

More Reasons To Celebrate Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving...it's here again. And although it has been repeated time after time, it needs to be said again. Americans have so very, very much to be thankful for. In East Texas, there is even more to be thankful for!

Everyone knows that the first Thanksgiving was held in celebration of the Pilgrim's safety and survival at Plymouth. They gave thanks then for what they had, and by today's standards, what they had was precious little.

This year, as Americans sit down to an abundant meal, knowing that hunger doesn't hark at their door, knowing that the weather can rage outside, but that they have shelter, it might be well to consider that the insecurities that have to be faced...money problems, job pressures, black economic outlooks...are all pretty insignificant.

In other parts of the world literally millions of people are facing the most basic problem of all...survival. Through no fault of their own, but simply because of the nation they were born in, are literally starving.

They have no chance to work, little chance to advance, and may face months and months of deprivation, because of the devastating drought that has swept their country.

They would, no doubt, happily trade their problems for those facing Americans.

Here in East Texas, we have a few more blessings than some other Americans, too. There are no ghettos, no smog, no high crime rate. East Texans do not have to fight heavy traffic, nor worry about their children walking to school.

Schools, hospitals, safety and freedom are all things all Americans can give thanks for.

This year, make a mental list, ignore the problems, and get into the real spirit of Thanksgiving...give thanks for all the worlds of good we are privileged to enjoy!

Before someone points out that I look into the past too much, I'll point out how hard it is to look into the future.

But just for kicks, let's give it a try!

In the future, when today's youngsters are grown, and telling tales to their children, or perhaps even their grandchildren, they can relate memories of their 1980's childhood.

"Yes, I can remember back when turkeys were real, they came all frozen from the store, not compressed into little rolls that expand in the ultra-sound oven like they do now."

"Boy, did those turkeys taste good. Mom would cook 'em in the microwave til they were just right, and dad would carve 'em with the electric knife, giving each of us kids the slice we preferred."

"And gravy, the gravy was fantastic back then...none of your little dehydrated cubes like now...but real gravy, why, even the canned gravy back then was great!"

"Cranberry sauce came out of a can, and wasn't expensive like it is these days, everybody could afford cranberry sauce."

"We all watched the turkey day football games on television, of course, it wasn't in 3-D, nor on a big screen like now, but somehow all of us crowding around the little 22-inch screen just seemed to bring us together."

"Us kids would play the video games by the hours, they were a big deal back then...course you kids wouldn't think they were too much fun, what with all this new fangled stuff you have."

"And hams...emmmmm those hams were good. They were real pork, not pork mixed with sea algae. Juicy and pink, it makes my mouth water for a taste of that ham even today."

The tales will go on and on, because the warmth and family ties of childhood are a large part of what makes childhood holidays so very special.

So remember these holidays, and save them up for future use!

Dear Editor,

Allow me to commend fellow Democrat John Howison for his recently kindly-disposed letter in this newspaper which reveals the large thinking of a loyal party member.

Also commendable is his recipe for Rabbit Stew. Timed for the times ahead, it should be clipped and filed for future use.

His recipe appears to have all the ingredients and side dishes, with one exception. He forgot the cornbread.

Additionally, he asks that when you say the blessing, you include a prayer for the Democrats. To this I append the information that the Good Ship Democrat remains afloat, the loyal captain at the helm and the seamen in their places.

Respectfully,

Ed Bryson

Footprints From The Past

By John W. Hood
Watching the football game tonight made me think of the days when I was in high school and played football.

I was going to Deport High School and we never had enough to play and substitute like we should. Sometimes only about 12 or 13 would come out to play so we had to play both offense and defense whether we wanted to or not. We never did want to come out of the game as that was the reason we had practiced all week, just so we could play on Friday.

Friday came around and then sometimes you wished that the coach would let you come out for just one or two plays for the boys on the other team were all playing for keeps. If you know what I mean. They were really hitting and it did hurt. We had to buy our own uniforms as the school did not furnish them. Some times we all did not have too good equipment and what we had hardly ever matched. Some of us would have white cotton sweat shirts and some would have red, blue or whatever they thought was the best or prettiest.

The shoes were sometimes homemade. You had to get a pair of shoes and take them to the shoe shop and have the cobbler build up some cleats by taking different lengths and widths of leather and nailing them to your shoes one piece at a time until they were the right height. Sometimes when you were playing one of the tacks would come through the shoe and then you had a problem as you were walking on a tack. You were alright if the tack was on the outside for then you had something to scratch the other guy with.

We had a big old boy who played next to me on the line who had the biggest feet and when he tried to block anyone, he would just lay down and throw his feet around. He got to me more than he did anyone else and I always had sore shins all during football season.

I got where I would wrap my shins with one of the thigh pads. We bent them to where they just fit my legs then we would wrap my shins with gauze then put the thigh pads on the legs and tape them on with about a roll of tape. But that was the only way I could play for more than one week at a time.

We lost more games than we won and we would play anyone who would pay us to come play. We could do that as we were not in any conference and could play anyone we could get a game with. Sometimes we had problems scheduling games as we didn't schedule any games one year for the next year because we didn't know if we would have enough to play. Besides, the coach liked to choose his own games and as we had a new coach every year we never did schedule a game until we had a coach.

We did not have a good team if you go by the number of games that you won, for as I said, we did not win too many games but we did have some good boys playing and we made some friends that have lasted for a lifetime. Some of the ones that I played with have gone on to make farmers and went into the law, some into medicine, but for always we will always have a bond between us for we suffered and laughed together and enjoyed a lot of it.

November 22: Remembering JFK

November 22nd will mark the 21st anniversary of the death of one of our most remarkable presidents—John F. Kennedy.
Among those who have felt his loss most keenly over the years is a group of some of our most dedicated workers—public employees.

President Kennedy did what too few Presidents had done before him and too few have done since, they feel: he honored public employees. In his first State of the Union message he said, "Let the public service be a proud and lively career. And let every man and woman who works in any area of our national government, in any branch, at any level, be able to say with pride and honor in future years: 'I served the United States Government in that hour of our nation's need.'"

The young President often stressed that the quality of government is directly tied to the capabilities and dedication of those who serve our nation. He believed that "a career government service is one of the foundations of democracy. It must be strong, it must have prestige, there must be sufficient remuneration to make it worthwhile." In the problems he faced, from racial unrest to the Cuban Missile Crisis, Kennedy looked not only to policy choices for solutions, but to the people entrusted with carrying out the nation's will. He matched his praise for the civil service with deeds, including the landmark Federal Pay Reform Act of 1962.

Morale in today's civil service is far from as high as it was in the Kennedy era. The consequences of "beating up on the bureaucracy" have been grave. According to the Public Employees Roundtable, a non-profit educational group, many top federal employees leave government for jobs with higher pay and better benefits.
In spite of these trends—and perhaps because of them—the anniversary of President Kennedy's death takes on special meaning for public servants. He spoke of an American ideal of service to one's country that still nurtures millions of government workers. As Kennedy once said, "We need to draw upon America's entire reservoir of talent and skill to help conduct our generation's most important business—the public business."
