

Texas Unemployment Figures Show Drop

The Texas jobless rate plummeted to 4.8 percent in June as the economy rallied from a double blow of Mexican peso devaluation and lethargic energy production, prompting the lowest unemployment in about three years, federal officials said Friday.

About 98,000 Texans found work in June and state unemployment reached a full three percentage points below the 7.8 percent level of June 1983, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The June jobless rate was the lowest since April 1981, the agency said.

"The news is good, very good," said Bryan Richey, the bureau's southwest regional commission. "You could not single out any particular industry as a standout in Texas. The upsurge is generally widespread and all-inclusive."

"We have already gained back what we lost before and then some," he said.

Civilian unemployment nationwide in June was 7.1 percent, the lowest in more than four years, the government reported.

In May, the Texas jobless rate stood at 5.7 percent. Richey said 588,000 more people were employed last month in Texas than in June 1983.

Richey said total employment for the second quarter of this year was about 630,000 higher than the pre-recession level in the first quarter 1982.

"Texas trailed the nation into the last recession, but we have been lagging during the recent recovery and economic expansion," he said. "Despite two problems peculiar to Texas, sluggishness of the energy-related activities and the devaluation of the peso that plagued the border, the economy seems to be gaining quite rapidly."

The Texas energy industry has been slowly improving in recent months, although the growth is not nearly as dramatic as the overall state employment, Richey said.

Speculation that many of the jobs are "summer jobs" of a temporary nature is undoubtedly true, however. On a local level, the employment rate seems to be holding steady, but no major hiring has taken place at any local industries.

Industries such as TUGCO at Mt. Pleasant, Campbell Soup Company, Merico, Phillips Industries or the new Kimberly Clark plant report no increase in hiring.

The farming industry is currently claiming it's share of help, with hay haulers, hay baling, and tractor work

Nichols Worth

By: Nanalee Nichols

By Nanalee Nichols
"I want everyone to like me"...it was the lead sentence from a column called "Offset" in a Hillsboro, New Hampshire weekly paper.

It was reproduced in a column called "Byliner" in Publisher's Auxiliary, a newspaper trade paper.

The second line went on to explain that the Hillsboro columnist had kept quiet for years about this strange desire, being sure that it was a "sure sign of mental illness"...and the second columnist admitted to the same desire to be liked.

Well, I also admit to this desire. Perhaps it doesn't seem so unusual, but a little explaining may put things in perspective.

For generations, editors have been forced into the mold of not caring. They put on a stony face, do what has to be done, and pretend to everyone (including themselves) that it doesn't matter to them. And, to many, it really doesn't matter.

Cartoons, articles and the papers in general portray the editor as a hard person...a grouch, or someone who loves a good fight.

Well, if others can admit to it, I will too.

It just isn't true in my case. I do care, I want to be liked, I want to put out a paper that makes everyone happy all the time.

Of course, that is totally impossible. In the newspaper business no matter how small those papers may be, there will be times when something makes someone mad. It is impossible to make everyone happy all the time.

But it's those few grim days when it seems like we've managed to alienate everyone that really gets to us!

Some weeks it seems like everything we turn our hand to, comes out wrong. The best of intentions don't seem to help a bit.

So, folks, when you see all those jokes in the cartoons about mean, grouchy editors...just remember...here sits one who isn't that way.

Over here, we aren't the stereotyped editor, and we aren't afraid to admit it.

Rash Of Insect Problems Cropping Up

A multitude of insect problems are beginning to show up in area yards and gardens. Most of these occur annually, but some appear to be more severe this year than normal.

One insect that is really showing up in pecan trees this summer is the webworm. They are easily recognized by their conspicuous web tent that they make in trees. They do attack other shrubs and trees, but seem to prefer pecan and persimmon.

The key to webworm control is early control while the worms and tents are small. The longer one waits to apply to a chemical the harder it will be to penetrate the web with the chemical.

The worm stage is the damaging stage as they eat the foliage. It is doubtful that a tree has ever been killed by webworms, but they can weaken one if a good portion of the leaf area is removed.

The moths emerge in the spring and deposit their eggs in masses on leaves in the tree which explains why there are small webs all over the tree. The small worms began making the web almost immediately and feeding on the leaves as they consume the leaves within the web. The web is enlarged to take in more food material. The webworm only eats leaves within the web which makes the job of controlling them more difficult.

As far as control measures, one can spray the webs and the immediate foliage around the web with an insecticide such as Sevin. The greater the pressure, the better the job.

Webs may be pruned out at this time while the webs are still small. If pruning is not practical, one might consider twisting them out with a long pole and crushing the worms.

Another method is burning them out, but this should be a last resort measure because of the hazard. Individuals using this method should be extremely cautious when using a pipe around electric lines.

The ever present Red Spider Mite is beginning to show up around the home garden and can be found on tomatoes, peas and Marigolds. They thrive in hot weather, so they will be with us for a while.

The tiny sucking insects are difficult to see with the naked eye unless they get so bad that the web covers the plant. Kelthane is about the only insecticide that will control these insects. The traditional garden insecticides such as Sevin, and Diazinon will not control them.

Dear Mrs. Grogan,
My mother, Mrs. Nola Swift asked me to send this to you two weeks ago. I would like to apologize as I have been so busy setting up my new home, writing thank you notes that I have not had time until now to write you the details of my wedding.

Bogata is a very special place for me, as my grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Dave Puckett raised me there until I was about nine years old. I still get homesick for the sand and the pine trees.

Thank you for printing this announcement for me. I have enclosed the details of the wedding and a picture.

Again I thank you. God bless you and keep you,

Thanks again for a job well done.

Sales Tax Reported

State Comptroller Bob Bullock recently sent checks totaling $55.3 million in local sales tax payments to the 988 cities that levy the one percent city sales tax.

"We've sent Texas cities nearly half a billion dollars this year," Bullock said. "That's more than 17 percent over what these cities had received by this time last year. Every one of the 20 biggest sales tax cities is ahead of last year's totals."

July payments reflect taxes on sales made in May and reported to the Comptroller by June 20.

Talco received a check for $1,156.46, compared to $738.83 last year, for a 10.38 percent increase in

Shower Honors Jacqueline Via

The spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Jones of Talco was the setting for a bridal shower honoring Miss Jacqueline Suzanne Via, bride-elect of Bradley Moore.

Mrs. Jones greeted the guests as they arrived. Presiding over the registry table was Mrs. Charlie Lewis. Guests registered in the bride's book which was bound in a cover of seed pearls and lace, handmade by the bride's paternal grandmother, Mrs. Bill Via. Complementing the table was an arrangement of stacked candles in shades of lavender and pink, which were the bride's chosen colors.

Mrs. Jerry Clemmons and Mrs. Elmer Patton served frosted fruit punch, finger sandwiches, tiny lemon tarts and petit fours from the dining table which was covered with a white linen cloth and using crystal appointments. Off-center on the table was an arrangement of staggered lavender and pink candles and fresh garden flowers in varying colors of lavender and pink.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Danger Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric-shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others. Here are nine critical symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations which are usually the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these usually spells back trouble. (1) Paresthesias (see above), (2) Headaches, (3) Painful joints, (4) Numbness in the arms or hands, (5) Loss of sleep, (6) Stiffness in the neck, (7) Pain between the shoulders, (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back, (9) Numbness or pain in legs. These signals indicate that your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these danger signals... call for an in-depth consultation in Layman's terms.
