

Kent County History Is Given

TO THE EDITOR: Kent County was named for Andrew Kent who made the supreme sacrifice at the Alamo in 1836. He came with his family from St. Charles County, Missouri in 1828 to what is now Lavaca County, Texas. He entered the Alamo with Bonham through a rain head there to die for Texas, March 1, 1836. In 1955 the town of Jayton became the Kent County seat of government, a dream of years was realized and an elegant courthouse was built which is the pride of we old timers who went through three elections to obtain it. We recently received the following letter from Eldon C. Wade, 120 Isabella, El Paso, Texas. "Dear Adolphus and Mrs. Moreland, we are sifting and sorting our stuff to move and Cody ran across the enclosed. It was the result of a project Glover Engledow began years ago to preface a history of Kent County and its white settlers. We had talks with quite a few of the oldest settlers, but in my moving around, the other papers were lost, as the unofficial historian of Kent County, I thought that you would find this writing of interest so I made copies of it and you and some of the information can be completed, we are OK and so are the kids. We trust that Mrs. Moreland is feeling better and you are. Give our best regards to SA, and the folks in Jayton. Always, your friend, Eldon C. Wade. This historical writing is quite lengthy and will have to be a few of the most important high spots. I am sure that Erma Black will use it all in her history of Kent County as she can ever find time to complete it. In the year of 1892, the county and district clerk, sheriff and tax collector, all of whom had just been elected in an election called for that purpose by the County Judge of Scurry County, met at a place "near the center of the county," and a mile or so northwest from where the town of Clairmont is now located and organized Kent County. An election was called for the purpose of locating the county seat and two locations were candidates. One of these was located about three miles southwest of Clairmont, near the present home of Basil Cairns. The other where Clairmont is. The first named land belonged to the late Jack Rogers and the later to A.L. Rhomburg, a real estate speculator of Dubuque, Iowa. The Rhomburg site winning by a small majority, resulted in the town of Clairmont being surveyed, platted and officially dedicated. It was named for Miss Claire Becker, a relative of Rhomburg who had aided him in his land speculations. There is no way of telling who was the first white man to set foot on Kent county soil. Probably an early Spanish explorer or possibly Indians came from great distances to this vicinity on their buffalo hunts. There was evidently a few permanent villages in the county in view of the rise of some of their cemeteries. It is improbable that there was a white settler in the county prior to the late seventies. There were a few herds of cattle in the county prior to that time, but due to the prevalence of hostile Indians the herds were cared for after a fashion by cowboys who came here seasonally from the settlements further east. The territory was also a favorite hunting ground for buffalo hunters during the sixties and seventies. Well, I guess that this will do for the present. Adolphus Moreland

August Draft Call Gets Sizeable Increase

The August Draft Call was announced today by Colonel Melvin N. Glantz, the State Director of Selective Service for Texas. Men in the First Priority Selection Group with numbers of 75 or lower will be subject to induction in August. This priority group is made up of men born in 1952 or older men who have lost a draft deferment during the calendar year 1972 and who are classified in Class I-A, I-A-O, or I-O. Glantz noted that this is an increase in 25 in the lottery number for induction from the July draft call. There is also an increase in lottery number for pre-induction Armed Forces Examinations from 90 in July to 100 in August. Men in the First Priority Group are those who are subject to examination orders. The August induction Orders will be issued between July 3rd and July 28th, with 30 days notice from the date of mailing. Under the Uniform National Callsystem there is no quota for Texas; however, Glantz indicated that he expects approximately 500 men to be inducted in Texas in August. Mrs. Lucille Wade, Chairman of Local board no. 80, said that one induction is expected in the area covered by this local board in August as a result of this Induction Call. In addition, four men will be issued orders for a pre-induction Armed Forces Examination.

Dutch People Still Wear Their Wooden Shoes

Dear Editor, Your article in the paper about the wooden shoes interested me. When I visited Koy in Holland, I saw farmers, dairy workers, and road construction workers wearing wooden shoes. They wear heavy socks inside to make the shoe more comfortable. In some areas of the city one can see wooden shoes on the front, but now, except for special workers, and the people of some fishing villages, people of Holland dress just like people everywhere.

The rain does not stop the Dutch people from working or going about their usual business. I saw farmers plowing with teams, or hoeing while it rained. People were going about on their bicycles or motor bikes usually have on a rain coat of some type, but they go right on despite the rain. It rained every other day the three weeks I was there. Mrs. Lee Parker

The Landowner Holds The Key To Many Erosion Problems

In most cases erosion problems can be solved by the land owners involved using their own resources and by staying on his own land. But in some cases erosion problems, like many other problems, can only be corrected through the efforts of a group of two or more land owners. We have many erosion problems in Kent County that could be solved through cooperative effort.

Many times water from a large watershed can be safely controlled with a cooperative waterway that starts at the top farm and crosses several farms to reach a suitable and stable outlet. In other cases water can be controlled by using a Basin terrace that is built on two or more farms in order to get enough length to have sufficient storage for the water shed involved or, a diversion may need to be extended onto an adjoining ranchers rangeland to reach a suitable outlet. In these cases the water is turned loose on a slope that will not hurt the rancher but will enable him to produce more forage for his livestock or keep a pond full of livestock water.

Water erosion problems are similar in some respects to medical problems. A doctor, for instance, does not always treat the area of your body that hurts because the cause of your pain may be somewhere else. A doctor finds the source of your problem and treats that to cure your aches and pains. Water erosion "pains" are sometimes the same. The treatment in some cases must start at the source to cure the erosion somewhere else. For example: a farmer may have more outside water than he can handle safely. A basin terrace may not work because of the volume of water is too great to store safely. A graded diversion may not work because he doesn't have a suitable outlet to dispose of the water safely. A graded waterway may not work because of the lack of a suitable outlet, or because silt from cropland above makes it impractical. In this example, without the cooperative effort of land owners above, this farmer, can do nothing but watch his farm wash away. If each farmer takes care of his own water through use of terraces, basin terraces, waterways, etc., the farmer on the bottom of the slope has no problems taking care of his water.

These are only a few ways in which erosion problems can be licked through cooperative effort. There are many other situations that require cooperation of two or more land owners to allow the problem to be solved. As our population increases and our land has to produce food for these additional people more and more of these cooperative projects will have to be undertaken. We must conserve our natural resources through individual, group and government efforts if our future generations are going to be assured of the food and fiber needed to sustain life. If you have a problem such as described above, your local Soil Conservation Service can provide you with the necessary planning and engineering assistance to lick your problem, also, some cost share assistance is available through the SCS and AS CS office.

8 Screwworm Cases Reported In County

Eight cases of screwworms have been reported in Kent County during recent weeks. Screwworm cases have been confirmed on the Charles Carr, Claud Senn and J.B. Morrison farms, with two cases each, and one case each on the George Taylor and Grady Wallace Ranch, states County Agent Mark Geeslin. Sterile male screwworms are dropped on the area of confirmed cases. The Screw-worm Eradication Lab in Mission is releasing approximately 200 million sterile flies per week in the infested areas of Texas. Producers are urged to maintain a close look out for this costly insect. Sample kits are available from the county agent office to mail to the Screwworm Lab. A recommended insecticide would be used to control the screwworm maggots.

Grasshoppers Damaging Kent County Crops

Grasshoppers are beginning to cause damage to cotton in various parts of Kent County. Both jumbo and flying grasshoppers are moving from pasture land into cotton fields, according to county agent Mark Geeslin. Grasshoppers may be controlled with sevin or with toxaphene at the rate of 1.5¢ per acre of actual poison. Jumbo grasshoppers will need to be controlled with bait mixtures. Bait can be made by mixing 100¢ of wheat bran with any of the following poisons: 2 Oz. Aldrin, 8 Oz. Chlorodene, or 1 lb. toxaphene. Mix the insecticide into about 10 gallons of water and mix with bran to make a crumbly mash. Stock syrup may also be added bait.

Elections Costs Are High

Secretary of State Bob Bullock, who had the responsibility of handling the financing for the Primaries, thinks the costs run too high, and some counties are more efficient than others. In a recent news release, he didn't give any figures on local counties, only the larger ones. For the Democrats, Travis

County was low with a 36¢ per capita expense. Harris and Tarrant Counties spent 61 cents per capita, Dallas 57¢, Bexar, 59¢, El Paso, 50¢, Nueces, 52¢, and Dallas County 57¢. For the Republicans Nueces County spent $4.48 in election costs for every vote cast. Low in the big city counties was Tarrant County with $1.83

Goodall Gets Key Post With TADA

R.G. Goodall, franchised Ford Dealer in Jayton, has been appointed to the key post of Area Director of the Texas Automobile Dealers Association. Gene N. Fondren, TADA Executive Vice President in Austin said Goodall will report to the TADA Board of Directors on all phases of activity relating to the motor vehicle buying public in the Jayton area. "Mr. Goodall will work closely with legislative and other governmental officials on all matters pertaining to the industry and the auto buying public," commented Fondren. "The job of Area Director is one of the most important in our state-wide association," said TADA President John N. Cleveland, San Angelo, "and we are confident R.G. Goodall will serve with distinction."

Expansion Made In Rural Housing Eligibility

Many additional families in Texas are now eligible for rural housing loans from the Farmers Home Administration FHA State Director, J. Lynn Futch announced today. "In families where both husband and wife are employed," Futch explained, "the new policy permits half of the wife's gross income to be excluded in determining whether the total family income is within the maximum limit for loan eligibility." For example, the husband is the principal source of income with $6,000. His wife earns $4,000. His entire income, plus half of his wife's or $2,000, total $8,000. This is within Texas' moderate income level of $8,000 so the family may be eligible for a Farmers Home Administration loan. James V. Smith, National Administrator of Farmers

Home Administration emphasized that newly-eligible families must demonstrate that they otherwise merit FHA financing, and that credit is not available from regular commercial sources. "The new policy will assist families in which the wife's income is needed to improve the standard of living. Note that if the wife is the principal breadwinner, the rule does not apply. This change will in no way affect our expanding service to low-income families," Mr. Smith said. Loans may be made to families that will buy or build homes in open country or towns up to 10,000 population and who are not able to secure credit from regular commercial sources. Complete information is available from the agency's 143 county offices located in county seat towns throughout Texas.

As It Looks From Here

By Rep. Omar Burleson
Member of Congress, Texas

ORDINARILY THE COMMENTS in this release are directed to those subjects not being reported in the news media. The so-called SALT agreements in Moscow have, of course, been reported in detail but with hearings beginning in the U.S. Senate on ratification, serious fundamentals are deserving of the most careful and critical considerations.

A LITTLE BACKGROUND ON THE developments of the agreements reached between President Nixon and the Soviet Union would seem to be in order.

FIRST, BASIC DECISIONS LIMITING the present number of U.S. strategic missiles were made back in the mid 60's. Former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara thought that if the Russians were allowed to achieve missile parity with the U.S., they would stop construction of intercontinental ballistic missiles. The magic number was set at 1,000. The United States has remained at this approximate number plus 54 older type Titan missiles.

IT WAS OBVIOUS WITHIN four to five years that the Soviets did not stop at 1,000 and added at the rate of 250 per year to the 850 they had in the middle 60's.

IN THE LAST THREE YEARS we have attempted to upgrade the nuclear weapons which we have, including the development of the multiple warhead. The planning and development of a new bomber, the B-1, has been stepped up and the newer type of submarine missile system called the Trident is under development. At the same time, the anti-ballistic missile system was designed to protect our retaliatory capability.

ALTHOUGH COLD NUMBERS do not tell the full story, in discussing nuclear weapons capability numbers do have significance. At the present time, we have good information that the Soviet Union has 1,618 ICBMs deployed or under construction. The agreements are supposed to put a halt to any increases. This leaves a basic 2 to 3 numerical superiority over us but our advising experts think that quality over quantity leaves us with the edge.

UNDER THE AGREEMENTS THE U.S. is allowed 44 missile launching submarines with 710 missiles. The Soviet Union is permitted 62 submarines with 952 missiles. Here again our bets are on superior performance rather than comparative numbers.

SOON TO COME IS A TEST for the Congress to provide defense systems not covered by the agreements. A highly dangerous situation could exist if slashes are made in certain areas of our defenses. This includes the developments and production of the B-1 bomber, the Trident long-range submarine missile system and the upgrading of nuclear weapons capabilities.

Unless these steps are taken with determination, approval of the agreements consummated with the Russians could be a serious gamble with the future of our country. Before we become overjoyed with the agreements recently reached, our Nation must keep foremost in mind that anything less than a retaliatory capability against Russia could mean our destruction. First, we've got to keep in mind that in the past Russia, to some degree or other, has violated over 50 treaties since the end of World War II. Second, we've got to keep in mind that we have been told by previous Soviet leaders that "the end justifies the means" for communism to destroy the capitalist system.

THIRD, THERE IS NO REASON to let our trust run away with us. We are supposed to have scientific instruments to tell us what the Russians are doing but we do not have spies on the ground to see what is taking place as the Soviets do in the United States. By our very nature we will conform to our agreements while it has been proved the Russians do not.

WE SHOULD NOT RATEY a treaty unless we make absolutely sure that we have adequate and unequivocal safeguards from treachery from the other side. There is no greater responsibility of the Government than to guarantee its citizens safety from attack from within as well as outside. Without this guarantee of security, our Nation becomes prey to any other stronger nation.

AS HEARINGS BEGIN IN THE Senate Foreign Relations Committee on ratification of SALT agreements, critics are heard on these efforts to maintain and strengthen our military capability in the areas not covered by the agreements. They should not and must not be allowed to prevail and the real test will be shaping up in the weeks ahead.

WITH THE CLAMOR FOR MORE of this and that from the Federal Government, we better make sure that we remain strong or the "this and that" may mean nothing.

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Is it March that comes in like a lamb and goes out like a lion, or the other way around? They is so many things blating and roaring around here. Mister Editor, til I don't think nobody can tell what's coming and going. Fer shore China has come from nowhere to all you can read about in the papers in a powerful short time.

You jest never know how to look at TV, fer instant. They ain't nothing exciting to me about watching folks slide down a hill of snow in Japan, but it seemed downright unAmerican not to watch them Olympics after all the trouble everybody went to to show em here. I felt the same way about all the pictures and stories about President Nixon in China. A feller felt obligated to look after we hauled a hole television station over there jest to send the pictures back.

And as fer going and coming, it looks like the Vietnam business ain't going out like a lamb after all. The Democrats is keeping the issue roaring, and they has fell out amongst theirselves til we got as many ways of dealing with Vietnam as we got candidates. Personal, I am full disagreed with that feller on the President's staff that said if you ain't fer Nixon's position you're a traitor to your country. Farthermore, I think if Nixon had a plan to end the war when he was running in 1968, and he still ain't come out with it, he ain't doing the country no favors.

Even Ed Doolittle, that goes the extry mile fer Republicans Administrations, has fell out with Nixon over his ideas on aid to North Vietnam if they'll let us

NOTICE OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE UNDER EXECUTION

By virtue of an execution issued out of the District Court of Stonewall County, Texas, on a judgement rendered in said court on the 25th day of April, 1972, in favor of W.H. McKlinzie and against T.H. Norvill in the case of W.H. McKlinzie vs. T.H. Norvill, give it to em. Ed brugt this matter up at the country store Saturday night, and he said he was agin Nixon's Asia Marshall Plan. The fellers was agreed that pouring money into North Vietnam to build what we tore up ain't going to make us no friends there or nowhere.

Since 1946, declared Ed, we has give other countries $138 billion that we know we ain't ever going to git back. Ed said he was convinced that all the money done was put us deeper in the hole. Right now, Ed went on, we're selling Israel jet planes on credit and charging them lower interest than the Government has to pay on money to build the planes. And all the time our dollar is so weak til Japan is taking pay in shrimp instead of money, while we have to pay three times more for shrimp than we would if we'd keep some fer ourselves.

While things keep coming and going, Mister Editor, I see by the new law on campaign spending that a vote in this country now has been priced at 10 cent. The way the candidates scramble fer em in election years you'd think they're worth at least a dollar, but other years they ain't worth a plug nickle.

Yours truly,
Uncle Zeke

the direction of energy

When the big wheel turns clockwise, the little wheel turns counter-clockwise at a greater rate of speed. Thus man controls energy in the physical universe, determining, according to his own will, its direction and effect.

There is a spiritual universe, too. A world in which God, who gave us freedom of will, provides the guidance, help and inspiration which unite our minds with His for purposes which are GOOD.

We realize with trembling in this nuclear age that the physical and spiritual universe are not two—but ONE. We cannot live in the one and forget the other. For the world we know will perish unless man's spiritual vision governs his use of the energy he controls.

Wise and reverent minds have always known this. That is why we have CHURCHES... why we share their Life and Work with one another.

LETTERS to EDITOR

Dear Editor,
Here is an article my father W. C. Thompson wrote to Les Line, Audubon Society, New York, about ecology and pollution. I would be glad if you could print it.
Sincerely,
Joe Thompson

I would like to put in my two bits worth of opinion of what is our greatest problem in the field of environment and conservation. I am a member of the Audubon Society and enjoy your wonderful magazine and its objective approach.

I submit that the prime problem we face is people, and their demand for a standard of living that is in direct opposition to conservation.

When ge us homo came down out of the trees, invented bow and arrow and devised the first plow, he began upsetting nature's balance. Today we have machines that are beyond most people's ability to understand, to supply our many needs. These require many minerals, some of them rare, energy from coal, oil and water power that exists infinite quantities in the earth and will someday be gone.

I recently saw a television interview with the president of a group trying to preserve the Big Thicket in Texas. Charges and counter charges went back and forth, with the champion of the Big Thicket making vague innuendoes about the lumber companies, oil companies and real estate developers, while some said that the Big Thicket National Park would only protect the trees, squirrels, and butterflies.

My feeling is that I would much rather have an unspoiled area with timber, without wells, and subdivisions, but where we are going to draw the line?

As long as people need houses, there is going to be a demand for lumber and a place to build a house. Think of the area that has been removed from its natural state by the cities and highways of the country. All the land thus covered up would pave most of the New England states with a slab of concrete. Yet we demand highways to tour the country and see the beauties of nature, and gasoline to make travel possible.

As an example of what happens when you set aside a natural wonder for the enjoyment of the "Dear People," take Yellow Lake Park. If you go there now you drive bumper to bumper in congested traffic and the wonderful travertine terraces around the geysers have been trampled into the ground, and some geysers filled with trash. The same is true at Lake Louise in Canada, where they put up a cyclone fence to keep the tourists from trampling down the flower beds. I understand that Yosemite has these problems too, and I saw the trend when I was there twenty years ago. The Grand Canyon is the only place that has any security. It's just too big to fill up with beer cans, worn out tires and other tourist litter.

I was in the oil business before retirement some years ago and was fortunate enough to be associated with several discoveries that added to the nation's supplies of energy. I was gratified by this and felt that I had contributed something. Now when I see hippies in their hot rods on the streets and highways, and the same class of people destroying the Mohave desert and the sand dunes of California in ORVS, I wonder.

We need natural resources and energy if we are to maintain our standard of living. We need to bring oil from the North Slope to help. The government is wholly dishonest in this deal. If preserving the reindeer was paramount why did they let oil companies spend nearly a billion dollars for leases and more for developing these reserves and then say "you can't produce this oil." Personally I still prefer the polar bears and reindeer but what about needed energy?

You may gather from all this that I am antisocial. I am. I think that man is the greatest polluter of all, and if not held in check we will be like a herd of goats on an island. When they eat up all the vegetation they proceed to starve.

I am not advocating that the Audubon Society team up with Planned Parenthood to solve this problem, but I would like to see a scaling down of the environmentalists' diatribes against oil companies, lumber companies and all the other companies that are condemned. We have chosen a machine civilization and are going to have to pay the price one way or another.

Sincerely,
W. C. Thompson

Mrs. Abe Ham is visiting with her daughter Mrs. Gladys Cobb at Sweetwater, Sheriff B. J. Stanley spent his two weeks vacation helping Rex Clubmiles catch up with his work down at Killen. A storm put Rex behind with his work.

Well the weather remains hot, I notice where in Abilene that some eggs in a shed produced some chickens, the lady said that she does not need an incubator as an iron roof and concrete floor with prevailing weather makes a good one.

R. A. Moreland Jr. came back from Junction Sunday afternoon. Later, he will return to Tech at Lubbock.

By LEE BRYAN

A young man stared into the mirror one morning, and noting his bloodshot eyes resolved never to go into a bar again. "That television," he muttered, "is ruining my eyes."

A bachelor is a sportsman who plays at the game of love and manages to retain his amateur rating.

"Where did you get that black eye?" "For kissing the bride after the ceremony."

"Isn't that the usual custom?" "But this was three years after the ceremony."

"Repeat the words the defendant used," said the lawyer.

"Then," said the attorney, "whisper them to the judge."

Gossip is like mud thrown against a clean wall. It may not stick but it leaves a mark.

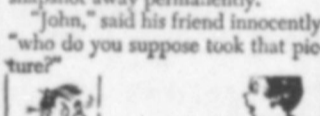

An Army captain, stationed overseas, was elated over the snapshot his girl had sent him from the States. It showed a happy couple sitting on the beach, while she sat alone in the background looking forlorn. The message on the back read:

"Darling, this shows how lonesome I am for you."

The captain showed the picture to everyone who would look at it, over and over again, until he and his picture became number one bore. Finally a fellow officer devised a way of inducing him to put the snapshot away permanently.

"John," said his friend innocently, "who do you suppose took that picture?"

"You just can't see the child happy, can you?"

Inspection at the Border

Acting on an anonymous tip, customs agents at the Mexican border halted a yellow station wagon for inspection. Sure enough, they found contraband watches hidden in the glove compartment.

In due course, the driver of the car was brought to trial on a charge of smuggling. But in court, he stood on his constitutional rights.

"They had no grounds for searching my car except for one anonymous telephone call," he pointed out. "This is a clear case of 'unreasonable search and seizure', which is forbidden by the Fourth Amendment. Therefore, they cannot use the evidence against me."

But the court disagreed and found him guilty as charged. The court said searches at the border, unlike searches inside the country, need not be based on "probable cause"—mere suspicion is enough.

Why should the law allow more leeway in searches at the border than inside the country? Because of the historical right of each nation to put whatever limits it pleases on entry into its territory.

Nevertheless, the search itself must still be carried out in a reasonable manner. While mere suspicion will justify the search of a car, it will not necessarily justify an intimate search of the person. Thus:

A woman crossing the border on foot was stopped because a customs inspector "had a hunch" that she was carrying narcotics. Ordered to strip in the presence of a matron, she was indeed found to have a quantity of heroin in her clothing.

Nevertheless, this evidence was held not admissible in court. The judge said such an intensive search could not be conducted for such a flimsy reason.

But in another case, the compulsory stripping of a woman was upheld. This time, suspicion was based on specific information furnished by a reliable informer. With that much to go on, ruled the court, customs officials were entitled to take a very good look.

Cotton Yield Low In Area

The average yield of 200 pounds of cotton per harvested acre for the Rolling Plains area of Texas in 1971 was considerably less than the 245-pound average of the year before. This is based on the December 1 estimate.

The National Cotton Council notes that the Rolling Plains yield fell below 200 pounds in only one year during the 1960-71 period. This was in 1969 when it averaged 198 pounds.

The Cotton Council is cooperating with state agricultural Extension services and the U. S. Department of Agriculture in a campaign aimed at "Better Yields of Quality Cotton for Profit and Market Growth."

Ray Joe Riley, Rt. 2, Hart, and Dr. John E. Hutchison, director, Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, College Station, are co-chairmen of the effort in Texas.
