HASKELL COUNTY SINGING CONVENTION

MEETS IN HASKELL THE SECOND SUNDAY IN MAY

Notice is given that the annual meeting of the Haskell County Singing Convention will be held at the court house in Haskell the second Sunday in May, same being the 9th. The officers and delegates will meet at the Baptist church Saturday afternoon, the 8th, at 2 o'clock, to transact any business that should come before the convention. A program will probably be arranged for Saturday night, and Sunday will be devoted to devotional singing.

The public in general is invited to be present on this occasion and help make it a great success and enjoy a day in song. The classes over the county are requested to elect delegates and urge them to be present at the business session Saturday afternoon.

In this connection I desire to urge everybody to bring baskets filled with something to eat on Sunday and let's all spend our dinners together and enjoy a good meal.

His Place in the Sun

Cy Warman, author of the song "Sweet Marie," who died a few months ago in Chicago, was a high official of the Grand Trunk Railroad; but he was always modest about his post.

Once he stopt overnight at a little hotel in northern Michigan, conducted by a man who had previously run a shooting-gallery and later a night-lunch car in New York. The host related his own life-story at length. Then he became interested in the biography of the visitor.

"What do you do up in Montreal, Mr. Warman?"

"I work for the Grand Trunk," said Warman.

"What kind of a job have you got—do you sell tickets or handle baggage?"

"Oh, I've got a better job than either of those," said Cy. "You know the man who goes alongside of the train and taps the wheels with a hammer to see that everything's all right? . . . Well, I help him listen."—Everybody's.

Rev. John V. McCall was elected Moderator; Rev. C. L. Altfather Permanent Clerk and Rev. J. D. Leslie D. D., Stated Clerk.

The pulpits of the Methodist, Baptist, Christian and Presbyterian churches were occupied Sunday, both morning and evening, by the visiting ministers.

Rev. William James of Thurber, a native of England, and who has spent several years in foreign countries, first in the British Army, later as a missionary, spoke Saturday night at the Presbyterian church on what he had seen in his travels.

The people of Haskell realize the honor of having this meeting in the city, and did all they could to make the visitors feel at home.

The Free Press desires to join the local Presbyterians, in a cordial invitation to the Presbytery, to visit this city again.

Fine Wheat.

One of Mr. J. W. Coleman's neighbors told us that Mr. Coleman now had 200 acres of the best wheat he ever saw. He also stated Mr. Coleman 40 bushels of wheat per acre last year. These gentlemen have farms in the Plainview community, about eight miles southwest of Haskell.

THE CLASS OF NINETEEN AND FIFTEEN

(By Fannie Hermon.)

They are all there, from studious Mamie to Winsome Carrie. Nineteen happy hearted young people. Of course there is regret at the final separation from Haskell High, but the days when sadness was the keynote at commencement are past, and it is better so. There is not a single cloud to mar the happiness of our high school graduates this year. The teachers are proud of the class, and well they might be, for our seniors represent the best and the fairest among Haskell's coming citizenship.

There is sweet, impulsive Effie; and Willie, with her quick wit and ready tongue; friendly, popular Elsie; and Artie Belle, the promising young singer. One by one I see them as they are: Annie May, the fairest of them all; quiet, serene Effie Nola, associated always with the proud, stately Frances; then come Eunice and Laura Lee, students who would do credit to any school; sweet faced Linnie, and gentle Eurna, ever ready to help someone; kindly Olive and Alice, with her soft brown eyes, complete the list of "sweet girl graduates."

And last, but not least, come the boys: Clinton, Frank and Alfred with fun-loving Jim; all young Americans, if you please, self-reliant, unselfish and considerate, almost to the point of ancient chivalry of their "senior sisters."

They will all make good in the years to come. They have "put their faces to the future," these girls and boys. They are climbing upward, and some day each and every one of them will reach the goal that lies yonder—some where—in the dim stretch of advancing years.

But in sharp contrast to this bright picture I want to show you the other side, and tell you the story of one girl, whose outlook is not so bright, except where Love and Service are concerned. Of course you do not know who she is. Perhaps you do not care to know. But it is such a pitiful little story, such a real tragedy in a young girl's life that I want you to know it.

It was all because she could not graduate at Haskell High. Maybe it was years ago, you can not tell. It may be foolish, but you see the only happiness in her unlovely life came from her school days, and she had dreamed so long of graduating that it seemed unfair for her to have to give it up. She learned that she must do it though, just as she had given up all the little girlish pleasures that mean so much when one is young? And was she patient and resigned? No, indeed. The light of rebellion shone her eyes, and took the smile from her plain face. Even Time could not take the cruel hurt of her disappointment away.

She thought she could forget when she was compelled to go away for a time. And she did forget, a little. But when she came back the old bitter thoughts came crowding back into her heart. No one else knew it, for there was no one who could understand. Her own little world of dreams failed her then, and they had never done that before. Her day-dreams had always helped her to keep sorrow at bay, but memory proved too strong for her when she caught the glint of winter sunshine on the roof of the old school building. She could not face the teachers and pupils again, knowing that she was no longer one of them. It may have been cowardice, but she couldn't do it. That blinding sense of pain at her own loss came up on her every time the senior class was mentioned. Perhaps her face grew a shade paler as the spring came, but no one noticed and no one cared.

There was trouble in the home, always there had been nothing but sorrow there, and her heart was almost breaking. And one night she gave up the last shred of her already broken faith in the justice of things. The seniors gave a play that night, and she could not go. "There is no need of spending money foolishly." But she did a foolish, dangerous thing that night. She slipped away when the house was wrapped in darkness and passed along the unlighted streets until she stood panting, triumphant, and unafraid, almost within a stone's throw of the high school building. She remained motionless where she stopped the first time. Her eyes were fixed on the brightly lighted windows in the old study hall. She dared not go in, and to stand there alone on the street were almost a crime in her own eyes. But she did it. The sound of music, a period of silence, and a low, rumbling that she knew was applause came to her, and held her spell-bound. She forgot time and place, and her eyes, glowing with excitement seemed to pierce through the walls of the auditorium and gaze upon the sea of upturned faces. But the senior class held her interest. Her world of dreams came back to her there on the dark street, and for one breathless moment she saw herself as she might have been. Unconsciously she drew her shabby little figure to its full height, and lifted her head proudly. She dreamed she was a senior. She heard sweet girlish voices calling her by name. She was a class mate, and there was no pity nor scorn in the tones. She hated pity and despised scorn. And it all seemed different as she stood there. But a skurry of chill wind and the sound of footsteps drove the vision away, and she sped into the deeper shadows, where she remained until the footfalls died away. Then she looked once more at the twinkling lights, at the sombre outline of the old building, looming darkly against the dark sky, and a great sob arose in her throat. She wished that it would choke her as she turned her face homeward. "I don't care if they do find it out, I don't care," she repeated, with a sharp catch in her voice. But they did not "find it out." She slipped into her own little room, and undressing in the dark, knelt by the open window. The sky seemed very far away from her then, and very pitiless. "I wonder,—yes, I guess God is surely up there somewhere," she whispered. And then she prayed. Maybe it was a childish, wordless prayer, but it took all the bitter pain from her heart, and tears washed the sense of rebellion away, leaving her at peace.

And today she is happy in her class mates' success. They have won and she has failed. That sums it up. The story of success is always told. The story of heart break and failure, and final defeat is usually passed by. Sometimes it should be unnoticed, but here, in this instance, the fight was a brave one, and the odds were too great for her slender strength. But did she "fail" after all? She conquered self.

The Ladies' Co-Operative.

For the benefit of those who so generously helped us on tag day we submit the following:

Our receipts were $47.50 and we hope to invest this money in a way that the public will be benefited, not only in a cleaner and better looking town but a more sanitary and healthier one. Garbage cans will be placed on each corner of the square and each man, woman and child is earnestly requested to use them for the papers and fruit peelings they have before been throwing on side walk and streets.

Elsewhere in these columns you will find a list of prizes given to the children for cleaning up the vacant lots around town. Weeds are breeders of disease and we are trying this preventive plan in place of the cure.

While our organization has for its object a cleaner Haskell, it is by no means forgetting it is a religious body. It is a joining together all the auxiliaries of the different churches and only those who fail to attend miss a blessing as a result of these meetings.

The "Child in our Midst" is a study of vital interest to everyone and the thoughts advanced by Rev. Mr. James, a Presbyterian missionary, at our last lesson was food for thought. Mrs. Kline's paper on the "Spiritual training of the child" and the special songs by Mrs. Werther Long and Miss Boone added very much to the afternoon's program. Mrs. Turentine was unavoidably absent but Mrs. Key very ably took her place and each one felt repaid for having gone. Reporter.

The Woman's Co-Operative announces the following contest:

1. The object of this contest is to get the vacant lots made clean and sanitary so that our town will be more healthful and more attractive.
2. As our boys and girls are the young citizens of our town we are asking their help in making a cleaner Haskell.
3. Prizes are to be offered for the vacant lots on which has been the most work thoroughly.
4. There are to be two divisions of the contestants. All children under 12 years of age will be in the first class; and all children over twelve and up to 17 years of age will be the second class.
5. There will be 3 prizes awarded in each class. $3 for the first prize. 2 " " second " 1 " " third "
6. The contest will open May 3 and close May 10.
8. Each contestant shall choose his or her vacant lot and register it at McNeill & Smith's Hardware Store.
9. Two or more may group together in the cleaning of a lot but no two may compete on the same lot.

Accidentally Shot

Last Monday about eleven o'clock, while Bob Kinnison and Roy Olifant were hunting, the target rifle they were using fell through a hole in the buggy, and was discharged, the ball entering the body of Bob Kinnison above the naval, and ranged up through the right lung, lodging in the right shoulder. The shock was very severe, but after recovering from the shock, Mr. Kinnison has been doing well, and everyone hopes for his speedy recovery.

Married

Last Tuesday, Issac Alvis and Miss Nena Hall of Rochester, came to Haskell, accompanied by Ray Fields and Miss Watkins, and the first named couple procured license and were married at the court house, Judge Smith officiating. The Free Press joins the many friends of the young couple with best wishes and congratulations.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

*Our Motto is
2 to 1*

AT MISTROT BROS.
STAMFORD, TEXAS

*Our Motto is

WE HAVE THE GOODS. You have the cash. You have made up your mind to buy at the least possible price—that's your privilege, it is a duty. If you can get $10 worth for $5 you have another $5 to spend for something else, but if you pay your $10 out for $10 worth of goods, you have nothing left out of that investment. Best to get the worth of your money in the way Mistrot Bros. give it to you. 2 to 1—that's our way. There is nothing better. You can think of all the stores you have ever traded with from Missouri to Texas, from Virginia to Oklahoma and back to Texas, you will not think of another store where you get as much for your money as you do at Mistrot's in Stamford. We buy them cheap and we divide the profits with you—that's our way. 10 per cent is enough for one man. We figure close and we get the business. Our way is a business proposition. We are in the business for business and we know that The Price is The Thing you are after. As to quality, we have the finest goods in the country and we don't leave them to mold on our shelves. Thousands of articles are being sold daily. The crowds are coming now thicker than ever, the people are talking about us; they are telling others about our bargains, and the news of our big sale is spreading everywhere for 100 miles around. They are coming in families, they are gathering in crowds and all are here at our store in daily attendance. They are finding the bargains here. If it is worth $5.00 they get it for $2.50; if it is worth $10 they get it for $5. If it is worth $15 they find it at Mistrot's for $7.50. No wonder that they can search all the dry good stores from Maine to California, and they find nothing to equal the Mistrot Store. No wonder the people are patronizing the Mistrot store. No wonder the crowds are here in daily attendance. See the list below, there are many gems in this list for your diadem that's sparkling for you. Some are brighter than others, but each one is a separate jewel which is sparkling for you. Look over the list carefully and select such as you wish. Pluck them, each dollar you save adds to your efficiency, each dollar you save adds to your bank account.

Rheumatism is a disease characterized by pains in the joints and in the muscles. The most common forms are: Acute and Chronic Rheumatism, Rheumatic Headaches, Sciatic Rheumatism and Lumbago. All of these types can be helped absolutely by applying some good liniment that penetrates. An application of Sloan's Liniment two or three times a day to the affected part will give instant relief. Nurse Knew

Former President Taft tells this one on himself:

"There is a lad of my acquaintance in New Haven," said Mr. Taft, "who used to bite his nails."

"See here," said his nurse to him one day, "if you keep biting your nails like that, do you know what will happen to you?"

"No," said the youngster. "What?"

"You'll swell up like a balloon and burst."

"The boy believed his nurse. He stopt biting his nails at once. About a month after the discontinuance of his habit he encountered me at luncheon. He surveyed me with stern disapproval. Then he waiked over and said to me accusingly:

"You bite your nails!"—Everybody's.

How Mrs. Harrod got Rid of her Stomach Trouble.

"I suffered with stomach trouble for years and tried everything I heard of, but the only relief I got was temporary until last spring I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and procured a bottle of them at our drug store. She Knows What She Wants

The well informed housekeeper objects to the use of alum in food. She might read in an advertisement or be told that it was all right in the quantities used, but in the end she would merely ask, "Do you mean to say that these baking powders contain alum?"

If the answer, however qualified, were in the affirmative, that would be enough. She would not buy it. Why?

Because she knows that cream of tartar has always been accepted as the most wholesome product for raising cake and biscuit, and she wants a baking powder made of cream of tartar, like Dr. Price's.

This conclusion is the result of unconscious absorption, either her own or her mother's, of the opinions of the highest authorities on hygiene and home cooking.

The prudent housekeeper looks at the ingredients printed on the label. She knows what she wants.
