American decadence...does it truly exist?

Well, I don't know whether it's really decadence...but we surely are spoiled...And enjoying every minute of that spoiling, too!

Thomas pointed out just how enthralled he was with electric power tools Christmas afternoon.

As a gift, he received an electric carving knife. (He had a large time with a friend's carving up a brisquet one day). It was cordless, and wall mounted.

So he trotted out to the barn and came back with his array of power tools to put the bracket up on the wall with.

First he drilled two holes in the beet rock...with his power drill that he received for his birthday.

That task accomplished he used his cordless electric screwdriver to actually mount the bracket on the wall.

He then noticed he had left a lot of crumbled up dust from the sheetrock around, so he grabbed the cordless electric hand held vacuum cleaner up and cleared things away!

Three power accessories to put up yet another power accessory!

Yep, that's the American way all right.

We love power tools, power accessories, home goodies in endless array.

No other people in the world consider that someone is deprived without a full size washer and dryer.

We surround ourselves with time-saving, work-conserving gadgets in staggering numbers.

In the kitchen we indulge in blenders, food processors, electric knives, disposals, slow cookers, microwaves, fast cookers, deep fryers, electric can openers, mixers, coffee makers, grinders, choppers and butter melters.

For household cleaning we have vacuums with dozens of attachments, electric carpet shampooers, buffers, hand held vacuums and various other accoutrements.

Outdoors we use electric weed trimmers, edgers, tillers, hedge clippers, all kinds of power operated mowers and everything but an electric shovel (not a bag idea).

For shop work there are power saws from tiny scroll saws to enormous chain saws, routers, planers, bevellers, polishers and sanders, spray paint guns, nail guns, staple guns.

For amateur auto mechanics there are impact wrenches, and electronic gadgets for calculating everything from fuel consumption to tire balance.

There are electric hair dryers, rollers, curling irons, manicure buffers, massagers, even chairs that vibrate!

While everyone doesn't have all of those appliances, everyone has one or two.

I'm not even going to go into the stereo, video, TV and remote controlled scene...it's too big.

We enjoy them, we use them, and it's absolutely GRAND that we can!

Call it decadence, call it spoiled, but basically it's just part of the good life!

JERRI KAY Bridges and Barbara Richards both received serious injuries as the result of a wreck which occurred on FM 909 just outside of Bogata, Wednesday night, December 28. According to reports, Todd Duffer, driver of the 1972 Ford pickup, and the two girls were traveling west when a small animal ran into the highway in the path of the truck. Duffer applied his brakes and a tire blow out caused the truck to flip, throwing Miss Bridges from the vehicle. Driver of the vehicle was uninjured. (Staff Photo by Nanalee Nichols)

Teenagers Injured In Wreck

A one-vehicle accident occurring Wednesday, December 28, on Highway 909 just outside of Bogata, injured two teenagers girls. Todd Duffer, driver of the 1972 Ford pickup truck, escaped without physical injury.

According to reports, the teenagers were traveling west when an animal ran in front of the vehicle. Duffer applied his brakes, causing the truck to "fish tail". A tire blew out then, causing the truck to flip, throwing one of the passengers, Jerri Kay Bridges, from the vehicle. Duffer climbed from the wreckage and with the help of Miss Bridges, pulled the third passenger, Barbara Richards of Bonham, from the vehicle.

Both girls were transported to a Paris hospital and later transferred to Parkland Hospital in Dallas where they remain at this time.

Monkey See, Monkey Do

By "Shooter" Dabney
I was 11 years old when a small circus came to Rochester. They put their tents up where the city water tower now stands. It was a small circus compared to some that came to Rochester back then. But nevertheless, they had all kinds of animals.

That afternoon I could hardly stay still in school class as I wanted to be around where they were unloading the animals. The school bell rang for dismissal, and away I went.

I entered a tent where I saw a man tying up the animals, so I approached him. "Mister, can I get a job feeding the animals?" He kinda grinned at me and said, "Sure, no money, but I'll give you a pass to the circus." I was in Hog Heaven. My first job and was I proud. I grabbed up a bucket and started in watering the animals. Sure the tigers and lions were caged, so I was very careful. What I didn't know, and wasn't told, was that they had one mean monkey. I walked by that rascal with a load of hay for the elephant, when "Wham", that cotton pickin monkey wrapped his arms around my leg and took a mouthful of flesh above my knee. I dropped the hay like it was a hot poker and ran from that tent. My leg had a three inch gas torn out of it. I ran over to Dr. Gray's office and showed him my leg. Back in those days they had very limited medicines, especially Monkey Bite medicine. Dr. Gray poured some Monkey Blood in the wound, wrapped it, then I left. But not before I got his promise not to tell my parents. I didn't want to lose my job for reasons I will explain later.

After leaving Dr. Gray's office I went to Walton Drug. I asked Mr. Walton if I could buy three boxes of EX LAX on credit. It was OK by him so I took off for home. The circus was to leave the next morning, so to bed I went. I awoke early the next morning and away I went. I walked into the tent where that monkey was tied. I had the EX LAX in a brown paper bag. I scooted the sack over close to the monkey. That was one chocolate eating Monkey. About three bites and it was all gone.

The man came by that hired me. "Hi," he said, "my old monkey has a bad cold. He coughed all night." I nodded.

The circus was all loaded and was leaving, I saw that monkey hanging in his cage with his face all rimaced, his eyes half closed, his toes turned up. Tongue hanging out. His legs all crossed. I said to myself, "Now cough y son of a gun, Let's see what happens."

Community Center Is Vandalized Again

By Mollie Williams

The Bogata Community Center was vandalized sometime between late Friday night, December 30 and Monday morning, January 2. It is believed that the vandalism probably took place Sunday night, December 31, due to a report from neighbors of suspicious characters near the center.

Regan Bell arrived at the center Monday morning, January 1, and discovered that entrance into the building had been made by breaking a window in the back. Inside, Mr. Bell found that all the locks on the cabinets and doors had been broken and several items had been scattered. Included in those items were paper items, salt and pepper, utensils, safety vests, the Lion gavel and the Lion gong.

Red River County Deputy Sheriff

C.W. Mull investigated the incident. Several fingerprints and footprints were taken.

The Bogata Lions and Lioness Clubs and other area residents have put a lot of hard work and money into the Community Center in the past five years. J.C. Watson, who is Justice of the Peace and also a Lion member, said he felt that tolerance to this vandalism has reached its limit and that if those guilty of this incident did not come forth and make restitution, preparations would be made to prosecute the guilty parties.

"It's time to get tough," said Judge Watson. "The money it will take to restore what's been done could have gone to help some needy person. We must stop this kind of vandalism in our community," he added.

No Revolution In This Year's Resolutions!

By Nanalee Nichols

Well, 1989 is here, starting yet another year. And, as usual, folks have made New Year's Resolutions, some all-encompassing, some usual, some rather different.

What are the most common resolutions? To curtail spending money and to lose weight...not necessarily in that order!

For almost everyone, the desire to lose those extra pounds, be it 10 pounds or 50, rates right up at the top of the list.

Paying off credit cards, getting out of debt, buying more practically is another biggie.

New Year's Resolutions almost invariably involve self-improvement. After all, we have very little need to resolve to be LESS self-disciplined. Most people don't have to make an effort to work less, get less accomplished, or eat more!

Exercising, eating better, getting certain tasks done, all are popular resolves on the "I'm going to do better this year" list.

So is keeping up with bookwork on time instead of putting it off, cleaning closets or pantries, not being late for appointments, and improving overall time-scheduling.

Unfortunately, most of us find our resolve and fortitude slipping pretty fast, and the resolutions fall by the wayside as the new year pounds along at its usual frantic pace!

But think about a few "do-able" ideas.

How about "I will resolve, just for today, to smile and make an effort to be happier and more contented." Right after that one is "I'll try to smile and make others a little happier today."

Not letting ill humour splash over on someone else is a tremendous improvement in affairs!

Just today I won't _____ (fill in the gap with any and all) over eat-over drink-smoke-spend. Instead of aiming for the whole year, try one day...or one week. Every day it's done right is one day out of the new year in which a resolution has been actively successful!

Getting one chore done at a time is an excellent method of self-discipline. Most of us "bite off more than we can chew" by starting numerous projects at once. Just take it one day at a time, and if on one of those days you don't feel as if anything has been accomplished, over and above the normal, usual routine...so what! At least the routine was done!

We are human, with our dreams and desires, wants and needs. And we backslide all too easily.

This year another good resolution might be to recognize that fact. None of us will ever be perfect. All we can do is keep on trying...one day at a time.

SWORN IN-Red River County Officials were sworn in on the first day of the new year at the courthouse. From left to right are: Sheriff Bob Storey; Precinct 2 Constable Ted Byndas; Constable Pct. 4 Bob Edrington; County Attorney Clayton Hall; Tax Collector Juanita Benningfield; Constable Pct. 1 Mark Whitehouse; Commissioner Precinct 3 Ben Storey and

You can have a ladder accident and never leave the ground

Ladder safety is more than avoiding falls. Ladders conduct electricity, so they can also cause accidents around the power lines — before you ever leave the ground.

To prevent such accidents, make sure you don't snag a power line when you're carrying a ladder around the yard. Before you climb the ladder, place it away from power lines.

Aluminum and other metal ladders are especially good conductors of electricity, but you can be injured by power lines with a wooden one too.

For more information on power line safety, call or visit your local TNP office.

Roundball Roundup

By Gary House

The Rivercrest Holiday Tournament provided a showcase of individual and team talent for players and fans alike during the Christmas break.

Athletic Director and Rivercrest Coach Wake Wood is responsible for securing the tournament entries, and this year's entries were superior.

The girls' division brought some really strong teams, such as Wynnboro, a Class 3A competitor, Alba-Golden, Quinlan and the overall winner, Celina. This squad has a local connection, in that the coach is the daughter-in-law of Frank and Mary Sloan of Talco. In addition, the Sloan's granddaughter, Robin, led her team to the championship with her standing play, and was named as the Most Valuable Player in the tournament. Robin's grandmother, Mrs. Plott, lives near Depot.

The Rebelettes lost both of their outings in the tourney; the first defeat came from Wynnboro, who eventually wound up in second place. The score was 57-32. The Lady Rebels were cold from the field, and could not stop the inside shooting of the Lady Raider Tracie Butler, another all tourney selection, who scored 28 points. The Rebels fared much better in the consolation, playing a quick Quinlan unit to the wire, before suffering a 58-55 loss. The play of Quinlan's Lori Casey, (26 points), proved the difference in this one.

Sie Norman and Amy Gladden had 14 points each for the Rebelettes, while big Angie Kay hit 12 points from her low post position.

The boys' division of the tournament was an olympic style format, with all teams playing each other. The Rebels finished second in the foray losing the first game to Wynnboro, who defeated all other teams. Wynnboro defeated the Rebels by a score of 73-59, behind the hot hand of MVP Mark Safford with 24 points, and Deaton with 22 points. Bradley Woods hit 20 for Rivercrest and Jimmy Lewis had 19; both of these were named to the All Tournament team.

The Rebels gave one of their very tall and talented Redwater squad. The Rebels' intensity from start to finish enabled them to garner a 70-59 win. Jimmy Lewis had his best game of the season, both offensively and defensively, scoring 23 points, while Woods early three-point efforts netted him 17.

But this victory was a team effort, characterized by hustle, which resulted in numerous turnovers by Redwater. In the tourney finale, Rivercrest got on top early and then extended the lead to beat Avinger 79-64. Jimmy Lewis again led the way with 27 points.

With the new year, attention will focus on District 17AA play.

The Rebelettes have already begun loop play, and their conference record stands at 1-1, with the loss coming at Chisum, and victory over Como-

Pickton. Wake Wood, who has taken over the reins of the Rebelettes, made the following observations concerning the District: "The Chisum athletic talent is ahead of the other teams, so I believe they are the team to beat. But Honey Grove girls have only lost one game all year. The other coaches rank Cooper or Wolfe City as third, with Leonard, Rivercrest and Como all evenly matched." Asked about the Rebelette possibilities, Wood replied, "I think if our girls concentrate, and play hard, they are capable of beating anyone on a given night."

The Rebels begin loop action Friday night at home against Leonard. "After Cooper and Chisum, there is not much difference between the other four teams," commented Wood. "I suppose that Cooper would have the inside track as favorites, because they won the Leonard tournament recently. Honey Grove had only lost once going into that fracas, but were beaten in both their games."

As for the Rebels, Coach Wood replied, "Rivercrest could be the surprise team of District 17AA. We are not picked in the top three, but because the boys will work hard, I believe they will be there at season's end."

The next six weeks holds much exciting basketball in store. The Rebels and Rebelettes, as well as the Junior Varsity and Freshmen welcome your support. Let's get behind them all the way.
