

Hall's Office Continuing To Serve District

The Washington and Texas congressional offices of the Honorable Sam B. Hall, Jr., who resigned from the House of Representatives to become a Federal Judge, are continuing to serve the people of the First District under the supervision of the Clerk of the House of Representatives. The staff of Congressman Hall remains intact to handle casework, to help in handling business with the executive branch of the government and to provide information on pending legislation. Benjamin J. Guthrie, Clerk of the House, said that the Washington and the district offices in Marshall, Texas and Paris will remain open on a daily basis for the immediate future to handle congressional business. The office in Jacksonville is open on Fridays only. Under house rules, the Clerk manages the offices when a member dies or resigns. Guthrie said that three House vacancies occurred in the 99th congress.

Guthrie said that an administrator has been appointed to operate the Hall offices, he is Kenneth L. Black, who was administrative assistant to Congressman Hall. The staff members in the various Texas offices remain the same.

The Texas offices can be reached as follows: P.O. Box 1349, Marshall, TX 75670; P.O. Box 3450, Paris, TX 75460; P.O. Box 1410, Texarkana, TX 75501; 402 East Rusk St., Room 201-A, Jacksonville, TX 75766.

The realization came to me like a flash. It revealed itself while I was dashing for the customs gate at Kennedy Airport, dragging a suitcase that weighed at least 150 pounds (it only weighed about 20 when I left home), and trying to beat 300 other people through the line in order to make a connecting flight...traveling is absolutely masochistic.

A masochist is someone who enjoys pain. And no one inflicts more pain to themselves than vacationers!

Consider this. Vacationers will stand at the site of some antiquity. Their ears strain to catch the voice of a guide. Their feet throb. Their tongue sticks to the roof of the mouth for lack of water. Biting flies swarm about their heads. The camera bag is getting heavier by the second.

Upon arriving back at the hotel room and collapsing on the bed, they will turn to their companion and shout enthusiastically, "Oh wow, wasn't that fantastic!"

Explain the logic of this, please. I do it all the time. I love it. I wouldn't trade the experiences of this most recent trip for anything. But I'm so sore I can't move. My eyes are blistered. I haven't had enough sleep the last two weeks to rest up a mouse. But I enjoy it!

Tourists take their families with them. The kids get hotter, tired, crankier than the adults.

Vacationers will drive until their legs won't straighten out when they try to get out of the car. They look like a flock of cranes, walking on bent knees from the car to the gas station. They peer into the past history until their eyes cross.

They hike through the woods to waterfalls, lakes, natural bridges until the feet feel like swollen loaves of bread. And most of all, they love it.

Travelers spend money until their wallet is so thin the light filters through. They shop until their suitcases are bulging.

They take pictures until the film processing bill is higher than the light bill.

They return home, exhausted and happy. If our jobs demanded that much work, we would quit!

I can't explain it...I won't try. Because even after 23 hours on an airplane, even after two unscheduled stops, it took about two days before I started pondering... "hmmmm, where should we go next?"

Egypt...A Land Of Past And Present All Life Depends On The Nile

By Nanalee Nichols
The world is different from place to place. There are perhaps as great a difference as can be imagined between North East Texas and Egypt in the Middle East.

It has been a dream all my life to travel to Egypt and see the tombs and temples of the ancient Egyptians, a people who had an advanced civilization before the rest of us came out of our mud huts.

What I was not prepared for was the generosity and friendliness of the modern Egyptian (If the word modern can be applied). Nor was I prepared for the sight of people living and working in exactly the same manner that they lived and worked a thousand years ago.

Over the next few weeks I will try to catalog a few of these sights and sounds for you, and to report on a country and life that is vastly different from our own.

It all began when our good friends, Jayne and Dicky King, were visiting one evening.

Jayne and I tried to talk the boys into going to Egypt...but they absolutely refused. They casually told us "If you want to go so bad, go without us."

When we booked our flight they were a little startled...I don't think they actually thought we would do it.

So we took the seventeen hour flight to Cairo, and looking down from the big jet realized that what had been ocean for so many thousands of miles had turned into desert.

There were miles and miles of sand, sculpted into waves, unbroken by any sign of life or road.

And then, shimmering in the distance like an emerald lay the green, fertile valley that is the Nile river and the beautiful banks that line each side.

The Nile river is the longest in the world. It is, quite literally, the source of all life in Egypt. Without it there would be no country, no life, no people.

The Egyptians love their river, they have assigned it a prominent place in their past, and in their present.

Before our trip was over we loved it too. For it provided the precious water that causes the crops to grow, the palm trees to bear fruit, the fields to flourish.

Surprisingly, in a country fraught with sand storms and dirt, the river Nile is clean and clear.

In Egypt there are only about three days of rain each year! They depend not at all on these rains, but strictly on the irrigation water from the river.

It is strange to find out that they feel a little sorry for those of us without a dependable river to use...but have to rely on the whims of water from the sky!

Upon the surface of the river float silent Feluccas, sail boats with tall, triangular sail that are shown on the walls of tombs four thousand years old...virtually unchanged from that time.

All life huddles on the edge of the river, drawing sustenance from it.

Cairo, a city of 14 million people, teems upon the banks of the Nile in a noisy, sprawling celebration of the dependable water.

Later, as we sailed on a ship down the length of the river, we saw children swimming and bathing, adults washing, water buffalo lying in its cool shallows.

Next week we will discuss the city itself, and the amazing traffic conditions!

To Bogata News:
I would like to order your Thursday Bogata News. I have lots of kin there around, my father, Lem Cooper, carried the mail from Bogata to Clarksville around 1910 and 1911 and I went to Bogata school. My mother, Mary Alice White Cooper went to school there when it was a one room school. She was in a play there. The theme was "The Dish Ran Away With The Spoon". The name was "The Cow Jumped Over The Moon". The youngest of the ten children, Lois Tipping, still has the dish.
Mama was 11 when she said the poem. I would like to find Roberta Moon if I can. Please send the paper and the bill for one year to Annie Cooper Reichardt, 1809 Evergreen, Garland, TX 75040.
Thanks.
I lived on Moon Ranch. We had fish fries there when I was seven, also lived in Johntown.

BUDDY'S WORKSHOP Retouch Appliances To Prevent Rust

What should one use to prevent scratches on the refrigerator from causing rust?

If the refrigerator, or any other kitchen appliance is scratched down to bare metal, it should be touched up without delay. Paint centers and hardware stores should be able to match the paint color with "touch up" kits. If not, match the color in a good enamel. Apply only enough touch up paint or enamel to fill the scratch. Don't brush on, but apply with cotton or soft cloth wrapped around the end of a toothpick or a wooden match.

What causes floor boards to squeak when someone walks over them?

Squeaks are caused by loose boards--rubbing board against board or board against nail. Getting rid of the squeak is as simple as locating the problem board and securing it firmly. You may have to do the job from the basement by driving a wedge into the space between the board and a cross beam. You may be able to make repairs with a good strong glue. Apply glue liberally to the loose board and to a support member, then place a heavy object on the top of the board to establish firm contact. The simplest and strongest repair, however, is a nail but this may not be possible on fine hardwood floors.

East Texas Planning Homecoming

More than eight million people who have left East Texas homes in years past are being invited to the East Texas Chamber of Commerce to return in 1986 for "The Biggest Homecoming in Texas' History".

The Longview based regional chamber expects to list from five to ten thousand reunions for families, churches, schools and communities as part of its East Texas Homecoming '86 project of the Texas Sesquicentennial.

With more than 700 communities in East Texas, the plan aims to encourage scheduling reunions and homecomings in large cities and small towns as a special feature of the Sesquicentennial.

After a period when people lost their sense of "hometown", East Texas Homecoming '86 will appeal to the growing sense of family, home and roots.

The Chamber is acting as a clearing house for reunions. Those who wish to report reunions in their communities will be able to call

1-800-772-HOME or may write Homecoming, P.O. Box 1592, Longview, TX 75606. There is no charge.

PJC Local Students Graduate

Paris Junior College graduates were praised for their hard work, dedication and determination during the 61st annual commencement exercises May 10. Speaker was Don Grisham, president of the PJC Faculty Association.

Statistics show that students who continue their education at the college level make 25 to 60 percent more in their earnings over a lifetime than those who stop after high school. Although this is important, he stated, the personal growth and associations of the college years cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

Those graduating in the ceremonies were: Jeff Ballard, Jim D. Bryan, John Phillip Graves, Mark Douglas May (with honors), Mikell McLaughlin and Rhonda Carol Willard of Blossom.

From Bogata were Rhonda Branch Bell, Mercedes Maurine Brown, Randy Joe Corbell, Sandra Kay Merchant, Linda G. Tabb (with honors), Kathie Williams Thompson and Joe Milton Ward.

From Cunnigham were Jarvis Dean Watson (with high honors). From Deport was Kim Allen, Marilyn R. Crawford (with honors), Lat Nichols and William David Rozell.

From Pattonville was Cheryl Lynn Brook and Lisa Gaye Rees. From Talco was Kelli Michele Holmes (with honors).

Car Trouble!

car, but the noise it made sounded like a pig hung under a gate. It was squealing and squawking and wouldn't stop.

We were near Pattonville, so we squawked up to a blacksmith shop and stopped. Before the car came to a halt, Osie jumped out and another little boy who was about his age jumped on him. Osie always welcomed a fight, and before we realized what was going on, they were rolling and tumbling in the road, pulling hair and gouging eyes.

Dad pulled them apart, then told the blacksmith about the car's squealing problem. The blacksmith soon located the trouble, and removed the dust pan from under the car. The high center in the road had pushed it up against the exposed flywheel and the gear teeth that mesh with the starter pinion, were rubbing against the bottom of the pan. After the problem was corrected, we got back into the car and continued on home.

One quick way to clean and shine chrome fixtures in the bathroom and kitchen is with a spray bottle filled with vinegar. Spray on a little and wipe away residue.

Economics of Hay Production

By Herb Brevard
Each year, hay producers are faced with the economics of how much fertilizer, especially nitrogen, should be applied on hay meadows. Wayne Taylor, economist, management for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says that the answer can be calculated by the cost of nitrogen and the value of the hay produced.

With nitrogen selling at 28 cents per pound and the value of hay at $70 per ton, 254 pounds of nitrogen is optimum. With the same price of nitrogen, but hay valued at $100 per ton, the optimum amount of nitrogen is 548 pounds per acre.

The cost of producing hay this year in East Texas is also important to the producer. The cost of round bales, figuring 6.6 tons of hay per acre, is almost $47 per ton or $28.09 per 1,200 pound roll. These figures include only the variable cost and do not include the fixed costs associated with the hay production.

For square bales, the variable costs per bale is $1.57 based on 220 bales per acre. Square bales will cost $52.23 per ton, slightly higher than the cost of putting up round bales. Again, fixed costs are not included.

Fog Drinker

The head-stander beetle of Africa's Namib Desert extracts life-giving water from fog by standing back-to-the-wind on a sandy dune. The blowing fog strikes the beetle's back and water collects and trickles down to its mouth, National Geographic says.

PJC Sponsors Follow Up Program

Paris Junior College will sponsor a follow-up program on area high school graduates for the first time this summer, said Dr. Eric Priest, vice-president for student services at PJC.

The program, which will be conducted by high school personnel employed by PJC during the month of July, will be a telephone survey of 1985 graduates of most of the high schools in an eight county area of Northeast Texas and Southeastern Oklahoma, Priest explained. Purpose of the program is to provide information on post-secondary opportunities to recent high school graduates.

The program is aimed at reaching those graduates who have not yet made future educational plans and providing informational assistance when desired, assisting others with the application process or changes in plans, and identifying ways students may continue their education on a part time basis.

If a graduate needs educational assistance, the high school counselor will be able to make referrals or assist the graduate in exploring careers, making career decisions, remedying any deficiencies, securing financial aid information, discussing various colleges and their offerings, selecting a college and completing the application process. All services will be free to the graduates.

High school personnel involved in the program and the high schools they will survey include Daphnia Downs, Prairiland and Bonnie Huddleston, Rivercrest.

Watering Time Coming Up

By Lynn Golden
Although we have had abundant rainfall this spring, it could soon be time to begin watering gardens and lawns. With decreasing fresh water supplies, one might consider using graywater. Household waste, or gray water, can be used without hurting the plants if reasonable care is taken. Examples of graywater would be dishwater, bathwater and laundry water. Before going out and watering our tomatoes with household water, there are a few things we should consider.

If your home has a water softener, your household water contains more sodium than it would otherwise, but it is still usable with some precautions. Over large periods of time, sodium may cause soils to become tighter and resist water penetration. If necessary, you can counteract this by mixing gypsum into the soil surface. If your home does not have a water softener, your bathwater and rinse water from dishes and laundry are all of good quality for irrigation.

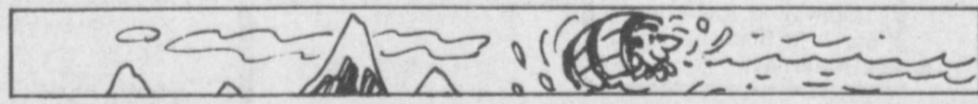

Soapy wash water from dishes and laundry will help keep plants alive in an emergency, but you should be aware of certain problems.

Bleaches commonly contain chlorine which can damage plants. One symptom of damage is a bleached appearance of new, expanding leaves. If you planned to irrigate plants with washcycle water, it would be safer not to use bleach.

Some laundry products contain boron. High levels of boron also can be toxic to plants. You won't be able to determine the boron content by reading the label on the container but look at the trade name. If it sounds like boron or borax the product has higher levels of boron and should not be used for irrigation.

Additional rules for irrigating with used water that will reduce the chances of plant damage:

1. If you use wash cycle water, mix it with the rinse cycle water.
2. Watch closely for signs of plant damage. If certain plants show symptoms first, they probably are more sensitive. Irrigate them with better quality water.
3. Don't use wash water for potted plants. With their restricted root zones they are much more subject to damage. You might save cold water from the shower for potted plants or other special uses.
4. Don't pour water directly at the base of tree trunks or shrubs. This may cause crown rot, besides the feeder roots that take up water are located further out.
5. Be sure you apply enough water so the plants get a good drink. If you just wet the surface of the ground around deeper rooted plants, they will get little benefit.
