Summer is here...and, as usual, it slipped in the door as silently as a wraith

Oh, the temperatures haven't soared yet, but spring is gone, banished by an unseen force that tells it to leave.

Only two weeks ago I was wandering for miles along the farm to ads, showing guests our marke of wildflowers. The tender, profusi pale pinks, fragile whites, soft purples and greens were everywhere.

The California Poppies were a riotious carpet of pink, and the variety of Indian Paintbrush, Indian Blanket and others were everywhere.

Now, scant days later, none are to be found. Instead the bobbing carpet of Queen Anne's lace sways above the deepening grasses, while the first sunflowers, black-eyed susans and meadow grasses head and bloom.

The trees have lost their "stained glass" look of fragility, deepening in green until they are thick and solid...welcome protection against the summer sun.

Hay production has begun, crops grow by near-literal leaps and bounds, while weeds provide constant competition.

The first drone of locust are beginning to punctuate the afternoons, when they can be heard above the sounds of air conditioners. The sun makes promises of blisters and soreskins to the unwary, while the initiated make promises back with sunscreens and shade.

The pleasure of sipping iced tea on the porch each evening is extreme. The heat fades to pleasant co it's memory adding spice to the brief period of rest and peace. Where did spring go, though? When does the cut-off period occurr...could it ever be noted? On one single day, at one single hour of an afternoon, does spring give up the ghost and flee to parts unknown, or summer declare itself triumphant? If it does, I, for one, have never been able to catch it. It is simply that one day, like a light flipping on. I realize that my favorite season has gone away....fled from summer time once more.

W. Amanda Tauch Dies At Age 94

Waldine Amanda Tauch, described as the first Texas woman to gain national fame as a sculptress, has left the city a legacy in bronze.

Tauch, whose works include the statue of Moses Austin standing in front of the City Hall, died Monday. She was 94

Reared in Brady, she moved to Schulenburg about 1914, where she first trained with noted sculptor Pompei Coppini, the creator of the Alamo Cenotaph.

Once Coppini was convinced Tauch was a serious sculptress, she became his protege and remained with him and his wife, Elisa, for a lengthy period.

Tauch and the Coppinis lived in New York for many years, but came to San Antonio in the early 1930's so Coppini could prepare the Cenotaph for the 1936 Texas Centennial Tauch had several Centennial projects of her own, her friend Belle Wesp said. Among Tauch's works is the statue of an Indian that stands on the Commerce Street Bridge. In addition, she sculpted a tribute to higher education at the Chapman Graduate Center on the Trinity University Campus, Wesp said

"She was active as a sculptress until the early 1970's when she developed problems with her eyes," Wesp said. Her last monumental work was called "The Doughboy" commissioned by the American Legion in Austin. Along with Coppini, Tauch founded the Coppini Academy of Fine Arts in San Antonio in 1945. she was president emeritus of that organization, which was founded to encourage an understanding and appreciation of art and to provide scholarships for aspiring artists. A holder of a doctorate in fine arts, Tauch was once a member of the Trinity University faculty. Other affiliations included more than a dozen civic and arts grfoups including the Altrusa Club of San Antonio, the Fellow National Sculpture Society and the American Artists' Professional League of New York.

Services were at 1 p.m. Thursday at Porter Loring Mortuary. Interment was in Sunset Memorial Park. She will be buried next to the Coppinis. She is the first cousin of Mary Mauldin of Bogata.

Church, Henderson. Dr. W.H. Hitt delivered the commencement

To enter the doctorate program, a person must be nominated by a faculty member and approved by the faculty and the Calvary Baptist Church. He must then present a prospectus and upon approval he has three years to complete a 50,000 word desertation which must meet the approval of the assigned faculty

Bro. Daniels received his education from Fruitvale and Grand Saline Independent School Districts,

Draughans Business College, Texas

Institute of Technology. After surrendering to the ministry, he entered

Texas Baptist Institute and Seminary in 1962 and began pastoral work in December of that year. He received a two year Bible Diploma in 1964.

Bachelor of English Bible Degree in 1965, and Master of English Bible

He has pastored the Johntown Baptist Church since September, 1977.

You should know Bill Harper, candidate for the state's first silver-haired legislature.

The silver-haired legislature is a bi-partison body which will represent the interests of older Texans in Austin.

As county judge in Titus County, Bill Harper worked with Austin legislators. He understands the legislative process.

As the first president of the Titus County Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons, he has learned firsthand the needs and desires of older Texans.

Bill Harper's experience and business expertise later led to his appointment as assistant state director of the northeast Texas chapters of the AARP.

As a native East Texan, Bill Harper understands the unique nature of the three-county area he will represent. These counties are Titus, Franklin and Red River.

If you're 60 or over, this is your opportunity to be heard in Austin. A vote for Bill Harper Saturday May 30 is a vote for effective representation.
