Cardio-Pulmonary Course Set

A course in the techniques of cardio-pulmonary resuscitation will be taught at Paris Junior College on Tuesday, July 17, from 6 to 10 p.m. in the Student Center Ballroom. Sponsors of the program are the PJC Continuing Education Division and the American Heart Association. Paris Junior College is charging a $3 fee to be used for maintenance of the mannequins and to purchase equipment.

Cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) is a method of restoring a heartbeat to victims of cardiac arrest. It is a combination of artificial respiration and chest compression.

"Many lives have been saved by those who know the cardio-pulmonary techniques and can perform them while professional help is on the way," said Mrs. Bill Jones, director of continuing education at PJC. "You can be a life saver, and the life you save may be someone you love," she added.

Reservations may be made or more information obtained by calling the PJC Continuing Education Office, 785-7661, extension 145, or mailing a check for $3 payable to Paris Junior College.

The examination will be given at Texarkana from June 29 through July 6, 1979. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, national origin, sex, political affiliations, or any other non-merit factor.

Wendell Reeder

Joins Simmental

Association

Wendell Reeder, of Bogata, has recently obtained a lifetime membership in the American Simmental Association.

"We want to offer a hearty welcome," said Executive Secretary Earl B. Peterson from the ASA office in Bozeman, Montana.

"This Association provides a varied range of services for the Simmental producer," Peterson said. "Recognition of genetic trait leaders and the publishing of the National Simmental Sire Summary, with corresponding data on growth and maternal traits offers the cattleman a valuable tool in his management practices."

ASA also maintains an award program to honor outstanding cows in the breed. "We feel the cow makes the difference and this recognition helps producers identify the superior females in their herds," Peterson added.

Since establishment in 1968, the American Simmental Association numbers its membership at almost 12,000 and the number of animals processed for registration has exceeded the 500,000 figure.

Reeder was attracted to the Simmental breed when he saw them at a show where his children were also showing cattle. He liked their great size and good looks, and is also impressed with their milk production and other outstanding maternal qualities.

300 Animals Vaccinated In Talco After Cat Bites Girl

Approximately 300 dogs and cats were vaccinated Saturday in Talco by Dr. Mike Reed of Mount Vernon after a Talco resident, Tonya Dunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dunn, was bitten by a cat which was confirmed to have rabies.

An emergency meeting of the Talco City Council resulted in the vaccination program, which was provided at no cost to the owner.

All animals should be vaccinated yearly, but the vaccination can last for up to five years in a dog, but only one year in a cat, according to a local authority.

Last week, a positive case of rabies in a skunk was confirmed by the Texas Department of Health. This is the first confirmed rabies case to occur in Franklin County this year, according to Reed. The infected skunk was found south of Mt. Vernon.

Only one exposure occurred from this case that was known, a four-year-old Eskimo Spitz dog. The dog is currently being treated for exposure to rabies and will be confined on his owner's premises for the next 60 days.

Dr. Clifton Shepler, Zoonosis Control Officer with Public Health Region 7, says that skunk rabies is becoming much more common. Dr. Shepler says that Region 7, which consists of 23 counties in Northeast Texas, has had 50 confirmed cases of animal rabies through the second week of June, 1979. According to Shepler, this is approximately a 100 percent increase in rabies over the same period of 1978.

Shepler also stated that so far this year some 71 persons have been treated for rabies in the region.

According to Dr. Shepler the best way to prevent rabies in man is to keep all pet dogs and cats vaccinated against rabies on an annual basis. The pet dog or cat is the animal closest to man and is the animal most likely to transmit the disease to humans.

Wild animals accounted for an overwhelming majority of the 1978 rabies cases, but nine dogs, 17 cats, 11 cows and 13 horses were included in the statewide total.

Largest number of cases in wildlife was diagnosed in skunks, a normally retiring black and white creature which lives in close proximity to man. Skunks accounted for 449 cases of rabies last year and traditionally will total approximately 80 percent of Texas cases annually according to Dr. Foy V. McCasland, chief of the Bureau of Veterinary Public Health of the Texas Department of Health.

Since skunks do live close to man-particularly in rural areas and small towns-there is always the chance that a pet and a rabid skunk will make contact. Each year, many pets have to be destroyed because fights with skunks and other wild animals which have rabies, said Dr. McCasland.

Although skunks and other wild animals-called "exotics"-may be pretty and apparently make interesting pets, the Texas Department of Health is strongly against this practice.

Skunks born in captivity have come down with rabies.

The incubation period of rabies in skunks may be from approximately 20 days to as long as 18 months. "This extreme variation of incubation and infectivity makes the skunk an insidious time bomb as a household pet," said Dr. McCasland.

The disease may not be apparent in a skunk until the damage is done, said Dr. McCasland. It has been demonstrated that skunks are capable of excreting virus in their saliva as long as 18 days before death and at least eight days before the onset of clinical signs of rabies infections.

Rabies is endemic in wildlife, and the skunk is the number one target. Since 1960 skunks have become the most frequently reported rabid animal and the most common source of human rabies in the United States.

Practicing veterinarians often are confronted with clients who have or want wild animals for pets. Dr. McCasland has urged veterinarians to refrain from de-scenting them or otherwise encouraging the keeping of skunks for pets.

He said there is no rabies vaccine approved for use in skunks, or other wild animals, and there is little evidence that any vaccine is effective in protecting them for rabies.

Adding to his argument, Dr. McCasland says a skunk owner can expect to be bitten by the pet. In one study, he said, 58 percent of pet skunks had bitten people. In households with pet skunks, he added, 21 percent of all family members were bitten by their pet skunks.

"We have also had a large number of humans to take the shots because of exposure to rabid cattle and horses," says Shepler. He warns that change in personality or behavior in a pet as well as unexplained symptoms of paralysis could indicate a possible rabies infection and advises anyone having a pet or livestock exhibiting these symptoms should seek immediate consultation with their veterinarian.

Local Newspapers Will

Publish Early For July 4th

The Deport Times, Blossom Times, Bogata News and Talco Times will publish early next week because of the July 4th holiday, which falls on Wednesday.

Deadline for all advertising will be at noon Tuesday, and deadline for news will be at 5 p.m. Monday. The papers will be printed early on Wednesday, July 4th and will go into the post office boxes and on the rural routes on Thursday morning, July 5th. Normally the papers are printed late Wednesday afternoon, but the holiday makes the early printing necessary.

Use Caution When

Handling Fireworks

Fireworks stands that have begun business along roadsides in Texas this year should be a reminder not only that July Fourth is near, but also that fireworks bodily injured at least 6,139 people in America last year.

That statistic includes 1,207 serious eye injuries. Most resulted to some degree in permanent vision loss or impairment, Texas Society To Prevent Blindness (TSPB) spokesman Bobby Williams said.

Most accidents-about 60 percent-occurred to children younger than 15. In one Texas accident, the child was merely a bystander not using the fireworks that damaged his eye, the TSPB Eye Safety chairman added.

The statistics, compiled by the Consumer Product Safety Commission, are probably low, since they include only people who were treated in hospital emergency rooms, Williams pointed out.

"Such injuries are needless," he said. "The TSPB urges that all fireworks be restricted to licensed public display."

Most eye injuries were caused by bottle rockets and most injuries, according to the American Pyrotechnics Association, were caused by improperly handling fireworks.

"But all fireworks are dangerous," Williams stressed. "To take only two examples, sparklers burn at about 1,500 degrees Fahrenheit, and punks can cause lacerations, punctures and severe burns."

Baling Excess Forage Recommended

Due to good moisture conditions over much of Texas, forages are becoming more abundant. Handling excess forage is a key management decision for stockmen. Don Dorsett, area forage specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, advises baling excess forage rather than leaving it for livestock to graze in late summer when grazing usually gets short.

Although leaving excess forage for later grazing is a normal grass management practice because it is a free, simple technique, there are some drawbacks, contends

Dorsett. For example, grass protein, palatability and digestibility drop sharply when grass accumulates in pastures. Spot grazing results, with livestock preferring tender, high protein, young growth in a previously grazed area.

Both leaf area and crude protein drop sharply as grass ages. Studies with coastal bermudagrass have shown leaf area dropping from 86 to 51 percent and crude protein decreasing from 19 to 9.7 percent as cutting intervals increased from three to 12 weeks, respectively.

Dorsett says baling preserves a grass' nutritive value for later use. It also provides young grass growth for livestock.

Baling, however, reduces the drought insurance aspect of a grazing system, although hay from excess forage early in the season could be fed if grazing becomes short.

From a livestock nutrition standpoint, Dorsett recommends baling excess forage now for good quality hay.

With proper care, most major home appliances render long and faithful service. Some homeowners trade them in on new models too soon because of a minor malfunction that could be easily corrected. According to consumer specialists at North Carolina State University, life span of some common household items are: sewing machine, 23 years; gas or electric range, 16 years; refrigerator, 16 years; freezer, 15 years; clothes dryer, 14 years; automatic washer, 11 years; TV set, 10 years.

Before replacing a major home appliance, determine the projected life span — then decide whether it's more economical to have it repaired or replaced.

The bride is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Martin and will be a junior at Rivercrest High School this fall. Mrs. Lynn Carroll and the late Milton Carroll are the parents of the groom. Carroll is a 1976 graduate of Rivercrest High School and is employed by Dorchester Pipeline Company.

Traditional pre-nuptial music was provided by Mona Roberts on the piano. She accompanied Mrs. R. J. Fitch and Mrs. Donald Jones, who sang "You Light Up My Life" and "We've Only Just Begun."

Forming the focal point of the wedding scene was a wrought iron archway decorated with greenery, tiny white flowers, white and mint green ribbon, accented on either wide by Greek urns filled with fresh gladioli and carnations in white and mint green and fresh greenery. Matching spiral candelabras entwined with greenery lighted the scene.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her uncle, Gerald Martin.

For her wedding she wore a gown of chantilly lace. The fitted bodice veiled with lace was fashioned with a decollete neckline edged with scallops outlined with seed pearls. The long fitted sleeves of chantilly were bordered with seed pearls. Tiers of lace formed the floor-length skirt which extended into a chapel-length train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a bandeau headpiece that was trimmed with lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of mint green and white carnations with baby's breath and white satin streamers.

Mrs. Ralph Oglesby of Stinnett, sister of the groom, served as matron of honor. Amy Martin, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. Frank Rhoades And Rodeo

Some people just won't quit, and Frank Rhoades is one of those people. Frank started out in the rodeo business as a bull rider. That was his profession until he jokingly volunteered to take the place of a missing rodeo clown one night. The next thing he knew, he was out in the arena with paint on his face and a big mean bull running toward him.

He clowned and rode for about five years before he decided on clowning altogether.

He is probably the only man to ever both clown and ride in the National Finals Rodeo, and has been on goodwill tours in Mexico, and performed in Cuba, as well as about twenty-five states.

Frank, in between rodeos, has established himself in Deport. He's tried hydroponic tomato growing, a little ranching, and recently opened a grocery store in Deport. He always says these things are for retirement, when he gets too old to rodeo.

"Retirement" was hurried up recently. Frank can't count the number of broken bones he's suffered in his years of bull fighting, but a broken neck put an end to clowning. Doctors said "No more" and most folks figured that Frank would be running his grocery store permanently.

Not so, now Frank is a rodeo judge. He's bound to have enough experience to know what is going on down there in the arena, but it sure looks different sitting in the stands instead of looking one of those ugly critters eyeball to eyeball.

He returned to judge the Jasper Lions Rodeo recently, which is the rodeo he sustained his neck injury in. There he was presented with a plaque by Neil Gay, producer of the rodeo, for his courage.

Frank Rhoades isn't finished with the world of rodeo yet, and most folks have gotten the idea that he probably never will be.

Disease Attacking Grapes

The most damaging disease of grapes in Texas is black rot, according to Bob Moody, County Extension Agent. The disease is currently causing severe damage in vineyards in East Texas.

The disease is first noticed when brownish-red lesions with light tan centers form on the leaves. The greatest loss, however, is when the fruit becomes infected. Infected fruit may shed or shrivel on the vine.

Black rot on grapes can be controlled by following a thorough spray program. Spraying should begin in the spring when runners are about three inches long. Benomyl is probably the most effective fungicide on the market for controlling the disease. However, Maneb is also effective and gives control of several other grape diseases. Applying a fungicide before infection occurs is the key to control, Moody emphasizes.

Muscadine grapes have some resistance to black rot. Therefore, they are not damaged as much by the disease as the American and American-French hybrids. Label directions should be strictly followed when applying fungicides.

Early Music In prehistory, the harp probably developed from the archer's bow and was played over a covered pit to add resonance. In Mesopotamia, musicians played flutes as well as drums and rattles.

USDA Assesses Cost Of Food Program

The U.S. Department of Agriculture will contract for a major study of the cost and impact of its child care food program. Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman said today.

The study will determine the program's administrative and food service costs and the relationship of costs to meal quality. It will also identify the barriers to program participation, including the effect of permitting only licensed or approved institutions to participate.

The study is required by Public Law 95-627, enacted in November, which made the child care food program permanent. In addition to the information required by Congress, the study will determine the impact of existing child care food programs on states, child care providers, children and their families.

Last year, federal cash and food assistance provided to states under this program helped serve meals to more than 600,000 children nonresidential child care institutions.

The study will be carried out in three phases. The first phase will assess child care food needs, describe existing services and identify gaps in existing data. The second phase will develop a design for collecting information, and the third phase will be to collect and analyze the data and to submit a final report by April 1981.

Hall Receives Scholarship

Guy Nell Hall of Bogata, a graduate of Rivercrest High School, is among 27 recent Texas high school graduates who received the Homer H. Tate Memorial Scholarships. She will attend East Texas State University at Commerce during the 1979 fall semester.

The scholarship recipients, who were nominated by high school counselors or principals, qualified on the basis of their class rank (top one-fourth) or as a result of their membership in the National Honor Society.

Successful candidates also were required to achieve a minimum score of 20 on the ACT or 925 on the SAT college admissions tests.

The awards, valued at $400 each, are divided between the fall and spring semesters with the second semester award contingent upon each recipient achieving academic success during the first semester of enrollment. They contribute toward payment of tuition, university housing and incidental expenses.

Insects Active In East Texas

By Herb Brevard
According to Dr. James Robinson, Extension area entomologist at the Texas A & M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Overton, a wide variety of insects are active in East Texas. Pecan aphids are increasing in number. These aphids secrete honeydew that gets on the leaves and on cars if parked under pecan trees. Eventually, the honeydew will cause a sooty mold to form on the leaves of the pecan tree. The mold reduces photosynthesis in the leaves and can affect the quality of the pecan nut. Malathion or Zolone are effective insecticides against pecan aphids.

Robinson says that fall webworms should be showing up in East Texas in the near future. Also, as the weather gets hotter, chinch bugs in lawns will become more active. Both insects and diseases must be controlled in the lawn to have a healthy, good-looking lawn.

Grain sorghum producers should be checking for infestations of sorghum midge, particularly as the sorghum begins to bloom. Some fields are already suffering high midge populations. Robinson indicates that if the grain sorghum blooms after June 30, the producer is almost assured of midge problems.

Commercial watermelon producers are fighting infestations of squash bugs. These seem to be a perennial problem in watermelon production in East Texas. Grasshoppers are beginning to show up again. Baits have proven to be an effective control method.

Producers and homeowners are encouraged to contact their local county Extension agent for publications on the control of insects around the home and in crops.

Ranchers Advised To Keep Stocking Rates Down

Ranchers should resist the temptation to increase stocking rates even though pastures now have abundant vegetative growth.

That suggestion comes from Dr. Bobby J. Ragsdale, range specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A & M University System.

According to Ragsdale, much of the current forage growth is from cool season annuals. Warm season perennials recover more slowly from drought conditions such as those that plagued most of Texas the past few years.

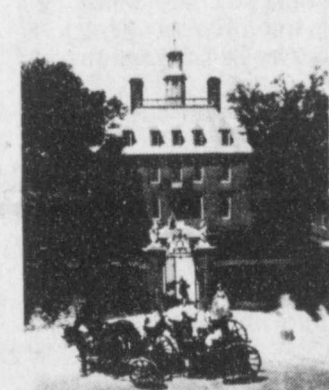

"Since livestock repeatedly graze good forage plants, increasing stocking rates will not allow such plants to recover from drought damage," explains Ragsdale.

"Instead of increasing stocking rates, cattlemen should shape up herds now by reducing overall numbers or keeping numbers constant," contends the specialist. He suggests marketing low producers, open cows, and younger calves and lambs.

"Good management can produce more pounds of product from fewer animals," notes Ragsdale. The specialist says low stocking rates allow range conditions to improve, leading to future stocking rate increases. Improved range conditions also provide partial insurance against the next drought.

Senior Center Pioneer Still At Work

At 72, Florence Vickery is still hard at work in the field of aging, a commitment she traces back to her days as a student at the University of Chicago.

"I studied under Dr. Robert Havighurst, a pioneer in the field of aging," Vickery told a writer from the National Council on the Aging. "I was getting a master's degree in human development and this is where I became motivated to work in the field of aging."

Born in Evansville, Indiana, Vickery worked for the YWCA until she decided to get her graduate degree. After leaving school she moved to San Francisco to take a job as associate director of the YWCA in that city.

"While I was working for the Y I had a number of people approach me for help in starting a senior center," Vickery said.

Because of her interest in older persons she agreed and in 1947 became the founder and director of the first non-government supported senior center in the country.

"There wasn't a lot of money available so we had to prove the usefulness of such a center," Vickery said. "Some of the older people in the area felt it was a place for the needy or people in trouble. We had to explain its function to them."

Florence Vickery has seen the development of many services since the early days of the San Francisco Senior Center—her career spans the growth of the senior center movement to the vast network it is today.

"We really operated on a shoestring back then," she said. "Today, everything is different—even people's attitudes about centers."

After retiring in 1967, Vickery took a three month trip to the Orient, feeling that "it was time to turn it over to someone else." She also needed time to think over what she wanted to do with the rest of her life.

Part of what Vickery has done is to write two books, the first a textbook for training students and staff who work with older persons. The second is called "Old and Growing," and is about the aging experience.

She also teaches a class in a community college which is the first course in the country for and about older people. She also recently finished a series of newspaper articles on aging for a community college consortium that gives courses for credit through newspapers.

"I also take courses for myself," Vickery said. "I take yoga and I swim every morning. At home I take care of my garden and I love to go to the symphony."

CONDOMINIUMS are gaining in popularity among people 55 and over and single persons under 35, according to a survey by the National Association of Home Builders.

A survey of 1,970 persons who bought condominiums in 1977 shows that the median age for condo buyers was 44—10 years older than the typical buyer of a single family home.

THE CIVIL RIGHTS

Commission will be in existence at least through 1983 and under its broadened charter is able to investigate complaints about age discrimination along with those involving race, color, religion, sex or ancestry. This, coupled with the law raising mandatory retirement to age 70 for most employees in the private sector, assures powerful weapons for older Americans to protect their rights.

IN OREGON, 1,500 older people were successful in last fall's election in getting an Oregon ballot measure passed that will allow someone other than a dentist to fit false teeth.

Oregon's dentists and the American Dental Association spent more than $500,000 campaigning against the measure (as opposed to $75,000 by the citizens' group) but 77.7 percent voted to allow dental lab technicians to take impressions and fit dentures.

THOUGHT FOR FOOD

By GOULD CROOK

Basic Omelet

Omelets are rich in protein, they're economical and they make simple meals for one, two or more.

Most any eight-inch skillet will do, but one with slanted instead of straight — up sides works best.

3 large eggs, well beaten
1 tablespoon milk
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper

A generous tablespoon butter or margarine

Mix eggs, milk, salt and pepper well — until foamy. Melt the butter in your eight inch skillet, and swirl it around to coat the bottom of the skillet. Heat until it's sizzling, then pour in the eggs. The edges will sorta set up immediately. As they do, gently lift them with the tines of a fork, tilt your pan and allow the runny center to flow underneath to the bottom of the pan. Keep doing this until all liquid has solidified.

Give the skillet a shake every once in awhile to keep the omelet loose. Now is when you could add a filling on half the set mixture, if desired, then fold the other half over it.

Hard To Imagine

In a first for women, Miss Emma M. Nutt broke the male monopoly of telephone operator jobs on September 1, 1876. She reported for work in Boston, Massachusetts.

The Good Word from the Bible

... a weekly inspirational message for today's life-styles...

And they came to him, and awoke him, saying, Master, master, we perish. Then he arose, and rebuked the wind and the raging of the water: and they ceased, and there was a calm.

St. Luke 8: 24

Faith is not always constant. Even though the apostles had given up everything, home livelihood, family, to follow Jesus, and had witnessed many miracles, they were yet unsure of the Master's destiny. They were sorely afraid that, while Jesus slept, all would be swept into the roaring sea.

Even the most devout Christian has difficulty maintaining a consistency of faith. Trouble comes, and it is human nature to say, "Why me, Lord?" We come upon a problem with no apparent solution and we cry out, "Help me, Lord, lest I fail."

What the apostles forgot, as we often do, is that God never deserts us.

In just a single second, light travels from the Moon to Earth.

DRIVELINE

WARNING! We know it's tempting these days, but please don't make a habit of carrying extra cans or bottles of gasoline in your car trunk. It's a quick way of converting a rear-end collision into a fiery fatality. Plastic containers may deteriorate, puncture or leak. And, we might add, it is illegal in Texas to carry gasoline in anything but metal containers.

CONSUMER TIPS. Little things make a difference . . . If your oil is not quite down to the "add oil" mark on your dip stick, then don't add a can; your engine will just blow off the extra anyway . . . The next time you buy a new battery, check out the completely sealed models that never need water. They cost more, but they'll save you a lot of hassles checking the water level later on . . . and if your power steering squeals when turning full left or full right, chances are you may just need to fill up the power steering fluid tank found under the hood . . .

The longest taxi ride on record lasted from September 9 to October 6, 1976. Two New Jersey women hired a cab to drive them 6,752 miles from Hoboken through 15 states and back. The fare, set in advance, was $2,500.00.

"Do radial tires really help improve gas mileage?" — M.B., Conroe

Yes. Because of their special construction, radial tires produce less friction with the road surface. Therefore, it takes less power to roll along on them. Experts say gasoline savings can range from five to seven percent.

ANCIENT HISTORY: The first car ever reported stolen was in St. Louis in 1905.

World's Largest Car: a custom made "extended" Cadillac built in 1976. The super Caddy is 26 feet 7 inches long, weighs 9,000 pounds, and carries 43 gallons of gas. It is fitted with circular couches, tv and stereo, a bar, a refrigerator, a video tape recorder, and three anti-theft systems.

'This summer, I'm taking more of a vacation and less of a trip . . .

IN TEXAS!

On TV, I hang out in "Carter Country." But in real life, I hail from Fredericksburg, Texas. Just down the road a piece from Luckenbach.

This ol' gas shortage got me thinking about where to go for my vacation this year. Know what I decided?

To stay right here in Texas. There's plenty of things to do in my own backyard. And I can do most of 'em on a tank of gas or less.

When's the last time you took in Astroworld or Six Flags? How 'bout the Alamo or Big Bend? The piney woods? A dude ranch? Spanish missions and other historical sights? Or a weekend camping at your favorite lake?

I'll bet you can put together a heckuva list in no time flat.

More of a vacation. Less of a trip. Sure makes sense to this ol' country boy.

How 'bout you? Take a look outside your door. There's a whole lot of Texas there. And it's right in your own backyard.

Certification Of Pesticide Applicators Required

Red River County producers and commercial pesticide applicators are reminded that certain pesticide products now on the market are restricted and available for use only by or under the supervision of certified applicators.

The Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA) as amended provides for (1) classification of all uses of pesticides as either restricted use or general use, and (2) establishes the requirement of certification of applicators (private and commercial) as a requisite to use or supervision of use of restricted-use pesticides. The Texas Pesticide Control Act requires certification of commercial pesticide applicators but not of private applicators. However, the act authorizes the Commissioner of Agriculture to establish a program to certify private applicators on a voluntary basis who wish to use or supervise the use of restricted-use pesticides in compliance with federal law (FIFRA).

The term "private applicator" means a person who uses or supervises the use of any restricted-use pesticide or state-limited-use pesticide for purposes of producing any agricultural commodity on property owned or rented by him or his employer or, if applied without compensation other than the trading of personal services between producers of agricultural commodities, on the property of another person. The program established by the Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) enables a private applicator to become eligible for certification by completing an approved training program conducted by a qualified institution or training group or by home study including submitting a completed questionnaire to TDA following review of self-study material.

Training opportunities for persons seeking to qualify for certification as private applicators are provided through county Extension offices across the state. Persons may participate in training meetings conducted by the county Extension agent, or they may elect to qualify through home study using self-study materials available at the county Extension office. To date, more than 110,000 persons have participated in private applicator training through meetings or through the home study option.

Commercial-noncommercial applicator requirements for certification include written examinations administered by the appropriate certifying agency. The term "commercial applicator" means a person who owns or manages a pesticide applicator business engaged in applying restricted-use or state-limited-use pesticides to another's land. The term "non-commercial applicator" means a person or government agency or department which wants to use restricted-use or state-limited-use pesticides or the authority to demonstrate restricted-use or state-limited-use pesticides and does not qualify as a private applicator and is not required to have a commercial applicator's license. Commercial-noncommercial applicator training is provided by District Pesticide Applicator Training Committees located at Texas A&M University Research and Extension Centers. Training is provided through workshops and by previous appointment through an autotutorial system available at each location. To date, more than 6,000 persons have participated in commercial-noncommercial applicator training programs.

Persons anticipating the need to use restricted-use or state-limited-use pesticide products are encouraged to take advantage of these Extension training programs. Information regarding the private applicator program is available through the county

ACCIDENT—A 1978 blue Ford Van, driven by Moss Hulsey of Tyler, struck a John Deere Farm Tractor, operated by A. J. "Jack" Henry of Talco, while heading west on FM 71, 11.8 miles northeast of Mt. Vernon. The accident occurred at 6:00 p.m. Thursday, June 21. Hulsey attempted to pass the tractor while Henry was attempting a left turn at the same time. The van's right fender struck the tractor, causing the tractor to overturn. Both Hulsey and Henry were taken to the Franklin County Hospital by Loyd's Ambulance Service. Henry, age 50, was later transferred to the Titus County Hospital. Hulsey was treated and released at Franklin County. (Staff Photo)

... with wise energy management

Southwest summers mean sizzling heat, and that means you'll be running your air conditioner most of the time. Since up to 70% of your summer energy use goes toward air conditioning, you can expect your bills to be higher. To help lower that bill, keep the thermostat setting at 78 degrees or higher. Close drapes on sunny windows, and keep windows and doors shut. Change or clean your air conditioner filter once a month. And make sure furniture and other obstructions are not blocking intake vents. Why use any more energy than necessary in cooling your home? Wise energy management can make more sense this summer than ever before!
