

Area Trying To Catch Up After Wet Winter

The cool, wet spring has prevented farmers, contractors and numbers of other people from getting their spring work done, and the economic impact of it may be felt by fall.

Farmers, who had experienced on three to five days throughout the entire winter months when they could work, are desperately plowing, disking and planting in an attempt to get crops in the ground during the first spell of weather dry enough to actually give them more than one or two working days at a stretch.

Cotton, for which the "target" planting date is April 15, will not do well with the cool nights so far, and farmers are only now beginning to put it in the ground.

Probably the largest crop going in is soybeans, with milo planting close behind.

Livestock owners report a high loss of calves and adult breeding stock this winter, probably due to the harsh conditions.

Homeowners are having to repaint, fix up and generally do more to their homes than usual because of the weather.

Contractors, concrete workers and construction of all types have been at a virtual standstill for months and builders, like the farmers, are working overtime trying to catch up.

As if that weren't enough, the severe zero temperatures of December and January have resulted in a great many repairs that would not have normally been necessary. Roofing, especially to flat tar roofs, has been in full swing after the water that seeped between layers froze and cracked the surface.

Road repairs have also been necessary as whole sections of highway, especially on farm to market roads, have chipped up, leaving holes to be fixed by sorely pressed road crews.

Commissioners have been extra busy trying to deal with the heavy damage to county roads too.

Fertilizer dealers say that they, too, have been hit by the unusual weather, as they have been unable to do the usual amount of wheat fertilizing, much of which was done with airplanes or helicopters instead of the traditional ground methods.

This has placed the profits in the hands of the aircraft owners and operators instead of fertilizer dealers.

The outcome of all this will not be visible for a long time, and much will hinge on whether the summer is a usual one, with a reasonable amount of rain, or whether after months of too much moisture it dries up and sets in to a merciless, dry summer.

The office had a phone call the other day, and it went a long way toward irritating every staff member on hand.

This specific incident happened in Lamar County, but we have since found out that similar incidents have occurred in every county within the coverage area.

A pleasant voiced woman called to inform us that "so and so" who was running for a state office, would be "in town" on Thursday.

Because we cover a number of towns, I inquired "what town". She, rather testily, replied "Paris, of course". That was enough to irritate me right then!

Why "of course" is it totally inconceivable that this candidate would be in Deport, or Blossom or Bogata or Talco or Rugby for that matter?

But the lady wasn't through with me yet...my blood pressure still had several points to climb.

Because I said that this wasn't Paris, and that there were numbers of small towns around, she said, again in an irritated matter, "Well, this IS Lamar County, isn't it?"

I replied in the affirmative, at which time she snapped back (no, I had not been rude...yet) "Same thing then!"

Now that was not a statement calculated to make small town residents happy. It didn't this particular one. The individuality and independence of small communities is very important to me.

So I snapped back, "No, it isn't the same thing...and perhaps you would like to tell Mr. "so and so" that you just cost him a vote."

When I related the tale to the others in the office, I discovered that that attitude had cost the prospective hopeful more than one vote...no one liked it.

Everyone realizes that candidates can't come to each and every town...but they don't have to have staff with that woman's attitude.

We live here because we like it, and are fiercely proud of our communities. To be treated, if only by a phone caller, as second class citizens will make our blood boil. So, political hopefuls, if you happen to read this...take heed please, and give your employees some instructions!

Dear Mrs. Nichols,

I wish to express my appreciation to you and to Frances Rozell for the wonderful publicity you have given our homecoming this year. It certainly did prove an enormous result you can get with advertising. The pictures were marvelous and I do appreciate the publicity you gave me and my graduating dress. Little did I dream when I wore the dress on that eventful night that I would still be here and still have the dress 68 years hence. When you are young, you never think of growing old, that was the least of my thoughts then, I had my mind on other things, but not old age.

I am grateful for my long life, most all my classmates are gone but I still have memories of those golden days of school as the song says "when our hearts were light and gay and the years were always May". I think the homecoming this year was a huge success and I think we will have a bigger crowd next year and I expect to be here to attend.

Thanks again for your wonderful service to our community, we have the Best Bogata News we have ever had.

Sincerely,
Iva K. Hooker
(Ed. Note: It's people like Mrs. Hooker and the homecoming committee who make this paper what it is. Thanks so much!)

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE—NOTICE
The City of Bogata will have their spring clean up day on the 27 and 28 of April. There will be a big trailer parked at the City Hall and if you have any kind of trash that is not picked up regularly, you can bring it to the City Hall and put it in the trailer.
Be sure that it goes in the trailer and not on the ground. If you do not have any way or cannot get someone to haul it for you, call City Hall on Friday and make arrangements for it to be picked up. The City is going to great expense for this, so your cooperation will go a long way in having a clean-up this spring.
Be sure to pile all your trash in one pile that has to be picked up and it would help if you are there to tell them what is to be picked up.
Thanks for your cooperation.
