

Brush Can Increase Wildlife On Farms

Brush is an important habitat component for many wildlife species in Texas. Total brush removal will harm more wildlife species than it will benefit, but excessive brush reduces other valuable habitat components such as forbs and grasses. Brush also competes for moisture that would nurture nesting habitat and winter food. Properly designed brush patterns coupled with proper grazing by livestock will provide excellent habitat for many wildlife species. Many people buy land with trees and brush to enjoy the wildlife, either by hunting or observation. For these potential buyers, landowners can reduce the market value of their real estate by total removal of trees and brush. Other landowners want their properties to have a clean, manicured appearance. Taller trees trimmed, smaller brush removed, fence rows cleaned, weed control herbicides are applied, and pastures are frequently shredded. Ironically, the wildlife habitat value, which may have been the reason these places were purchased, is reduced by these activities if they are not properly planned and applied. Soil Conservation Service personnel can assist landowners and operators through the local Soil and Water Conservation District in designing brush patterns, grazing systems and weed control programs that will benefit the wildlife. Technical guidance biologists with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department also help design brush patterns and develop wildlife management plans.

Oh, the things we do to ourselves in the name of fun! Saturday Thomas and I decided to give ourselves a "treat" by going to Six Flags over Texas and taking in a concert by Air Supply.

Since concert tickets were on a first come first serve basis, we got there nice and early, purchased our tickets, and proceeded to have "fun".

Did I say fun? Now, if you are thinking that its the kids that have fun at a place like that, you may be right.

Every child when asked will say they had a good time. The puzzling thing is that so many of those same kids were crying, throwing up, whimpering or about to die of heat stroke when actually at the park!

The only people hotter, or wearier than the youngsters were the adults.

To put it mildly, an amusement park on a Texas Saturday afternoon in July is hot, hot hot.

The shade is scarce, the lines to rides are long, and the ice cold drinks are expensive.

But, again, we all do it. After we get home, looking back, the sweat, the waiting and the walking don't seem so bad.

I think its a little like pain...after a few days the mind refuses to recall just how bad it can be.

Of course, people who really, really enjoy theme parks will probably think I'm nuts.

But for myself, the next time I go to anyplace like that it will have to be: a. cooler b. less crowded c. cheaper d. a long time in the future!

Being In A Non-Christian Country Is Strange

By Nanalee Nichols

Being in a country that where Christians are in the minority is an experience all its own.

Egypt, like almost all of the Middle East, is a Moslem country.

There are 17 million Christians, less than a million Jews, and about 40 million Moslems.

Yet there is a great deal of Biblical history in Egypt.

Moses was found in the bulrushes along the Nile river.

The pharaoh of Egypt and the rest of the Egyptians were visited by the plagues in that terrible time which we have all read about in the Bible.

It was to Egypt where Mary, Joseph and the infant Jesus fled from Herrod.

One of the places we visited on our last day in the country was the cave-like room where tradition says the Holy Family stayed for four months.

It is the most precious of places to Coptic Christians. Shoes must be removed before coming near the entrance.

The Egyptian Moslems are a great deal more tolerant of other religions than the others in that part of the world.

However, our guide told us very sadly that Kadaffe, the "lunatic" next door in Libya, was sending infiltrators into the universities in Egypt to teach hatred to the younger people.

She felt that some of the unrest was just beginning to show up, and feared that in time something tragic would happen in a confrontation between Moslem students and young Christians.

It seems a terrible thing, for Egypt has long been a haven for oppressed in that part of the world.

Nowhere did we encounter the "Yankee Go Home Attitude" that many people have heard of in the Middle East. To us, at least, people were the soul of courtesy and genuine friendliness.

After visiting a synagogue, a Coptic Church and the Coptic Christian Museum, we went to the Mosque of Saliden.

It is located on the highest point in Cairo, and overlooks the entire city. It is surrounded by a walled fortress, a remnant of the Ottoman Turks, a fierce, violent people who once held the country.

The mosque is very beautiful. Outside sits a row of elderly men, who place cotton sacks with ties on them over your shoes, tying them firmly around the ankle.

Covering the feet is required before walking on the beautiful, rug-covered interior.

A tiny winding stairway leads up to the minaret where the holy man calls his plaintive, eery call to prayer five times daily.

Moslems are not shy about saying their prayers in front of people, and can be seen on their knees, bending forward to touch their foreheads to the floor as they pray.

The moslem takes his religion very seriously for the most part, and we asked many questions of our guide, and received long answers.

One of the most astonishing things we learned was the importance of Jesus Christ to the Moslems. He is a great prophet, and expected to return!

We ate a spicy lunch at a Nile side restaurant. Being a cat lover, I saved various tidbits to feed to the pretty calico cats waiting patiently on the low walls of the veranda where we were sitting.

They ate politely, never jumping on tables or doing more than rubbing against friendly legs.

Egyptians are a basically kind people, and the dogs and cats were sometimes thin, but never to the point of starvation. I would venture to say that they were fed quite as well as the people themselves.

The afternoon was spent at a fascinating bazaar. Winding, twisting streets with tiny storefronts seem to go on for miles.

Habiba, our guide, left us with instructions to meet her under a clock in direct line with a minaret. We were to be careful not to lose sight of the spire, for we would surely be lost if we did.

Gold work in amazing quantities is a speciality of the bazaar. Both Jayne and I purchased gold rings for our husbands. They were actually four thing rings woven into a knot. The first thing our husbands did when we took them home was to undo them...only to find that putting them back together is nearly impossible. We ended up having to take them to a jeweler to have them restored, and had them welded together!

We bought papyrus, some other pieces of jewelry, and could have purchased hundreds of other things at the bazaar.

One shop we went up stairs barely wide enough to accommodate one person that wound in a tight spiral to a room no bigger than six foot by six foot.

No shop had a front much wider than ten feet.

Finally we were forced to wander reluctantly back to the meeting place.

Returned to our hotel we were tired, but contented, and had many things more to add to our store of knowledge, and memories.

Memories Of Shipboard Sounds

By Wm. C. Barnard

Nanalee Nichols mentioned in her column a few days ago about memories of sights and sounds, reminded me of some sounds that I will remember a long time. I had been on the Liberty Ship (Sad Sack) Sacajawea for about 12 days, returning to the states from the Aleutian Islands after the war. We steamed into Puget Sound in Washington after dark. There was a pea soup fog and the ship was unable to dock. We could hear the freight train and switch engines whistling over on the embarkadero at Seattle. That was sweet music, because I hadn't heard a train whistle in almost two years.

The next morning after the fog cleared, the ship docked and we disembarked. Upon walking out on the street another impressive sound was high heels clicking on the concrete sidewalk. There were no women, no high heels, and no concrete sidewalks where I had been for a long time. I have vivid memories of these sounds.

ROBERT WHITNEY is pictured with his "Big Boy" tomatoes. Whitney, a Talco native and retired San Antonio teacher, has been growing under two pound prize tomatoes for the past four years on the shores of Lake Bob Sandlin. His new mulch formula, according to Whitney, helped produce the July beauty that tipped the scales at two and three-quarter pounds. His wife, Grace, snapped the picture.

Cuthand Homecoming Is Big Success

Friends and families gathered together on Sunday, July 28 for the annual Cuthand Homecoming.

Everyone enjoyed visiting with friends, singing, and lots of good food for the noon day meal.

This quiet little place with only a Methodist Church and a cemetery left of what used to be a busy community was the scene of many memories.

Some remember 50 years ago there was a church, 2 cotton gins, 3 grocery stores, a dry goods hardware and grocery combination, a barber shop, blacksmiths shop, ice house, telephone central, post office, canning school to the eleventh grade with several teachers, a grist mill for grinding corn into cornmeal.

No one remembers saloons, but Cuthand will always be remembered for its moonshine whiskey during bygone days.

Folks who once lived in and around Cuthand, such as Maple, Mt. Livingston, (Scratch Ankle) Pine Branch, or near, make plans to come next year and meet with old friends on the last Sunday in July.

A partial list of those attending this is as follows: If you failed to sign the register and want your name on the 1985 register please write to Cuthand United Methodist Church, Rt. 1 Box 96, Bogata 75417 or call 632-5466 and it will be added.

Talco Couples Tour 18 States

On July 3rd Bill and Wanda Vickers and Buster and Sis Case of Talco left on a tour of state, national and provincial parks and forst that would take them through eighteen states and provinces for a total of 11,272 miles.

They reached Mt. Rushmore in South Dakota on July 4th and attended a memorial program in the amphitheater at the foot of the four president's monument. A band concert was played before hundreds of people.

The band was the fourth Marine Aircraft Wing Band from New Orleans, La. The Rev. Bruce Hanks, a distant relative of Nancy Hanks, the mother of Abraham Lincoln was the speaker.

Rev. Hanks was dressed like Lincoln and has portrayed that president around the country for ten years.

Yellowstone Park was next on the agenda to visit. Old Faithful Inn and to watch the famous Old Faithful Geyser perform.

Traveling through Montana they stopped to watch as helicopters fought a forest fire on top of a mountain. Long cables were attached to the helicopters with huge buckets on the other end. The helicopters would lower the buckets into the river below the mountain to fill them, then flew over the flames and released the water.

Entering Canada at Sweetgrass, Montana, they toured the beautiful city of Calgary, Alberta, before traveling the Icefields Parkway in the midst of the magnificent Canadian Rockies. At one point they walked up to the famous Ithabaska Glacier.

Leaving Dawson Creek in the Yukon territory at Mile 0 of the Alaska Highway, 1530 miles were traveled to Fairbanks, Alaska. Some night the low temperatures were in the 30's and the highs would be in the 50's.

Denali National Park was visited but regrettably Mt. McKinley could not be seen due to clouds. On they went to Anchorage and a visit to Cook's Inlet before traveling eastward through beautiful mountains and a wondrous view of the huge Columbia glacier.

Back down the Alaska Highway to the beginning to travel through the country of southern British Columbia and the rugged Frazier Mountains and famous Hell's Gate where giant fishways help migrating salmon on their way.

With a feeling of coming home they re-entered the U.S. going into Washington and following the Pacific Coasts through Oregon until they came to the Redwood National Forest in California. No words or pictures can capture the beauty of the towering sequoias.

Next came the awesome Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco, shrouded in mist it seemed to rise into the clouds in the early morning. Then came Las Vegas. What could be said but "fabulous".

The Grand Canyon, at which no other place in the world is such a vast panorama of time displayed so clearly, was the last of the many spectacular places visited.

The group turned eastward, knowing that for them there is no place or emotion like coming home to Talco, Texas.

Smoking—What Happens
When You Quit
You don't have to gain weight when you quit smoking if you follow these sensible rules:
1. Make a conscious effort to note the additional food, and the richer foods, you may be eating as a result of quitting smoking.
2. Buy a paperback calorie counter and figure out how many more calories you're eating.
3. Eat small snacks, more frequently—five or six times a day, rather than three heavy meals. It is healthier in general to eat smaller amounts more frequently.
4. Refuse second helpings.
5. Weigh yourself daily.
6. Eat low calorie foods, avoid rich desserts (but instead) and stop using butter or margarine.
7. To help counteract the physical addiction to nicotine, a new prescription gum is now available that has demonstrated long term success rates. It releases small amounts of nicotine in the mouth. See your doctor for more details about the new gum to help you quit smoking.

There were lots of clams in the tide flats around Grays Harbour. They were mud clams, eatable, but not real good. The clams over on the sandy beach at the ocean were sweet and good. Aberdeen was located at the mouth of the Wishcaw River on the bay. A small steamer made Sunday trips across the bay to Westport, a small ghost town on the peninsula that separated Grays Harbour from the Pacific Ocean. Dad took advantage of excursion rates to Westport one Sunday and I went along. Mother gave me a bucket and shovel so that we could dig and bring back some clams. We embarked from the wharf at the foot of Heron Street and we off. After an uneventful trip of about three hours, we arrived at the Whaling Station dock at Westport.

The whaling station had been a rendering plant where whale blubber was cooked out for the oil and the rest of the whale carcass was made into fertilizer. It was about the stinkiest place I ever saw, the stench was almost overpowering. My ancestors had been whalers for some three generations after they first came to America. If a whaling ship smelled as bad as this station did, I can understand one of the reasons why they quit the whaling business.

It was only about one-quarter mile walk across the peninsula to the Pacific Ocean beach. Digging clams was fun. A big wave would break upon the beach, and when it washed back out we would follow it, watching for signs of clams. When we saw a string of bubbles coming from a small hole in the sand, and we dug down real fast, we would get a clam. The waves were coming about a half minute apart. When I saw one coming, I had to outrun it to higher ground. The clam digging got so interesting that I got careless. One of the big breakers caught me. It knocked me down and rolled me over and over, and then when the wave began to wash back, I began to roll over and over in the other direction.

Just about the time that I thought that I was dead, Dad ran and caught me and carried me out. I didn't have any dry clothes, so we walked back across the narrow neck of land to the wharf.

The steamer soon cast off, and we were on our way home. Dad was acquainted with the engineer down on the engine deck. My clothes were still a little damp from my rolling in the surf, so we went down below so that I could dry out and Dad could visit with his friend. The space was small and full of machinery. I was fascinated, furnace roaring, boiler hissing, shaft turning, engine throbbing.

While standing near the boiler and trying to see everything at once, the glass tube for the water gauge accidentally got broken. Hot water and steam began to pour out. That gave a pretty good scare, but the engineer soon had the valves cut off and a new glass for the gauge in place. When things settled down after the water gauge incident, I happened to look through a hatchway in the deck and could see water sloshing around down below as the boat rocked and rolled through the waves. That upset me again. I thought the boat was sinking. Dad finally convinced me it was only bilge water and there was no danger.

That had been a pretty big day for me and I had a lot to tell my Mother that night after I got home.

On July 15, District Judge Leon Pesek revoked the felony burglary probation of Roy Lee English of Bogata for failure to report and sentenced him to five years in prison. Other charges remain pending against English.

All Stars Compete In National Finals

The Mt. Pleasant Division II United Girls Softball All Stars coached by Jerry Russell returned home Sunday from Big Springs, where they participated in the National Finals of Girls Softball, an honor which they won after being named Runners-Up in the East Texas State Softball Tourney in Abilene the preceding week.

Leaving the Talco Mt. Pleasant area on Tuesday they defeated Lovington, New Mexico on Wednesday.

On Thursday their opponent was Mt. Vernon, whom they defeated by 1 point. Friday morning they suffered their first loss to Odessa, which created a three way tie.

Mt. Vernon drew a bye, and Mt. Pleasant once again played Odessa that afternoon to decide the participant in the finals for Pool A Teams.

The Mt. Pleasant girls fought their way past Odessa and into the final championship games Saturday morning when they played Midland whom they also defeated. Their final game was Saturday afternoon at Whimpey Field where the girls faced Denison. Ironically this was the same team the girls had faced in Abilene the week before, and the results were the same. Mt. Pleasant lost the game 8-3 coming in second to Denison. Second place trophies were presented to the following girls at the Awards Banquet.

Jodi Bishop, Jeri Black, Allie Fallwell, Julie Martin, Leslie Henry, Julie Hays, Kacey Farragh from Mt. Pleasant; Christi Milner, and Jill Milner from Wilkinson, Kristie Eudy and Jerilyn Russell from Talco and Krista Weatherall from Bogata. Assisting Russell as coach was Gerry Martin, manger Joan Weatherall and chaperon Barbara Russell.

All of the All Stars express their appreciation to the businesses and individuals who made donations and bought sweet at the bake sale to help finance this trip to Abilene and Big Spring.

Jerry Ann Via was the winner of the decorated cake on which 59 chances were sold.

THE V.F.W. Ladies' Auxiliary, Post 8187 recently donated a 10 speed bicycle to the St. Jude's Bike-a-Thon to be held on September 7, 1985. This bicycle will be the first prize for the rider collecting the most money for this very worthy cause. Every mile the biker goes brings us closer to a cure for cancer. The life saving study of childhood cancer at St. Jude's Hospital has become critical to all the world. Shown presenting the bicycle to chairman

Billie Smiley are: Mildred Eudy, Tommy Carbell, Nina Stewart, Billie Smiley, Dathne Bointer, Jettie Minslew. More details on entering the St. Jude's Bike-a-Thon may be obtained by calling 632-5554.

THE BOGATA V.F.W. and Ladies Auxiliary presented a check to three year old cancer victim, Tony Roseler, Monday afternoon at Red River Haven Nursing Home to help cover expenses for his illness. Daphne Pointer presented the check to Tony's grandmother, Doshie Jones, who accepted for Tony.

Cairo Offers Even More Surprises

By Nanalee Nichols

It was with some sadness that we said goodbye to the friends we had made on our boat. During our six day stay, we had made friends with a number of people, including two of the sweetest British ladies imaginable. We had taken part in a fancy dress party that proved to be quite an exercise in imagination, and we had been unofficially "adopted" by a British tour group.

After exchanging addresses, snapshots and promises to write, we boarded another Air Egypt plane back to Cairo.

A flight on Air Egypt isn't quite the same as a domestic flight in the U.S.

You sit in the airport hoping against hope that you will be able to distinguish the flight numbers, because you certainly can't understand the rest of the monologue.

Upon boarding the plane and rolling down a runway, the pilot will yank the plane into a near vertical climb as possible.

When everyone has retrieved all the scattered belongings the stewardesses will wander down the aisle dealing out plastic-wrapped croissants like a car hand. There is no accompanying butter or jam, although they do hand out tea or coffee.

Upon having your baggage searched, X-rayed and checked, you are free to go. (I don't blame them for checking things thoroughly...I'm glad they do.)

We were sure that Cairo couldn't offer much more in the way of ruins and treasures than we had seen. But we hadn't bargained for the Egyptian Museum of Antiquities.

The building is old, unairconditioned, but filled with treasures almost beyond comprehension.

Tutankaman's treasures, one of the few grave robbers never found, feature solid gold coffins, elaborate jewelry, beautiful works of art, furniture, chariots, harnesses and clothing. That one treasure alone fills over two huge rooms.

Life-size statues with agate eyes so real that they sent the first archaeologists stumbling backward in fright are mixed with tiny clay everyday cooking utensils and monoliths of gigantic design.

Then, of course, there is the experience of riding a camel. Everyone should try it. The beasts kneel obediently for their passenger, then lurch upwards, hind end first, leaving one hanging over the saddle horn at a rather alarming angle.

Then they rock slowly back and forth as they plod softly and silently across the hot sands.

The whole process of hanging on for dear life is repeated, of course, when the ride ends and the camel again kneels.

There is little to be said about the pyramids. They are bigger, stranger and more amazing when actually seen than any film or photo can convey.

Standing at the base of the great pyramid of Cheops, one is overwhelmed at the idea of modern man attempting something of such a scale...much less ancient man!

Workmen smooth stones in the same manner that they always have,
