

Don't Turn Away This week we will observe Veteran's Day. Most of us won't do much about it other than take advantage of a day off. We should take the time to tell each and every service man or woman how much they are appreciated...now stay with me here .... I know, you've heard it before, but this time, please

Have you seen the movie "Saving Private Ryan"? You should. The opening scenes, in particular are graphic and horrifying. Many people say that it is too disturbing. Watch it. Don't turn away. Those men did not have that choice. They could not look away. Instead, they had to live through battle in which many died, many were wounded, and each and every one who survived has had to live with their experiences. A movie can give us only the briefest glimpse of what they must have gone through.

No, every World War II veteran did not go through the Normandy Invasion, or some massive Pacific campaign. But each one did his or her part, whether it was typing reports in some behind-the-line location or storming a bunker.

In "Saving Private Ryan" there is a scene where dozens of women are sitting at typewriters typing notices of death, hundreds, thousands of them. Consider what a difficult job that would become.

Perhaps our World War II

Veterans need a special thank you, this Veterans Day. After fifty years they may think that no one considers the contribution they made worth much anymore. Yet what they did completely changed the face of world history forever. We should not forget that for one minute. Even the simple stacts we take for granted would not exist without their efforts back then.

I grew up during the era of the Vietnam war. What a confusing, controversial time that was. Those who went were frequently denigated, called murderers, even spit upon. I have no idea of whether the U.S. should ever have been there or not. I'm not that smart. But I do know that those who went deserve every bit as much respect as any other veteran who ever served their country. There are plenty of them around. Tell them thank you.

This nation is founded on blood shed, lives lost or changed forever. From the American Revolution, onward through today, this is a fact of life...and death.

This paper carries a special Veterans section this week. Take time to look at it, please.

It gives but just a glimpse of their sacrifices and experiences. Old films and magazines, movies or words cannot begin to show us what many Veterans went through. But we do not have to know that to say thank you. We all know them, our service men and women. Not all have medals, not all survived. Give a thought to those who remain and a thought to those who died. Please.

Education makes a people easy to lead, but difficult to drive; easy to govern but impossible to enslave.

Deep frying whole turkeys has become one of the best ways to prepare a turkey. Turkey frying is popular in Lousiana and is fast moving throughout the United States.

The best way to season your turkey or any other large piece of meat is with an injector and a spicey sauce or sauce of your choosing. This week we have included several recipes for marinade along with recipes for different rubs if you prefer to smoke or bake your turkey or perhaps you would like to smoke a brisquet along with your turkey.

In frying a turkey, you will need a large pot (30-40 quarts), a high output heat source, (such as a fish fryer) a long stem thermometer, an injecting sauce and tools if desired, and about five gallons of cooking oil.

Cajun Rub

5 tablespoons cayenne pepper

2 tablespoons granulated garlic

tablespoon powdered oregano

2 tablespoons white pepper

tablespoons black pepper

2 tablespoons onion powder

2 tablespoon paprika Mexican Rub

2 tablespoons cayenne pepper

2 tablespoons granulated garlic

tablespoons granulated garlic

2 tablespoons powdered onion

Italian Rub

2 tablespoons dried cilantro

2 tablespoons onion powder

cup kosher salt

tablespoon thyme

tablespoon basil

cup kosher salt

cup kosher salt

2 tablespoons basil

2 tablespoons marjoram

tablespoon black pepper

tablespoon white pepper

4 tablespoons paprika

1/2 cup chili powder

The oil, if properly filtered and stored, may be saved and reused many times.

Preheat your cooking oil to 325 degrees. Peanut oil works best as it does not smoke like vegetable or other oils. Dry turkey with paper towels both inside and out and to reduce the danger of spashing oil. Place turkey on frying stand, breast down and lower stand slowly and carefully into the hot oil. Partially dipping the turkey in the oil and lifting it out several times helps remove the excess water and reduce the spashing of oil. It also "seals" the turkey and it boils out any excess moisture and prevents the oil from boiling over. Cook smaller birds (10-12 pounds or less) about four minutes per pound and larger birds about five minutes per pound. Make sure the turkey is completely submerged in oil.

Cajun Rub-you guessed it. . .a Louisisan flavor!

Mexican Rub-just the right amount of chili powder and pepper to give the meat a great zing!

Italian Rub-just a little taste of Italy, by no means spaghetti sauce! Mediterranean Rub-European flair with a spicy flavor! Tasty Thanksgiving Rub-a different twist to your traditional turkey recipe! Lemon Pepper Rub-uses lemon pepper with a few other ingredients to make this turkey melt in your mouth! Blue Zing Marinade-this will prepare around 5 pound of turkey. Be everyone for your individaul attensure to remove skin before marinad-

Mustard Marinade/Glaze-this recuipe can be used for either amarinade or a glaze after baking. Turkey Calypso-maybe you can't spent Thanksgiving on an island, but you might come close when you prepare this recipe!

Orange Minted Marinade-the Old South comes alive with this marinade with orange peel and orange juice!

The world of funeral service is constantly changing. Many of family owned funeral homes have given way to corporations that for whatever reason fail to give the individual service that has long since been the trademark of the funeral industry. mark of the funeral industry. Casket stores and burial societies have tried to place the emphasis on ways of saving you money with no thoughts to service and the personnel that provide them. Long after a funeral is ended it won't be the type of casket or how place the funeral casket or how nice the funeral home was decorated that will be remembered by the family. What will be remembered is the caring service offered by a compas-sionate staff that allowed the family to express their grief in a way that was healing for them. That is something that you can't put a price on-something that cannot be discounted. The James Wood Family prides itself on service and individuality. We believe that a funeral service is a testimony to the life of the de-ceased. There is no price that can be put on such a gift. #### A Y2K Checklist for Customers

From the smallest to the largest, federally insured financial institutions have been working to make sure their computer systems will operate smoothly in the Year 2000 (Y2K). In addition, federal and state regulators are closely monitoring the progress of the institutions they supervise to make sure Y2K issues are being addressed. Despite the best efforts of the industry and the regulator, no one can guarantee that everything will work perfectly. That's why financial institution customers may want to consider taking steps in anticipation of the date change. Your can refer to the following checklist to prepare yourself for Y2K.

Yourself About Y2K

Find out what your financial institution is doing to address consumer concerns. If you have questions, speak with a representative who knows about the institution's Y2K program.

Keep Copies of Financial Records

As always, keep good records of your financial transactions, especially for the last few months of 1999 and until you get several statements in 2000

Pay Attention to Your Finances

As always, balance your checkbook regularly. When you receive a transaction receipt from your institution, check it for accuracy and save it to compare against your statement. It's also smart to review your credit report to make sure it doesn't contain inaccurate information.

Prudent Preperations

Remember all your payment options (checks, credit cards, debit cards, ATMs and tellers) in the event that one doesn't work as planned. The Federal Reserve has plans to ensure that there will be sufficient cash available for consumers. If you withdraw money, make reasonable decisions based on solid information; don't put yourself at risk of being robbed or losing valuable interest pay-

Be skeptical if someone asks for your account information or tries to sell you a product, service or investment that's supposedly Y2K "safe". Protect your personal information, including your bank account, credit card and Social Security

Your Deposit Insurance Coverage

The federal government's protection of insured deposits will not be affected by Y2K. If you have more than $100,000 in an insured bank, thrift or credit union, you may want to make sure you understand the insurance rules. Check with your financial institution or call the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation at 1-800-934-FDIC (for banks and savings institutions) or the National Credit Union Administration at 703-518-6330 (for credit unions).

ips On Staving Safe And Sound With Natural Gas.

XU Electric & Gas is not only dedicated to providing dependable energy that you can use in your home, we're also concerned with making sure you can use it safely. By following a few simple rules, you can help make sure you and your family stay safe and sound with natural gas:

- · Always have qualified service people install, regularly check and maintain all gas heating equipment and appliances.
- Do not use an oven to heat a room.
- Keep flammable materials and liquids away from gas heaters and appliances.
- If your gas appliance is more than 20 years old, have it checked by a qualified professional. Certain older, uncoated brass connectors have flaws that may be dangerous and should be changed. Do not move the appliance and check the connector yourself. Call a qualified professional to inspect and replace the connector if necessary.

IF YOU SMELL GAS in your home, or know you have a gas leak, follow these rules:

- Everyone should leave immediately, leaving the doors open for ventilation.
- 2 Do not switch anything electrical on or off.
- Do not use your telephone (telephones use small amounts of electricity).
- Do not strike a match or do anything else that might cause a spark.
- Go to the nearest telephone and call TXU Electric & Gas. Wait until we have found the cause of the odor before returning to your home. If you smell gas while you're outside, contact TXU Electric & Gas immediately.

Safe energy for your home, naturally.

BEFORE YOU DIG, call for pipeline locations to avoid any potential problems: 1-800-344-8377.

People spend a great deal of their time preparing for things. We save money in order to buy a house, start planning and shopping for Christmas presents sometime a year in advance, we plan ahead so that we will be financially able to do things so we can better afford them. But more often than not we never think about planning for our funerals until we are faced with death, and sometimes it catches us unprepared. Salute our soldiers this Veterans Day..

the last Veteran's Day of the twentieth century. Perhaps it is fitting and proper that we stop to think about what our veterans have done for us by serving our country. In a time of peace and prosperity such as the present, we often lose sight of the contributions made by the men and women who have done so much to uphold our freedom. Let us remember that this century has required tremendous sacrifice from our members

In 1917, the United States entered than 100,000 young Americans were killed on the European battlefields of such a nightmare happen again. But violently propelled into the bloodiest conflict in history. World War II cost the lives of a half-million American troops, but our brave and dedicated "citizen soldiers" helped save the world from some of the most barbaric forces this planet has ever seen. Tom Brokaw reminds us we are losing a thousand of the "Greatest Generation" every day. Think of how

> Only five years after the end of World War II, our military was summoned to action once again. This time to confront a Communist enemy in Korea. Nearly 40,000 Americans would make the ultimate sacrifice in our first conflict of the atomic age. We still have the opportunity to thank those, who served so well, and remind them we have not forgotten the 'Forgotten War"

The 1960's saw our entry into the the "War to End All Wars". More confusing quagmire of Vietnam. Our troops were called to fight in a harsh and bitter conflict, which eventually World War I. The survivors of that cost the lives of more than 57,000 terrible conflict vowed never to let Americans. Some may question why our leaders sent our men and women unfortunately, they could not predict into harm's way, but no one can questhe rise of fascist dictatorships that tion the bravery and resourcefulness would threaten our very way of life. displayed by those who fought in the Two and one-half decades later, we "Ten Thousand Day War"

The Gulf War saw America's largest military deployment since Vietnam. Although the fighting lasted only a few weeks, more than 200 Americans gave their lives in this conflict against Iraqi forces.

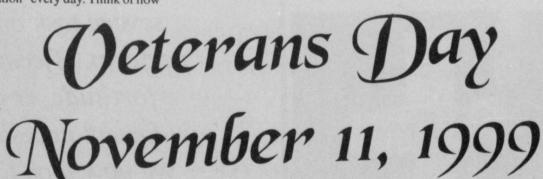

Our military has also been called into action several times this century in places such as Mexico, the Donon, Somalia and Kosovo. Many have not returned from these actions, but our forces have always answered

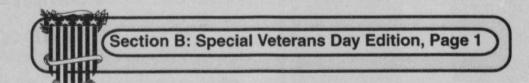

As we near the turn of the century, the role of our military is changing. More often than not, our troops are being summoned to act as policemen in far away places across the globe. One thing will never change though, we will always be in need of those to protect our freedom. The men and women who have served, and continue to serve, deserve our adoration and respect. Without their contributions, we would not enjoy our liberties today.

Please pause this holiday to remember the sacrifices made by our veterans and take the opportunity to tell one of these heroes "thanks". Allen Williams Sumner, TX

He had not been in France long until the Armistice was signed. Since Joe was a teacher, he was assigned the job of teaching the troops who had no schooling. They learned how to write their names so that they could sign their discharge papers.

War veteran writes book on experiences

B. Murray Anderson, former Deort resident, has written a book entitled "The Unrelenting Test of War". It took him about 18 months to

His Preface begins "When World War II started for American on Dec. 7, 1941, I was a senor in high school in Deport, a small agricultural town in northeast Texas, about eighteen miles from Paris.

I had an intense interest in world history because of an excellent teacher, Mack Webb, and his ability to help us follow current events along with people and events in history. He made them come to life for his students. I knew that I wanted to be a part of our country's fight against Hitler and Hirohito.

In the spring of 1942 my father died and it was up to me to run the farm. My younger sister Mary, older sister Alice, my mother and myself were my family. Four other older sisters had settled in Dallas with jobs or to raise a family. Labor for the farm was unavailable because of higher paying jobs in defense work. It was a hard struggled growing cotton and corn on a two-hundred-acre farm by myself. I was able to get the crops ready for harvest, but I knew I could not pick that much cotton and corn by myself. WE sold the farm and moved to Dallas. I worked for Proctor & Gamble a short time to help get our family settled.

My dream was to fly planes for the Navy. I took their examination and thought it was easy, but they said I didn't pass. I joined the Marine Corps, hoping to get in the flying part of the corps. The day I was to depart for the Marines I was notified, by telegram from Washington, that there had been a mistake in grading my exam for the Navy and that I had passed. I was to report to Hensley Field Naval Air Station in Dallas for flight training. However, the Marines said, "Sorry, but you are in the Marine Corps." knew the Marines were tough and I was told that they are the best fighting unit in the world. I was an eight-yearold farm boy and a high school athlete that weighed nearly two hundred pounds, so I thought I was tough

Basic training for six weeks at $21.00 a month, later a pay raise to $30.00

Our quarters were tents with six men in each tent. The summer of 1941 was spent mostly in the desert east and north of El Paso. Later, Louisiana maneuvers for six weeks. It was estimated we rode those horses 5,000 miles that summer. Of course, much of that was walking and leading them. Much time was spent grooming our horses, polishing brass, shining boots and saddles. One occasion, we were to have a parade in El Paso. All horses in my troop were black, but some had white hooves. I had the job of putting stone black on those white hooves, to make them all the

Soon after December 7, 1941, we were sent to the Big Bend Country to patrol the Rio Grande River. Ft.

D.A. Russell in Marfa was our headquarters. From there, the regiment patrolled from Presidio to near Del Rio. Later, since the Japs didn't come through Mexico, we returned to Ft. Bliss. Up to this time in my Cavalry career, more than half of the time was spent sleeping on the ground with my saddle for a pillow. Sometime in late 1942 or early 1943, the Cavalry was dismounted and made an infantry unit, although it was still called the 1st Cavalry Division as it is today.

The summer of 1942, I was transferred to Camp White, Oregon to help form the 91st Infantry Division. There we trained until 1943, then after maneuvers in the desert of eastern Oregon, went to Camp Adair, Oregon. From there to Hamptom Roads, Virginia and overseas to Oran, North Arica where we trained for landings. This training was meant to confuse Germany that we were planning to invade Southern France. This was to take pressure off the Normandy land-

From Africa to Naples, Italy on a British ship, from Naples to Anzio. Our first bombing was in Naples. Our first combat was north of Anzio.

I was there on the outskirts of Rome on June 4, 1944 when Rome was declared an open city. From Rome, on north to the P.O. Valley of Italy. After losing more than half of our company of 250 men by death or wounds, the war in Italy was over. Yes, it was a long and bumpy road. but I had survived, which I am so sorry that so many of my buddies did

I have seen most of the war movies and none of them actually portray the real life of an infantry man. When you see someone that has the Combat Infantry Badge, you can say that he has been to "Hell and Back". which tells the story of Audie Murphy. This movie, along with "Saving Private Ryan", came as close to the true story as any that I have seen, but it is impossible to put the whole story on film.

I was awarded the Combat Infantry Badge, Purple Heart and Bronze Star. Of these, the Infantry Badge is by far the most improtant to me as it represents the mud, rain, snow, heat and mountains that we had to overcome on our drive from Anzio to Northern Italy and a defeat to Hitler's o you who answered the call of your country and served in its Armed Forces to bring about the total defeat of the enemy, I extend the heartfelt thanks of a grateful Nation. As one of the Nation's finest, you undertook the most severe task one can be called upon to perform. Because you demonstrated the fortitude, resourcefulness and calm judgment necesary to carry out that task, we now look to you for leadership and example in further exalting our country in peace.

John E. Coleman of Detroit, William J. Alexander of Talco, and Charlie Davidson, Jr. of Deport left for the service together. These three men took part in the D-Day Invasion in 1944. As evidenced by the grave markers, both Coleman and Alexander perished during the Invasion.

Today, Coleman is buried in Detroit, Texas, Alexander is buried in the Normandy cemetery in France. Davidson lives in Deport with his wife, Joyce. In March of this year Davidson's step-son, Allen Williams, a Social Studies instructor at Chisum High School, toured Normandy, France and took this picture of William Alexander's grave.

What you don't read in history books...

you are issued uniforms and clothing. You stencil your name on all clothing including socks, underwear, handkerchiefs, shoes and bedding. You were issued only one dress uniform. When it needed cleaning, you would wear it to town, find a cleaners that had a sign "Uniforms cleaned while you wait." Inside the cleaners would be a curtain drawn around a bench. You would pull off your uniform and lace it outside the curtain and sit on the bench while they cleaned your uniform. It usually took 20 to 30 minutes. There may be other sailors sitting on the bench waiting for their clean uniform. For washing other clothing, you were issued a 3x9 scrub brush. A laundry room with running water and soap was provided for scrubbing your clothing. You then hung them outside for drying. The creases of a sailor's uniform were on the inside. To press your uniform you turned it inside out and put it under your mattress while you slept. Uniforms were not hung on a hanger. All clothing was rolled and put in a locker if available or in your sea bag.

When you entered Boot Camp, you were issued a mattress, approximately 2" thick, 2 wool blankets, a mattress cover, and a small pillow. When ever you got transferred you took them with you. When you were discharged you took them home with you. I only have a sea bag and a ham-

Whenever you leave the ship, you salute the Officer of the Day and ask permission to go ashore. When you come back to the ship, you salute and ask permission to come aboard.

The first day in the Coast Guard ing than sitting and they don't linger in the mess hall talking. Someone is waiting to take your place. Bunks aboard troop ships are sometimes 10 high. You have to be careful when turning over, not to bump whoever is sleeping above you.

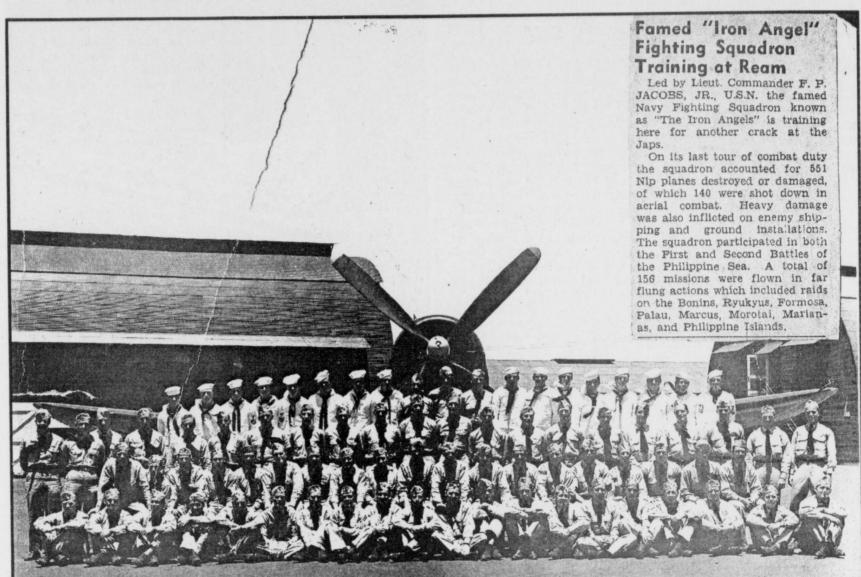

When aboard a train and it stops at a small town and the conductor calls out "don't leave the train", believe him. I saw two Marines left behind in a small place in Wyoming because they thought they could run to a store and make it back. They didn't, and running after the train didn't make it either. Sometimes a troop car may be disconnected form one train going one direction and be picked up by another train going to a designated area. In 1944 I spent all Easter day in a railroad yard with 13 sailors, I was in charge of, waiting to be hooked up to another train.

Most history books tell about the battles between the Battle Wagons, Cruisers, Aircraft Carriers, with those of the enemy. Little, however, is told about the smaller ships that provided support against the enemy submarines and aircraft. Small ships had to take only one hit to be sunk and many were lost in typhoons in the Pacific.

The Atlantic waters off the coast of the United States were patrolled by cutters, frigates and dirigibles to seek and destroy submarines. The shoreline was patrolled day and night by men on foot, some with dogs. The men were single patrol but overlapped a few feet of other patrol on both ends of your patrol. The enemy submarines sometimes evaded the patrol ships at sea and got in close to shore to put off spies and saboteurs. Many of them were captured after they reached shore by those on shore patrol duty.

At this time, I would like to salute and thank all Veterans and service persons that have served our great country

UNITED STATES PACIFIC FLEET AIR FORCE FIGHTING SQUADRON FOURTHEN

14 December 1945

This is a last resume of our activities.

Following a very hectic 4 weeks at Marpi Point, Saipan, we embarked on the U.S. S. INTRIPID and proceeded to the Tokyo day area. Everyone had plenty of Liberty, most of which was spent at the Officers' Club at Tokosuka Navai Buse

After being informed by one Admiral that January 20, 1946 was the paritest we would powarbly bone to return to the States, a swortse dispetch came abourd ordering us to proceed to the West Coast on December 3rd on the USS INTREPID.

While enroute we learned that Corrier Air Group FOURTEEN will be reformed in the Alameda area. About 10 of the boys will probably return to form a nucleus of the new out-fit.

In cicsing, on behalf of the Skipper, I want to express his appreciation for the part you have played 'n making the Iron Angels a hell of a good out-fit.

Best wishes, Dan

A very special meal deal A Vietnam Vet's memory

It was the mid 1960s and I was on a different assignment than my usual job. My usual job was relatively safe (if there was a safe job in Vietnam). Most of my days were spent with a survey team locating sites for bunkers and other facilities.

On this particular day however, I found myself on a boat loaded with medical and food supplies to be delivered to a small village down the river. The whole trip I kept thinking about being out in the open on this boat with no protection at all. We were just sitting ducks out there in t he middle of the river.

After a while we made it to the village without an incident. We delivered the supplies to the people there in the village.

Everyone was so happy to see us and the supplies were appreciated. In fact, to show their appreciation, a special meal was prepared in our honor. When we sat down to eat we discovered the main course was fried mice. Our hosts informed us that the mice were a special delicacy. They were much cleaner than the rats. Needless to say, I just couldn't eat that meal, guest of honor or not. Tom Harris

MY KOREAN WAR

MEMORIES AND OTHERS..
The beginning of fall, September behind the American lines

17, 1950, I enlisted in the United States Army, a young man just turning 20. I was employed by the Ideal Baking Company in Paris. When I embarked on a journey that would eventually take me around the world. After 18 months at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, I had decided to get married to a young high school senior at East Lamar High School. Being 21 and she 17, we had great plans settling down at some base not far away. We were married on April 7. I reported to my base on April 10 and on April 12, I had a surprise, orders to go to Kyoto, Japan by way of Fort Lewis, Washington to serve in the Counter Intelligence Corp where I would be the next 18 months.

This was part of life, leaving a young wife still in high school. My aging parents and other relatives, but I had experienced this in my two older brothers serving in World War behind the American lines, but our mother never gave up that he was not alive. What a joyous day when a letter came from the family of one who had escaped from the death march telling her that her son was alive but a prisoner. Mac, my older brother, served in the Navy. My younger brother served in the Marines, going from high school to Seoul, Korea to the front lines of the Korean War.

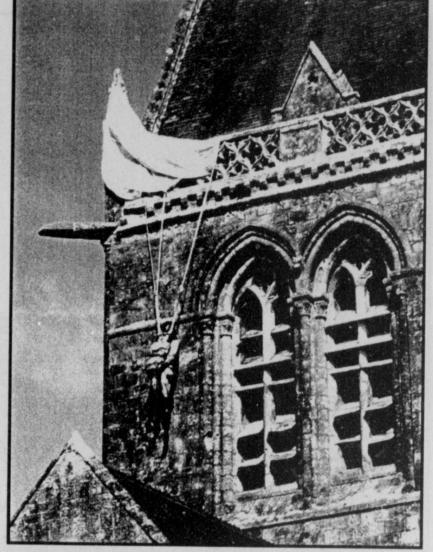

We all returned to civilian life, thankful we were alive an getting back to our families.

Me and my wife now of 47 years have resided in Garland since 1960, raised three sons and saw our youngest, Bradley, serve in Kuwait with the first forces going in during the Persian Gulf War, a green beret and member of the Military Intelligence Arabic/Syrian linguist, he was awarded the Bronze Star.

I'm also thankful that I did serve in the military and others before me

SIGNS OF BRUTAL WAR-This church in St. Mere Eglise, France, shows the signs of the brutal war that took place during the D-Day Invasion. A paratrooper hung on steeple 6 as he landed on June 6, 1944. The story goes that the paratrooper hung there for hours, pretending to be dead, but a German soldier discovered he was alive and shot him. The monument to the trooper hangs on the steeple today as a reminder of that

Dean Hallmark was a hero

Dean Hallmark, one of the Doolittle Tokyo Raiders of April, 1942, was my classmate at Paris Junior College in 1934 and 1935.

When I was recalled to the Air Force in 1951 for Korea, I was temporarily billeted in Tokyo's former military officers club, a swank affair next to a big park in downtown To-

One of the staff there, Taigi Deguchi, told me he watched and applauded as Dean and his captured crew were beheaded in the park.

On April 18, 1942, Lt. Dean Hallmark piloted one of the B-25's that took off from the flight deck of the U.S.S. Hornet and bombed Tokyo, Japan. He ran out of fuel, and he and his crew were captured. The Japanese brought what they said was Dean and his crew to Tokyo, and beheaded

General Kenney said Dean was so badly hurt as he crash-landed his plane, that the Japs just shot him. They dressed American captives, or what they passed off as Americans, in flight suits and in five different cities they staged beheadings, each time pretending the victims were Air Force.

Listening to Taigi Deguchi tell me how he applauded as Dean Hallmark's head was cut off with a big sword after a big round of speeches, I felt chills of horror and sympathy for just one of the gasualties of World War II.

And I think Paris Junior College should remember and honor Dean Hallmark, World War II hero, instead of ignoring him as the students there

Proud of Civil War heritage.... My grandfather was the son of the emy for the first time.

My grandfather was the son of the first settlers of the Ripley community in Titus County. They were Christopher and Elizabeth Rebecca Evans Williams. The homestead is still owned by some of the Williams descendants.

John E. was born into this fmaily in 1843: He served along with his brother, I.N. Williams, Sr. in the Civil War. He enlisted at Daingerfield, Texas at the age of 19 on October 1, 1861. On December 1, 1861 he was mustered into the Confederate Army under Col. Sam Bell Maxey and Capt. William E. Beeson. The 9th Regiment had the distinction of having served in the Army of Mississippi and Tennessee longer than any other Texas regiment.

Shortly after being mustered, measles and pneumonia broke out in the regiment, due to sickness and poor quality of water,. They had to move from Paris to Camp Benjamin in Fannin County. Despite their sickness, no pain had been spared to drill and discipline the regiment.

On January 1, they took up the line to march to Memphis. By January 25, they had arrived in Little Rock. It was noted that the long march had taken its toll on the soldiers. On February 18, they arrived at Iuka and were all beginning to feel much better and were beginning to look and act like soldiers again.

Lt. Col. Beeson received his much needed supplies of 788 knapsacks, 500 haversacks and 450 canteens. At Iuka, the men began building a camp and commissary, however, the stay there was short and on March 19, 1862 they left by rail and arrived at Corinth. When they arrived there they found bad water, low and swampy land. They all became sick again and lost about 2 soldiers per day. They were armed with the weapons they brought from home, double barreled shotguns, sportsman rifles and old muskets. Sick, poorly drilled and without reliable weapons, they were about to face the dreaded en-

Lt. Col Miles Dillard wrote to the Clarksville Standard about the 9th Regiment, "The boys of the old 9th of Texas can never be too highly appreciated for their bravery on the bloody field of Murfreesboro, for never did the soldiers adjust themselves with more honor than they did on that day.'

Then came the battle of Chickamunga. The troops were small and all worn out, but the battle went on. With the number now down to about 1000, they were forced from the field of battle. They had to leave their wounded and dead and it was here that my grandfather was captured and taken to Chickamunga on September 9, 1863.

On September 19, he was taken to Louisville, Kentucky, on the records it says "in exchange". Their days in prison were bad, they didn't have coats or shoes and not much to eat, they were forced to eat raw meat and bugs to survive. He was released from prison and he and six of his friends started their trip bck to Texas. They were barefoot with no food or money, Granddad did have his musket back. They would stop and work for food with anyone who would offer. In fact, Granddad stayed with one northern family for over a year.

After returning to Titus County and being on up in years, he met and married my grandmother, she was a hardworking lady who owned a little farm that she took care of by herself. To this marriage was born four children, my daddy, Nathan Avant Evans "E" Williams, was the second son to this soldier of the Civil War.

During his time in prison camp, my granddad contacted tuberculosis. Being an educated man, he worked as bookkeeper and raised horses. I am very proud of this heritage that my grandfather left. It must have been very hard to fight in this war that put brothers against brothers.

Fire from a bunker, and thoughts on booby traps

I have lots of memories of Vietnam, but I particularly remember one night when we began to take fire FROM one of our own bunkers. The guard tower saw it first, and my Master Sergeant and myself saw the green tracer fire coming from that bunker located at the edge of the perimeter ourselves.

The Viet Cong were excellent at tunneling, so that is what we figured had happened. An air strike was called in and simply obliterated the bunker. The next day my M Sgt. and I went down in that bunker, determined to prove that there really had been fire coming from it. Some of the guys doubted it. While digging around in there it came to us that another thing the Viet Cong were very good at was laying booby traps. What if they had rigged booby traps, did a little shooting and departed through a tunnel. Very carefully, stepping only in the footprints we had made coming in, we left and decided we really didn't care about what had gone on in that bunker.

Brothers serve together, separately

Seaman First Class George D. Ford and his brother, Pharm. Mate First Class Joe A. Ford of Bogata both served their country. Joe entered the service in 1942 and George in 1944.

Joe was sent to Pearl Harbor. Two years later, his brother George entered the service and was sent to Pearl Harbor as well. Joe, who hadn't seen George in over three years, didn't recognize him, as George was only 18 at the time he (Joe) entered the service.

From Pearl Harbor, George went on to Guam, being discharged from the service in 1945, the same year that Joe also came home.

In another war, Fireman Third Class Dom Buffo, son of Lela Buffo Ford served aboard the U.S.S. New Jersey during 1969-70.

A Christmas poem

Because our son, Todd, is in the US Navy, stationed in Sicily, last year I did something that I would never thought to do before. I sent Christmas cards to addresses published in the newspapers for "any service member" for persons overseas and/or on ships. It really warmed my heart when I received thank you's from several of the service members that got a card from someone that they did not know but had taken the time to remember them. Needless to say, I will continue to do this, even when our son comes home. I encourage anyone and everyone to do the same. Teachers even could have their class do this as a project. Anyway, this year I received this from Todd and would like to pass it on. To me, it bears repeating! Twas the night before Christmas, he lived all alone, In a one bedroom house made of plaster and stone.

I had come down the chimney with presents to give, And to see just who in this home did live.

I looked all about, a strange sight I did see,

No tinsel, no presents, not even a tress. No stocking by mantel, just boots filled with sand, On a the wall hung pictures of far distant lands.

With medals and badges, awards of all kinds, A sober thought came through my mind.

For this house was different, it was dark and dreary, I found the home of a soldier, once I could see clearly.

The soldier lay sleeping, silent, alone, Curled up on the floor in this one bedroom home.

The face was so gentle, the room in such disorder, Not how I pictured a United States Soldier.

Was this the hero of whom I'd just read? Curled up on a poncho, the floor for a bed?

I realized the families that I saw this night, Owed their lives to these soldiers who were willing to fight.

Soon round the world, the children would play, And grown-ups would celebrate a bright Christmas Day.

They all enjoyed freedom each month of the year, Because of the soldiers, like the one lying here.

I couldn't help wonder how many lay alone. On a cold Christmas Eve in a land far from home.

The very thought brought a tear to my eye,

I dropped to my knees and started to cry. The soldier awakened and I heard a rough voice,

"I fight for freedom, I don't ask for more, My life is my God, my country, my corps.'

"Santa, don't cry, this life is my choice;

The soldier rolled over and drifted to sleep, I couldn't control it, I continued to weep.

I kept watch for hours, so silent and still And we both shivered from the cold night's chill.

I didn't want to leave on that cold dark night, This guardian of honor so willing fight

Then the soldier rolled over, with a voice soft and pure, Whispered, "Carry on Santa, it's Christmas day, all is secure."

One look at my watch, and I knew he was right.

"Merry Christmas my friend, and to all a good night." This poem was written by a Marine stationed in Okinawa, Japan, the following have running water or indoor plumbing. These stories worried young women is his request and I think it is reasonable....Please. Would you do me the kind favor dating servicemen, for the chance to meet a man's family before marrying of sending this to as many people as you can? Christmas will be coming soon and him was not possible. some credit is due to our U.S. Service men and women for our being able to celebrate these festivities. Let's try in this small way to pay a tiny bit of what we the other young women would run out and untether huge balloons, similar owe. Make people stop and think of our heroes, living and dead, who sacrificed to dirigibles. These had a web of cables which ran from balloon to balloon. themselves for us. ## What others say about it..

What a day in history!! Cease fire orders ending the to that date most stupendous war ever fought. Hilarious joy burst all restraint not only among the victors but among the vanquished. The world went wild. On no day in the annals of time have so many people of so many nationalities, creeds, political beliefs, and divergent ideals felt such a spontaneous urge to celebrate.

Dictatorship backed by the greatest military organization ever known had failed to subjugate an unprepared world. The forces of freedom had conquered and forced acknowledgment of defeat upon the totalitarian legions. Armistice Day, November 11, 1918. What a day! Can the world ever forget? That the leaders of the free peoples were over magnanimous, over trusting, over sanguine and that the free people themselves rated peace above security brought on a second world war and threatens a third in no way lessens the memory of that day when first the threat of world dictatorship was broken.

Thursday I read in the paper where certain citizens of San Angelo petitioned the merchants as a body to forget that day, and no longer close their places of business. One of the signers I remember as one who refused to close on one of the earliest November 11 holidays, but he must have found that his "take" did not justify his ignoring a day set aside in memory of those who fought, that he could have just that privilege. No he could not commercialize soldier's day and make it another Mother's Day or Father's Day. What a pity!

The world has its memorial day for those who passed on and it needs its

Armistice Day for those who came back. What more fitting day than Armistice Day and what more fitting recognition of living men than the declaration of an Armistice from work? A day of freedom, a day in which to meet one's buddies. A day in which to relieve that glorious intoxicating sense of relief that the war was over and one could once again mingle with friends and family. Once again take up normal life and live and the pursuit of happiness. For nearly 175 years we have celebrated July 4 as national freedom day, why forget world freedom day in 30? We close Christmas Day, Thanksgiving Day, not all our people are Christians, why not petition no holiday on those days? Other religious sects observe their own special holidays, other minorities celebrate Cinco de Mayo, June-teenth and Rosh Hoshana. Thank God that is their privilege in these United States though some employers most scrupulous of closing certain days of their own refuse, these other special days to their employees.

To those advocates of business as usual on November 11, I say that is your privilege won by millions who earned the day, millions more who preserved the day and untold numbers who will yet fight to perpetrate the day. Stay open, rake in your dollars, but do not urge others to forget, others with decent memories of those who died, gratitude to those who fought and hope for those in train-

An English point of view on World War II

Mic Fuller, of Mill Hill, London, England, has vivid recollections of World War II. As a native of Britain, her view of the war is, of necessity, different from those of American servicemen and women.

Mic remembers many things....including the bombing, when block after block was destroyed, leaving survivors to try and dig out the dead and wounded, or salvage a few worldly possessions. She remembers one particular attack where bombs killed hundreds who had taken shelter in a subway. Things were so desperate that several hundred dead, made up of elderly, women and children could not be dug out of the collapsed tunnel. Instead, the tunnel area was sealed and even today there is a simple marker on the wall of the tunnel marking this burial place.

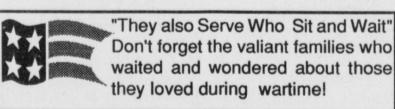

She was a young woman back then, and dated a number of American servicemen. She recalls them as pleasant and polite, and her sister came close to marrying an American. Still, it was a daughting prospect, marrying a man and moving across the ocean to an unknown country. In fact, there were horror stories circulated about "war brides" whose new husbands told them all about how wealthy they were. When these new wives arrived in the U.S. some found that the boys were from country homes so poor they did not even

She also was a "Land Girl". When an air raid siren would sound, she and The idea behind this "madness" as she terms it now, was to stretch the cables so that incoming aircraft would tangle their propellers in the webbing and

There were shortages of absolutely everything. Mic says "if you saw a line of people waiting at a store or shop, you just got in it first and asked what people were waiting for later". Needles, sewing thread, food of all nature, particularly meat, was always in short supply. New clothes were almost out of the question. American servicemen were perceived as having so very much. They had cigarettes, chocolate and many other things that Londoners had not seen in months, perhaps even years.

She recalls much about those war years, including the determination of the British people to hang on at all costs.

"What a spirit we had" she chuckles, "we made jokes and we made the best of things. It was frequently humor that took us through".
