Along The Waterfront

Willie Close, Fred Christilles, and Bill Crist were hosts to a big party of International Harvester salesmen from all over the state last Saturday and Sunday. The winners of a sales contest, these men chose to come to Rockport to fish, and they put in two days at it. Between the gang they tallied 240 nice trout, and went home happy with their vacation.

Christilles established some kind of a record this week, though what you would call it we're hardly certain. Last Friday he had Bob Cooke and Cooke's two brothers, all from Arlington out fishing, and the youngest man in the bunch was 72. They had a good day, however, and brought in 53 fish, (continued on page 5)

Believe It or Not, the Wind Doesn't Always Blow Like This, Engineers Say

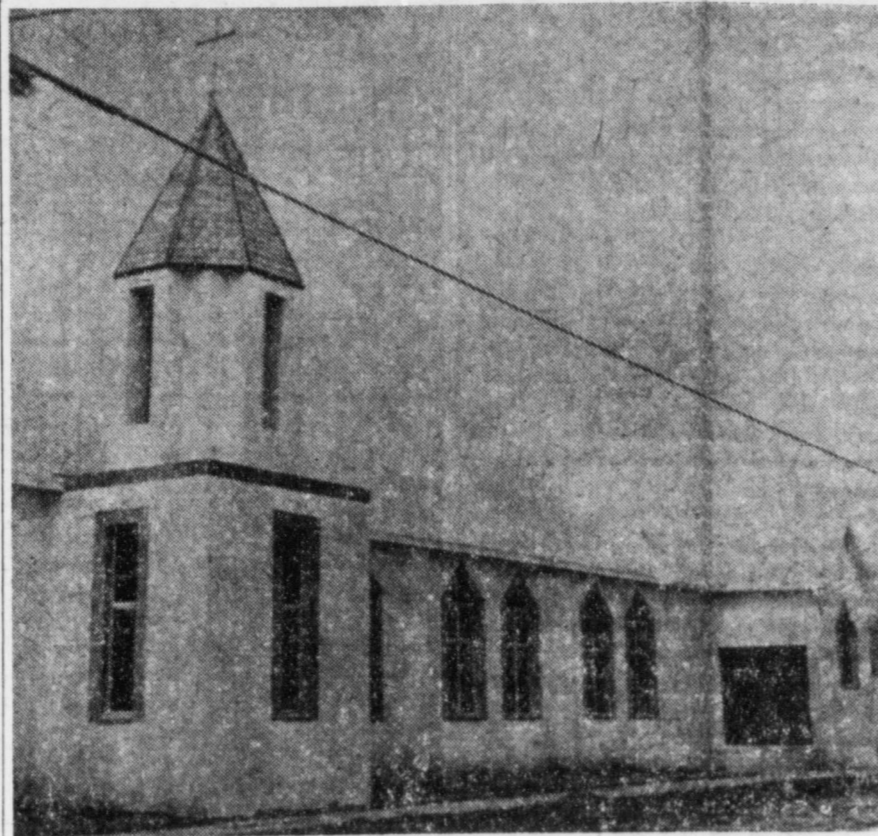

Believe it or not, the wind doesn't always blow like this, even if you can't remember the time when it didn't. According to the U. S. Engineers, 40% of the time, or 4 hours out of every 10, it's calm in Rockport!

This profound observation is included in a harbor survey they made some years ago, and makes interesting, if almost fictional reading. They've worked it all out very carefully, and the following figures are based on a 40-year average, from 1905 to 1944, inclusive.

United Fund Open Meeting June 14

An open meeting for those interested in organization of a United Fund in Rockport was set for June 14, at 7:30 p. m. by the Chamber of Commerce committee which met Monday afternoon.

Those present were Mrs. Joe Slocum, Tom Roper, chairman, Clark Wren, Judge John Wendell, Fred Brundrett, and Mary Juergens, secretary of the Chamber.

A general discussion of the whole problem showed that the annual gifts to charitable organizations such as the Boy and Girl Scouts, Red Cross, Cancer Fund, the two polio drives and similar organized charities amounted to around $10,000, and that generally the same people supported everyone of these, and that the same group of citizens ordinarily furnished the gifts.

Scripps Institute Divers Desire No Texas Barracuda

The Scripps Institute of Oceanography expedition to the Gulf of Mexico returned to Rockport Monday afternoon, after 18 days at sea, during which time they traversed the area between Rockport and the mouth of the Mississippi, and divers of the group had ample opportunity to confirm the presence of barracuda in Texas waters.

Equipped with every sort of oceanographic device necessary for such exploration, the party took cores from the sea-bottom as far offshore as the 15-fathom line. These, when carefully analyzed in the laboratories of the Institute at La Jolla, California, will give valuable information on deposition of bottom sediments of the Gulf.

Eventually, they may aid in better geological interpretation of the buried sea floors, a mile or more beneath the surface of the earth, from which comes the world's oil.

Besides coring, rock drags were made, and one haul of the

School Teacher Drifts All Night

Mrs. Jeanne Gejewski, a teacher at Fulton Elementary School, who clung to an overturned fishing boat for more than 10 hours in Copano Bay, was rescued early Wednesday.

She was treated for shock and exposure at Aransas Hospital in Aransas Pass.

Refugio County Deputy Sheriff Arno Walzel said Mrs. Gejewski and two men were in the 18-foot boat when it was swamped and overturned by high waves shortly before dark Tuesday.

The men, who were not identified, set out for shore to summon help, leaving the woman clinging to the boat. Walzel said when they made shore it was too dark to locate the boat.

A surface and air search all night, failed to locate the boat. It was found early Wednesday morning by Paul Tucker of Refugio, a member of the Civil Air Patrol.

Aransas County Pintail Duck Turns Red, Dies

A pintail banded on the Aransas County Wildlife Refuge in 1951 waited four years to turn communist, then fled to Russia and died under the blazing gun of a Soviet hunter.

Refuge Manager Julian A. Howard says the bird's record turned up in a stack of reports sent from Washington this spring, and that it "is the only Aransas County banded duck ever to pierce the Iron Curtain."

The only trouble with the situation is that he's wondering whether there may not be a lot of Russian ducks on the refuge, spreading no one knows what sort of subversive propaganda. It's a sad thing when you can't trust even the ducks, and a tribute to Russian ingenuity that they have been able to turn these wildfowl to their nefarious ends.

The duck was killed last spring at Kresta Pay, 1 1/2 miles from the Arctic Circle, and on the same parallel of latitude as Nome, Alaska.

Extensive Ceremonies Planned As Congregation Holds First Service In Long Sought Church

On Sunday, May 29, the Methodist congregation in Rockport will realize a long-sought dream, and hold their services in the new sanctuary first planned more than four years ago.

Services will begin in the old building at 10:45 a. m., with the Call to Worship, progress through a hymn and a Litany of Thanksgiving to the presentation of the key, followed by the processional for the opening service.

Cutting of the ribbon will be done by W. B. Hamblin, chairman of the building committee, after which the invocation will be given and the Lord's prayer lead by the Rev. Calvin Peterson, former pastor here.

The Rev. Val Sherman, Corpus Christi, will recite the Litany of The Opening of the New Sanctuary, and this will be followed by a congregational prayer in unison. The declaration will be given by Rev. Sherman, followed by an anthem from the choir, and the sermon, which will be preached by the Rev. Donald E. Redmond.

The $30,000 structure, designed by Joseph Hans, jr., Corpus Christi, is 90 x 36, and will seat 250 people. Construction is of concrete and stucco, inside and out. The interior is semi-Gothic in design, the laminated wood arches, natural finish in birch, and solid doors serving to relieve the stucco of the interior walls.

Contractor for the building was C. C. Fowler, Rockport, and the building committee was W. B. Hamblin, chairman, Leeroy Young, A. C. Glass, J. R. DeForest, H. D. Wilson, Mrs. J. Smith, G. T. Kitchens, and Ed Godde.

Many members of the congregation have contributed individually to the new church. The J. R. DeForest family gave the Communion table, in memory of Tolbert Jones; the pulpit is a gift from Mrs. E. G. Cooke and Mrs. C. L. Harris, in memory of the Rev. Ernest G. Cooke and Cecil LeGrand Harris. The lectern is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Collin; the Baptismal Font is a memorial to Dorothy Mae Haynes, from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Haynes. The chancel window, a memorial to C. O. Lowery, was presented by the Lowery family; the window at the right of the chancel in memory of Mrs. Mary E. Atchley, was given by her children; that on the left, in memory of E. G. Cooke and Mrs. C. City Council Okehs Farm-Market Road Right-of-way Mon.

The City Council met with Judge John Wendell and Commissioner Jack Sparks Monday night, and acceded to their request for a right-of-way down Ann Street, sufficient to allow construction of a farm-to-market highway with state funds available through the Highway Department.

The road will swing around the new sewer plant, carry on down Ann Street, and join with Highway 35 west of the present ball park, from which 76 feet must be taken to give the road room to come through.

Fred Bracht, speaking for the Park Board, said that this would still leave room enough for soft ball to be played on the present diamond, but that those wishing to play baseball would have to seek ground elsewhere.

Judge Wendell and Commissioner Sparks recognized this fact, and after some discussion with the council as to a suitable location, decided to level the area formerly occupied by the county dump for such use.

Mayor Seth Steel suggested that the city would be glad to shell whatever road was necessary, and the council concurred with him in the matter.

Howard said, "this is our first duck ever to fly to Russia, but we do know that a lot of our pintails are taken on the Pacific Flyway, so he could very easily have wandered across."

"However, it's the most unusual case we've had."

Howard received news only a few weeks ago, along with 25 or 30 other reports. It was mailed to the Washington office by a government official in Moscow, he said.

All such information is sent to Washington headquarters, no matter where the tag was affixed. The office there mails a form to the hunter killing the bird, explaining where and when it was tagged, and the approximate age of the bird, and another form is sent the persons that did the tagging. One is forced to wonder whether or not the Soviets consider this classified information.

Each year about 1,000 birds are tagged at the refuge, and the date thus obtained is used by Federal and State game officials in framing hunting regulations

Evidence that this defection of ducks and geese to Soviet territory is assuming alarming proportions, comes from Ducks Unlimited. That organization reports another two dozen pintails as well as a few snow geese and brant, bearing American tags, that were shot in Russian territory.

Probably the Soviet gunners were careless, and didn't use their field glasses in time to recognize fellow travelers. Nevertheless, the whole thing poses a problem. Supposing the Russian scientists can perfect atomic bombs small enough to be worn by pintails. Think of the consequences. Some fine day, when a Texas gunner arises in his blind on Copano Bay to garner in the makings of a duck dinner, and cuts loose with his trusty shooting iron, he will be greeted with a mushroom cloud, a brilliant ball of fire, and he, along with the duck, will vanish from the face of the earth.

Considering the manners of some hunters, this might be an excellent idea.

Old Courthouses Trouble Other Counties Too

Old courthouses trouble other counties besides Aransas, and in view of the controversy regarding the retention of the present building, it is of more than passing interest to see what might have happened if we had retained the one we have as a separate building. In the Houston Chronicle for May 24, under the headline "Court-house Doomed at Carthage," the following story appeared: "Panola County's picturesque old courthouse, which is rounding out three score and 10 years is doomed. Commissioners Court has voted to offer the landmark for sale at auction. J. D. Jimmers was named to sell the building. The auction terminated a controversy for months. "Conditions call for removal of the building within 120 days from date of sale. "County officials moved into a handsome new structure more than a year ago but the old building has been maintained for community meetings and singings. The county split wide open on the courthouse issue. One faction wanted to preserve it while another wanted to raze it. Then came the action by the commissioners. "A leader in a campaign to save the structure has been the Carthage Book Club, headed by Miss Margie E. Neal, former state senator. She said the clubwomen wanted the building recon-ditioned and converted into a library, town hall and a recreation center. "The courthouse was built in 1885 of handmade bricks."

How A Quarrel Helped Build For Houston

A quarrel over high dockage rates at Galveston shortly after the Civil War led to the first development and utilization of the Houston Ship Channel by the veteran steamship line operator, Charles Morgan.

Even before the Battle of San Jacinto, Morgan had inaugurated service between the western railroad in Louisiana and Texas ports. His first ship, the Columbia, reached Galveston in 1835, when there were no docks and only one house to mark its location. Cargo was loaded onto scows and towed to land, where it was loaded on wagons for the interior.

In those early days, most steamers were built of wood. Charles Morgan built of iron, and, as the years passed, his vessels began reaching new ports, going from New Orleans to Galveston, Indianola, Lavaca, Sabine, Rockport, Brazos Santiago and the Mexican border.

Actually, he even helped build some of these. One early story says that Rockport was laid out by an engineer of the Morgan Steamship Company. It is not to be wondered that the company should select this as a port and build a warehouse and wharf there, for it was guaranteed a $1000 shipment of freight every 10 days in hides, horns, and hoofs. Beef was too cheap to be shipped.

Naturally, as the chief means of communication along the Texas coast, the "little red ships" of the Morgan Line figured in many events in the early history of the state. One of these was the Mexican raid at Nueces town which threw Corpus Christi into a panic. When the alarm was given, the town was stripped of men to repel the raiders and children and their mothers fled frantically aboard the Morgan ship, Aransas, which was tied up at the municipal dock. They charged aboard this and another ship, a lumber schooner, in such terror that the decks were awash, but both boats rode out the danger anchored in the bay.

Morgan's business grew tremendously and by 1860 he had 28 steamers operating. But he soon got in a controversy over rates and facilities at Galveston. His opportunity for a solution came in 1866 when the Houston Direct Navigation Company was formed and, with $200,000 appropriated by the City of Houston, began to deepen Buffalo Bayou and dredge a cut across Clopper's Peninsula. Morgan supported the project immediately and with a large engineering force began to deepen the channel and to dredge through the point. The 1875 storm destroyed a portion of the work, along with a small fleet of vessels, but recommencing at once, he completed the cutoff within 30 days. This he claimed as his own and, placing a long chain across the canal at what he called Morgan's Point, proceeded to collect tolls from every ship passing through until 1891, when the United States government took over management of the Ship Channel.

Morgan's business activities became more ramified until a railroad which he also operated later became an important part of the Southern Pacific System, which in turn operated the Morgan Line as a subsidiary. Operation of the line ceased at the beginning of World War II, when all the vessels were taken over by the government, and today Charles Morgan and the Morgan Line, builders of Texas, are both things of the past.

Jackfish Best Tackle Salesman on Texas Coast

When you hear the angler beside you grunt suddenly, and see the tip of his rod go down and down, while the line rips off his reel in whining jerks, it's ten to one he's hooked a jackfish, the best darned tackle salesman on the Texas coast.

Arriving in the early spring, they spawn all along our beaches, and by the middle of May or first of June, any drag of a minnow seine in the surf is apt to bring in from one to a dozen of the little fellows, all green and gold, and shining like a new dollar.

Barred with black, the trim torpedo-shaped bodies of these babies are less than two inches long; and their noses, later to become almost square, are pointed. As they grow, the green and gold fades, becoming silvery, with green on the back and touches of yellow on the fins; the body becomes longer and heavier, and their nose acquires that chunkiness which leads Spanish speaking people to call them "El Toro," or the "Bull."

Powerful and voracious, jackfish, or crevalle, sometimes grow to a very large size. The largest known weighed 109 pounds, and several have been reported from the Caribbean weighing 64, 87 and 98 pounds, this last one having a girth of 37 inches, and being 59 inches long. Texas fish weigh from 15 to 25 pounds.

In general, however, they are not nearly so big. Along the Florida coast, they run from 2 to 10 pounds, and this holds true in where in salt water creeks among the mangroves nearly every cast will bring a strike from a fighting jack.

Pound for pound, these smaller fish can give cards and spades and big and little casino to most fish that swim, and on a day that produced a dozen bonefish running from two to five pounds in about thirty minutes, this writer has seen the same anglers that caught these silvery mud-grubbers fighting small jackfish. There was no comparison, as the jacks were so much tougher that a couple were enough. Their fighting weight is about two or three times their actual avoirdupois, and they are no playboys. They fight for keeps. You may catch a jack, but you'll never whip him, and in the last sad moment before the gaff goes home, his head will be down, and his tired tail will be beating, intent on ripping your tackle loose and gaining his escape.

These brilliantly-colored tackle busters are found far down into the Caribbean, and probably along the northern coast of South America, if anyone ever gets down there to look for them. Wherever they occur, except in this country, they are much respected as a food fish. Properly prepared, they are one of the finest ever to come from the sea, and far tastier than their cousin, the pomano.

For that matter, many fish are better eating than those we usually see on the table, for Americans are not notable seafood cooks. Barrauda boil-up, with a thick sauce containing practically everything but the kitchen sink, looks terrible, but is good enough that you'll go back for a second helping. Jackfish cakes are food for the most discriminating connoisseur; and in areas where the frying pan is seldom if ever used, the taste and quality of seafoods averages much better.

Jacks have one habit of obtaining their food that is uncommon to stay the least, as they round up the schools of sardines on which they feed, ripping into the mass of frightened small fish with a complete disregard for any danger to themselves. At such times, when the beat occurred along the shore, they have been picked up by fishermen and carried ashore!

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Winkle and son Boyd, of Riviera spent the weekend visiting friends and relatives.

Educational Committee Meets At Chamber Of Commerce Monday Night

The Educational Committee of the Chamber of Commerce met Monday night, with the Rev. A. Arnott Ward presiding, to study literature received from the State Board of Education asking local school districts to evaluate a research report on the schools of the state made by the Texas Research League, and to compare the local school system standards with the minimum set up by the report.

In general, the report pointed out that its chief concern was the need for extensive reorganization of school districts throughout the state, as many of the present ones were too small to be operated efficiently.

School systems with less than 1,000 pupils (Rockport and Fulton have 1,100) are generally unable to attain maximum usefulness, as the tax base is insufficient to allow funds for the needs of the school, while teachers, instead of being overworked, are operating at only about half their load. Such schools may have only ten or twelve pupils in a class, whereas about twenty-five is desirable; their bus service may be costing them too much per pupil, and so on.

Minimum requirements were recommended for schools of the state, and James B. Jackson, of the school board, when contacted, said that in this and a number of other respects, our school system met or exceeded these requirements.

However, part of the meeting was devoted to filling out a questionnaire, commenting on the standard set by the report, and giving the views of the committee regarding this, with recommendations for additions or deletions needed.

Those present at the meeting were: A. Arnott Ward, chairman, Mrs. Mary Juergens, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Pat Greene, school superintendent, Mrs. J. D. Griggs, Mrs. Harry Mills, James B. Jackson, Elva Mullinax, and A. R. Griffith, jr.

TEXAS SAVINGS BONDS WEEK

Citizens of Texas were becoming Savings Bonds conscious this week as "Full Speed Ahead" Week for U. S. Defense Savings Bonds got under way. Business leaders, bankers, farmers and ranchers, civic and fraternal organizations and schools are represented in the 1,400 volunteer workers throughout Texas who are cooperating to promote U. S. Defense Savings Bonds during "Texas Week."

Fred Bracht, Savings Bonds chairman for Aransas county, pointed out that last year Texas finished only 38th among all states in percentage of bond sales quota accomplished. "Texas Week" is aimed to put Texas on top in 1955. This year's goal for Texas is $201,900,000.

Farmers and ranchers are reminded that Defense Savings Bonds are well adapted to their financial programs. Savings Bonds can be used as a means of meeting their financial problems by putting some of their receipts for crops and livestock into bonds, according to Bracht.

Disabled People Freeze S. S. Accounts Now

Seriously disabled people who have worked in employment or self-employment covered by the social security law should get in touch with the social security office now, H. M. Cleveland says.

Cleveland pointed out that those who have been totally disabled for 6 months or longer, and who worked in employment that is covered by the social security law for as many as 5 years out of the 10 years before they were disabled should get further information about this law. By applying to have their social security earnings records frozen, disabled persons may prevent a loss or reduction in their future benefit payments.

Some people who are now receiving old-age insurance payments were disabled for long periods before they reached 65 and are still disabled. Their payments may be increased if each such person will file an application for a "disability freeze." If a disabled person dies after June 30, the disability freeze can protect his family's rights to survivors payments but only if he applied for the freeze before his death. For this reason, it is important for every person who meets the requirements under the disability, but does not pay cash benefits to him before he is 65, Cleveland emphasized.

The address of the office which serves this area is the Social Security Administration, 424 Taylor Street, Corpus Christi. If a disabled person is unable to call at the office, he may write or telephone or someone else may call for him, Cleveland said.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Demory returned Friday night from a two weeks trip through Oklahoma and Kansas, where they visited with Mr. and Mrs. Calire Lieb, a sister of Mrs. Demory. En route home, they visited with Mr. and Mrs. John Demory, of Dewey, Oklahoma, and various sisters and brothers-in-law: Mr. and Mrs. Jess Putnam at Schilder; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Jakeaway, Hominy; and Mrs. Golden Hackler and sons, of Stillwater. While at the latter town, a nephew took them on a tour of Oklahoma A & M College dairy, which has 500 head of milk cows.

From there they went on to visit Mr. and Mrs. Fred Putnam, at Tulsa.

They made part of the trip with Mrs. Martin E. Harper and son, who took them in their car, from Grand Saline, Texas.

The Demorys report lots of rain, good crops and fat cattle wherever they went.

Their trip was made possible because Mr. and Mrs. Ross Demory and Jack Perkins took over the dairy while they were gone.

Oliver Brundrett, County Service Officer, Gives
Data On Reinstating NSLI

Oliver Brundrett, County Service Officer, says that the subject of reinstating National Service Life Insurance is one that often comes up, and that now, since a new ruling on this was handed down in January, many ex-service men may wish to do so.

In the past, veterans wishing reinstatement of lapsed permanent plan NSLI policies were faced with the amount required to reinstate. Under the new ruling, veterans who otherwise would not have done so, because of the required amount of premiums and interest can now do so with a policy loan, and by taking advantage of the dividends.

The ruling reads: "Upon request from the policy holder, regular dividends which are payable as of the date of reinstatement of a permanent plan National Service Life Insurance or United States Government Life Insurance contract, will be applied towards the cost of reinstatement. Information regarding the amount available for this will not ordinarily be furnished unless requested; however, where the amount required for reinstatement is sizable, such reinstatement of a permanent plan which has been lapsed for a long period, the policy holder should be advised of the privilege of using dividends in this connection. Processing the regular dividend and the reinstatement will be considered a simultaneous action in the same manner as applying the proceeds of a loan toward the cost of reinstatement."

This explanation is in a sense, a means by which a veteran can reinstate and pay a part of the cost on installments, that is, pay off the loan in installments, which can perhaps be accomplished by letting future dividends liquidate the loan.

Brundrett says he has the necessary forms and information for any veteran wishing to take advantage of this.

An Appeal for
101 Days of Safe Driving

During the summer months—from Memorial Day through Labor Day—highway traffic fatalities are high. So high that the Governors' Conference has endorsed a nation-wide safe driving program during the 101 days between the two holidays.

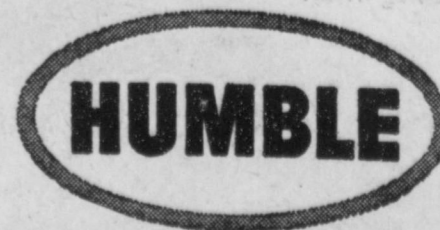

Only you, the motorist, can make this campaign a success . . . If you, and every other highway traveler, will resolve to drive at a safe speed, to follow the recommendations of Safety Associations for safe highway driving, literally hundreds of lives will be saved during this summer's travel. One of them may be your own.

Wherever you drive this summer,
PLEASE DRIVE SAFELY

Safety Associations recommend that you follow these simple rules for a safe vacation trip:

- Observe all posted speed limits; don't hurry, ever.
- Regulate the speed of your car to highway and traffic conditions.
- Don't drive too long—stop when you're tired.
- Observe all highway caution warnings—slow down for curves, when descending steep hills, etc.
- Don't drink when driving.
- Follow the golden rule of traffic courtesy: give other motorists the same consideration you'd like for them to give you.

Methodist History Of Area Extends Over Long Period

Methodist history in the area makes an interesting study, and stretches back to the early days when the territory was still ruled by Mexico. Methodism entered Texas with pioneer settlers. It came in the covered wagons of people who wanted to settle in South Texas, and to become citizens of Mexico. However, when they arrived, they discovered that practice of their religion was outlawed under Mexican law.

Answerable to God, as well as the Mexican government, these Protestants, regardless of man-made laws worshiped both in their homes and in public. Prior to 1836, such services were held as quietly and secretly as possible, led by circuit riders who traveled from one small congregation to another.

The first regular work in this section of the state was carried on by David Ayers, a layman, who sailed from New York to Corpus Christi in 1834, and settled at old San Patricio. Until he was driven from the section, Ayers' chief work involved distribution of hundreds of Spanish New Testaments supplied by the American Bible Society. These he distributed freely to both the Irish and Mexicans.

Ayers' work is typical of the way Methodism has been carried on by the laity of the church.

The Rev. Henry Stephenson entered this region in 1824, preaching the first Protestant sermon in Texas to a group of four families at a spot three miles below San Felipe, without the knowledge of Stephen F. Austin, head of the colony.

In the spring of 1838, the first Methodist church within the bounds of the present Southwest Texas Conference was organized at Bastrop, under the direction of Lay Preacher James Gilliland. Ten white people (among them Mrs. Christian, great-grandmother of Bishops A. Frank and W. Angie Smith) and one negro woman were charter members.

In 1844, the Rev. John Wesley De Vilbiss was assigned elder of the Ruthersville District, including Victoria, Gonzales, and Rockport. Working from Seguin, he preached the first Protestant sermon in San Antonio, and organized the first Methodist church there, now the Travis Park congregation. Serving under De Vilbiss was a young preacher from Georgia, the Rev. H. G. Horton, who was appointed pastor of the Rockport Methodist Church in 1870.

In 1873, Bishop Keener, of the Church, wrote Horton to send for Alejo Hernandez and to care for him until a steamer arrived in Rockport on which he could leave for New Orleans, to meet the bishop and confer with him on this work.

Horton later wrote: "Hernandez spent a week with me in my home and preached every night to crowds of Mexicans. After he left, the Mexicans all around Rockport kept coming to me for Bibles. William Headen sent me a hundred from Corpus Christi, printed by the American Bible Society in Spanish. I scattered them all over Aransas County."

The original Methodist Church in Rockport was situated at the corner of Live Oak and Bay Streets. The lots on which it stood were deeded to the Board of Trustees in 1870 by G. M. Dougherty, J. M. and P. H. Mathis. The Board of Trustees consisted of M. D. Box, R. H. Rickson, T. R. Stewart, George Hancock, and William Quayle.

This deed was recorded in Refugio County, and was dated November 4, 1870.

The first church building was erected on lots adjoining the parsonage, but on May 6, 1914, was moved to the present site. At that time it was only half the present size, but in 1930, during the pastorate of the Rev. P. C. Carrier, enough was added on to make the present structure that will be abandoned to other uses with the opening of the new sanctuary.

The church has been in continuous service since it was first built. Mr. A. W. Clark, grandfather of Mrs. John Sorenson, was one of the early Sunday School superintendents, and Mrs. Sorenson's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Herring, were married there in March 1874.

In Rockport's early years, the building was used by other denominations for their services, before they erected buildings of their own.

Tentative plans for the new sanctuary were begun in 1951, while the Rev. Calvin Peterson was pastor. In 1954, Joseph Hans, Corpus Christi architect, drew plans for the building. Ground-breaking ceremonies were held November 14 of that year, and the contract for construction was let to C. C. Fowler.

The new structure is of modified Gothic architecture, with simplicity as its guiding standard. Complete, its cost will be about $35,000. It is designed to seat 250 people.

The new sanctuary is built for the purpose of worship. It is, in every sense of the word, a church. The graceful lines of the laminated wood arches serve to lift the spirit of all who enter. The natural wood has been slightly stained, giving a warm, soft effect, while retaining the natural grain.

The cross on the tower was constructed by J. R. DeForest and John Schleider. Old Swiss chimes from a wrecked building in a nearby community were used as the original material.

The interior is expressive of basic theological beliefs. The center aisle, running from the rear of the nave to the foot of the cross, calls to mind the Christian "way" of life. Living symbolism has been effected by the sturdy cross in the chancel bearing the full weight of the ridge beam in the roof. This very structure is upheld by the cross, the central symbol of Christian faith. The light which streams in around the cross is denoted by the symbol of the four Gospels in the large window framed by the cross. The reception of that light by faithful people is denoted by the flanking windows which contain the symbol of the two sacraments, Baptism and the Lord's Supper.

Theology, tradition, and the function of worship have worked together to produce the "open" chancel arrangement. The Table of the Lord is made central and lifted up in the very shadow of the cross. Both the reading of God's Word and its exposition are given their own specific place. The Table or Altar is free standing, the service sometimes being read from behind it, reminding us that we come and gather around it. In every way, the building holds forth the promise of new and ever deeper worship experiences.

Fred wasn't the only man along the waterfront that had an octogenarian fisherman out, for Earle Thomas, on the Terrie, took Dr. A. B. Edwards and Mr. Barber of Henrietta fishing Friday. Dr. Edwards was 89 years old, but Earle said he fished industriously, and when he missed one took it in good part, merely saying, "Well, I guess I was a little slow—for that one." The doctor and his partner caught 25 trout and had a whale of a good time.

Earle's Sunday party was C. D. and Bliss Spiller, of Austin, and they tallied 17.

Over at Mills' Wharf, Harry said that they had been catching fish right along 'till the wind hit.

Last Wednesday, the 18th, Red Lewis, Houston, fished with Harry, and they caught 45 trout and six gafftops.

Friday, Don Haworth, Houston, and Harry fished, bringing in 110 trout. Harold Jordan, Houston, fishing with Herb, caught 55.

Saturday they had six boats with parties. Mr. Mansfield, San Antonio, strung 42; Harry Leavitt, Houston, hung 96; Don Haworth and his party caught 105, fishing with Herb; and the O. B. Techaček party of San Antonio, in two boats, brought in 86. Mr. Kennedy, fishing with Red Bell, caught 37.

Sunday, Harry Leavitt, Houston, fished with Harry Mills, and caught 69 trout and one rat red. Lee Goullart, with Herb, tallied 25 trout; Butch Terrin, Houston, with Red Bell, strung 25.

Tuesday, Harry took Mr. Koby and another angler, fishing and they came in with 30 big trout and two gafftops. Harry said that the fish filled a five gallon garbage can, and would weigh from one to two pounds apiece. On the same day, Red Bell fished R. J. Smith and came in with 25.

Bill Crist, besides his bunch from the International Harvester Co., fished Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Fielder, of Houston, and Mr. Michaels of Palm Village last Friday, and they caught 38 fish.

Hugh Morrison, on the Rambler, fished D. T. Bowes and wife, and Gene Thompson and wife, all of Breckenridge, last Thursday, coming in with 62 fish. Saturday he had Clyde Watkins and party from Fort Worth, and caught 50.

Johnson's Bait Stand reported Mr. Moates last Thursday, from San Antonio, as catching 14 trout. Joe Boyd and Mr. Nipper, also from San Antonio, tallied 71. Saturday, a Mr. Calsee, also of the Alamo City, registered with 17 fish; Mr. Anderson, Corpus Christi, caught 15; L. A. White and wife, San Antonio, strung 16; Mr. Hankinson, from the same place, brought in 10 big gafftops; and Mr. Singenberger, San Antonio, registered with 20 trout. There is plenty of bait, Mr. Johnson said.

In the wild, few living things die of old age. As they begin to wear down with the years, they are no longer capable of fighting off predators or of competing with younger fish for food. An age of 10-15 years is no doubt ancient for wild fish, but there have been reports (unreliable ones) of carp which have reached the ripe old age of 100 or 150. Sturgeon are believed to mature at 20, and may live to be 100 or older. In contrast, some of the smaller fish, such as gobies, are short-lived. One species lives its whole life in a year.

Fish sleep, but, because they have no eyelids, seldom appear to be doing so. Some lie on their sides on the bottom; some rest against objects; some merely remain motionless while suspended in the water. Many schooling fish disperse at night to rest and then reassemble in the morning.

The whale shark is the largest fish known, and some of them are believed to weigh as much as 150,000 pounds, or 75 tons. Basking sharks with an estimated weight of 30,000 pounds, have been reported, and ocean sunfish weighing over 4,000 pounds have been caught.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Duge and son Mikeal, of Skidmore, visited Tuesday and Wednesday with Mrs. Henry Koehler.

Hunt-Vogler Vows Said In San Antonio

Miss Genevieve Ann Vogler and James William Hunt exchanged wedding vows at St. Cecilia's Catholic Church in San Antonio, Tuesday, May 24 at 10 a. m. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Margaret Needham Vogler of San Antonio, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Hunt of Rockport.

The wedding music was played by Miss Agnes Morkovsky. Palms and emerald ferns were the background for the altar arrangements of white carnations and white gladiolus.

The bride was given in marriage by her grandfather, John P. Needham, Sr. Her dress of rose point lace and tulle over taffeta had a scalloped neck outlined with pearl medallions and the long sleeves extended in points over her hands. A fingertip veil of illusion cascaded from a cap of matching lace and she carried a white orchid and stephanotis bouquet with satin ribbon shower.

Miss Mary Jane Zolt was the bride's maid of honor and her ankle length dress of mauve nylon over taffeta had matching hat and gloves. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnations. Fred B. Hunt was his son's best man. Ushers were John P. Needham, Jr. and Bernard E. Needham, uncles of the bride.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's mother immediately after the ceremony. Miss Rose Marie Stanish was in charge of the guest book and Miss Rose Ann Morkovsky and Miss Imogene Salzman served the cake and punch.

For a wedding trip, Mrs. Hunt wore a pink shantung suit with matching accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Hunt will make their home in Rockport.

Remember when Saturday rolled around how the noise of pounding carpets, not to mention dust, filled the air? And many a boy's plans were suddenly changed by having to wield a carpet beater instead of a baseball bat. Today, the low hum of a vacuum cleaner has replaced the noisy carpet beater, that old-time jinx to your Saturday holiday. Remember?

Landings of commercially-produced fish and shellfish at Texas ports during February 1955 amounted to 3.8 million pounds compared with nearly 3.3 million pounds taken during the same month in 1954 (C.F.S. No. 1123) recently released by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service in cooperation with the Texas Game and Fish Commission. This represents an increase of 16 percent in volume.

Total shrimp landings during the month amounted to 3.3 million pounds, compared with 2.8 million pounds caught during Feb. 1954—an increase of 18 percent. Total landings of shrimp for the six-month period ending with Feb. 1955 47.1 million pounds) accounted for 82 percent of the 57.2 million pound production of all fishery products landed at Texas ports. During the same period of 1954, the shrimp catch made up 63 percent of the total landings of fish and shellfish.

The Laguna area continued to lead all other areas in quantity landed, with receipts of nearly 2.5 million pounds in February, of which 90 percent consisted of shrimp. The production of this area amounted to 65 percent of the total State catch for the month.

The Aransas and Galveston areas were in second and third places, with landings of 946,800 pounds and 259,000 pounds, respectively. Shrimp was also the most important item in these areas.

The National Fisheries Institute is urging immediate consideration of the Weather Ship Bills pending in Congress in order that the citizens of the Gulf States be assured of protection to life and property from the dangerous and unpredictable storms originating in the Gulf of Mexico.

A directors' meeting of the Shrimp Association of the Americas was held April 25, during the annual convention of the National Fisheries Institute.

At that time, Harry Sahlan, president, announced that domestic shrimp production reached an all-time high in 1954, but that the demand by the American people had kept pace with the increase. He further stated that consumption during the first two months of 1955 spurred sharply upward over the corresponding period last year. The committee chairman made reports, including one by Virgil Versaggi, director of the advertising and publicity committee, who together with the N.F.I. Director of Public Relations and four members of the J. Walter Thompson Co., made an extensive presentation of the progress of the Association's program to increase the consumption of shrimp.

Association authorities further pointed out that shrimp production for the U. S. Gulf area was up in March about 6,000 bbls. over March of last year. Gulf production for the first quarter of 1955 remained 7,000 bbls. below that of the first quarter of 1954 despite the March increase. Shrimp production in the Carmen-Campeche area has increased recently according to reports. Production on the West Coast of Mexico is still only about 50 percent of last year. Recently shrimp were being caught in the Salina Cruz area, but the volume being produced is unknown at this writing.

Frozen shrimp in storage amounted to 18,968,000 pounds as of March 31st. This was broken down to 14,648,000 pounds of "Raw Headless" and 4,320,000 pounds of "All Other." The present inventory reflects a decrease of 13,216,000 pounds from the January 1st holdings of 32,184,000 pounds and is 3,747,000 pounds less than the 22,715,000 pounds in storage on March 31, 1954.

Five vessels of five net tons or over received their first documents as fishing vessels in the Gulf area during February, 1955. This is 27 less than for the preceding year of 1954 in the same region. Two months totals for 1955 amounted to 8 as against 67 last year.

Good long-line tuna fishing was discovered by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service Vessel Oregon east of Jamaica and in the Windward Passage, during a cruise which extended from April 6 to May 2. During the cruise, eleven 42-basket sets were made in the northwestern Caribbean and three sets were made in the Western Gulf of Mexico. Yellowfin tuna were caught at six of the seven stations east and north of Jamaica and in the Windward Passage at rates of from 1 to 2.6 yellowfin per 100 hooks. At each of these stations from one to six 50 to 60 pound albacore were also caught. Considerable difficulty was encountered during two sets at the head of the Windward Passage due to large numbers of giant bluefin tuna in that area. At each of these stations eight bluefins were landed that weighed from 400 to 600 pounds each. Judging by broken gear at least that many more were lost. Four sets made between the Yucatan Channel and the western tip of Jamaica caught no yellowfin or albacore. One large bluefin was caught north of Grand Cayman Island and another was caught on a set east of Cozumel Island.

In the Gulf of Mexico only a single yellowfin was caught (May 1) 180 miles south of Mobile. This fish weighed 190 pounds and is the largest yellowfin that has been caught in the Gulf to date. At the same time, a 14-foot false killer whale became entangled in the gear and was landed.

In cooperation with a staff member of Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, 18 of the marlin taken on long lines were tagged and liberated. Two big-eye tuna weighing 175 pounds each were taken on a set made near the southwest tip of the island of Hispaniola. Plankton collections and night light collections were also made.

In the Netherlands, and in some other countries, the government operates fisheries schools to educate the fishermen in the best and most modern ways of taking their prey from the water.

The school recently opened by the Dutch Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries, and Food offers a striking example of such institutions.

In his opening speech the Minister pointed to the need for thorough training, for, he said, constant technical development imposes higher and higher demands on the crews of fishing vessels. These demands are not confined to nautical knowledge, but also hold good for the handling of fish and fishery products. It was essential, he told assembled fishermen, that they should know their jobs thoroughly. The home and export markets demand fish of superior quality. In general, it can be said that fisheries are developing more and more into a rational industry, which must supply high quality products at the lowest possible prices. All-around training is essential to reach efficiency.

The fishing port of Katwijk is proud of this school, which supplies a long-felt need. There are 385 youths and adult fishermen attending the various day and evening classes.

Such a school could be a paying investment in this country; others have found it so.

Weather Bureau Issues Tornado Bulletin

The U. S. Weather Bureau, through the State Civil Defense and Disaster Relief Department, has issued a bulletin on tornadoes, the pertinent parts of which are given below.

According to this, and adequate storm warning system, such as that now provided in Texas, plus skill in survival techniques, is the realistic plan for protection against the terrors of this fearful force of nature.

Tornadoes can occur anywhere, at any time, but are most frequent in midwestern, southern and central states from March through September, the national average being 153 a year.

They usually appear as funnel-shaped clouds, spinning rapidly, and extend toward earth from the base of a thunder cloud.

Generally they move from southwest to northwest at from 25 to 40 miles an hour, and have wind speeds up to 500 miles an hour within the tornado.

They develop from topsy-turvy, greenish-black thunderstorm clouds on hot, sticky days, with southerly winds blowing.

The path of destruction ranges from 15-40 miles long, and 300-400 yards wide. However, they have been known to travel for as much as 300 miles, cutting a path a mile wide.

The destruction is caused by the violet winds, which uproot trees, destroy buildings, and create serious hazards from objects blown through the air, and by pressure differences which can lift automobiles and cause buildings to collapse.

To know what to do when a warning is received, or a tornado is observed, may mean the difference between life and death.

Tornado safety rules follow:

1. There is no universal protection against tornadoes except caves or underground excavations. When time permits, go to a tornado cellar, cave, or underground excavation which should have an air outlet to help equalize the air pressure. It should be kept fit for use, free from water, gas, or debris; and preferably equipped with pick and shovel.

2. If you are in open country, move at right angles to the tornado's path. This usually moves ahead at from 25-40 miles an hour.

3. If there is not time to escape, lie flat in the nearest depression, such as a ditch or ravine.

4. If in a city or town, seek inside shelter, preferably in a steel reinforced building. STAY AWAY FROM WINDOWS.

5. In homes the southwest corner of the lowest floor or the basement offers greatest safety. People living in brick or stone houses should seek other shelter, preferably in a storm cellar or the basement of a frame house. If time permits, electricity and fuel lines should be shut off. Windows on the north and east sides of the house may be opened to help reduce damage to the building.

6. Standing against the inside wall of the lower floor of an office building offers some protection.

7. If in a school in a city area, especially if it is good reinforced steel construction, stay inside, away from windows. Remain near an inside wall on a lower floor. AVOID AUDITORIUMS AND GYMNASIUMS.

8. In rural schools, remove children and teachers to a ravine or ditch if no storm shelter is available unless the school is modern reinforced concrete and steel construction.

9. Keep calm! It will not help to get excited. People have been killed by running out into streets and by turning back into the path of a tornado. Even though a warning is issued, chances of a tornado striking one's home or location are very slight. Tornadoes cover such a small zone, as a rule, that relatively only a few places in a warned area are directly affected. You should know about tornadoes though, "just in case."

10. Keep tuned to the radio for the latest dope on the tornado.

By Mrs. Ellis L. Clark

Since this is the last week for regular meetings until September, this column will not be resumed until that time.

Girl Scout activities, such as the outing of an individual troop, however, will be reported.

Girl Scout Troop No. 2 of Aransas Pass, under the leadership of Mrs. R. D. Hatch and assisted by Mrs. Jack Jones and Mrs. Neil Kirkham, arrived in Rockport Friday afternoon for an overnight at the local Girl Scout Little House.

Members of two local troops met the Aransas Pass troop for a swim party before the evening cookout.

Girls attending from Aransas Pass were: Nell Simms, Mary Alice Adams, Janice Bishop, Caryl Jones, Lois Gillespie, Jo Ann Dickerson, Rema Howard, Kay Hunt, Sue Barton, Kay Galtour, Dora Ann Hatch, Virginia Hadden, Janice Langham, Kay Hatch, and Debbie Kirkham.

Mrs. Lincoln Borglum's Girl Scout Troop from Beeville arrived Tuesday for a two-day holiday at Girl Scout Little House.

Activities included swimming, a boat trip on the Sherry Lynn, visits to the marine laboratory, local fish houses and sightseeing.

Girl Scout Troop No. 5 met for its last regular meeting on May 20 at the Girl Scout Little House.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Kinsel visited the troop and showed movies of the slumber party.

Mrs. Lee Melton presented Mrs. Walter Stryker, leader, with a gift from the Mother's Club. Mrs. Stryker also accepted a gift for the assistant leader, Mrs. G. R. Rowe, who was ill and unable to attend the meeting.

After the meeting Mrs. William Garrett was hostess to the group for refreshments at Mary's Malt. Mary Margaret King and several small guests were also present in addition to the following members of the troop: Mary Ann Barber, Pamela Landgraf, Carol Kinsel, Sherrilyn Garrett, Sherry Lee McElwee, Betty Stryker, Dorothy Rowe, Robbie Melton, Ronnie Jean Lassiter, Lynda Jo Dowdy, Eerie Sue Eller, Phyllis Meador, and Carolyn Washington.

As a gala ending to the year's work, Girl Scout Troop No. 5 was entertained by its Mother's Club at Padre Island and Port Aransas. A picnic lunch, swimming, beachcombing and a visit to the museum were highlights of the day.

A going-away gift was presented Dorryce Wilhelm, troop member, who is moving with her family to New York.

Attending the outing were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stryker, Mrs. D. M. Meador, Mrs. Guy Barber, Mrs. C. C. Landgraf, Carolyn Washington, Phyllis Meador, Dorryce Wilhelm, Ronnie Jean Lassiter, Linda Jo Dowdy, Dorothy Rowe, Mary Ann Barber, Eerie Sue Eller, Pamela Landgraf, Betty Stryker, Robbie Melton, Sherry Lee McElwee, Carol Kinsel, and Sherrilyn Garrett.

Troop No. 5 wishes to thank the Troop Mother's Club and the fathers who have helped the troop during the past year. Their assistance has made possible a great deal of the progress made by the troop and it is greatly appreciated by the girls of the troop and its leaders.

Brownie leaders, Mrs. Jerald Brundrett and Mrs. Jack Taylor entertained Troop 58 with a wiener roast and games at Goose Island on Saturday, May 21 as a final outing.

Mothers of the Brownies and troop committee members presented both Mrs. Brundrett and Mrs. Taylor with monogrammed gold compacts.

Girls attending were Sherry Lynn Brundrett, Sue Taylor, Jan Clark, Melanie Thibodeaux, Adsla Romela, Gloria Schoonover, Elizabeth Peres and Mary Lou Johnson.

Brownie Troop No. 43 met on May 3 for its final meeting of the year at the Oleander pool where a swim party and picnic was held. Jack Horton supervised the swimming and showed the girls a few water safety measures and swimming pointers.

A gift of nylon lingerie was presented to the leader by the Brownie parents.

Mrs. Curtis Sivell provided soft drinks for the group which included Mrs. Lloyd Taylor, Mrs. Ronald Campbell, Mrs. C. J. Mace, Kriss Keeler, Bobo Campbell, Mr. F. L. McCord, Mr. George A. Wulff, Bobby Taylor, Lynn Campbell, Linda Lee Sallie Frances McCord, Darla and Carla Utley, Lee Ann Wulff, Florence Casterline, Darlene Mace and the leader, Mrs. F. L. McCord.

Not only the last meeting of the year, but its last meeting as Brownies was held by Troop 18 on Monday, May 23. Hereafter this troop will be Girl Scout Troop 18.

In the "fly-up" ceremony, the girls and leaders left behind the Brownie work and became Girl Scouts.

Following a pathway marked by Brownie footsteps each girl and leader reached the "fly-up" wings where she stopped, turned backward, gave her last Brownie salute and progressed in Girl Scout footsteps to give the Girl Scout promise and receive her Girl Scout pin.

Mrs. J. B. Jackson, neighborhood chairman, pinned the leader, Mrs. C. L. Grant and assistant leader, Mrs. C. D. Hale.

Mrs. Grant then pinned the following girls: Virginia Holland, Sandra Spencer, Caroline Clark, Jerry Lynn Harrell, Peggy Lois Chambers, Delores Etheridge, Sue Johnson, Jeannie Torres, Janet Grant and Sherry Crawford.

After receiving their pins the girls sang "When You Make a Promise."

At the end of the ceremony Mrs. A. L. Holland presented a gift from the mothers to Mrs. Grant.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. A. L. Holland and Mrs. Chester Johnson to the members of the troop and the following guests: Mrs. J. B. Jackson, Mrs. Ramon Torres, Miss Ruth Torres, Mrs. Milton Harrell, Mrs. Ellis L. Clark, Mrs. G. M. Harrell and several small guests.

Delia Knippa, one of this year's seniors, is moving to Corpus Christi, on June 5, to attend Durham's Business College. She will stay at the YWCA while there.

Pirate Log Dedicated To the Seniors

This week the school paper, the Pirate Log, has been dedicated to the seniors of our school. Each member of the class is to be given a copy of the paper. It contains the class will, history and prophecy. If you have not picked up your copy yet, come by and we will be glad to give it to you.

Yes, It's Work - But Fun!

(This editorial was found in the last issue of the school paper):

Have you ever written an editorial, a feature story, a personality sketch, and a news story, all of which types of writing go into our high school paper.

If not, you are missing a lot of fun, learning how to write for publication and how to cooperate and work with other students.

Publishing the school paper is work, but at the same time the staff member accomplishes things he will be proud of later on.

The journalism class, which does all the work of producing the paper, has worked very hard this year, because there are only eight students in the class. This small number makes each student have more assignments and more responsibilities.

Although it means much work and not all play, I know all the journalism students will say that they enjoyed working on the paper and that they have learned many things.

They hope that their efforts to produce a paper which kept the student body informed of the activities of the school and which upheld the high standard of ACHS has met with your approval.

SCRIPPS INSTITUTE—

dredge brought up a strange, white volcanic rock which was unknown to the scientists, and brings to mind old stories of a mother lode of silver that outcropped somewhere in the Gulf, off the Texas coast.
Diving gear, for skin diving, was little used, according to Captain W. A. Jones, of the Neva J, on which the trip was made, as the only attempt made quickly ran into psychological, if not actual difficulties.
This was at the Flower Garden, a reef southwest of Galveston, close to the 100-fathom curve, where to bottom arises abruptly to 10 fathoms or less. This reef has long been famous among the few fishermen of the Texas coast who have reached it, because of the great variety of colorful seafans and other marine growths tangled in their lines and brought to the surface.
It has been famous for another reason, as it is one of the few reefs along the Texas coast where barracuda are regularly found. These great, fanged predators of the sea evidently regard the Flower Garden as an extremely desirable location, and inhabit it in great numbers. One boat which fished there some years ago is reported to have come in with nearly a ton of the fish in a day's time!
Scripps divers, interested in this tropical outpost of the sea, near the shore of Texas, and discounting tales of barracuda, if indeed, they had ever heard them, went overboard as soon as the fathometer showed they were on top of the formation, and piled back on board just as promptly, for they saw over 70 of the big fish, and observers on the boat said there were over 30 or 40 of them on the surface about the Neva J.
The divers had read all the books which say that barracudas are not dangerous to skin divers, except in isolated cases, but they were not equally sure the fish had studied their lessons, so decided to leave them in full possession of their tropical kingdom beneath the sea, not wanting to furnish one of the isolated cases!

UNITED FUND—

nished the workers for all such drives.
In order to cut out this duplication of effort, and to simplify the whole problem, the United Fund seems to offer the best solution, calling for only one supreme effort during the year.
It was pointed out that people might not give as much in a single drive as they would to a number, because of the actual amount of money involved at one time. However, a provision in the fund allows such gifts to be handled just as pledges to a church are handled, allowing the donor to spread his giving through the year.
The United Fund can be set up as a corporation, with the directors consisting of local members of the various charitable organizations, and in this manner will make solicitation and handling of funds much simpler than it has been in the past.
As a starting point, it is desired to have members of each of the local charitable groups and civic clubs meet to work out plans, or, if the program does not seem feasible. To this end, the open meeting was scheduled, at the Chamber of Commerce, on June 14 at 7:30 p. m.
The committee particularly asks that the following people attend: Mrs. Seth H. Steele, Judge John D. Wendell, Jack Horton, Fred Brundrett, Fred Bracht, Joe Caldwell, Mrs. J. B. Jackson, Mrs. S. F. Jackson, Vernon Kleypas, Dick Fox, Bill Gray, and Charlie Garrett, as well as anyone else who wishes to sit in on the meeting.

Youth Ball Clubs Number 13 Teams

The Youth Night Ball Clubs now have 13 teams ready to play ball, according to Elbert Mundine.
In the Midget League, composed of boys 8 to 10 years, there are the Ramblers, with C. P. Wetzel as manager, the Cowboys, with Roy Solis managing, and the Nighthawks, managed by Peter Sorenson.
In the 11 to 13 year group are the Fulton Sand Crabs, Robert Johnson, manager; R.A.'s First Baptist Church, Del McClain, manager; Indians, Buddy McLeister, manager; Eagles, Ronnie Simpson, manager; Blue Jays, Alfred Pena, manager; and the Northside Baptists with Jerry Hawes in the managerial role.
The Fulton and Rockport girls have not given their teams names but are ready to play, as are the Red Caps and Texans, in the older boys group.
Wilson and Son, hardware and sporting goods, Fulton, are furnishing balls and bats for the Sand Crabs, and the boys and Mundine want to thank them for this.
Practice days at Dickson Memorial Field for all teams are as follows:
Youth Night Boys Monday
Youth Night Girls Tuesday
The Tonettes Wednesday
The Merchantes Thursday
Seamen (hard ball) Friday
The Seamen play every other Sunday; the Fulton Lions hard ball team alternates with the Seamen, but have made no arrangements for practice days.

THAT SHE BLOWS!—Blasted into the air by its booster, a Nike guided missile speeds toward a distant aerial target over the desert during the first annual service practice of Nike battalions at Red Canyon Range Camp, N.M. The Army's famed supersonic missile uses a rocket booster through the early stages of flight.

"THIS ONE WILL REALLY SLAY YOU"—Dr. William A. Irwin, of Detroit, Mich., exhibits a prized item of his extensive gun collection: a violin that's nothing to fiddle with. A .44-caliber pistol barrel is fitted into the scroll; trigger protrudes from underside of neck, and cocking hammer is fashioned to resemble part of the scrollwork. The instrument, at least 75 years old, is believed to have been fashioned in Pike County, Ky., heart of the legendary feudin' country.
