Every morning of the world, whether you gt up in the middle of a huge city or whether you arise to the country, take a moment to thank God for your blessings.

Among those blessings, count having space...space to move, to breath, to drive, to live!

We've just returned from visiting friends who live near London, England. They have no space.

It is incredible the tiny amount of personal space that they get by on, and how closely they have to live. For an example, one of our friends, who is widowed, lives in a house with a ten foot by nine foot living room, a tiny kitchen (there isn't even room for a full sized refrigerator) an even smaller dining room and upstairs two little bedrooms with a single bath.

There is a small garden back of the house, and a front yard about nine feet dee

This, to them, is a big space. Of course, the house itself is a duplex (what they call a semi-detached). Houses that are completely separate with yard on all four sides are almost unknown

The rents council in Mill Hill doesn't like the lady having all this room. They want her to quit using the living room and rent it to someone else as a "bedsitter" a single room to live and sleep in, sharing kitchen and bath facilities! Owning one's own home is practically impossible, property and home rates being absolutely phenomenal!

But worst of all, besides bumper to bumper traffic and tight living quarters, are the lives of those who must travel the underground train system to and from work

We took it back from London city center to Finchley one day.

We didn't get a seat. Everyone stood up, clinging to overhead straps while the lucky few sat down crowded shoulder to shoulder.

At each stop, we would look on in horror as more people piled on and piled on. At each stop we would have sworn that not a single soul could have been added to the load...but seven or eight mroe would squeeze in!

There was no way to raise a free hand to scratch your nose! The folks seemed to consider it normal...they do it every morning and every evening, as it is about the only way to go back and forth to work ... it's quicker than driving, even if one can afford a car...which most can't. To us, it was like an unbelieveable nightmare. Mixed in with the neatly dressed work force are filthy tramps, street

"buskers" and the elderly. Those who got on looking weary after a long, hard day at work looked infinitely wearier afterwards.

Our lives are so different, even in large cities. We simply have so much more space.

At lunch hour, every park...and they have some lovely ones...is covered over with people escaping from the office for a few moments to eat their lunch on a tiny patch of green grass...but consequently, there are so many that they end up eating practically in one another's laps, the grass hidden under the wave of bodies.

We had the nicest vacation we have ever had...but it was still a relief to arrive back home...where there is still room to move about, to be ourselves and to cherish a little privacy.

Holiday With English Friends Best Ever

By Nanalee Nichols

Editor's Note: The number of people who have already requested writeups on our yearly vacation is flattering. It amazes me how much a lot of folks want to hear about our travels. This year, our visit to friends in England will provide one of the most interesting sagas ever, with meetings with members of Parliament, a view of the Queen Mother, and living the lifestyle of the average Londoner to contribute to the historical sights and scenes we experienced. Here's the first installment.

There is always, I suppose, one vacation (or holiday as the English say) that stands head and shoulders above the rest. It is the one trip that is so sweet in memory that it evokes tearful feelings when recalled. This year's visit to friends in England definitely is the best, and sweetest trip we have ever had.

When my friend, Jayne King and I were in Egypt several years ago, we met a pair of retired sisters, with whom we definitely had an immediate affinity. Last year, the women came to visit us here in Texas. This year, Thomas and I went to visit

Mic Fuller and Lee Symonds gave us a vacation to remember, providing us with sights and experiences above what the ordinary tourist will ever

My Friday job at Paris Travel Consultants provided the money for the airfar,e and they provided the rest.

We flew to Gatwick Airport and then caught the train into Victoria Station in the heart of downtown London. Waiting in the rain were our two friends, faces smiling happily as we crammed into one of the London taxis which are so convenient.

It's a long ride out to Mic's house at Mill Hill, during the ride we became reacquainted with the absolute insanity of being the world's worst drivers, which is one's first impression...they must be the world's best drivers!

Bumper to bumper, weaving in and out of the narrow city streets, cutting gaps between vehicles in inches instead of feet, Londoners manage a traffic congestion that would astonish even a New Yorker

Arriving at Mic's semi-detached (duplex), we were confronted with a tiny, but highly functional house with a gorgeous garden in the back. One has to see the gardens of England to truly appreciate their loveliness.

For the rest of the day we napped, having been up all night on our overseas flight

Lee informed us, however, that 'you are not here to have fun, but to educate yourselves." Grinning mischievously, she handed us brochures on Hampton Court, the next day's itinerary, and disappeared to Finchley, where she lives. That night we went to her flat (apartment), met Pam, the woman who shares it with her, and had a gorgeous English meal of roast beef and Yorkshire pudding. Yorkshire pudding, for those who don't know, isn't a dessert, but the English equivalent to our biscuits...a delicious flour and egg concoction to ladle gravy over

That night, we slept under a thick comforter and a blanket, the temperature in the lower fifties, quite a change after the near 100 mark of the day before at home

The journey to Hampton Court was fairly short. Like most Americans, we were overwhelmed by the beauty and age of Hampton Court Palace.

Hampton Court was built by Cardinal Wosley, who "donated" it to Henry The Eighth when Henry expressed a desire for it.

Within are ornate ceilings of plaster and gilt, incredible murals and ceiling paintings, and an elegance that could only be fit for a king. Given to King Henry in 1562, the portraits of Henry's unfortunate wives are grouped within. One gallery is said to be haunted by Catherine Howard, who escaped her guards and ran screaming to try and appeal to Henry before she was taken to London and beheaded.

For centuries the poor woman's ghost was supposed to be heard and seen, tearing down the hall to cry for

Hugh fireplaces that a dozen men could stand upright in, kitchens to prepare feasts for hundreds and windows of glass unimaginably old are throughout the palace.

Since it was drizzling rain too much for a picnic, we sat in the tiny Daf, (Lee's car), and ate chicken and buttered rolls.

From there, we went to the world famous Kew Gardens, the Royal Botanical Gardens. There once more we were struck by the absolute beauty that only England seems able to provide when it comes to flowrs.

Between Kew and Svon we stopped at a pub...the "Fox and Goose". Now, east Texans need to understand...a pub in England is NOT the same thing as a bar in Texas! Within there is always a warm fire going, the glitter of immaculate glassware, and the friendly smiles of people glad to see

Coffee is as much available as anything stronger, and kids, grandmothers and dogs are frequently in evidence

Harry, a beautiful black Labrador, wandered in from his home down the road for a hand out of dog biscuits while we talked to the landlord, John, and Mike, a regular customer about how things were in America.

Mic and Lee make a regular route of pubs to collect money for "Age Concern" an organization which helps the elderly with extra heating bills, food needs or anything else the pensioners may need in the way of medical equipment. The two men we were speaking to had recently raised 1000 pounds by holding a raft race down the river on a cold, wet day. Huge greenhouses shelter plants such as cactus from arid lands, banana trees and lily pads five and six feet across from tropical environments. Outside, waterfowl of every variety swim placidly on lakes and ponds, and masses and masses of blossoms accent tress of royal magnificance. An added treat to the busy day was a visit to Syon Park, where inside a tropical greenhouse, hundreds of butterflies fluttered gently among plants and blooms.

Also at the same location was the British Heritage Motor Museum, Mic and Lee opted for a cup of tea instead of looking at antique car's, but the collection of Jaguar's, Morris', Vauxhall and Austins was really spectacular.

By that time, we were tired enough to welcome going "home" to the house at Mill Hill, which was already beginning to seem just that...home indeed.

Football Boys Should Report At Rivercrest August 5th

All boys planning to play football this year, should report to the fieldhouse on the Rivercrest Campus Wednesday, August 5 at 5 p.m.

Any incoming freshman, any upperclassman who did not participate in athletics during the past school year, or athlete who was injured ans was then under a doctor's supervision for that injury must get a physical.

The doctors in both Bogata and Talco should have the physical forms in their offices. If the doctor's offices do not have these forms, you can pick them up at the school in Mrs. Taylor's office at Rivercrest. You will not be allowed to participate until the physical forms are completed and turned in.

Any practice missed will be unexcused.

By Mollie Williams In case you haven't noticed, there's been a tremendous influx of new cereals on the market in the last few It seems like each time I go grocery shopping, I find another cute bear or a new monster looking back at home from the stock of cereals. Back when I was a kid, there were only a dozen or more different kinds to choose In those days we would have been thrilled with colored marshmallows in our cereal. I remember once when I was somewhere around eight to ten yers old, my great aunt, who lived across the street, told me she had a box of grape nuts that I could have. Now in those days, we didn't get candy every day of the week and grapes were as unobtainable for us as gold. I didn't know what grape nuts were, but they sounded wonderful. I imagined big, fat, juicy grapes with crunchy nuts on the inside. Needless to say, when I opened the littl box of cereal, I was quite disappointed.

I'm amazed at the number of ways they've come up with to make the cereals enticing to the consumer. They've added marshmallows, fruit, nuts, coconut and artificial flavorings, not to mention the cartoon characters, super stars and aminals on the boxes and surprises packed inside to appeal to kids. Then there's the claims of health benefits to get the trade of dults.

I've come to believe that the companies spend more time looking for new cereals to carry the names of celebrities than looking for names to put on the boxes of cereals! Just let someone win an olympic medal, or set a record in baseball, and right away you see cereal boxes claiming to have played a big part in the success of that

Another distressing fact about all these different cereals is tht once the cereal is bought, the surprise found, and one or two bowls of the sticky stuff eaten, kids no longer have a taste for it. They're ready for another new kind, leaving the pantry lined with partially filled boxes of cereal which parents usually have to end up eating. There's just nothing any more ridiculous to me than seeing a grown man eating little purple "Boo Berries" Fortunately, most kids outgrow these crazy cereal fads and in later life settle down to more mature cereals.

The Bogata First Baptist Church recorded an album of sacred music in the summer of 1979. She has led choral and congregational music in a number of churches including one revival meeting.

Thousands of hearts on five continents have been touched and blessed by the music ministry of Bill and Ivy Jean Sky-Eagle, native Texans involved in the ministry of Music Evangelism since 1973. Their Christhonoring music communicates the timeless message of Jesus Christ, Crucified, Risen and Coming Again.

Bill and Ivy Jean Sky-Eagle have served in voer 600 churches throughout the United States in revivals, crusades, Bible conferences, retreats and concerts. In addition, they have served as musicians for numerous international crusades in Great Britain, Spain, West Germany, Italy, Australia and the Netherlands. The Sky-Eagles have also been platform musicians for the Southern Baptist Convention, Glorieta Baptist Assembly and many state and evangelism associational conferences.

Bill Sky-Eagle, who is an Ottawa Indian, says he is an American Indian by race, and a child of God by grace. Born in Temple, he received his formal education in Paris High School, Baylor University and Southwestern Baptsit theological Seminary. Listed in Who's Who In Religion, Bill has served as Music Director for both the Conference of Texas Baptist Evangelists and the Conference of Southern Baptist Evangelists.

Ivy Jean Dailey Sky-Eagle is a native of Port Arthur. An honor graduate from Stephen F. Austin High School, she attended Baylor University on a full academic scholarship, receiving her degree in Sociology. While at Baylor, she san gin the Chapel and Acapella Choirs, which toured Holland, Israel and Greece. Ivy Jean now sings duets with Bill, and as sound technician, she has charge of all sound equipment used in their ministry.

The Sky-Eagles, married since 1972, have one daughter, Melissa Jean, an external student of the Calvert School, Baltimore, Maryland, who travels full time with her parents. They make their home in

Norman L. Crisp

Arlington where they are Staff Evangelists for the Tate Springs Baptist Church.

During most of the 35-plus weeks per year which they spend on the road, the Sky-Eagles live in their home on wheels, a 40' long Kountry Aire fifth wheel travel trailer, which is their home, office and study. Each week they park their travel trailer adjacent to the church in which they are

Cuthand Homecoming Is Big Success

Friends and families gathered together Sunday, July 26 for the annual Cuthand Homecoming. Everyone enjoyed visiting with friends, singing, and lots of good food for the noon day meal. The quiet little place with only a Methodist Church and a cemetery left of what used to be a busy community, was the scene of many memories. Some remember 50 years ago there was a church, two cotton gins, three grocery stores, a dry goods hardware and grocery combination, a barber shop, blacksmith shop, ice house, telephone central, post office, cannery school to the eleventh grade with several teachers, a grist mill for grinding corn into cornmeal.

Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Gaylon Eudy, Velma Varner Westbrook, Thelma Varner Pope, Julia Pope Hopporg, Cherlyn Hopporg, Beth Perry, Odella Cheatwood, Millie Fincher Dickerson, Kenneth Gibson and Jessie, Randall and Margie Mayes, Olas and Mary Mauldin, James Arion and Maxine Byrd, David and Glenda Byrd Cottrell, Carl and Bernice Smith House, Zelma Mauldin, Jettie Minshew, Mavis Fincher Fox, W.C. Notice of 1987 Effective Tax Rate for Talco-Bogata C.I.S.D.

The purpose of this notice is to inform you about your taxes. The 1987 effective tax rate is a tax rate that would levy the same amount of operating taxes the taxing unit levied last year on property taxed in both years, plus the amount the unit needs to pay certain long term debts this year. The rate is calculated as follows:

$ 1,033,135 1986 maintenance & operations tax levy: Less taxes levied to recoup 1985 appraisal 15,490 roll errors and adjustments for lost value: Equals adjusted 1986 1,022,645 maintenance & operations levy: $ 87,593,524 1987 total tax base: Less adjustments $ 823,671 for value of new property: = $ 86,769,853 Equals adjusted 1987 tax base: The adjusted 1986 levy divided by the adjusted 1987 tax base and multiplied by 100 equals the effective maintenance $ 1.17857 /$100 & operations tax rate: Plus rate to correct +$ 0 /$100 for appraisal roll errors: Plus rate needed to pay +$.06371 /$100 debts and obligations: = $ 1.24228 /$100

1987 effective tax rate: The maximum rate the governing body can adopt without publishing notices and holding a hearing is: The maximum rate the governing body can adopt before taxpayers can initiate rollback petitions is:

Equals 1987 effective tax rate:

1.24228 per $100 of value 1.27954 per $100 of value 1.34166 per $100 of value

This notice contains a summary of the calculations used to determine this year's effective tax rate. You can inspect the full calculations at Talco-Bogata CISD Tax Office Bogata, TX 75417

Over 23 million Americans own U.S. Savings Bonds, our nation's most popular security. Sales of U.S. Savings Bonds increased 24 percent in January 1987 to $710 million, compared to $575 million in January 1986. The month's sales helped bring the total value of Savings Bonds held by the public to $93.11 billion, the highest level ever and a 16 percent increase in the past

New Series EE Bonds held five years or longer earn interest based on 85 percent of the average return on five-year marketable Treasury securities during their lifetimes, or a minimum rate, currently six percent, whichever is higher.

Many people plan for the future by buying bonds through a Payroll Savings Plan. If you set aside just $50 bi-weekly through such a plan for your child's education, you can accumulate over $19,000 over the next ten years, if the Savings Bond variable interest rate averages eight percent over that period. Call 1-800-US-BONDS for the current interest rate. In Washington, D.C., call USA-8888.

Dea Citizens and Friends: the time you read this article, I wino longer be your City Marshal. Ayou know or some of you, my wife s been off work for over eight eeks now with a back injury and I ad to seek a position that would pay more, whereas I could meet my obligatins as I was getting behind. I wanted you to know that the ones I helped made me very proud and the ones that had civil problems had a police officer could not get involved in, I hope you understood why I could not help. I have been in law enforcement for many years and I want you to know that I have never worked for a more dedicated or honest bunch of people than your Mayor and City Council and I hope you will always bck and support them in their

My wife's family are from Bogata, and we will always consider Bogata our home and hope to return

I feel that any City Marshal should be in the school zone everyday there is school with his radar on and in a marked car, just being seen thee could possibly keep some child from being injured by a speeder, and I did not mind doing this at all as it was a pleasure.

I hope you will treat the new City Marshal as good as you have me, as it is always hard to be new to an area and be a police officer.

Again, thank you and God bless all of you for your support and kindness. You may write me at the address below and it will be forwarded.

Local Churches Share More Than Faith

By Mollie Williams
For visitors in the Bogata area wishing to attend church services at the First Assembly of God or the First Baptist Church, it might be a little confusing to them as they discover that the locations for the two churches are one and the same. Of course, most people in these parts know the causes surrounding this unique situation. For those who haven't heard, on Sunday, November 16, following church services at the First Baptist Church, fire was detected in the building. Although firemen and many concerned people worked feverishly,

SCHEDULE OF SERVICES:

EVENING WORSHIP SERVICE: 6:00 P.M.

The facilities offered by the Assembly of God Church included a gymnasium, a kitchen, a large spacious fellowship hall and several extra rooms. Members from both churches worked the remainder of that fateful afternoon preparing the gymnasium for the Sunday night services. Later, the fellowship hall was arranged to be used for Sunday School classes. One of the extra rooms was transferred into a nursery and another into an office for the church.

On Sunday mornings, the fellowship hall is filled with children and teachers attending the First Baptist Church. On one Thursday out of every month, you'll find it filled with members of the Adult Number Two Class of the First Baptist Church for their monthly prayer meeting and lunch. Other times you'll find members of the First Assembly meeting for their monthly fellowship supper, the Senior Citizens get together, or a youth meeting.

First Baptist pastor, Bob Posey and First Assembly pastor, Larry Allgood, say that the arrangement has worked very well. The only problem members encountered was in parking their cars. This problem was recently alleviated by a graveled parking lot being added on the property at the expense of the First Baptist Church. The First Baptist also purchased another air conditioner to compensate for the added number of people in the gymnasium. According to the First Baptist pastor and officials, these added feataures will remain on the premises when they no longer need the borrowed facilities.

According to members of both congregations, feelings of good will and love have prevailed in the community since the transition of the church, especially between the two congregations. Several members from each church have visited services of the other when times of the services did not conflict.

Although members of the two churches go their separate ways to worship, they can be seen on Sundays, following dismissals of the morning worship srvices, stopping to shake hands, chatting with each other and exchanging warm greetings.

Hoever. members of both churches ha been heard to say the situation has len a positive influence in deepening eir trust in the Christian faith. At a time in our society wh there's so much evil, controvers concerning actions performed h government officials, and daily news releases are filled with the "holy war" scandal, it's good to see such brotherly love in action. Earl Petty, a former Bogata resident, was featured in the Arts and Television section of the Dallas Morning News this week in a lengthy article by Leslie Barker, News Staff writer. Excerpts from the article are

Long before most alarm clocks in Dallas have sounded, Earl Petty is standing on a ladder, sketching the Three Stooges in charcoal on a redbrick Henderson Avenue building.

Six hours later, the Stooges' painted images and the name of the store they advertise are clear from blocks away. The sun is high and hot now, but 77 year old Petty isn't ready to go home. He walks across the street and squints his blue eyes at the mural.

"I never know when to stop," he says, seeming more satisfied with his mural. "A real artist knows when to stop.

So what is Petty, if not a real artist? "Oh," he says, "I'm just a sign

During the 1930's and early 1940's, Earl Petty painted the marquees outside Clarksville, Texas, movie theaters. For 26 years, anyone who traveled on highways throughout the Southwest saw his billboards, including several that advertised Old

During those billboard days, Petty would stand on scaffolding high in the air to paint signs that were 20 by 60 feet. In comparison, his current pro-

Petty can hardly remember when he wasn't designing something with his hands. As one of eight children growing up in Bogata, he didn't have many toys. So he carved figures out of cakes and Procter and Gamble soap and molded toys out of clay. In tling during study hall. Al the while, he dreamed of painting pictures on barns. Huge scenes that people could see and admire for miles away, he says.

high school, he was scolded for whit-

His first paintings were seen by everyone who walked by the Avalon and State movie theaters in downtown

"I was paying 10 cents to go to the picture show until I was 19," he says, sitting on a couch in his East Dallas living room. "Finally, the cashier said I'd have to pay 25 cents. So I told her I'd work there instead, painting the marquees.'

IN 1942, he joined the Seabees, and kept painting. He painted scenes of the Solomon Islands, where he was stationed, on strips of canvas. Soldiers would give him cases of beer for the miniatures, then send the pictures home. Petty sold the beer and saved the money. He also made bracelets out of plexiglas.

After World War II, he painted signs for Dr. Pepper in Paris, then moved to Dallas to attend the nowdefunct Young's School of Commercial Art. During his schooling, he applied for work at Dewey Advertising Company.

For 26 years, billboards were his canvas. Not only did he paint the boards, but after he was hired at Dewey, he learned he was responsible for erecting the signs as well. A heart attack in 1974 forced his retirement.

He spent most of his billboard days on an 18-inch wide platform, 65 feet above the ground, painting the boards square by painstaking square. He followed a grid that he had made from a drawing or photograph and did all the lettering from block letters to script, free hand.

"Now, signs are like tracing," he says. "I did it the hard way."

He can paint anything, he says. "As long as I have a picture to go by, it's OK by me. I'm like a musician. He picks up a guitar because he enjoyes doing it. I just like what I do."

On his day soff during th 1950's, he expressed himself more artistically than a billboard allowed; he painted murals in Dallas. The image of a woman washing clothes by hand graced the wall of a Laundromat. A Western scene filled a wall in a Dallas bar. Years later, someone bought the bar and covered the mural with pale green paint. Petty shrugs it "I'd already gotten my satis out of it," he says.

The East Dallas house he shares with Meredia, his wife of four decades, reflects his talent. He painted a Western scene on his garage door and has hung his paintings in the living room. Petty, who underwent heart bypass surgery several years ago, now spends his days doing freelance work: lettering signs, painting whenever someone needs him.

"Now that I'm out of billboards, I can paint anything I want," he says. "Maybe I'm getting into murals, and that fulfills my fondest dreams. Just so I get to do them...they're something that attracts attention."

He does much of his smaller work in his garage, where he stores paint in small cans that once held lima beans or spinach. Sometimes he makes up poems as he paints. He has written about 400, he says, and is proud of the way he can recite them.

'Poetry and art go hand in glove." he says. "I pick out words, or I put paint on a palette and express what

Immunization Clinic

The Texas Department of Health, Public Region 7/10 office announced plans today for the continuation of a series of monthly immunization clinics for all children needing immunizations.

The clinic will be conducted at 210 S. Johnson Street in Mt. Pleasant on August 5 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Future clinic dates will be announced. The Health Department emphasized that this clinic is available to all children, preschool and school age, beginning at two months of age. The Tetanus-diptheria vaccine is available to adults. Fund Raiser To Aid Girls Athletics

There will be a Teenage and Women's Softball Tournament at Johntown on July 30, 31 and August 1. There will be ten teams and games will start at 7 p.m. Thursday. All proceeds will go to the Girls Athletics at Rivercrest. Come out to the ballpark,

In honor of their 60th wedding anniversary July 24, the members of First Baptist Church surprised one of Talco's favorite couples, Elton and Mary Welch with a special service Wednesday, July 22.

The night was filled with memories, stories and recollections by the Welches, who were married in the parsonage of the Mt. Pleasant Baptist Church on July 24, 1927 by J.N. Vandiver. Mrs. Ima Sikes, close friend of the couple, was present at the ceremony. Mrs. Sikes, who is a resident of Mt. Pleasant stated "The marriage must have took.'

Much laughter was heard and a few tears were shed by the more than 50 members present. Unknown to the Welches, their family had been invited to share the occasion. Mrs. Welch's brother, Ben Bradley, and his ding floral greetings, and calling during the service was the couple's son, Duane, who lives with his wife, Pat, near Houston. The three grandchildren an dfour greatgrandchildren also conveyed their congratulations via a floral tribute which was given to the Welches. Special activities during the informal service included the recitation of Mary's favorite song by Bro. Charles Roberts, "The Touch of the Master's Hand." Bro. Roberts, along with others, shared many amusing stories about his acquaintance with the wife, Daisy, were able to come. Sen- including their personal safety, this group shall remain nameless. A tribute to the couple was shared by Pastor House, it included recollections of the Welches by family, friends and even former pastors. A photograph album with pictures of the entire church family was given to the couple, as well as a money tree which contained more than $100.

Following the service, a reception was held in the fellowship hall. A decorated cake prepared by Lisa Carroll, along with punch and coffee was served by the ladies of the church. Mrs. Ann Roberts created a huge computer bannr which stretched across one wall and said "Happy Sixtieth Anniversary, Elton and Mary Welch. 1927-1987. This was presented to the couple as a keepsake. Indeed, it was a very special evening for a very special couple.

Rev. Gary House read the following during the get together: Mary and Elton, you are very special to all of Talco; this has been your home for your whole married life of sixty years. But you are even more dear to your extended family at First Baptist Church. You are like a grandmother and grandfather to all of us. There is nothing you wouldn't do for us. You are always giving to us. Mary, you have made clothes for half of Talco. You cook delicious things and crochet, quilt and many other things. From daylight to dark, you are never idle. Here are some words which describe your life, "Homemaker, wife, mother, gradener, companion, seamstress, example (especially to the younger women), student and teacher of the word. The words of Proverbs 31 describe you well. Elton, there really are not adequate words to describe you, unless it is character: hunter, craftsman, painter, storyteller, dog handler, dedicated christian and especially friend. As one pastor said, "Bro. Elton loves preachers." That is an exceptional quality, because preachers need love, too. Your love for children is reknowned. Sixty years of marriage is a milestone. Your dependence upon each other, your dreams have been fulfilled, the memories are replete. When you said I do, 60 years ago, you committed yourselves to each other for life. The storms have come, but so have the joys. We are proud to share this moment in your life. Your marriage serves as an inspiration to all of us. May God bless you in the years ahed.
