A Batch of Rubber

Using an ordinary bakery mixer, Tom (left) and Jimmy Richards of Los Angeles, who call themselves "monkey wrench researchers," are shown turning out a batch of the synthetic rubber they have developed. They say it can be produced from waste vegetable matter, waste milk, etc., and can be made for 35 cents a pound, compared with 40 to 70 cents for other synthetics. They say Rubber Czar Jeffers is "interested."

Editor Loses Rod, Reel

A local diver this week back Editor Roy Reazin's new rod and reel, given him by his wife—and incidentally tossed into the "fish bowl" here by the same. Mrs. Reazin was using the new tackle—a $40 layout—which had been presented Reazin as a Christmas gift before they left Harper, Kansas, to come to Rockport fishing. She struck a piling with her arm in throwing from a wharf and the rod slipped from her hand and went to the bottom. The line was retrieved, but in the end it was found the line was not tied to the reel. A diver was found who didn't mind braving the cold and soon the Harper Advocate's editor was fishing again.

Mrs. C. M. Janeeck and children of Corpus Christi, was here Thanksgiving with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bracht.

Numerous Boats Out In Boats

"It was the roughest I've ever seen in Corpus Christi Bay," M. B. Mullinax, Game Warden, who was aboard the state dredge when the blow came in. "It came up so quick we didn't have time to get to shelter." The Mary C. state speed boat, was also grounded at Corpus Christi Pass, after breaking loose. All the pontoons from the dredge washed ashore. The body of Adolph E. Kiesling of Houston, was recovered from the channel at Port Aransas Sunday after a 12-foot skiff capsized in the bay, the result of the high wind that swept this area late Saturday afternoon. His son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Roy Kiesling, also of Houston, escaped death by clinging to a buoy for several hours; when they were rescued by Lt. H. B. Little and two enlisted men. The Kieslings had gone to a duck blind in the bay on a motor launch, but were in the skiff when the 32-mile-an-hour wind swept from the north, causing the 12-foot boat to drift away from the launch. It drifted to a beacon near a reef, where it was swamped as the occupants attempted to tie it up. The three hung to the barnacle covered beacon until exhaustion caused the elderly Kiesling to lose his hold and disappear beneath the waves.

You Can Start Getting that Lb. Coffee for 5 Weeks on Nov. 29

Sugar Stamp No. 27 Will Be First Used For Coffee Rationing

All coffee sales were frozen this week to allow retailers to stock up for rationing which begins Sunday, November 29. On Sunday, if you find a store open to sell it, you can go get a pound of coffee by surrendering the right amount of change and one stamp from your War Rations Book No. 1—the book you have been using for sugar. J. F. Bullard, chairman of the Aransas County War Price and Rationing Board explained today.

In order to prepare for coffee rationing, he advised those who do not have War Ration Book No. 1, or who have lost it, to apply immediately to the local War Price and Rationing Board. "When coffee rationing begins on November 29," he said, "War Ration Book No. 1—which most people probably call the 'sugar book,' will then be used for buying coffee. The stamp in the book No. 28 down to 20 will be the coffee stamps. The first coffee ration stamp is No. 27, then in order follow 28, 25, 26, 23, 24, 21, 22, and 20. He explained that this apparently disconnected sequence of the stamp numbers is to be used because of the arrangement of the stamps in the ration book.

"Another important point to bear in mind," he said "is that only those whose ration books show them to be over 15 years old may purchase a pound of coffee for each of these coffee stamps. Persons who have attained the age of 15 years since the ration book was issued are not eligible to purchase coffee. The reason for this age limitation is to allow larger coffee rations for grownups."

"The first ration period will be for five weeks from November 29 through January 3, 1943. "Consumers who have stocked up on coffee will have to count all above one pound they have on hand Nov. 28 as a part of their ration," he added. "When the consumer applies for War Ration Book No. 2 sometime around the first of the year he will be required to declare the amount of coffee he had on hand at the start of rationing and stamps will be removed from his book to cover any excess supply. This means that the consumer will be unable to continue coffee purchases until he has used up his stock on hand at the rationed rate."

Mr. Bullard explained that coffee stamps in the ration books of children under 15 years of age must be left in their books and will be surrendered when War Ration Book No. 2 is issued. For the benefit of those who live in remote localities or where transportation facilities make the buying of supplies in small quantities a hardship, Mr. Bullard pointed out that a consumer may apply to his Ration Board for a certificate to buy as much as five pounds of coffee at a time, but in such instances, of course, a sufficient number of stamps will be removed by the board to cover such advanced rations.

In spite of the shortage of coffee Mr. Bullard emphasized that the price of coffee is controlled by the OPA regulations and no one should pay more than a particular merchant's ceiling price. Mr. Bullard added a word of warning to coffee buyers advising them not to rush to a store on Nov. 29 with all of a family's ration books and try to buy all of the coffee the stamps in those books might allow.

"There will be enough coffee for everyone," he said. "That is the very reason why rationing is being started. Coffee loses its freshness and flavor is it kept too long and it will be far wiser to buy a pound at a time as it is needed. Stamp No. 27 will be valid for five weeks and most grocers will have coffee all during that period any time it is wanted."

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Vaughan of Freeport were guests of Miss Violet Brundrett Thursday. Mrs. Vaughan is the former Miss Robbie Lee Lindley.

Fish Bowl Is Drawing Large Crowds

Strings of Big Trout Taken from Bowl All During Week

Rockport's widely-famous "fish bowl" began paying off in big trout this week following the cold norther that blew in last Saturday night. Fishing was good Tuesday, slumped Wednesday when the weather warmed, but began getting better again Thursday afternoon following another norther.

With continued cold weather a run of trout equaling that of last Thanksgiving time may be expected by the week-end.

While catches this week were not as big as last winter when tons of trout were taken out of the small craft harbor, most of those caught were big ones. Strings of 10 to 25 were not unusual Tuesday. J. D. Donaldson, as one example, caught 17 trout that dressed out 34 pounds. Fred Mueller brought in a big catch.

More than a hundred people ringed the basin Thursday afternoon, but most of them were from nearby places. There were few out-of-state license plates on autos parked around the harbor's rim, while last year many out of state fishermen came here to enjoy the sport.

Sergeant Curtis Harrist Takes In London Sights From Jeep

Sergeant Curtis Harrist, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Harrist of Rockport, writes an interesting letter from Northern Ireland. The letter was written Oct. 22.

"I have made two trips to the England in two weeks," he wrote. "Went one time and got in one night and turned around and started back the next evening. Went by truck at Uncle's expense. Saw a lot of pretty country. Went through Scotland and England. Did not get to see London the first trip, but stayed all night there the second trip."

"Got to see quite a lot of the place. Got there about five in the evening and stayed until around 10 the next morning. The officer that was with me, or I was with, however it worked, took a 'jeep' and drove around the next morning and got a pretty good look at the town. We saw all the parliament buildings, the Buckingham Palace, where the king and queen live, also Downing Street that I have read about all my life.

"It seemed strange to me in a place like that. I stayed at the 'Washington Club.' I guess you have read about it in the papers.

Farm Fowl Safer Around These Parts Now Since Mundine's Pack Got Old Three-Toe

First, a wolf hunt depends a lot on the pack, and Elbert Mundine's pack it tops. Streak, Boss, Cry-baby, Tex and Jenny, he raised from pups. Rover, who was poisoned by someone about ten days after the hunt, was bought after he was grown.

One Saturday night not so long ago, Mundine left shop, intending to spend a quiet evening at home. A full, bright moon was just coming up when he arrived home, and as he stepped from the car, his dogs all began to beg for a chase. With some uncanny sense they always beg Saturday night, as he never goes hunting through the week.

He was tired, but what a shame to let the dogs down on such a night. Bright, clear, ideal for wolf hunting. Mrs. Mundine, knowing he could not resist the pleas of the hounds, hurriedly prepared supper. Then, with the dogs loaded, Mundine lit out on south Market Street, as complaints had been

Dr. Mitchell Latest Member Of Perch Club

Dr. L. G. Mitchell, local dentist who has fished regularly on his hours off here for the past year, last week became a member of the exclusive Rockport Perch Club. He was made eligible for membership by a tumble from his skiff, heading into the salty brine. "I didn't know I could swim so good," he said on reaching safety.

Robert Sorenson, Jr. Killed In Action

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sorenson Sr. of Victoria received word this week that their son, Robert Sorenson Jr., had been killed in action in Western Europe. Lieut. Sorenson joined the Army two years ago at the Victoria Air Base. He was with the 53rd Signal Battalion and sailed from the United States in August of this year.

Funeral services were held at the Episcopal Church in Victoria at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning. Mr. and Mrs. James Sorenson attended the services and Mr. and Mrs. George Sorenson Sr., returned to Rockport with them for a few days stay. Lieut. Sorenson was a nephew of James Sorenson and a cousin of John C. Sorenson.

More than one hundred auto owners in Aransas county failed to make application for gasoline ration books last Thursday, Friday and Saturday. These persons must now go to the War Price and Ration Board to make application by Saturday, Nov. 28.

After Saturday Chairman J. F. Bullard said that the board would stop taking applications for basic "A" ration books until further notice.

A total of 585 persons were issued their basic "A" mileage ration books during the three-day registration period last week. It is estimated that there are more than 700 automobiles in the county. Some may have ceased to be usable for lack of tires or other reasons.

Truck owners who have applied for certificates of war necessity and who do not receive they by Nov. 30 may apply at the local ration board for emergency rations to keep going through Dec. 31.

J. F. Jeter, R. R. Roberts and Walter Rethmeyer, recently sworn in as a panel to act on gasoline ration applications, are on duty at the local ration office from 9 to 5 each day to receive applications and help applicants in filling out forms for supplemental gasoline rations and for off-highway uses, such as boats, engines, motors, stoves, etc. They will continue the hours until further notice.

Fourteenth Sub-Chaser Launched Here

Mrs. J. E. York, employee at Rice Brothers and Company shipyard was sponsor of the fourteenth submarine chaser launched here and christened the boat with a bottle of wine as it slid smoothly into the water.

Rev. J. H. Kelly, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, made a short talk and closed by asking Divine blessing upon the little warship and the officers and men who will take her to sea to help protect shipping from marauding axis submarines. Rob Roy Rice acted as master-of-ceremonies.

It was the second launching of the week. Mrs. L. W. Richardson was sponsor of the thirteenth boat launched here on the preceding Thursday.

Mrs. Marvin Davis, Mrs. Jack Davis and Mrs. Bruce Winkle were in Corpus Christi Wednesday.

The Federal Shipbuilding yard, Kearny, N. J., launched four destroyers at the same time, on schedule—powerful new additions to our first line of offense in our fight for freedom. The destroyers, shown above, are the Stevenson, the Ringold, the Stockton and the Schroeder.

Invasion Tactics Used in Opening Second Front

American troops were trained intensively for the invasion of North Africa. Before the U. S. army task force members were assigned to the new invasion group they spent a considerable period in carefully directed maneuvers under simulated attack conditions. That they learned their lesson well is confirmed by their remarkable success in the initial stages of the opening of the second front in North Africa. The pictures were taken during maneuvers, by the U. S. Signal Corps.

U. S. Boston Bombers Raid Le Havre

United States air force Boston bombers, also known as the Douglas A-20 C's, attacked Le Havre docks in a daylight raid. This photo, which is one of the clearest of its kind that has been made during this war, shows one of the Bostons over the target area as the first stick of bombs of the attack breaks on and near the western end of the quay in the Bassin De Maree, where there are E and R boat pens. During this attack, bombers were escorted by U.S.A.A.F. fighter planes.

Grim Humor Among Our Fighting Allies

Courage and grim humor mark the spirit of our Allies in the fight against the Axis aggressors. The picture shows South African soldiers at an anti-aircraft battery in Kenya, Africa, ready for all comers. Their signpost speaks for itself.

Big Ben Poses

"Il Duce in the zone of operations," says the caption on this photo, which appeared in an Italian propaganda magazine. Obviously, the "zone of operations" was in North Africa, if the tropical helmets of the soldiers, diplomatically air brushed into the background by the artist, are any indication. Recently the "zone of operations" became a race-track for Il Duce's men.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Pacific Sea Victories Prove U. S. Naval Strength Is Growing as Japs' Declines; Russ Smash Nazi Threat to Caucasus; MacArthur Traps Japs in New Guinea

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

The North African coast was the end of the first lap of their journey to Berlin for thousands of U. S. soldiers who participated in the successful invasion of French North Africa. The above photograph, one of the first pictures passed by the war department, shows a detachment of U. S. troops landing at a picturesque Algerian Mediterranean village west of Oran.

SOLOMONS:

Smashing U. S. Victory

Americans had scarcely received the news of the brilliant naval victory in the Solomons which drove the Japs back reeling with 23 ships sunk and 30,000 sailors and soldiers drowned, when additional reports were forthcoming on the sinking of five enemy warships. The second action was the concluding part of a great three-day engagement which routed the Jap fleet from the Guadalcanal area.

Shrewd and resourceful Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, commander of the American forces, emerged from the battle as one of the outstanding heroes of the war, for it was his audacity and pluck in the face of superior Japanese forces that won a smashing three-day victory.

Jap ship losses in the slugging encounter included one battleship, three heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, five destroyers and eight troop-laden transports sunk; four cargo transports destroyed on the beach near Guadalcanal, and one battleship and six destroyers damaged. Enemy losses in the second engagement were one battleship, three large cruisers and one destroyer sunk.

Naval officials said there was "good reason to believe" that the sinkings reported in second engagement were in addition to those previously reported.

American losses were two light cruisers and six destroyers sunk.

The major part of the sea action was fought directly off Guadalcanal island, which the Japs approached with three strong fleet task forces intent on effecting a landing that would dislodge the heroic American defenders. One of the decisive elements in the battle was the daring of American surface units in steaming directly between the lines of the Jap columns, firing broadsides in both directions. In this phase Rear Adm. Daniel J. Callaghan, former naval aide of President Roosevelt, was killed in action.

While the navy rejoiced in its triumph, it accorded full credit to General MacArthur's aircraft which had originally spotted the Jap concentrations and made repeated bombing attacks on the enemy shipping.

NEW GUINEA:

Jap Dunkirk?

Steadily the jaws of the Australian-American trap had closed on the strategic Jap-held port of Buna in New Guinea.

Significant of the importance of the New Guinea drive to dislodge the Japs was the presence in the field of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. While his land forces converged on the enemy positions, MacArthur's bombers had fanned out for widespread aerial activities. On their calling list besides Buna were enemy installations at Lae and Salamaua.

The critical plight of the Jap garrison at Buna was emphasized by the arrival of eight enemy warships in the vicinity. In a grim game of hide-and-seek that ensued between American Flying Fortresses and the Jap vessels, one enemy cruiser and a destroyer were sunk and another destroyer damaged before the flotilla fled. Observers were of the opinion that the Jap warships might have been preparing to evacuate the Jap defenders of Buna.

18-19-YEAR DRAFT:

High Schoolers Deferred

President Roosevelt set aside three weeks beginning December 11 for registration of youths who have reached or will reach their 18th birthdays since June 30. The President's order likewise provided continuous registration on their birthdays of youths who become 18 on or after next January 1.

A presidential proclamation hailed the new registration as "advisable to insure victory."

RUSSIAN FRONT:

Reds Show Mettle

The Nazi threat to the Caucasus mountain passes and the Grozny oil fields was lifted when the Russians staged a fierce counter attack in the Ordzhonikidze area which resulted in the annihilation of 5,000 German troops and the capture of 140 German tanks, 70 field guns, 2,350 army trucks and 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition.

The furious nature of the Red assault and the fact that the Russ forces were fully equipped with planes, tanks and other mechanized equipment indicated that this engagement might be the signal for a far-flung counter-offensive all along the Soviet front.

At the other end of the Caucasus front German attempts to break through the Soviet lines near Tuapse were repeatedly beaten back. Meanwhile reports said winter was closing down rapidly over the entire Russian front.

As it had for weeks past, the Nazi front at Stalingrad remained at a stalemate, with German attacks beaten off by the stout-hearted Russian defenders. The industrial city's factory area was the principal target of the Nazis' effort to gain a firm foothold in this strategic Volga metropolis.

NORTH AFRICA:

3-Pronged Pincer

What was left of the tottering Axis empire in North Africa had drawn closer around Tripoli, as Allied forces menaced it from the east, the west and south, while the Mediterranean on the north had fast become a lake dominated by United Nations air and sea power.

From the east, Gen. Montgomery's Eighth British army had swept through Libya in pursuit of Marshal Rommel's battered Afrika Korps. From the west American and British forces had poured into Tunisia, aided by units of Gen. Giraud's French North African army. From the South it was reported that 10,000 of the fighting French army, mechanized with American equipment, had struck northward from Lake Chad in French West Africa.

Goal of the Anglo-British armies from the west had been strategic Bizerte in Tunisia sea-coast "springboard" to southern Italy. British paratroops flown in American planes had captured airfields deep in Tunisia, reports disclosed. The Morocco raid described these paratroop operations as the largest ever carried out by air-borne troops.

FRANCE:

Laval Mask Off

Pierre Laval could now write his own ticket. Observers believed that ticket would be filled out with orders for greater French collaboration with the Axis. For when doddering Marshal Petain invested Laval with dictatorial power giving him the right "on his simple signature alone to make laws" the immediate fate of continental France was in pro-Berlin hands.

Petaim's decree simply gave official sanction to what had been an unofficial fact for months. Everybody in and out of Europe knew Laval had been the real boss of the Vichy regime and Petain the figure-head. Now Laval could emerge in his true role.

Across the Mediterranean in Algeria, Admiral Jean Darlan continued as the titular head of French North Africa. But no longer had he Vichy's blessing and no longer was he heir-presumptive to Petain's post. Achieving the doubtful distinction of International Turncoat No. 1, Darlan had dexterously cast his lot with the Allies, following the successful American invasion. Previously he had been notoriously pro-Axis. His elevation to second in command to Petain had been a reward for his Axis leanings after the 1940 French Collapse.

ROOSEVELT:

War's 'Turning Point'

American victories in the Solomons and in North Africa might well be hailed as an apparent turning point in the war, President Roosevelt declared. But, he warned the American people, there is time only for working and fighting, none for exaltation.

The President coupled his analysis of recent military events with a rebuke to critics of the government's war and international policies, who speak "either out of ignorance or out of political bias."

Declaring that he had made a constant effort to keep politics out of the fighting of the war, Mr. Roosevelt pleaded guilty, however, to having permitted pressure to disclose the sinking of an American aircraft carrier 10 days before the November elections. He said he had realized that "if the news of the sinking had been given out two or three weeks later, it would be publicly charged that this news had been suppressed by me until after the election." The result was that vigorous protests had come from commanding admirals in the Southwest Pacific and at Pearl Harbor that military information was being given to the Japs, because they probably had no sure knowledge of the sinking.

GAS RATION:

Curtailed in East

Demands for petroleum products by the American Expeditionary forces in North Africa far in excess of original estimates resulted in a curtailment of 25 per cent in the gasoline of motorists in the Eastern states. The OPA order did not affect the Middle West, where rationing had been scheduled for December 1.

Motorists traveling in the East from other states, however, would have to comply with the new rations which gave three gallons of gasoline for "A" coupons, instead of four.

Officials said the East Coast curtailment would result in saving about 20,000 barrels of gasoline a day.

'FREE RUMANIA':

Fund Grab Foiled

How a plot to spirit exiled King Carol of Rumania into the United States from Mexico and establish a "Free Rumanian" movement in the country was foiled, was disclosed with the indictment in Detroit of three leaders in the cabal. A was nearly $80,000,000 in fro.

manian funds now in custody of the U. S. treasury.

The indictments charged violation of the Foreign Agents Registration and Espionage Acts. The defendants were Glicherie Moraru, self-styled leader of the movement, Stefan Opreanu and George Zanfer.

SEA SAGA:

Boise Story Told

Triumphant survivor of a battle in which she helped sink six Jap warships off Guadalcanal in early October, the heroic light cruiser Boise was undergoing repairs at an eastern American shipyard, after being battered by gunfire, swept by flames and losing 107 of her crew in action.

That the Boise would be refitted in time to steam off to war again was emphasized by her commander, Capt. E. J. ("Mike") Moran, and navy officials. The Boise was lead ship of an American naval task force that engaged a Jap cruiser-transport force bearing troops for the Southeastern Solomons and bore the brunt of the fighting in which the enemy lost two heavy cruisers, one light cruiser and three destroyers.

Given up for lost in the battle, the undaunted Boise later joined its companion ships after receiving shell hits in vulnerable places. In the engagement, the Boise fired more than 1,000 rounds of six-inch shells in 27 minutes.

Tumstead, just taken off again, after leaving with only a knife, a pound of German arti- chocolate, a can of "bully" beef and what looks like an empty tin.

Now continue with the story.

"If they want to do it Injin style," said Minty, "it's okay with me."

CHAPTER XIV

He placed the knife on the shore slope. Beside it he placed the pound of German chocolate, and beside that again the tin of bully-beef. After studying them for a long time he reached for the tobacco tin.

This, when he opened it, proved not to be entirely empty. In it, to his surprise, he found half a dozen steel fishhooks.

He staked them for a full minute, remembering how more than one bush pilot had the habit of carrying such things in his emergency equipment. They gave a promise of food, in case of a forced landing in wilderness threaded with waterways.

Then, with a gasp of apprehension, he crawled about the slope, carefully retrieving the scattered lengths of cord that had been cut from his wrists and ankles. The rest of them were only a few feet in length. But he had proof enough of their strength. And when knotting together they would provide him with a fish, that might land anything from an innocuous to a five-pound whitefish.

That gave him the courage to climb the rocky ledge behind him and examine his island. There was growth enough about him, he saw, to make a shelter of some sort, growth enough for firewood and the smoking of fish. And along the westerly shore where the slopes ended in sedgey meadows his gaze came to rest on a wide field of bulrushes. That gave him new hope.

He was alone in an empty world. But as he stood straight on his lonely ridge of rock he told himself that he hadn't yet reached the end of his rope.

Two embattled and odd-looking figures groped their way northward between the muskies and the rocky hogbacks that stretched out to the skyline beyond Lake Avikaka. Each man carried a rifle and a cartridge belt that bristled with shells. Each was further burdened down with a blanket roll and a grub bag. From the waist of one dangled a belt-ax, from the waist of the other swung a skillet and tea pail.

They went on, stoically slapping at black-flies and mosquitoes, until weariness overtook them and a lowering sun told them it was time to call it a day. Then they made camp, cooked their bacon and flapjacks, adjusted their mosquito bars, and rolled up in their worn and smoke-stained four-pointers.

When morning came they broke camp and once more hit the trail. They saw the sun climb higher in the heavens and the muskies become fewer as they advanced into a country of bolder rock ridges with a scattering of tamarack along their southern slopes. They saw the shadows lengthen and the light once more thin out. And once more they made camp, and slept, and pushed on again.

"We're on the proper trail all right," observed Minty as he mounted the knoll and surveyed the surrounding landscape. "There's the water lake I skirted on my back."

"There's been folks here before," asserted Zeke, pointing to a here scrub spruce had been cut along the hill slope.

"From the first crack out o' the box," said Minty, "I had a queer feelin' about that two-eyed swan- hunter. I knew he wasn't edgin' up into this district of ours for any good."

"Then why's he here?"

"That's what I'm a-goin' to find out," retorted the grizzled old prospector, "before he gets another 'neakin' shot at my carcass.'"

It was as they were circling cautiously along the westerly arm of the lake that Zeke stopped short on a crest that ended in a deep-crested bayou. For moored close in the bayou he saw the head and sun-bleached wings of the Snow-Ball Baby," was his sudden exclamation.

"That's Lindy's old crate all right," agreed the perplexed Zeke. "There's our piddle-jumper!"

He hesitated in their ap- curiously finally over- when they found no after invading its cab- ed each other for a

"I don't like the look o' this," Zeke finally asserted.

"Chances are he's scoutin' round on foot," maintained Minty as he clambered ashore. But Zeke, who remained to assess the cabin's contents, shook a dubious head.

"There's grub and extra gas in there," he reported when he re-joined his companion. "There's even blankets and fly nets and one o' them new-fangled air mattresses."

"Then you'll see him headin' back here pronto," Minty persisted.

But at the end of an hour's wait the azure of his optimism was shadowed by a cloud or two.

"Something's happened to that boy," averred Zeke as his old eyes once more swept the silent rock ridges.

"Then it's up to us to roost here and keep an eye on his plane," was Minty's suggestion.

"I don't like the idee o' that ship anchored close in here where any outsider could climb aboard," said Zeke. "Where she ought to be is out in the middle o' that lake with a quarter-mile o' water between her and shore."

"How'd you git her there?" asked Minty, as he studied the plane. "I always had a hankerin' for knowin' how to handle one o' them contraptions. And right now that hankerin' is stronger'n ever."

But Zeke had his own ideas about the matter.

"I could float her out and anchor her there with a couple o' rock-slabs tied to her moorin'-lines," he explained. "Then she'd be where no one could sneak up on her."

"And how'd you git back?" demanded Minty.

"I'd blow up that air mattress of Lindy's and paddle ashore. And when our bush hawk shows back he can sail out to her in the same way."

"S'posin' he don't show back?"

"Then it's up to us," said Zeke, "to find out what's keepin' him away from a ship he'd never desert of his own free will."

But the shifting of the Snow-Ball to its new berth was no easy matter. And even with the plane safely anchored in mid-lake Zeke's troubles were not over. The inflated air mattress, from the first, proved a precarious craft. When halfway to shore, in fact, Zeke lost his balance and went overboard, with Minty's anxious eyes watching his struggles as he floundered about and finally resumed his perch on the little raft of rubber.

Minty, standing guard on his rock point, knew what would be needed, and needed at once. He dropped his rifle and lost no time in gathering wood and starting a fire. The flames were roaring by the time the wet and bedraggled Zeke crawled up the shore slope. His teeth were chattering and his language was blasphemous.

"Quit cussin'," admonished Minty, "and git out o' them clothes before they chill you to the bone."

Zeke's shirt was dry by the time he was ready to drink his tea. And his ill temper had departed by the time the dignity of clothing was restored to his sinewy old body.

"We can't squat round these embers no longer," he announced.

"What we've got 'o do is sleuth out them white-skinned Comanches who're musclin' in on our domain."

"Lead me to 'em," said Minty as he shouldered his pack and took up his rifle.

But Zeke, at the moment, was busy mounting a near-by ridge. He stood scanning the blue-misted slopes between him and the lowering sun. He squinted long and closely at the wooded crest across a wide valley studded with glacial headlands. And as he looked he saw a puff of smoke bloom for a moment against the hill-top spruce gloom at the same time a bullet whined over his head.

His reaction to that was automatic.

He dropped to the far side of the ridge, where he lay shouting for Minty to get under cover. But Minty disregarded that advice. He stood with his rifle at half-arm, studying the wooded crest across the valley. But the whine of a second bullet sent him ducking behind the shelter of a hardwood.

"They want fightin', eh?" he cried as he leveled his rifle along the stone

My Week

by Eleanor Roosevelt

HOSTEL FOR WOMEN WORKERS

I spent part of one day at Leeds, seeing industries of various kinds. One airplane factory employs about 23 per cent of women workers and seems in many ways very like our factories at home, where women workers are gradually taking over a great variety of departments.

One factory connected with war industries, employs 80 per cent of women. They showed me a hostel for women workers, which is the first I have ever seen. At present, they satisfy the needs of the single woman worker, or man worker, where they use both sexes. One woman answered my question as to why she had gone to work, as follows, "We have got to get on with the war and get it over with quickly." I imagine there are a tremendous number of women, especially those whose husbands are in the services, who have just that feeling. They want the money they are making to give a little better chance to the child or children they have at home, but the main purpose in going to work is to get on with the war. I saw one young girl who had an accident to her wrist, but as soon as it was dressed, she insisted on going back to work, because she, too, wanted to "get on with the war."

Practically every factory in England runs a canteen for its workers, where a hot midday meal is obtainable, as well as food for the night-shift, when one is working. It costs somewhere around one shilling three pence, which in our money is equivalent to 27 cents, and it is a good meal.

BRITISH GET A LIFT

The news from Africa has given the British people a tremendous lift. For months they have met disappointment and disaster, with grim determination to do their best till the change came. Now that the change is here, I can feel the exhilaration and intensification of their willingness to push on with this success.

APPRECIATE U. S. AID

In two days we visited two industrial cities and in each case the lord mayor and lady mayoress and other officials greeted us with the greatest warmth. They told us how much the help, received from the United States when it was needed, aided them during enemy air attacks. The destruction in many cases is pitiful, for it breaks the homes of people who are not always even workers in factories. I talked with a great many of the civilian defense workers and people who have been bombed out and rehoused again. Even in the case of people who have been injured, the spirit of cheerfulness is extraordinary.

I was also given a most wonderful demonstration of the work of the land army. The place chosen was a farm, where six girl workers are employed regularly. For the purpose of this demonstration, a number had been lent from neighboring farms.

Many of them were hairdressers, typists or housewives once upon a time. They love their new work and they have become experts at farming with tractors, digging ditches, hedging and, of course, caring for cows. There is very little farm work they can not do.

We spent the night in what was once a very large pleasant country house, with a large garden for pleasure only. We went to one of the houses, which now is one of the country's nurseries. There were 35 children under five years of age. The lady of the house has worked hard in helping to run the nursery.

U. S. ARMY ACTIVITIES

LONDON, ENGLAND. — After spending a night at a country house, whose mistress runs the Women's Voluntary Services for her country, we left fairly early to drive to Liverpool. At Warburton, they showed us two of the most delightful and amusing paintings over fireplaces, the rooms of which will presently be dismantled.

We drove through the old walled town of Chester and lunched with Lord Derby at the Hotel Adelphi in Liverpool. Immediately after lunch we started out to our army to see some of our activities here.

We also looked over some ships, which are like those Mr. Kaiser turns out so rapidly in the United States. Later in the day, someone told me he had gone over the ship with a critical eye for some defects he was sure he would find, but he failed to discover anything serious. This seems to be a case where speed does not prevent production on a quality basis.

GOOD NEWS

That evening I could feel the excitement in everyone I spoke to, which the landing of American troops in Northern Africa had created. Everywhere there was a feeling of "now we are fighting together." It seemed to add to the people's courage and was reflected in group after group.

The dockers along the Liverpool docks and streets cheered more heartily, I thought. One woman said, "Good bless your men, may this be the end for Hitler."

Ode to Yuletide . . . Plum Pudding and Fruit Cake (See Recipes Below.)

Cakes 'n' Puddin's

Home is where the heart is and Christmas is what tradition is. And that tradition is to a large extent what foods you serve. If you really want to make it a season for starry-eyed brightness and plain honest-to-goodness good cheer, have a holiday with all the food trimmings like frosted fruited cookies, dark, spicy fruit cake and a plum pudding mellowed to wonderful goodness.

Begin these preparations now—for the ingredients of Xmas cakes, puddings and cookies take on a charm—and flavor—with age. Preparations can be a snap if you budget a day for cutting up fruit and nuts, another day for mixing and baking, and a third day for packing.

First, for fruit cake—the cake with almost two dozen extra special ingredients. This year's fruit cake is tuned to the times, uses honey and molasses to save on your precious sugar ration.

Fruit Cake.
(Makes 10 pounds)

1 pound butter or other shortening
1 pound brown sugar
10 eggs, well beaten
1 cup honey
1 cup molasses
1/2 cup sweet cider
1 pound sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon mace
1/2 pound candied pineapple
1/2 pound candied cherries
1 pound raisins
1 pound currants
1/2 pound citron, thinly sliced
1/2 pound candied lemon and orange peel
1/2 pound nutmeats, chopped

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and spices and sift again. Cream the shortening thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, fruits, peel, nuts, honey, molasses and cider. Add flour gradually. Bake in 4 (8 by 8 by 2 inches) pans, lined with greased paper, in slow oven (250 degrees) 3 to 3 1/2 hours.

Plum pudding gets my vote as being highly desirable for the family feast at Christmas.

Plum Pudding.
(Makes 3 1-quart molds)

2 cups prunes, cooked
1 1/2 cups currants
1 cup raisins
1/2 cup citron, chopped
1/2 cup preserved orange peel
1 cup candied cherries, chopped
1 cup nutmeats, broken
1 cup all-bran
1/2 cup juice, from prunes
1 1/2 cups butter or substitute
1 1/2 cups sugar
4 eggs, beaten
1 tablespoon vanilla extract
2 cups soft white bread crumbs
3 cups flour

Lynn Says:

Let's Decorate! The fruit cakes and puddings, of course! A cluster of candied cherries in the middle with leaves fashioned of artificial rose leaves makes an attractive cake.

You'll be praised for a rose garnish made of gelatin candies shaped like lemon and orange segments into thin, lengthwise slices. Roll a slice tightly to form center of rose and press other slices around it to make petals.

Simpler decorations can be made of almonds or other nutmeats forming flowers with candied peel as petals or centers.

To store cake, place it in airtight container for several weeks. Sound apples may be placed in container, and changed as they become shriveled, to provide moisture.

Tomato Juice
Fried Fish Fillets With Lemon Garnish
Broccoli Au Gratin
Mashed Potatoes
Perfection Salad
Apple Brown Betty
Beverage

1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon each, cloves, nutmeg, ginger

Cut prunes into small pieces, combine with other fruits and all-bran. Add prune juice, and mix well. Blend butter and sugar thoroughly, add eggs and flavoring. Add bread crumbs and flour sifted with spices. Blend in fruit mixture. Stir until all fruit is well distributed. Fill greased pudding molds two-thirds full; cover and steam 3 1/2 to 4 hours.

I think the spicy lemon sauce goes well with the bland pudding. You'll like this one:

Lemon Sauce.
(Makes 1 1/2 cups)

1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon
1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon butter

Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt thoroughly. Add water. Heat to boiling and cook until clear and thick, stirring constantly. Add lemon juice, rind, and pour slowly over beaten egg yolks. Cook another minute and add butter.

Fig Maple Pudding.
(Serves 5)

1/2 pound figs
1/2 cup maple syrup
1/2 cup boiling water
1/2 cup sifted flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons shortening
1/4 to 1/2 cup milk

Soften figs in cold water, cut in halves and place in greased baking dish. Mix syrup with boiling water and pour over figs. Cover dish and steam for 1/2 hour. Sift dry ingredients together, cut in shortening with pastry blender or knives, add milk and mix lightly. Remove baking dish from steamer. Pour batter over figs, return to steamer for 1 hour. This pudding provides its own sauce.

Ever hear of putting a raw apple or slice of one in the cookie jar—or tin—if you still have one to keep cookies fresh? You've no idea how delicious these fruity cookies will taste if you follow the above prescription. Made-with-honey cookies are much akin to fruit cakes and plum pudding in that they need to ripen and mellow.

Christmas Fruit Nuggets.

1/2 cup shortening
1 1/2 cups honey
2 eggs
3 cups cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon each, cloves, cinnamon, nutmeg
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup candied pineapple
1 cup each, candied cherries, raisins, nuts

Cream shortening, drizzle in honey and cream together. Add beaten eggs, and mix thoroughly. Sift dry ingredients together and add alternately with milk. Chop fruits, mix together and dredge with flour before folding into mixture. Drop by teaspoonfuls into greased tins or tiny paper cups. Bake in moderate (375-degree) oven for about 15 minutes.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

In the modern automobile there are 32.5 pounds of rubber in addition to that used in tires and tubes.

Last summer's national scrap rubber drive brought out 6.87 pounds per capita. Even this gratifying amount represented only a scraping of the surface of the scrap littering the backyards, cellars and attics of the country.

There are some 3,065,000 miles of roads in the United States of which 40% are of the surfaced highway type. More improved roads than any other country in the world.

There are more than 10 motor vehicles for each mile of highway in the United States. Free-gas retarding Sundays made this ratio seem like 10 cars to each 100 feet of road.

In 1940 it was estimated that the market value of passenger cars in the U.S. was $7,200,000,000; trucks had a value of $1,155,000,000.

Stevenson Gives Ration Preview

AUSTIN.—A preview of the possible effect of gas rationing on state revenues was given today by Governor Coke R. Stevenson, who announced motor fuel tax revenues had decreased about $5,000,000 since May 1.

This was based on a comparable period a year ago and the rate of reduction will be expedited after compulsory rationing begins December 1, he said.

It was the governor's contention that the loss of revenue during more than six months was due mostly to voluntary ration of gasoline brought about by elimination of unnecessary non-commercial travel by most Texans.

Lower speeds too, would have some part in the trend, he thought, because of the 40-mile limit suggested by the President and the governor became effective last spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hodges and son, Jackie spent the week-end with Mrs. Hodges' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Gates who live in Charlotte.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Alford, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil New and son James and daughter Judith Ann of Ingleside were guests of the Burl Bowdens Sunday.

O'Daniel Points To Texas' War Record, Raps Rationing

Washington.—Senator O'Daniel (D-Texas) declared today that extension of gasoline rationing to Texas was "almost as absurd an idea as rationing sand in the Sahara Desert."

Scrap rubber stock piles are ample, he said in an interview to permit the operation of automobiles by civilians until synthetic rubber becomes available.

"Texas citizens are taking this war seriously, and they do not approve of inexperienced theoretical Washington bureaucrats trying to ram such a foolish order down their throats," declared O'Daniel.

"Many Texans have already sacrificed their businesses, they have invested in war bonds to the limit of their ability, and they have more brave sons fighting in this war than any other state based on population.

"Texas has also Admiral Nimitz to command our fleet in the Pacific, and General Eisenhower to command our forces in Europe and Africa. Texas is producing more than her share in building bombers, ships and other weapons, and in operating training fields.

"To ration gasoline in Texas where there is so much gasoline that we are virtually swimming around in it would seriously retard our war effort instead of helping it and would uselessly disrupt and destroy our whole economic system."

He described the order as "a bureaucratic edict and not a law" and said he would do everything in his power to get it rescinded or its effective date postponed.

Mrs. Wm. Beetley, Mrs. Nannie Deane, and daughter Miss Mary August, and Miss Katie Lee Clark shopped in Corpus Christi Saturday.

War Dept. Urges Use of V-Mail

Civilians in the country are urged by the War Department to use V-mail (micro-film mail) and overseas radio and cable fixed text, in messages to men overseas. This request is made not only because of the urgent need to conserve all possible space for war shipping, but also because of recognition by the War and Navy Departments of the large part frequent letters and messages from home and friends play in upholding morale of the armed forces.

Tremendous saving of space is afforded by the use of V-mail. After the letters have been micro-filmed for shipping, far greater saving is affected, as 150,000 V-mail letters that have been filmed weigh only 45 pounds and require the space of only one sack of mail.

V-mail offers the most rapid form of personal mail service. In handling and dispatch, it is given priority over all other classes of personal mail, including air mail, and because of the small space required, it is frequently sent to its destination by ferryplane or by bomber. In order to insure delivery of all v-mail, the original of every filmed letter is held by military authorities until word is received that the film has reached its destination. The original letters are then destroyed. If the film does not arrive at its destination, the letters are refiled, and another film is dispatched.

V-mail forms can be secured at the post office, and those communicating with men overseas are urged to use them.

W. B. Friend and Francis Smith were in Corpus Christi Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reazin and daughter of Harper Kans., were in Rockport fishing this week. Mr. Reazin is the editor of the Harper Advocate. They were guests at Oleander Courts.

Jewell Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Murphy, returned home last week from the Beeville hospital, where she has been ill for the past month. She will be able to start back to school in about two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Horton of Pasadena had Thanksgiving dinner with Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Hamblin. Mrs. Horton and Mrs. Hamblin are sisters.

LOOK at the list of CPL stockholders' occupations at the right. It's a cross-section of Texas, with some of your neighbors included. It's typical of the American nation at large. Besides these nearly 6,000 direct investors in CPL, there are thousands more whose interest is no less real. Banks and insurance companies put much of their money—your money—into electric company securities. That gives nearly every Texan, nearly every American a stake in the industry.

In a very real sense, Central Power and Light Company represents the savings of the same people it serves. These people have entrusted their savings to business management under public regulation—practical business management that has given the average home in South and Southwest Texas TWICE as much electricity for its money in the past dozen years. That same type of management is producing seven-eighths of the nation's vast power supply for war and civilian needs.

DIAL 3911

THE top word and the most misused word and what should be the rarest word in the language is the word "best."

By this we mean such phrases as "the best team"—"the best passer"—"the best receiver"—"the best kicker"—"the best line"—referring here to football.

Lou Little naturally countered with Paul Governall of Columbia. Both are fine passers. But what about Frankie Sinkwich of Georgia or Eddie Prokop of Georgia Tech?

Of the lot, Governall, Columbia's sly sniper, has the hardest handicap to overcome so far as team protection is concerned.

The Top Man

Football's three best passers are Sammy Baugh, Cecil Isbell and Sid Luckman. You can have them in any order so long as Baugh is No. 1.

Taking a crack at our earlier angle about the word "best," football has never known a pass receiver close to Don Hutson.

Baugh is an amazing athlete. "I weighed 180 pounds when I played with Texas Christian several years ago," he told me recently.

I can recall few athletes who have kept in such fine physical shape for so long a time.

Back to the Collegians

How many would run far and pass well against such teams as Minnesota, Alabama, Wisconsin, Ohio State, Georgia, Georgia Tech or Notre Dame?

For example, Wisconsin has two of the star backs of the year, but look at that Badger schedule!

The caliber and quality of opposing teams too often is overlooked. And there is many a potential star who is also overlooked on some of the poorer teams, with which he has little chance to operate.

Hard to Compare

It takes no starry-eyed expert to announce that Boston College and Alabama have two of the country's greatest lines, including depth of material. They can't be stormed along the ground—just too many big, fast men.

But it is harder to compare such passers as Governall, Sinkwich, Prokop, Dobbs and others. Governall hasn't anything like the manpower support the others have.

A good running game can be a big help to any passing game. After all, Baugh has Dick Todd, and you may recall the time he had Cliff Battles—two of the best runners working with a great passer.

The best single exhibition I've seen this year came from Sinkwich in his two-touchdown march against Alabama's strong defense—something like 11 passes completed out of 13 tossed in that final period.

Apparently no set of adverse figures ever can prove to the racing bettor that he is up against a bit more than he can digest.

For example, the case of Whirlaway serves our point. Long Tail is the biggest money winner of all time. He has had an amazing record of running and winning.

After his first few races there was little chance to make any money backing Man o' War. There were times when he was 1-to-100 or 1-to-80.

BRAZIL AND U. S. OFFENSIVE

Though the landings on North Africa were a carefully guarded military secret between high British and American officials, one other country let in on the secret was Brazil.

In fact, Brazil, through Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha did some important spade work for the United States in regard to vital Atlantic islands, the Azores and Madeira.

Therefore, it was considered possible that the Germans might attempt to use these islands as submarine or even air bases, or that the United States in turn might need the islands for emergency bases.

Both island groups are Portuguese. So, long ago, Brazil, which looks to Portugal as its mother country, made informal diplomatic soundings to make sure that these islands would line up with the United Nations in case of emergency.

SOLOMONS vs. AFRICA

One thing that got under the skin of high U. S. army officials during the weeks just before the North African landings was the navy's policy regarding the battle of the Solomon Islands.

Though all the details had not been worked out, it had been definitely agreed with Churchill and the Russians to start some kind of second front operation this summer.

But before the Solomons operations had lasted many weeks, the navy had used several times as many ships as it expected—some of them sent to the bottom of the Pacific.

As a result, the Japs lost 10 destroyers—a big chunk out of any navy—and we are continuing to whittle them down with no loss to ourselves. U. S. bases are now so close to Kiska that U. S. planes bomb the Japs every day without fail—and bomb them so badly that recently no Jap fighter planes have been put in the air.

LESSON FROM ALEUTIANS

Inside the navy it is pointed out that one of the best jobs Admiral Nimitz ever did was to let the Japs get into the tip end of the Aleutian islands. This proved to be a beautiful decoy, like flies to molasses.

As a result, the Japs lost 10 destroyers—a big chunk out of any navy—and we are continuing to whittle them down with no loss to ourselves. U. S. bases are now so close to Kiska that U. S. planes bomb the Japs every day without fail—and bomb them so badly that recently no Jap fighter planes have been put in the air.

But in the other end of the Pacific, army strategists fear that we may have got ourselves in the same position as the Japs have in the Aleutians—with our necks so far stuck out that, despite current successes, we have lost more ships than the Solomons were worth.

CHRISTMAS TRAVEL

The railroads have been negotiating with the schools and colleges to extend their Christmas holiday period so that it will begin before the usual Christmas home-going dates and extend beyond the usual returning dates.

This longer vacation would be okay with a lot of girls and boys, but most of the schools and colleges have turned thumbs down. They said they could not change their schedules.

Result is that the American railroads will carry the greatest burden in history during the period from December 15 to January 5. The peak will come between December 20 and 24, when the railroads will have to carry:

- (1) Home-going students; (2) the usual heavy civilian Christmas travelers; (3) soldiers on furlough; (4) soldiers on week-end passes; (5) the normal troop movement, which will not be suspended for Christmas.

So between December 15 and January 5, civilians are asked to stay off the railroads!

AFRICANA

Frenchmen listening to Roosevelt's broadcast to the French people in the French language wondered who wrote his speech. They said it contained grammatical errors and sounded like schoolboy composition.

General Giraud, new French commander in North Africa, is the first Frenchman to use motorized units in cleaning up North Africa. He waged a successful campaign against the Riffs.

Kathleen Norris Says: The Early Teens Can Be Dangerous

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

No home is so poor that there can't be a lot of fun in it. Good children, destined to grow into good men and women, are the most valuable things in the world. And you can't get anything valuable for nothing.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

LITTLE girls of fourteen, fifteen and sixteen ought to be busy with school work, forbidden late hours and unaccompanied evening engagements, and unacquainted with cigarettes, night clubs and liquor.

These are statements that would have sounded laughable even ten years ago, and superfluous for the generation before that. "Certainly," civilized mothers and fathers have said through all the years, "girls of those ages are still children, still under schoolroom regulations, still governed by home laws, by mother and father."

But today it is not funny to say that a girl of 14 is not young for evening dates; too young to waste money on beauty parlors, lipsticks, cigarettes, cocktails; too young to be trusted in friendships with excited, half-intoxicated boys only a little older than herself.

Last week the newspapers of a certain western city blazed suddenly with the terrible story of quite little girls—one was only 12, who have been going to shady night clubs, have been served drinks and have picked up male friends in such places, and who in actual childhood have been going a pace that would frighten a hardened adventuress of 40.

The authorities are now virtuously at work rounding up these little rebels, and are censoring the resorts that will permit liquor to be served to such children. For a little while the inn-keepers and the girls will be loudly blamed; then the whole thing will sink into silence and be forgotten.

But the real blame rests upon the fathers and mothers of these unfortunate youngsters, and the lesson and warning of their terrible experience is for all the other fathers and mothers of the nation.

For with the right kind of home, the right kind of father and mother, no girl need ever get into such danger, or want to taste it, or take any more interest in what is low and degrading than her mother does. These fathers and mothers don't have to be saints; they don't have to be rich, smart, socially prominent, or isolated deep in woods or on the tops of mountains, to keep their children safe.

But they do have to have a real consciousness of their obligations as parents. This means clean rooms and good meals and some amusement and proper clothing for Betty and Bob. But it means much more than this.

It means that no matter how tired he is when he comes home Dad must have a friendly word for the children. How was school today? When is the next Scout meeting? Who'd like to see the movie Saturday night?

It means that he keeps an eye on their homework; sympathizes with Bob's passionate yearning for a "22," talks sometimes about duck-hunting, airplanes, guinea pigs, or whatever else interests the small boy.

'GREAT OAKS'

The tiny acorn you know will some day be an oak tree is about as impressive today as the lanky, toothless boy you hope will grow into the fine man you want him to be.

It means that he asks both children to help him with home chores on Sunday morning; discusses Mother's Christmas surprise with them; brings home from the office the little advertising paperweight or tray that will delight Betty, offers to accompany Bob on the hard trip of apology for breaking the Smiths' window.

It means that Mother keeps from their very babyhood her children's confidence; that they come to her first, sure of comfort and help. It means that from the time Betty is five years old her mother is telling her firmly that as an older girl she will not be allowed to run wild, that too much make-up is silly on a girl of 15 and absurd on a girl of ten.

It means that when she forbids a thing Mother puts something else in its place; it means youngsters of whom Mother and Dad MAY approve being asked to the house, being familiar there, knowing where the games and pencils are kept, accepting Mother's cookies and doughnuts with gasps of joy, to remember the taste of them when the cokes and cones and candy bars are forgotten.

If your little girl's Dad is the sour, selfish kind who snarls at the children, gulps meals in silence, sneers at radio programs that they like and shouts for silence when they giggle their way upstairs, then he is doing his best to destroy their natural instinct to turn to him for advice.

And if you are the sort of mother who goes through the day's duties in a sort of dream, thinking of the sitting-room curtains that ought to be washed when Betty is trying to tell you something, sighing in the long silences of the table, answering a dreary "out somewhere" when Dad asks "where's that girl to-night?" and answering Betty with a "Daddy wouldn't stand for it," when she begs for a little evening party at home, then don't be surprised if someday Betty's tear-stricken face looks back at you from the front page of a scandal sheet.

No home is so poor that there can't be a lot of fun in it. No mother who intelligently loves her children need fear losing them if she makes home a place they want to be. But good children, destined to grow into good men and women, are the most valuable things in the world. And you can't get anything valuable for nothing!

And, thank God, the bad little lawless girls are the exception. All over this great country, in all the country towns, there are healthy, busy, normal Bobs and Bettys racing home from school to tell Mom everything, deep in Scout work, gym work, theatricals, hospital auxiliary, school projects. There are girls whose mothers and fathers call out a cheerful "Bring 'em along!"

THE MIRROR By AMY CAMPBELL

McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

"YOU are too proudly lovely, Tawny Lily . . . That this should happen." He wrote swiftly. Words winged about him when in haste but at this moment he longed to choose and savor them.

It was not plausible even to himself, suddenly, he must be otherwise engaged, and most importantly so for a couple of hours, when he was to have met her in fifteen minutes. They were to have had a reunion luncheon. Their first breaking of bread together in over a year.

He thought swiftly. Failing her as he must now, how was he to meet her again? "Some gracious word, please, about where to find you," he begged, penning rapidly, half-rising as he did so, with only time to seal, direct and deliver the missive to a messenger.

Last night she had said: "Don't follow me home. We'll have tomorrow."

And he had said: "Tomorrow we'll decide about home together, for us both. That's amazingly precious!"

He had had so many months of hunger and loneliness for long analysis of everything. And now, on the crest of such renewed wonder between them, business pounced upon the valued moments.

When she stepped like a victor from the elevator and regally relaxed in a deep chair, with curbed expectancy, every man was alert with interest.

When she was decorously paged and received a letter with excited, eager eyes, the occupants of the lounge as a unit awaited developments. They saw her smile, savor an instant and tuck the letter into her bag. Thoughts ran swiftly across her eyes before she used the stationery which had been brought to her by request. She wrote a few words and departed. There was an inaudible sigh, as if everyone watching her go had looked upon a rose dropping its petals without a sound.

He was at his desk in long, hurried strides and found her note. "Perhaps you'll want to find me!" He read the words in bafflement, chagrin and faint hope. He decided slowly that there was nothing to do but go back to his apartment and await a telephone call.

He stole softly in through the door. He did not want even Toyo to know he had returned. Not a break in his thoughts until her voice might steal in.

Stealthily he moved along the corridors of the dear place they had known together. Not for many months had he thought of entering her rooms, although the doors had been ajar, everything brooding, waiting—just as she had left them. Now, in his impatience for her voice, her eyes, her utter perfection so proudly aloof, he moved aimlessly and silently through a sleeping room to her boudoir.

An insistent, subtle fragrance startled him to pain. It had been intermittently invasive ever since she had gone and many times it had been too beautiful for him. Often he had thought he must go elsewhere, find bachelor digs and stop struggling. "You and I are bound together so," she had quoted last night. Had she meant it? Would he find her? And finding, how did one capture a woman so elusive? And if, having captured, how did one keep?

He turned with a little sigh to her tall triple mirrors and thought it must be mere fancy that he saw her there, her back to him. He put up his hand and brushed his eyes against a sweetness yet delayed. So often they had stood there together. It had been a gesture of his, to draw her resistant pride into his arms and then to the mirrors, looking, looking at the two so really there. So meant, he had told her. And to him, so very dear.

"You came," she said, with an air of immediate retreat, "to find me?" It was she! He had unconsciously pursued and trapped her. It was in her eyes again—that old look of wild flight. She was a bird, a sprite with wings.

He went to her in a rush of belief that bent his head above hers in a confirmation he could not stifle. "That you came here is so incredibly beautiful!"

He saw some blend of pride and surrender meet and merge in her eyes before she turned them towards the mirrors. Her gesture was lightly reminiscent she said: "Do you remember how you used to have us look here, saying, 'Faith—that's ours!' and then here, saying, 'Hope—that's ours, too!' and then straight ahead saying again, 'Love, that indeed is ours! These three, and the greatest of these is love!' Do you remember?"

He looked at her in the mirror before then a deep, believing moment, confirming her mood with his and then he kissed her so that they might both see in one mirror or the other.

"You couldn't have returned more perfectly!" he told her finally.

When she did not lift her eyes he knew how preciously he had touched her pride with some delicate precision that allowed him at last to have this small drama to keep. In the old days she would have moved away, another word on her lips and of other things.

Typewriter Monologue:

The news from Africa gave Americans the first hip-hip-hooray feeling of the war, coming as it did after the British had sent the Fascist and Nazi armies staggering across the desert . . . There were loud cheers for Midway, and the triumphs in the Solomons were hailed. But it's more inspiring when the senior partners of the Axis are getting the slapping . . . Even a neutral can cheer when a Nazi is having his schnozzola rubbed in the sand. There's something very beautiful about one of those bragging squareheads biting the dust. They yell uncle so sincerely . . . If you enjoy nervous Nazis, tune in on the Berlin short waves and listen to them pretty up the African disasters. Their broadcasters sound like lush-rollers in police court—explaining how the victim's wallet gave them such a surprise when they found it in their hands.

Hollywood is panicked by the wage ceiling, limiting the yearly pay check to 25 Gs net. The biggies can collect $67,000, which is the legal 25 plus tax, but everything over stays in the boss' hip pocket . . . It calls for adroit handling. If an actor keeps on working, he is toiling for free. If he lays off he runs the risk of being forgotten by the fans . . . Biggest fear of all is it may wreck the star system. If the studios get into the habit of paying actors wages that keep them within the legal limit, they might get to like it and keep it up after the limit is off . . . Agents are scared stiff. They get 10 per cent of a client's earnings. As one of them put it: "Ten per cent of zero is zero," but there are those who think that's a fair wage for agents.

The OWI can't be seeing many "B" movies, judging from its advice to pulp fictionists to make their villains Japs . . . Every week the cinema offers a Nipponese Nasty for slugging purposes. That makes him a pushover heavy . . . It's no surprise to anybody (and no drama at all) when Basil Beautiful clips the Japs in the teeth and tells him that squares Bataan. It leaves you wanting a lot . . . The place to make the Japs the heavies is in the news-reels, especially if it also shows the heroes getting hunk. We don't want to just pretend we're hurting them. It's much better if it's the McCoy. Oh, ever and ever so much.

A Frenchman, who lived in England for many years, turned on it with written attacks after France was licked . . . When Winston Churchill heard about it, he said: "We thought we had a friend—we only had a client!"

The Magazines: Eugene Tillinger, in Pic, relates that there is a caste system among the Berlin Murderers' Set. Frau Himmler, he reports, gets snooted by the wives of Goebels, Goering, et al, because her husband, Mr. Gestapo, butchers people for a salary, while others do it for medals . . . John Erskine, in the American Mercury, grieves that American poetry is namby-pamby because the poets "have forgotten how to curse" . . . Mebbe that's because they keep their cussin' for their letters to critics . . . I. F. Stone's pungent pieces in The Nation are waker-uppers . . . Look's literary snapshot of Ambassador Winant points out that he looks like Lincoln. But more important—he thinks like him . . . Kyle Crichton did a success story on actress Marjorie Reynolds. He reports she earned $600 a week in horse-operas but got a break in the films at $250 per week . . . Huh?

Typewriter Ribbons: H. L. Mencken: Conscience: An inner voice that warns us somebody is looking . . . Anon: He was a cashier who wished to be one of the 400 but now is only No. 387 . . . S. Butler: She gave the impression that her mind was wearing trousers . . . Christopher Hale: Don't slam your mind in my face . . . Jean Tennyson: The only ambition in life a paper napkin has is to get down off a diner's lap and play on the floor . . . Anon: The snow is beautiful if you are watching the other fellow shovel it . . . Goethe: One cannot always be a hero, but one can always be a man . . . H. Shriner: Henry Kaiser—Old Man Riveter . . . A. P. Herbert: To me, the conception of two living together for 25 years, without a cross word is absurd, and suggests a lack of spirit only to be admired in sheep. Where there is spirit there must be sparks.

Hero Bulkeley saw "Sons of Fun" the other night and howled at it. Later he asked Olsen & Johnson: "How can you stand it night after night—all that noise and shooting?" . . . Kenneth Miller's suggested slogan for Loudmouths: "Loose Schmooze Can Cook Your Goose!" . . . Gracie Fields is a click at the Wedgwood Room at the Waldorf. Gets all the stuffed shirts to sing "Always Be an England" and "God Bless America" . . . Ginny Simms has told RKO she'll do no more B films.

HARD up for leading men as more and more of the famous stand-bys go into the army, Hollywood is busily recruiting newcomers to the screen, and hoping that you'll like them. Columbia will introduce the public to Robert Hymes, formerly a singer with Freddy Martin's orchestra, in "What's Buzzin', Cousin?" with Ann Miller, Phil Harris and his orchestra, and Rochester. Metro's signed James Davis, a Kansas City oil salesman; he has a supporting role in "Salute to the Marines," and the male lead in "Swing Shift Maizie."

Meanwhile Franchot Tone's agent has said: "When Franchot wants to work for nothing he'll work for the government." Tone had agreed orally to make one picture for Warners for $60,000, but the wage ceiling forbids him to make more this year than he did last. Last year he was idle several months because of illness; he's already earned almost as much this year as he did last. He'd be able to keep just $20,000 of that Warner money, and would have to work the rest of the year for nothing. "Old Acquaintance" was the picture involved.

Georgia Gibbs recently signed a 13 week contract as the new singing star on the CBS Caravan Hour, but was more thrilled when Producer Bill Bacher gave her a chance to act. She'd never spoken lines on Myrna Loy doesn't care about making more pictures, since her recent marriage, so she's been turning down all assignments, and Metro has engaged a new wife for William Powell for the new "Thin Man" picture—Irene Dunne.

Beatrice Kay, who sings those ballads of the past on the air's "Gay Nineties" show, has yielded to the call of Hollywood, and will make a picture laid in old New Orleans early next year. So all the people who've thought she was an old lady—and a lot of radio listeners do, because of the songs she sings—are going to find out that she's both young and pretty.

Leslie Brooks has been studying jujitsu to such good effect that she's been asked to tone it down. Told to put up a good fight in a scene with Linda Darnell, Doris Dudley and Glenda Farrell in Columbia's "City Without Men," she tossed 'em around like bean bags!

Charles Boyer has five leading ladies in "The Constant Nymph"; in the order that they hold in his affections on the screen they are Joan Fontaine, Alexis Smith, Brenda Marshall, Jean Muir and Joyce Reynolds.

At the request of the council of the Navajo reservation, Harry Carey will film a series of shorts dealing with the history and traditions of the tribe. He speaks Navajo, and is one of our best authorities on the tribe.

Jane Wyatt, whom you'll see in "The Navy Comes Through," has sold 5,000 feet of 16 mm. color film on birds to RKO; they'll release it as a two-reel short. Ornithology has been her hobby for years. The film shows the life and habits of various western birds, including sea birds and eagles; the color pictures were sold several years in production.

THE MISSION OF THE CHURCH

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 18:15-17; Acts 1:8; 2:42; 6:1-4; 11:27-30; 13:1-3; 1 John 1:3.
GOLDEN TEXT—As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you.—John 20:21.

The church is the greatest institution in all the world, with the most widespread membership and influence. That is true from a purely secular or worldly standpoint. Then when we realize that here is more than a human organization, for it is in fact a divine organism; that it is the means through which God is now manifesting His power toward men, we see the supreme importance of understanding the church and our relationship to it. This week we stress the mission of the church. We note seven things.

I. Holiness of Life (Matt. 18:15-17).
In a time when general standards of decency and honesty are low, and no one wants to be his brother's keeper, the church needs to be reminded that part of its mission is to maintain holiness in life and the relationship of one to another.

Notice that man's attitude toward his fellowman is first a matter for personal attention, then it becomes of real interest to the church, and if no response is found there, the offending individual is excluded and put in the hands of God. Be sure to observe that all this is done to "gain" or win him back, not for revenge or in bitterness.

II. Witness in Divine Power (Acts 1:8).
The witness bears testimony to that which he has experienced, and in the case of Christian experience he is assured of divine power in carrying out his sacred task.

The world would have laughed (and possibly did) at the idea of a small group of humble believers making the gospel effective simply by telling others about the Saviour—but it worked, because God's power was in it.

III. Unity in Faith and Practice (Acts 2:42).
The early church had not yet been split up by the philosophies of men and the vagaries of doctrine, which have since divided God's people. It was His purpose that His people should be one in Him, something we should recall before we divide them just to promote some theory of interpretation.

Unity is not only a matter of belief, it must reach into the practice of daily life. They were steadfast not only in doctrine, but in communion and prayer. A bit more unity there might bring us closer together in belief.

IV. Service, Spiritual and Social (Acts 6:1-4).
The church rightly put the emphasis on the spiritual. The leaders who had gifts for ministry of the Word did not permit themselves to be diverted into social service. Too many in the church have failed at that point. Even the good may be the mortal enemy of the best.

At the same time the early church did not neglect social needs. Men were appointed to care for them. In all too many instances the modern church has failed to minister to the social needs even of its own people and has weakly (and one fears gladly) turned them over to social agencies. What a pity!

V. Love—in Deed as Well as in Word (Acts 11:27-30).
Talking about the need of others, wishing them God's blessing, saying a desultory prayer asking God to bless and help them, is not sufficient, in fact it is not Christian at all (see James 2:14-17).

Love acts. It gives. It serves. It proves faith by works. It translates the gospel into a language an unbelieving world can understand.

VI. Obedience to the Holy Spirit (Acts 13:1-3).
God has certain plans for the work of the church in the world, and be sure that they are no small or indifferent plans. His mighty agent in bringing His will to pass in the world is the third person of the Trinity, the Holy Spirit. If the church will respond to His guidance and be subject to His control, the work of God may go on unhindered. But just there, Christian friends, the church has most ingloriously failed.

The early church was directed of the Holy Spirit to set apart Paul and Barnabas for the work of missionaries and evangelists. Knowing as we do the marvelous results of their ministry, we shudder at the thought of what might have happened if the church had disobeyed the Holy Spirit that day!

VII. Fellowship (1 John 1:3).
Here is the great secret of spiritual life and growth—Christian fellowship. And notice with care the place for it is in the church. If we do not come to the church we deprive ourselves and others of the opportunity for fellowship. The matter of church attendance (and twice on Sunday is not too much) needs to be put on our consciences lest we by our absence bear an anti-church testimony before our neighbors. But even more important is our own need of fellowship with God's people.

The difference between perseverance and obstinacy is one is a strong will and the other a strong won't.

It is a good plan to tell no more of your own troubles than you want to hear about other people's.
And So We're Overloaded
We are so busy asking to be given more than we have that we haven't time to ask to be able to appreciate the things we have.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Don't forget that matching curtains and slip covers will make a room sprightly in spite of its age.
Some meat loaves call for bacon strips on the top. To prevent the bacon from becoming too brown before the loaf is done, arrange it during the last 20 minutes of baking.

Geraniums should be kept in a very sunny window if you wish them to live through the winter.

To broil steak, grease the rack of the broiler. Place the meat on rack close to the heat. Sear it quickly on one side, season with salt and pepper, turn and sear on other side. Lower the rack or the heat to allow steak to finish cooking. Season and add a piece of butter before serving. Rare steak is juicy and flavorful and is often preferred to well-done steak. Do not pierce center of steak when turning.

In buying iodine for the medicine closet never buy any solution stronger than 2 per cent. A 2 per cent solution is specified by the Red Cross First Aid Manuals as strong enough for those other than doctors to use.

Since quilts are expected to last a long time, sometimes become heirlooms, and entail quite a bit of work for even the simplest, use only new cloth and good, strong thread.

Brown stains can be removed from the kitchen range with a cloth dipped in turpentine. A little pressure will help here.

Second Contestant Was Runner-Up to the Worst

Both were very proud of their vocal abilities: for months they had squabbled over the question as to which possessed the better voice. At last, to settle bets they had made with each other, they arranged to give a recital before an eminent professor and abide by his judgment.

When they had concluded, the professor turned to the first, shaking his head sorrowfully.
"You're the worst singer I've ever heard," he said.
"Hurrah!" shouted the other. "Come on! Pay me that fever!"
"One moment, please," said the professor, quietly. "You—er—well, you can't sing at all!"

Lucky Porpoises

Sailors generally believe that porpoises bring luck when they follow a ship. This is a very old story. It dates from the days when people believed in a sea-god who was constantly at war with the spirits of the winds. This sea-god was supposed to be attended always by dolphins.
Now porpoises are very similar to dolphins, so if a sailor sees porpoises gambolling about his ship he knows the sea-god is for the time victorious over storms and gales, and therefore the voyage will be prosperous.

PREPAREDNESS by the AMERICAN RED CROSS

THE making of large numbers of surgical dressings for the armed forces in wartime is one of the principal duties of the American Red Cross.
Immediately after the outbreak of the world war in Europe in September, 1939, more than 500 Red Cross chapters throughout the nation began making large quantities of surgical dressings for our army and navy. In addition, a large number of dressings were made to be used by Red Cross relief organizations caring for the suffering civilian population in the war-torn countries of Europe.

As the war progressed and spread to more and more nations of the world, this program of surgical dressings was gradually enlarged and extended to Red Cross chapters in practically every county in the United States. Today more than 3,000 Red Cross chapters are busily engaged in making surgical dressings for our army and navy according to standard specifications and methods furnished by them.

More than two million women throughout the nation are now making surgical dressings for our armed forces under this program. By the end of October, 1942, they had made more than a hundred million dressings of all kinds and were embarking on a very large program for the coming year. The making of surgical dressings is a very important work in which nearly every woman can participate, no matter where she is located or how little time she can spare.
