Airport Bond Issue Carries By Huge Majority; Clearing Of Airfield Site Begins Thursday

PILOTING

Aransas County citizens last Saturday demonstrated that they are imbued with a real spirit of patriotism and progressiveness, when a cross-section of the people went to the polls and voted 266 to 4 for the issuance of bonds to build an airport.

The action of the people in voting the bonds is highly commendable on two counts: (1) The armed forces urgently requested the coperation of the people in building the airfield so that it may be used to help win the war. (2) The action of the people in voting the bonds shows that they are doing their part to keep their community abreast the times and to preserve and further it to the interest of the sons of Aransas County who are now giving their all on the fighting fronts of the world. These boys will one day return to their home town and community, and we feel sure they will find that those of us left on the home front have not failed them. We should do everything possible to keep Rockport and Aransas county to the forefront civicly. thereby preserving and furthering the very things for which the boys in uniform are now making such great and extreme

Final Appeal For Red Cross Funds Made By Johnson

Six More Days Remain For Contributions; $1,968 Now Raised

Travis Johnson, chairman of the Red Cross War Fund Drive in Aransas county, issued a final poeal Thursday for additional contributions to the fund and pointed out that only six more days renained until the end of the drive n April 1st.

"A late check up on contributions rom the Rockport area made tolay revealed a total of $1,968 had een contributed," Johnson said. We have not yet had any concluive report from the Fulton section of the Sparks Colony district. But additional funds must be raised ight here in Rockport if our quota g $2,200 is to be reached.

Country Press of America Is Vital Factor In the Job of 'Holding the Home Front'

It 'Went to War' on the Day Pearl Harbor Was Bombed And It's Still Waging A Valiant Fight.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON WITHIN 24 hours after the Japs made their sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, Raymond B. Howard of London, Ohio, president of the National Editorial association, was telegraphing to President Roosevelt:

I am sure you will find a united press backing a united nation in the defense of our country and flag. I am sure that I speak for the small dailies and weekly newspapers making up the membership of the National Editorial association, in assuring you of our complete support. It is fortunate that we have a free press in America with which to enlighten and solidify our ef-

On the same day a similar message went forward to the White House from the president of Newspaper Association Managers, Inc., the organization of field secretaries and managing directors of more than 30 state press associations.

Such was the promise, what has been the fulfillment?

Well, it is difficult to estimate in exact figures the contribution to America's war effort since December 7, 1941, of the 11,000-odd dailies and weeklies that comprise the nation's "small-town press." A large part of that contribution-perhaps a major part-has been in the realm of that intangible, but vitally important, thing called morale-in "holding the home front."

As a matter of fact, the country press of America began making this contribution long before Pearl Harbor. It started with the beginning of the national defense program when the menace of Hitlerism to the democratic way of life became more and more clearly apparent. For one thing, the country press contributed thousands of columns of space, both editorial and advertising, to promoting the sale of defense bonds. When the selective service act was passed, the country editor told the people of his community why it was necessary for their sons and brothers to leave the farms and stores and offices of rural America and go into training so that they could be prepared to defend their country when that inevitable day of attack by the aggressor nations came. Morale Was Low.

And it was during that period, when the morale of the selectees, inadequately equipped, not yet adjusted to the change from civilian to military life and not having the incentive of the existence of a "state of war' to make real the necessity for training, might easily have slipped to a dangerously low level. Recognizing the fact that the drafted man's receiving his home town paper was next best to receiving a letter from home, some country publishers began sending copies of their papers free of charge to the boys in camp. Hundreds more voluntarily followed their example and the good effects of this practice, in terms of heightened morale among the citizen soldiers, was so apparent as to win special commendation for the country press from the morale division of the war department.

The same practice was continued after America entered the war and its benefits have been even more apparent. It requires little imagination to realize what it means to a soldier, sailor or marine in an outpost in Alaska or Greenland or on the fighting front in north Africa or New Guinea to open up a copy of his home town paper and read there how the folks back home are "backing him up" by their buying war bonds, by their contributing to the Red Cross blood bank, by their help in "getting in the scrap" and all the other ways in which civilians can aid the war effort. More important still, perhaps, is the way in which it satisfies their hunger for the other news from home-the dozens of little items about the normal life in their communities to which they hope to return some day soon.

Important as has been "free papers for servicemen." it is but one of the ways in which the country press has fostered morale not only among the fighting men but also among their families. Some publishselectees" — celebrations in which invoked the deep spirit of that will eventually be ours.

It's "Just Like a Letter From Home" to Him!

the whole community joins in paying | patriotism. We feel that it will be a labhonor to the men as they march away to war instead of allowing their departure for their great adventure to pass almost unnoticed except by the presence of their relatives at the railroad station as they leave. Other publishers have devoted the front windows of their offices to displays of pictures of servicemen from their communities and almost without exception the country press, from the beginning of the war, has printed "honor rolls" of the names of the community's fighting men, pictures of them and their let-

Typical of the numerous ways in which the country press has built morale, both military and civilian, are these examples:

A New York weekly that founded a "War Service Club" which performs a variety of services for the community's men in the armed forces, including the sending each month of two dozen home-made cookies to every man.

promoted a "Happiness From Home" box to bring Christmas cheer to all local men in the

A New Jersey weekly that sponsored a special Armistice day ceremony, honoring the mothers of four local boys who had been killed in action.

A Virginia weekly that sponsored a "Write Right to Fighting Men!" campaign to offset the ill effects of the kind of discouraging letters which some people write to men in the armed

One other great service of the country press in the realm of morale was the part it has played in putting this nation in a "fighting mood." Back in the days when we were still calling them "defense bonds," certain government officials-also some big city columnists and commentators - began accusing the American people of being too complacent about the war. Thereupon a weekly newspaper down in Florida printed an editorial which was at once a reply to that accusation and a trumpet call to action. It said in

. If you want the American people to snap out of their "complacency," for the sake of all that's holy start yelling ATTACK! Call the defense bonds VICTORY BONDS. Call the defense councils WAR COUNCILS.

This is a fighting nation. This is a mighty nation. Stop low-rating us. We common men and women know what var is. We have no illusions about it. We do not intend to be a slave race, or know that our nation is at stake. Furthermore, we more than a little suspect that the entire future of mankind is at stake. Give us a battle cry!

That this was not an isolated case was shown by the fact that about the same time a small community out in Montana had set aside a certain day to sell a certain amount of bonds-not "defense bonds" but WAR bonds and they called it BONDbardment Day. Commenting on this project, the editor of the local weekly which had sponsored the event said: We think we have the answer here, the challenge to the cry of complacency. We think the people are suffering from a sort of emotional starvation. We are going to try and bring back the spirit of the old ratory test. We are sure that scolding and charges of complacency are not the

Needless to say this BONDbardment Day in that Montana town, as in many others throughout the country, was a tremendous success. And it is significant that as the result of a new spirit which swept the country, aided by the efforts of hundreds of country editors, soon thereafter they were no longer called 'defense bonds' but "war bonds" or "Victory bonds."

Nor has the work of the country press in behalf of the sale of war bonds through its editorial, news and advertising columns been the only contribution it has made to the war effort in the realm of tangible things. There was the scrap metal campaign carried on to salvage from the farms of the nation the thousands of tons of metal so urgently needed by the steel mills to make battleships, guns and other weapons of war. A Florida weekly dramatized the effort to "get in the scrap" by capitalizing upon the reputation of a scrappy American fighter-Gen. Douglas MacArthur. So that community set aside a day for bringing in all kinds of scrap material and called it "Gen. MacArthur Day." The event was an overwhelming success.

He Sets an Example.

Nor does the average country editor merely urge the people of his community to do their patriotic duty. Frequently he sets them an example by going out and doing it himself. There was the editor of a New York weekly who has made his office the center of a 24-hour service as communications headquarters in case of enemy air raids. There was the editor in a little Kansas town who not only managed the salvage yard in his town but who personally collected and shipped some 60 tons of scrap iron. More than that he personally did all the work of cutting up the iron with an acetylene torch and supervised the loading and sorting of the entire lot -all this in addition to his regular duties as editor, publisher, advertising solicitor and printer of his newspaper. And finally there was one of the leading country publishers in California who did something about the manpower shortage besides writing editorials about it. When trained sawmill workers in his town began leaving because they feared they would be "frozen" in their jobs, he signed up for work as a lumberjack in a sawmill on the night shiftfrom 5 p. m. to 1 a. m. He sleeps the rest of the night, then puts in a full day at his publishing duties.

Such are only a few of the highlights in the story of what the country press of America has done and is doing since it "went to war." Despite the loss of revenue from decreased advertising linage and increased production costs, despite the shortages of materials essential to the printing business and despite the loss of manpower when its newswriters and advertising men and printers went into the armed forces. it is carrying on valiantly in the fight for freedom and it is doubtful if any other class of patriotic Americans, either as a group or as individuals, are contributing more in more different ways to the victory

THE APPEARANCES AFTER THE RESURRECTION

LESSON TEXT-John 20:19-31. GOLDEN TEXT-I am alive for evermore.-Revelation 1:18.

The most important day in all history was the first day of the week following the crucifixion of Christ. Then He appeared to His disciples as their risen Lord. All the hope of all mankind for all eternity depended on His victory over death.

By eventide news had come to the disciples of His resurrection, and half in hope and half in uncertainty they had gathered to talk over these matters. Fearful of the Jews, they met behind closed doors. All at once He was there-the Lord Himself. What a wonderful change came over them as He made Himself known to them. They went

I. From Fear to Gladness (vv.

Their eyes had been upon their enemies and they were afraid. Now they "were glad, when they saw the Lord." We need to learn that lesson. If we look within we are ashamed and discouraged. If we look around us we are confused and fearful. If we look to Christ we are glad and strong.

Notice that their joy was not based only on an emotional impulse. They saw Christ in His resurrection body-the very One who had died. The evidence was there before them. Now they could understand the things He had said to them. The whole realm of spiritual truth was now in focus again, and they were glad. So are we when we really see

II. From Weakness to Strength

The disciples who were called to be witnesses for Christ had lost their testimony when He died on the cross. Unbelief and discouragement had so weakened them that they were in getting these-things with no stars | hiding instead of being out proclaiming His truth.

Now the risen and victorious One sent them forth with the Father's blessing. They were empowered by the Holy Spirit, and given great au-Waiter-No choice; just a risk, thority (v. 23). Note that it was given not to one man or to the leaders, but to all the disciples. It was "a declarative right, and it belongs Waiter (amazed)-I should say to every true disciple. Those who have received the gift of the Holy Spirit are in a position to declare to men that their sincere repentance brings forgiveness" (Douglass). The opposite is also true. III. From Doubt to Faith (vv. 24-

Thomas, who had doubts and who cultivated them by his stubborn attitude (v. 25), did himself and his brethren a serious disservice by being absent from the meeting on the evening of the first Easter Day. When he did appear he had only doubts to contribute. Let those who make a custom of absenting themselves from the place and hour of service beware lest they do like-

His doubts were honest ones-and God always meets such questions. bonestly and intelligently. When the evidence was before him, the heart of Thomas leaped the chasm from doubt to faith in one cry of complete devotion (v. 28).

It is significant that down through the ages many doubters have been all to you. Bring whatever you won to Christ by the proof of the resurrection of Christ, which is by the testimony of historical schol-Customer-And will you bring ars "the best authenticated fact in all history." The risen Christ stands before men today and says, "Be not faithless but believing." May many respond with Thomas, "My Lord and my God."

IV. From Death to Life (vv. 29-

Christ arose from the dead not just to show that He had power to do so, but, as Paul puts it, "for our justification" (Rom. 4:25). The reality and dependability of the entire plan of salvation hinged on the return of Christ from the dead. Had the grave held Him, His claims of deity and of the ability to forgive sin would have been entirely discredited. Because He lives we shall live.

The experience of regeneration is therefore likened in Scripture to a passing from death to life (John 5:24). Thomas saw the Lord, and believing, passed from doubt to faith. We cannot see Him now, but we have the blessed privilege of believing and thus receiving life (vv. 29 31).

This was the message which the now radiant and empowered disciples went out to preach. The book of Acts tells us how effectively they did it, and shows how much of their preaching centered on the fact of the resurrection.

The command and the commission was not to them alone, but also to all of us who believe in Christ. May God take out of us the fear of men, overcome our weakness, and send us out with renewed faith to make this life-giving message known to our fellow men.

Reason Aplenty

"There's no need for you to said the dentist. "I haven't touched your tooth yet.' "No," said the patient, "but you're standing on my corn."

His Turn Next

At the end of the third round the heavyweight boxer staggered to his corner in a dazed and battered condition. His manager approached the fighter and said sweetly: "Here, Butch, I've got a great idea! Next time 'e 'its you, 'it 'im back!"

The Problem

"Breathe deeply. Germs are killed by deep breathing." "But how are you going to teach the germs to do it?'

"He'll never make a soldier." exclaimed the sergeant of the knock-kneed recruit. "When his legs above his knees stand at attention, below they stand at ease."

How Could He?

Father-I'm afraid your young man is living beyond his means. Daughter-Oh, no, daddy! He hasn't any.

Soreness and Stiffness You need to rub on a powerfully soothing "COUNTER-IRRITANT" like Musterole to quickly relieve neuritis, rheumatic aches and pains. Better than an old-fashioned mustard plaster to help break uppainful local congestion!

Indians of the Amazon River re-gion made the first rubber over-shoes, which were imported into the U. S. in 1800.

Mistakes of many kinds can cut into the rubber conservation program, as is indicated by the fact that normally 180,000 pounds of rubber was used annually in the manufacture of pencil mark erasers.

Before vulcanization was discovered in 1839 rubber goods hard-ened like rock in winter and melted in summer. Early rubber goods manufacturers suffered severa financial losses because of the unreliability of their products. That was many years ago.

A check of the tires on 500 vehi-cles recently disclosed that 80% were under-inflated, even to the ex-tent of from 10 to 15 pounds. This is a heavy waste of rubber because it has been found that 30 per cent under-inflation permits the return of only 74 per cent of the mileage built into a tire.

The Armored Force School, headed by Col J. A. Holly, trains the thousands of technicians who perform the specialist tasks in the Army's mobile, hard-hitting armored divisions. It rolls off its human assembly lines each year many times more students than are gradated from the largest civilian universities or colleges.

Classes operate on two sevenhour shifts, six days a week. Men on the first shift rise at 4.30 a. m. and march into classrooms and workshops at 6 o'clock. As they leave their rooms and equipment at 1 p. m., the second shift moves in behind them, working until 8. In modern shops of the tank department, of which Col. Edwin A. Lois Elain Bell

Mrs. Lois Elaine Bell, of Rockport, has just completed her enrollment in the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, at the San Antonio District Army Recruiting Headquarters, Calcasieu Building, 214 Broadway, San Antonio.

To enroll, she received free transportation both ways, free accomodations in San Antonio. She is now in the WAAC Reserve, awaiting call, pending the customary character investigation, to on of the nations' three WAAC training centers for basic training which will equip her to aid directly in the war effort and to replace another able-bodied soldier, relea ig him for combat

"My chief rea ns for joining the Women's Auxiliary Corps is that I feel it my duty as an American citizen to do whatever I am capable of doing to help bring this war to a victorious and earlier conclusion. I have many good friends, my brother and husband in the service, and the sooner they can come back home, the sooner we'll all get to lead peaceful and happy lives again, and the prouder I'll feel

Kits for Castaways

Earl Roman, fishing editor of a Florida newspaper, is shown with two of the fishing kits designed as part of the equipment of the rubber rafts carried on military and naval planes. The small kit, worn like a vest, is intended for small rafts. The large one in the can he holds is for larger rafts and lifeboats. Kits are for use to catch fish that would supply food for castaways. They were tested off the Florida keys.

OPA In Surprise Move Halts Sale Of Edible Fats

In a move which took many Rockport residents by surprise, the Office of War Production last Sunday banned for a week the retail sale of butter, margarine, lards and other edible fats and oils which must go under point rationing March 29.

The government order, isssued without and advance warning, forretail buying of these foods between 12:01 a. m. Monday March 22, and the same hour March 29, when they will be rationed along with meat, cheese and canned fish.

The order was made public Sunday at 2 p. m., Central War Time. Thus city dwellers who heard of t in time could visit delicatessen and other stores open on Sunday o lay stocks ahead of the midight deadline. However, many of hese stores had no butter on hand and only small quantities of lard, vegetable shortenings and salad

An official explained that OPA in timing the announcement, had to choose between "risking a short run" on the relatively few stores open Sunday or not getting word f the sales suspension to all the 600,000 stores in the country by omorrow.

Resturants are not affected by the order, and may continue to get butter and the other foods from cheir wholesailers.

The office of Price Administration said the suspension of sales was necessary because stocks of these foods were insufficient "to support heavy public buying during the one week before ration- las, spent a considerable portion ing." • Most business men today are bumping their heads on the ceiling of fixed prices—while they adjust operations to meet increased costs, decreased personnel, and material shortages.

• But ceiling prices are nothing new to Central Power and Light Company. We've been up against 'em for years! We're used to having our ceiling prices set by public regulation-while we worked to bring those rates down nearer and nearer the floor.

• We've succeeded so well that today the average South and Southwest Texas home enjoys twice as much electricity for its money as it did about 15 years age. Many folks find that hard to believe because they were adding electric appliances and using more electricity all the time the rates were coming down. But it's a FACT!

• This record of rate reduction has been possible because of sound business methods and the practical experience of men, women and management working together. To-day that team is doing a still more remarkable job—delivering far more electric power for war production than Hitler and Tojo have!

MORE TIRES: On April 1

Liberalizing tire rationing for the second time, Price Administrator Prentiss Brown expressed the belief that all motorists would be able to keep their cars on the road as the result of the release of additional President Herbert Hoover calls tires by Rubber Administrator William Jeffers.

Effective April 1, grade 2 tires will be available to drivers with gasoline mileage allowances exceeding 240 miles a month. This includes most B, C and T card holders. Motorists eligible for 560 or more miles will be allowed a limited number of grade 1 tires, the highest grade casing. However, all must be obtained | tributors and provide sufficient mawith certificates issued by local ration boards.

THUNDER:

Over Germany

Since the RAF staged its firm colossal 1,000 plane bombing of Cologne last spring, Nazi industrial and communications centers in both Germany and the occupied countries have been subjected to concentrated pounding from the air. Out of 500 bombers, 475 returned after the last shattering attack on Essen.

Railroad lines and the big auto motive center of Rouen have beer the principal targets in France. The extensive system of canals has beer bombed in Holland and Belgium. FLARE-UP:

In France

Hopeful eyes turned for several days on the high mountain passes near the French-Swiss frontier where large numbers of French patriots had mobilized to launch guerrilla warfare against Italian and German troops. For the most these forces consisted of young Frenchmen who were being recruited for forced labor inside Germany.

First reports from Zurich and Berne, Switzerland, indicated that British RAF planes were dropping guns and ammunition to the men waiting in the Alps. German sources soon claimed that many of the men were deserting because of the lack of such supplies. This claim was substantiated by neutral reports.

Much support and advice to the movement was given by the Algiers radio. This source claimed that Italian troops in the area were refusing to help pry the patriots loose from their positions

An ultimatum had been issued by the Germans before the fighting began but the French declined it saying that they were ready to fight through to the end.

While non-Axis nations were cheered by the news of the resistance there was little hope that the uprising could spread far.

SECRET AIRFIELDS: Held Dutch Harbor

The story behind Japan's failure to seize Dutch Harbor, the navy's Alaskan stronghold, is due largely to the "existence" of two imaginary salmon packing companies. The facts have just been revealed.

The two packing firms were no more than covers for one of the Alaska defense command's most remarkable jobs-the secret construction of two airfields to guard Dutch Harbor. When the Japs approached the naval base last June 3 (with two carriers, three cruisers, eight destroyers and four transports-perhaps as strong as the forces which struck at Pearl Harbor) they understood there was no airfield within 800 miles of Dutch Harbor.

In the midst of their assault the Japs found themselves hit from behind by land based planes and bombed and torpedoed by land based planes. Their spy work-so successful at Pearl Harbor-had failed.

LITTLE STEEL:

A source of comfort to almost every labor union official is the fact that the Little Steel formula is fast disappearing as a factor in wage increases approved by the War Labor board. The bulk of wage adjustments now is based on "inequali-

Reason for the disappearance of the much-debated formula is that a majority of employees already have received the 15 per cent general increase permitted by the formula as a cost-of-living adjustment. WLB officials state that scarcely any important branches of industry have not raised wages at least that much since January 1, 1941.

JAP FORCES: Above Australia

Word from Allied headquarters in the South Pacific indicated that Japan's invasion forces appeared shifting to the ring of islands north of Australia.

This new menace was emphasized when 49 enemy planes-25 bombers and 24 fighters-attacked Port Darwin in Australia. It was one of the heaviest raids in months, although the Japs were driven off with only slight damage and casualties.

Age Gap in Marriage

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

URIOUSLY enough, my mail this week contained two letters, one from Portland, Oregon, and one from Cleveland, Ohio, and both asking the same question: is a difference in age a serious thing in marriage?

The Portland girl is 30 years old, her young man is only 24. She says that she is young for her years, and that he has been developed by responsibilities and hard times to seem much older than he is. He was a worker at 14, took care of an invalid mother and little sister until the mother died and the little sister married, and Alma says that while he is full of fun and confidence and eagerness, he is really a serious man was madly in love with him. I was

Alma has had a hard time, too. She has been the main support of a family of older persons, faithfully moving between home and office for almost 12 years. But for all that she is young in spirit, she writes me of a tiny week-end cottage near the sea where she has sometimes crowded in as many as a dozen friends, of her cat, her window gardens, her love for cooking, and the tiny niece that her brother sometimes lends her for a visit. And her picture shows a small, charming person, beaming under a widebrimmed hat.

So my advice to Alma was to marry her Tom at once, and enjoy her rightful share of happiness as wife, home-maker, and someday mother.

Pleasant Years Predicted.

There is no generalizing about marriage, but it is true that marriage in which the wife is somewhat the older of the two, do generally turn out happily. Alma is going into this marriage with a real determination to make it a success, and something tells me that it will

The other case is that of a girl named Margot, who is 17. She is the only child of a divorced mother; it is the mother who writes me.

"I was only 18 when Margot was born," says her letter, "so that we really are more like sisters than mother and daughter. She has been my one and sole consideration for every moment of her life. We traveled in Europe every summer; I helped her with all her lessons; we had a plan for every Saturday and Sunday. My husband was 14 years older than I; it was his family, and his first wife's family, who made our marriage impossible; Margot | man isn't love." was only a few months old when I left her father, and I have not seen

"Like an uncle to Margaret has always been the family doctor; he was on the staff of the hospital where she was born, later became a nerve specialist and moved into our neighborhood. He is now 54. When he began to call constantly at our house it was natural for me to feel that he was interested in me; I have always liked him, without ever giving any deeper feeling so much as a thought. Some weeks ago I said half-seriously to Margot that I wished John, to call him that, would ask me to marry him and have it over, as the suspense created by his calls, gifts, significant speeches, notes, was getting on my nerves.

Daughter's Confession.

and a hysterical statement that if have told me long before that she | py life for her.

TWO ANSWERS

This week Kathleen Norris answers two letters asking whether or not it is essential to a happy marriage for the husband and wife to be the same, or nearly the same age. In each of these two cases the answer is "no," although the circumstances vary considerably. On the one hand, a girl of 30 wants to marry a young man 24; and on the other, a girl of 17 is madly in love with a middle-aged man about three times her age. Be sure to read this wise and tolerant discussion of a problem that has troubled many women.

stupefied. Margot to me is still the dear happy dancing child who has been my companion all these years; to think of her as married, and married to a man almost 20 years older than I am, actually sickens me. I have not been well in soul, mind or body since this thunderbolt fell upon me. John is about three times her age, a well-groomed, successful man who has many friends, a fine practice, and who is extremely youthful in his tastes. He takes her to dances, plays tennis, associates much with younger people, but all that doesn't change the facts. Worse, he was married long before Margot was born, and has two daughters older than Margot. One of these is married; the other lives at home as his housekeeper, and as the establishment includes his paralyzed old mother, two servants, a nurse for the mother and an office nurse, with a chauffeur and gardener as well, everyone seems to feel that Margot would be lucky to keep this daughter in the family as manager. Margot stands a little in awe of Helen, who is about 24, and says she would like this arrangement. But to think of my adored baby in that big house, with a husband older than her own father is, and all those complicated relationships to adjust, frightens me. I could prevent this marriage until she is 18, perhaps, but she could go to her father for permission, and as he has never had the slightest responsibility for her, or interest in her, he would probably give his consent.

"What argument can I use with her to convince her that she is throwing away youth, good times, the prospect of falling normally in love with someone of a suitable age? For certainly what she feels for this Situation Beyond Control. The answer is, you can do nothing.

And for your consolation let it be said that Margot is now playing a part, and it is a happy and popular

That will be Margot's role, and she will love it. Presently the maids, chauffeur, step-daughters, the helpless old mother, the nurses, will all be in love with lovely little Mrs. John. Sometimes girls keep up that attitude all their lives; I knew one handsome old woman who still liked to remember that when at 16 she married a rich man of 55, he insisted that she go on with her schooling. And when he went to the Philippines during the Spanish war, he put her into boarding school. She had four step-sons, all much taller and older than she, and two boys of her own, "Her answer was a burst of tears, and, while it wasn't marriage as most men and women know it, marit had not been for her fear that I riage with its young cares and reloved John, and that it would break sponsibilities, its mutual dependence my heart to lose him, she would and financial worries, it was a hap-

SECRET MARSHBAN

QNORRIS

THE STORY SO FAR: Charlotte ! (Cherry) Rawlings, an orphan at Saint Dorothea's convent school since she was seven, knows almost nothing of her early history but has gradually realized that like other girls at the school she has no family. She questions whether she has the right to her father's name. Judge Judson Marshbanks and Emma Haskell, housekeeper for wealthy Mrs. Porteous Porter in San Francisco, are her guardians. When Cherry is twenty Emma gets her a secretarial job with Mrs. Porter but she goes first to the Marshbanks mansion, meeting the judge's young wife, Fran, and his rich niece, Amy, daughter of his brother Fred, now dead. Life at Mrs. Porter's becomes monotonous and Cherry is thrilled when Kelly Coates, an artist, sends her a box of candy and she is jealous when he brings Fran to a party at Mrs. Porter's. Emma tells Cherry that her sister Charlotte was Cherry's mother. Kelly takes Cherry along so Fran can visit his studio and Cherry senses that he is very much in love with Fran, but soon he tells Cherry despondently that Fran has promised the judge she will not see him any more. Mrs. Porter dies, leaving Cherry $1,500, and she learns from Marshbanks that his brother Fred, who was Amy's father, was also her father. Cherry goes to Stanford University and lives with the Pringles. Fran asks her to be Kelly's friend, saying he likes her, and that she has decided to do the honorable thing and avoid him. Kelly goes to Palo Alto and asks Cherry to marry him, although Fran will always be the "unattainable woman." Her answer is no; she wants no Fran in the background. Cherry and Rebecca Pringle work in a vacation camp, then take a motor trip to Canada and on the way back Cherry goes to see Emma.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER XII

"I've hidden something for twenty years," Emma said quietly.

"You ought to know," said Emma -"not that you ever can prove it! -that you aren't Charlotte Rawlings at all, Cherry. You ought to know that you're Amelia Marshbanks."

Cherry swallowed with a dry throat, essayed to speak, failed. "You said, Aunt Emma-?" she stammered after a silence and stopped. "You didn't say that I'm

Amy . Breath failed her again. The other woman looked at her somberly. "I'll tell you what happened,"

Emma said in her unemotional way.

"I was twelve years older than Lottie; my mother died when she was two. She was pretty the way Amy is, only slighter and smaller, with Amy's kind of hair. After my father died we lived with an aunt and uncle; they weren't always kind the evenings. to me, but everyone adored Lottie. Then my aunt died I kept house for my uncle and Lottie was my baby. When she was six I took her to her first school. I did her homework with her.

"My father was John Rawlingshe could never do much for us, and when he died and my uncle and aunt died-I was nineteen then-Lottie was all I had left.

"Well, I married Tom Haskell, and he was a father to her. She was ten, and pretty as a picture. One Sunday we were driving along comfortably, Lottie squeezed in between me and Tom on the front seat and suddenly a big truck smashed in on us from the left. Tom was dead at the wheel; I was broken almost in two. But little Lottie was protected by our bodies.

"Three months later I went to the Marshbanks. I tried St. Dorothea's for Lottie-an old friend of mine was a Sister there-but she couldn't stand it, so I boarded her with a fine Irishwoman who had three children. I saw her often, every week nearly.

"When she was old enough Lottie went to a nice, simple little boarding school in Belmont. Summers they had a camp, and she was happy and good and prettier and prettier.

"Fred Marshbanks, your father, was one of the handsomest men I ever saw, but weak. He had married Amelia Wellington by this time -she was a lovely girl with blue eyes and light hair, but for a long time it looked as if they couldn't have a child, and it broke her heart. Jud Marshbanks was married too, but he lived in the East, and they only saw his little boy now and then. That's Gregory, of course.

"I wanted Lottie nearer me then, and she'd left school, and boarded down in Redwood City. But she was often with me in the Marshbanks house.

"When Lottie was eighteen and I was thirty I was sewing in my room one night. We were all under a considerable strain in the house, for at last Fred's wife was going to have a baby, and they were terribly anxious for fear something would go wrong again.

"It was eleven o'clock, and I was thinking of going to bed when suddenly my door opened, and Lottie

"It was as if a gun had gone off," Emma went on. "My throat was thick and my head hurt. But I had to keep holding tight to her, telling her it was all right, that we'd get through-we'd get through somehow. Had she told anyone? No, nobodynobody. She carried that secret for five months.

"To think, Cherry of the Welcome that they were getting ready for the Marshbanks baby, and of the way the world would treat my Lottie's unwanted little scrap, seemed to work like some terrible intoxicating poison in me. I put her to bed; she'd stayed at the house often enough; there was no comment by anyone; and if Fred Marshbanks ever had thought of her, he had probably put it all out of his mind, as a moment's foolish mistake months before.

"Lottie went off to sleep, and the next morning she was her quiet little self. I began to think if I could possibly keep Lottie safe up there, on the third floor of a big house. Where else would she be so hidden and so safe? I said to the Filipino servant Bonifacio that my sister would be with me a good deal. It was none of his business; he didn't care. Lottie could come and go in the quiet hours of the day, and in

"I don't remember that we talked of it much. Weeks went by. Lottie expected her baby in January.

"January!" Cherry interrupted. "But we were both born in November, Amy and I!"

"Yes, but one of you came two months too early." Emma went onwith the story. "I wa going to Fred, and if necessary bring in his brother, for the judge had moved out here then, and have them acknowledge his child. But it all came out differently.

"When I came upstairs one wet November afternoon I found her in bed. Her trouble had come upon her two months too soon. I slipped down and telephoned old Doctor Povlitski. He had been a friend of mine and I knew he would keep our

The doctor came in quietly the side way - I looked out for that-but fifteen minutes before he arrived Lottie's little girl, very tiny, but healthy enough, was born. There was nothing for him to do; he went away, and left her to me. And then I had some thinking to do again, for there isn't any hiding a new baby long."

"Four nights later," Emma continued, "we heard a good deal of laughing and calling downstairs so I made some errand to go down to Mrs. Fred's room, and then came up and reported to Lottie. Mrs. Fred's father had arrived, and had brought he baby everything-his pram and chair and crib, his silver bowl and plate, and they'd been opening them up and making a

Lynn Says:

Vitamins Plus or Minus? It all depends upon how you handle them. To retain maximum amounts of vitamins in cooked foods, use as little water as possible-just enough to prevent from sticking.

Get on your mark, start quickly. Not a track race, but a vitamin race. You start with boiling water for cooking, and cook rapidly-thus cutting cooking time to a minimum and saving precious food values.

Covered utensils without stirring are prescribed. Stirring and uncovered utensils put air into foods and destroy vitamins.

Avoid violent, furious boiling. This is modern, streamlined, protective cookery-to preserve valuable vitamins.
