Hunting Leases Can Increase Income

People in the United States are more recreation minded now than at any time in the history of our country. They have more time off to enjoy recreation and more families have more money to spend on equipment and supplies to follow their favorite past time. And most are more than willing to pay for this privilege especially if the price is reasonable. with public recreation places getting more crowded every year, many people are turning to privately owned facil-ities. Hunting leases are one of the most common of these private facilities and anyone that owns land can gain extra income by leasing this land for bird hunting. Some land has natural food and cover for birds but land that does not can be made attractive to birds at very little expense to the land owner. There are many things that can be done to provide food and cover necessary to attract and keep birds on your land. What method you use depends largely on the type of operation you have whether cropland, rangeland or wetland, farm or ranch and what type of soil you have. Cover can be provided that also furnishes food and food can be provided at little cost if you have suitable cover. But no matter what method you use your
