A Declaration of Faith

The example being set by the Methodist young people in their plan to raise a special-purpose fund deserves thoughtful consideration and commendation from the older generation.

The plan could be described as almost revolutionary. The gist of it is plain hard work. When the older generation looks back frankly to its own youth, everybody will agree that even in the "good old days" work was always the last resort in any money raising scheme.

The Methodist young people have taken cognizance publicly of the fact that too often the bee is put on the business men of the town for every extra fund that is wanted. Too often soliciting organizations take the credit for having raised money when all they have done is to gather up the cash from the men and firms which actually have raised it by hard work.

For recognizing that fact, the young people and their leaders, Mr. and Mrs. David Geiser, deserve much credit. For doing something about it, they deserve much more.

Basically, though, a much deeper significance, and one gratifying to the general public, attaches itself to the young people's action. In a way it is a subscription to the well-established fact that youth is under an obligation to the world, an obligation of work and service. Too often we have heard, in effect, that the world is under obligation to youth.

Too often youth groups and their sponsors have demanded coddling and viewed as youth's right special privileges which may be enjoyable, but are non-essential. Too often have they mourned as "underprivileged" young persons who have much more than their elders ever had. Yet they have returned, in many cases, only rudeness, ingratitude and arrogance for what has been put out for them.

Rockport's Methodist young people are demonstrating their belief in the ability of every person to achieve through honest effort and in the fact that individual accomplishment honest effort, and in the fact that individual accomplishment stration, that declaration of faith, honor to them.

Interesting to Watch

It will be interesting to see just how American Communists, Communists-sympathizers, and fellow-travelers go about squaring the present policy of the Soviet Union with the old propaganda to the effect that their particular brand of dictatorship offers the sole hope for bettering the lot of the common man.

When, some time ago, the Soviet Union refused to join in the Marshall Plan for the rehabilitation of Europe, it divided the world into two opposing camps. It made united effort for putting hungry and destitute peoples on their feet impossible. It decreed, in effect, that the citizens of the small nations such as Czechoslovakia must divorce themselves from all hope of American assistance on pain of displeasing Moscow—and thereby inviting the kind of terrorism that subdued Hungary.

The peoples of these unhappy countries were not, of course, given an opportunity to express their own wishes in the matter. It is only in "degenerate" capitalist nations that the ordinary citizen has a free ballot, free speech and a free press. Only under the obsolete and ridiculous democratic system can a man work or not work as he pleases, start a business speak his mind, and go about his affairs without dread of secret police and drumhead courts and concentration camps and slave labor. Only where the laughable institution of free enterprise exists do the people control their government—and choose their officials all the way from town marshal to the head of the nation.

Communism feeds upon despair, starvation, terror. The Soviet high-command has decided that these shall be its gifts to every nation which it can influence and dominate. It is building one of the most brutal systems of slavery in the history of the world. Here is the total-state, in all its glory.

New Heads for Two Businesses

Two major businesses were under different management here this week as a result of the purchase of Palm Courts by William M. Blevins of Midland, Tex., and E. J. Albin.

Albin and Mrs. Albin took over the management of Palm Courts on Friday and by Monday Mrs. Albin said happily that everything was running with its accustomed smoothness at the big luxury court.

The Albins had felt considerable concern over Blevins who was fishing near the Eighth Pass in Mexico with two airplanes the sole transportation for himself and his party. They feared that the tropical storm last week-end might maroon the party. They were reassured Sunday, however, when Blevins arrived in Brownsville after the storm center had already passed inland.

NEWCOMER, MANAGER
 In the meantime, H. C. Floyd, a recent arrival in Rockport had taken over the management of Albin's fisherman's outfitting business, with the assistance of his two older sons, Robert Lee and Herbert C. J.

Floyd, a native of Galveston and around salt water most of his life, has spent the past six years with water supply service at Fort Sam Houston. He resigned about two months ago, and with Mrs. Floyd, their six-months-old baby, Michael Edward, and the two older boys, started out to take an extended vacation.

The Floyds sold their San Antonio home and bought a fine trailer house, then went to Port Isabel.

LEARNS BAY QUICKLY
 After a short stay there, they decided to come to Rockport. For the past two months, they have been living at Shady Grove Trailer Camp.

Floyd purchased an inboard motor skiff from Albin and settled down to some serious fishing and motor boating. Albin said last week that Floyd "knows the bay better than a lot of people who have lived here for 20 years. Floyd proved his knowledge and his seamanship Monday morning when he and his younger son, Robert went out in the motor skiff for badly needed bait, despite the rough seas and returned with a supply of mp.

Bob Albin, who had remained temporarily in charge of the business while his parents took over Palm Courts, took a job for the remainder of the vacation period at the Rice Boat works.

POWER DIVER

He helps make electricity—under water.

A power plant is probably the last place you'd look for a diver, but here he is at work. This underwater maintenance man has an important job. He keeps the water equipment shipshape. Working down in 17 feet of water at one of CPL's major power plants, he may pour concrete or wield an electric torch, as he checks and cleans, makes repairs and replacements.

His work is unusual but necessary, since it takes lots of water to make and condense the steam which turns the turbines to produce power for you.

The miracle-performing electricity which means comfortable, convenient living for you and your family requires lots of skilled men and women doing many different jobs. Behind your electric switch, all the folks at CPL are working hard at the big job of bringing you the very finest electric service possible—around the clock, around the calendar.

Rockport to Play Sinton Sunday

The Rockport Independents, idled last week-end by rain and bad weather, are scheduled to clash with the Sinton baseball team on the local diamond Sunday afternoon, Ed Bernard, club secretary, has announced.

The next Sunday, the team will play at Woodsboro and on August 21 at Kingsville. One more game, as yet not definitely matched, will complete the season's schedule, Barnard said.

Jellyfish Spoil Sport At Port Aransas

A huge migration of jellyfish has put a damper on fishing around Port Aransas the past few days, sportsmen coming from Mustang Island report.

One observer said that the jellyfish, of the "cabbage head" variety, swarm through the channel when the tide comes in until "they look like millions of little balloons for as far as you can see."

Mrs. A. L. Bracht has returned from two weeks in the Spohn Hospital in Corpus Christi somewhat improved in health.

Osteopath Opens Rockport Office

Dr. M. A. Rich, osteopathic physician and surgeon, announced this week the opening of a Rockport office. He is temporarily located in apartment No. 1 of the Hinton Apartments on Austin street at the yacht basin.

Dr. Rich is a graduate of the Kirksville College of Medicine and Surgery, the nation's outstanding osteopathic college.

He served his internship in Winter Municipal Hospital, at Winter, Tex., and at Gorrell Hospital in Corpus Christi. In 1940 he served as county health officer of McMullen County, Tex. His most recent practice, before coming to Rockport, has been at San Angelo.

Dr. Rich will be on the staff of the Aransas Pass hospital while practicing here. In conversation, he brought out the fact that osteopathic physicians use both medicine and surgery, in addition to manipulation in the treatment of ailments.

Newspaper Men Visit Rockport on Vacation

Two of the state's top-flight newspaper men were vacationing in Rockport this week.

William M. (Tudy) Thornton, chief of the Dallas News Capitol Bureau at Austin, and Mrs. Thornton were spending the week at Del Camino Courts.

James Carroll, editorial and political writer for the Houston Press, was at Wells Courts with Mrs. Carroll and their two children. Carroll is a great grandson of John H. Woods, founder of Woodsboro, and is familiar with this area from many visits.

Baptists Hold Second School

A daily vacation Bible school for Latin-American children was drawing to a close this week at the Baptist church after two weeks of half day sessions. Friday is to be the last day.

Rev. C. N. Jones, pastor, said that attendance had averaged 53 for the period.

Roy Ryan of Atlanta, Ga., connected with the state Home Missions Board of the Baptist Church, has been in charge. He also directed the regular Baptist daily vacation school earlier in the summer.

Ryan has been assisted by Rev. Benito Contreras, pastor of the Latin-American Baptist Church in Rockport and by Elsie Blackwell, Ruby Casey and Iletta and Loretta Townsend.

Ladies of the church have served mid-morning refreshments to the children.

The program of activities has been similar to that pursued for the earlier school.

Mrs. W. B. Wheeler is spending the summer in Dos Cabezas, Ariz., the family's former home. She will be joined after the end of the summer term of A. & I. College August 23, by the three Wheeler sons, Charles, Edward and Joe.

H. H. Dancy, of the Houston Post advertising staff and Mrs. Dancy are spending several days at Oleander Court. They were joined Wednesday by Mr. Dancy's brother Roy Dancy, and his wife.

Rev. W. B. Wheeler Back From Northern Trip

Rev. W. B. Wheeler, pastor of the Methodist church, was back home this week from a trip that took him to Lincoln, Neb., and a national Methodist conference on the problems of the rural church. Churches in towns of less than 10,000 population are classed as rural.

The discussions were held looking toward legislation by the general conference of the church in May.

"The point of the whole matter is that leadership in city churches comes from the rural districts,"

Rev. Wheeler said. "The city churches realize that the rural church must prosper and grow if there is to be leadership in the city in the future."

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Horton of Oleander Court went to Austin Tuesday for a few days vacation.

Oil Concerns May Be Told to Join the charge was much lighter, it exploded on the bay bottom.

The inference to be drawn was that depth of the charge and its closeness to the ocean floor might be a very strong factor in the situation.

Some of the commercial fishermen have indicated that they will not oppose shooting of the coastal waters if the explosive charges are suspended just beneath the surface, rather than on the ocean floor.

Most sportsmen's organizations take an exceedingly dim view of any shooting whatever unless the shooting is done inside pipes reaching to the ocean floor. On the other hand, the Army Engineers are equally unfavorable to the pipe idea and so are the commercial fishermen.

Army experts declare that broken off and jagged pipes which inevitably are left behind by such operations become a serious menace to navigation. The commercial fishermen point out that such pipes also tear up costly nets.

In addition to the basic dispute over any shooting at all, one other controversy remains between commercial fishermen and the oil companies. The fishermen in general object to the big anchors used by the exploration crews. These, they say, also are disastrous to nets and gear.

Humble and Texas companies have adopted as a marker a nine-pound sash weight, attached by cord to an inflated weather balloon. These seem to have met with general satisfaction and some other oil companies are considering the adoption of similar devices.

Funeral Services Held For Jay Wright

Funeral services for Jay Wright, 54, of Rockport were held at Cagle Funeral Home last Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. W. B. Wheeler. Burial was in Rockport cemetery.

Wright died Saturday morning at his home.

Survivors included his widow, Mrs. Minnie Mae Wright; his mother, Mrs. Ellen Wright; two sons, by first marriage, Lloyd and Ellsworth, three brothers and two sisters.

Engineer Fined For Highway Crash

H. L. Sission, 42, of Corpus Christi, a civil engineer in the service of the federal government, paid a fine of $50 and costs last Thursday in Justice Joe Smith's court after pleading guilty to driving on the left-hand side of the road.

Sission's car sideswiped that of Alfred Court, 22, demolishing both cars and injuring young Court. The accident occurred on Highway 35, about a mile north of the carbon black plant the night of July 23.

Mrs. Manch Brundrett had as guests this week Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Knight of La Feria. Mrs. Knight is Mrs. Brundrett's daughter. At the week-end Mr. James Hill of San Antonio, Mrs. Brundrett's nephew and Mr. Hill were visitors. Last week, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mires and daughter of Taft were guests.

Along the Waterfront—

a Corpus Christi geologist sent some of the little fish to the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

Neither the Game Commission's marine laboratory here nor the University of Texas laboratory at Port Aransas showed any excitement, either about being short-circuited in the investigation, or about the little fish.

THE PRIZE SCENE OF THE waterfront this week was a crane, standing—of all places—high and dry in a rowboat, in the lagoon north of the yacht basin, Tuesday morning. He was doing nothing in a big way, watching with extreme boredom, the activities of a flock of gulls feeding in the water around the boat.

"SHOOTING STARS" ARE NOT STARS.

"Shooting stars" are NOT stars! (Shooting star is the popular name for a meteor, a mass of matter from celestial space, which, because of its rapid motion, becomes luminous by friction with the atmosphere of the earth. This phenomenon is known as a meteorite or aerolite if it reaches the earth.—Winston's simplified Dictionary, 1935, p. 615.)
