's relation to the navy's war effort here. They were W. C. Lefebvre, Lieut. G. A. Huggins and Lieut. L. C. Parks.

Jefferson D. Harris, F. W. A. construction engineer, and James Aikin, WPA engineer, were also in the city for consultation on the project.

W. N. Hooper Home Reported Turned Over To U. S. O.

According to information reaching Rockport from Houston, the W. N. Hooper summer home overlooking Aransas Bay has been turned over to the U. S. O. for use by that organization for the duration of the war.

Pat Mixon, local USO chairman said that he had no information on the reported loan of the home for USO purposes.

Mr. and Mrs. Hooper are said to have contributed two private airplanes to the army for training purposes and two boats to the navy.

Lieut. Kyle Vick, son of Mrs. Hooper by a former marriage, is reported to be a member of the transport ferry command.

Six Million To Be Spent On Canal

Engineers Making Calculations Here This Week On Canal Work

In a move to keep shipping of vital war materials "inside" the government is going to spend $6,485,000 this fiscal year widening and deepening the Intracoastal Canal from Corpus Christi to St. Marks, La.

During the past week two groups of engineers have been in Rockport, working out of here on the water to compute the amount of work necessary to meet specifications for the canal's improvement.

Approximately 30 representatives of the Rio Grande Valley area, meeting with C. S. E. Holland, president of the Intracoastal Canal Association, started laying plans for extending the Intracoastal canal from Corpus Christi to the Valley area.

President Holland said after the meeting that the association hopes to have funds enough on hand during the next fiscal year to start the extension project.

Valley representatives were present from Harlingen, San Benito, Brownsville and Raymondville. Plans were launched for a convention of the association to be held in Harlingen late in October, the exact date not being set.

The association's president said work will begin soon on widening and deepening the Intracoastal Canal from Corpus Christi to St. Marks, La., using funds available for rivers and harbors work to be re-allocated from other projects.

It was pointed out that $6,485,000, can be spent this fiscal year, and that more funds will be needed for the widening and deepening project during the next fiscal year.

Red Cross Will Carry Messages To Missing Men

Local People Should Contact A. C. Glass To Send Messages To War Prisoners

Anyone here who has relatives and friends missing in action, or who are prisoners of war, in the Far East are urged to contact A. C. Glass, Red Cross Chapter chairman, to file messages to them. The message will be carried on the exchange ship, "Gripsholm" soon to sail on its second voyage.

The procedure for those wishing to send messages is:

First, the message is to be filed with the local chapter of the Red Cross on Form 1616; second, complete information as to name, number, rank, military unit and last known address must be given; third, where possible relatives, relatives and friends should join in sending one message; and fourth, the message must be confined to 25 words.

The American Red Cross announces that these messages will be mailed on the "Gripsholm", addressed to the International Red Cross delegate in Japan, who will make every effort to see that they are delivered. The Red Cross can give no assurance of delivery, but this method has been adopted in agreement with the State, Navy, War, and Post Office departments, because the Japanese government has not yet furnished official lists of the majority of American prisoners in the Far East.

Miss Mary Carr, Former Resident Dies

Miss Mary Carr, who was a former resident of Rockport, died recently in Lakeport, Calif., following an acute attack of appendicitis. She was employed here a number of years by Roy Jackson, who conducted a fish business here.

Second-Class Teaching Certificates Will Be Issued After Oct. 1

The teacher shortage situation has become acute, and State Superintendent, L. A. Woods, has authorized a special examination for second-class certificates to be given Oct. 16 and 17.

High school graduates and other qualified people who are at least eighteen years of age are encouraged to begin preparation at once for these tests. All applicants should register with Judge B. S. Fox by October 1st.

Coast Guard Clarifies 'No Gun' Rumor

Ens. Sneeringer Says No Federal Regulations On Guns In Small Boats

Duck hunters will not be bothered with federal regulations regarding carrying their guns out in small boats for shooting, according to a statement this week by Ens. E.
R. Sneeringer, U. S. C. G., captain of the Port of Corpus Christi.
Ensign Sneeringer issued the statement to clarify false information that has been current in some localities that the Coast Guard would not permit persons to carry guns in small boats. His statement follows:

"No regulations have been issued by this office, or have been authorized to be issued by any Captain of the Port Office, forbidding the carrying of guns in small boats. The only regulations issued from this office require that perering such firearms."

San Antonian Plans Year On Fishing Here

Sterling Freeborn has waited and planned for a whole year to come to Rockport and go fishing with his brother, S. M. Freeborn, owner of Forest Park Cottages. The San Antonio man, an employee of Duncan Field, arrived Monday well armed with fishing tackle, birth certificates, passes—and a lot of anticipation.

"I brought everything I thought I might need," Freeborn said. "I have been waiting and planning this trip for a year and didn't want to be cheated out of fishing after I got here."
The Freeborn brothers accompanied by their cousin Virgil Dow-first trip out after trout Tuesday and were rewarded with a nice string of forty speckled beauties.

City Sewer System May Be Re-Opened

City officials expressed hope this week that the sewer project may be re-opened by the government after an investigation of its need here.

A group of officials from the Navy's Engineering Department at New Orleans were here Tuesday investigating the project's relation to the navy's war effort here.
They were W. C. Lefebvre, Lieut. G.
A. Huggins and Lieut. L. C. Parks.
Jefferson D. Harris, F. W. A. construction engineer, and James Aikin, WPA engineer, were also in the city for consultation on the project.

W. N. Hooper Home Reported Turned Over To U. S. O.

According to information reaching Rockport from Houston, the W. N. Hooper summer home overlooking Aransas Bay has been turned over to the U. S. O. for use by that organization for the duration of the war.

Pat Mixon, local USO chairman said that he had no information on the reported loan of the home for USO purposes.
Mr. and Mrs. Hooper are said to have contributed two private airplanes to the army for training purposes and two boats to the navy.

Lieut. Kyle Vick, son of Mrs.
Hooper by a former marriage, is reported to be a member of the transport ferry command.

Early Payment Of Taxes Will Bring Discount

First Half of Split Tax Payments May Be Made In Oct. and Nov.

Taxpayers are again allowed discount of 3 percent 2 percent and 1 percent if taxes are paid during October, November and December, respectively. Property and poll taxes for 1942 are due October 1st and can be paid at any time between October and February, however, no discount is allowed if paid in January, 1943.

After February 1st, 1943, unpaid property tax incurs interest and penalty and considered delinquent after July 1st, subject to suit for collection.
The first one-half of total property tax can be paid during October and November, but no discount allowed. The second-half can be paid on or before June 30th after which date it becomes delinquent.
This is an aid to taxpayers who are unable to pay their total tax in one payment.

All State tax, amounting to 75c per $100 valuation, is deducted from a homestead. The home owners to pay only the County rate of $1.15 per $100 valuation, and the school tax rate, depending upon the school district in which the property is located. The 1942 tax valuation for Aransas County is $4,291,575.00.
In 1941, it was $4,669,442.00 and for 1940 it was $4,592,100.00.

Second-Class Teaching Certificates Will Be Issued After Oct. 1

The teacher shortage situation has become acute, and State Superintendent, L. A. Woods, has authorized a special examination for second-class certificates to be given Oct. 16 and 17.

High school graduates and other qualified people who are at least eighteen years of age are encouraged to begin preparation at once for these tests. All applicants should register with Judge B. S.

Six Million To Be Spent On Canal

Engineers Making Calculations Here This Week On Canal Work

In a move to keep shipping of vital war materials "inside" the government is going to spend $6, 485,000 this fiscal year widening and deepening the Intracoastal
Canal from Corpus Christi to St.
Marks, La.

During the past week two groups of engineers have been in Rockport, working out of here on the water to compute the amount of work necessary to meet specifications for the canal's improvement.

Approximately 30 representatives of the Rio Grande Valley area, meeting with C. S. E. Holland, president of the Intracoastal Canal Association, started laying plans for extending the Intracoastal canal from Corpus Christi to the Valley area.

President Holland said after the meeting that the association hopes to have funds enough on hand during the next fiscal year to start the extension project.

Valley representatives were present from Harlingen, San Denito, Brownsville and Raymondville. Plans were launched for a convention of the association to be held in Harlingen late in October, the exact date not being set.

The association's president said work will begin soon on widening
and deepening the Intracoastal
Canal from Corpus Christi to St.
Marks, La., using funds available for rivers and harbors work to be re-allocated from other projects.
It was pointed out that $6,485,
000, can be spent this fiscal year, and that more funds will be needed for the widening and deepening project during the next fiscal year.

Red Cross Will Carry Messages To Missing Men

Local People Should Contact A. C. Glass To Send Messages To War Prisoners

Anyone here who has relatives and friends missing in action, or who are prisoners of war, in the Far East are urged to contact A.
C. Glass, Red Cross Chapter chairman, to file messages to them. The message will be carried on the exchange ship, "Gripsholm" soon to sail on its second voyage.

The procedure for those wishing to send messages is:
First, the message is to be filed with the local chapter of the Red Cross on Form 1616; second, complete information as to name, number, rank, military unit and last known address must be given;
third, where possible relatives, relatives and friends should join in sending one message; and fourth, the message must be confined to 25 words.

The American Red Cross announces that these messages will be mailed on the "Gripsholm", addressed to the International Red Cross delegate in Japan, who will make every effort to see that they are delivered. The Red Cross can give no assurance of delivery, but this method has been adopted in agreement with the State, Navy, War, and Post Office departments, because the Japanese government has not yet furnished official lists of the majority of American prisoners in the Far East.

Miss Mary Carr, Former Resident Dies

Miss Mary Carr, who was a former resident of Rockport, died recently in Lakeport, Calif., following an acute attack of appendicitis. She was employed here a number of years by Roy Jackson, who conducted a fish business here.

IT JUST FIGURES OUT THAT WAY

John Sorenson supplies the following interesting statistical study on Allied and Axis war leaders. If you take the birth dates of Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini, along with the date each went into office, the time each has served and the age of each and add the dates of each the totals will be the same to-wit:

	Roosevelt	Churchill	Hitler	Mussolini	Stalin
Born	1882	1874	1889	1853	1879
Office	1933	1940	1933	1922	1924
Age	60	68	53	59	63

U. S. Transport 'Wakefield' Burns at Sea

The former luxury liner, Manhattan, now a naval transport ship and renamed the Wakefield, caught fire and was severely damaged at sea. More than 1,600 passengers and crew members were removed without loss of life by U. S. warships in the convoy. In the upper left the Wakefield is shown at sea, and at right is its commander, H. G. Bradbury. In lower left, passengers and crewmen are shown jammed on rear decks awaiting rescue. Notice the rope nets which were used to climb to the deck of rescue vessel. (Navy photos.)

Unsung Heroes of Medical Corps Play Vital Role

One of the most ticklish jobs which men of the U. S. army medical corps are called upon to undertake is the removal of wounded men from the inside of tanks. The method of this removal may mean life or death to the casualty. At the left you see trainees from the medical corps field service school at Carlisle, Pa., engaged in the task. The man has been successfully removed through the tank turret and is being placed on a stretcher atop the tank. At right you see a demonstration of a method of transforming a pair of skis into a smooth-running litter for transporting a wounded man over the snow.

Commando Tactics at Harding Field, La.

Soldiers are undergoing a special training course in Commando tactics at Harding Field, La. Here we see a soldier about to leave the jumping tower and dive into a blazing pool of water. The soldiers are taught to swim with a modified breast stroke, splashing water in front of them to protect them from the flames. The tower from which they leap is 20 feet high, the approximate distance of a transport's deck from the water. In case of a torpedoing, the soldiers would have to dive into the flaming water with their full packs and swim to shore.

Mexico's President Makes Wartime Report

Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, president of the United States of Mexico, makes his annual report before the congress of Mexico. This report—his first wartime capitulation of the situation—was particularly important and was addressed to the rest of the American continent as well as to Mexico. Thousands of distinguished guests heard him in person.

Laugh Is on Axis

The Axis boasted that a floating drydock they had sunk at an Egyptian port would never be raised. Capt. Edward Ellsberg, U.S.N., confounded them by raising the drydock in record time. He is shown here in an official auto in Egypt.

Flag in Solomons

Old Glory is raised over the embattled Solomon islands, eight months to the day after Pearl Harbor. This is the first territory that has been taken from the Japs since the sneak attack.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Yank Fliers and Subs Blast Jap Ships In Battles for Supremacy in Pacific; Rubber Czar Speeds Synthetic Output; Fuel Oil Rationing Covers 30 States

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

William M. Jeffers (right), newly appointed rubber administrator, confers with War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson concerning problems to be solved in the nation-wide rubber conservation program which he heads. The former president of the Union Pacific railroad called for the co-operation of all Americans in making the program effective. Task number one for Mr. Jeffers is to step up the production of synthetic rubber and increase the capacity of new plants making it.

PACIFIC FRONT: Jap Ships Smashed

The Japs got a taste of American air and undersea power when aircraft and submarines struck at widely separated points on the far-flung Pacific battlefield and destroyed or damaged 18 enemy ships.

In the Solomon islands, American bombers attacking the enemy base at Retaka bay, north of the American airfield at Guadalcanal, damaged two cruisers and destroyed vital enemy shore installations.

In the Aleutians heavy army bombers and long range fighters inflicted severe damage. Included in the American score were two mine sweepers sunk, three large cargo vessels damaged, three submarines hit and trapped and "several small craft" damaged. In addition the U. S. raiders set fire to storehouses and supply dumps ashore, destroyed six enemy planes and killed or wounded approximately 500 Jap troops.

Elsewhere in the far western Pacific, submarines sank four ships and damaged four others. The successful attacks on these eight ships raised to 107 the total of Japanese vessels of all types which the navy has reported sunk or damaged by American submarine attacks since the outbreak of war.

FUEL OIL RATIONING: Forecasts 65 Degrees

Home owners in the 30 eastern and midwestern states affected by the WPB's fuel oil rationing order were told by Price Administrator Leon Henderson that domestic allotments would be pegged to a daytime temperature of 65 degrees under average weather conditions.

Approximately 3,140,000 oil-burning residential units in the rationed area will be affected by the order. The plan is designed to reduce consumption 25 per cent in the designated area.

Mr. Henderson said the amount of oil allowed each heating unit would be based largely on the floor space and the amount of fuel used last year. In order to obtain coupon rationing sheets, householders will be required to furnish local rationing boards with detailed information concerning the dwelling and furnace.

DRAFT: Fathers or Boys?

Congress was given its choice between drafting 1,500,000 youths of 18 and 19 years of age or the same number of married men with dependent families by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director.

In a statement before the house committee investigating national defense migration, Hershey said: "We are going to get 18 or 19-year-olds, or 1,500,000 men out of the family." He added that the war department has certain reasons for wanting younger men and that industry would be disturbed less by taking the youths.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

LONDON: Home guards throughout England are to have live ammunition for training with the weapons they will use in the event of invasion, a war office communique said. Within the next few months, millions of rounds of ammunition will be released for rifles, Sten guns, Lewis and Browning machine guns and Spigot mortars with which home guards have been trained.

RUBBER CZAR: Tough Job Ahead

Blunt, energetic Rubber Administrator William M. Jeffers had a big job on his hands and he knew it. War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson knew it too, for when he announced Jeffers' appointment, he called it "one of the toughest" assignments in the whole war effort.

As recommended by the President's special inquiry committee, Mr. Jeffers was given full authority over every phase of the rubber program. He was charged with reorganizing, consolidating and administering the government's efforts to alleviate the rubber shortage.

One of the new rubber czar's biggest tasks was to drastically step up synthetic rubber production. The report of the President's committee headed by Bernard M. Baruch had noted that there was "grave danger" that construction delays might hold up the present program as much as four months, leaving rubber supplies next year insufficient even for military needs.

Directness was one of the things Jeffers was noted for as president of the Union Pacific railroad. He showed the same approach when he said:

"This means I have a tough job. But it is also a job for all the people of the United States. The biggest stockpile of rubber we have is on the wheels of our automobiles. I ask every motorist, every truck driver, everybody who runs a car, to remember that he is now the custodian of a material more precious than gold."

RUSSIA: Needs Second Front

As the news from Russian battle sectors had become gloomier, the increasing necessity of an Anglo-American second front in western Europe to take the pressure off the battered Red armies and thus avoid complete disaster was urged by Soviet military experts in London.

Although the eleventh-hour arrival of thousands of crack Siberian troops at Stalingrad had enabled the Reds to throw fresh reserves against Marshal Von Bock's Nazi legions, the over-all picture remained somber. The need for a diversion elsewhere appeared as pressing as ever.

Soviet representatives in London were said to believe that Allied invasion of western Europe would draw 30 to 40 German divisions away from the Russian front.

Meanwhile as massed squadrons of the RAF had continued their smashes at German industrial centers in a "softening up" drive, Production Minister Oliver Lyttleton declared:

"We are approaching the breathless moment when, if Russia holds a few more weeks, the gathering forces of the greatest alliance the world has ever seen will give us the first evidences of victory."

Captain Lyttleton had predicted in July that the next 80 days would be the war's gravest.

LABOR DRAFT: Looms for Millions

Approximately 18,000,000 Americans faced the possibility of being shifted, hired or replaced, as Paul V. McNutt, war manpower director, told congress that the national labor shortage is becoming so acute that compulsory home front service for both men and women appears inevitable.

McNutt said the nation must find 4,000,000 new workers between now and 1943 and that a large number necessarily must come from the ranks of women and of men either too old or too young for military service.

There were 57,000,000 persons employed in June, 1942, he said, and between 62,500,000 and 65,000,000 will be needed by December, 1943. There is no "evidence," he added, that labor reserves—including women, Negroes and other minority groups—would prove adequate.

The manpower chief said he believed "the mere existence of statutory power to force an individual to serve where he is needed" would be all that is necessary to establish a system of labor allocation that would help meet the problem.

FARM MACHINERY: On Ration List

New farm machinery and equipment went on the rationed list when Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard signed an order in Washington. The present order applies to sales for the remainder of 1942. Mr. Wickard said a permanent order would be issued later governing 1943 sales and production.

The curtailment program was made necessary by military requirements, the secretary added.

"The temporary rationing system for 1942," he said, "is designed primarily to control the distribution of the limited supply of farm machinery and equipment now on hand and to assure its greatest possible contribution toward meeting the goals of our food-for-freedom program."

BRAZIL: War in Earnest

Brazil showed that it meant business in its war against the Axis when President Getulio Vargas ordered general mobilization. With a population of 41,000,000, this nation represented the largest source of untapped military power in the Western hemisphere.

President Vargas' military decree ordered all Brazilians to take home-defense training. It instructed the government ministers and all other federal, state and municipal agencies to take measures dealing with military, economic, scientific and labor measures necessary to defense.

GETULIO VARGAS
... 41,000,000 to be tapped.

Already in force was compulsory military service for males between the ages of 21 and 45. Men between the ages of 21 and 30 were placed in the "first line" with all others placed in the "second line." Action against Axis submarines was being steadily taken by the Brazilian air force. Internment of Axis fifth-columnists had been accomplished and Axis-owned banks, insurance companies and other enterprises had been closed.

MORE CHICKENS: To Supplement Meat

More chickens in every pot were forecast when Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard called on poultry raisers to produce 200,000,000 extra fowl this fall and winter to help counteract a prospective meat shortage for civilian use.

National poultry organizations estimated that 600,000,000 additional pounds of poultry could be produced for consumers if 200,000,000 birds were reared to a weight of three pounds each. Secretary Wickard was assured that poultrymen and farmers, utilizing existing brooder houses and other production equipment not normally used to capacity during the season would participate in the program.

MIDWAY AFTERMATH: Taps for Yorktown

Part of the price America paid for victory over the Japs in the Battle of Midway became known when the navy announced that the aircraft carrier Yorktown had been sunk after the battle as a result of Japanese bombs and torpedo attacks.

Although it had been known that the 19,900 ton carrier was put out of action during the battle, the actual loss of the vessel had been a closely kept secret.

Are You Needlessly Suffering Constipation?

Many people think that constipation is "one of those things" you must put up with. That the only thing you can do is take a purge or cathartic—and hope it doesn't come soon again. How foolish that is if you, like millions of others, have the ordinary kind of constipation that's due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. Kellogg's All-Bran is probably just what you need! This crisp, delicious cereal has the "bulk"-forming properties your intestines need to function "regularly"! It gets at the cause of your trouble and corrects it—helps you get back to normal, easy elimination. Eat All-Bran regularly, drink plenty of water, and help free yourself from constipation. All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, it's wise to see a doctor.

GHOST PLANE

By ARTHUR STRINGER

W. N. U. SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Although he suspects him of being up to something, Alan Slade has agreed to fly "Doctor" Frayne to the Anawotto country to find the breeding ground of the trumpeter swan. Slade and his partner, Cruger, have had a hard time keeping Norland Airways going in the face of stiff competition from the larger and better equipped companies, and Frayne has paid them enough to buy another plane, a Lockheed. While in town on an errand, Slade meets Lynn Morlock, daughter of the "flying Padre," and goes with her to help a flyer named Slim Tumstead, who has been wounded in a fight. Tumstead has already lost his license for drinking, and is little better than an outlaw, so Alan is not pleased to discover that he knows about Frayne's expedition and about the new Lockheed. When he leaves Lynn, Alan goes down to the dock to watch Frayne and his assistant, Karnell, load their supplies on the plane. His suspicions are again aroused by their equipment. Now, that night, a prowler has just approached Cassidy, watchman for Norland Airways.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER V

Cassidy's pipe fell to the boards as that shadow confronted him.

"Stick 'em up," was the curt and altogether unexpected command. "Quick!"

Cassidy, instead of obeying, reached for his fallen pipe and fell back a step or two. He noticed, for the first time, how the lower part of the stranger's face was covered by a handkerchief.

"What is this, anyway?" he demanded, doing his best to decipher the face above the masking handkerchief. But a second band of white that showed under the stranger's lowered hat brim kept him from seeing much of the face.

"Don't talk," said the stranger. "Turn around. Now walk ahead of me into that shed."

Cassidy's hesitation was brief. It seemed foolish to argue against that little round "O" of black metal which at the twitch of a finger could spit death into his body.

"Stop there," was the next command. "Now put your hands behind you."

He could feel the sudden bite of copper wire being twisted about his crossed wrists.

"Stand closer to that upright." He saw the blink of a flashlight as the stranger caught up a strand of mooring line. Before he quite realized the meaning of that movement Cassidy felt the rope swing about his body. He could feel the coils grow tighter as the rope ends were quickly knotted together.

Slade, flying north with his two passengers, found something consoling in the quietness which his engine hum merely seemed to accentuate. It was pretty lonely-looking country they were traversing. Yet there was, he felt, consolation in loneliness like that. It gave you time to think things out and explore your own mind. And it made you less dependent on outsiders.

After refueling at Frenchman Forks the Viking-eyed pilot saw a torn drift of clouds lower his ceiling and a freshening wind sweep down out of the northeast. If his passengers understood that lowered ceiling they ventured no comment on it. Slade was lightly casual as he gunned the motor and taxied out to clear water. His eyes steadied as he nosed into the wind, slapped a run of wave tops with his floats, and rose above the stunted spruce ridges.

Yet one segment of his circling attention still went to his passengers. He noticed that Frayne had unrolled a chart, over which Karnell and the birdman bent, from time to time, as they quietly talked together. They seemed to be having difficulty in linking up their chart lines with the terrain beneath them.

It was dreary country, Slade admitted, and the low-sweeping clouds made it look drearier. But it had its grandeur. Even Lynn Morlock, he remembered, had caught the spirit of its immensity. "These Barrens," she had said on one of his happier flights from Coronation, "can be so empty and ugly they're able to turn into something beautiful."

He was still thinking of Lynn as he battled his head wind, steadily growing stronger. He noticed, for the second time, the powerful German binoculars with which Frayne was studying a chain of lakes that grew wider as they drained over them. Then he awakened to the fact that Frayne was calling out to him.

"Your plane is not modern," his passenger was complaining. Slade nettled a little at that charge.

"She still hangs together," he retorted. To confirm that claim he opened the throttle and zoomed defiantly up over a mountain of shredded gray wool. He took it like a hunter taking a hurdle.

"Why," asked Frayne, "do you fly without two-way radio?" Slade laughed. "I'm a bush pilot," he proclaimed. "And two-way radio weighs exactly sixty-five pounds. That'd chip just about sixty-five dollars off my pay load."

"I also observe," said Frayne, "that you are without a direction-finder. Is that not like refusing to accept what science has placed in your hands?"

Cassidy's pipe fell to the boards as that shadow confronted him.

"Now tell me what happened," he panted, "and tell it intelligently this time."

Cassidy did the best he could. That brief and indignant recital, however, left much to be desired.

But Cruger was thinking of other things. He was thinking of his lost Lockheed and the setback it meant for Norland Airways.

"It doesn't make sense," he cried. "Faith, and he was sensible, all right," persisted Cassidy. "A heap more sensible-looking than them two swan-hunters young Lindy Slade flew out o' here yesterday mornin'."

Cruger, instead of answering, climbed aboard the Postcraft. His face, when he returned from his investigations there, remained perplexed.

"He knew his onions, all right. That high-jacker fixed this ship so it couldn't follow him." Cruger's eye scanned the brightening skyline.

"You say he flew north?" he questioned. "You're sure of that?"

"I am," averred Cassidy. "Then it's time to get busy," cried Cruger. "or this outfit goes broke."

"Then what'd we best be doin'?" asked Cassidy.

Cruger's accruing sense of frustration flowered in a shout made sharp with exasperation.

"If we don't get that Lockheed back, you'd best cut your cowardly throat!"

Slade, flying north with his two passengers, found something consoling in the quietness which his engine hum merely seemed to accentuate. It was pretty lonely-looking country they were traversing. Yet there was, he felt, consolation in loneliness like that. It gave you time to think things out and explore your own mind. And it made you less dependent on outsiders.

"I also observe," said Frayne, "that you are without a direction-finder. Is that not like refusing to accept what science has placed in your hands?"

Slade's glance flickered down to his meager instrument board.

"She's an archaic old tub," he panted, "but I get through, as a rule."

He declined to announce that he'd flown that country for nearly seven years without a major crash. He had, of course, known his minor mishaps. He'd smashed tail-skids and punctured pontoons and buckled ski-struts and straightened them out again. He'd turned more than one somersault bucking a snowdrift; he'd capped his engine and made repairs at forty below, and knocked the ice from his ailerons with a fishing pole as he went. He'd panicked down through cotton-wool fog on ooze and muskeg-soup only three feet deep, and he'd pushed the old kite through snow clouds seven thousand feet up, with the haze red on one side and green on the other as his wing-lights plowed through the blanketing mist.

His ship was something to look at, in those days, in her fresh coat of pale gray that took on the appearance of white in the arctic sunlight, so white that from Cooking Lake to Coronation she had been known as the Snow-Ball Baby. She was a bit old and battered now. But she'd never failed him.

"In the face of such hazards," Frayne was saying, "you are well paid, I take it, by your company?"

"I'm part of the company," said Slade. "But it doesn't bring me in anything to brag about."

"In that case," suggested his passenger, "you must have hopes for better things."

"What better things?" Slade inquired.

"There is, of course, always the matter of money. It means little to a man of science. But it must have its consolations for a young man with his way to make in the world."

"It counts," acceded the pilot. His thoughts, at the moment, were on Barrett Walden, the Barrett Walden who could hunt big game and cruise in the Caribbean and airily buy his way about the world.

"Then perhaps the prospect of making a good deal of money might appeal to you?" Slade's passenger was suggesting.

"How'd I make it?"

There was a moment of silence. "By flying for me, perhaps," Frayne suggested out of that silence.

The tone was friendly enough. But the suggestion left Slade wondering why it confronted him with a prospect that remained so uninviting. "Hunting swans' nests?" he asked with a smile.

Frayne ignored any possible touch of scorn in that query. "There are nests," he observed, "that sometimes contain what is known to your countrymen as a nest egg."

"Not for me, thank you," Slade announced more decisively than he had intended.

"You do not care for adventure?" Frayne was suggesting.

Slade laughed. "I get all I need of that," he said, "flying this old crate. And if the weather thickens you'll know what I'm shooting at."

Frayne glanced out at the lowering ceiling. But the weather failed to interest him.

"Your company, I understand, is not as prosperous as it might be."

"We've had our ups and downs," Slade acknowledged. "But there's zip to it when you're not sure of the outcome. I'm going to stick to puddle-jumping until we pull into the clear."

"Then my enterprise fails to interest you?"

"It interests me," said Slade, "only as an outsider."

Frayne shrugged and bent over his chart. Then, after consulting his watch, he studied the desolate-looking terrain through his binoculars.

"We are not making good time," he complained.

"We're bucking a head wind," Slade retorted, "a head wind we weren't counting on. There's no one, you see, to hand us weather reports on this route."

The caustic note seemed lost on Frayne, who was busy looking down at the world flowing past them.

Feast for Fall Days—Baked Beans (See Recipes Below.)

Pulling Purse Strings

Today, let's talk about budgets. Food budgets in particular, because they will be a major item in your life the next few months as prices slowly edge upwards, as the days slip into fall and winter and the summer bargains in foods become fewer and you have to do more juggling with figures to give your family the right food, at the best possible prices.

If you are Mrs. Average America, you will be more nutrition conscious this year than last, too. This will be not only because nutrition news has sprinted into the limelight, but because the demands of wartime living upon energy have become so great that you will have to have right foods to do your most and your best.

But, how can budgeting help you to serve "right" meals, you ask. That's simple. Buy the right foods with your dollars and you can't help serving meals that are correctly balanced.

First, divide the food dollar into fifths. One-fifth, or 20 cents, should go for vegetables and fruits. Use the next fifth for milk and cheese. The third of the fifths goes for the basis of your important meals—meats, eggs and fish.

Another fifth will be set aside for breads and cereals, while the very last 20 cents is allowed for accessory items such as butter, fats, sugar, tea, coffee and spices.

General Guide. The 20-cent rule is not a hard and fast rule. It is only a general guide because prices of the different groups of food vary from season to season, from section to section. Use your judgment in spending.

Perhaps you get milk from the milkman, vegetables from the peddler who comes to your back door three times a week, eggs from the farm, and meat from a favorite butcher. Or, you may get all your food from one place. There is no one way to shop. Pick out what the best way is from the facilities available, but be sure to investigate those facilities before you fall into one pattern.

Shopping Carefully. Conservation's an important note in these times. And it's mighty important in this fascinating business of stocking up the pantry. If you plan meals for, say three days, or better still, a week in advance, you will not be trotting up to the store twice every day, or calling up your grocer whose time is at a premium and whose delivery facilities have been cut in the midst of cake baking to tell him you simply must have vanilla. Make out lists, and then shop . . . for everything you need at one time.

When the snap of autumn gets into the air, use pumpkin, squash and Concord grapes. When the drifts of snow pile lightly against your door or the weather gets at least uncomfortably cold, use root vegetables and those canned goods in the canning cupboard. In spring, strawberries, asparagus, and broilers should grace your menu. What I mean, is, serve foods-in-season! It's more than economy, it's food at its best!

Lynn Says: The Score Card: Best of bargains are found in American cheddar cheese at the present time. Production for the first five months of this year was over 50 per cent greater than for that corresponding period last year.

Apples, absent from the markets and fruit stalls during the summer, in greater quantities, are coming into their own now. Apples and honey are food affinities and will help you with sugar rationed.

Fall's bounty will also include squash, grapes, and pumpkins which add economy notes and flavorsome touches to menus.

Cheese Bargains. Right in line with buying what is most economical at present are the bargains you can find in cheese. Cheese is much more than something you put between slices of bread or the golden orange wedge you serve with pie or crackers. It is the most economical source of protein and as such can be used as an excellent meat substitute.

Easily digestible and easily blending with almost every kind of food, it makes even the simplest dish a distinctive one because of the flavor it imparts to it. And remember, you'll get not only protein when you use it, but those essential diet necessities like phosphorus, calcium, iron, and vitamins B, D and G.

As American as apple pie, are the American cheese stocks which we now have on hand. You'll be kind to your budget if you make use of some of these ideas:

Cheese and Baked Beans. (Serves 6)

- 1 large can baked beans
- 1 cup American cheese, grated
- 1 cup grated bread
- 1 tablespoon chopped green peppers
- 2 tablespoons chopped celery
- 1 teaspoon chopped onion

Place beans in baking dish. Then, add all other ingredients and three slices lean bacon over top of dish. Bake 30 minutes at 250 degrees.

Tuna and Cheese Souffle. (Serves 6)

- 1 cup scalded milk
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- 1/4 cup grated American cheese
- 1 cup flaked tuna
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 3 egg yolks
- 3 egg whites
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

Combine milk with bread crumbs and grated cheese. Flake tuna and add lemon juice, pimiento, salt and well-beaten yolks. Beat egg white stiff but not dry and fold into mixture. Turn into a buttered casserole, set in a pan of water and bake in a moderately slow (325-degree) oven 40 minutes or until golden brown.

Sugar-saving apple recipes do delightful things to fall menus, and help you get the mellow, autumn note in meals. This revives eating interest:

Honey Apple Crisp (Serves 6)

- 4 cups sliced apples
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1/2 cup honey
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1/2 cup walnuts, if desired

Spread sliced apples in a shallow baking dish, sprinkle with sugar, lemon juice and pour honey over all. In a bowl mix flour, brown sugar and salt and work in butter to make crumbly mixture. Spread crumbs evenly over apples (and nuts) and bake in a moderate oven (370 degrees) for 30 to 40 minutes until apples are tender and crust crisply browned. Serve with plain or whipped cream.

With RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THESE orange crate bedside tables are useful and easy to make; they are very decorative, too, when fitted out as illustrated. These were lined with green oil cloth cut, fitted and pasted as shown. The full skirt pieces were tacked to the top of the sides and lapped a few inches around the back. A top cover with a three-inch frill all around was then added. The bedspread is trimmed with five-inch frills of the muslin and one-inch straight bands over seams and for the monograms.

NOTE: These bedside tables are from BOOK 7 of the series of 32-page booklets that Mrs. Spears has prepared for readers. BOOK 2 contains a complete alphabet for making monograms similar to the one on the bedspread. Books are 10 cents each. A hot iron transfer pattern for eight cornflower and poppy designs suitable for linens or for framing will be included with each order for two books. Address:

Sail on Rum

Virtually every navy in the world gives its sailors a daily ration of rum, wine or some other alcoholic drink, an exception being the United States navy, in which the practice was abolished in 1862. However, the American boys may have as many as a dozen cups of coffee a day, although their average consumption is not more than six cups.

My Creed

I BELIEVE in nationally advertised brands. They are trusted friends in my house, for national advertising is a pledge of quality . . . a guarantee of the maker's good faith.

I believe that manufacturers who win millions of friends through advertising will never betray these friends by lessening quality . . . demanding unfair prices . . . or by substituting inferior ingredients.

I am going to show my approval by observing Nationally Advertised Brands Week*. I urge you all to join me in asking for nationally advertised brands that week . . . and every time you go into a drug store. It is the surest way to safeguard the health and happiness of your family.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh
In the square of a little village not far from here I came on the prettiest flower garden you ever saw. It was a lot of flowers all mixed up—hundreds of different kinds, I guess. So I asked a passerby if he could tell me about it. "Well," he says, "in this town whenever anybody plants a flower garden and has any seeds left, they scatter them over this plot." Then he leans over and pulls out a couple of weeds. "We all have to help pull out the weeds too," he tells me. "That way the village has a flower garden to be proud of." The brewers don't want their beer sold in the wrong kind of places, and so they've teamed up with the authorities in a self-regulation program to make careless beer retailers "clean up or close up," as they say. From what I read, the plan is working out mighty successful in a number of states, and is spreading out into others. From where I sit, it looks like a fine idea... a mighty practical example of how honest co-operation works out to the benefit of everyone—the brewers, the beer retailers, and us plain citizens that like our gardens and our pleasures—with the weeds kept out. Joe Marsh

"You Get Out Of Army Life What You Put Into It"

Pvt. Gaylor O. Doughty in the U. S. Army for a month sums up his reactions to army life in a letter to his aunt, Mrs. D. R. Scrivner: "On August 8, 1942, I enlisted in the Army here at Randolph Field, Texas, and since that time I have had very few minutes to do anything but try to become a soldier. I am attached to the Army Air Corps, and feel very fortunate to be stationed at Randolph Field. The Government has certainly spared no expense in providing accommodations for the soldiers here at Randolph and after a month in this Army I can truthfully say, that I haven't a single complaint to offer. Of course, the change from civilian life to that of the Army is most decidedly a drastic one, but so long as it has been necessary, I am anxious to hurry and learn what is taught, for the sooner we do, the sooner the war will be over and we can resume our normal lives.

I do not find the life of a soldier any more difficult than that of a civilian at least, the same principles apply. We do not get any more out of the civilian life than we put in it and the same thing will apply to this Army."

Longhorns To Meet Kansas Wildcats Sat.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 24—After a pre-season test with the strong Corpus Christi Naval Air Station Team the University of Texas Longhorns have settled down to prepare for Hobb Adam's Kansas State College Wildcats, who come here Saturday, September 26, to open the Steers' college schedule.

Three times opponents in the past, the Kansas Aggies hold one victory over Texas that coming in 1926 in a game played at Manhattan, Kansas. The Wildcats won that one 13-3, but lost next year in Austin, 47-7. The first game played between the two teams was in 1913, with Texas the victor by 46-0.

A hard running attack is to be expected from the visitors Saturday, although little is known in advance of the status of their over-head game.

The Texas-Kansas State game here will highlight a full week-end of football for Southwest Conference teams.

T. C. U. opens the week-end with a trip to the West Coast to play U. C. L. A. under the lights in Los Angeles Friday night, and Saturday will see the Texas Aggies invading Baton Rouge for an engagement with L. S. U.'s Tigers.

The Southern Methodist Mustangs will play hosts to North Texas Teachers and the Baylor Bears have a home stand with Hardin-Simmons. Rice, meanwhile, will give the Corpus Christi team its second dose of Southwest Conference football in as many weeks.

Particular interest will be shown in the Rice-Naval Air Station game because of possible comparisons between Texas and Rice. Both schools are considered definitely in the consideration class when observers start handing out the Southwest Conference championship these days, and same idea on how they stack up will be obtained next Saturday.

OPA To Ration 37,000 New Cars In October

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—The Office of Price Administration today set aside 37,000 new passenger automobiles as the national quota for rationing in October, compared with 35,500 this month.

The figure does not include state, regional and national reserves set aside to meet any emergency requirements in excess of quotas in the states or counties. The state reserves for October totaled 5,500, the regional 2,450 and the national 5,000.

County quotas were not made public here. OPA officials said they might or might not be released by state rationing directors at their discretion.

Among state quotas and reserves for October were: Oklahoma—October quota 664 and October reserve 32; Texas 2126 and 310.

Ships That Pass

The U. S. coast guard falls back on an old-fashioned way of traveling the waves in order to combat the submarine menace. Sailing schooners which can ghost along the shipping lanes silently, with alert coast guardsmen at the listening devices, help locate the subs—then bring planes to the scene. A schooner of the coast guard fleet and a coast guard plane are the ships that pass.

Francis L. Jandron Elected Director Of Mother Church

The Christian Science Board of Directors announced Saturday the election of Francis Lyster Jandron, C.S.B., a Trustee of the Christian Science Publishing Society, to be a Director of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. Mr. Jandron succeeds Mr. William P. McKenzie, deceased, and has been nominated for the Trusteeships heretofore occupied by Mr. McKenzie. Mr. Jandron has resigned from the office of Trustee of the Publishing Society.

Mr. Jandron, who is a native of Canada, was educated in the island of Jersey and in London, England. He was actively engaged in industries in Canada and the United States for 17 years, during which time he had become treasurer and assistant general manager of the Packard Motor Car Company at Detroit, Michigan. In 1921 he withdrew from a business career, so that he might devote his entire time to the practice of Christian science healing.

After uniting in membership with The Mother Church in 1911, and with third Church of Christ, Scientist, Detroit. Mr. Jandron served his branch church as First Reader, director, and chairman. He received instruction in the Normal Class in the Board of Education in 1925, and became an authorized teacher of Christian Science.

Mr. Jandron served continuously as Christian Science Committee on Publication for the State of Michigan from 1926 until 1935, when he was elected a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship. During his service in this capacity, he filled engagements throughout the United States and Canada, also in Continental Europe where he lectured in English, French or German, in Denmark, France, Germany, Latvia, Norway, Poland, Sweden, Switzerland, and the Netherlands. In March, 1939, he was elected a Trustee of The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Mr. Jandron will continue to hold the meetings of the Association of his Pupils in Detroit.—The Christian Science Monitor.

State Liquor Tax Revenues Show Increase

AUSTIN, Sept. 23.—W. J. Townsend of the Texas Liquor Control Board estimated today that revenue from beer, wine and liquor during the state fiscal year just ended was $9,686,819 or about $1,600,000 more than for the preceding year.

This money is used for old age assistance and other social security purposes.

Humble Will Broadcast Grid Games

Four of the season's opening football games played by Southwest Conference teams will be broadcast by the Humble Oil and Refining Company this week-end as this company again resumes the broadcast which have been a feature of the football season for the past seven years.

Starting Friday afternoon, Humble will broadcast direct from Los Angeles the game between T. C. U. at 4:00 p. m. Pacific War Time, which is 6:00 p. m. Central War Time and the broadcast will begin at 5:50 p. m. over the Texas State Network including KFJZ, Fort Worth; KRLH, Midland; KGKL, San Angelo; KRBC, Abilene; and KBST, Big Spring. Charley Jordan will travel to Los Angeles to bring a description of this game to fans of this section. Jordan, though a newcomer to the Humble staff, is well-known to sports fans of Texas for his Sports announcing in other fields.

On Saturday afternoon at 2:20 p. m. the Humble broadcast will feature the game between Texas U. and Kansas at Memorial Stadium in Austin. Humble's veteran, Kern Tips will handle the play-by-play, while the colorful description of the scene at the stadium will be brought to listeners by Dave Byrn. This game will go on the air over stations KPRC, Houston; WOAI, San Antonio; WFAA, Dallas; KTBC, Austin.

Saturday night there will be two games to vie for the fans' attention. In Baton Rouge Texas A. & M. plays L. S. U. in a game to be broadcast over stations KGK O, Fort Worth; KXYZ, Houston; KTSA, San Antonio; KRIS, Corpus Christi; KRGV, Weslaco, at 8:05 p. m. The play-by-play announcer will be a favorite of many previous Humble broadcasts—Yes Box, assisted by Bill Newkirk a new addition to Humble's 1942 staff of announcers.

At 7:50 p. m. station KTRH in Houston will air the game between the Rice Owls and the U. S. Naval Air Station in Corpus Christi. This game will be played in Houston and will bring to the microphone Bill Michaels, well-known for his broadcasts of baseball games and other sports events in Texas. Dave Russell will describe the colorful sidights of the game.

Auto Use Tax Balances Gas Levy Decrease

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—The Internal Revenue Bureau today reported that the automobile use tax more than made up for the nearly $10,000,000 drop which gasoline rationing caused in gasoline tax revenue in August.

Total internal revenue receipts of August were $681,667,158, an increase of $207,296,183 over the same month last year, the bureau reported.

The report showed that the gasoline tax yielded $28,662,169 this August against $38,257,258 last August. The new automobile use tax netted $13,262,732 which exceeded the drop in gasoline revenue by $3,667,623.

However, the motor vehicle field through rationing of auto-

Little Worries

It is the little worries more than the big sorrows which make life dark, partly because we do not arm ourselves against them. On the other hand, we do not treasure as we should the little blessings. We have so many of them that they are stupendous in total amount. They are each so beautiful as to mirror in a wonderful fashion the glory and love of the Father.

Whoever thinks about them as he should will have little time or inclination to think about the little or the big worries.

Jewish Years

The Jewish calendar has years of six different types, owing to the harmonious arrangement of festivals, etc., says Collier's. Thus a defective year has 353 days, a regular year 354 days and a perfect year 355 days, and a month is added to each when it is a leap year. Hence this new year, which is 5703 and began on September 12, 1942, will contain 383 days because it is a defective leap year.

When Your Back Hurts

And Your Strength and Energy Is Below Par

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood. You may suffer nagging backache; rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide approval than on something less favorably known. Doan's have been tried and tested many years. Are at all drug stores. Get Doan's today.

DOAN'S PILLS

Spotlight by GRANTLAND RICE

JUST how much training and hard driving can the human system stand? When it comes to a matter of lifting a human being to peak form, training is one of the most subtle of all the arts. It is a job that calls for expert treatment.

Grantland Rice

For example, I was talking about this with Col. Bob Neyland, head coach of the army team. Colonel Neyland knows what condition means as well as anyone I've run across.

"The point you have to watch," he said, "is—the human limit. You can't afford to pass that point. In my many years of coaching I've seen squads brought up to 80 per cent efficiency when it came to blocking or tackling. When we tried to lift this 80 per cent to 85 per cent by harder work and longer time, on almost every occasion the squad would drop back to 75 per cent or even 70 per cent. They were willing enough to give all they had, but physical and mental fatigue would leave its poison and the extra work was worse than wasted. It was harmful."

Football and War

If this goes for football, it also goes for training needed in war. A good many people, knowing that war is a tougher game than football, or any other game ever invented, can't understand why a soldier shouldn't be worked from daybreak reveille to nightfall. They can't see why any recreation is needed.

But those who know their business in the army and navy understand the cracking point.

When anyone is packed with mental and physical fatigue, there must be resting spots, as every good trainer knows. After that point he can't absorb any further development in skill or condition for the time being.

This is why both the army and navy have been smart in getting so many physical conditioners who know what should be done.

Golf, for another example, is not a killing game. But a fatigued golfer is rarely any good. The message that comes from a tired brain to tired nerves and muscles is always badly blurred.

The Surest System

The surest system is to start training kids from 13 to 16 years of age. They can be trained to walk from 10 to 12 miles a day. As they get a little older this can be lifted to 15 miles or 20 miles. We have too many hundreds of thousands of boys from 13 to 16 who have known far too little leg work. At that age body contact should be light, to be increased from year to year.

Someone was smart enough in both Germany and Japan to start training these younger boys as far back as 10 years ago. Standing before the Army-Redskin game in the Los Angeles Coliseum a few weeks ago several of us from the top tower looked down on the Olympic swimming stadium, recalling Jap swimmers from 14 to 16 years of age winning distant swimming events. These youngsters had been started at the age of nine or ten. Some of them were among the Jap troops that swam to Hong Kong.

I have mentioned before about the hundreds of thousands of German kids from 12 to 16 who were in hard training all over Germany during the 1936 Olympic games. In this respect both Germany and Japan, knowing the inevitability of a war they were going to start, made this youth training a national plan.

This youth training isn't a matter of surmise, but a matter of fact and of record. I still recall an old Southern Civil war poem to Little Giffen of Tennessee. Part of it ran like this—

"Smitten with grapeshot and gangrene— Sixteenth battle—and he fourteen."

The Only Way

Almost every athlete of any importance started his game as a kid. You never develop stars who start after 25 or 30.

Bob Jones began playing golf at the age of eight. Jack Dempsey was street-fighting at the age of 10. Babe Ruth was playing baseball at 11.

You never make the Big League starting some game after 20. The knack comes to younger minds and younger muscles—to kids who came along to championships later on.

If this is true in sport, it must be true in many phases of combat work in war—flying, marching, shooting, swimming, parachute jumping—any part of the war games that calls for skill and stamina. So far this has been overlooked in this country.

For the army or navy I'd much rather have a 16-year-old boy than a civilian beyond 30 or 35. The latter are game enough. They will have just as much courage. But they can't have that unbeatable gift of youth—so much more easily taught, so much more effective when the showdown arrives.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND by DREW PEARSON

Washington, D. C.

FOURTH TERM DATA

Not much has been said about it publicly, but already the question of the Fourth Term has come in for a lot of backstage discussion. Republicans, worried about it, want to do everything possible to block it. And in the vicinity of the White House, some of those who would like to stay around indefinitely, want to do everything possible to encourage it.

But those closest to the President are convinced that there will be no Fourth Term. Even if he could get it, they say that this is the last thing Roosevelt wants.

Or even if there should be a tremendous demand on the part of the public against changing horses in the President would yield. His ideals for preservation of the democratic system are too deep-rooted, they say, for him to continue in office for what would be a total of 16 years.

However, the President does have one very definite political goal, and that is to retain control of congress during his two remaining years in office.

He remembers all too clearly, when he was assistant secretary of the navy, the chaos which the country faced when Woodrow Wilson lost control of the house of representatives. He also remembers the troubles faced by Herbert Hoover, Calvin Coolidge and his cousin Teddy Roosevelt when they faced a rebellious congress during their last two years in office.

So the President is out to win the house, and win it at all costs next November. To that end he will leave Washington—something he hasn't done since 1940—and take a swing through the Middle West some time in October.

JOBS TO REPUBLICANS

Some of FDR's political advisers, among them Democratic Chairman Ed Flynn, tell him privately that the battle to control the house in November will not be easy. One trouble is patronage.

Patronage is a word which may bring a bad smell to the public, but to the politician it is like the smell of raw meat to a circus lion. He will not perform without it.

Back in the early days of the New Deal, Jim Farley kept a little card index of how every congressman voted on important issues and what jobs he had received. When the congressman stopped voting right, he stopped getting jobs for his constituents. That system worked like a charm—for a while. But in recent years Roosevelt himself has given more and more jobs to Republicans, while Leon Henderson, the greatest job dispenser of war times, has placed everything in the hands of state governors, a large proportion of them Republicans.

So today, the President's political friends say that his definition of patronage is: "Something which you hold out to your friends, but use to reward your enemies."

And these friends have had the short end of the patronage stick for so long that, as November approaches, FDR is finding a lot of the old politicians unwilling to go to bat for him, while the rewarded enemies won't stay put.

So the congressional elections are going to be tougher than a lot of people realize, and you will probably see certain seasoned political sea-dogs, among them Ed Flynn, resigning from the picture before many weeks are over.

Note: Patronage under the old congressional system had a lot of faults, but it was not half as bad as under the present dollar-a-year man system, where somebody gets a key WPB job or a cellophane commission merely because he is the friend of a big accounting firm or a partner of a Wall Street broker.

WHERE CREDIT IS DUE

One of the best jobs of Americanization has been done by the Illinois State Register of Springfield in its series of editorials and radio programs paying tribute to the big contribution foreign groups have made to the culture and progress of the U. S. A.

The radio program, called "Americans All—Immigrants All" told the story of how the men of many races had contributed to this country—the Italians, including men like Frank Capra, LaGuardia, and Ernest Cuneo; the Welsh, including Charles Evans Hughes; the Slavs—Louis Adamic, Sikorsky, Seversky; Joseph Pulitzer from Hungary, John Philip Sousa from Portugal, George Vourvour from Greece and thousands of others.

CAPITAL CHAFF

According to fair-minded Senator Styles Bridges, who sits on the Republican side of the aisle, Democratic Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois is one of the coming men of the country. When Henry Kaiser first got his big shipbuilding contracts he had Tommy "The Cork" Corcoran as his Washington contact man. Now he doesn't... Kaiser isn't making much headway with his cargo planes.

Kathleen Norris Says: We Must All Be Hopeful and Undaunted

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

In these trying times keep every detail of your housekeeping, wifehood and mothering as simple, gentle, sweet and confident as though peace were really in view.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

BETTY writes me that she is not a nervous woman—or has not been one before, anyway. But in these days, she says, she is continually getting herself "wound up"; things make her nervous; she can't sleep; everything seems to go wrong and whichever way her thoughts go they end in anxieties and panic.

"Mind you, this isn't all imaginary," she defends herself. "At 37 I've done some years of burdened and eventful living, and I'm not the kind of woman to go to pieces for nothing. A reasonable amount of trouble or disappointment or sacrifice I have always been able to handle. But this year everything seems to be topsy-turvy, and my nerves likewise, and I don't seem to handle myself at all."

"To give you an idea of the situation," the letter goes on, "I have a doctor husband ten years older than I am. Because so many of the younger men are called to the services, he is listed as 'indispensable,' which merely means that he has to do doubled, trebled duty and be on call at all hours of the day and night. My brother, aged 28, is a navy aviator; he was studying aviation before the war and naturally turned to that branch of the service, but it is killing my mother; and my father has lost 23 pounds since last December fretting about Bartley."

Her Baby a Problem.

"My daughters present to me only the usual problems of schooling, straightening teeth, general guidance; but my baby, a boy of six, has an eye ailment that means constant care, as it fluctuates from 'not so good' to 'improved' and back to 'not so good' again."

"These are my static anxieties; when any trifle is added to them, like an unforeseen expense, an unwelcome guest or invitation, a tiresome or troublesome interruption of any kind, I seem to collapse. I feel that I could actually lose my wits. My faithful kitchen helper has gone into defense work, after 12 years with me; in three months I have had seven changes in my kitchen, and have done most of the work myself."

"With a doctor's hours and doctor's telephone to consider, and the care of four children, I am on the go sometimes from morning until night, which I never have minded before, but which now seems to reduce me to a constant state of readiness for tears and hysteria. I want to go to bed and pull the covers over my head and stay there for five years!"

Well, Bettina, as far as that goes, there are a good many of us who would like to crawl into a dark hole for the next five years, knowing that fearful crises and changes must take place in those five years, and that we would emerge into a saner and safer world. But inasmuch as you and I are among the men and women who must help to make those changes, and see that they are in the direction of God's peace and God's justice, we can't crawl to cover just now without falling America, and freedom, and decency."

We have to fight on, in our quieter grooves, just as steadily and courageously and hopefully as our men are fighting everywhere, and every one of us who backs down, goes yellow, lets herself be discouraged and afraid, delays the full force and completeness of the result.

One of the things that distress

SO MUCH GAINED

Kathleen Norris believes that as soon as you make up your mind that war inevitably means worry and discomfort and sacrifice, you will appreciate more fully the simple pleasures you can still enjoy. Each new book, each family dinner, each friend, will be so much gained. Stop thinking of the things you might do, and have a good time doing the things you must. Stop worrying about rationing, and do the best you can with what you have. If it is true that "business as usual" is no longer the order of the day, it is equally true that "business as cheerfully as possible" is your responsibility.

you, although you don't list it, is war. To womankind the state of being at war is like a perpetual nagging headache, a perpetual weight on the heart, a perpetual, restless misery of soul. These conditions keep her in a nervous quiver, so that little daily disappointments and upsets, usually so unimportant, aggravate her into a frenzy.

Now Bettina, unwind. Just take the ravelled ends of those nerves and smooth them off, and tuck them down deep into the big generous, quiet center of your soul. Tell yourself that whatever is transpiring on the wide battlefields of the world will not be helped by your nervous outbreaks, your wakeful nights, your impatient complaints of matters on the home front.

This fearful war will end, will pass into history with other wars, and the women who serve America loyally and bravely now will take their places beside those other heroic women who helped to give us our country, and helped to build it strong and firm in the crises that followed the wars.

Remain Undaunted.

Keep three girls, one weary man, one delicate child happy through this hard time. Reduce meals to a minimum of serving and cooking; have one-dish dinners and serve them in the kitchen if you like, but from now on have your mood always sunny and undaunted. Think, hope—hope for the brother in the service, for the busy doctor, for the little son—hope for America and all it stands for. And meanwhile keep every detail of your housekeeping, wifehood, mothering, as simple, gentle, sweet, confident as though peace were really in view, and a great wave of brotherhood and rebuilding and relief and security were washing over the world.

For that peace will come, and when it does you don't want it to find you a wrecked, nervous, broken woman who couldn't stand adversity. You want your husband to turn to you instead with a grateful, loving "she pulled us all through!"

You want your girls to say, "Everyone said that Mother was simply wonderful," and you want your little boy, with his eyes restored like any other boy's eyes, to have his mother to thank for the nursing that cured him.

So gear down. Simplify. Just as we are driving our cars frugally at 35 miles, in these days, drive yourself steadily on a lower base of demand; of expectation; remind yourself that there ARE no easy times; nothing can make them pleasant or secure for everyone, but every one of us who spares her household the worst of them is by just so much lifting the burden and the sorrow of the world.

Walter Kinchel

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

The Magic Lanterns: The cinema has gone to war, all the newcomers being armed to the teeth... "Wake Island" is one of the most meritorious of the battle stories. It sticks to the grim facts of the case, with no sugary heroics. It shows the marines are a tough and glorious outfit even with their backs to the wall. Brian Donlevy, Robert Preston, MacDonald Carey, et al, snap it up... "The World at War" is a newsreel catalogue of all the outrages the easy-going world overlooked for a decade. It shows the snatch of Manchuria as the first act of a Jap plan of stick-up that built up to the surprise of Pearl Harbor... "Across the Pacific" is hair-chested meller of the spy school. Humphrey Bogart, Mary Astor and Sidney Greenstreet, the aces of "The Maltese Falcon," are reunited here to give your spine another fast workout. Here again the Japs perform their familiar role of sneaks... "Berlin Correspondent" means well, but it's as far-fetched as anything to come out of that town since Goebbels opened up his free service to the dopier U. S. newspapers.

The Wireless: Ambass. Grew didn't fool around with any pep talk in his report from Tokyo. The Japs are tough, he warned, and won't quit till they're carried out. The ambassador seemed a little gloomy about the way too many of us are pretending the war is no worse than a bad cold... Rex Stout deserves the biggest public. His propaganda spiels are tip-top. There is moxie in his voice as well as his wordage... The Goebbels gabble now being broadcast to the Nazis urges them to "forget how to be unbiased and just" and work up more hate for the enemy, especially the Britons. Telling Nazis how to be unjust is as unnecessary as telling skunks how to smell.

The Story Tellers: Frank Kingdon takes care of the isolationists who got patriotic after Pearl Harbor. In "Dangers of a False Peace," in Free World, he points out they kept bleating "peace" and "ignored every voice that cried of our danger from those who kill and enslave civilians as well as soldiers." And there are those who are running for congress on a platform of that same ignorance!... Elsie McCormick reports "Boston's Fight Against Rumors" in the Mercury. It is very odd—very odd, indeed—that so many bits of chit-chat, calculated to disturb us in war time, can be traced back to the Nazi shortwavers... Pic's editorial, "Coughlin on Parade," is crowded with dynamite.

Clark Gable has been praised by the army and the press for doing it The Hard Way—nevertheless, Clark is receiving some nasty letters from females throughout the land... Claiming that The Hard Way "isn't starting in as Corporal"... The fact is this: Any man entering the Officer Candidate School in Miami Beach is made a corporal at once. The army does this so that every man starts off equal... However, as soon as a man begins classes he loses the temporary rating assigned him at the induction and from then on, until his graduation, he is addressed simply as "Mr."... In short, he is not Corporal Gable, but Mr. Gable... If and when he graduates he will come out a 2nd Lt... In the last war, Gable probably doesn't recall, being a 2nd Looney was really doing it The Hard Way... The quip then went: "What's your idea of a good time, soldier?"... "My idea of a good time," was the retort, "is watching a boatload of 2nd Lieutenants sinking!"

Typewriter Ribbons: James Cozzen Gould: He had a mind that hit and ran and got away... Ann Hunt: Better to carry the torch of liberty and truth than have it come up and burn you from behind... Margaret Culkin Banning: The fire burnt out and slept in its own ashes... Coprection: Kay Riley should have had the credit for: It's a wise bride who knows whether it's Cupid or Conscriptio... Austin O'Malley: It's twice as hard to crush a half truth than a whole lie... Time: Shoebush-mustached Tom Dewey... Margaret L. Runbeck: The baby opened her little pink mitten of a hand... R. L. Stevenson: She sat around sipping the conversation with her eyes... M. R. Eliot: She looks for trouble as if it paid her a salary... R. L. Martens: Criticism is what you get when you have everything else.

Eleven others from Rudy Vallee's orchestra are following him into the service... Petitions seeking 10,000 signatures are being circulated among sporting circles here in behalf of former boxer Ernie Haas, doing 20 years for murdering a Nazi attache. He wants his freedom to join the Canadian Commandos. He's Canuck... James True, the Washington "publicist" (as he prefers to call himself) who has been exploited in Time and elsewhere for his Fascist comments—has opened offices in midtown Manhattan.

DOGS AND LANDLORDS

As I write this I am in a mood when I wish that I could only see one side of a question. The other night a very important gentleman told me that he found it very difficult, because he could often see two sides to every question. It is certainly much more convenient to be a crusader and close your mind to everything but your own point of view. In the sad tale I am going to tell you, I would like to have only one point of view, though I know that there is another.

A lady writes me that she has a thoroughbred six-month-old Scottie dog she has trained and brought up from puppyhood. She is the wife of an officer and is trying to find a place to lay her head in overcrowded Washington, so that she can be with her husband until he is ordered away. But the "hard-hearted" real estate people, who sometimes refuse to rent apartments to people with babies, are even more adamant when it comes to dogs.

She agrees that if her dog became a nuisance to the neighbors, he should go, because she thinks that in that case the pet would also become a nuisance to her. She has no one to whom she can give the poor little Scottie, and the choice seems to be between getting rid of him, or seeking in vain for a place in which to live.

It ill becomes anyone who lives in the house with Fala and knows what a joy a really well-behaved pet dog can be, even to consider the real estate owner's point of view for a second. But I do know that if you are running a crowded development and a great many people have pets, they make a difference to the grounds and mean added complications in the house for an often sorely tried manager. I am sure from this woman's letter that she would always have a well-trained and well-behaved dog. Unfortunately, everybody is not as considerate or as capable.

Those of us who love dogs know that our greatest joy with them is usually in the country. To have a little dog in the city is not impossible. If you are alone, it is surely very comforting to have one friend on whom you can rely, who will never question your moods, nor your actions, but will simply look at you adoringly and lick your hand whenever you give him a chance.

I can only suggest trying to find a real estate owner who feels the same devotion to dogs that my correspondent and I have in common, because gas and rubber shortages make it impossible to move out of town.

SAVING WASTE FOOD

I have a most interesting letter from some food sales consultants, who make the point that if we are going to improve the nutrition of the country while the cost of living is going up, we must find ways of saving. They enclose a series of suggestions stating that there is practically no household in the country whose kitchen could not make savings which will amount to a great deal in the aggregate. I quote here one paragraph, which struck me as particularly interesting and made me want to investigate my own kitchen at once.

"What is waste, 'where' is it, and 'how' can we put a stop to it? Waste is the withered potato lying in the bottom of the bag, multiplied by millions of other potatoes all over the country. Waste is the tired-out box of crackers reposing on my pantry shelf and that of my neighbor. These may sound like trivial examples, but the sum total of such minor wasteful habits from Maine to California have expanded our national 'waste-line' until it is around our necks and choking us out of 3,500,000,000 food dollars each year."

AVIATION IN HIGH SCHOOLS

WASHINGTON.—The United States office of education is co-operating with high schools to make their pupils air-minded, and I have a long letter from Gould academy in Bethel, Maine, telling me about the aviation ground school course for their older students, which is beginning this fall. A teacher training course in aeronautics has been held at the University of Colorado, Boulder, Colo., and Gould academy is fortunate in having their teacher in physics and chemistry a graduate of this course.

Many schools will carry on similar courses for high school students with the purpose of developing in them a greater knowledge of the growth of aviation and of giving such basic preparation as they will need in aviation positions.

INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS

The closing session of the assembly organized by the United States Committee of the International Student Service was a very moving meeting. The declaration which was drafted by the young people and their determination to keep a committee together to work in peace as well as in war, with all the various countries represented, shows a faith and hope in the future.

I am sure that every one of the older generation said a fervent prayer last night.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

IN "WAKE ISLAND" Paramount has shown what a war picture ought to be; the truth was so dramatic that there was no need to dress it up with a fancy plot—and praise goes to the writers, W. R. Burnett and Frank Butler, and to Director John Farrow for letting that plot be as slight as possible. Farrow directed it superbly, the members of the cast did a memorable job. Pretty good cast, incidentally, including Brian Donlevy, Walter Abel, Robert Preston, Macdonald Carey and Albert Dekker. Don't miss it!

A word more about "Wake Island." It was first shown at the Quantic Marine base, with an audience of 2,000 marines, who cheered it wholeheartedly. That's the surest guarantee that there's nothing phony about this very swell picture.

When you see "Seven Days' Leave," keep an eye on Marcy McGuire, if you're interested in stellar material. She plays a brat sister of Lucille Ball's, with a crush on Victor Mature. During filming, her part was "fattened" three times, so that she finally had two musical numbers of her own, and a comedy romance that wasn't in the original script.

Iona Reed, who's a stunt woman as well as Claire Trevor's stand-in in "The Desperadoes," has ridden horses that cowpunchers wouldn't mount, leaped from high cliffs, risked her neck in dozens of ways—but she balked at an assignment the other day. The script called for Claire to smoke a cigar; Iona was told to do it, and said "No." She can't even smoke a cigarette!

Porter Hall, who plays the thieving, double-crossing heavy in "The Desperadoes," has just been made a deacon in the First Presbyterian church of Hollywood. He's usually cast as a villain, but he's never owned a gun, since he served in the last war, he doesn't drink or gamble, he practically never smokes. Yet on the screen he stops at nothing.

Paramount has a file of what do you suppose? Cobwebs! Due to priorities, it's impossible now to get the liquid rubber of which movie cobwebs used to be made. The studio has quite a few murder mysteries, like "Street of Chance," coming along. So the prop department got busy, wove cobwebs out of the material on hand, and filed them away for reference.

Charles W. Koerner, head of RKO Radio production, has announced that "artistic and prestige films of dubious box-office merit" are out. Well, some of those "prestige" films were pretty dull. But a lot of really fine and profitable pictures would never have been made if that ruling had gone through years ago. We'd not have had "The Grapes of Wrath" or "Gone With the Wind" or "Pastor" or a good many others that didn't look like money-makers before they were released.

Life masks taken directly from the faces of a group of stars, along with fashion sketches, original charcoal sketches of sets and other material used in preparing a film, will comprise a Traveling Educational exhibit soon to be sent on tour by MGM. Frances Parker, lecturer, will accompany it, and it will be displayed at universities, schools, civic and educational societies.

September 30 marks a special anniversary in the National Barn Dance show—the completion of ten consecutive years on the air, broadcasting 52 weeks a year. Other radio programs have come and gone, but the Barn Dance goes on forever.

ODDS AND ENDS—Greer Garson has signed a long-term contract with Metro; her first picture under the new arrangement will be "Madame Curie" . . . James Cagney bought a $25,000 War Bond, which entitled him to two tickets for the Hollywood opening of his picture, "Yankee Doodle Dandy" . . . Freddie Bartholomew has bought himself a motorcycle, which he rides back and forth to Columbia for work in "Junior Army" . . . Larty Elliott, announcing on Bob Hawks' "How Am I Doing?" air show, has landed the narrating assignment on Universal's new short entitled "How Canada Tracks Down Nazis."

A Bit of Trickery

By R. HILL WILKINSON
Associated Newspapers.
WNU Features.

IN ORDER to gain an end, Preston Mason had resorted to artifice. "Come on out," he urged the beautiful Ina, "for just a minute. I've something to tell you, and it's important, too."

Ina yielded. Once outside, alone, away from the country club ball-room lights, Preston turned to her and smiled.

Ina eyed him coldly. "So! It was a trick! You didn't have anything important to say. I might have known. I might have remembered that you couldn't have anything important to say. You're not bright enough."

She started away, but Preston caught her arm. "Now, Ina, wait a minute. My real purpose was to warn you against David Rollins."

"Warn me against him!" Ina started.

"You've been seeing David a lot lately. Too much. First thing you know he'll simply take it for granted you're interested in him, and then you'll find yourself in a jam. David isn't the man you want to marry, in spite of his money. You're not his type. Besides, you're in love with me."

"Well!" Ina choked, groping for adequate words to express her rage. "Preston Mason, I think you're the most insolent, insulting, conceited person I've ever known. I wouldn't marry you if you were the last person on earth! You—you haven't even a sense of honor or self-respect, else you wouldn't have tricked me into coming out here."

"Preston Mason, I think you're the most insolent, insulting, conceited person I've ever known."

"If you didn't care," said Preston easily, "you wouldn't have let yourself be tricked."

Which remark stung Ina to the quick. She whirled, white with rage, and left him standing there. Inside she saw David Rollins, and she went to him. "Take me home, David. I've—I've a headache."

David was delighted. He got her wraps and helped her into his $8,000 roadster and tucked a robe about her slippery feet, for the night was chilly. His concern regarding her alleged headache was thrilling. So thrilling, in fact, that when they reached the drive at Ina's home she did not at once offer to get out. Instead, in reply to his questions she admitted that her headache had vanished and she felt quite fit.

Whereupon David reached into his pocket and produced a little box. Ina gasped when he opened it at the sight of the diamond that sparkled there.

"Darling," he said, "I know I shouldn't expect you to love me so soon, but tomorrow I'm leaving for Chicago on a two weeks' business trip. I thought if—would you wear it until I get back. Sort of—an approval. It would make me tremendously happy, and you would have two weeks to think things over."

He waited hopefully, his eyes pleading. Ina's thoughts were chaotic. Presently she thought of Preston Mason and the episode on the club veranda. She thought of this and she thought of that. And in the end she held out her hand and David slipped the ring on the proper finger and then kissed her.

Three days after David's departure Ina gave up trying to drive thoughts of Preston from her mind and quite openly began to wonder why he hadn't called. It wasn't like Preston not to call. That was what had always annoyed her about Preston. He had always taken it for granted that she wanted him to call, that she was interested in him, that she even loved him. His attitude went against her grain. If he only weren't so irresponsible, if he possessed a sense of honor or scruples or was willing to admit that her winning required an effort, she might—well, she might even like Preston.

Obviously Preston had changed. She hadn't seen him since that night at the country club and he hadn't called by phone. Not like Preston at all. Almost with a feeling of horror she wondered whether he had ceased being interested in her. She wondered, too, what he would be like, if such were the case. Finally, she decided to find out. It was as good an excuse as any to see him.

JOSEPH: AN EXAMPLE OF FORGIVENESS

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 45:1-15; 47:11, 12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.—Ephesians 4:32.

Forgiveness, opening the way for the restoration of fellowship and the showing of kindness, brought the story of Joseph and his brethren to a happy ending. Under the good hand of God the story which began with tragedy is brought to a conclusion of blessing.

Following the earnest plea of Judah, the heart of Joseph could no longer withhold itself from the full expression of affection and devotion to his family.

I. Love Overcomes Fear (vv. 1-4). Joseph tenderly shielded the family troubles from the eyes and ears of strangers by sending out the Egyptians. It was the first step of consideration which paved the way for reconciliation. How often just the opposite is done—airing family affairs before the world, and humiliating those who may be in the wrong, thus making it difficult for them to admit their guilt.

Then, too, this was a moment too tender and delicate to be seen by outsiders. The tears of a strong man like Joseph mean a deep movement of spirit—a solemn and often a sacred moment.

It should also be noted that the brothers were afraid, and well they might be, because of their sin against Joseph. After almost 50 years these unrepentant men found themselves face to face with the one whom they had supposed they had disposed of, and they knew their sin had found them out. It always does, sooner or later, but inevitably.

How great and noble was the forgiving love of Joseph; an example to us, especially appropriate and needed in a world of hate and bitterness.

II. Grace Overrides Sin (vv. 5-8). The guilt of these men was none the less and Joseph could not remove it, but he encouraged them by showing how God had used their evil devices to work out His own good pleasure. He can make the wrath of man to praise Him (Ps. 76:10).

It is worth stressing again that in the very hour when the prospects for Joseph's future usefulness seemed ruined, God was opening the door to the greatest experiences of his life and was preparing him to serve the thousands whose lives were saved by his wisdom and ability in the years of famine.

Nothing is more important in the life of a child of God than to be yielded to His will, unmovable by circumstances, abiding His time, responding to His guidance whether it be by the opening or closing of doors, prosperity or adversity. And herein is the marvel of it all—even sin may be overruled by God's grace for His own glory. That does not invite anyone to sin that grace may abound (Rom. 6:1, 2), but it does offer encouragement to the one who has fallen, that God can redeem the years that the locust have eaten (Joel 2:25).

Our lesson also sets us an example of how true forgiveness acts, something we need. So often when forgiveness is asked or granted there is an "I can forgive but I can't forget" attitude, which means that while hostilities have ceased, at least temporarily, there is no real friendship or the disposition to show kindness. Is there any real forgiveness at all in such an attitude of heart and mind? We fear not.

III. Kindness Provides the Best (vv. 9-15; 47:11, 12). It might have been enough to send food and a kind greeting with the brothers to their own land, but love does not seek the minimum expression of its feeling. It asks how low little, but how much can I give or do.

Bringing his aged father and brothers into the land of plenty was not enough, Joseph also gave to them the "best of the land" (47:11). His thoughtful consideration in sending for his father (Gen. 46:5-7) was part of the same piece of kindness.

Joseph puts to shame the modern "hard-boiled" attitude toward needy and aged members of the family. In their eager and relentless pursuit of fame or riches, many ignore or trample upon the members of their own families. Often they are ashamed of the broken bodies, the hunched apparel, the broken or uneducated speech of their parents. They fear lest their new-found friends in the circle of wealth and supposed "position" will think them strange or ridiculous. God pity the man or woman who is ashamed of a humble or aged father and mother!

Joseph, who really had an exalted position gained by merit and by the blessing of God, never forgot his place before God as a son in the family and as a brother. Let us consider him and do likewise.

"If the army and navy want men who can see clearly, students must be taught to prevent instead of waiting to cure eye conditions," Dr. Davis said.

Household Hints

Suede garments should be kept dry if possible. If rain does catch them, let them dry away from heat, then brush in a circular motion with a wire brush. A rubber sponge or art gum will help to keep a suede jacket clean.

Wrap cheese in a clean cloth dampened in vinegar and keep in a cool dry place.

Furniture bought in piecemeal fashion on a small budget should serve as many purposes as conveniently possible and should lend itself to arrangement with added pieces.

To prevent mold from growing on stored fat be sure the container is dry, cook until the moisture is all out when cooking down the fat for storing, keep in a dry place.

To prepare uncoated iron or steel for painting, wire brush it, unless it is extremely corroded. In that case, crude oil or spent lubricating oil will loosen the rust.

They Met the Enemy—and He Was Theirs

Up to the time this picture was made, U. S. Flying Fortresses had made 100 daylight raids on Europe without the loss of a plane. This one was attacked by a flock of German Focke-Wulf 190's while returning from an assignment. A cannon shell hit the ship, killing the co-pilot. Two of the engines were put out of action, but the ship came home safely. Crew members here examine the rear turret.

Praises Work Of Local Firemen State Fire Commissioner Hall

Fullest Cooperation With Fire Departments Urged During Emergency

AUSTIN, Sept. 23—"Texas firemen have established a record of unparalleled public service in their respective communities," Marvin Hall, State Fire Insurance Commissioner, has asserted in recognition of the work by the fire fighting organizations of Texas.

"Fire is one of man's most savage enemies," he continued. "Encouraged by human carelessness and indifference to its dangers, fire has become our most destructive force, whether in time of peace or in time of war."

"Too few of us realize just how much our safety from the fire demon has depended upon the work of our hometown firemen. They render an unselfish service; one that often means personal sacrifice in many ways. Present conditions raise such devoted sacrifice for home protection to the rank of an important patriotic service."

"Lower insurance costs to the property owner have inevitably followed successful fire prevention. Our firemen have been the leaders in teaching us the practice of fire prevention—practices which have reduced our fire insurance costs."

"These firemen of ours have constantly improved their own training, and sought to keep their equipment in the best possible condition; they have extended full cooperation in fire prevention studies in our schools; training in fire drills; investigations; vigilant fire prevention in the removal of hazards that jeopardized the safety of our property; and have sought in every manner possible to reduce both fires and the cost of fire insurance."

"There has never been a slackening in the training and preparation of our firemen. If anything, they have redoubled their efforts to protect us against losses—fighting with their backs to the wall. All of our fire fighting organizations in Texas are to be commended on the courage and ability of their men."

"Whenever fire insurance costs have been lowered, whether by good fire credits lower key rates, or lower rate schedules on various classes of property, the firemen are justly entitled to a good measure of credit for such reductions."

"The importance of work done by fire chiefs, fire marshals and the firemen themselves cannot be overestimated. Then too city officials, who have accepted the responsibility and recognized the serious need for adequate protection, are to be commended fully for their part in supplying the fire departments with adequate fire fighting equipment."

"Texas today enjoys the lowest insurance rates in history. Thanks to the excellent work of firemen in teaching us fire prevention and reducing our fire losses. However, we must not stop here. We are faced with serious conditions on the fire front. We must keep our fire losses low, and make them even lower if possible."

"Our fire departments are faced with the problem of reduced manpower. The war has drawn many of our best trained firemen into the armed services, while others have assumed duties in important war production plants. The best we can do will be to extend our fullest cooperation to our fire departments and the men who protect our homes."

Shrimper To Face Murder Charges

ARANSAS PASS — Charges against an Aransas Pass shrimper, arrested in connection with the slaying of Antonio Davilla, about 50, another shrimper, Saturday night had not been filed Monday.

San Patricio County Sheriff J. E. Holbrook held up filing pending further investigation, but reported that charges would be filed and sent to the grand jury, now in session at Sinton, this afternoon.

Davilla died in the local hospital about 10:30 o'clock Saturday night, two hours after he was shot five times in the abdomen during a fight at a tavern north of here and just inside the San Patricio County line.

The suspect was arrested a short time after the slaying by Deputy Sheriff C. S. Boldin and City Marshal W. B. Howard, who stated that the shooting was the result of an old feud.

Funeral services for Davilla were to be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Catholic Church with Father Herbert Buckholt officiating. Burial was to be in the Mexican Cemetery at Aransas Pass. Cagle Funeral Home at Aransas Pass was in charge.

Coast Guard To Enforce Navigation Laws

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23.—Under new regulations recently issued by the United States Coast Guard with headquarters for the Eighth Naval District in New Orleans—fines and penalties for violations of the Navigation Laws of the U. S. in cases involving $500 or less will be assessed locally by the District Coast Guard Officer for the District where the violation occurs. The Coast Guard is charged with the enforcement of the navigation laws.

When a fine is assessed the person being fined may apply for relief to the district Coast Guard officer, but a deposit of the amount of the fine assessed must accompany the application. Action will be taken by the District Coast Guard Officer and if the fine is remitted the deposit will be returned, if reduced the amount of reduction will be returned.

Attention is called to the fact that in all cases of change of ownership of all undocumented vessels which the law requires to be numbered, notice of such change must be furnished to the Coast Guard Officer within ten days by the new owner. The Coast Guard will require strict compliance with this regulation and fines will be assessed in all future cases of failure to give notice.

The recording of sales of undocumented vessels is handled by the Bureau of Customs.
