

Car Owners Crowd School as Gas Registration Begins

PILOTING

If those who oppose gasoline rationing on the grounds that it is necessary have facts to back up their argument, it is a high time they should make their reasons and let the people know what they are. If they do have facts to support their claims they are hurting their own cause and the cause of the nation a whole lot more with all the mystery and vagueness.

Bob McCracken headed his Crow's Nest column in the Corpus Christi Caller with the above statement this morning. Bob is often branded a "sourpuss," a "joy killer" or dyed-in-the-wool pessimist, because of expressing a practical down-to-earth viewpoint on some subjects when most of his readers would like to get their heads up in rosy-hued clouds. But more times than not he is right.

The Pilot concurs with the Crow's Nest and every other right thinking American in this long, and now somewhat belated howl about gas rationing to save rubber. Those voicing opposition to rubber and gasoline rationing have advanced many theories, and arguments that sound logical and good to the average citizen. They have been putting out these arguments since the government first froze auto tires. It all boils down to one of two things:

1. There are many people who are not showing the right spirit about this war; or, either,
2. We've got a lot of little nin-com-ponp dictators heading our present bureaucratic set-up in Washington, and a bunch of intestineless Congressmen and Senators who are not doing right by us folks down here in the forks of the creek.

Personally, we can't believe our country is in bad enough shape for No. 2 to apply.

One thing appears fairly certain. In the vernacular that might be used by Texas hilly-billy Senator O'Daniel and with the brusque positiveness of Price Administrator Leon Henderson, it is:

"There ain't gonna' be no re-privie on rationing!"

Bill Booth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Booth of Rockport, was there when the Japs made their famous "Chenault Shack" raid on U. S. fliers in China. According to a report in Time Magazine General Claire Chenault's fliers had been causing the Japanese a lot of trouble, zooming in on Jap territory, dropping their bombs and zooming out again before the Japanese could get ready to fight back. Tokio it seems promised to retaliate with stern measures—and last week, for the first time in several weeks, bombed one of General Chenault's airfields. The Japs were not so good in zooming in and out and lost three fighter planes and one bomber. Chenault reported the loss at "one Chic Sale shack."

We clipped this little gem from the State Observer:
"Rev. English: Co-eds at the University of Texas, who run the soldier gauntlet every time they visit down town Austin, have had their revenge.

An aviation cadet made the mistake of strolling past one of the women's dormitories and a low, admiring whistle started at one end of the building and followed the lieutenant all the way.

The young man's ears started pinking but he didn't glance toward the dorm. Just as he was about to get out of earshot, the girls worked up a quartet, "The Wore a Pair of Silver Wings."

Retail Coffee Sales to Be Frozen November 21, Rationing Starts 28th

All Students of County Schools Join Red Cross

Miss Vivian Picton, chairman of the Junior Red Cross here, reports that a membership drive that has been underway here since Nov. 1 has resulted in a hundred per cent enrollment of students from the county schools in the county.

The four schools participating are the Rockport high school and elementary school, the Sacred Heart school and the Fulton school. Each child was called upon for a contribution, but where a donation was not made, some service was required.

Miss Picton is requesting an exhibit from National Headquarters so that this unit may see and understand what is expected of them.

Harry Mills' Purchase Former Caspary Home

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mills purchased the former home of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Caspary this week, and moved in Tuesday. The Mills were renting the Pat Hooper house. Their new home is located six blocks north of town, and one block off the bay front, which their two youngsters will enjoy, no doubt.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dunkerly of the Triple Oaks Court were in Aransas Pass Wednesday.

Coffee will be rationed at midnight, Nov. 28, at a rate of one pound every five weeks for each person over 15 years old, the OPA has announced.

On the basis of 35 to 40 cups to the pound, the ration means slightly more than a cup a day per person.

Retail sales will be halted at midnight, November 21, Price Administrator Leon Henderson said, for a week-long freeze during which grocers will stock their shelves for the start of rationing.

The first rationed coffee will be purchased on the last stamp in the sugar ration book, Stamp No. 28. Subsequent rations will be issued by working backward through the sugar book.

Restaurants, hotels, hospitals and other such institutions will be entitled to as much coffee during the first two months of rationing as they used in September and October, OPA announced. Registration for institutional users is set for Nov. 23, 24 and 25, at local war price and rationing boards. First allotment periods will start from the date of registration and will extend to midnight, January 31, 1943. A restaurant, hotel or institution not operating in September or October will be allowed one pound of coffee for each 60 meals to be served during the allotment period.

Trucks Must Get Certificates For Gas Rationing

Operators of trucks, buses and taxis must have their certificates of war necessity before applying to the local war price and rationing board for their mileage rations, J. F. Bullard, chairman of the Aransas County War Price and Rationing Board announced today.

"The certificates of war necessity, issued by the Office of Defense Transportation, form the rations to these commercial vehicles," Mr. Bullard said. "When applicants come to the board they must bring with them these certificates, together with properly executed application for a mileage ration."

Each war necessity certificate states the number of miles the vehicle for which the certificate is issued will be allowed to travel during a three-month period. The certificate also states the number of miles of (eptra-fnSHRDLUU of gallons of gasoline needed to cover this mileage.

The ration board will determine the amount of transport rations to be used for the vehicle on the basis of the mileage allowed in the certificate. In no case is the board permitted to allow more gasoline than is stipulated in the certificate.

The "T" Books will be tailored to the allowable mileage by tearing out coupons.

Funeral Held Tuesday For Mrs. C. A. Roe

Funeral services were held here in the Baptist church Tuesday afternoon for Mrs. Charles A. Roe, who died in the Scott and White Hospital in Temple at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Nov. 15. She had been in ill health for some time and the end came after an operation in Temple.

Rev. J. F. Stanley conducted the services, which were largely attended by the many friends of the family here and interment was in the Rockport Cemetery. Her last resting place was most beautiful with its covering of floral gifts from loved ones and friends.

Miss Ruby Lee Green was born Nov. 19, 1904, at Duboch, La., and came to Texas with her parents in November, 1910. She was married to Charles A. Roe on February 21, 1924, and to this union four children were born: Charles A. Roe Jr., Francis, Norma Lou and Joy Roe. Mr. and Mrs. Roe came to Rockport from Austin in October of 1934.

Mrs. Roe was a member of the Baptist church, having been converted at an early age in life.

Those surviving are her husband, Charles A. Roe, her four children, Charles A. Roe Jr., who is attending Schreiner Institute at Kerrville, Frances, Norma Lou and Joy, a sister Mrs. A. J. Clark of Brownwood, three uncles and five aunts. Mrs. J. F. Hall and Mrs. W. F. Davis were among out of town relatives attending the funeral.

Boys of 'Teen Age to Register For Draft During Week of Dec. 11

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—As one more step in a broad program to "insure victory, final and complete," President Roosevelt today ordered the young men who become 18 years old in the last six months of this year to register for military service.

Almost simultaneously, Selective Service headquarters took action to safeguard the supply of farm labor. Men deferred because engaged in essential farm work, may not quit the farm for the factory without the approval of their local draft boards. If they do, they become liable to immediate induction.

Roosevelt's action was necessitated by the recently enacted legislation lowering the minimum draft age to include 18 and 19 year olds. Those who became 18 up to the end of last June had already registered.

Roosevelt provided three registration dates. Those who became 18 in July and August are to register during the week of December 11. Those whose birthdays were in September and October, are to register during the week of December 18. And those becoming 18 in November and December are to register between December 26 and 31, inclusive. After January 1, men becoming 18 will register on their birthdays.

Stores to Close Here All Day On Thanksgiving

A majority of Rockport stores have requested the Pilot to announce that they will be closed all day on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 26. The stores, however, will be open until 9 o'clock on Wednesday evening, Nov. 25, preceding Thanksgiving.

The stores requesting this announcement are Red & White, T. C. Kelley, A. L. Bracht, Hooper Grocery, Fulton Cash Grocery and Weber's Grocery at Fulton.

A. F. Buchanan was master-of-ceremonies, and John C. Williams made a short talk.

Williams praised the team work that is being shown by the ship-building firm and its workers.

Mrs. Fred Miesenhelder of Gonzales was a caller at the Pilot office Monday. She was passing through Rockport enroute home from Corpus Christi.

Registration For Gasoline Ends Saturday

Actual Rationing of Gas For Automomiles Due to Begin December 1

Aransas county owners of some seven hundred automobiles began registering today (Thursday) for gasoline rationing scheduled to begin on December 1.

The only registration place for Aransas county is the Rockport school and at 8 o'clock this morning a great crowd was waiting to make application for their basic "A" ration cards. Registration will continue through Friday and Saturday, with school teachers and volunteer workers as registrars. The hours are from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., but car owners are urged to register as soon as possible.

Those believing they are entitled to more gasoline than the basic "A" card provides for, should ask the registrars for an application blank for that purpose. The application for supplemental gasoline must be taken before the ration board.

Those desiring ration cards to get gasoline for "non-highway" uses, including boats, stoves, etc., should apply to the ration board where blanks are now available.

Before going to the school house to register, a car owner must secure an application blank from a filling station or the ration board and fill it out. Information that goes on the ration application blank includes the serial number of five tires on the automobile to be registered.

There have been rumors that gasoline rationing may be postponed again, but this appears unlikely. The local ration board has been officially notified that rationing will start on December 1.

Speaking recently in Dallas, Price Administrator Leon Henderson declared there would be no "reprieve" on gasoline-mileage rationing because the government—eager to avoid the dangers of "too little, too late"—could not afford to take a chance on results of the war and with the lives of fighting men.

Mayor James Gregg Now With Board Of Economic Warfare

Mayor James S. Gregg of Aransas Pass, received his appointment on the Board of Economic Warfare. He and Mrs. Gregg left Monday by plane for Washington, DC, where he will take a three weeks training course, after which he will be given a foreign post, probably in South America. The primary purpose of this foreign service is to combat Axis economic influence.

Gregg moved to Aransas Pass from San Antonio in 1936, and was with the Atlantic Refining Company, working in Rockport for the next three years, helping develop the McCampbell and Burton and Danforth Oil Field in Aransas County. He has been practicing law in Aransas county courts for the past three years, and is well known as an attorney here.

Humble Will Broadcast Two Games Saturday

Two conference games played this Saturday will go a long way toward settling the order in which the teams finish the 1942 season and both of these important games are scheduled to be broadcast.

The Rice-T. C. U. game goes on the air at 2:30 over stations KPRC Houston; WOAI, San Antonio; WFAA, Dallas-Fort Worth. Kern Tips will bring the play-by-play report while Bill Newkirk alternates with color highlighting.

Broadcast time for the Baylor-SMU game at Waco is also 2:20 and stations are KGKO, Dallas-Fort Worth; KXYZ, Houston; KTSB, San Antonio, WACO, Waco and KPDM, Beaumont. Ves Box and Dave Russell will alternate at the microphone for play-by-play and color respectively.

Jeep Tracks of Coast Patrol Lead Thru Maze of Mute Evidence of Disaster at Sea

By BONNIE TOWNSEND
Did you ever follow the jeep tracks of a Coast Guard Shore Patrol?

Before many yards you lose interest in the deep tread tracks of the heavy-treaded jeep tires. It is the floatsam strewn beach that holds your eyes and sends your imagination on flights of supposition to the thudding explosions of torpedos, howling hurricane winds, ships sinking, men struggling in the water and then perishing, and of others battling the rough elements of the sea on rafts and in life-boats until the end.

I recently made a twenty mile trip along a beach that is patrolled by Coast Guardsmen twenty-four hours a day. Their mission is to keep enemy agents away. The tracks of the patrol jeeps wind their way in and out among a strange collection of objects ranging from life rafts to bottles, mahogany logs to hunks of pure rubber.

Hundreds and hundreds of things brought in by the tide, most of them anonymously in the abstract. There is no tracing where they came from and seldom is there any relation between objects of interest, even though they may be no more than inches apart.

How long did the stores in the life raft last? Who was the last one to slide overboard? The rafts lay there in the sand, salt waves curling around them, but their mysterious story will probably never be known.

Along further a life boat, completely stocked with stores had washed ashore. Did the life-boat wash overboard? Then not far along was a small double-planked dory. How many rode it before it lost its crew and washed in.

Then all along were odds and ends of ship stores and cargoes, innumerable and unnameable objects.

Half empty catsup bottles, jars of rancid peanut butter, any shape or size of bottle, strewn carelessly. Driftwood from all over the world, fruit, crates, metal drums, some full of oil, some empty. A huge mahogany log, enough to plank a small boat, wasting away on the sand.

A derelick, bobbing up and down away off shore.

No names, no ports, no destinations shown.

Grim, tragic reminders of men and ships lost at sea.

Ahoy, Davy Jones' Locker!

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

U. S. North African Occupation Seen As 'Springboard' for European Front; Hitler's Seizure of Southern France Thins Axis Forces for Russ Campaign

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Territory in North Africa occupied by U. S. expeditionary forces under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will be used as a springboard for offensive action against Italy, the Adriatic Balkans and possibly southern France, military experts believe. Principal features on above map show (1) American control over Atlantic ports in French Morocco; (2) Mediterranean ports of Oran and Algiers in American hands; (3) strategic Bizerte in Tunisia, which would complete Allied control of the south Mediterranean; and (4) Vichy-held Dakar, which military experts expect to be taken over by Allies.

BLITZ TIMETABLE: Beats Schedule

Two immediate jobs had remained for Gen. Dwight D. ("Iron Mike") Eisenhower's American invasion forces after they had completed their spectacular blitzkrieg of French Morocco and Algeria in the record time of 77 hours.

One job was to secure control of rectangular Tunisia, a French protectorate jutting northward into the Mediterranean and offering via strategic Bizerte an ideal stepping stone toward the Axis "soft spots" of Italy and the Adriatic Balkans.

The other job was to complete with their British Allies the nutcracker drive into Libya to smash forever Marshal Rommel's all but extinguished Afrika Korps.

The capture of Morocco and Algeria had given the Americans control of 1,300 miles of precious North African seacoast on the Atlantic ocean and the Mediterranean sea, including the key ports of Casablanca, Rabat, Oran and Algiers.

Significantly enough, it was Adm. Jean Darlan, French chief of all defense forces who had given the "cease-firing" order to the French North-African colonies. Darlan was now in a new role of collaborationist with the United Nations, after secret negotiations with American army officers. The welcome of the American forces by the French-African inhabitants had been warmed by the presence with them of heroic Gen. Henri Giraud, dramatically flown to Algeria from France after a secret rendezvous with British airmen.

Neighboring Tunisia was of key importance not only because of its strategic value for future offensives against Hitler-dominated Europe, but because of the concentration there of Axis air-borne troops and combat planes. Hitler had not intended to give up North Africa without a struggle. His hold upon it would not have been possible without Tunisia. Possession of the port of Bizerte, best equipped French Mediterranean naval base, by the United Nations would mean that the Allies would have relatively easy access to Sicily and the Italian mainland and an effective springboard to nearby Tripoli, former "powerhouse" of Axis North African activities.

Success of the AEF operations prompted President Roosevelt to raise Gen. Mark Clark, second in command, to the rank of lieutenant general.

ROMMEL: 'Nutcracker Bait'

Like a groggy prize-fighter backpedaling before a knockout punch, Marshal Rommel's shattered Afrika Korps had scurried across Libya pursued by General Montgomery's conquering Eighth British army.

The chase had been nip and tuck with Rommel trying to reach Tripoli, his main base near Tunisia in an effort to use his remaining strength to make a stand. But Tripoli meant no rest for Rommel, for oncoming American armies from Algeria in the west and Montgomery's battering ram from Egypt in the east would converge in a mighty nutcracker movement to annihilate Axis power in North Africa.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

LA VALETTA, MALTA: British forces in Malta opened a new airfield with ceremonies presided over by Viscount Gort, commander in chief. Lord Gort said he was looking forward to the day when the island which has withstood so many Axis aerial attacks would become an advanced base for an offensive against Italy in movements from North Africa.

HAVANA: President Fulgencio Batista of Cuba will pay an official visit to the United States, arriving in Washington December 8, it was announced here. The Cuban chief executive will confer with President Roosevelt and then visit various American cities. General Batista will make the trip on the invitation of President Roosevelt and will be a White House guest overnight.

HITLER: Seizes All France

Military observers agreed that Hitler's seizure of unoccupied France meant a further lengthening of his lines and a weakening of his forces.

The Fuehrer had no other choice than to try to close the "back door" to prospective Allied invasion by ordering his own legions southward to the Mediterranean and the Spanish frontier and those of his Italian "stooze" northward to the Riviera. Corsica, island birthplace of Napoleon, was likewise seized.

But Hitler's move into southern France meant that 20 to 30 Axis divisions would be tied down in occupation duties, thus weakening the English channel invasion coast and also his forces along the far-flung Russian front where action was at a stalemate. He had likewise enlarged the area where the Nazis would be sabotaged as they already have been elsewhere in occupied Europe.

Reports from Russia indicated the Nazis had already begun to withdraw troops to build up their defenses elsewhere in Europe. These were further substantiated by word from Greece indicating the arrival of fresh German units at key seaport bases.

Significantly, Hitler had first stopped his occupation forces 80 miles short of the French naval base at Toulon, designating it as a "camp retranche" to be by-passed and set apart from occupation. Center of speculation since the 1940 armistice, the French fleet comprising 62 warships was the prize at stake with the Axis standing on the near side of the Mediterranean and Allies on the other. Now an Allied "collaborationist" in Africa, Adm. Jean Darlan had added his voice to that of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in a request for the French fleet to join him in Algeria.

ALLIES OPTIMISTIC: Channel Thrust?

From both sides of the Atlantic official optimism over the war's future outlook was expressed by leaders as a result of the Allied successes in North Africa.

President Roosevelt predicted the Axis' inevitable defeat, and welcomed the increasing number of Frenchmen who are joining the United Nations' cause.

In London Prime Minister Churchill for the first time since the bleak days of 1940 told the British public to rejoice. Mr. Churchill pointed out that a direct thrust across the English channel was coming in due time. He suggested that the day would be nearer as soon as it was evident that Germany was becoming "demoralized." The prime minister said that the Allied drive in Africa had as its primary objective the "exposure of the underbelly of the Axis, especially Italy, to heavy attacks."

The extent of the armada that had carried American and British forces to the shores of North Africa was disclosed by Oliver Lyttleton, British minister of production, who said that 500 transports and 350 warships had comprised the mammoth invasion fleet.

DRAFT: Inductions Soar

Induction of 18 and 19-year-olds into the nation's armed forces by January 1, 1943, appeared certain as the senate finally approved legislation lowering the selective service induction age. In order to fill military requirements up to the first of the year, local boards throughout the country indicated they would soon have to begin drafting childless married men.

Final impediment to the law's passage was hurdled when a group of senators decided not to press their attempt to require a full year's training for all the 18 and 19-year-olds before they could be sent into combat service overseas. The house had previously approved a measure eliminating this feature.

Meanwhile, selective service headquarters disclosed that local boards had been advised that "increasing demands of the armed forces require that a large number of men in essential activities who are liable for service be released for induction."

This meant that war plants would have to release key workers for the army and navy.

RUSSIAN FRONT: Nazi Drives Stalled

Communiques from Moscow took on an increasing note of optimism as the Russians maintained that the German offensive against the Red lines from the Baltic to the Black sea had been smashed for the year.

Southeast of Nalchik where the German drive for the strategic Trans-Caucasian military highway had been stalled, the Russ defenders continued to repel attacks. Elsewhere in the Caucasus the Reds were holding the Nazis well in check. Soviet armies continued to keep a German force encircled in the mountainous vicinity of Tuapse, Black sea base, and thwarted every enemy attempt to break through.

The defenders of Stalingrad continued their heroic resistance. While small enemy detachments infiltrated from the south these were thrown back. Meanwhile Soviet troops northwest of the city continued to harass the Germans.

SOUTH-PACIFIC: MacArthur Pincer

Slam-bang warfare continued in the air and on the ground in the South Pacific, with American and Australian forces pressing the Japs hard on New Guinea and at Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands.

General MacArthur's headquarters reported that at Olvi on New Guinea, Allied forces were using pincer tactics to squeeze the Japs out. Australian columns had cut off a

GEN. DOUGLAS MacARTHUR . . . Pincer squeezes Japs.

Japanese retreat by means of a flanking movement. The Japs' effort to cut their way through to the rear had been stopped by American troops flown by aerial transport to the vicinity of Buna, 55 miles north-east of the Olvi battleground in the Owen Stanley mountain area.

At Guadalcanal, American troops met enemy attempts to recapture Henderson airfield by an offensive that threw the Japs back several miles. An example of spectacular heroism in the Guadalcanal fighting was cited by a navy department release recounting the feat of Marine Pvt. Albert A. Schmid, whose companions in arms say he killed more than 200 Japs in a single night, while manning a machine gun.

From Washington came a navy communique announcing the sinking of seven more Jap ships in the southwest Pacific by American submarines.

U. S. ARMED FORCES: To Total 9,700,000

Armed forces for the United States totaling 9,700,000 by the end of 1943 were envisioned by President Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt's estimates included an army of 7,500,000, a navy of 1,500,000 and marines and coast guard forces totaling 700,000.

The bulk of future additions to the military forces will go to the army, whose present strength is 4,500,000, the President pointed out. The navy will be augmented by 500,000 and the marine corps and coast guard by 300,000 men during the next 12 months.

On the basis of calculations that it requires nine workers to support one fighting man in the field, the President's estimates would mean that a working force of 87,300,000 men and women at home would be needed to back up the armed forces.

DOAN'S PILL

GHOST PLANE

By ARTHUR STRINGER

W. N. U. SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Because he and his partner, Cruger, need the money to keep Norland Airways in business, Alan Slade agrees to fly a "scientist" named Frayne and his partner, Karnell, to the Anawotto river in search of the trumpeter swan. With the proceeds Cruger buys a plane, a Lockheed, which is stolen. When he returns from the Anawotto Slade starts out to look for the plane. He has three clues, one of which appears to have led up a blind alley. Slade thought the missing plane had some connection with Frayne, but when he returned to where he left the swan-hunter there was no trace of the plane, and Frayne appeared to be hunting swans. The second clue is the story of Umanak, an Eskimo, about a "ghost" plane that appeared to come from Echo Harbor. The third clue is Slade's hunch that if he finds a flyer named Slim Tumstead he will find the plane. Tumstead, who was supposed to be the Lockheed and about whom no one has heard since he disappeared. Now Slade, Frayne, Cruger and Karnell, are all out looking for the plane. Slade has just learned that his hunch was sound. Tumstead is with Frayne, and they have a plane somewhere.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER XIII

"On the contrary," retorted the older man, "you will sail away quite comfortably on the Kovalevka when she takes out her cargo. You will be carried safe and sound to Vladivostok, with money enough, remember, to give you three years of travel in Europe and all the vodka your heart may desire."

Tumstead seemed to be considering this.

"But why doesn't your Kovalevka show up?" he questioned.

"She will come," was the precise answer, "when we are ready for her. Ice conditions have not been of the best. And we, too, have been a little slow in getting our shipment in shape."

"So damned slow," Tumstead retorted, "your stuff won't be any use to you. While you're combing the feticles out of your hair the war'll be over."

"Silence," commanded the steely voice. "The men of my race are not to do what they are commanded to do."

"And some of it," retorted the other, "I'd call uncommonly dirty work."

"It is not for you to question the nature of my work."

Tumstead's laugh was harsh.

"No, I'm merely a flyer," he acceded. "But I'm not the kind who can keep a ship going without gas."

It was the older man's turn to stand thoughtful.

"That is a problem," he finally said, "which we must in some way solve."

Tumstead's repeated laugh was edged with bitterness.

"I've gathered in everything that's lying round loose between here and the Pole," he protested. "And the next pinch may put us all in the dog-house."

"I think not," said the other. "And we have a problem more imminent."

"What problem?"

"Those snoopers which you spoke of. A means must be found to discourage them." The speaker's glance circled about in the uncertain light that surrounded him.

"They may be closer than we imagine."

As Frayne disappeared within the tent Tumstead groped about for his fallen cup and reached once more for the coffeepot. Slade, watching him, backed quietly away through the underbrush. But his retreat was a brief one. He worked his way down the hollow between the hills and slowly ascended the opposing slope. Then, seeking what cover he could find, he circled back toward the lake front. He stopped, from time to time, to listen and then, as he went, came to a place where the object of his search was hidden.

His objective was the shadowy angle of spruce trees at the water's edge. He noticed, as he drew near, how a rough ramp of spruce logs had been built out from the inside. It was so plainly a landing place, to make easier the passing of heavy freight into a plane cabin, that no shock of surprise touched him when he peered under the fitted treetops. For, standing there in the shadows, he saw the stolen Lockheed.

He climbed to the rough-timbered ramp and advanced to where two filled ore bags stood together at its outer edge. He stooped over one of the bags, intent on determining its contents.

He failed to see the bare-shouldered and burly figure that emerged from the tree shadows behind him and quietly reached for a spruce log as long as the long bar arm that welded it.

He failed to hear any movement as a newcomer crept forward, as silent as a shadow, and brought the man down on the stooping log.

He fell down like a clouted log.

As consciousness slowly returned, he found it no easy matter to get up. His head and his body seemed to quiver in helplessness.

As he came to his feet, he saw the shadow of his frame merged with the shadow of a motor, and he remembered the fact that he was in a plane, and that plane was in flight.

He failed to see the bare-shouldered and burly figure that emerged from the tree shadows.

He thought, at first, that his bodily helplessness was due to being so tightly wedged in between soiled ore bags and the pilot's seat. But it was due, he found after an effort or two to move, to the fact that both his hands and feet were tied.

Memory came back to him as he lay back trying to figure out the reason for all this. The final mists eddied away as he looked up and saw that the man at the controls was Tumstead. Slade made no effort to speak. Instead, he quietly tugged and twisted, in the hope of freeing himself. But his struggles were without result.

The plane's pilot, however, must have become conscious of them, for his smile was sardonic as he glanced back over a shrugging shoulder.

"Coming round?" he nonchalantly called out.

"What does this mean?" demanded Slade.

Tumstead flew on for a moment or two of silence.

"It means you're lucky to be alive," he finally announced. "That bulldog who knocked you out went back for his Luger. He was all set to give you the works."

Slade seemed to be giving thought to that statement.

"What are you going to do with me?" he asked.

"That," retorted Tumstead, "is what I'm trying to figure out. The easiest way, of course, would be to drop you overboard. And that's where you'd go, all right, if we both weren't flyers."

"Then as one flyer to another," Slade asked, "why did you steal this plane?"

Tumstead's reply to that was a snort of laughter.

"That's my own affair," he said. "And you should have known better than nose in on it."

"You're flying for Frayne," said his prisoner.

"Can you suggest anything better?"

Slade considered that question.

"Yes," he answered, "I know something better."

"What?"

"To head back to Waterways with this Lockheed, while there's still a chance of saving your scalp."

Tumstead's laugh was hard and reckless.

"Not on your life," he proclaimed. "It's your scalp you need to worry about. And it's going to be some time before you get back to Waterways."

"Why do you say that?"

Tumstead's glance went over the terrain beneath his floats.

"Because, a little farther on, I'm going to drop you where you'll stay anchored for a considerable stretch of time," he said.

Slade's response to that was to struggle against the cords constricting his wrists and ankles. But those struggles, he still found, were useless.

"Are we over the Anawotto?" questioned Slade, embittered by the thought of his helplessness.

"We are," answered Tumstead. "And it's sure empty country."

Slade's trained ear told him, a minute later, that they were dropping lower. But from where he lay he could see nothing of the outside world. He concluded, from the length of time that Tumstead taxied along the surface, that the waterway on which they had landed was by no means a small one. He could hear the grating of the pontoons on a gravel bar.

"All out," cried Tumstead.

He half-swung and half-tossed his prisoner ashore, where with a still deeper sense of helplessness Slade tumbled full length along the pebbled slope. There, after taking a shuddering breath or two, he writhed and twisted about until he was able to fight his way back to a sitting posture.

"So you're going to leave me here?" he said.

"I am," said Tumstead. "And I can't waste time on talk."

"But why are you doing this?" persisted Slade.

"Because you got too ambitious."

Slade watched the plane being warped around in the shallows. A surge of desolation swept over him as he glanced about at the ice-scored and barren-ridged island surrounded by its lonely reaches of open water. That island, he saw, had little to offer him. Any scrub timber that grew between its ridges, he realized, would be too small for the making of a raft. And even with a raft to deliver him from that watery prison, he further realized as he stared about at the distant blue-hazed horizon, he would face a wilderness quite empty of life.

"I won't get away," he said, "and you know it."

Tumstead's laugh was defensively gruff.

"Let's hope for the best," he said as he turned back to his cabin. He emerged, a moment later, with a sheath-knife in an old and battered holster. But as the other man unsheathed the knife Slade saw that the blade was keen-edged and long. His eye remained on Tumstead as he stepped closer, the knife in his hand. The quick look of apprehension that came from his captive caused Tumstead's dark face to crease with a smile.

"I'm not that yellow," the latter announced as he stooped and cut the cords that bound Slade's wrists together. He was about to do the same with the cords that bound the ankles. But on second thought he drew back and replaced the knife in its sheath. This, after a moment's hesitation, he tossed a few paces farther up the shore slope, discreetly out of reach. Then as Slade sat trying to work life back into his benumbed hands the older man coolly explored the other's pockets. From them he extracted a lighter and a package of cigarettes.

A cynic smile played about his lips as he touched the little flame to a cigarette end and tossed the lighter back to its owner.

"You may need that," he observed. "But seeing I've been out of fags for over a week I'll keep the smokes."

"So that's all the chance you give me," said Slade, watching him as he luxuriatedly inhaled.

"It's about all I can afford," Tumstead said as he swung about and glanced down at his fellow-flyer. No look of commiseration softened the older man's face. But for a moment a frown of meditation wrinkled his forehead, a frown followed by a small shoulder movement of dismissal.

"Happy landing," was his curtly ironic exclamation as he turned away and climbed aboard his ship.

The man on the beach waited for the roar of the motor. But that familiar crescendo of sound failed to greet him. What he heard, instead, was Tumstead's cynically indifferent voice calling down to him. At the same time a package was tossed ashore.

"That's a pound of German army chocolate," Tumstead announced as he tossed still another object toward the motionless figure on the shore slope. "And here's a can of bully-beef."

He shrugged when no word of gratitude came from that still motionless figure.

"And here's something for your cigarettes," was Tumstead's last curt call as he threw overboard an empty tobacco-tin which struck Slade on the shoulder and came to a rest between his throbbing knees.

Slade sat watching the plane as it taxied across the gray-blue water and roach in the air. He continued to watch as it headed northward over the blue-misted ridges and faded away along the empty skyline.

He sat without moving until the ache in his tightly bound ankles reminded him of other things. Then he looked about for the sheath-knife. He gave a gulp of gratitude when he saw it lying there, within ten paces of him. It took him some time to worm his way to the knife. But a little of the listlessness went out of his face as his fingers closed about the heavy haft.

He lost no time in sawing through the cords and freeing his feet. When he attempted to stand up, however, he discovered that his benumbed legs were unable to support him. He had to sit there, for several minutes, waiting for feeling to come back to them.

Greater Farm Safety Part of War Program

Accidents Cost People $4,000,000 During '41

"I knew I shouldn't have done it," is a remark often made by accident victims after the damage has been done. And because the war now makes the full working ability of every man and woman more important than ever before, greater accident-prevention care should be taken.

Accidents cost the American people $4,000,000 in wages, medical expenses, insurance, and property damage last year. A total of 102,500 persons were killed, 350,000 permanently disabled and 8,950,000 temporarily injured.

Much has been written on how to prevent accidents, but the best remedy is individual care and thoughtfulness.

Common among the causes of accidents is placing hands between gears, chains, cutter knives, or other parts of machinery in motion. In addition to avoiding this danger,

A picture of an excellent Spartanburg county, South Carolina, farm showing strip rotation of cotton and small grain, with the small grain followed by annual lespedeza.

other precautions are listed as follows:

Do not cut toward yourself when using a knife.

Do not climb a ladder until it is properly placed, firm and steady.

Use a safety rope or strap when climbing a tree for pruning.

Drive tractor and car carefully.

Field machinery will last longer if operated at moderate speed. Farm machinery and equipment, as well as industrial machinery, are now provided better than ever with safety devices.

Tung Nuts

Back in 1904, Dr. David Fairchild of the government bureau of plant industry secured a quantity of Tung nuts from China. They were planted widely in this country, in all except cold climates, and from this beginning, has sprung a new industry which aims to furnish essential quick-drying oil to the paint industry.

"A bumper crop in 1940 provided 5,000,000 pounds of tung nuts with a million dollar income to growers. A narrow belt in the southern states, 50 to 100 miles wide, has been found best suited to growing tung trees.

These come into bearing in the third year. They yield nuts with woody hulls the size of small apples inside of which are from three to seven seeds. Machinery used in crushing the seeds is similar to that used for crushing oil from cotton seed, peanuts and soybeans. The residue left is pressed into cakes and returned to the grower who uses it for fertilizer.

During the last ten years, before the outbreak of the war with Japan, oil valued at ten million dollars was imported from China each year. Much of this was of inferior grade and adulterated with other oils. It has sold from 5.1 cents to as high as 27.2 cents per pound in barrels at New York. With this foreign supply unavailable, the superior American product is finding a ready market.

Mills equipped for dehulling and crushing tung seed have been established in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Is Your Food Pounding Up?

In a population of 133 million, appetites vary tremendously. There may be dainty eaters while others are hearty eaters, but adding machine experts have calculated that each of us would have had on the average, 1,422 pounds of food in a year if all the food were evenly divided in the five-year period 1920-1924. In the "prosperity" years 1925-1929 the average went up 52 pounds to 1,474 pounds.

An Unusual House Plant

Ceropegia Woodii is a tender tropical vine, native to tropical Asia, Africa and the Malay peninsula. It is excellent for hanging baskets in the house or on the porch. The thin wire stems hang straight down with fleshy leaves along their length about every two inches, and light gray colored bulbs every so often. Leaves are heart-shaped, thick and leathery, with silver and green variegations. From the description, you can readily see how the plant received its common name.

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PADDY THE BEAVER'S HOUSE

JERRY MUSKRAT was very much interested when he found that Paddy the Beaver, who, you know, is his cousin, was building a house. Jerry is a house-builder himself, and right down deep in his heart he very much doubted if Paddy could build as good a house as he could. His house was down in the Smiling Pool, and Jerry thought it a very wonderful house, indeed, and was very proud of it. It was built of mud and sod and little alder and willow twigs and bulrushes. Jerry had spent one winter in it and he had decided to spend another there after he had fixed it up a little. So as long as he didn't have to build a brand-new one he could afford the time to watch his cousin Paddy. Perhaps he hoped that Paddy would ask his advice.

But Paddy did nothing of the kind. He had seen Jerry Muskrat's house, and he had smiled. But he had taken great pains not to let Jerry see that smile. He wouldn't have hurt Jerry's feelings for the world. He is too polite and good-natured to do anything like that. So Jerry sat on the end of an old log and watched Paddy work. The first thing to do was to build the foundation. This was of mud and grass, with sticks worked into it to hold it together. Paddy dug the mud from the bottom of his new pond. And because the pond was new, of course, there was a great deal of grassy sod there, which was just what Paddy needed.

"All right," replied Paddy, "that will be fine."

Jerry watched a little while and then, because Jerry is a worker himself, he just had to get busy and help. Rather timidly, he told his big cousin that he would like to have a share in building the new house.

"All right," replied Paddy, "that will be fine. You can bring mud while I am getting the sticks and grass."

So Jerry dived down to the bottom of the pond and dug up mud and piled it on the foundation and was happy. The little stars looked down and twinkled merrily as they watched the two workers. So the foundation grew and grew down under the water. Jerry was very much surprised at the size of it. It was ever and ever so much bigger than the foundation for his own house.

You see, he had forgotten how much bigger Paddy was. Of course he would need a much bigger house. So each night Jerry and Paddy worked, resting during the daytime. Occasionally Bobby Coon or Reddy Fox or Uncle Billy Possum or Jimmy Skunk would come to the edge of the pond to see what was going on. Peter Rabbit came every night. But they couldn't see much, because, you know, Paddy and Jerry were working under water.

But at last Peter was rewarded. There, just above the water, was a splendid platform of mud and grass and sticks. There were a great many sticks carefully laid as soon as the platform was above the water, for Paddy was very particular about this. You see, it was to be the floor for the splendid room he was planning to build. When it suited him he began to pile mud in the very middle. Jerry couldn't understand this. He puzzled and puzzled over it, while he helped to bring the mud. Where was Paddy's room going to be if he piled up the mud that way? But he didn't like to ask questions, so he kept right on helping. Paddy would dive down to the bottom and then come up with double handfuls of mud, which he held against his chest. He would scramble out on the platform and waddle over to the pile in the middle, where he would put the mud.

And so the mud-pile grew and grew until it was quite two feet high. "Now," said Paddy, "I'll build the walls and I guess you can't help me much with those. I'm going to begin them tomorrow night. Perhaps you will like to see me do it, Cousin Jerry."

"I certainly will," replied Jerry, still puzzling over that pile of mud in the middle.

Treat Constipation This Gentler Way!

Many folks say that almost as bad as constipation are harsh cathartics and purges. That's because many medicinal laxatives work this way: they either prod the intestines into action or draw moisture into them from other parts of the body.

Now comes news of a gentler and pleasanter way of treating constipation, for the millions of people with normal intestines whose trouble is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. This way is by eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, a crisp, delicious cereal, and drinking plenty of water. ALL-BRAN, unlike many medicinal laxatives, acts principally on the contents of the colon and helps you to have easy, normal elimination. ALL-BRAN is made of Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, better see your doctor.

W.M.U. Sends Contributions to Orphan's Home

The Women's Missionary Union of the First Baptist church met last Thursday and Friday at the church for their annual preparation of the Buckners' Orphans Home boxes. After a regular business meeting Thursday, a quilt was started and finished Friday. Two huge boxes were filled with clothing, canned goods and three quilts, made by the members. A cash offering was also made.

A covered dish luncheon was served Thursday. Members of the Committee soliciting material for the boxes were Mrs. L. M. Hunt, Mrs. Chas. Powell, Mrs. Kim Haynes, Mrs. Jas. F. Stanley, Mrs. S. A. Marie and Mrs. W. C. Buis.

Rev. Stanley Returns From Convention

Rev. Jas. F. Stanley returned Saturday from the Baptist General Convention of Texas, held last week in Ft. Worth. He reported that some ten thousand messengers and visitors attended the convention which met in the Roger Williams Memorial Hall.

Reports were made on all phases of the work, which covered the Missions, Benevolents, and Educational institutions. The Executive Board announced that an indebtedness of $400,000.00 accumulated through past years, was almost paid, and pledges given for the small balance.

The Board laid out the work for the next year, ending Nov. 1, 1943, and estimated the cost to be $1,200,000.00. This money will be used in Mission work at home, in the State and foreign countries, as well as for educational work in the Baptist churches.

An offering was taken for the Home Mission Emergency fund, the purpose of which is to help establish churches and workers in the crowded defense areas.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Fehr, president of the Fehr Baking Company, San Antonio, spent the week end at St. Charles Hunting Club duck hunting. Roscoe Johnson, their guide, reports good shooting, as limits were brought in both days.

Mrs. Curtis Atchley, who has been in Port O'Connor with her husband, who is in the army stationed there, moved back to town Tuesday and is now employed by Rice Brothers & Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Pat Autry visited in Bayside last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gentry and children, Janet and Carl Kenneth, were in Victoria visiting Mr. Gentry's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Gentry over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Stierly of Houston have moved to Rockport, and Mr. Stierly is now employed with Rice Brothers and Company shipyard.

Mrs. J. W. Brundrett went to Palacios Tuesday to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Sorenson.

Did You Know That

Chief C. L. Grant, Captain of the Port of Rockport, U. S. Coast Guard, now has to arise before day in line of duty. He has also been busy from daylight to dusk, having to pilot a jeep and chauffeur a boat, besides issuing identification cards, boat licenses, etc.

Mike Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Johnson, celebrated his first birthday Wednesday. The celebration included birthday cake, candle and all the trimmings. Wednesday was also the birthday of Mary Virginia Jackson, Mrs. N. F. Jackson and Delo Caspary.

Jack Davis and Stanley Biss went duck hunting Sunday. Jack brought in his ducks, verified by his wife, Pearl Bissett, around to defend the ducks, but to eye witnesses, shots were fired, but where is his duck?

Mrs. George Adolphus, away down in New Orleans with George, is spending leisure time having her tonsils removed.

Mr. and Mrs. King of Palm Courts served their guests Sunday with three watermelons grown back of one of the cottages. Some time during the summer, someone had watermelon and the seed were dropped. One seed became ambitious, grew and there were three.

Fred Hunt, local tailor and barber, blocks the Red Cross sweaters for the class free of charge.

A. R. Curry observes now that most of his guests at Port Bay have gone home, that duck hunting is pretty good. Betcha' that was what those ducks were waiting for, Capt.

Henry Ballou brought in a limit of ducks last week. Swears he killed them himself. Amount of ammunition used undisclosed.

Fifth Grade Presents P. T. A. Program

The Rockport Parent-Teacher Association met Wednesday afternoon, and were entertained by the Fifth Grade students who gave their victory play, "America My Home," which has made a hit, this being the third presentation of the pageant.

After the regular business meeting, the Fifth Grade was awarded a picture, the prize for having the greatest number of mothers and visitors present.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Rozell of Victoria were in Rockport for the week-end.

John Sorenson spent the week end in Houston visiting his grandson John Curry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Laurits Sorenson, who had his appendix removed last week.

Mrs. Henry Bailey returned from Beeville Tuesday where she has been visiting relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. George Moore, former residents of Rockport, now making their home in Alice, were in Town Wednesday seeing old friends.

Patti Ballou, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Ballou pulled a ligament loose in her right wrist while playing volleyball at school Monday. The injury is quite painful and she will be inconvenienced for the next week by carrying an arm in a sling.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICE

Thanksgiving day services are held by the mother church, the first church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, and its branches throughout the world. The order of service includes the reading of a lesson-sermon on the topic of "Thanksgiving." Opportunity is also afforded those present to give testimonies of gratitude appropriate to the occasion.

The Golden Text is: "I will praise the name of God with a song and will magnify him with thanksgiving" (Psalms 69:30).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Give thanks unto the Lord, call upon his name, make known his deeds among the people.—Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name: bring an offering, and come before him, worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness" (I Chronicles 16:2).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from Christian Science text: "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary B. Eddy: "Gratitude is much more than a verbal expression of the heart. It is a power which expresses more gratitude than speech" (page 3).

War Bond Sales Is Goal Of Women At War Week Nov. 22

WASHINGTON, D. C.—America's women in the cities and on the farms war factories and in their homes—are determined to make Women At War Week the greatest War Bond selling effort since Pearl Harbor.

"Little things" to promote money for War Bonds. We women want to be hard, we want to be of this strenuous because unless we will not be able to do the men when they claim our future responsibility for building a world, the First

During Women At War Week volunteer War Bond saleswomen will wear an armband similar to the one being attached to the sleeve of Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., by Miss Harriet Elliott.

The overall direction of Women At War Week rests with the Women's Section of the War Savings Staff under the leadership of Miss Harriet Elliott, Associate Field Director, and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Chief of the Special Activities Unit.

From coast to coast women in every community have made plans for torchlight parades, fashion shows, teas, rallies, store window displays, Stamp and Bond booths, pageants, civic sings, balls and mardi gras. In each locality administration of the one week drive rests with the local War Savings Committee which has worked out activities adapted to their areas.

Mrs. Morgenthau, in a special message for Women At War Week, declared that the spirit of America's pioneer women lives today more strongly than ever.

"The average American woman began to rise to new heights on Sunday, Dec. 7, 1941," Mrs. Morgenthau said. "This winter the average American woman will be spending less in order to save more to invest in War Bonds and Stamps. She will not, please God, ever have to fire a gun or fly a bomber. But she will, please God, always do everything she can to help buy anything—and the best of everything—that fires or flies or floats in this terrible war."

WOMEN AT WAR—Overalls, wrenches and drills replace fineries as these war workers in an Army Arsenal march to tank repair shops. Note the determination on their faces. These women are typical of hundreds of thousands who are working in war factories and investing part of their earnings in War Bonds.

Mrs. Roosevelt (left) says women help men at front by buying War Bonds. At right is the lapel tag which volunteers will wear during Women At War Week, Nov. 22 to 28.

Ev'rybody Ev'ry Pay Day 6,000,000 Women Enrolled in War Savings Payroll Plan.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Women At War Week, opening Nov. 22, during which women will seek to sell the greatest single week's volume of War Bonds and Stamps will serve to put the spotlight on the mighty contribution women generally are making toward financing the war.

Six million women are on War Savings payroll plans. Their monthly deductions total $70,000,000.

The customers of 300,000 newspaper boys who have sold more than $50,000,000 in War Bonds and Stamps are mostly women.

Volunteer saleswomen run nearly all the Bond booths in theatres from Maine to California. They also are sparking the War Bond sales in retail stores.

Ralph G. Engelsman, Associate Field Director of the payroll savings section of the War Savings Staff, readily admits that without the support of women the phenomenal record of payroll savings enrollments would not have been achieved.

Payroll savings plans are now in operation in 148,000 businesses and factories. Employees of twenty-five thousand of these firms are converting at least 10 percent of gross payrolls into War Bonds every payday.

Associate Field Director Engelsman says that women have contributed directly and indirectly toward this record. When a man devoted 10 or more percent of his pay envelope to War bonds, the woman at home has had a powerful voice in the decision. Her planning, her economies and her cheerfulness play their part in the success of payroll savings.

The Treasury Department is counting upon this woman influence in its current campaign to "top that 10 percent by New Year's." By the first of the year the Treasury hopes to enroll at least 3,000,000 women workers in a payroll savings plan

'This Is My Fight Too'

Proud of her investment in the American way of life and equally proud of the grime of war production on her face and arms, the young lady in this "Women At War Week" poster symbolizes two of the chief activities of women at war.

and 5,000,000 more men with total deductions for War Bonds over the 10 percent mark.

and Mrs. H. G. Smith Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary Monday

Reaching the golden pinnacle of their married life on November 16, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Smith, pioneer Rockport couple, are healthy, happy and looking forward to the "second half" of their matrimonial journey.

"We've made the first 50 years and are now starting on the second half," Mr. Smith said jovially.

Their first fifty years of married life have been busy ones, but both still find happiness and contentment in being busy. They have also been blessed with an unbroken family circle, and a large one it is too, with four daughters and five sons having been reared in the Smith household.

There are seventeen grandchildren and five great-grandchildren to share their attention.

The children are: Miss Sarah Smith, Mrs. Alvin Brundrett, and Casterline, Mrs. Fred Diederich, Francis Smith, Somer Smith, Austin Smith, Lloyd Smith of Rockport, and Thomas Smith of Houston.

The five great-grandchildren are Bettie Lou Garrett, Charles Frederick Garrett, Jimmie Lyle Garrett, Frances Lee Deason, and Lind Deason.

The golden wedding anniversary was observed simply, but in a most enjoyable way. At noon Mr. and Mrs. Smith were guests of their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Smith, for dinner. The children came during the day and visited with their parents, and in the evening all gathered and brought along sandwiches, cake and punch.

Those present in the evening included the following children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Diederich, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Casterline, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Brundrett, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Edric Deason, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Garrett, Miss Sarah Belle Smith, Francis Lee and Linda Beth Deason, Billie Lou, Charles and Jim Lyle Garrett, Bonnie, Lanelle, Vanda, Jackie and Carolyn Smith, Travis Lee, Charles Hamon and Collen Smith.

Mrs. Smith was born in Refugio county on July 23, 1875, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Canevaro. Mr. Smith was born Feb. 1, 1867, about six and a half miles south of Rockport. The Canevaro family moved to Fulton and the two young people became acquainted early in life.

"I didn't go with anybody very much steady," Mr. Smith said when questioned about his courtship.

"Just believe your part of that," Mrs. Smith told the reporter. Both Mr. and Mrs. Smith enjoy joking.

It was a strange coincidence that brought about joining of the Canevaro and Smith families through marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Smith. Antonio Canevaro and the late F. M. Smith, father of H. G. Smith, were seafaring men. Canevaro went to sea as a lad from his native land of Italy, while the romance and adventure of the sea lured Smith from his home in Maine.

Canevaro and Smith made many voyages as youthful sailors. Then a storm wrecked the boat on which Smith was sailing. He reached shore at Port Aransas. Sometime later Canevaro was also shipwrecked off Port Aransas. Both liked this country, decided to stay, later married and reared families. Capt. Smith was drowned in 1875 when his lumber schooner sank off Pass Cavallo. His son, H. G. Smith, was then eight years old.

All his life, Mr. Smith has been a busy man. He has done fishing, boat work, freighting, and has operated service cars. At one time he and his brother made good money knitting nets by the pound.

"I didn't know what a day's work was," he said. "If it was an eight hour day job I'd get two jobs."

Mr. Smith's knowledge of knitting has served him well in his later years as a means of providing him something to do. During the past five or six years he has knitted more than 300 throw-nets, forty-five of them this year.

With an average of some 18,000 knots tied in each net, he has tied somewhere around 6 million knots in making the three hundred nets.

"I've got to be busy or I'd go crazy," Mr. Smith said.

Mrs. Smith also finds plenty to do. She crochets and embroiders a lot. Several years ago she completed a crocheted bedspread, but says it was too much and won't start another. She now has a big box full of fancy work, and chances are children and grandchildren will be recipients of appreciated Christmas gifts from this box.

With the Men In Service

G. Young, J. R., the Maritime Service Training Station, St. Petersburg, Fla., writes Judge B. S. Fox that he will be there until about Jan. 15, and then hopes to come home on leave.

Pvt. Lewis Harrell is taking his nine weeks basic training course at Camp Butler, North Carolina.

Jack Kenemer, Lyle Diederich, Gerald Adolphus, and Harry Drigger of Robstown, Seabees, stationed at Port Huene, California, spent a recent leave together in reviewing Hollywood.

D. C. McBride, Jr. (Don), who is now stationed on Midway Island writes home he has been made Second Class Petty Officer in the U. S. Navy.

Fancher Archer, stationed at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Maryland is attending officer candidate school and specializing in ammunition. He will finish the course January 2.

Corp. Stanley S. Shults, stationed in Port O'Connor spent the week-end visiting his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Shults and family.

Pvt. Norvell Jackson is now with the 506th Squadron, Wendover Field, Utah, where he works with B-24's. He finished an aviation mechanic at Sheppard Field early and was then transferred to Lake City, Tennessee, and then to his present assignment.

Marines First Showed Mettle With Washington

Washington.—The U. S. Marines, whose 167th anniversary occurs tomorrow, earned the fear and respect of the Japanese as far back as 1853.

They were the first to land on Japanese soil when Commodore Perry dropped anchor in Tokyo Bay on the morning of July 8, 1853, and went ashore to negotiate a treaty opening Japan to foreign trade.

The Marines formed lines on both sides of the route from Perry's flagship at the dock to the reception hall.

Although no fighting took place, the Japanese were greatly impressed by the uniforms, discipline and precision drill of the Marines. Their presence contributed greatly to the success of the undertaking.

Today they are teaching the Japs a new sort of respect — by their marksmanship and tenacity.

Pvt. Leon Bullington spent two days home this week. He is stationed at Port O'Connor.

Clarence "Rusty" Harris, son of Mrs. Cassie Black, is a Tech. Corporal, now stationed in Clovis, New Mexico. He is in the Railroad Battalion, 713 Company C, which is the largest company of Engineers in the world.

Mrs. Harris, who has been living in Clovis returned to her home in Refugio, last week. Mrs. Harris was the former Mrs. Becky Ryals of Refugio, and they were married last June.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Sparks of Refugio spent the week-end visiting Raymond's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Sparks and family.

Highway Patrol Faces Shortage of Men

AUSTIN.—Only 27 of the more than 80 vacancies in the Texas Highway Patrol will be filled by the current training school, State Police director Homer Garrison said today.

In peacetime as many as 7,000 men sought to take the patrol examinations, but the war has so reduced the supply of available manpower that those thousands were reduced to hundreds, of which only 130 were found eligible to take the recent examination. Only 43 passed. Physical examinations and character investigations reduced that number to 27.

The rookies entered training school at camp Marby November 2 and will graduate about Christmas eve, highway patrol chief Hill Foreman said. Their day begins at 6 a. m. and ends at 10 p. m., and the rookies vow that the Marine "boot camp" at San Diego couldn't be any tougher.

WARNING

Before You Build, Buy, Remodel or Wire Any House or Building

PLEASE CHECK WITH US TO MAKE SURE YOU CAN GET THE UTILITY SERVICE YOU WANT

We are anxious to serve you, and want your business, but, because of the War, Uncle Sam must come first. Copper and Steel used in our business now provide our men in the Armed Forces with shells, guns, tanks and planes. To conserve these vital materials, government regulations make it practically impossible to build any NEW or EXTEND utility lines. Even one additional wire to a house to serve an electric range can not be strung if the house is piped for gas . . . So, if you are going to move, or make any changes—don't assume that utility service will be available as usual. FIND OUT THE FACTS BEFORE YOU ACT. Check with us! . . . We'll do all we can to serve you.

MOVING

If you have an electric range, find out first if your new home has 3-wire service to the house. Don't be disappointed!

MOVING YOUR BUSINESS?

If your business or plant requires higher voltage than 110-120, check your new building first to see if the service you need is available. Save yourself money in advance!

VIRTUE

By EMMA FORESTER
McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

BOYCE MANN groaned inwardly
as Flora Walters pushed her chair back from her brilliant dinner
table with her regular invitation:

"Now, people, let's get set for a good game of bridge!"

Ordinarily Boyce did not object to bridge, especially bridge with opponents that played as quietly and cleverly as Flora and Fred. But Flora's soft pink hands moving languidly across a bridge table pained Boyce.

This was rather odd, for Flora's hands were plump and beautifully manicured; but they carried a burden of jewels that raked Boyce's eyes and their many fangs of light.

Boyce never dared look up from the cards on the table lest Bea,
his wife, or the Walters, would read the agony passing through his mind. He knew how Bea felt,
too, and that made the ache of his much worse.

The game flagged for a moment
as the women lighted cigarettes.
Fred, fumbling through his pockets
for his lighter, pulled out a diamond ring which he handed to Flora, remarking as he laid it in her soft and scented hand, "Got this today, on a trade-in of cars. How do you like it?"

Flora grunted amiably through short satisfied puffs of smoke as she turned the ring around aimlessly
and said after a careless inspection:

"I guess it'll do but I don't want it, Fred. It doesn't match a thing
I have, and I'd never wear it."

Bea gave an eager, stifled gasp
as Flora indolently tossed the ring over to her to examine. As it lay in her palm, quivering and gleaming
in its own veil of glory, Flora genially suggested:

"Try it on, Bea."

Bea glowed with the rapture
of a dazzled baby as she slipped
the precious bauble on her finger and held her hand up turning it around for each of the others to see.

Fred Walters, smiling indulgently
at her delight, said with open, easy
cordiality, "Go ahead and keep it, Bea. Flora doesn't want it. Chances are I'll find it a white elephant to dispose of, and even then not realize anything on the transaction."

He offered the gift with quiet and candid dignity. It might have been an apple. His eyes twinkled in pleased response at her happy exclamation.

"Yes, take him up quickly before he changes his mind. That's the way I got these," bantered Flora,
with lazy blinding gestures.

Only Boyce sat silent and grave
as Bea turned her head and her hand to catch the burning loveliness
of the diamond. Her eyes shone.
Boyce knew what swept her mind
and how terrific the urge of acquisition can be. Hadn't he felt it, this same bitter longing on every birthday, Christmas and other anniversary since their engagement—all of their married life?

His breath stopped for an instant as Bea hesitated. His heart gave a cruel twist, then an exultant leap as Bea coolly drew off the ring and handed it back to Flora, saying with unaffected gratitude:

"I think it's lovely of both of you.
But, of course, I just couldn't."

Two hours later Boyce lay awake
behind her as she sat before her dressing table preparing for bed. She looked very girlish and lovely, lovelier even than he remembered her as his bride.

Memory pierced him. What hadn't he promised to do for Bea then?
Yet the years had drifted across the calendar and the most of these deeds remained undone.

How long she had hungered, as she had often said, "For just one diamond."

He knelt beside her and pulled down her fragrant face, kissing her dewy lips and bright eyes.

He chocked miserably.
"Bea darling!"

His voice broke.
Without warning a warm little hand crept into his.

He stammered and trembled as she began again, "Bea, darling! I was so proud of you, so terribly
proud of you, and thankful, too,
when you turned down that diamond ring that Flora and Fred offered you tonight. . . . You poor kid! I know what a sacrifice it was, honey," he went on shakily. But I want to give you your first diamond ring.

"I know how patient you've been, Bea. But if you'll only trust me a little longer. . . .
you'll have them, Bea. Like the other girls. It was brave. . . .
fine. . . of you, darling, to turn down that ring."

"What do you mean. . . . brave?"
demanded Bea rising to face him and laughing brokenly into his bewildered face.

She was exceedingly gallant in that moment as she stood with the muscles of her pretty face as tight
as those of a clenched fist, and lied stanchly as she admonished with a hysterical giggle—a giggle that shattered a stifling sob:

"Don't be silly, Boyce darling. I didn't have to be brave. That stone was too small."

Potatoes, Teamed With Eggs, Are a Delicious Meat-Saver

(See Recipes Below.)

Meat Savers

Voluntary meat rationing is already in process. This period before the actual rationing starts—and limits—each person to 2½ pounds of meat a week is the time for every Mrs. America to take stock and plan for the days ahead—days when she neatly tucks her meat ration book beside her sugar ration books and goes to market.

Sugar rationing has been a challenge, but a challenge which homemakers have met. Meat rationing will be even more of a challenge—
for many are the homes where meat has been set on the table twice and even three times a day. But this challenge, too, will be met, for there are many ways of tiding over the days when meat supplies will be low.

Let's first look at the situation
from the nutritional standpoint, for good health and well-being is a first goal. Meat is primarily preferred because it is what is known as a complete protein—containing all different types of proteins that the body
needs for building and repairing down-and-out tissues.

The sources for protein you'll tap first are fish and fowl, cheese and milk. We have excellent supplies of all these so there will be no excuse for missing out on your quota.
Meat is excellent for its minerals,
but the meat-savers mentioned above are also famous for their minerals—calcium, phosphorus and iron.

Now, let's get down to the business of serving these foods appetizingly and attractively. Fall is the season for many kinds of fish—and your butcher will help you out on what's a real bargain. Canned fish is now somewhat scarce, but fresh-frozen fillets are easy-to-use items, minus the cooking odor which makes them unpleasant. Try this idea:

Fillet in Tomato Sauce.
(Serves 6 to 8)
2 pounds fish fillets (halibut, perch, pike, whitefish, salmon)
2 cups tomato pulp
1 cup water
6 whole cloves
2 bay leaves
6 peppercorns
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar

Place fish on a greased baking sheet and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake or broil 15 to 20 minutes in a hot (425-degree) oven until fillets are cooked and delicately brown. Make sauce by boiling pulp with spices for 20 minutes or until thickened and well blended.

Add salt and sugar. Mix and strain.
Pour over fish and let stand in oven
5 to 7 minutes with sauce before serving.

Baked shrimps in a rich dressing
are a boon to any menu and pick-up
for any appetite:

Baked Shrimp Salad.
(Serves 6)
1½ pounds fresh cooked or canned shrimps
1 cup finely diced celery
¾ cup chopped green pepper
1½ tablespoons chopped pimiento
Salt and pepper
¾ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup mayonnaise
Buttered bread crumbs

Toss together all ingredients,
lightly so as not to break shrimps.
Place in buttered shells or individual casserole dishes. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven until the crumbs are browned. Garnish with lemon curls and serve immediately.

Cheese will be a blessing for many of the days on which you find yourself short and slim on meats.
It's easy to cook if you do just two things: cook it slowly and cook it over indirect heat. There are no strings attached to cheese cooked this way:

Cheese-Macaroni Loaf.
(Serves 6)
3 egg yolks
3 egg whites
1 cup grated American cheese
1 cup milk
1 cup soft-rolled bread crumbs
½ cup macaroni, broken
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon minced onion
½ cup pimiento, minced
Salt and pepper

Cook macaroni in boiling,
salted water about 15 minutes or until tender. Rinse in cold water. Cook onion in butter. Beat yolks, fold in all remaining ingredients, and last mix in stiffly beaten egg whites.
Turn into a buttered baking dish
and bake in a moderate (350-degree)
oven for 30 to 35 minutes.

Eggs smuggling in the flaky white folds of the baked potato are a smart suppers item—and an excellent meat stretcher. This is the way to do it:

Idaho Suzettes.
(Serves 6)
6 medium-sized Idaho potatoes
¾ cup hot milk
2 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons buttered crumbs
Salt and pepper
1 tablespoon grated cheese
6 eggs

Select medium-sized potatoes,
scrub and bake at 450 degrees.
When done, remove a piece of skin
from side of each potato to make it boat-shaped. Scoop out carefully and mash potato thoroughly. Add butter, salt, pepper and hot milk and mix thoroughly. Pile mixture lightly back into shells, refilling almost to top. Break an egg into each nest of potatoes, season, and sprinkle with buttered crumbs mixed with cheese. Bake in a slow (250-300-degree) oven until egg is set and lightly browned. This takes about six minutes.

MOTIVES THAT STRENGTHEN FAMILY LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 2:1-4; Joshua 24:14, 15; Ephesians 5:28-31; 6:1-4.
GOLDEN TEXT—Love never faileth.—
I Corinthians 13:8.

Last week we saw the things which mar the life of the family, now we turn to those things which give strength to the home and to daily life. This is a lesson much needed just now when so much of our normal home life is thrown out of joint.
We begin at the right place when we say that there must be a

I. Recognition of God in the Home

(Exod. 2:1-4; Josh. 24:14, 15).

Failure at this point is without question the great mistake of our day. Christianity touches every phase of life, but nowhere is its blessed influence of greater importance than in the home.

Our lesson suggests that this is to be done in two ways in our homes.

1. By Faith in God (Exod. 2:1-4).
The story of the birth of the babe who was to be Moses, possibly the greatest civic, social and religious leader of all time, reminds us that the Jewish people, who had found favor in the eyes of the Pharaohs in Joseph's time, were now being persecuted. A decree had gone out that all boys were to be destroyed
at birth.

Here were two parents faced with the awful fact that their baby boy was condemned to death. Did they trust God and sent the little one forth on a venture of faith, the charming story of which follows the verses of our lesson. God honored their faith by using their enemies to serve them.

2. Service for God (Josh. 24:14, 15). Joshua, who followed Moses as the God-appointed leader of Israel, was giving his last admonition to his people. He knew how they had repeatedly turned from God in unbelief and sin; yes, that even now
some were worshipping false gods.

He pleads with them to turn to the one true God, but notice that his plea is made effective by the fact that he and his house were serving the Lord. Every man who has a position of leadership in this world is responsible for the use of that place of power, as a testimony for God. Now and then we hear of a high public official in our own land
who loves and serves Christ in sincerity, and our hearts rejoice. The faith of a whole nation may thus be strengthened.

Every one of us has a sphere of influence, and our family life counts
for or against God in our own community and among our own friends.

The members of a family that recognize God have a high

II. Regard for One Another in the Home (Eph. 5:28-31; 6:1-4).
It is pure hypocrisy for the family
to parade an outward show of religion which does not effectively touch the relationships within the home. Incidentally, it is the kind of hypocrisy which is strikingly ineffective—men see through it too easily.

What then does Christianity do for the home itself? It determines, directs, sweetens—yes, glorifies the relation between

1. Husband and Wife (Eph. 5: 28-31). This passage puts marriage on the highest plane, comparing it to the relationship between Christ and the church. Thus marriage is the joining of man and wife in a sacred union which calls forth love
in its highest and noblest sense.

This means that the husband
cherishes his wife as his own body, against which no man would do any harm, and for which he makes every possible provision for its comfort, health, usefulness and attractiveness. Such love between parents will lead the entire home life along in a serene, happy and wholesome way. It will not only double the joy, but will give strength in the hour of sorrow, dividing the griefs
and burdens of life.

It will set the pattern for the right
relation between

2. Parents and Children (Eph. 6:
1-4). The first, and one might almost say the only, law of childhood is obedience. It is God's way to joy and a satisfying life experience
for the child in the Christian home.
The command to obey carries with it the understanding that the parents are "in the Lord." What father or mother is competent to direct a child apart from faith in Christ?

Notice too, that the parent has an obligation to deal intelligently and kindly with the child. We need a great deal of improvement, and perhaps instruction, at that point. Authority asking obedience is necessary, but it can be wise and kind.

Above all, there is to be a divine nurture, a guiding of the tender child life in the ways of God. Here is life's greatest opportunity and its mightiest challenge. How surprising that fathers (and mothers) who are looking for the greatest measure of usefulness to their generation fail to see it in the privilege they have to rear intelligent, godly children.

ON THE HOME FRONT With RUTH WYETH SPEARS

Twelve-inch squares of burlap overcast around the edge made the foundation pieces. Patterns for the repeat design were cut from paper and the burlap was marked by drawing around these with wax crayon. Loops of fabric strips were drawn through with a steel rug hook. Red was used for the curved lines shown at the upper left. Tones of brown for the flower and gray for the cherry background. Mixed colors for the rest of the design.

HERE is a hooked hearth rug
that may some day grow up to room size. So far every female member of the family has hooked
at least one square, and the males
are all represented by materials from cast-off suits, socks and sweaters. The turquoise flowers and red cherries in the alternate squares are from dyed pieces of the old cream colored wool blankets. When the squares are hemmed and sewn together with strong carpet thread, they form a fascinating pattern of circles, flowers and fruit.

Perils of Nyoka

'War Cinderella'

Pleasure radiates from Catherine Hunzinger, 21, "war Cinderella," who overnight took her brother's place helping to produce Cyclone and Whirlwind aircraft engines in Paterson, N. J., when he left to enter the army. For three days before he left sister Catherine stood at the shoulder of brother George, and watched him work a high speed pneumatic grinder, finishing gear and shaft.

Everett Brundrett, who has been seriously ill for some weeks, was taken to the Marine Hospital in Galveston Saturday by ambulance. Mrs. Brundrett and daughter, Violet Marie, accompanied him, and Mrs. Brundrett is staying in Galveston for the time being. His condition remains serious.

C. F. McKinley, who is on a hunting trip near Freer, expects to remain until he bags an elusive deer. He is probably lamenting the fact that we have warm weather, as cold weather is preferable for deer hunting. Meanwhile, Mrs. McKinley is finding out how good walking is.

After a week's stay at the Triple Oaks Camp, Col. and Mrs. P. H. Ridel returned to San Antonio today with a nice catch of trout.
