Nichols
Worth

By Nanalee Nichols

Last week my father was in the hospital following surgery. And, on the Monday that there was a big dark cloud system rolling in which dumped quite a bit of rain. I happened to be there at the hospital.

Now, I realize that the hospital was only following regulations, but something happened which is yet another illustration of the strange way the "system" seems to be working these days.

First, on the loud speaker system, they announced that the City of Paris was under a weather alert. Fine, no problem.

Then, as the storm began really whipping around, with lightning and thunder rolling, employees began going around to take down the little shelves in each room that are there to hold plants.

They carefully stored the little shelves and the brackets in a drawer. This, they explained, was to prevent them from becoming flying objects in the event of a tornado or severe wind.

Whoever came up with this one must be a little on the stupid side, or else they never saw the power of a tornado.

Each room has a huge window. And, if enough force came along to breach those plate glass windows, the shelves would be the very least of anyone's worries!

That much force would be moving around bedside tables, IV poles, suitcases, chairs and anything else that was in the hospital room.

And, I suspect the broken shards of glass would be the biggest threat of all.

I am aware that upon the approach of a tornado they would move patients, visitors and personnel to a safer, window free place such as a hall or bathroom...in which case, once more no one would have to worry about those little shelves!

I know that somewhere someone had the best of intentions...but I'll be darned if I can see the sense in that little action! Someone was trying their best to create a rule that would help protect people...but that rule just seems a little ridiculous in the face of the awesome power a tornado can wield!

I repeat, it's just one more of those strange little "glitches" that arise in the system of how things work these days. It's not significant, but it does seem a bit silly!

Country Cooking

By Judy Screws

One of the perks of this job is the nice people I get to meet. During the last few months, with county and local elections taking place, I have been fortunate enough to meet more new people than normal. Of all those who came in doing election business, only one admitted to being a cook. I was able to get him to promise that I could feature him as the country cook just as soon as the elections were all finished. I collected on that promise this week.

Mr. J.R. Lewis is the newly elected Red River County Justice of The Peace. He and his wife, Martha, own a grocery store and Bar B Q business in Clarksville. They will be selling the business so that he may devote all of his time to his new duties.

I really enjoyed meeting Mrs. Lewis, and visiting again with Mr. Lewis. The area of their business in which folks eat is quite compact, but every inch of space is utilized effectively. When they told me how much food they prepare fresh daily, I asked how many people they could seat. One of them, I'm not sure which, said, "We can seat 700 people, eleven at a time." I still don't know how many people they serve, but I'll bet that anyone who comes in has a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis have two daughters. LuAnne Major and her husband, Mike, have the Lewises only grandchild, Becky. Amy Lewis is the younger daughter. J.R. told me that when Amy was in elementary school she came home one afternoon and told him that she was supposed to carry a batch of cookies to class the next day so everyone could share them. He got out his tea cake recipe, they rolled them out, cut them out in all sorts of different shapes, used food coloring and decorated them so that she would enjoy sharing the pretty cookies with her classmates. When she came home from school the next day, she still had all her cookies still wrapped and uneaten. He said he asked her why her cookies weren't eaten. At this time in his story, I began to feel sorry for the little girl because I thought he was going to say that the teacher wouldn't use them because she thought they came from a bakery or some other disappointing thing for a young child, but it seems that Amy got to thinking about it and decided that she and her dad worked, too hard on those cookies and she just wanted to keep them herself, so she brought them back home and didn't open them in class.

Mr. Lewis does woodworking. He carves delicate and intricate pieces from bass wood. He must be unbelievably patient. He makes his own carving knives, since they must be razor sharp and he needs them to be just right. The woodcraft work I saw is beautiful. This was one of the very few times I felt envious of someone. I envy him the patience it takes to do such beautiful work.

J. R. loves to bake sweets. He is sharing his Orange Slice Cake, his Hot Fudge Pie, and his Old Fashioned Teacakes recipes with us this week. My mouth is watering already.

I want to thank Martha and J.R. Lewis for letting me visit with them this week. It was really a pleasure. Have a good week.

DAUGHTREY FARM & GARDEN IS NOW YOUR NEW DEALER FOR WOOD MOW'N MACHINE

In Lamar And Red River Counties

Woods introduced the first tractor powered rotary mower in 1947. And has since been a recognized leader in the rotary mower industry. Innovative quality products with proven dependability and service had always been the first priority at Woods. We have applied this philosophy, along with our experience, to Woods mow'n machine line of front mounted mowers so they meet the needs of both residential and commercial mowing applications. Let's be up front, our reputation combined with all the outstanding advantages of our front mowing technology makes the mow'n machine a piece of lawn equipment that out performs most others. But we didn't stop with one. We offer eight tractor models, five sizes of conventional mower decks and four sizes of mulching decks... plus a line of attachments that makes the mow'n machine an all year, all season performer.

Mow'n Machine Features

Hydro-transaxle direct drive
Simultaneous response increases maneuverability with fingertip "soft feel" to control levers. Hydro-transaxle oil system is dual filtered with closed sump priming, high pressure "loop" for total lubrication plus a low pressure supply and return for lower operating temperatures.

Choose your mower deck
Conventional side discharge or mulching deck, the choice is yours. Your next choice is cutting width. Conventional decks are available in 44", 48" offset, 52", 61" and 72" sizes. Mulching deck choices are 44", 52", 61" and 72". Decks are low profile design with easy access to belts and lubrication fittings. Rugged castor wheels offer puncture-proof foam filled tires. (Exception, 44" and 48" offset decks). Decks are formed from 8 gauge steel plate, (44" decks is 10 gauge) and electrically welded for maximum durability.

When zero is a plus
When simultaneously one wheel turns forward and the other in reverse, the mow'n machine will turn 360° within its own length.

You're in control
Thanks to the walk-through design and swing away control levers that lock the unit in neutral, the mow'n machine is easy to "hop on" and "hop off".

Blade belt tension is always correct.
Spring loaded idlers keep belt tension "always correct". Insures smooth operation, more drive capacity, longer belt life and minimum maintenance.

Thelma & Joe Stewart to Be Honored On 56th Anniversary

The children and grandchildren of Thelma and Joe Stewart of the Fulbright community will be honoring them with a reception in celebration of their 56th anniversary.

The reception will be held at the Clarksville High School Cafetorium at 1 p.m. on Saturday, May 7. The couple will be receiving friends and family, followed by a "Program of Thanksgiving" to their honor by their children and grandchildren.

Thelma Marie Fulbright married Joe Stewart in Clarksville in 1938. Thelma has lived in the Fulbright community all her life. In addition to being a housewife and raising her children, she retired from Red River Haven Nursing Home in 1985 where she worked for 17 years. Joe worked in farming and raising cattle, and has basically retired to yet raising some cattle and flower and vegetable gardening.

Children of the couple include Rev. Louis Wayne Stewart and wife Evelyn of Indianapolis, Indiana; and Carolyn Stewart Phillips and husband Bruce of Denton. The couple has five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

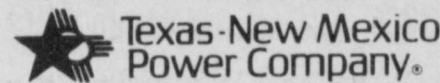

The family invites friends and other family members of the Fulbright, Clarksville, Bogata, Deport, Detroit and surrounding areas to come by as they say thank you to their parents in this celebration.
