New panel tested for Northrop

A Northrop Air Division sponsored program to test new composite materials that will possibly be used on the ATF-23 future fighter aircraft being designed by Northrop is being tested on Reese T-38s for the next two and one-half years.

The materials, Thermoplastic and Bismaleimide, are forms of a composite material also used on the F-15 and F-16 aircraft, which were formed into six different panels that are being tested on 18 of Reese's jets. Williams AFB, Ariz. and Nellis AFB, Nev. are also test units for the panels that are being tested on T-38s and F-5s.

On July 18, a team from Northrop Air Division began installing the panels, and finished installing the last panels on the 18 test planes July 28. "We are not upgrading our aircraft, we are just testing because training jets are the most continually used in the Air Force, and more hours can be logged in a shorter amount of time," said TSgt. Kenneth Brown, assistant flight chief, 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron Eagle Flight. Sergeant Brown served as a liaison and inspector during the installation of the panels by the Northrop team.

The team will do periodic inspections on the panels. They will check stress areas, contaminant effects, such as fuel, oil and hydraulic fluid, and how durable they are by testing handling by crew chiefs and specialists.

"The panels are about half the weight of the original metal panels, and cost is anticipated to be less," said Sergeant Brown. "The main thing is that the material can take more stress fatigue than the metal panels."

"The new panels are ours until the test is over, then they will be replaced with the original panels, and the composite panels will be taken back to Northrop for further evaluation," he said.

Unsafe summer habits can lead to tragedy

By 2nd Lt. Cecily Christian
Associate Editor, Roundup

Lately we've been hearing a great deal about mission enhancement and safety, especially during the summer months.

Usually we associate mission enhancement with wearing seatbelts and driving carefully, safely participating in summertime sporting and recreational activities and using caution when out in the sun, whether working or just having a good time.

But summer health and safety go way beyond these areas. Unfortunately a couple at another base learned this valuable lesson at the expense of their two-year-old daughter.

The girl was the daughter of two dining hall workers at the base and was found unconscious in her parents' parked car last Thursday evening outside the dining hall. Security police were called to the scene, but efforts to revive her were unsuccessful. She was later pronounced dead at the emergency room.

Tragedies like this are hard to believe. Unfortunately, tragedies like this are not uncommon. Sometimes parents leave children in cars assuming they will "be back in just a minute." But leaving a child unattended in a car for any length of time is not a good idea, even if the temperature outside isn't very high. Leave children, or even pets at home or take them with you.

To reiterate Reese's policy on children being left in a car, Wing Supplement of AFR 125-14 states that if a child is left unattended in a car, the security police may make a citing on the parents, question them and refer them to the Mental Health Clinic.

The best way to avoid encounters with the security police or tragedies like the one stated above is to be extremely safety conscious during these hot summer months, not just for yourself, but for your entire family.

Revised SOS program underway

MAXWELL AFB, Ala. (AFNS) — A revised Squadron Officer School non-resident program began in mid-July.

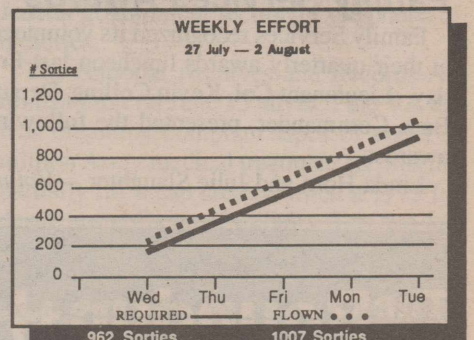

Course content still covers officership, staff communications, leadership and force employment, but has been updated. Some material intended for first lieutenants was removed because the course is now targeted at captains.

Half of the revised course consists of parts A and B, which are mailed together and must be completed within a year of enrollment. Parts C and D will be mailed together and must be completed within one year after completing the first two parts.

Although no extensions will be granted for completion of any part of the course, students who fail two tests in the same area will be put on six-month hold and given an opportunity to retake the tests. The hold does not count against the required one-year completion date. The complete course, including holds, must be finished within three years.

Students currently enrolled in the old program are not affected.

Mission Milestones

The 64th FTW continues to pull ahead. The 45 sorties we flew above our requirement helped T-37's reach 4.0 days ahead and T-38's reach 4.4 days ahead.

Bits & Pieces

September is inspection month

I have designated the month of September as our wing self-inspection month for Reese. It is my desire that the entire wing receive a thorough and comprehensive inspection. My purpose for directing a complete wing-wide inspection is easily seen — let us locate our mistakes and problems right now and provide ourselves ample lead time to correct them.

I have never enjoyed the frantic preparations and gyrations that usually precede a major inspection. We at Reese are going to work smarter, not harder. My aim is that we enter the next inspection with the calm confidence that can only come from an in-depth, well paced preparation.

The inspection has two major goals that I would like to see attained. First, I want Reese to have the best self-inspection program within Air Training Command. The self-inspection system is an absolutely critical element in the efficient operation of the wing and requires constant attention to ensure correct functioning.

The second goal is to educate all of the folks at Reese on the proper manner to conduct business. Information from the TIG Brief, ATC IG Newsletters, ATC common deficiencies, and our prior inspection reports will be made available to make everyone as knowledgeable as possible. Again, the goal is to reach everyone in the wing and make certain we minimize our chances to repeat errors made by us and others in the past.

Are we really doing our best?

More than three-quarters of a century ago, Ransom E. Olds, originator of the Oldsmobile, wrote and ran this advertisement in a prominent newspaper of the day:

MY FAREWELL CAR

This car which I now bring out is regarded by me as pretty close to a finality, for I do not believe that a car materially better will ever be built.

The car to which Mr. Olds referred was a 1912, 35-horsepower, four cylinder job with a buggy top, two wheel brakes and no self starter! Can you just imagine if everyone of his day had the same attitude? We might all be driving that same auto.

My point is that unless we use innovative thinking on the job and continue to search for better ways of doing things, we are doomed to progress no further. A key element to any innovative style of thinking, is that one must believe progress is not only possible, but likely and inevitable.

Mr. Larry Hagan knows how to think in an innovative manner. His suggestion for preparing one contract with a triplicate signature page will save ATC $2,880 annually. He is this quarter's top MIP award winner and his suggestion netted the Air Force valuable savings. Congratulations and great job! Keep those suggestions and ideas coming in.

The pride is in the people

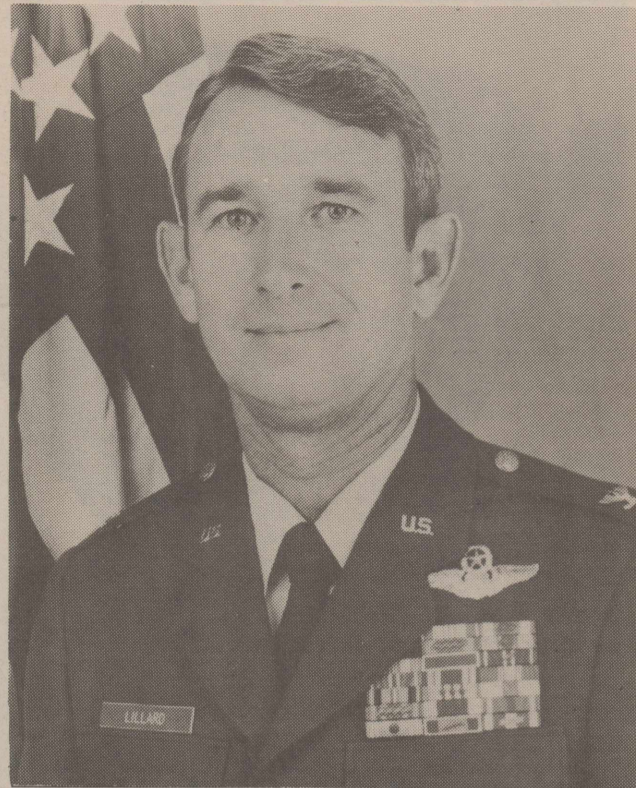

On Monday, we at Reese are going to have another PROUD DAY. Only through the dedicated efforts and hard work by the folks at Reese are we able to take another day off. I will be the first to admit that I enjoy taking either a Monday or Friday off, making for a shorter workweek and extending the weekend. I have no doubt that everyone feels the same.

I am proud of the folks who have made PROUD DAYS possible here. I believe it shows that people will perform at their best when a worthy goal is set that is worth attaining. I promise that so long as we are able to maintain riding the crest of high performance that has brought us to this point, PROUD DAYS will continue to be held regularly. I urge everyone who has the opportunity to take the time off, to do so and enjoy it...you've earned it.

Welcome aboard

Lt. Col. John Block and his wife Julie come to us from the Pentagon, Washington, D.C. John is the new assistant deputy commander for operations, and he brings with him a breadth and depth of expertise that will be quite valuable. Welcome—we are glad you joined the Reese family.

Lt. Col. Lynn McConnel arrives at Reese from Wilford Hall in San Antonio where she served as a flight nurse. We welcome her to Reese as the new assistant Chief Nurse.

Third stage rocket motor tested

ARNOLD AFB, Tenn. (AFNS) — Engineers at the Arnold Development Center here have successfully completed the third test firing of a production Peacekeeper missile third-stage rocket motor.

The test series ensures proper ballistic performance and structural integrity of the rocket motors. Tested motors are randomly picked from the assembly line.

The motor was the 17th third-stage engine to be tested during development, flight proof and qualification test programs.

The most recent firing was conducted in the J-5 test cell at a simulated altitude of 85,000 feet. Motor burn time was approximately 60 seconds. More than 100 channels of instrumentation were used to gather data.

Third-stage motors develop 75,000 pounds of thrust. Manufactured by Hercules Inc. in Magna, Utah, Peacekeeper second- and fourth-stage motors also are tested here. The first-stage motor is tested in Utah.

Engineers examine a Peacekeeper third-stage rocket motor prior to test firing it at a simulated altitude of 85,000 feet. (USAF Photo)

New Technology Wave hits Air Training Command

By TSgt. Michael Kelly
Headquarters ATC Public Affairs

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (ATCNS) — The wave of the future has arrived and Air Training Command is riding the crest in a bold program designed to put the latest research and technology into its classrooms.

The Training Technology Applications Program (TTAP) is cutting a smooth wake through the turbulent waters of high tech computer applications by evaluating and proving computer based instruction and training methods at ATC bases across the country.

This evolution in training has the potential to save both time and money, said Maj. Tim Whitacre, technology application manager in ATC's Plans and Requirements Directorate. "One of TTAP's missions is to identify training technology innovations from government, business and education. Once we evaluate these innovations, we assist in transferring the successful efforts to operational status.

"While other services have jumped on the CBI bandwagon thinking it will solve all their training problems, TTAP as a joint Air Staff and ATC effort is designed to take a hard and thorough look at the latest products in this remarkable new field," explained the major.

"Using computers instead of instructors in every center or base would not be cost effective," he said. "It wouldn't make any sense to use computers or an interactive video disc if a chalkboard will do. We already have chalkboards, why go out and buy computers if it's not required?"

From the developer viewpoint, the computer, with its color, motion and interactive touch screens, opens the door for many opportunities to enhance instructional programs. The key is deciding which applications will improve the quality of the course, he noted.

One of the problems normally encountered is deciding which courses to convert to CBI or IVD. Does it make more sense to use interactive videos or just a textbook?

According to Major Whitacre, it depends on the application. "Obviously you don't want to just type the workbook into a computer.

Then you have students sitting in front of the screen for eight hours a day and the computer just serves as a page turner — a very expensive page turner!

"What we want to do is try and incorporate different techniques to maintain the student's motivation so they can continue to learn faster and still improve overall retention of learned material."

To accomplish this, ATC has established technology application officers at each training center to act as a focal point for that base's particular mission.

Keesler AFB, Miss., for example, is testing a prototype IVD to train radar maintenance students.

According to Hal Clark, 3300th Technical Training Wing technology application officer, the disc simulates the removal of major and minor components, switch manipulation, test equipment hookups and other maintenance actions. Trainees are able to perform all of the required maintenance tasks through the use of simulation.

"They have the luxury of accomplishing each task in a demonstration, practice or test mode and repeating each task until they achieve mastery."

At Chanute AFB, Ill., TAO Lyburn Greer announced they have plans for a computer system that will simulate animated weather phenomena.

Greer explained they're looking into the feasibility of providing a wider range of observable weather phenomena by using a simulator or other media devices.

Students attending the weather specialist course have only a seven day period of weather observation, Greer said. This limits student practice to observe weather conditions in the local area to the time of year they attend the course.

"One of the main reasons TTAP was established is to allow each base to apply the technology in a prototype basis before a lot of money is invested," said Major Whitacre. "A kind of 'fly before you buy' deal. By doing this we can save resources by testing these concepts out before full scale development and implementation."

Major Whitacre explained that TTAP's main goal is to ensure training innovations are well planned and used to satisfy a specific training requirement.

"The use of technology for the sake of using technology is not an acceptable approach. TTAP accomplishes a front-end analysis prior to any application of technology to determine specific training requirements. Then we choose the best technology to use to satisfy that specific project goal."

They are working to get all the exterior navigational lights working on the display aircraft to give them a more realistic look during the evening hours. They hope to have them all working in the near future. (USAF photo)

10-million lost VA records found

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Recent discovery of partial military treatment records by the National Archives and Records Administration may let Army and Army Air Corps veterans of World War II and the Korean War file for Veterans Administration disability compensation payments.

To speed these claims, the Veterans Administration is expediting a massive cross-checking of files to determine cases than can be reopened.

Using the new records, the VA hopes to assist many veterans whose claims previously were denied because no record was available to confirm medical disabilities that occurred during military service.

Veterans and survivors who are unsure whether their disability compensation claims are affected should contact the nearest VA regional office. A toll-free number of the nearest VA regional office is listed in the federal government section of telephone directories.

The National Archives and Records Administration on June 15 advised the VA that it is obtaining computer tapes of about 10 million Army medical treatment records that partially fill a gap created when a 1973 fire destroyed millions of military files at a federal record center in St. Louis.

The newly found records cover the years from 1942 to 1945 and from 1950 to 1954.

For some veterans whose claims for disability compensation were denied since the fire, the VA may now be able to establish

Commander's Column

Solving the mysteries of contracting

By Lt. Col. Stephen Maddox
Deputy Commander for Resources

When many of you read the title of this article, you probably thought, "Why should I care about contracts?" Read on, and I'll tell you why.

You probably think of the base contracting office in terms of major construction projects and large service contracts such as grounds maintenance, transportation, and the dining hall. However, the base contracting office also processed hundreds of smaller contractual actions each week to fill purchase requests by people just like you.

Every time the Air Force buys goods or services from a civilian vendor, we have entered into a contract. For example, you call a repairman from downtown to fix a typewriter. We have just entered into a contract by agreeing to pay for that service. The same contractual commitment exists if you go downtown yourself to get materials or supplies in order to save time. Unless you want to pay the bill out of your own pocket, I recommend you call contracting first.

The law says that only a properly trained and authorized contracting officer can commit the Air Force to paying for the goods and services you may need to do your job. We recently received a letter from the vice commander of ATC emphasizing the fact that everyone needs to understand this contracting rule.

If you don't process your purchase request through the base contracting office, you may be subject to disciplinary action and be personally liable for payment. If you have never worked with the contracting office, you may think it's easier to do without an item rather than to do the necessary paperwork. Not true. The contracting office exists to help you get what you need when you need it — not to prevent you from buying things.

If you need something in a hurry, let us know. We have a system to satisfy your urgent needs. If it's after duty hours or on a weekend, contact the Command Post. We have contracting personnel on call to work emergency needs at any time.

When possible, please plan ahead, and try to give us a week or so to process your order. With many purchases we need time to shop around and find the best price. If we need to go outside the local area to get your item, or to find a better price, shipping time and expense must be considered. Federal Express sometimes costs more than the goods themselves. Limiting emergency buys to mission critical items saves both organizational funds as well as our tax dollars. If you'll work with the folks in contracting, they'll help you get the most for your money.

Motor vehicle accidents are a life and death issue

By Lt. Col. William S. Morgan III
Chief, Safety Division

This week marks the beginning of the last third of our "101 Critical Days." Although we place extra emphasis on hazards associated with summer-time activities during this period, it is still important to remember that POV accidents remain the number one cause of injuries throughout the year.

Every week, hundreds of people in this country are killed in motor vehicle accidents. In Lubbock, we average 125-150 accidents each week. Nationwide, almost 10,000 people are injured on our streets and highways every day. Clearly, human tragedy resulting from motor vehicle accidents is a major problem in the United States.

Do you know that in the next ten years of normal driving, it's almost a certainty that YOU will be involved in a motor vehicle accident serious enough to injure or even kill you? You're taking a tremendous risk every time you get into an automobile — unless you're taking action to protect yourself.

Right now, the simplest and most effective protection against possible injury or death in motor vehicle accidents is a fastened safety belt. Most automobiles on the road today are equipped with safety belts, but too few people are performing the simple act of fastening those belts. The result is that far too many people are being injured or killed needlessly.

This problem is serious. It's a real life and death issue, and no one can escape facing the problem because accidents don't always happen to "somebody else."

Following are two examples that happened to Reese people just last week!

The first mishap occurred at 10:30 Monday morning. The individual was traveling south and stopped at an intersection.

After a truck cleared the intersection, the individual entered the intersection and a second truck smashed into his right front fender.

The second mishap occurred at 7:05 Wednesday morning. The driver was in the right hand lane of a light controlled intersection. His left side vision was blocked by a garbage truck.

When the light turned green, he noted one car ran the red light. After that car cleared the intersection, the driver pulled out and was struck by another vehicle that ran the red light.

If it wasn't for the use of seat belts, both individuals would have suffered serious injuries. So take that extra second and buckle up. It's for your own protection.

Hispanic Week news

The Hispanic Heritage Week Committee is looking for a person to represent the Reese AFB Hispanic community during the upcoming Hispanic Heritage Week activities and the Lubbock Fiesta del Llano pageant. The Reese representative will appear in the Lubbock pageant Sept. 16 at the Civic Center on Ave. Q, and will make some appearances on base during Hispanic Heritage Week. This is open to any single military or civilian female, (dependents of personnel working at Reese are also eligible), between the ages of 17-22, and must be partially or fully Hispanic. If you are interested, call Mrs. Carmen Lopez at 3518 for an application and more information. The deadline for applications is Aug. 19.

The 1988 Hispanic Heritage Week committee meets every Thursday at 10 a.m. in the Social Actions meeting room, Bldg. 32. The next meeting is Thursday. A representative from the Civil Engineering Squadron is still needed. The committee is looking for personnel from all Hispanic countries, Spain, South America, and the like to help plan activities for the week. For more information, call the project officer, TSgt. Porfirio Castillo at 3888 or Mrs. Carmen Lopez at 3518.

The Mexican-American Club at Reese is looking for all Hispanic cultures and dress to be represented at their two functions during "Hispanic Heritage Week." They will be having a big dance and the annual free military dinner. They would like you to dress up in your original customary dress and present it to the public at Reese. For more information, contact MSgt. Matt Alvarez at 6065.

Dental Program changes

The following is a policy change pertaining to the enrollment/disenrollment from the Delta Dental Program (DDP) upon a PCS move:

— CONUS to CONUS PCS individuals may disenroll within 90 days of arrival at their new duty station providing they have not used the DDP.

— CONUS to Overseas PCS individuals may disenroll while out processing at the CONUS base, or after in-processing at the overseas base. Outprocessing time is the time one is relieved of duty prior to the final outprocessing appointment. If the disenrollment is at the overseas base, no retroactive disenrollment back to the outprocessing date is allowed.

— Overseas to CONUS PCS individuals can enroll either while outprocessing at the overseas site, or within 90 days of the date of arrival on station at the CONUS site. Delta Dental coverage is not effective until the first day of the month following the month in which the member initiates enrollment.

Legal assistance available

Assistance in preparing powers of attorney and notary service are available in the base legal office between the hours of 10 a.m. and noon and 2 to 4 p.m. You may drop off your document at any time, and pick it up during the above listed hours for expedited services. Emergency service is available anytime between 7:30 a.m. and 4:15 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Use of certificates

While traveling on official business, an employee was denied lodging for the first night even though she had confirmed reservations. As compensation, the hotel issued her a bonus lodging certificate, good for one night of free lodging. The employee then used this certificate for personal use. It was determined that his lodging certificate was government property and the employee was held liable for the value of the certificate. As such, $85.00 was collected from the employee. In this decision, the same general rule used for airline bonuses was used to determine ownership of the certificate. That rule is that a federal employee is obligated to account for any gift, gratuity or benefit received from private sources incident to the performance of official duty.

Officers subsisting in dining halls

In accordance with AFR 147-7, para. 5-3a. dated Mar. 2, 1988, further constrained the criteria for allowing officers to eat in enlisted dining facilities without the surcharge. Both "mission essentiality" and "lack of other food service facilities" are not necessary requirements to authorize subsistence without surcharge. Commanders still have the option to allow officers to eat in base dining halls with a surcharge.

Palace Chase offering early-out

AIR FORCE MILITARY PERSONNEL CENTER, Randolph AFB, Texas (AFNS) — Air Force is looking for people who want to get out early.

Many officers and enlisted people can get early release from active duty by agreeing to serve for an extended term with the Air National Guard or Air Force Reserve.

Enlisted people must have 18 months' time in service at the time of application and possess a five skill level.

Line officers who have completed at least two-thirds of their total active-duty service commitment also are eligible.

Up to six months of service commitment will be waived for all pilots and other officers in specialty codes 17XX, air weapons director; 28XX, development engineering; 493X, comm-computer systems engineer; and 55XX, civil engineer.

Applicants must be assigned to the continental United States, Alaska, Guam, Hawaii or the Virgin Islands and in a position that can be vacated early without hurting current or future mission capability.

The contractual participation obligation incurred by the early release from active duty is strictly enforced.

Anyone who fails to comply with the participation and performance requirements of reserve membership risks demotion and return to extended active duty for the period of the waived active-duty service commitment or term of enlistment.

Palace Chase helps the Air Force selectively reduce strength by specialty code and grade, and provides a cost-effective source of trained people for the reserves.

For additional information on Palace Chase, call or visit the base personnel office.

Software theft not advisable

By Sgt. Mark Wilson
1958th Communications Squadron

Are you thinking about taking a copy of the software you use on your office computer home with you? You might want to read this article first.

Recently, I received a message that told the story of an Air Force individual who did just that. This individual was convicted for "theft of a copy of government software (Peachtext)." The individual lost all stripes, received a bad conduct discharge, 75 days in jail, and a $100 fine.

The software originally cost the government $50 and is used by the Air Force only on Z-100s. These computers are considered obsolete by their manufacturer, Zenith Data Systems. If the Air Force punished an individual this severely for a cheap software package for an obsolete computer, think of how they would treat the misuse/abuse of current standard computers. You might want to ask yourself if the price of that software you were going to take is worth your career and some time in jail.

Moving soon? Get help from TMO

Are you moving soon? If so, prior coordination with the Traffic Management Office (TMO) and good preparation could make this the best move you have ever experienced.

Upon notification of a pending reassignment (PCS orders) you should go by TMO in Bldg. 920. At this time you will need to present them with seven copies of your orders for each shipment and they will schedule you for an appointment for your complete counseling.

There are some things that you should do prior to this counseling. The first should be to discard any unwanted items such as old clothes, broken toys and the like.

Next, a preferred pick up date should be given some thought. These are usually scheduled for at least five working days after your appointment. We encourage you to bring your spouse to your appointment, but due to limited space, we suggest an alternative for children.

With these preparatory steps out of the way, you are now ready for your counseling. The counselor will cover pick-up time and dates, who your carrier will be, what to expect from them, delivery and storage information and claim procedures in the event you should incur any loss or damage. On moving day, you should know just what to expect.

If you have a question call TMO at 3838, 3942, or 3836.

The office of Special Investigations (OSI) personnel at HQ ATC have been working closely with the computer security personnel to devise procedures to educate all computer users about computer abuse. They have also been working to develop ways and means to detect unusual computer transactions to ascertain if these actions are indicators of potential computer misuse or abuse. As you can see, the Air Force is serious about computer misuse/abuse.

Additional nine months adds system

By SSgt. Oscar Dixon
Public Affairs
Strategic Air Command Headquarters

OFFUTT AFB, Neb. (AFNS) — Air Force's 60th and last KC-10 tanker will stay on the assembly line an additional nine months to install a new refueling system that will let it transfer fuel to three aircraft at once.

The three-engined jet will test the probe and drogue refueling system. It will be delivered to the Strategic Air Command in April.

Jack Patton, KC-10A program monitor, said the system will place pods on each wing and is the same one used by the Navy and Marine Corps.

"We currently plan to modify 20 of our KC-10s to use the wing pods.

Work will start in the summer of 1989," the chief said.

The new system will not require additional boom operators on each aircraft.

"To operate the wing pods, fuel controls will be placed on the flight engineer's panel and the pod controls will be the boom operator's responsibility," the chief explained.

Video equipment installed in the boom operator's compartment will let him see the wing pods. "The refueling procedure won't be that much different," Chief Patton said.

The probe and drogue system is one of two major modifications planned for the KC-10, the second being addition of an on-board cargo loader.

The chief said the loader would relieve Military Airlift Command of the need to fly a loader to the KC-10's destination. "And that would mean the C-141 cargo plane used to support the KC-10 would be free to support another mission," he added.

The on-board cargo loader is expected to be in use by fiscal year 1990.

When used as an airlifter, the KC-10 can carry up to 75 people and 170,000 pounds of cargo with a range of 4,400 miles.

The aircraft has an unrefueled ferry range of more than 11,500 miles and is itself air refuelable.

The last two aircraft off the assembly line, including the modified tanker, will be based at Seymour Johnson AFB, N.C. Other KC-10s are based at March AFB, Calif., and Barksdale AFB, La.

documentary evidence to support their claims.

The St. Louis fire destroyed or seriously damaged 18 million service records, making later disability claims difficult and, in some cases, impossible to process.

The newly found records are being provided by the National Research Council, a private organization that analyzed Army hospital records in the 1950s.

The computerized information reflects battle injuries treated in Army hospitals and a sample of hospitalization for other reasons. The records cover people who served in the Army and Army Air Corps, as well as people from other services who were treated in Army

Circus Vargas to open Texas Tech football tickets available

Circus Vargas, the world's largest traveling tented circus, is returning to Lubbock Aug. 9 through Aug. 11 for six performances at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Acclaimed by Los Angeles Times journalists as the #1 live entertainment production on the West Coast, Circus Vargas brings this $15 million extravaganza to Lubbock, Texas.

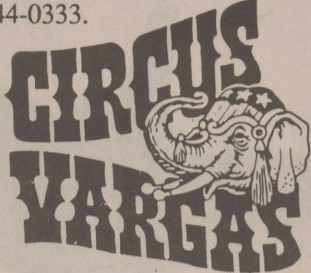

Headlining the production is Alan Gold, who defies death with 24 lions and Bengal Tigers in one cage, the largest display of its kind under the Big Top.

Listed in the Guinness Book of World Records as the world's largest traveling tented circus, Circus Vargas combines 400 of the finest and most highly acclaimed international stars in three rings of breath-taking family entertainment, featuring 14 African and Asian Elephants, 24 performing horses, dancing camels, high-wire acts, and more.

Tickets are on sale at the Lubbock Civic Center Ticket Office and Video Expo at 6941 Indiana Avenue.

For additional information, call 744-0333.

'Oliver' to be presented

Tickets for the musical comedy "Oliver!" went on sale Aug. 1. "Oliver!" is being presented by the First United Methodist Church of Lubbock. Performances will be on Friday, Aug. 26, and Saturday, Aug. 27, at 8 p.m., and Sunday, Aug. 28, at 3 p.m. All performances will be at the Allen Theatre at Texas Tech University.

Tickets are priced at $7.50 and $6.00 for the evening performances and $6 adults and $4 children for general seating for the Sunday Matinee.

Tickets may be purchased at the Church Music Office, First United Methodist Church, 1411 Broadway, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

For more information, call 763-0781.

Season tickets for Texas Tech Red Raider football games are on sale at the Athletic Ticket Office, at 4th & University. The office is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Season ticket prices range from $70 to $90 and many good seats are still available, according to the Ticket Office manager. There are five home games scheduled for the fall. Individual game tickets are also available ranging from $14 to $18.

The ticket office number is 742-3341.

Pet registration

Reese Village pet owners must register their pets with the veterinary clinic located in Bldg. 35. The veterinarian comes from Clovis, N.M. and is at Reese on Mondays from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and Tuesdays 8 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Pets must have advance appointments to be seen.

Office hours for appointments and resale items are Mondays and Tuesdays 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Wednesday - Friday 8 a.m. to noon. Resale items include flea dips, shampoos, flea collars and heartworm preventative medication. To make an appointment or for more information, call 3535.

Also, if you are going PCS and are out processing, remember to stop by the veterinary clinic and pick up your pet's records. So often, pets are cast aside with the excitement of a move, until you arrive at your new destination. Then comes the time to register your pet and you can't remember the last time it was checked or the dates of its last vaccinations. Those records are very important, so don't forget to take them with you.

Live band tonight

"The American Peddlers" band is alive and well. They'll be at the Mathis Recreation Center tonight from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. The music is free!

Grab your favorite guy or gal and round up the gang. Come over and meet the "Peddlers," as they are more commonly called.

Gerald Allen Boyd hails from McAllen, Texas, and plays a really "bad" guitar. On drums is Michael Wade Broussard, from Lafayette, La. Joseph Anthony Torra, who has been called the guru of the Peddlers, plays some awesome sounds on the keyboards. Aaron Gayle Baker plays bass and does the lead vocals.

This classic Rock 'n Roll band has delighted audiences with their sounds for 16 years. They have put together a sensational show for your enjoyment, according to Mrs. Becky Pillifant, MWR publicist.

The American Peddlers

Nutrition offered

The Reese Child Development Center announces the sponsorship of the Child Care Food Program.

All children in attendance are offered the same free meals with no exceptions.

Also, all parents using the Reese Child Development Center USDA meal program need to complete Form 1531, Child Nutrition Programs Application, to determine eligibility for partial or total reduction of meal charges.

Skeet range opens

The Reese Sportsmens' Club is proud to announce the skeet range is open every Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Come out and get in some practice before hunting season opens.

Not only does the club offer you an opportunity to practice, but on the first Saturday of each month, a "prize shoot" is held at 11:30 a.m.

Why not bring a friend and have some fun at the skeet range. For more information, contact A1C Ron Medus at 3367.

Commodore Users Group meets

Do you have a Commodore computer? Thinking about getting one? Do you have questions about the Commodore computer?

Why not drop by the base library Sunday between noon and 4 p.m. The group meets the first and third Sundays of each month and share their thoughts about the equipment and programs. Contact MSgt. Gary Siegel at 6041 for more information.

Bowling league sign ups

As the summer bowling leagues roll to an end, registration for winter leagues is now taking place at the Windmill Bowling Center.

To help you get ready for the winter leagues, take advantage of the special practice for league bowlers, during the last two weeks in August. All open bowling will be half price.

Six Flags tour

Time is growing short to register for the Six Flags Over Texas weekend trip. The registration deadline is Tuesday at 3 p.m. at the Information, Tour and Ticket office. The tour bus is heading out on Aug. 13 at 6:30 a.m. and returning to Reese Aug. 14 at 11 p.m.

This tour promises to be filled with fun and excitement for all ages, with 100 rides, shows and attractions. The tour package includes double occupancy accommodations for one night at a Dallas-Ft. Worth area hotel, admission to the park and transportation. Cost for the weekend tour is $48.00. For more information, call 3787.

Trip to the circus

The Reese Youth Center is warming up the bus and getting ready to head for the circus on Thursday at 4:30 p.m. Sign up deadline is Tuesday. For children ages 6-12, admission is free. Anyone over 12 years of age, the cost is $6.50 for tickets.
