WHOLE NUMBER 1835

ESTIMATED LOSS OF OVER $20,000 IN DISASTROUS FIRE FRIDAY

Property loss estimated at between $15,000 and thirty thousand dollars sustained in one of the most disastrous conflagrations in Haskell in many years when fire originating in the Cow Hotel, a large two-story wooden building, today (Friday) destroyed the hotel and practically all the contents, as well as two adjoining buildings owned by the Western Union Telegraph Co. and the office of T. C. Cahill. The fire was first noticed about 1:30, supposedly caught from a defective gas burner in the back of the house. The flames spread quickly to all parts of the structure, and by the time that men arrived on the scene the fire reached uncontrollable proportions. The efforts of the firemen were confined to the other buildings, through valiant work the brick building on the west side of the hotel saved, although the roof and walls were damaged considerably by the fire, as were the two brick buildings the Kinnison Barber Shop and the Tailor Shop. It was thought for a moment that these buildings could not be saved, and practically all the contents were removed. On the east side of the hotel the flames quickly spread to the adjoining wooden buildings, and it was impossible to save these from destruction, although all the contents and fixtures were removed.

It is estimated that the damage will be between twenty-five and thirty thousand dollars, but may amount to more than this, as it was impossible at the hour of going to press to reliably make up all the losses sustained. Below is a list of the firms damaged by fire, together with the estimated amount of loss.

Cow Hotel, completely destroyed, $20,000.
C. Cahill, $2,000.
City Meat Market, $2,000.
Western Union Telegraph Co., $350.
Haskell Ice & Light Co., $350.
Kinnison Barber Shop, $500.
Haskell Telephone Co., $250.
Kinnison Barber Shop, $300.
Arthur Edwards, $300.
Clay Thomas, $100.

McNeill & Smith Hardware Co., Murson & Davis, J. E. Leflar, and the American Railway Express Co., all suffered slight damage from the fire.

Telephone and electric service was paralyzed for several hours in some sections of the city, but the electric lines had been restored by night. It will probably be several days before the telephone cables can be replaced.

The firemen deserve unstinted praise for their work in fighting the flames. It was only through heroic efforts on their part that several adjoining buildings were not destroyed. We believe Haskell has the best volunteer fire department of any city the size of it in the state, and to them goes all praise due in combating this disastrous blaze.

S. R. LOFTIN ANNOUNCES FOR PUBLIC WEIGHTER, PRECINCT 2

In our announcement column will be found the name of S. R. Loftin of Weinert as a candidate for the office of Public Weigher of Precinct No. 2, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

Mr. Loftin is a farmer of the Weinert community and has been strongly solicited to make the race by his many friends in that community. He is a very courteous gentleman and well qualified to fill the position to which he aspires and will make an efficient weigher if elected. He will appreciate your vote and influence in the coming primary and if elected promises to do his very best to merit your support.

MANY EXCELLENT DISPLAYS IN CONTEST

In the contest announced last week in which prizes were offered for the best window displays of Dry Goods, Grocery, Drug and Furniture stores, J. E. Grissom & Co., The White Cash Store, Oates Drug Store, and Jones Cox & Co., were judged winners, although the competition was close in all the entries.

Three club ladies, visitors and delegates to the First District Meeting, acted as judges. Mrs. J. L. Young of Mineral Wells, State Chairman of the Speakers Bureau, Miss Marion Long, Professor of Art in C. I. A., Denton, and Mrs. C. W. Martin of Dallas, State Chairman of Rural Welfare. These ladies made most efficient judges, and made their decisions in a fair and impartial manner after visiting and observing the window displays of every business houses in the city and the Free Press extends its sincere thanks to each of these ladies for their most efficient service rendered in their fair and impartial decisions.

The display of J. E. Grissom & Co., which was the prize-winner in the dry goods entry, was one of the best that we have seen. The window was not crowded with merchandise, merely consisting of two bolts of silk knit in ponce and white, a beautiful Japanese parasol, and a hand-painted vase containing dainty flowers. The display was artistically arranged, and showed much skill and care in blending the colors and carrying out the Japanese effect. In the other window of this firm was an excellent display of Spring wearing apparel for ladies, consisting of Easter Hats, brilliant spring coats and gowns, hose and oxfords. A vase of beautiful flowers graced the center of the window, accentuating the spring-time effect of this excellent display.

The display of the White Cash Store, the winner in the grocery entry, was one of the neatest, as well as the smallest. A realistic rainbow of crepe paper of many colors was the background for the word "Welcome," and around a vase of beautiful hand-made chrysanthemums, roses, and lilies was arranged a tasty assortment of jams, jellies, preserves, grape juice, cherries, in fact suggestive dainties of every description were to be seen in the window. In the other window was a display consisting solely of Calumet Baking Powder, neatly arranged. The snow-white fixtures and distinctive arrangement of this modern business firm added much to the charm of their displays.

Oates Drug Store, which was awarded first prize for the best display of any drug store, had two interest-compelling and attractive windows. In the first window were two large ferns against a background of yellow crepe, with a beautiful cut glass electric table lamp placed upon a small pedestal in the center of the window. Below was arranged an assortment of dainty bottles of perfumes and toilet waters, the colors all blending in a most pleasing manner. Another window was devoted exclusively to Garden Court toilet requisites, consisting of face powders, rouge, talcum, cold cream, etc., with a color scheme of blue and white. Neither of these windows could have been improved upon, and one could not fail to stop and admire them in passing.

The winner in the hardware and furniture display, Jones Cox & Co., exhibited two windows that would have been a credit to any furniture house. In one window was a cane living room suite, upholstered in genuine taupe velour, with a high grade Wilton rug of blue and rose as a floor covering, showing the possibilities of color schemes with the neutral color of upholstery on the living room suite. In another window was a beautiful Ivory bedroom suite consisting of bed, chairs, chiffonette, and a vanity dressing stand, together with harmonizing floor coverings and an excellent arrangement of every article in the window.

A display that was especially interesting to the sportsman, was found at the hardware store of Jones Cox & Co., and consisted of an assortment of guns, rifles, fishing tackle, hooks, lures, knives, camp dishes, camp stools, in fact a showing of sporting goods that would delight the heart of any lover of outdoor life.

OVER 300 DELEGATES AND VISITORS ATTEND FIRST DISTRICT FEDERATION

The Twenty-First Annual Convention of the First District, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, met in Haskell Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, with over 200 visitors and delegates present.

The Executive Board, consisting of the State and District officers and Chairmen met in the Library Monday morning at 10 a. m., with Mrs. Walter Robertson presiding.

After the business session a lovely luncheon, courtesy of the Magazine, Harmony and Luncheon Clubs was served, with Mrs. J. A. Couch, president of the Luncheon Club and Mrs. Wilson president of the Harmony Club as hostesses. The five courses were served by Mesdames Y. P. Kuhn, M. B. Lebo, W. M. Reid and Alfred Pierson.

Mesdames Wilson and Couch each in a few well chosen words welcomed the visitors. After the luncheon, Mrs. Scott W. Key of Eastland, one of the former presidents of the Magazine Club in her own charming and graceful way acted as toastmistress.

Mrs. Spencer, secretary and treasurer of the First District, gave a toast to the three clubs.

Mrs. Walter Robertson, the beautiful and charming president of the First District, gave a toast to "club women."

Mrs. Buchanan, one of the most beloved women of the state and one who has served as State Parliamentarian for 15 years, paid a beautiful tribute to the District officers.

Mrs. Potter of Bowie, past president of the First District, gave the beautiful toast to the State visitors.

Mrs. Lee Joseph of San Antonio, State President, stated the aims of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs. Her slogan is "Education." The Federation is indeed fortunate in having a woman for President who takes for her work this most vital subject before the nation today.

The most popular and beloved little Phoebe K. Warner, spoke of her new Seventh District. This district has 51 counties.

Our own beloved Mrs. Fields gave a toast to the visitors.

Mrs. Scott Key spoke of "Ideals," one of the loveliest features of the luncheon was the favors, small folders containing the names of the past presidents of the First District, and a tinted photograph of Mrs. Robertson, president. These were presented to the local club by Mr. and Mrs. Young of Mineral Wells.

EXPLOSION DAMAGES ICE & LIGHT PLANT

One man sustained painful injuries and damage estimated between $1,000 and $1,500 resulted from an explosion at the plant of the Haskell Ice & Light Co., in this city Friday afternoon.

The explosion resulted when an oil trap on the ammonia line of the ice machine burst, hurling broken fragments in every direction. One large piece of cast iron, weighing forty of fifty pounds, was hurled through three insulated walls in the ice house, then through the roof and fell in the center of the railroad tracks some fifty feet from the plant where the explosion occurred. Another piece of the oil trap struck the marble switch board, demolishing one entire panel, necessitating shutting down the dynamo until it could be temporarily repaired.

Engineer Brooks, who suffered painful injuries on his left hand when a fragment of iron struck him, was given prompt medical attention, and his injuries will probably keep him from working for several weeks.

No cause for the explosion can be advanced by those who were in the plant at the time, unless it was due to a defective gauge on the line, which allowed the pressure to become great enough to burst the oil trap.

As a result of the explosion, extensive repairs must be made, which will delay the making of ice at the plant, which was to have been started soon.

S. A. HUGHES ANNOUNCES FOR JUSTICE OF THE PEACE

We take the pleasure this week in making the announcement of S. A. Hughes as a candidate for the office of Justice of the Peace of Precinct No. 1, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

Mr. Hughes has served the precinct in this capacity for one term and there is probably no official who could more justly point to his past record with more pride than Mr. Hughes. It has been said that he turned more money to the road and bridge fund during his term of office than there ever had been before in the same length of time. He made a fair and impartial trial judge, rendering his decisions without fear or favor.

Mr. Hughes is well qualified to fill the position to which he is asking the people to elect him and we ask that you give his candidacy due consideration when you go to cast your vote in the primary.

Great Interest in Singing

It being true that music is the language of the soul, Haskell county is taking rapid strides toward that goal of intelligent poetical speaking. Many singers and singing teachers are putting forth their best efforts to better the singing of our county.

The Morgan Quartet, composed of Messrs. Warren, Cooner, and Stamps, are teaching at various places, and report that the interest shown is exceedingly good. The quartet sang at Double Mountain Saturday night, at Peacock Sunday afternoon, and Jayton Sunday night. As a result, many localities demanded schools.

These men are worthy of every boost and recommendation that we can give them. We are very glad to have these men with us, and we will be glad when they commence our singing normal in June.

Let us strive in every way to encourage our singers and singing teachers, that they and we may more efficiently sing the worthy praise of the All-Father who created us.—Contributed.

Entertain Young People

Mr. and Mrs. Don Means gave a party to the young folks of Haskell Saturday night. Many young folks attended. Miss Mabel Brown and others of the Ballew community were present as guests. All seemed to enjoy themselves, and at a late hour departed, vowing their host and hostess royal entertainers.

Large Crowd at Church of Christ

A large crowd attended services at the Church of Christ Sunday evening to hear Roy H. Lanier preach on the subject "The Gospel That Paul Preached." The lesson taught was good.

Don't let that sour stomach sour your disposition and make your life miserable, while Taniae is ready to give you relief. Get it now. Sold by Reid's Drug Store and everywhere by all leading druggists.

If Mary has a little coat, made of light velours, no matter where our Mary goes the coat will be there sure. Anyway, it will fit in with any background, especially if it happens to be in a light color, as tan, gray, or beige and resembles the coat shown here. Note the ample lines in this model, its generous, flaring sleeves and large buttons. For ornament it has corded seams and silk-embroidered arrows and it is provided with a scarf-collar ending in a tassel.

The reasonable effort is to advertise it in the "Lost and Found" column. Apply the golden rule.

dignified and inspiring welcome to our new citizens.

"In the Americanization work we aim to prepare the foreign born for American citizenship that they may be better fitted to cope with the situation in their adopted country, not only by teaching the fundamentals of our government but giving instruction in English, Child Welfare, and how to prepare simple foods into a wholesome diet, and sewing.

"The division on Training for Citizenship offers a course on American Government prepared by instructors of Columbia University, which covers its social, political, and economic phases, and will be available for all clubs in their program work for the coming year.

"The Committee on Community Service directs the attention of the men and women in the community to their civic, educational and recreational needs and by interchange of ideas to discover the means of meeting those needs.

"The division on Motion Pictures aims to make Motion Pictures a vital factor in the upbuilding of the nation's life, and seeks to create and maintain a demand for the best type of motion pictures. Ex-Postmaster General Hays has committed himself to the Club Women of our country saying that his first aim is to achieve and maintain the highest possible standard of the Motion Picture production, and to develop to the highest possible degree the spiritual, moral and educational value of the industry.

"In the Department of Applied Education we are concentrating on three projects: First, passage of the Smith-Towner Bill. Second, a campaign to arouse public opinion to the need of education. Third, a constructive campaign to counteract the un-American influences now abroad in our land. We are also urging the raising of the standard in the Rural Schools, and the establishing of county libraries for rural people.

"Conservation and Civics is seeking to secure Federal Legislation to prevent the desecration of National Parks, and to obtain a national system of waterways.

"In the Legislation Department we are urging concrete action in the various states upon certain bills now before Congress by suggesting methods of carrying forward the Legislative program.

"Public Welfare includes committees on Public Health, Anti-Tuberculosis, nursing and social hygiene, etc., and is accomplishing much lasting good in this work.

"The division on Industrial and Social Conditions among other things is seeking to establish the indeterminate sentence in prisons and penitentiaries, to develop reform schools, to abolish the county jails in favor of farm colonies under State control.

"The most far-reaching of the departments is that on Press and Publicity. When completely organized it forms an unbroken channel for the dissemination of news from the National body down through the State, District, County and City Federation to the individual club and back again to the National organization.

"This in part is the workings of this great Federation program. Numberless examples might be cited of artistic, civic, and social service given by individual clubs. In fact, "Get the Women Interested" is the slogan of all of the organizations of men today who work for civic righteousness and social improvement.

"Women are learning to conserve their own energies, to make their efforts tell and not to waste their time and strength in mere talk.

"The Federation of Women's Clubs is a National Alliance of two million women from all the states banded together and consisting of more than forty thousand separate clubs. The membership of these clubs ranges from a small number to several hundred women in each club. It is, as an entirety, as a union deriving its power from the individual women, that the Federation is aimed to take part in the world's work. By means of this organization, the club women of America have promoted public-spirited movements thru united action, which could have been obtained in no other way.

"Recently I had the privilege of helping in a memory contest in the public schools at Wichita Falls, in which a goodly percentage of the pupils were trained by a young lady who's musical education was made possible through the Scholarship and Loans Fund of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs some two years ago, and she is now rounding out her second term in Wichita Falls. Think of the many citizens of tomorrow that indirectly have benefited by the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs through her efforts.

"And is this work worth while? If educational work is worth while; if juvenile courts are worth while; if clean, pure foods are worth while; if a more scientific knowledge and practice of domestic science is worth while; if better legislation for women and children is worth while; if organized effort to benefit the poor, and those who have faltered by the wayside is worth while; of a better understanding of the fullness of life and its responsibilities is worth while; then most emphatically women's clubs are a value. It is along these and many other lines that women are working together for the upbuilding of a kingdom on earth in which each shall serve her fellow creature and all shall work together for the good of the whole.

"By no means the least achievement of the club movement is in its developing influence upon the woman herself. She has become a better home-maker because she has a new understanding of the well ordered home where the art of housekeeping includes a knowledge of food values, of sanitation, and of harmony. She has learned largely through clubs that mere belongings are not the whole of the home and that cheerfulness, intelligence and fresh air are more to be desired than furniture and bric-a-brac. She has become a better mother because she has become acquainted with other mothers; she has come in touch with the great questions of the day which her children must soon face and is able to guide them intelligently into paths of greater safety. To the lonely woman the club brings friends and fellowship; to the unhappy, useful work and forgiveness of self; to the rich woman it has brought a sense of obligation entailed by her possessions; to the poor it has brought genuine help and uplift by broadening their outlook on life.

"Club work has made women broader in her sympathies as well as in her understanding. It has taught her to be tolerant of the views of those who differ with her. It has given her interest beyond the petty gossip of her neighbors and friends. It has buried personal spite and jealousies. Perhaps best of all it has united women of all classes and creeds. It has formed a chain of earnest, active women, a chain which binds American womanhood into a vast army of workers for the benefit of humanity.

"No person may measure the amount of good done by the associated efforts of Women's Clubs, to those who share in it there is a feeling of doing something to make the world a more livable place and also getting much broader and finer individual life as the result of unselfishness.

"This is in part a brief resume of the growth and the work of this unparalleled club movement of today. In it, at a sweeping glance you see that it is a mighty factor in the civilization of the century, and you are able to catch a glimpse of the eagerness for service among its members, with in truth is voiced in these words of the poet:

"I have no wealth of gold to give away,
But I can pledge to worthy causes these I'll give my strength, my days, and hours of ease,
My finest thought and courage when I may.

And take sure deed accomplished for my pay,
I can not offer much in silver fees,
But I can serve when richer persons play,
And with my presence fill some vacancies.

"There are some things beyond the gift of gold,
A richer treasure's needed now and then;
Some joys life needs which are not bought and sold,
The high occasion often calls for men,
Some for release from service give their self,
But he gives most who freely gives himself."

Following Mrs. Robertson's address, Mrs. J. W. Pace, one of Haskell's musicians, gave a piano solo.

Mrs. David Warren of Bowie, the daughter of Mrs. Potter, gave three clever readings.

Mrs. Lee Joseph of San Antonio, the charming and efficient state president gave a stirring address on Education.

Mrs. D. A. Little, the "Jenny Lind of Fort Worth" gave two vocal selections showing the extraordinary beauty and power of her voice.

Dr. E. M. Waits, president of T. C. U. Fort Worth, gave a well received and splendid address stressing spirituality in Education, or "The Church School."

One of the "hits" of the evening was the sextette by Messrs. Tom Pinkerton, R. H. English, J. U. Fields, O. E. Patterson, Roy Neal and Y. P. Kuhn of Haskell. Especially the song about "The Woman Who Does Not Gossip—She Is Dead."

Tuesday Morning
The formal opening of the Twenty-First Annual Convention of the First District, T. F. W. C., was held Tuesday morning at the First Christian Church. After the singing by the assembly of "Old Folks at Home" and "Sweet and Low" directed by Mrs. Hardy Grissom, and the invocation by Rev. Walthall, Mrs. Walter Robertson of Wichita Falls, president, extended greetings and gave a wonderful report of the things accomplished in the four and one-half months of her administration, having written 915 letters.

Mrs. C. F. Spener of Wichita Falls, Secretary-Treasurer, then gave a splendid report.

Greetings were extended by Mrs. Lee Joseph, State President, at which time she stressed her most excellent Educational Program.

After the reports of the District Chairmen, Mrs. W. R. Potter told of the wonderful work of Mrs. Buchanan as State Parliamentarian, having served in this capacity 15 years and having been in the active club work 21 years. She moved that Mrs. Buchanan be made a life member of the Executive Board, and this motion was heartily approved. Mrs. Buchanan responded in her own charming way.

Mrs. Lee Joseph gave a powerful address on "Education."

Mrs. Baird of Fort Worth, gave a most beautiful solo.

Miss West, State Librarian, spoke in the interests of libraries in Texas.

Mrs. W. R. Potter extended an invitation for the Federation to meet in Bowie next year. Weatherford and Breckenridge also extended cordial invitations, but Bowie won.

Mrs. Phoebe K. Warner gave an address on "College Credits for Clubs." This was received most enthusiastically by the women.

At the noon hour Mrs. Arthur Hughes, assisted by her D. E. class, through the courtesy of the Magazine and Harmony Clubs served a lovely luncheon. Carrying out the color scheme of pink and yellow, beautiful baskets of pink and yellow flowers adorned the long tables. Mrs. Reynolds was toastmistress, and gave a toast to the visitors. Rev. Walthall paid a most touching tribute to the women and brought them a message of welcome from his departed wife.

R. C. Couch, mayor of Haskell, gave a short welcome address, and Sam A. Roberts, retiring mayor, also welcomed the ladies. Mrs. Guest of Wichita Falls responded for the District in a most gracious manner.

We have a stock as complete as you may desire and stand ready immediately to meet your every need.

Mrs. R. E. Buchanan of Fort Worth gave an address on "Have We Lost the True Values of Life: Since the War?" In part she said: "Have we lost the greatest thing in the mad pursuit of the latest thing? The greatest thing is a little baby. Woman is the foundation of the finest things of life. Have we rushed towards the latest things until our perspective is untrue?"

The First District endorsed the recommendation of Mrs. Lee Joseph of San Antonio that "Texas" invite the biennial meeting of the General Federation to Dallas in 1927. Mrs. Joseph, in addition to being a very able and efficient woman is also a most modest and charming one who could hardly be persuaded to speak because this was a "District Meeting."

The body adjourned to the basement where the Elks and their wives as hosts and hostesses welcomed them. Mrs. Arthur Hughes, assisted by the D. E. class had the tables artistically decorated in lavender and white. Baskets of lavender and white irises, favors in lavender and white helped to carry this out. Messrs. T. C. Cahill, Clyde Grissom, Henry Alexander and Ernest Grissom and Courtney Hunt, represented the Elks Club, with Messrs. John Oates, Murrhison, Ernest Grissom, C. D. Long and Courtney Hunt.

Mrs. Earnest Grissom in her own clever and charming way acted as toastmistress. Clyde Grissom gave one of the cleverest toasts that was given during the whole meeting. His toast was "To the Unmarried Women" of the assembly. Mr. Minatra welcomed the visitors in the name of the school children.

Mrs. Donald responded for the district. Mrs. Ferris, chairman of music, then introduced Messrs. J. U. Fields, T. A. Pinkerton, Roy Neal, Y. P. Kuhn and O. E. Patterson, who favored them with two delightful and enthusiastically received selections.

In the afternoon the regular reports were finished and Miss Vivian Aunspungh of the School of Arts, Dallas, gave a very practical talk on "Art in Daily Life." This was through the courtesy of Mrs. Douglas, Art Chairman.

Mrs. Dickey of Decatur gave two vocal selections. After reading of the resolutions by Mrs. Pope of Hamlin and a few words of appreciation by the president, the assembly sang "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." This was the close of one of the very best and most successful meetings that has ever been held. It was a wonderfully splendid success from the time the guests were so royally welcomed Sunday evening, to the very last moment of their stay. This success may be attributed, not only to Mrs. J. U. Fields, local chairman and the president, Mrs. Robertson, but to every citizen of Haskell, especially the graduating class, who did their parts so beautifully Monday evening. The boys acting as ushers, and the girls as escorts for speakers of the evening.

This meeting has not only been an inspiration to Haskell but to all the surrounding towns. Education was the keynote of the convention, first struck by the State President in the Executive Board meeting Monday morning, and carried throughout the whole meeting. The Haskell women wanted to feature their men in this meeting, and from what many, many of the delegates said about them, they met every expectation and far exceeded them.

Misses Lillian Neal, Mary Lee Pinkerton, Elsie Killingsworth, Alberta Smith, Exa Cahill, Eunice Huckabee, Mesdames Hill Oates, Arthur Fox, and Elmer Irwin served most gracefully and efficiently as Pages during the entire meeting.

Maids and Matrons Hostesses

The Maids and Matrons Club were hostesses to the delegates and visitors Wednesday evening in a most beautiful and unique Japanese Tea.

The guests entered a veritable Japanese fairland when they were ushered into the Library. The girls had the walls of the building decorated with branches of beautiful hand-made cherry blossoms. Pottery bowls of these most beautiful and natural looking flowers adorned the pianos. Arbutives in which giant hand-made chrysanthemums nestled were set at intervals all around the walls. The lights were shaded with large Japanese parasols, and this, together with the large fans, incense burners, gongs and the girls dressed in their Japanese costumes seated on the floor behind their tea service made the most pleasing picture imaginable.

Those in the receiving line were Mes-

Haskell, Texas, April 22nd, 1932

This week Haskell has entertained more than three hundred guests during the 21st Annual Convention of the First District, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs. And judging from the many favorable comments that we have heard Haskell has entertained this convention with credit to herself.

There will be representatives from the Junior, Intermediate, and Senior organizations from both the Presbyterian and Christian churches throughout the district. The last convention was held in Albany Friday, Saturday, and Sunday of last week and was attended by the following young people from Haskell: Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Draper, Virginia Walthall, Willie Ballif, and Fred Mauldin. These young people were largely instrumental in securing the next convention at this place.

Haskell folks should begin making preparations now to entertain the delegates and visitors who will attend, and to make their visit here pleasant as well as helpful and instructive.

As Clear as Mud
The man had just informed the Pullman agent that he wanted a Pullman berth. "Upper or lower?" asked the agent. "What's the difference?" asked the man.

"A difference of 50 cents in this case," replied the agent. "The lower is higher than the upper. The higher price is for the lower. If you want it lower you'll have to go higher. We sell the upper lower than the lower. Most people don't like the upper, although it is lower on account of being higher. When you occupy an upper you have to get up to go to bed and get down when you get up. You can have the lower if you pay higher. The upper is lower than the lower because it is higher. If you are willing to go higher, it will be lower."

But the poor man had fainted.

"THEY!"
Who is it says that So-and-So is sly on the road to woe? That drink and cards will lay him low? "THEY."

Who is it says without remorse that some one contemplates divorce? Who whispers scandal, too, of course? "THEY."

Who says that Mr. never mind—the other eye went out and dined with several—well, you know the kind? "THEY."

Who says that old man What's-his-name, is friendly with a certain dame? Who says it is a perfect shame? "THEY."

Who is it says the Browns and Greens are living far beyond their means? That soon there'll be some dreadful scenes? "THEY."

Who is it always says that Jones can NOT afford the car he owns? Who says his income's mostly loans? "THEY."

Who says that Grump beats his wife and lends her such an awful life? Who reveals in domestic strife? "THEY."

To cut it short, who knows it all? And tells it when we come to call? And who, in brief, should hire a hally? "THEY."—From Leslie's Weekly.

Can you pick a good Color Scheme?
WEED GROWN IN MANY LANDS
Almost Every Country in the World Has Made at Least an Attempt to Cultivate Tobacco.

Some old English chronicles show that the early cultivation of tobacco in England was attended with strange results. In 1655 the county hangman of Gloucestershire complained that men were so busy growing tobacco that they neither had time nor inclination for sheep stealing. The opposition of the royal Stuarts to tobacco raising in England is said to have been "for revenue only."

It is not generally known that tobacco is grown in nearly every country in the world—England, Ireland, France, Switzerland, Spain, Italy, China, Japan, Uruguay, Argentina, Java, and so on throughout the world except in the extreme northern and southern latitudes where the temperature is too low. There have been various efforts during the last ten years to revive interest in the cultivation of tobacco in England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland.

MADE TOP FLOOR DO WORK
Ingenious but Forgetful Young Man Drafted Door Opener Into Service and Escaped Reprimand.
Having on the third successive day forgotten to take the front-door key with him a young man living in one of the rooms of a first-floor apartment, stood in the outer vestibule wondering how he could get in without letting his landlady know of his latest negligence.

Unlocking the front door was a simple matter for anyone in the apartment, since all one had to do was press a button, but unfortunately, the button was at the front of the apartment and usually when the young man arrived, which was about supper time, his landlady was engaged in the kitchen at the other end of her domicile. Suddenly an idea came to him. Glancing over the rows of mail boxes on the wall at his side, he chose a button above one of them belonging to a top-floor apartment.

He pressed the button and waited—no response. Then he pressed another button and a moment later heard the click of the electric lock release. Stepping inside he was soon at the door of his apartment, which he opened with his other key, while the person who unlocked the downstairs front door wondered why the supposed visitor did not appear, says the New York Sun.

Oldtime Football.
Football may be a rough game, but it is quite gentle and harmless now compared to what it used to be. Way back in the eighteenth century when the sport was in its swaddling clothes, the type of ball used was not so kind to the feet of the one who kicked it. Eighteenth-century footballs were made of straw which was braided until a long rope was obtained. This was then wound and coiled into the shape desired. The finishing touch was to knock it around in water until it became hard and unyielding.

When the leather ball finally replaced the old straw model, it was stuffed with horse hair until it became hard and solid. The leather ball was at first scoffed at by the old-timers who had played the game when straw balls were in vogue. Even when stuffed with hair, the leather ball was regarded as a toy for weaklings who were afraid of injuring their feet. The parents of that age had more cause to complain about the roughness of the game than have those of today, whose sons kick inflated piskin instead of solid balls of straw.

THE WINDOW
By AGNES G. BROGAN

Copyright, 1932, Western Newspaper Union.

Jack Thorpe, hurrying along through the chill of an early spring day, glanced up at an old stone mansion and saw the window. The window seemed to typify that home he desired.

In crying contrast to its neighboring windows, the shining white curtain glass beckoned, while two potted geraniums flagged a welcome.

Jack was tired of hotels, tired of disappointing bachelor apartments, and though he had not passed down Cooper road with the intention of finding a lodging place there, that is exactly what he did, and for this was the gay little window responsible.

"Will you," he briefly asked a maid who opened the door to him, "let me know if the room on the second floor is vacant, the one with red flowers in the window? And may I see it?"

Jack ascended the gloomy stairway upon being told that the room was to be vacated the following morning. The maid inserted a key in a lock and left him.

The room was as inviting as its window promised. When Thorpe lighted the lamp and touched a match to the gas grate, he sank into a cretonne cushioned chair with a grateful sigh. Here was real home at last.

Mrs. Bickers came up presently for an interview. The bright place on the wall paper, she informed him, was where the former tenant's piano had stood. The piano had been moved that morning.

The room would be ready for rent tomorrow, Mrs. Bickers agreed and he paid the advance price asked.

"Just leave the key on the hall rack when you go out," Mrs. Bickers said and left him.

He was enjoying a cigar before the glowing fire when a tap sounded at the door and in response to his questioning "Yes?" the door opened to admit a young woman. She was a pale-faced young woman and her big blue eyes were brimming with tears.

"What do you want?" asked Jack impatiently. "I want to come in," she retorted. Uninvited, she drew a companion chair to the fireside and was, apparently, soon lost in thought.

"I," said Jack informingly, "have just rented this room."

The girl turned to look at him. "Have you?" she asked. "I hope you will like it."

"I know that I shall like it," he replied. "I knew from the moment I saw those red geraniums in the window."

The freighted induced Jack's reminiscence. "We used to have a window like that at home, when I was a boy. White ruffled curtains and all. It looked out on the side of the garden where a sun dial stood."

"Did you?" asked the girl eagerly. "We had a window like it, too, at Grandma's. Grandma raised us motherless children. But our window looked out from a sunny kitchen to where we could see birds hopping about on the trees, and in winter their little tracks all over the snow."

The man nodded understandingly. "I know, that all spells home."

"You won't like the meals here, the girl said. "Better go outside for them—it's too bad you have to."

"Oh, well, there must be some drawback. One does not find a home every day."

"Nor lose one, thank goodness," sighed the girl. "With new interest he regarded the strange visitor.

"I lost mine today," she explained ruefully. "But why?" sympathy was in his glance.

"Couldn't pay the rent," the girl told him. "If I can't make another home for myself there will always be grandma's to go to," she added.

"Tell me," he begged impulsively. "Grandma educates her orphaned grandchildren and then turns us out of her over-full nest to make our own ways. My 'way' was to be music—fame, success, you understand, waiting in the world outside. I have just two dollars left. I'm going to stop at a 'Y. W.' tonight, and tomorrow go out and look for an ordinary job. The trouble is, I don't know a thing in the world but music."

"Your name?" the man asked, "won't you tell me your name?"

"Burnie," answered the girl, her sweet face grew wistful. "Back in grandma's cottage they call me Margot."

With a sudden gesture she tossed hat and cloak to a chair. "I'll get out my tea wagon and have tea. And you'll stay? It will be a sort of celebration, the old tenant deposes, long live the new."

Some new, inexplicable desire held Jack Thorpe longingly in the gayly cushioned chair.

"I'm installing a new music store right here in Cooper road," he told her later, "and with your experience along that line, I'd be glad to offer you a position in it. It might do for a time, Margot," the name came naturally, "and you could then continue on in this little home you have made. Your piano could be brought back tomorrow. The new tenant declines—re-instate the old."

And Margot happily agreed. Now grandma, proud and gratified, tells the folks of Linden Village how Margot gave up her promised career for love, with the saving grace that she married "a music man."

SPOKE WITH SOME AUTHORITY

Mr. Perkins' Position Probably in No Danger Because He Turned Down That Contract.

"You've had another hard day, haven't you, dearie?" asked Mrs. Potts as her husband came in from the office.

"I'll tell the world I have," Potts agreed. "I'm plumb fagged out. Everything in the world went wrong."

"That's too bad," sympathized the lady.

"Almost landed the biggest contract of the year," Potts announced, throwing his coat down on the chair by way of emphasis. "Had the man all ready to sign up—pen in hand—when the bottom dropped out."

"How was that?" inquired Mrs. Potts, taking her cue from years of wifely experience.

"Oh, Perkins had to come sticking his head into the matter!" exclaimed Potts. "There were one or two of the clauses to the contract that he didn't think were just right. Said he didn't quite approve of the time limit, either. And, say! I had given the firm six weeks more time than we would have ever required to complete the contract."

Some people are so conservative that it ceases to be a virtue. Yes, sir, if it hadn't been for Perkins I'd have landed the biggest contract that the firm has had in 18 months.

"My!" exclaimed the lady. "I should think the firm would be terribly mad at this man Perkins. Will he be able to hold his position after causing you to lose such a big contract?"

"Oh, yes, I suppose he will," Potts admitted. "You see, I took it for granted that you knew. Perkins is president of our company."—Kansas City Star.

INCIDENT CONVEYS A MORAL

Illustrating Once More That Physical Force is Altogether Ineffective as an Argument.

One great man who had delved into scientific methods for many years was passing along the street one day when he was halted by a householder, who said:

"Sir, you had an article in your paper yesterday."

"Yes, I did," was admitted.

"In that article you said that the world moved."

"And so the world does move."

"You are a liar, and I can prove it. I drove some stakes on my property last night, and found that they had not moved at all."

"Rash man, but I can prove to you that the world does move." And he turned the other around and gave him a kick which landed him about ten feet away.

"And I will prove to you that the world does not move," cried the householder. And he hauled off and gave the wise man such a blow in the face that he fell down and did not move.

Moral—When a man cannot be convinced, by argument, then blows, and kicks and black eyes will do no good.

Where Was De Soto Buried?

The question as to what spot on the Mississippi river marks the grave of Hernando De Soto, the discoverer of that stream, is an unsettled one. Arkansas City and Helena, Ark., Rosedale and Greenville, Miss., river towns, have had a four-cornered controversy over the question. Citizens of Helena contend that the Spanish explorer was given a watery grave in the river he discovered at a point just opposite Helena. Arkansas City produces historical data tending to show that De Soto's funeral ceremony was held at a point opposite that city and close to the junction of the Mississippi and White rivers. Rosedale and Greenville have produced evidence in support of their respective claims. So about the only answer one can give in assurance that it will not be disputed is that De Soto's grave is somewhere in the Mississippi between Memphis, Tenn., and Greenville, Miss.

Gold Mines in Ancient Graves.

The latest method of gold mining is grave robbing. Modern Indians of western South America have discovered that buried in the mounds that contain the skeletons of their ancient ancestors there also can be found gold—trinkets. They burrow into these, claim the trinkets as an inheritance and melt these priceless relics of America's wonderful pre-Columbian civilization into gold of commerce.

Archaeologists of the bureau of American ethnology of the Smithsonian institution declare that such practices are destroying forever the early history of South American Indians.

Large images of gold and silver were made by the prehistoric goldsmiths. The records of the early Spanish explorers are filled with descriptions of these golden articles, some of which were as large as cart wheels.

SCHOOL SUPERVISOR ENTHUSES OVER HASKELL.

The following bit of verse, a tribute to Haskell County, written by Jno. T. Conn, assistant supervisor of rural schools, State Department of Education found its way to this office this week. Mr. Conn recently visited Haskell County and inspected the rural schools, which he complimented very highly, and it seems that he became imbued with a desire to give vent to his favorable opinion of Haskell County in the form of the following poem:

A TOAST TO HASKELL

Who would doubt the County, Haskell? I'd love to call her mine. Her air so pure a breath of it Is like a draught of wine.

She has her fruits and flowers, Wheat fields and clinging vines, And cotton fields around her homes Where honeysuckles twine.

With her faithful County Officials And efficient teachers kind, And best trustees that ever lived, They'll educate the mind.

Just to think about old Haskell! Makes a fellow proud—Gee whiz! How could anyone blame you When we think how great she is?

With Knox upon her shoulders, And Jones under her feet, She could mix a lime, or lemon For all her sisters sweet.

So drink this toast to Haskell, The county you love the best, And teach your boys to love the graves Where her faithful teachers rest.

MANY EXCELLENT DISPLAYS IN SHOW-WINDOW CONTEST

in the dry goods entries was the display of R. V. Robertson & Co., consisting of three windows, all well arranged and neatly displayed. In one large window was an open wardrobe trunk, surrounded with a selection of ladies wearing apparel, gowns, lingerie, slippers, and hose. A vase of roses against a background of pink and white added much to the beauty and charm of the window. One of the latest designs of Phonolamps, an electric phonograph and lamp combined, graced a small table in this window through the courtesy of A. F. Woods, local dealer. In the other large window, was displayed two beautiful dresses, one of cotton crepe in the new shade of honeydew, and one of blue taffeta material. The streamers of the silk knit crepe in the colors of honeydew and white, together with pot plants, ferns and roses, enhanced the effectiveness and beauty of this window. A small window display of lattice trimmings in several shades, vanity cases, beads and other accessories, completed the displays. All were tastefully and artistically arranged in a manner that attracted much favorable comment.

CORNWALL LAND OF FAIRIES

People of That English County Firmly Believe in Existence of the "Little People."

The Cornish handbook recently published mentions that there are five distinct varieties of fairies in Cornwall, and enumerates them as follows: "The Small People," who were supposed to be the pre-Christian inhabitants; these are gradually fading away.

The "Spriggons," attached to cairns, boulders and other ancient monuments, with which it was unlucky to interfere.

The "Piskies," full of mischief and mischief, great joy in leading mortals astray.

The "Beezes," spirits of the mines, considered in local legend with men from the East, doomed to work underground until the Resurrection.

The "Brownies," kindly and good, the spirits of the household, ever ready to assist in whatever they could to assist mankind.

There are numerous legends of the adventures of mortals with these creatures, and only a few years ago men were seen from Redruth, Treva, Penzance and some other market towns, and their coats inside out being fastened to cross the wild moors in order to guard against being carried away by the Piskies.

Some a miner, working in one of the Cornish mines, found his name called distinctly. He was afraid to follow the voice and went on with his work. His name was called again and this time more distinctly. The miner threw down his hammer and went to investigate. Almost immediately a mass of white mist fell on the spot where he had been working. The warning had saved him.

The Buccas or Knockers were so named at one time that people who had to pass a disused mine after dark took special precautions to prevent their presence being known.

Variation in Opinion.
One woman was telling another about a birthday gift she had just given her husband, and how she had saved for weeks from her house money to get it. The other woman was shocked:

"Why, Nellie, how could you! I wouldn't dream of giving my husband a present out of his own money! I earned every cent for his Christmas gift, made kimonos and dressing sacks for some friends.

And a man, who was near enough to overhear, said to his companion: "If I had a wife like that, I'd frame her."

"I wouldn't want her at any price. She's too good to be true. My old girl cheats me out of every cent she can lay her hands on. I'm used to it. It's one of the rules of the ring. Wouldn't want her to be different."

Which seems to show the variety of opinions—undoubtedly a wise dispensation of nature, since life would be somewhat monotonous if all of us were made in the same mold—like candles. —Washington Star.

New Ideas for the State.
It is reported that a play entitled, "The Island of Monkeys," in which the players are all to be dressed in the guise of various sorts of apes, is shortly to be produced in Milan, Italy. In view of Rostand's successful dramatization of the dwellers of a barnyard, one will wait until after the premiere to say that it can't be done. Then there was the operetta "Woodland," in which all the characters were birds. David Belasco's press department for some time nourished a rumor that the producer had in preparation a drama in which all the characters were insects. This manager secured very nearly as much publicity for this odd notion as William Glette did for his persistently reported intention to play Hamlet. Dramatic editors in many cities devoted many columns to argument that the ideal impersonator of Sherlock Holmes would not make an even passable prince of Denmark. —Christian Science Monitor.

Business Girls Park High Shoes.
"Do you know the latest thing the girls are 'parking' in our office?" asked the office boy.

His mother, at home, couldn't guess.

"Their high shoes. The girls that live in the country have to wear high shoes to get through the snow and slush on the way to the train, but they can't afford to be seen in anything but low, French heeled pumps in town. It isn't being done. They bring in the pumps in a handbag without their mothers knowing it—I bet—and as soon as they take off their hats and coats off go the high shoes and on go the slippers. They have the glory of walking out at noon with them on and then they return to the high shoes at 5 o'clock.—New York Sun.
