FDR Pledges Resources of US to France

President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in a 26-minute address broadcast in seven languages and heard Monday over the entire world, struck the keynote of the course of the United States and the Western Hemisphere in the world of war and alarm. He put in words the sympathy of the New World for the democracies of Europe and stated that the material resources of the United States would be made available to them in their struggle. In serving the Allies, the President said resources and production would be geared to protect democracy in our own borders and meet any emergency of defense.

The President was speaking at graduation exercises of the University of Virginia and re-wrote his speech after the entrance Monday morning of Italy into the war against France and Britain. He told of the efforts of the United States to influence Italy to preserve peace and strongly condemned Italy's "striking a dagger into the back of a neighbor." He was wildly cheered when he said the prayers of the New World were with the French in their gallant stand.

In reviewing historic crisis which the United States has faced the President stated that he was convinced of the utter danger of allowing the nation to become an island in a world ruled by a philosophy of force.

Two Brothers Kill Each Other in Gun Fight

Marvin and J. B. Andrews, two brothers, were dead and another brother, Albert Andrews, and a daughter of J. B. Andrews were in a Mt. Pleasant hospital with bullet wounds Saturday following a gun battle near Cookville.

According to witnesses, J. B. Andrews and his family were at supper when Marvin Andrews came to the house and an argument developed. Marvin produced a pistol and began shooting at his brother. J. B. ran into another room, picked up a pistol and began shooting back. Both men were struck four times and fell across each other and died together.

Albert Andrews and little Billie Gene Andrews were caught in the crossfire. The latter was wounded in the abdomen. Albert was struck in the left arm, the bullet shattering the bone.

J. B. Andrews, 27, is survived by his widow and two children, his daughter, and one son, Bruce Johnson Andrews. Marvin, 25, is survived by his wife and both leave their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jodie Andrews; three brothers, Floyd of Hereford; Albert and Herman of Titus county, and three sisters, Mrs. Beuna Dorthy of Shamrock; Mrs. Josephine Mankin of Talco, and Mrs. Blanche Tinker of Cookville.

Motorcycle Races Called Off Due to Rain Sunday

A large number of motorcycle race fans were disappointed Sunday when a downpour of rain started just as the racing machines were getting warmed up for the start.

This is the second time the race has been called off due to rain.

The club has set Sunday, June 23, for the next race date, and will have the same riders back on that date who were present Sunday.

Irish Potato Crop Big in Titus County

More than twenty cars of Irish potatoes, grown by Titus county farmers, have been shipped out of the county during the past few days, with prices varying from $1 to $1.50 per 100 pounds.

More shipments are expected as the harvest continues, which will mean quite a bit of extra cash for Titus county farmers.

Lydia Man Killed by Shot in Chest; Neighbor Arrested

Bond of $1,000 was set for Obie Tutt, 28 year old farmer of the Lydia community, Red River county, after his arrest in connection with the death of Will Talley, 54, also of Lydia. Talley's body was found shot through the chest and sheriff's deputies investigating are said to have stated a knife was clasped in his right hand. There was said to have been an old disagreement between the two men.

Talley's wife and several children survive and Tutt also has a family.

Insect Control Demonstration on Tuesday

Farmers of the Rugby community will be presented a plaque by the East Texas Chamber of Commerce on next Tuesday, June 18, for their work in the organization's one-variety cotton contest, the presentation to be made by Elmore Torn, head of the agricultural department of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, in connection with an insect control program, sponsored by the Extension Service of A. & M. College, the East Texas Chamber of Commerce and the Clarksville Chamber of Commerce.

Program for the day will open at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning with an educational picture on insect control at the Bogata Theatre, and this meeting and those to follow are free to the general public. Farmers generally are urged to attend, and business men will be welcome. The show will be followed by short tour of the Rugby section, where strip-cropping, terracing and terrace outlets will be inspected, the plaque presented, and implement dealers will be privileged to show what their machines will do in spreading poison for the control of insects.

With fair weather prevailing between now and next Tuesday, farmers should be up with their work, and a great crowd present to receive the benefit of the information that will be available.

Road and Bridge Funds Refunded at Court Meeting

Titus County Commissioners' Court refunded $30,000 Road and Bridge Fund warrants, converting them into interest-bearing warrants at a lower rate of interest, in a meeting Monday in the office of County Judge C. T. Neugent.

Warrants were divided into two groups, one group including $10,000 WPA machinery warrants and the other consisting of $20,000 road and bridge construction warrants. Each group was issued at a 6 per cent interest rate and they were combined to refund into bonds at an interest rate not to exceed 4½ per cent.

Neither group of warrants are due at the present time, but mature at various intervals between now and April 10, 1949, and refunding was through the C. N. Burt Company.

Populations of Surrounding Cities Show Increase

Paris, Lamar county seat, leads all towns in this area of Texas near her size in population totals, according to census reports which give Paris a total of 18,660, a gain of 3,011 since 1930, when it was 15,649.

Other towns included in the survey with population figures of 1930 and 1940 are given below:

	1930	1940
Denison	13,850	15,555
Marshall	16,203	18,401
Sherman	15,713	17,143
Greenville	12,407	13,811
Terrell	9,100	10,147
McKinney	7,307	7,307
Bonham	5,655	6,347
Commerce	4,267	4,590
Kaufman	2,279	2,654
Clarksville	2,952	4,191
Mt. Vernon	1,222	1,443

Nazi Dragnet Drawn Closer Around Paris

Announcement Thursday that the French would declare Paris an open city and would not fight in their capital against the Germans confirmed theory that the Allies are gambling for time to hold the Nazis until American aid of planes and guns arrive. The French Thursday were still holding the Germans before Paris where the fight was to be continued unless threat of being trapped forced them to retreat behind Paris, where the battle would continue. Decision not to defend Paris was made to save the city from destruction by German guns and bombs.

Italy Monday took the plunge when Mussolini declared war on England and France, but activity of the Italians has been confined to bombing raids on territorial possessions. An Italian army was reported massing on the French frontier and action was expected.

An appeal from Premier Reynaud of France, written on the day of Italy's declaration of war, was received in America Thursday, carrying an appeal for all aid short of an expeditionary force. State department officials considered the appeal answered by President Roosevelt's pledge of aid in his Monday speech.

Britain was rushing thirty divisions to France's aid on Thursday and the English air force was carrying out widespread raids of German and Italian objectives.

R. G. WATERS SEEKS SUPPORT TALCO VOTERS

R. G. (Dick) Waters, candidate for Congress, made his first campaign appearance in Talco Friday, launching a strong attack on the record of Wright Patman, incumbent and candidate for re-election. Waters spoke at length on Patman's connection with a speaking bureau and addresses he made under sponsorship of the McKesson-Robbins drug concern.

He outlined the uncertainty and importance of world affairs, cautioning voters against adhering too closely to the policy of fearing to "change horses in midstream," citing the example of France and England where he said such a policy was almost fatal.

Waters said Patman had introduced 69 bills during his twelve years in congress and had only 12 of them passed. He attacked Patman's record of service to veterans, charging that Patman's inflationary ideas almost defeated the soldier bonus bill and said Patman opposed the Vinson bill under which the bonus was paid. Waters admitted that he himself was a war veteran but did not ask for special consideration on this account. He deplored the use by office holders of franked (postage free) letters in distributing campaign material.

In behalf of his own aspiration, Waters told of his efforts in favor of old age assistance and his ideas for solving the problems of unemployment and agriculture.

Talco Sewing Room Closed Temporarily by Government

Talco's sewing room project was closed on Friday, due to a 10 per cent reduction in employees by the government. Only 10 women were employed in the local room at the time of the reduction, and according to rules set up by the government, a sewing room project must have ten or more employed. When the reduction came, this naturally cut Talco below ten employees, forcing the project to close temporarily.

According to information received by Mayor C. E. Jones from government officials, the project will probably be closed only temporarily, and will likely be opened by the first of July.

Business men of Talco have carried their end of the expense for its operation. Closing of the project was entirely through the government.

Field Work Resumed After Soaking Rain

Farm work in many fields in this area has been resumed after being halted by slow, soaking rains during the first of the week that gave farmers a brief rest and put the soil in better condition for cultivation and growth of crops.

Oat crop is being harvested this week in some sections and a fair harvest reported. Some farmers are also plowing up Irish potatoes and say the yield is good. Gardens are growing well and there is much canning underway in practically all communities.

The rains brought relief from early summer weather of last week that sent thermometers to a high degree.

Cotton and corn continue a healthy growth, corn especially coming out of the stunted stage caused by early and excessive rainfall. Farmers are fighting a winning battle against foulness and will have fields clean in a few days if the weather permits.

Advertising Salesman Tells His Side of It

This is not an editorial. It is a leaf torn from the memory of that local advertising man, who, week after week, darkens the doors of local merchants and pleads, exhorts and exhausts himself trying to get them to invest just a small per cent of their profits in something that is surer than sin to find them out and have them found out.

Telling a merchant that it pays to advertise in his hometown newspaper is like telling a farmer that it pays to put manure under his potatoes, a blind man that he cannot see or a civil engineer that water runs down hill. They know it pays to advertise, but you'd be surprised at the arguments presented and the various attempts that are made to evade honest-to-goodness advertising.

A farmer puts manure under his potatoes because he knows the roots of that potato will come that way and because he knows it will pay the roots of the potatoes to come that way. He doesn't put the manure in a bag, tie it on a stick and suspend it over the potato vines. But there are known cases where merchants have spent good money to get people to come to town—not to come to their places of business, but just come to town—when, if they had spent that same money advertising what they had to sell at attractive prices, they would have brought the same people to town and sold their merchandise at a profit.

If we would only wake up to the simple fact that we are the town and that when we advertise ourselves and our merchandise we are selling our town to our customers. If we would invest a small per cent of our profits in telling people what we have to sell. If we would only admit that fair prices on good merchandise will beat any short-lived scheme in pulling crowds to town and sending them away pleased. If we would only realize that we, by our own actions, can make or break a town—then our town would take on a new growth in business, our churches would gain in attendance and our schools swell with new importance. Out of the dead dullness of uncertainty would come a better and more progressive town, and people for miles around would become alive to that town.

Charles Singleton Opens New Station

Charles Singleton, former operator of the Cities Service Station at the Spruill location, has built an attractive station on the new highway just south of the Talco gin and is now open for business.

He is now handling Sinclair gas and oil and invites his old customers and new ones to stop in and try his new products. Your attention is called to his advertisement in this issue.

Birth Certificates Can be Obtained from J. P. Office

Texas State Department of Health has provided that all local Justices of the Peace who are now registrars for birth certificates, can issue them by applications from parents at any local justice of the peace's office.

The justice then sends a duplicate application to Austin to be kept on record and issues parents a certificate without having to wait for it to be sent from Austin. The certificates are free upon request.

Justice of the Peace J. W. Edwards has just received a number of blank certificates and has them for those wishing to make application.

Jehovah's Witness Sect Visits Bogata

Several members of the Jehovah's Witness sect, which has attracted wide attention, visited Bogata Saturday and offered their literature. Three workers were on street corners attempting to pass out literature with no success. They lingered only a short time and were on their way when city officers started to question them.

Reaction of those on the crowded streets was to completely ignore the sect members. Their literature was refused in every instance observed. All passersby seemed well informed as to who the unwanted visitors were, but there was no threat of mob action. No crowds collected around them and no one showed the slightest interest in them.

On finding that Bogata was being made a target for efforts of the Witnesses, who have repeatedly refused to indicate allegiance to the American flag, officers started to pick up the workers for questioning, but found that they had become disgruntled at being unable to attract attention and departed.

Reports are that workers have visited rural sections in this area and played their recorded speeches in homes, but the movement which has caused much excitement in metropolitan sections, has attracted no interest here. The wholly American populace is unimpressed by their doctrine of theoretic government and undisturbed by any Fifth Column threat.

Test Preparing in North Red River

Last lease is reported signed and location made for a wildcat test two miles east of Woodland in North Red River county. The well is on a 5,000-acre block in the Whitfield-Moore survey and the Kansas-Oklahoma Petroleum Corporations is reported preparing to move in rig. Contract calls for a minimum depth of 2,500 feet or production.

A second test is in view in the same area, with Albert Wooley of Clarksville reporting completion of a block by J. B. White, Dallas independent operator. The block is in the Elizabeth Smith, Wm. Slingland and J. W. Webb surveys and the location about two miles north-east of the well abandoned some time ago by Harrison and Abercrombie after some oil showing. A 2,500 foot test is in prospect.

J. L. Romine Believes in Advertising

J. L. Romine, owner and operator of the Romine's Pharmacy in Talco is a strong believer in advertising.

Recently Mr. Romine carried four different display advertisements in The Talco Times in one issue. One of the ads was advertising his Cabells ice cream.

You will also notice that Mr. Romine carries an advertisement for his business in every issue of this paper.

Sam Ellison, local barber sustained a cut on the left wrist Friday while removing a window pane from its frame.

Two stitches applied by Dr. A. A. Smith were required to close the wound, Mr. Ellison is doing nicely, aside from a little pain.

Two Wells Starting in Talco Field

Humble Co. is nearing completion on the Penn fee No. 19 in West Talco. Their next location is expected to be on the P. G. Dawson No. 11 in the same area.

Also in West Talco McCutchins Drilling Co. is rigging up for Texas Co. on the Barker No. 14.

In the east end, Bill Hinton is rigging up on the M. and H. lease. The potential for the last well completed on that tract produced 550 barrels in a 24 hour test.

B. G. Byers set pipe on the Iowa Payne lease Wednesday night. His next location has not been announced.

FARM NOTES

JAS. W. McCOWN, Co. Agent

Along about November, when egg prices are high and pullets are getting into full production, sore-head and foul pox is inclined to break out in poultry flocks. When it does, down goes egg production, and possibly a full moult of the layers will result. This just about takes the profit out of egg production. No flock is immune against this trouble as birds are liable to introduce it on a premise.

Poultry affected with foul pox shows three typical forms of the disease: First, raised brown wart-like scabs on combs and wattles. Second, grayish-yellow membranes in mouth and windpipe. Third, a discharge from the nostrils or eyes with enlargement of one or both eyes.

A stitch in time is the best course to deal with this trouble. Vaccinate when pullets are 6 to 12 weeks of age. Get the vaccine from companies that prepare it. Pull three to five feathers from the lower part of the thigh on the outside of either leg and apply the vaccine to the broken skin with a brush that comes for that purpose.

Are your broilers or fryers thin or droopy? Do they get pale, weak, unable to walk, and die? Do your hens show the same general symptoms? Are they idle, quiet and sleepy? If so, suspect worms, but don't guess. Kill one or two of the poorest, split open the intestine from end to end and see for yourself. Flat worms, six to eight inches, may be found—they are tape worms. The round worm is the most common kind.

If your poultry is on ground that has been used for poultry year after year, you will likely find worms. This is more apt to be true this year, since damp weather is favorable. Again a stitch in time is the best course. Poultry should be rotated to new ground and give the old run time to be plowed up so that the infestation can die out.

If worms are present the most effective treatment is to give each bird a capsule containing nicotine sulphate and kamala. This will rid them of both tape and round worms. These capsules are prepared by a number of companies and can be found at drug stores. If round worms only are present, a good treatment is to add two pounds of tobacco dust, that is prepared for this purpose, to one hundred pounds of ground feed or mash. This is to be kept before the birds for three or four weeks; give a rest for three weeks and repeat again if necessary. If laying hens are given either of these treatments, there is a possibility of them going into a moult.

Plaintiff Upheld in Franklin Title Case

Judgment was rendered for the plaintiff in the case of Boyt Williams et al. vs. Humble Oil and Refining Co. et al. for trespass to try title Tuesday in District Court. The suit involved three acres of land in the Owens estate.

It was the first case tried in this term of District Court.—Mt. Vernon Optic-Herald.

Should a hobo knock at your back door and then eye you suspiciously when you make your appearance, don't fly off the handle and do something rash. He may be sizing you up and getting your number to determine if you are a Nazi sympathizer or spy. The International Itinerant Workers Union, Hoboes of America, has called upon its claimed 1,025,000 members to help protect their country by furnishing tips of undercover movements of saboteurs and spies.

"Every dog," says Shakespeare, "has its day." But it was a long time after that statement was made before fathers in America were honored with a special day. That day, this year, is next Sunday. It is dad's day and let's make him remember it pleasantly by honoring him in some special manner. Dad is, you know, the fellow who pays the bills and gets blamed for all the bad blood in the family. PUBLIC OPINION REVERSED

It appears that public opinion in America with respect to the European war has almost reversed itself within the past thirty days. Declaring our neutrality and passing cash and carry legislation nine months ago, our Red Cross began rendering whatever assistance it could to the civilian population of war-torn Europe, and we reiterated our promises to keep out of the European conflict. But this country has not been neutral in thought and expression—our sympathies have been with the Allies.

When Germany started over-running Norway, Belgium and Holland, and the stories of machine-gunning and bombing civilians filtered in, our blood began to boil. Success of the great Nazi war machine in Northern France caused this nation to realize that we could no longer remain unprepared, and since then billions of dollars have been voted to build and equip an army and navy that will be capable of defending this nation.

With Italy's entrance into the war, Americans have lost the last vestige of any neutrality they might have entertained. Our sense of fair play has imbibed us against Italy, who attacks at a moment when France has her back to the wall and is fighting for her very existence.

If France can hold out a while longer, America may be able to help the Allies with planes and guns, but America has no trained and equipped army to send to Europe now, and there is no time in which to train one. If we entered the war in the Atlantic we would probably find Japan at our backs in the Pacific, ready to take what she has long craved. Besides, no one goes elephant hunting with an air gun.

Present-day war is not only of men, but highly-trained men, machines and ships. These we must and will have, but it will take time. It will also be a complete reversal of seven years of Pollyanna policies in which the people have leaned on the government to the tune of twenty-five billion dollars. Now the government must lean on the people. There must be sacrifices, a tightening of belts, a lower standard of living, longer work hours, much higher taxes, and a patriotism that will brook no Fifth column activities, no slackers, no strikes, and no Europeanisms of political doctrine. Ours is a Democracy of free speech, free press and religious liberty, bought at a great price by our forefathers, and we propose to keep it so.

Perhaps the greatest thing he appreciates about this special day is that the day comes on Sunday when the banks are closed.

There is a great deal of difference in the sale of a dollar's worth of sugar at a local grocery and in the sale of a year's subscription to The Times. In the first instance the trade is closed when the sale is made, and it is then up to the purchaser to keep that sugar dry and away from the kerosene can. In the sale of a subscription to The Times the editor enters into an agreement with his subscriber to supply him with the news of the area for a period of one year, and the transaction is not completed until the period for which the subscription is paid has expired. The editor always looks upon his subscribers as personal friends, and gets a thrill out of the fact that his paper is a welcome guest in most of the homes of the community. A new subscriber adds incentive to his efforts to produce a newspaper that the community is glad to own, and a renewed subscription makes him feel that after all, maybe his efforts to do a good job of editing and reporting are appreciated, because the old subscriber has renewed his subscription. The Times is duly appreciative of its large and growing list of subscribers and assures them this newspaper is more interested in them, their welfare and their problems than any other publication anywhere can possibly be.

Newspapers coming to this editorial desk reveal that in several towns, charges of fifth column activities are being made against various citizens, and that statements denying these rumors are being printed to set at naught such reports. During these days of war excitement it will be well for all to keep a check on utterances calculated to injure character and reputa-

It is said that a man holding public office is one of the last among the last to be drafted into the army in case of war, which reminds this column to remind ambitious readers that Saturday, June 15, is the last day to file application as a candidate for office. Of course, it is not such a sure stop as getting married, but if one is lucky enough to win he certainly is setting pretty.

From the Back Files of The Talco Times

Week of June 11, 1937

A boiler blast in the townsite on the GMW well shook East Talco on Thursday night, causing a narrow escape from death by ten workmen. Talco had been given 17 units of credit at the close of the school term by the State Department of Education.

Workmen had started cutting of a right-of-way for an electric power line to the new city water well. Twenty-six new street lights had been purchased by the city and were being installed by the Community Public Service Co.

Talco's big water celebration set for June 23, was moving along rapidly. Several neighboring towns had been invited to send delegations.

Week of June 12, 1936

Talco's new oil field had logged ten producing wells that week, with more interest being shown in the townsite.

A wolf den had been discovered six miles west of Talco in Franklin county by Otis Hall, 16 year old youth. Eight pups were taken in the raid.

Talco city officials had made a trip to Kilgore on Monday of that week to confer with officials there regarding methods of operating the city's affairs.

An unofficial census count had been given out that week, listing Talco's residents at 1200.

Southwest Telephone Co. had announced the leasing of a building from Ed Holder for a telephone exchange.

First Baptist Church

J. W. HARPER, Pastor

The revival meeting at the First Baptist Church closed Sunday night with the big baptizing. Seventeen were added to the church during the meeting. The church was greatly revived and strengthened. This meeting was a continuation of the revival that has been going on all spring. The pastor has baptized twenty-two since the revival fires began to burn early this spring. More than sixty members have been added in all. There is a reason why we are having this great revival spirit. If you do not understand it, come and find out why.

Young Unmarried Men Told to Get Off Relief, Join Army

Young unmarried men in several states in the East have been told by relief authorities that so long as there are openings available in the army and navy, for which recruits are now wanted, they will not be given any further aid, says the Mt. Pleasant Times.

It is reported that many of these men have already found employment in private industry, and it is expected that by such methods the relief rolls of the nation will be substantially reduced in the future.

Because it has been announced that military training will be part of the program in the CCC camps in the future, it is becoming hard to fill the quotas, and if relief work were placed under the direct supervision of the Army, there would be thousands of people who would find something else to do, it is reported from various sections of the country by those who are in close touch with the situation.
