Jack Brown To Speak At FBC February 4th

Jack was gloriously saved 9 years ago after 30 years of drug addiction and 17 years in prison at Alcatraz, McAlister, San Quentin and Lexington. He is a most exciting figure and has a fantastic story to tell. Both young and old who hear him sit spellbound as he relates his prison experiences with such personalities as Al Capone (he was Al's barber), Machine Gun Kelly, C. Chessman, the Bird Man of Alcatraz, Bonnie and Clyde, and others.

Jack's "Magnificent Obsession" is to share through his personal testimony the story of the marvelous change in his heart and life, through the saving grace of God. "Completely Rehabilitated" describes this man, and since his experience with God, he has not stopped living it or talking about it.

He is the author of one of the "best sellers" in America entitled "Monkey Off My Back." It has now been printed in England, the Scandinavian countries, and also in Germany. Zondervan Publishing Company says, "We are happy to have his book on our list. We predict great sales abroad."

Don't miss this man. You will appreciate his sense of humor as well as his method of presentation. You will never forget him nor his timely intriguing story. He will speak at the First Baptist Church, Monday, February 4, at 7:30 p. m. Everyone welcome.

Johnsons Enjoy Super Bowl Trip

Albert and Francine Johnson were treated royally when they took their trip to Houston to the Superbowl game in the Astrodome. They recently won the trip at a drug and gift show they attended for Johnson Pharmacy.

Friday night, on arrival in Houston, they checked in to the Astroworld Holiday Hotel, then had dinner and were toured through Market Square. From there they went to Jones Hall to see Vicki Carr and Jonnie Little.

Saturday, they were taken on a tour of The Galleria, then went to a party and dinner in their honor, where they were presented their tickets to the Superbowl game. They went on to La Bastille to hear The Dukes of Dixieland.

Sunday, they attended church at River Oaks Baptist Church, where Francine used to work as secretary when she lived in Houston. They visited with old friends and renewed old acquaintances, then enjoyed the Super Bowl game.

When they left Houston, they went to Temple to visit with their parents, Mrs. J. F. Baker and Mrs. Q. W. Jones, and picked up the boys and returned home.

The 38th annual banquet-meeting of the Haskell Chamber of Commerce will be held at the Elementary School cafeteria Friday night, Feb. 8th, at 7:30 p. m., according to information released by Royce L. Williams, president.

A new slate of officers to head the civic organization will also be installed at the banquet plus six newly elected directors who will serve a term of three years on the board. Elected as new directors in a recent ballot mailed to the Chamber membership were: Kenneth Parker, Parker Supermarket; Jerry Hadaway, Haskell Steak House; H. V. The four newly elected officers and manager Rex Felker will compose the Executive Board of the chamber of commerce.

STUDY CLUB PLANS LANDSCAPE PROJECT

The Progressive Study Club is planning landscaping for the big planter box, built as a part of the remodeling at Haskell Memorial Hospital. This will be one of the club's projects this year.

They plan to use some big stones or big pieces of lava rock in the landscaping, and would appreciate help on this. If anyone in town has some stones or lava rock of this type, that they would be willing to donate, the club asks that they call Alfred Turnbow at the hospital, and tell him about them.

When the landscape designer comes in March, he can drive out and see the stones. If they will fit into the landscaping, he will move them to the hospital.

Co. Livestock Show Sale

Haskell County Junior Livestock Show's newly expanded sale barn was the scene for the sale Saturday that grossed $19,335.81, and saw a record number of new buyers and contributors.

James Powell, Haskell's much appreciated auctioneer from Haskell Livestock Auction again donated his time and talents to the county show, and auctioned off the limit of animals for excellent prices. James, long a supporter of this show, always before has donated the barn—and the time consumed by the county sale—right in the middle of his own Saturday auction. Show officials are proud to finally have a sale barn big enough that the sale can be conducted in it. They sincerely appreciate the fact that James still takes the time from his own sale to come to the show barn, and auction for the county sale.

A new innovation this year was the colorful blue and red bandanas given to each buyer as his purchase was completed. All buyers received one of the bandanas from cute 4-H girls who worked, along with hot punch served by them.

The girls were Carol Dudensing and Susan Lewis of Rule, and Linda Yates of Weiner. Jim Ballard, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Ballard and a member of the Rochester FFA Chapter, donated the proceeds from the sale of his lamb, to West Texas Rehabilitation Center in Abilene. Purchaser of the lamb was Haskell Co-op Society No. 1 of Haskell. Price of the lamb was $3.00 per pound, and the animal weighed 104 pounds.

Cecil Lewis of Rule, R. A. Shaver Jr. of Rochester, and Elmer Adams of Weiner, also added their names to the list of contributors, toward next year's show, after the sale was completed. Ted Elliott, general livestock supt., R. C. Couch Jr., James Mickler, Mrs. Adel Thomas, and David Conner also helped with the sale, along with C. A. Thomas Jr., sale chairman; Van Wilson of Paint Creek, secretary-treasurer of the show; and sheep supt., Mike Wilcox of Rule; swine supt., Truman Thierwanger of Haskell; poultry and rabbit supt., Ken Lane of Haskell, and cattle supt., Sonny Deason of Rule.

A complete list of buyers in the 1974 show follows, and all officials, workers and participants in the show extend their sincere appreciation.

H-M Increases Employees; Steps Up Production

Amelia Perry, plant manager of Herman Marcus, Inc., of Haskell, gave a very informative program to members and guests of Haskell Lions Club Tuesday at their noon luncheon meeting held at Haskell Steak House. President Gene Long presided over the short business meeting, when members heard Dr. Frank Cadenhead give a report on the Ray Benvides family and their problem, explained in another story of today's Free Press.

Mrs. Perry was introduced by Doyle High, who was in charge of the program. She reported that the Haskell H-M plant had a quota of 750 garments per week, and showed some of the top line that they produce here. In the near future, the inventory of the plant will be near $250,000.00, and all plant employees and personnel are very proud of the building. Mrs. Perry expressed her thanks, and that of Herman Marcus, to the people of Haskell for supporting the industry in the wonderful way they have. She also told the group that the plant now employs 25 single-needle operators and a staff of six office personnel. They are adding two or three employees per week, and have some 25-30 on the waiting list at this time. Some 80 people have been trained through the training schools recently taught here. The Haskell plant is now manufacturing the top line of Herman Marcus dresses.

FUND

Funds are coming in well on this drive, and HFF officials feel that their drive goal will be reached in a short time. The Herman Marcus plant is the first industrial site for Haskell, and it is a beautiful addition to our town as well as an excellent industry.

Donations to date on the drive include those from Wilson Gibson of Rule, R. W. Herren, Ryce Williams, Western Auto, Dr. T. W. Williams, Cahill-Duncan Insurance, Adkins & Chapman, Haskell National Bank, Furrh-Lane Insurance, R. C. Couch Jr., The Personality Shoppe, and Bynum's.

OUT OF IDEAS? Why not a gift certificate from the Haskell Free Press? A very thoughtful gift because the person who receives one of our gift certificates can come by anytime and leisurely pick out the gift of their choice—Haskell Free Press.

Community Banks Are The Answer

By ADE TURNER
President
Haskell National Bank

It seems like a bad dream—Americans are suddenly beset by reduced speed limits, soaring gasoline prices, cold room temperatures and a shortage of fuels for farm and business. Almost overnight, we have found ourselves in a fuel crisis that is plunging us headlong into unemployment and shortages in many areas of the economy. All this has happened since last summer in the most bountiful nation in the history of the world.

Many attempts are being made to fix blame for the shortages. The big oil companies, the politicians, the Arabs have all come under fire. This is a complex question that will perhaps take years to sort out. But there is a lesson which we can learn right now from the situation.

Hardships stemming from the fuel shortage demonstrate in a very personal way the wisdom of maintaining an economic system that does not give too much power to a small group of companies or individuals. Many of our key industries today are controlled by a handful of giant corporations—oil, automotive, food processing and food distribution, to name a few. It is significant to note however, that we still have one key industry that is not controlled by the few—banking. Americans are served by more than 14,000 separate banking organizations, which means that banking services are offered on a highly competitive basis, and the consumer has many choices when he goes shopping for financial services. This "diffused" banking system is unique to America.

If banking becomes as concentrated as the oil industry, a handful of giant financial systems would control the credit spigot. This is a potentially more dangerous kind of power than that possessed by Big Oil because finance is the lifeblood of the economy, and there are no substitutes for money and credit.

As one witness told a Senate subcommittee on monopoly the other day, the multinational oil firms "are in a position to manipulate supplies, to administer prices and to control the movement of oil all the way from the well to the gasoline pump."

A graphic illustration of the anticompetitive effects of such power is the closing of thousands of independent oil dealers since the fuel pinch began last summer. Independent dealers, it should be remembered, have been vigorously competitive where it counts the most: in price.

It is disturbing to note that those who want to drastically reduce the number of banks in this country have a kind of "gas station" mentality about banking. They would like to eliminate the independent, community banks and provide banking services through a statewide or multistate network of offices controlled from a corporate headquarters in a major city.

This would be a little like having four gas stations on the same corner. You have witnessed that scene more than once. Drive to any of the pumps—the names of the big oil companies are different, but the price is the same. It is not in the interest of the consumer to be limited to a few large oil companies, or banks.

But concentration will continue to occur in banking until our elected officials show the courage and wisdom to take a stand against bank expansion through branching or its alternative, the multibank holding company. If they don't act now to stop the growth of branching and multibank holding companies, we may all wake up some morning to find the credit spigot shut off. It happened almost overnight in the oil industry. It could happen just as swiftly in banking if control is turned over to a few big systems.

Melton Gives Pgm On Boys State

Members and guests of the Haskell Rotary Club met at City Cafe Jan. 17th for their regular weekly meeting. President Charles Thornhill presided at the luncheon.

Program chairman H. O. Abbott presented Clint Melton, senior student of Haskell High School, who gave an interesting and enlightening talk on his experiences while participating in the American Legion "Boys' State." Clint was selected by his faculty members and was sponsored by the Rotary Club.

In his talk he explained that the Boys' State program was first originated in 1940 and that 800 students were enrolled at the recent meet. While in Austin they were housed at Buford Jester Hall at Texas University where the participants were divided into two political groups known as the Nationalist and Federalist parties.

The annual Boys' State is a citizenship course whose motto is: "Learn by Doing." Clint was most enthusiastic about the event and expressed his sincere thanks to Rotary Club members for having been sponsored by the local club. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Melton of Haskell.

The invocation was given by Rev. Dudley Bragg and the song session led by Bob Herren with Rene Abbott providing accompaniment.

Guests were introduced by Rotarian Bob Philpot. They were Ray Catterly of Austin, guest of C. A. Thomas Jr., and Albert Davis of Stamford, guest of Bob Philpot. Student guests were Tim McCoy and Randy Ivey of Haskell High School.

...sively to increase yields. "But at the same time farmers increase production, they should do well to take those necessary steps to protect the soil and water on which their livelihood depends. "Farmers and ranchers are no 'Johnny-come-latelys' to the environmental field. As the No. 1 guardians of the nation's natural resources, most of them have long recognized a responsibility to themselves and to future generations to use the soil wisely. They have made almost unbelievable progress during the last 35 years in conservation farming and ranching, and with a little foresight, they can meet the increased demand for food and fiber in 1974 without slipping backwards. "But there are millions of other acres that should not be used for crops at all. Soils that cannot adequately be protected from soil erosion by wind and water should be nailed down with grass or trees and kept that way. "It is self-defeating, for the farmer and for the whole nation, to ignore all that we have learned at such high cost about preventing soil from blowing and washing away. The nation loses a basic resource needed to sustain life for future generations. The farmer not only loses that resource on which his livelihood depends, but he may also reduce his current income." Put the right acres into crop production. Soil Survey information available at the Haskell SCS Field Office can help you select the right areas. Follow a conservation plan for each field of your farm. If you do not have such a plan, the SCS staff at Haskell will be glad to assist you develop such a needed plan for your farm. Work with your local SCS Technician, cooperating through the California Creek and Wichita-Brazos Soil and Water Conservation Districts, to install proper erosion control measures. Use minimum tillage or no-till where possible. Protect rangeland from overuse, and use pastureland management systems tailored to your individual-farm resources. If irrigation water is available, and necessary to use, make sure that it is wisely applied and not wasted. Leave land unsuitable for intensive use in grass. SCS Administrator Kenneth Grant has said that conservation can increase net income—increase yields and crop quality—reduce production costs. This is nothing new to long-time conservation farmers, but it may be to some of the other people we serve. Your SCS Technicians and SWCD District Directors are here to help you. Let us know your needs and problems.

"Although box numbers are an integral part of most rural and star route addresses, it has recently become the practice of many postal customers to omit this element," Postmaster Rosser said. "Unless a rural or star route address contains both, the box and the route number, it is an incomplete address and is subject to return to the sender," Postmaster Rosser said. Gardens Of The Month Are Selected For January By HGC

Haskell Garden Club has chosen the Outstanding Gardens of the Month for January, with an eye to special effects and landscaping with trees, since January is Arbor Month. Many beautiful old trees abound in Haskell, and their history is interesting. Garden of the Month goes to the Dr. Wm. J. Kemp home at 910 North Ave. H. Both blue spruce and mesquite trees are in their garden, and front entry of the home features dwarf Japonica, and ivy for ground cover. Back yard features a playground for children and pets and a comfortable patio for outdoor living, with mimosa and spruce trees.

*Dr. J. G. Vaughter's home at 606 N. Second features landscaping of coral yucca, nandinas and photinia. Both front and side yards are beautifully landscaped.

*Virgil Smith home at 304 N. Ave. G. Some of the large trees are on the west for shade, and they include evergreens, and a bird sanctuary.

*Hoie Harrell home at 306 N. Ave. G. Nandinas are at the entry and the yard holds five big Hackberry trees, and two large pecan trees. The patio and barbeque pit are landscaped with ligustrum for privacy.

*Col. James A. Isbell home at 807 N. Ave. F, has beautiful espaliered pyracantha, and ligustrum, nandina and photinia. Pecans trees furnish shade, and focal point in the back is a fountain, and bird sanctuary.

*Charlie Conner home at 507 N. Ave. H. may hold the biggest and oldest oak tree in town. It is beautiful, and they also use nandina and photinia in their landscaping.

*Terry Diggs home at 209 N. Ave. H, features a grove of chinaberry trees that was recently mentioned in the Haskell County History feature of the Free Press. These chinaberry trees were planted then, and have grown into a big grove, allowed to spread.
