No Power Tools?

Ninety-nine percent of the men I know, have a fixation with power tools. They aren't about to tighten a screw or hang a picture without getting out the electric or cordless drills, screwdrivers, extension cords, etc. As a matter of fact, I know a number of women who have the same idea...they like powersaws and routers quite as much as guys do. And, along the same lines, what's the difference between a guy with a shop full of electric gizmos and a gal with a kitchen full of gizmos? None that I can see!

I'm not a "gizmo" person. My best friend and her family "house sat" for us one time. When I came home she informed me that there is absolutely, positively no way I can cook a meal. I don't have a peeler, a parer, enough knives, bowls, mixers, electric knives, electric choppers, blenders, and so on. I've been feeding Thomas and myself for 27 years and obviously we haven't gone hungry yet!

But, she did give me a blender for Christmas that year, and Thomas some knives. I use it enough to like it...but my husband uses it a lot. He also uses the electric knife and the electric chopper a lot more than I do...and he doesn't cook that often.

Of course I make my smug "I don't do gadgets" claim without taking into consideration where I get my gadget "fix"...computers. Oh yeah, I don't like power tools, do I? What's the difference between having to do everything by computer and having to have power screwdrivers? None, if I'm honest about things.

But, back to my original story, if there ever was one.

On a recent vacation I realized just how devoted my spouse had become to the concept of doing everything with power assistance.

We were looking at absolutely gorgeous furniture fitted and carved with fanciful decorations back about 400 years ago.

Along with that we were seeing beautiful homes and castles constructed hundreds of years ago. All had incredible precision and workmanship.

Thomas, after inspecting a lot of these structures and pieces of furniture turned, to me and shook his head.

"I just don't see how they created these things so perfectly back then...I mean they didn't even have power tools!"

Note to Nichols Worth Readers...

No, Thomas and I are not interested in hearing any more BEAR STORIES. I'm aware that there are many of you who have seen bears in the wild. With our luck the only one we'll ever see will eat us!

Just kidding, and thanks to those of you who have kindly related their bear stories!

GET READY TO RODEO! Bogata is gearing up for another super rodeo this weekend. As always, the first event of every rodeo performance is the Grand Entry and these two cowboys led that entrance into the Bogata Rodeo Arena for many years. Pictured are Sammy Andrews of Adelleou and Jacky Gray of Bogata, two rodeo pickup men who worked for the Wing Rodeo Company for many, many years. We're really proud of these guys!

FLOYD McGUIRE'S "YELLOW ROSE OF TEXAS" will be the featured entertainment act at this week's Bogata Rodeo. McGuire has featured his funny car at rodeos across the south and is highly regarded at his profession. McGuire makes his home in nearby Clarksville, TX.

Championship rodeo action is coming to Bogata this weekend!!

Once again it is time for the annual Bogata Rodeo. This event has historically been the kick-off for the rodeos held in this area during the hot summer months.

Each performance will be filled with contestants both local and professional that will provide top quality of competition. There will be timed events pitting contestants against themselves, their competitors and the siopwatch.

The rodeo is being sponsored by the Bogata Rodeo Association.

The old west will come to all of us as we watch the riding and roping that was once done as a part of the cowboys' daily work. Each night the clowns and bullfighters will be there to entertain with jokes and daring as they work to save the bull riders from the hooves and horns of the enraged bulls.

Get your hat and come to the Bogata Rodeo. Advanced tickets are on sale for $4.50 and $2.50 or at the gate for $5.00 and $3.00.

Performances begin at 8:30 p.m. nightly at the Bogata Rodeo Arena.

What is purple, a fruit, and grows to the shape of a very large ostrich egg? Why, an eggplant of course! In East Texas, you can find eggplants in the home gardens of most folks. Wait... fruit you say! Yes, the eggplant is considered a fruit, not a vegetable. Most folks around here will disagree with me though, because eggplants are used as a vegetable when prepared around this area.

There are several varieties, but the purple is most popular in the United States, being around since the 1860's. It is low in calories and has very low levels of vitamins. They are also white, brown, yellow and striped, but these are chiefly used as ornamentals. The first eggplant was first believed to be grown in northern India and later spread to China, Europe and South America. It is now grown in many tropical lands and grows on a bush that stands from 2 to 6 feet tall. It fruit hangs from grayish-green hairy leaves and sometimes grows nearly as big as a football. It grows only in warm weather, taking up to 115-120 days to mature.

The plant belongs to the nightshade family, the scientific name is Solanaceae. Other nightshade family members include herbs, shrubs and tropical trees. Among the more than 2,000 members of this family are such useful plants as potato, tomato, ground cherry, capsicum (red pepper) and the infamous eggplant. The family also includes some poisonous plants like belladonna (deadly nightshade), jimson weed (stramonium) and bitter-sweet (woody nightshade).

So much for our science lesson for the week. Back to the eggplant. Our family enjoys the Fried Eggplant. One time I got really "gourmet-ish" and decided to try the Eggplant Casserole. . . . their reaction cannot be printed, needless to say, we stay with their fried version!

I have tried freezing them, of course they are not as good as fresh, but in the middle of the winter, they still taste good. I soak them in salt-water while slicing and coat them in cornmeal, piece in zip-lock bag and freeze. I have include recipes for Baked Eggplant, Eggplant Casserole, Eggplant Fritters, Oven-Fried Eggplant and just plain Fried Eggplant. We hope you enjoy the recipes and we will see you in the kitchen!

Note-The missing ingredient from the Hominy Casserole in the June 13th issue of Enree Phifer's Hominy Casserole was 5 tablespoons of margarine divided.

June 27, 1996
Eggplant Recipes

Baked Eggplant

1 eggplant
1/2 cup milk
3 slices white bread
1 beaten egg
1/2 cup celery-chopped
1/2 cup bell pepper-chopped
1/2 cup onion-chopped
2 teaspoon butter
salt and pepper to taste
1/2 cup grated yellow cheese
pimiento

Peel eggplant, slice and boil in a small amount of salted water until tender; drain. Soak bread in milk and beaten egg. Saute celery, pepper and onion in butter. Drain and add to eggplant. Mix in bread and milk mixture. Add salt, pepper, cheese and pimiento. Mix well. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. More cheese may be added on top and returned to oven to melt.

Eggplant Casserole

1 whole eggplant-peeled and cooked
1/2 cup onion-chopped
3/4 cup toasted bread crumbs
1/2 cup butter
2 eggs-beaten
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
Combine all ingredients. Pour in casserole dish. Bake slowly for 1 hour.

Eggplant Fritters

1 medium eggplant
6 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
1 egg
4-6 tablespoons vanilla flavoring
2 beaten eggs
2-1/2 cups flour

Fried Eggplant

1 eggplant
salt and pepper to taste
cornmeal to coat

55 goes up on more highways

About 21,000 more miles of Texas farm-to-market roads will soon be getting a speed limit of 70 mph, but motorists should wait for the signs to change before driving faster.

The Texas Transportation Commission took action Tuesday on the final stage of a four-phase review of the state's 77,000 mile highway system.

Although the total number of farm-to-market road mileage being raised to 70 mph amounts to just over half of the state's total, the total mileage in on northeast Texas highways will be much less.

"The type of terrain we live in this area requires lower speed limits on most of our rural farm-to-market roads because of the many curves in the roads," said Carlos Ibarra, Traffic Engineer for Texas Department of Transportation in Atlanta. "Instead of putting up reduced speed signs at every curve, we justified keeping speed limits reduced to 55, 60 or 65 mph. Only about one-fifth (311 miles) of the farm-to-market roads in our district qualified for raising the speed limit to 70 mph.

Support group to hold round table discussion

The Bereaved Parents Support Group will have a round table discussion for their July 8 meeting. Everyone is encouraged to participate.

Irene Bryant will be the facilitator for this meeting, which will be held at 7 p.m. in the TU Electric Building.

The next three meetings will be at the old TU Electric Building on July 8, August 12 and September 9.

Ring of Kerry is quite priceless

Column Number 5,
The Ring of Kerry has so much spectacular beauty

Our last day in the Kerry region seemed to come so very soon. We loaded up into the faithful van once more for the ride around the ring of Kerry. This particular drive is world famous, and quite justly so. Mountains soar up into the heavens, valleys peek out, studded with cotton puffs of lambs and sheep, punctuated by stone walls and picture-perfect cottages. Then, turn a bend in the road and have your breath taken away by the sight of the mighty Atlantic ocean sweeping in to rocky beaches, sea birds screeching high pitched noises into the wind, white caps dying on the shore. Oh, the drive is lovely. Even though Thomas and I had seen it once before it was as new and special as if we hadn't.

We stopped for morning hot tea at a small village. We were waited on by a little old woman who could have come from any farmstead in rural territory, she would have fit in well here, with her time-worn face and friendly smile. She scurried around with our tea and scones as quickly as a mouse, and soon had us laughing at her chatter.

The views from the village bridge were gorgeous, rocky river bed with swans nesting nearby.

We oooed and ahhed our way for miles. The Skellig islands, which are the western-most point in Europe, were lonely looking. We spotted a boat load of sheep going out to one of the islands, supposedly for the summer grazing.

The roads were pleasantly narrow (for us, since we weren't driving) and we had to stop or slow for ewes and lambs crossing the road frequently.

We finally worked our way back to Killarney, coming in by the three lakes that are so beautiful. We stopped at "Ladies View" which has a path down to it. There is a lodge built down on lakeside which was built for Queen Victoria to stay in, on a visit to the area. Naturally, great care was taken to provide the most beautiful scenery for her.

Back in Killarney we killed a little time shopping and then checked into our B&B for that night. Called the Mystical Rose, it is run by a young woman with seemingly boundless energy. Her mother and dad began the business, and they are still there.

We had a long talk with the old gentleman out in his garden. For myself, it was a first to see celery growing, along with parsley, potatoes, onions, beets and much more. Amazingly, the man has 600 cabbages growing! They don't have to be harvested at a certain time. Since there is never a killing frost there, they can be picked as needed and left in the ground all winter.

The hedges on the place were filled with birds, including the tiny robin. This robin red breast is much smaller and brighter than what we call a robin here in the "states". Since the cheery little fellow doesn't exist in this country, the larger, but similarly marked thrush that does exist here was named after it's European counterpart.

We met Rocky Four a Shelly that replaced the larger, Lassie Type collie the elderly couple had lost. Rocky was till "much of a pup" and he fell totally in love with my cousin Medora. When she tried to walk off the premises, he took hold of her pants leg and tried to pull her back, when that didn't work he simply went with her.

We ate our supper once more at a warm, friendly pub called The Laurel. Chicken in Crepes with cream sauce, for Thomas, Forest mushrooms (3 kinds) over noodles for Medora and a burger for me. Their hamburgers are very different from ours, with a crisp grilled outside and thick meat patty. This one was topped with a garlic and leek sauce.

We slept well and awoke sad...our last day in Ireland, so very soon.

It's only eighty miles from Killarney to Shannon, so we wandered slowly towards there. We stopped at what is said to be the most picturesque town in Ireland, Adare. It's easy to see why it comes by this name, as it features a street of brightly colored flower and vine-strewn thatched cottages.

We stepped into a church there, and learned it was founded in 1230!

There was a dangling rope going up to the bell, and it took a great deal of restraint on the part of my cousin and myself not to yank on that rope! Thomas edged us further and further away from it, knowing us well enough to sense our temptation.

We went to Bunnratty Castle and Folk Park in Limerick. There we climbed the steps, twisting and incredibly narrow, to the great hall. It was there, too, that we had our best laugh of the trip. Thomas, happily armed with his trusty video camera, was filming away. There was a small door into the dungeon, and a small door right next to it that led to the ladies room. My husband, looking through his camera viewfinder, strolled into the wrong one. Only when he met a woman coming away from the sinks did he come running out, face bright red. We were laughing so hard we nearly hurt ourselves, as did several other people in the room.. The thing is, he won't believe that we didn't see the tiny sign that read "Ladies" until he had already headed in. We can't convince him we didn't knowingly let him wander on in there. I ask you, readers, would WE do that? Don't answer.

After touring the castle we walked happily about the Bunnratty folk park. Here are building from the poorest, landless peasant's abode to the upper middle class. We were delighted to see a woman in period costume come to the door and throw out stale bread to the chickens, and then she invited us in to taste the fresh, hot soda bread she had just removed from the oven.

The smells of horses and pigs, chickens and ducks mingled with the delicious aroma of fresh apple tart baking, as we walked down the little street of shops, doctors office and more that gave us a clearer idea of what life was like back then.

After that we went on to Caernowen, a bog village, but that's that last "trip tale" we have to tell and you can find it next week.

ARE YOU READY? this older farmer puts wicker baskets on his donkey, calls his family of dogs and baby goats, and prepares to greet a tour bus in Ireland. He earns a little supplemental income by posing for photos, but didn't ask for any from us, since we were "with a private party". (Staff Photo by Nanalee Nichols)

More Toll Free Calling coming in August, September

Expanded Toll Free Calling from Bogata to Talco has been jointly agreed to by GTE-SW and People Telephone Cooperative, Inc. Service to Talco, according to GTE attorney William H. Ballard in a letter to the Public Utility Commission of Texas.

This is good news to area residents, who had been concerned that the sale of the Talco Exchange by GTE to Peoples Telephone Cooperative might jeopardise the toll free calling between the two towns.

In another letter from GTE they state that the exchanges of Clarksville, Mt. Vernon, Winfield and Winnsboro will be provisioned with ELCs no later than August 30, 1996.

According to Martha Hare, who has been a prime organizer all along to get the toll free calling area of Bogata expanded, it appears that Mt. Pleasant will be the last to be added.

A GIANT LEAP - Connie Mack Hobbs has decided retirement is for having FUN! His fun has taken the form of sky diving, which he thoroughly enjoys. (Staff Photo)

Local man takes giant leap to retirement. . .

By Liz Irwin

When most people reach retirement age, they turn to nice, quiet, safe hobbies. . .like gardening, fishing, golfing, woodwork or something along that line. Well, there is a gentleman that lives out Halesboro (That is south of Deport for all of you out-of-towners!) way that has taken retirement a step farther.

His name is Connie Mack Hobbs, semi-retired teacher and navy man. He decided that since he was getting up in his years (he turns 60 in December), that he would take up skydiving! That's right, no fishing rod for him, just go jump out of a plane! You know. . . GERONIMO!!!!!! In my opinion he has to be nuts, but that is what he has wanted to do and vowed that he would before his 50th birthday.

Due to circumstances beyond his control, he didn't make it on his 50th, so decided to try before his 60th. So far he has logged 59 jumps and is shooting or jumping, as it may be, for his grade "B" license.

You ask, what makes a sane person want to do this? He says he enjoys the excitement, it keeps him alert and motivates him to stay in shape. Training is of the utmost and primary importance and a person has to be in reasonably good health (he didn't say anything about mental). Asked how it felt to take the jump and he related that "you can't describe the excitement and feeling". Hesays he now knows now how the birds feel.

Connie Mack belongs to a private club outside of Whitewright known as "Sky Dive Dallas". They are sanctioned by the United States Parachute Association. He holds a class "A" in the UBA and they are recognized internationally. His license is authorized by the National Aeronautic Association and the Federal Aeronautique (international association).

With the 59 jumps under his belt, he hopes to go on to a class "B" and class "C" license which requires 100 jumps. This will give him more freedom and enable him to do night jumps and some "relative" work. "Relative" work is with a group such as the "Dallas Heat". He has witnessed this group doing several jumps together. A class "D" license allows jumpers to do demo jumps, more complicated night jumps and is usually issued to instructors.

Among his other adventures have been to drive and tour through Alaska, camping out the entire time. The year before that, he toured Europe with a group and enjoyed seeing Scandanavia, Denmark, Sweden and the highest point in Europe, in Norway.

He taught school in the late 60's; went in the Navy in San Diego and was commissioned as a Lieutenant. He came out of the Navy and continued his teaching career in Midland, Longview and Clarksville serving as teacher, principal and assistant principal and is currently teaching Algebra, three hours a day in Clarksville.

In his semi-retired state, he enjoys being able to have the free time to enjoy his other hobbies. He also enjoys his two sons and three grandchildren. David is married to Michelle and they live in Rowlett and have a son, Jason. Steven and Ruth live in Omaha, Nebraska with their two children, Arin and Blake. The boys don't think their father is strange; he is just Dad. The grandkids, well they think that it is "cool" that their grandfather jumps out of planes!

As this story comes to an end, look for it's sequel. I think Nanalee has almost persuaded Thomas to go along with Connie Mack in the near future. I may go too. . . . just to take pictures!

In the meantime, don't look for Connie Mack Hobbs in a rocking chair, you'll find him out there, somewhere, jumping out of an airplane!

THE FASTEST EVENT IN RODEO is the cowboy's steer wrestling. The event pits a cowboy against a steer, doesn't sound too complicated, does it? Well, throw in the factor of the cowboy and the steer going about 40 miles per hour, along with the factor that the steer has a mind of his own, and see how it turns out. It's so complicated, in fact, that the steer wrestler is allowed a "helper", or hazer, to help keep the steer running straight. Even then, it's not enough to throw the steer the way the steer wrestler would like it done.

STARTING OUT YOUNG!! Rodeo cowboys start their kids out right, and early. This youngster is "setting" himself in his dad's bronc saddle. He's got the form down pat, feet forward, rein extended and leaning back. We bet he's going to be a champion some day!

JERALD AND JOAN SMITH, owners of the Wing Rodeo Company are looking forward to the annual Bogata Rodeo. The Smith's have headquartered their nationally known rodeo company just outside Bogata in the Pine Branch community for many years.

"The combination of tradition, experience and quality has made the Wing Rodeo Company one of the foremost and respected rodeo stock contractors in the world today."

Wing Rodeo Company makes Bogata proud

Bogata is proud to have the Wing Rodeo Company as their stock contractor. And, it works both ways, the Wing Rodeo Company is proud, as well. They don't just come to town once a year for the rodeo, they are born and bred Bogata residents and look forward to their home town rodeo each and every year.

The Wing Rodeo Company has been celebrated nation-wide for a number of years in the rodeo world for their outstanding livestock and fast paced, professional performances.

The Wing Rodeo Company originated in 1967 with one goal in mind, to produce the best, most colorful and most professional rodeos in the country. Wing Rodeo Company's reputation can speak for itself today, as that goal has been achieved with great success.

All events in rodeo are important to the Wing Rodeo Company, and today they promote seven championship events at all their rodeos. From high school rodeos to PRCA rodeos, their goal remains first and foremost.

The Wing Rodeo Company has furnished livestock for rodeos such as the Pasadena Livestock Show and Rodeo in Pasadena, TX; Greenville, MS; Bonham, TX; Texarkana, AR; Siloam Springs, AR; Wright City, OK; Shawnee, OK; the World's Fair in Knoxville, TN; San Antonio, TX; Denver, CO; Little Rock, AR; Phoenix, AZ; and for the Huntsville, TX Prison Rodeo the last 15 years it was held.

The most silent people are generally those who think most highly of themselves.

First Methodist Church bible ship docks

On June 22, the First Methodist Church's Bible Ship docked at its home port. The trip was a great success. The ship's captain registered 47 children crew members, 15 young adult First Mates and 10 adult crew leaders.

They shared many exciting Bible time adventures. The crew sailed the stormy seas with Noah; they visited the empty tomb and on that day ate an "empty tomb" snack. On the final day the Landshore Excursion crew leader, Duana Lawson, prepared a campfire and each group roasted marshmallows. This was done to reinforce a point in the story.

The crew collected $75.00 in offerings which was given to the special guest for the week Ready Teddy of the First Responders.

The young adult First Mates are now planning for a trip to Six Flags which will be their reward for giving a week of their time to help at VBS.

SPILLS, CHILLS & THRILLS!! Pictures like this are pretty day-to-day occurrences around rodeos, especially when the Wing Rodeo Company is providing the bulls! The clowns have a job, however, to save a fallen cowboy from the hooves and horns of an enraged bull, and sometimes they even "offer" themselves to be the target of the bull's aggression to keep the cowboy from getting hurt. Yeah, if it was an easy job, everybody would be doing it!!

THE SADDLE BRONC RIDING is probably the prettiest event in rodeo today. Precision timing in the cowboy's spurring motion and the rhythmic bucking motion of a good bucking horse makes for a pretty picture and a crowd pleasing contest. The perfect spur ride for a cowboy extends all the way from the "front end" to the cantle of the saddle. Try it sometime sitting in your saddle on the ground. There's more to it than gunsmoke!
