Valley of Slieve-na-Mon Land Rich in Historic Interest.

Long Famed as a Storehouse of Folklore and Fairy Legends—On Devil's Bit Mountain.

Recent news dispatches from Ireland contained the story of an ambush and battle between Sinn Feiners and crown forces in the Slieve-na-mon country, County Tipperary.

To those who have read and studied the history of Ireland the name will strike a familiar chord.

The valley of Slieve-na-mon is a country rich in historical interest. Many of the stirring events which grace the annals of Irish history have been enacted there. Perhaps in no other section of southern Ireland will you find such a wealth of historic events, such a storehouse of folklore and fairy legends and such typically Irish people as you will find in this section.

It was here in 1848 that Smith O'Brien and the Young Irish party gathered their forces; it was here a pitched battle took place between them and the royal Irish constabulary and the British military, and it was here occurred many of the stirring events of the Fenian rebellion.

The valley of Slieve-na-mon is so-called from the mountain of that name which at times towers most, cold dark and repellent, but when clothed in the soft gray mists of early morning or bathed in the glamor of an Irish sunset is truly a sight to gladden the senses. The valley embraces part of that section of Tipperary called the Golden vale of Munster, said to be the richest farming land in all Ireland.

Away to the northeast is the famous Devil's Bit mountain, another of the Galtee range. It was on this Mountain that Cromwell is said to have stood when he turned to his soldiers and said: "This is indeed a land well worth fighting for."

The sides of the mountain are very steep and the climb a hard one, but the view well repays for the trouble. Away to the north a vision of wonderful blue hills and little green valleys, and afar off a glimpse of the lovely Shannon and to the south the beautiful Golden vale dotted over with little whitewashed cottages and farmhouses. Further south is the famous Rock of Cashel, the seat of the kings of Munster, a very interesting series of ruins and well worthy a visit.

There is a story attached to every piece of note in Ireland, and it goes without saying that the Devil's Bit has one. If you visit any of the peasant homes in the valley, the woman of the house will tell you this story as she bustles about preparing you a cup of tea:

One day, the devil, through mistake, landed in the Emerald isle and, having lost his way, became very hungry. He dare not enter any peasant's cabin and ask for food or shelter, for he knew that few and far between were the homes where a little wooden cross was not hanging on the wall.

He sat down at the foot of the mountain a while and was sorely troubled. But on looking up he saw a goat making his way up the rough mountain side and instantly he was on his feet. He started in hot pursuit, but the goat being very nimble, as are most of his kind, seemed to be getting the best of the race.

Enraged with fear of losing his prey the ruler of the lower regions let out a terrific roar, and opening his huge mouth, bit a hole out of the mountain side. And the "bit" is there today to show itself. And if you are a doubting Thomas, you will find the rocks which he could not swallow scattered over the mountain side, some of them large enough to build a good-sized house.

Swords may be beaten into plow shares, but what's to be done about the silk shirts?

FROM REMOTEST PARTS OF GLOBE

Tanlac Elements Come From Lands Far Away From Here

The ingredients from which the brated medicine Tanlac is made from remote sections of the earth are transported thousands of miles over land and sea to the great Laboratories at Dayton, Ohio, Walkerville, Canada.

The Alps, Appennines, Pyrenees, Asian Asia, Brazil, West Indies, Mountains, Asia Minor, Persia, Mexico, Columbia and Peru are the far away points from which principal properties of this remarkable preparation are obtained.

What is said to be the largest pharmaceutical laboratory in the United States has been completed at Dayton, Ohio, for the manufacture of Tanlac, which, according to recent reports, now having the largest sale of medicine of its kind in the world, 20,000,000 bottles having been sold in six years.

The new plant occupies 100,000 feet of floor space and has a daily output of 50,000 bottles. Tanlac's purity is guaranteed by a series of inspections by expert chemists from time the roots, herbs, bark and fruit are received in their rough state.

It was here in 1848 that Smith O'Brien and the Young Irish party gathered their forces; it was here a pitched battle took place between them and the royal Irish constabulary and the British military, and it was here occurred many of the stirring events of the Fenian rebellion.

ON GUARD AGAINST FORGERS

Men of Money Devise Secret Signs Which Inform Bank Cashiers That Checks Are Genuine.

So clever is the modern forger that the man who relies on a signature which is hard to copy is liable at any moment to find himself victimized and his account depleted.

In order to prevent the successful forging of a forged check, several checks have been devised which even the smartest criminal could hardly detect.

For instance, there is an American millionaire who makes a tiny blot on some part of the check as a sign to the bank cashier that it is genuine. Not one forger in a thousand would attribute a blot to anything but carelessness, and quite a number of would-be swindlers have found themselves pulled up sharply on presenting an unblotted check over the counter.

Another man has hit upon the idea of apparently making a mistake in the date in the right-hand top corner of the check, which mistake is rectified by the crossing out of the wrong numeral and the substitution of the correct one. The check forger would hardly regard such an apparent blunder as the result of deliberate intention.

A Frenchman with whom this subject was discussed stated that his own method is an almost infallible one. Whenever he writes a check, he takes the precaution of tearing it out of his check book in such a manner that a tiny shred of the counterfoil remains attached to the draft. This is an intimation to the bank that the check is genuine.

Perhaps, however, the most extraordinary device is that adopted by a wary Hebrew. He makes a point of carefully perfuming every check bearing his signature with a certain scent which is very difficult to obtain.

Johnson's Tour of 1896.

Johnson's "Swing 'round the Circle" was an expression frequently to be met with in the fall of 1896, and was applied to a speech-making tour made by President Johnson about that time. President Johnson left Washington August 28, 1896, in compliance with a request that he would lay the cornerstone of a monument to be erected to Stephen A. Douglas, in Chicago, September 6. He was attended by a distinguished party, including several members of his cabinet, General Grant and Admiral Farragut also were in the party. The route was by way of Philadelphia, New York and Albany. In one of his speeches the president referred to himself as one having "swung around the entire circle" of public service, from alderman to president. The phrase "took" with newspaper reporters, and so came to be generally applied to his tour. Johnson's welcome was mixed, for passions ran high in those times. The general attitude was, however, courteous, and even cordial. In this respect St. Louis contrasted very favorably with some other large cities. Cleveland, Chicago and Springfield had extended to him no official recognition, while at Indianapolis he was booed. On the whole, Johnson's tour did not strengthen his position in the country, serving, as it did, but to intensify the fury of the opposition.—Kansas City Star.

Tasmania's Artesian Water.

The dry season experienced in Tasmania last summer caused the state government to examine the county known as the Midlands for artesian water. The area surveyed was approximately 500 square miles. The investigation has shown that there is no artesian water in the Midlands, but that there exist definite sub-artesian basins from which appreciable quantities of water of very fair quality may be drawn. The investigation, the first of its kind in Tasmania, will make a valuable asset of the Midlands, and will furnish data from which valuable conclusions can be drawn as to the conditions affecting irrigation.

Soldiers Make Money on Rats.

Inducements in the way of bounties are offered to the French soldiers to induce them to hunt the rats which infest the barracks. The bounty takes the form of money considerations and an increased allowance of wine. One man obtained a release from duty for a few days and spent the nights in hunting the rodents, and his success was so great that one man from each company was assigned to the same duty and the results of these assaults was astonishing.

Students Compete With Profiteers.

Charcoal, salmon, codfish and other commodities will be sold at several points in Tokio by students of Waseda university who have organized to raise funds for their studies on social problems and at the same time to cut into the trade of retail shops which ask unreasonable prices. The goods are to be sold at a 40 per cent discount from the ordinary price.—Japan Advertiser.

Dominant Policy.

"I can't quite decide whether our distinguished colleague is for protection or free trade."

"He is still sounding out his constituency," replied Senator Borghum. "The only policy on which he is absolutely consistent is self-preservation."

No Women in U. S. Mines.

There is one industry which women have not attempted to invade. It is that of coal mining, in which not a single female person in this country is employed.

"HUNGER STRIKE" NOT NEW

Was Successfully Employed as Far Back as the Days of the Early Roman Empire.

The hunger strike, as a means to gaining one's end, is not a modern invention. Like so many other things that relate to personal and national conduct, it becomes necessary to hark back to the old Romans to find an instance of where it was successfully employed.

It was in 6 B. C. and Tiberius, the famous general of Emperor Augustus, was the man who put it over with a dispatch that would have brought praises from moderns.

Tiberius was a man of dignity and spirit, who represented traditional conservatism. He was married to Julia, daughter of Augustus, widow of Scrippa, by whom she had five children, among them Caius, who figures in this tale. She was given to that luxurious life which was feared by the philosophers and legislators of the time.

While Tiberius was engaged in the campaign against the Germans, Julia commenced to cut up with a young aristocrat, Sempronius Gracchus, Augustus' son, 12 years previously, made a law which just fitted her case and under which she later was exiled.

Julia not only continued her lax career, but also started on outlining a political career for Caius, then fourteen years old. It was in direct opposition to the aims of her husband that she started a campaign to have Caius appointed pro-consul and she worked her propaganda so well that Augustus was finally compelled to heed the popular clamor. Augustus knew at the time that this would be offensive to Tiberius, but thought he might smooth it over by giving Tiberius tribunician powers and charging him with subduing a revolt in Armenia.

That is where Tiberius balked. He looked upon the whole business as an insult and demanded permission to retire to private life. This caused a clash with Augustus. It was then Tiberius threatened to let himself die of hunger. Augustus remained firm for a while, but being unfamiliar with the length of time a human being might go without food, probably not having heard of the 40-day fast by Moses, he yielded at the end of the fourth day of Tiberius' fast. After the senate had granted the permission, Tiberius took his departure for Italy and remained in exile for several years.

Alaska Pleasant Dwelling Place.

Popular conception of Alaska as a place of snow and ice and almost endless winter is upset by Andrew J. Stone, a writer in the Century, who in describing a stroll through a woodland path, says "we waded knee-deep through lupin beds, over acres of bryanthus, buttercups, forget-me-nots, violets, bluebells, gentians, geums, asters and golden rod."

The writer speaks of ferns six feet high and of immense forests whose trees rear 100 feet high and three feet in diameter, and the general appearance of a tropic jungle rather than a wooded area surrounded by glaciers. The popular conception was gained, he explained, by a deliberate propaganda given birth to by the fur companies who 30 years and more ago were not at all anxious to have outside competition in a game that was bringing them immense fortunes. The fact that the furs themselves came from animals known to love and help spread this propaganda was not until the gold rush that stories of the real climate and agricultural possibilities began to trickle into the States.

Riveting Quickly Done.

An electric heater for rivets, designed to take two rivets at a time, momentarily breaks the circuit through the second rivet when the hot one is withdrawn. The heat is diffused while a cold rivet is being inserted, and thus the heating is made more uniform when the circuit is again completed. The shanks are heated very evenly throughout their length, the heads—of larger diameter—reaching not quite so high a temperature. Current is supplied from a shell-type transformer or only while rivets are being heated, and a switch gives voltage control to adjust the heat for different sizes. Rivets up to five inches in length are taken without adjustment. The capacity of the heater is 75 pounds per hour, and in continuous operation from three to five pounds of rivets can be heated for each kilowatt-hour of energy consumed.

America's Battle Cries.

A writer in the New York Evening Post, recalling the various battle cries that have urged forward our armies in the wars in which our nation has been engaged, says that in the Revolution the cry was, "No taxation without representation;" in the War of 1812, "Free trade and sailors' rights;" in the Mexican war, "Remember the Alamo;" in the Civil war, on the Union side, "On to Richmond," on the Confederate side, "On to Washington;" in the Spanish war, "Remember the Maine;" in the recent World war, "Make the world safe for democracy."

So Unnecessary.

"Why don't you teach that dog to do some tricks?"
"I have tried," replied the man who lacks energy. "The dog won't learn."
"Not enough intelligence?"
"Too much. I can see by the expression of his face that the dog does not see any more sense in the tricks than I do."—Houston Post.

MEMORIAL DAY

Monday was Memorial Day, a day of solemn significance, the day set apart as sacred to the memory of the dead heroes of the nation who fought for the life of the Republic and the preservation of its liberties.

Memorial Day has grown in significance with the sweeping growth of the nation. First it was a day of remembrance of the heroes of the Civil War. Then came the war with Spain and the nation was given more graves to decorate. Then came America's entrance into the great world war, the greatest conflict in which this nation ever participated, when the nation's honor roll was increased by thousands of the "boys in khaki" who went to France to throw their strength into the battle against the forces of militarism so hostile to American ideals which our soldiers of other wars had fought and died to preserve. Many of these heroes still lie buried in little cross-marked mounds on the fields of France, where they gave their all for their country and humanity, and while we were placing flowers on the graves of our loved ones in our own cemeteries our thoughts traveled over the wide expanse of sea to those little mounds in northern France, which will be flower-strewn and wet again with the tears of those who knew and loved our boys. But the Americans whose loved ones lie buried "over there" did not spend the day in idle tears. To sit down and weep now would be but to betray the bravery they have shown. On this day sacred to the memory of the dead who fought and gave their lives that liberty might live and grow strong and great, the country they loved and died for should dedicate itself anew to the ideals for which they offered their lives.

All children troubled with Worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS GUM TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a general Strengthening Tonic to the entire system. Nature will then throw off or expel the worms, and the child will be a perfect health. Pleasant to take. 50c per bottle.

NEW GUINEA HEAD-HUNTERS

Periodical Forays Were Until Comparatively Recently a Regular Thing in the Island.

Until six years ago head-hunting was in full swing along the coast of New Guinea, writes Rev. E. Cappers in Catholic Missions, and describes one of these expeditions by the tribe of the Marindanim or Kaya-Kayas. The practice, he says, has been considerably checked by military expeditions. Nevertheless head-hunting is still quite frequent in the interior. On the appointed day men, women and children would hasten to the point of embarkation. At the approach of their goal the boats were anchored, and the entire party stealthily entered the forest, taking care not to give the alarm. Extra care was needed once the designated spot had been reached. On the day before the attack the hunters kept hidden in the bush, and during the night they advanced far enough to launch the attack early before dawn. Occasionally, the hunters were holed up, but most of the time the intended victims were rescued from their sleep by the sudden war-cry of the whole attacking party, and had no time to defend themselves. Victims were killed by the dozen, many of them speared through by the sharp-pointed arrows.

The victors yelled their war-cry and returned to their native haunts, where dogs and chickens of feasting awaited them with song and dance, around the gruesome trophy.

GOT JOHN BURROUGHS' 'GOAT'

Great Naturalist Admitted That Iron Wall of Treasury Vault Had Bad Effect on Him.

It was while sitting in front of the iron wall of the treasury vault at Washington that John Burroughs, guardian of the $50,000,000 the vault contained, wrote his first book, "Wake Robin." In that book it has been thought that he got closer to nature than in any of the others. "Perhaps I did," he said of it. "I know I was closer to it in longing. That iron wall reacted on me."

Mr. Burroughs realized, of course, the necessity of money to provide the comforts of existence, and his books brought him a handsome return. And this recalls an incident of a fox hunt in which he and his brother, Eben, joined about a dozen years ago. Eben Burroughs lived at Hobart, in the Catskills, and on this particular hunt the honors went to Eben, who shot the fox. At that time fox skins were worth about $5, and the successful brother relished telling of his success. Once when boasting of it to a party of friends he was halted by this from Brother John: "You have bragged about that fox hunt long enough. You shot the fox and sold the skin for $5. I wrote a little account of the hunt and sold it to a magazine for $75. So there you are."

Big Taxes.

That Madison Square Garden is the biggest parcel of taxable property in the country housing various amusements, principally boxing, is shown by a report issued by Promoter Tom Rickard for the first six months he has held the reins over the famous amphitheater.

From September, 1920, to March, 1921, he has turned over to Uncle Sam $372,000.28 federal tax, not counting $100,000.00 for New York state and city revenue tax, which includes a real estate tax of $25,000, exhibiting licenses of $500, boxing club license of $750 and the state tax for boxing of $68,120.48.

The total attendance reported from the various shows as therein appended, was 910,000. Professional boxing alone attracted 270,000 persons. Amateur boxing came into its own and was unusually patronized, the five tournaments bringing out 25,000 persons for a federal tax of $2,780.10.—New York Morning Telegraph.

Amusing!

A Hoosier author was recently asked what she regarded as her most humorous experience. She studied a few minutes and then related it. One summer she lectured at a Chautauque where another woman lectured on the subject of "health." "One night," intoned the author, "she gave a wonderful lecture on the care of teeth. We went home together, and as she was worn out I offered to go with her to her room and read to her. "That was a splendid talk that you gave tonight," I told her as she finished making her toilet to retire. "Yes, I think it is real good myself," she beamed, and absent-mindedly reached into her mouth and took from it a complete set of false teeth and relaxed ready for the reading.

Where Was It?

Miss T., a Terre Haute principal, is a genius at finding things. Her boys all know it now, too. The other day a youngster was leaning over trying to fix a pen when he suddenly straightened up and announced that a piece of the pen flew into his eye. She accordingly excused him from work and gave him all the attention accorded an invalid. And he enjoyed it, too.

But that afternoon his enjoyment was so evident that she grew suspicious. She called him to her and passed a magnet close to his eye. Of course no piece of steel came out to meet it, but there did come a confession from the youngster that he was playing soldier at the time, and that no piece of steel had gone into his eye.—Indianapolis News.

IT'S JUST CHATEAU THIERRY

World-Famous Village Apparently Is Unaware of Its Immense Historic Importance.

Chateau Thierry has patched its roots, plastered its chimneys, painted its shutters and decided to forget the war. At first every villager dreamed of making his fortune as a tourist guide. They are all back now at their old trades. It is only the good housewife who still pays attention to tourists, and then only to think black thoughts of the dust raised by the rubber neck cars that plunge without a stop through the village streets.

Over the bridge, our famous bridge, that crosses the Marne come the jolting market carts filled with beets and cabbages grown in the farm lands at the foot of Belleau Wood. There is a good deal of grumbling about the temporary wood structure that now spans the Marne, and the peasants tell you that they cannot imagine why the soldiers did not build it wide enough to let two carts pass each other.

In the Cafe des Martiniers they talk no more of the war. Instead one hears only the idle gossip that the river men have picked up. Chateau Thierry is no place for the sentimentalist who has imagined that this town of towns would live forever in awe of its memories.

A walk through the streets reveals few marks of either the German or the American occupation. In a field on the outskirts stands the skeleton of a "tin lizzie" that once did ambulance service. On the door jamb of several houses one can still read the billeting officer's stenils telling how many soldiers each house would accommodate. In one instance the owner has purposely left unpainted a square around these sacred numbers as a delicate tribute to his departed guests.—George F. Kenney in the American Legion Weekly.

EPH HAD NOTHING TO SAY

Absent-Minded Man Didn't Wait to Make Explanation of Somewhat Laughable Situation.

Old Ephraim Davis had the reputation of being the most absent-minded man in Chenango county. One day he went to S— on various matters of business. At the tailor's he bought a new suit, which he donned, asking that his old one be wrapped up. He then went to the national bank and purchased bonds of considerable value and placed them in the breast pocket of his new suit. After doing several other errands he drove leisurely home.

Some time afterward he went to get the bonds from the pocket of his old suit. Naturally, he did not find them there. Greatly perturbed, he put on his new suit and set off for S—. There he went immediately to the bank.

"I bought some bonds here the other day," he began in his drawing voice, "and I put them right in this here pocket." His hand went up to his coat. At a sudden rustling that ensued an expression ludicrous in its mixture of shamedness and relief came into the wrinkled countenance. "And, by gosh, here they be!"

Without another word he turned on his heel and walked out, leaving the bank employees convulsed with laughter.—Youth's Companion.

Her Business.

Judge T. J. Mead of Superior court, room 5, sometimes tells a story which runs like this:

In one of the courts in southern Indiana a woman was on trial for the unlawful practice of sorcery. She was being questioned by the prosecution, but her occupation made her sufficiently alert in respect to effect any incriminating evidence which she might have thrown on herself by a committed answer. Finally the judge became irate and shot this question to her point blank:

"Are you or are you not a sorceress?" And just as quickly came back the answer: "Your honor, that's my business."

The judge was on the point of sentencing her for contempt of court when he realized that she had given a perfectly civil answer.—Indianapolis News.

Britain's Great Sailor.

An admiral's sword, which had been surrendered to Nelson by the Spanish admiral on board the San Josef after the battle of St. Vincent, has just been sold for about $25. The sword was worth much more to Nelson, and to Great Britain. For this victory of 1797 is of peculiar significance in Britain's naval history, in that it first revealed the full capacity of Nelson—already well known in the navy—to all his countrymen, and led to his appointment as rear admiral. In this action, when the Spanish seemed likely to escape, Nelson, without waiting for orders, threw his ship, the Captain, across their bows, a movement which led to their complete defeat. Nelson received the swords of the Spanish officers on the deck of the San Josef and became at once a popular figure.

New Idea in Jelly-Making.

In the jelly-making process patented by M. O. Johnson, fruit juice is concentrated by freezing out a portion of its water, and is then heated to a temperature high enough to coagulate suspended matter, though not high enough to impair the flavor. After separation of coagulated matter, the juice is sterilized by heating to a temperature below that employed for coagulation, then jellified after sugar has been added. Sugar added before coagulation may give better clarification.

Snowstorms Form in Warm Climates. Potentially snow storms form in general region of warmth, strange as it may seem. The area of low barometric pressure, or storm sea, comes whirling eastward across the Gulf states and then generally takes a twist northward along the Atlantic seaboard. When sufficiently far north these warm air currents are chilled and the moisture becomes snow, very often being blown to the north by the back draft of east wind.

Results of Pressure on Eyeballs. Pressure on the eyeball has a surprising effect on the functioning of various parts of the body. Among those who have confirmed this are A. and L. Binet, French investigators, who find that such animals as dogs and rabbits are affected, as well as men. The compression of the eye strikingly inclines the action of the heart, increases respiration, acts upon the blood vessels and even produces disturbance of the stomach. Eye such activities are brought about is not unexpected.

Practical Kindness Now. There is a kindness more than the polite and pleasant smile and polite slip of the lips which is the real kindness. It is the kindness that is carried by the silent boys who ship where waters hang in the air. It is the Greek child in Smyrna who a year there is a penny in his hand which a person is paid a great deal to interpret. Such is the feeling of the people that he who accepts this feeling, he is able to accept the name through the Boston Post.

Early American History. Plymouth was the first permanent white settlement in New England and dates its founding from the landing of the Pilgrims Dec. 21, 1620. The first works on the banks of the Sagadahoc river, established in 1607, were the first iron works established in America. A small iron pot cast there in the first furnace in America is now the property of the city of Lynn and is in a glass case in the Lynn public library.

For State Builders. They who preach patience to the peoples as the sole remedy for the ills by which they are oppressed, or who, while they admit the necessity of a contest, would yet leave the initiative to be taken by their rulers, do not, to my thinking, understand the state of things coming upon us. It is not enough to precipitate a monarchy into a polity; the soil must be cleared up and a durable edifice erected on its site.—From "Fate and the Future" by Mead.

Many Still Read Dickens. Charles Dickens has been ruled out by a class of the younger literary critics as a decided back number, but the statement of his British publishers that during the past three years the sale of his books has been almost doubled seems to refute that idea. Some of Dickens' novels sell more than 50,000 every year, and he has been dead forty-eight years. His sales during the last ten years have been larger, it is asserted, than those of any three novelists put together.
