

Nichols
Worth

By Nanalee Nichols

I don't know whether to have a really good laugh or cry...but these excerpts are definitely worth one or the other...or both. I was given a five page copy of a brief "history" of the world which is made up of actual student "bloopers" from essays and tests all over the nation. And, while most of the time it seems clear these students knew what they wanted to say they were either a little confused or didn't spell very well!

Here are some of the ones that are funniest, or at least printable.

The inhabitants of Egypt were called Mummies. They lived in the Sarah Dessert and traveled by Camelot. The climate of the Sarah is such that the inhabitants have to live elsewhere.

Pharaoh forced the Hebrew slaves to make bread without straw. Moses led them to the Red Sea where they made unleavened bread, which is bread made without any ingredients.

Socrates was a famous Greek teacher who went around giving people advice. They killed him. Socrates died from an overdose of wedlock.

In the Olympic Games Greeks ran races, jumped, hurled the biscuits and threw the java!

The tale of William Tell tells how he shot an arrow through an apple while standing on his son's head.

In the Renaissance Martin Luther was nailed to the church door at Wittenberg for selling papal indulgences. He died a horrible death, being excommunicated by a bull.

Queen Elizabeth was a success. When she exposed herself before her troops they all shouted "hurrah". Then her navy went out and defeated the Spanish Armadillo.

One of the causes of the Revolutionary War was the English put tacks in their tea.

At Plymouth Rock, the Indians squabs had porpoises on their backs.

Delegates from the original thirteen states formed the Contented Congress. Benjamin Franklin had gone to Boston carrying all his clothes in his pocket and a loaf of bread under each arm. He invented electricity by rubbing cats backwards and declared "a horse divided against itself cannot stand". (I won't argue with THAT statement!).

He died in 1790, and is still dead!

And, finally, the First World War was caused by the assignation of the Arch-Duck by a surf, ushered in a new error in the annals of human history.

There isn't enough room in this column to continue. But, there is one last thing I need to tell you. These were written by, not very young students...but students from the 8th grade to college level. Hence my indecision as to whether to laugh or cry!

From The Pastor's Heart

Did you know that God does not change? He is the same today as he was two thousand years ago, 20 million years ago, and he will be the same 50 billion years from now. When Jesus walked the face of this Earth, he came to show us what God was like. In Acts 10:38, we are told the went around doing good and healing all who were oppressed by the devil. God was interested in bringing new freedom, deliverance and joy into the lives of his people who were held captive by numerous ailments.

Amazingly, though, He did very "few" miracles in his own hometown. The scriptures teach us He was unable to work his power because of the "unbelief" of the people. What was the problem? They were too familiar with Jesus....as they had come to know him in their immediate surroundings. He was "just the carpenter's son" that they had always known. Because of their limited perception of who Jesus was, they were unable to experience the marvelous power of healing and deliverance that countless multitudes were enjoying all around the region.

If God is still the same today, do you think it is possible that in some ways, we have grown to familiar with our limited perception of who He really is, and have restricted Him from working in our lives the way He would truly desire? Perhaps what we need is a new vision and some fresh faith in the power of God that is available to us as believers.

Remember, Jesus assured us that "All things are possible to them that believe." Think about it....if God created the heavens and the earth, what problem could you be facing that is too big for God to handle?
