NICHOLS' WORTH

Security. There are many different kinds of it, and it's something we don't think about very often.

There is a security in living in small towns, though, unlike any other.

About two miles out of town the other day, I did something for the first time in my life...ran out of gas.

I didn't even bother to start walking, though. I simply stood by the side of the truck, knowing that someone I knew would come along. I didn't have to wait five minutes before that happened.

They took me into town, helped me round up a gas can, etc., etc.

That, my friends, is security!

Try it on a freeway sometime!

It's the same about lots of things. Break-downs, injuries, sickness, fires, whatever...when a small town resident has troubles, the whole town turns out to help.

Just ask anyone who has had their house burn, or a serious, long term disability.

We don't always talk a lot about it, we don't make big speeches, we do, we help, we care.

With Christmas coming up, it's a thought I just wanted to share.

Next time you drive down Main Street, count the number of people you know...or better still, count those you DON'T know. Were there any? It's doubtful.

That, and the knowledge of their helpfulness, is one of the very real advantages to small town life...and it is one facet of security we usually take for granted.

Calvary Baptist Plans Cantata

The Rebelettes hit for eleven in the second period to Roxton's 17. The visiting team led the Rebelettes 31-17 at the half.

Rivercrest added 10 and 14 points in the third and fourth quarters, but the powerful Roxton team added 33 of their own to claim the victory.

Rachel Smith each with six, Lori Alford with four, Cynthia Thompson with two and Kelli Anschutz with one.

Rivercrest met North Lamar in their second game of the tourney in the Talco gym Friday night. The Rebelettes captured the game in overtime play 47-45. High scorer for Rivercrest was Donna Sessums with 18 points.

North Lamar tied up the score at 45

all at the end of the final quarter to bring the game into overtime. Both teams stalled in the overtime period and couldn't seem to get to the basket.

In the final seconds of the overtime, the Rebelettes passed the ball back and forth on the outside and waited patiently for an opening. It came when Cynthia Thompson stood alone under the goal for the Rebelettes. She took the pass and put through the two points needed for the victory, 47-45.

Scoring for the Rebelettes were Donna Sessums with 18, Kelli Anschutz with 10, Cynthia Thompson with seven, Rachel Smith and Ranell Burns with four each, and Lori Alford and Misti Foxworthy each with two.

Area Home Economics Teachers Attend Conference

Evelyn Miller, Detroit, Pam Vaughan, Clarksville and Anita Stubblefield, Rivercrest, attended the Region III Professional Improvement Conference for Vocational Home Economics Teachers held at Corsicana High School on Saturday, December 7. The theme of the conference "Home Economics Education: Priority Based Program Planning" was explored through a variety of presentations.

Topics included "Management for the Dual Role Homemaker" by Suzanne V. LaBrecque, Ph.D., Dean of the School of Home Economics, North Texas State University; "Mandates Governing Vocational Home Economics Education" by Virginia D. Chancellor, Occupational Education Specialist, Texas Education Agency; and "Building a Quality Self-Concept" by Barbara Barrett, Ph.D., Department of Home Economics, Stephen F. Austin State University.

A panel composed of single parents and specialists in home economics education presented ideas to be used in meeting the "Challenges of Single and/or Teenage Parents".

Participants were divided into groups according to teaching assignment to investigate the topic of "Improving Classroom Management and Coverage of Difficult to Cover Essential Elements".

The conference, called by the Texas Education Agency, was designed to help teachers maintain top quality home economics programs.

Talco WMA Meets

The Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the First Baptist Church of Talco met in the home of Mrs. Vivian Westbrook Tuesday night, December 3 for their Christmas party.

Christmas decor was used throughout the home, including the green tree decorated with glittering garlands of tinsel and twinkling lights. Gifts were exchanged from beneath the tree and secret pals were revealed and names for new ones drawn.

Mrs. Jo Coil, president of the WMA, called the meeting to order with Mrs. Mary Welch voicing the opening prayer. Mrs. Coil brought the devotional entitled "What Makes Christmas?" from Heb. 1:6 and Luke 2:10-11.

After the program, the group was ushered into the dining room where they were served a buffet style meal.

Those present were Mrs. Janice Jones, Mrs. Jo Coil, Mrs. Marvie Sue Goates, Mrs. Ophelia Hood, Mrs. Charise Clark, Mrs. Lola House, Mary Welch, Mrs. Joyce Alexander, two visitors, Mrs. Alma Lowry of Bogata and Mrs. Joyce of Chicago, Ill.

The January meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Ophelia Hood with Mrs. Joyce Alexander bringing the devotion.

Calvary Baptist Women Meet

The Baptist women of Calvary Baptist Church of Talco met at the church on Dec. 2-3-6 to observe the week of prayer for Foreign Missions.

The theme of the week of prayer was "And I Will Pray", taken from the scripture in I Cor. 14:15. The study for the week was showing the importance of career missionary and support role of the volunteers in missions. The prayer calendar was read each day by the Mission Support Chairman and special prayer was given for all missionaries especially those who had birthdays.

Elsie Weatherall and Ovie Lee Paterson led in the meditation period each day. Mary Kelley led in the interpretation for each program, Orva Lou Easterling, Raye Miller gave the first and second missions for each period. Georgia Easterling led in the intercession periods and Mary McKelvey led in the decision period each day.

A good attendance was reported throughout the week and refreshments of chips, dips and coke was enjoyed after the program on Friday.

America's first railroad timetable was advertised in Baltimore's newspaper "The American" in 1830 by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company. Trips were established between Baltimore and Ellicott's Mills, MD, a 26-mile journey that cost 75 cents. Passengers had to book round-trip passage because of a shortage of cars.

NTCC is Now Accredited!

Northeast Texas Community College is now an institution accredited by the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges.

The action came earlier this week during the annual association conference. The College was awarded "Candidacy status", the highest possible for an institution less than two years of age.

Dr. Wayland DeWitt, NTCC president, stated, "We are delighted with the accreditation award. Our accreditation project has been a team effort with all college employees and Trustees working together to produce an extremely comprehensive report regarding the College, of hosting a six-person examination team on campus for several days to review every aspect of the College and of responding to all questions raised by the committee."

DeWitt had special praise for Dr. Carolyn Branch, Dean of Instruction and Accreditation for the College and for Lois Smith, Secretary to Dr. Branch.

He also expressed gratitude that the College has been able to accomplish another important goal for the College and for the students, on schedule.

Fireants Very Active

By Herb Brevard
Fireants are very active in East Texas, according to Dr. James Robinson, entomologist. This is a good time to treat mounds with an approved insecticide.

Mosquitoes have increased tremendously since the rains across the area. This problem will continue until a heavy frost.

Robinson says this is a good time to treat pets for fleas and ticks and get the infestations cleaned up prior to cold weather.

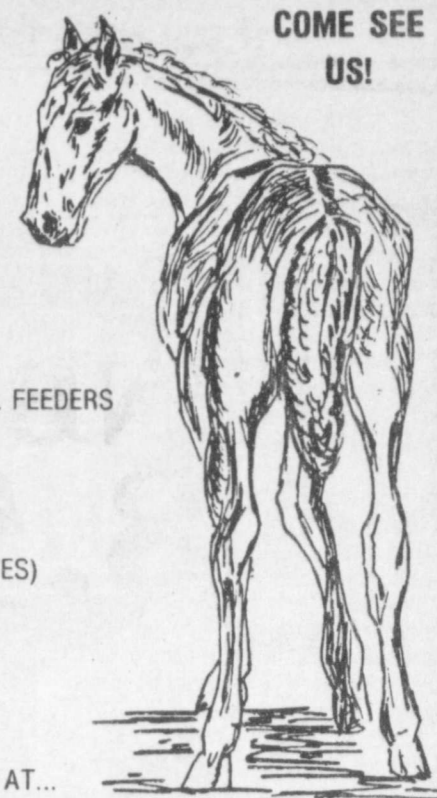

Ponds are full from recent rains. Before stocking ponds, a water sample should be taken and analyzed. Billy Higginbotham, Extension wildlife and fisheries specialist, says that even ponds that were checked a year ago should have another water sample checked. The flushing caused by the heavy rainfall could have affected the pH of the water.

Fish farmers currently have a good supply of fingerlings available. Sport fish species such as catfish and forage species such as threadfin shad can be supplementally stocked in laeks that already contain fish.

For new ponds and lakes, Higginbotham says that this fall would be a good time to stock catfish. For larger ponds to be stocked with bass, forage species such as bluegill, redear sunfish and threadfin shad should be stocked. Once the forage species are established, bass can be stocked next spring.

Hessian Fly In County

By Herb Brevard
The Hessian fly is a relatively new insect in East Texas, but is currently known to occur in Delta, Lamar, Bowie, Rans and Van Zandt counties. According to Dr. James Robinson, entomologist, Henderson, Wood, Hopkins and Red River counties are suspected of being infested. Wheat is the preferred host of the Hessian fly, but infestations have been found on barley and rye. Elbon rye is thought to be resistant and oats are not infested. The Hessian fly may attack wheat any time of the year. On seeding wheat, it feeds on the crown (November-January). On more mature wheat (February-June), it feeds just above the node. The fly can destroy stands in early fall and cause wheat to lodge in late spring. There is no economical chemical control for the Hessian fly. It can be spread in wheat straw or by migration of the adults.

FOURTH PLACE in the Talco Christmas Parade went to the Rivercrest Senior Class Car. (Staff Photo by Joyce Alexander)

Robinson says that if an infestation is found, the producer must live with it and plant resistant varieties next year.

Eric And Debbie Pearson Strive To Maintain Longhorn Tradition

By Nanalee Nichols
Neither the twenty-degree temperature, nor the eye-watering wind can hide the pride in Eric and Debbie's faces.
They stand amid their cattle smiling and stretching out their hands to different ones, "Texas Lil", or some other cow. There's one thing a little different about these cows...the horns. All around a forest of long, curving horns wave atop regal bovine faces.

Eric and Debbie Pearson raise registered Texas Longhorns. Eric explains, once out of the whipping wind, that he and his father originated the idea for them after considering "several different things, including Llamas". But Eric, at Paris Junior College, fell in love with the Longhorn and it's heritage while doing research on cattle breeds. Further investigation proved to him the practicality of the famous breed, and he and his dad purchased a heifer and a bull calf at Tyler. Today Eric and Debbie have thirty head of the "critters".

Eric's dad is dead now, and so is his mother. In memory of them, the brand they have adopted is an O and J intertwined. The "O" is for Olga, the "J" for John. These two people, he says, gave them the land and the inspiration to continue with the project.

Eric and Debbie live in Deport. His grandparents are Bob and Dorcas Read. Eric was raised in College Station, Debbie in Moyers, Oklahoma.
He is a fireman for the Paris Fire Department. That means that Debbie is often the one to tend to the cattle. The project is very definitely a shared one.

They have launched Longhorn breeding with a will. They went to Colorado last June to buy some of the cattle from a leading breeder's dispersal sale.
They took one down to Johnson City to a futurity show and sale, and received many compliments on her. The only problem was, she was so fat that the judges thought she was grain-fed!

Blackland Longhorn Ranch, as the Pearson's call their spread, just has good grass, especially compared to the rougher, rockier terrain around Johnson City.

The couple know their cattle. They explain readily how the basic root stock for the hardy, durable breed developed from a red long-horned cow from Spain which mixed gradually with a variety of cattle gone wild from Mexico.

Natural selection, they say, has kept the breed amazingly tough. Calving problems are almost unheard of, they are disease resistant, and, Eric maintains, A&M's latest research

PROUD TRADITION-Eric and Debbie Pearson hope to carry on the Longhorn tradition by raising quality Longhorns. Their herd of 30 registered Longhorns are gentle and the couple takes great pride in them. (Staff Photo) shows the meat to be low fat, good quality meat.

Of course, the cows with their huge rack of horns, often with a "Texas Twist" became so famous as the cattle drive thousands of miles along the trails to the Kansas railheads.

Along with that fame grew an affection it is hard not to feel for them.

They were faced with extinction in 1922, due to being mixed so heavily with fatter, more domesticated cattle. But efforts to save them paid off, and now they flourish once again.

The calves, they say, are born small, but grow at a fast rate. Along with the growth of body goes the growth of the little horn nubbins, which quickly develop into the trademark that distinguish the spotted animals.

Eric's working chute is especially designed for longhorns. They are, however, surprisingly gentle to handle.

Eric smiles, "They do know how to use those horns, however...let a dog or wolf come in the pasture and just watch." The Longhorn cow fights ferociously to defend her young, but apparently is not a problem to handle in the corral!

What are the Pearson's goals as Longhorn breeders? Well, they say, "We want to be known for keepin' the Longhorn tradition and breed true."

They are working at, and with their enthusiasm, it isn't hard to imagine that they and their gentle natured, huge horned cows may one day be a big name in the Longhorn business!

What To Do With Turkey Leftovers

By Mary Lou Williamson

Now that Thanksgiving is over, we must consider whatever to do with the left over turkey. Some families enjoy leftover turkey from Thanksgiving. In fact, some like the leftovers better than the holiday meal itself!!

The key to using leftovers effectively is to plan ahead when packaging. If your family prefers turkey sandwiches and creamed turkey dishes, you can freeze the leftovers in slices and small pieces. If possible, cover the slices and pieces with broth or gravy to prevent contact with air. This technique lengthens storage life. Package in air tight, meal-sized packages or containers and freeze quickly. Label package or container with number of servings, cooking instructions and the expiration shelf life of the product.

Frozen turkey does not improve with age, and it does not retain good eating quality for as long as some other meats. If you are going to freeze turkey, remember this storage guide: one month for slices or pieces, six months for slices or pieces covered with broth or gravy and six months for turkey casserole dishes.

Tasty casseroles can be prepared by combining cubed turkey with vegetables, sauce, seasonings, cooked spaghetti, macaroni, noodles or converted rice. Regular rice and potatoes become mushy after freezing.

Prepare the turkey casserole, cool it quickly and place it in a meal-sized freezing container. Cover tightly with moisture-vapor resistant wrap and freeze immediately.

By planning for leftovers, you can spread the enjoyment of turkey over a longer period of time and save food preparation time later during the busy holiday season.

To help you prepare for the festive season will share a humorous poem on the subject of turkey meals, turkey leftovers and when will this turkey be gone!

Nine Nights A-Gnawing

On the first day of Thanksgiving, I served my love a meal
Whose turkey and accessories had total eye appeal.

On the second day, the same food, heated up.
Seemed rather less attractive as we settled down to sup.

On the third day, strong brew and fancy ices

Helped take the curse from sandwiches of breast and drumstick slices.
On the fourth day, we dined by candle light.

Pretending that the entree was not fowl again that night.

On the fifth day, I simmered up the bones.

Into a reminiscent soup turkey under tones.

On the sixth day, in cream sauce laced with sherry,

The scraps made appetizing toast, although perhaps not very.

On the seventh day, my true love wished to know

How long, O Lord, and shuddered when I figured five to go.

On the eighth day, an oozing casserole.

Of stew beneath it biscuit crust was greeted with "My Soul!"

On the ninth day, he eyed the pots a-bubble.

Ad whisked me to a restaurant for T steak on the double.

A holiday wish is that your turkey leftovers are turned into turkey planned overs by freezing family size portions for later use when the appetite is more willing and appreciative of the bird.

As one philosopher once said, "There was no respect for youth when I was young, and now I am old, there is no respect for age, I missed it coming and going."

Most parents want their children to learn respect for others, yet it's a concept that cannot be taught directly. Rather, respect is something that is modeled and learned as others practice it.

Respect wears many faces. It can be viewed as self-respect, respect for others or respect for property. It is most obvious when it is missing.

The hallmarks of a family that teaches respect include the following: The family respects individual differences within the family. The family knows that self-respect means just that, respect for oneself. The family respects all groups, yet does not feel compelled to condone all groups. The family respects individual decisions and will continue to offer support if failures occur. The family shows respect to those outside the family. The family respects the property of others.

When respect is taught at home, it will extend beyond the home. The family who respects others has self-respect. It is also secure enough in its own being to trust each family member. A trusting, respectful family is perceived by others as being a respected, trustworthy family.

Lamar County Judge Brady Fisher was recently presented a plaque by the District 5 Extension Homemakers Association in appreciation for support of programs impacting families. Presengin the plaque was Billie Brown, District 5 Texas Home Economics Director.

My thanks to the readers who located the owner of the unusual doll quilt with tating around the edge. Doll quilt owner is Mr. s C.L. Porterfield of Detroit. She will be happy to talk to interested quilters about her unique quilt. She has an unusual hobby, she knows how to tat.

Teacher: "What's the difference between one yard and two yards?"
Student: "A fence."

have a nice weekend
