The Printed Message of Christmas Cheer

There is no one item at such small cost, that approaches the Christmas card as a remembrance of a friend by a friend. There is nothing that so cements the good will of a business institution as a thoughtful greeting to its customers, clients, associates and competitors.

Without forgetting the sentimental feature of Christmas giving, the printed greeting comes mighty close to being GOOD BUSINESS for both individual and firm.

Place your orders with us now for your Christmas Printing, and be sure of early delivery.

Haskell Free Press

Baptist Church

We had two good services Sunday. Theme Sunday morning was, "Our 75 Million Campaign Obligation," and the theme at the night service was "The Meanest Man in Haskell." The services were both well attended. Next Sunday at the night services the pastor will preach on "Some Folk in Town You Ought to Know." I know that the devil and his helpers will get busy now and that the pastor will be the center of criticism, but the time has come when we feel under God, that we were never so responsible to Him and His cause. We are aware that this course will mean a separation on the part of some, but Jesus says, "Those who are not with us are against us." As we see it no church should be so unwise as to want any in their membership who are against christian living and are not allied with the forces of God's humble people who are doing their best to carry out His great commission in reaching the lost and bringing them to Christ who does save from sin.

The pastor is very anxious to have the cooperation and prayers of all of God's children and will have the prayers and good words of all who are faithful to God and His word.

As I look up to God through a broken sympathetic heart for all poor lost souls, I beg through streaming tears that God's people take a Pauline stand for the great teachings of God's Holy Word.

We are always glad to have every one who will to come to our services. There is none big or little among us, we are just one great church that wants to help and make everybody happy. We are glad to have the critics the good, the poor, and the rich all of us together and may the spirit of the Lord God be manifest in us at every service!

The Pastor.

The power to be a true helper of others, a binder up of broken hearts, a comforter of sorrow is the most divine of all endowments.

BIG CHANGE NOTED

Life in Country Today Compared to Twenty Years Ago.

Custom of Sleeping Outdoors, for instance, is Growing—What the "Movies" and "Canned Music" Have Accomplished.

Twenty years ago the inhabitants of entire villages, up in New York state at least, seemed to fear fresh air at night and slept with their windows closed. Night air was not healthful they said—and a lot of them lived to be ninety-seven even on that theory. The window sashes were nailed down and stuffed with rags at the first sign of snow and we slept under those conditions.

In those days if anyone had practiced sleeping outdoors, even in summer weather, it would have caused a sensation. "Cracked, I swan!" the old farmers would have said.

The change came gradually, presumably because the sons and daughters of the old residents went to work in the large centers where opened windows were, if not the rule, surely not the exception, remarks a writer in the New York Evening Sun. Now the complete change hits one fairly in the face when he returns to the once airless districts of early youth.

Night and day now the windows are wide open and sometimes even doors are never closed; no one thinks of living without screens and mosquito netting, even the poor in hollows and by-lanes. The families frequently eat outdoors under the old apple tree, on red and white table covers or oilcloth or a bare scrubbed board. Like the omnipresent flyver that carries the clerk and his family to picnics along the roadside, the outdoor-eating habit has done wonders for the health and happiness of all, particularly the country folk.

Out-of-doors sleeping is now well nigh a banit. Hardly a porch in that country nowadays is complete without a khaki swing couch, a made-up cot or one of the old time hard, haircloth "sofas" with pillows and a patchwork quilt or two, ready for the sleeper. Most of these were hung with mosquito net curtains, looped back by day.

Nowadays on these outdoor couches are seen reclining in daytime the old man of the family, lying at full length with his bare feet protruding in the sun. Twenty years ago he would have slept in the darkened parlor behind closed shutters; or, if very footboardy, he might have been caught by watchful eyes of his family napping under the old apple tree.

Yes, the country has come on! But outdoor sleeping by rural children has not yet arrived. Here the farmer's wife drags the line. It may be all right for grandpap and herself and husband, but she is not yet sure about the night air for little lungs. Children's cots are not seen upon porches. They still sleep within four walls and a ceiling.

The city and large towns have come to this airy regime through years of propaganda in newspapers, in churches and in social centers. The country absorbed it through newspapers and magazines.

But if there has been a notable change in the attitude of farm and village folk toward fresh air there has been an even greater change in their social life. The small town of twenty years ago is not the small town of today. Then they had church societies. They may still have them, but I do not know where. There used to be buggy rides and prayer meetings, and the greatest dissipation of the younger villagers was "going walking," with a possible "sody" at the corner drug store. Booth Tarkington depicts these rural scenes truthfully, but his pointed view is now out of date.

The movies and "canned" music have recreated village life. Even in those families where there is no automobile life is a far pleasanter thing than it was twenty years ago. The movies entertain the whole family. And in the evenings, when the movies fall, the average soda fountain draws not with ice-cream cones and candy alone but with a rollicking, jangling mechanical player. The drug store has become largely a refreshment parlor; it is now a social center. Young and old meet there and strolling and loafing have gone into the discard.

The closing of saloons may have helped, but even before prohibition the hitting notes of music boxes in ice cream parlors began to woo the villagers.

Twenty years ago never was there such joyousness in country life, such clothes worn by the young girls, such sang-froid among the boys, such naive sophistication upon all. There spoke the screen in Mary Pickford curls, in styles of an extremity, in a youth's cane, in a girl's vampish slouch. And all the joy life. That is the secret of the change that has come over village habits of living. The cheap cost of the photoplay and the graphophone has taught the public in out-of-the-way places to get into the game; to live joyously.

Jess Willard, they say, will soon be a millionaire as a result of a big oil strike in Kansas. And since Big Jess only fought for the money there was in it the chances of a return battle with champion Jack Dempsey seem mighty slim.

To be considered as outspoken some people seem to think they must say cutting things about others.

Mutual Aid or Home Protection

(Copyright—1921 by James T. King, Haskell, Texas. All rights reserved.)

IF YOU BELIEVE IN HOME PROTECTION

Read carefully the following plan of Local Mutual Aid Association and help protect your neighbors while being protected them.

When my W. O. W. rate got too heavy for me to begin the study of the One Thousand Local. In them I very cheap insurance, but uncertain in many localities, of no chance to save a reserve or emergency fund. By the different insurance plans I saw much injustice and form a plan to get nearer a just way of giving cheap, safe insurance. An insurance that we believe, will get cheaper of the savings in the consolidation of TWO One Thousand Units. An insurance that will not only give protection to home protector is able to work but will protect him or her time when the steps are uncertain and the hands tremble. To get this each member in the consolidated plan must two thousand dollars of insurance. We have figured out by which the second thousand will cost only one-half as the first one, and in addition to this, save a good reserve meet emergencies and lessen the real cost in after years in increasing the cost as fraternal societies do.

The unit of net cost of insurance is one thousand one person, one dollar, one thousand persons one thousand. And when a society or association takes more members gives the members the units of insurance, it practices an injustice. To illustrate, say an association gives $1,000.00 of insurance takes fifteen hundred members. You see it gives $1,000.00 on the unit basis of one thousand members and gets a rate from among its membership of fifteen hundred members. You see it charges for $1,000.00 on the unit basis of one and one-half times the death rate which really the insurance cost one and one-half times what it should overcome the uncertainty of a single one thousand unit adequate the injustice above, we figured out the special feature solidating two units by the use of the following sliding rates and values:

When membership reaches 1,000, the value of certificate $1,000.00, the membership shall be assessed one dollar, as initial payment for second thousand of insurance; the certificate is $2,000 and the assessment shall be one dollar each thousand or two dollars ($2.00) an assessment for each. When membership reaches twelve hundred the value of certificate is $2,000.00, but assessment per death shall be $1.75. When membership is sixteen hundred, assessment per death shall be $1.50 and value of certificate $2,000.00. Should misfortune or other thing occur and the membership decrease, the same rates and values shall be in force.

There is a county in Texas where they have three series, one nearly twenty years old, the second one nearly twenty years old. The secretary told me they were both full. That the averaged 10.25 assessments, the second 9. Neither of them from a dollar standpoint, is worth more than when they were first. These claims were paid and money collected for next. They hold money enough on hand to pay one claim only. These two series had been in one co-operative series and a nineteen assessments per year as they have and working full two thousand members in one organization instead they could have saved the membership twenty-five per cent cost of insurance and had on hand many thousands of dollars to lighten the burden of aged members. One dollar ($1.00) a month for one thousand dollars is cheap but one dollar and a cent ($1.50) for two thousand is twenty-five per cent cheaper.

Two thousand members at one and one-half dollars ($1.50) assessment equals three thousand dollars; three thousand minus two thousand dollars, $3,000.00—$2,000.00, equal saved on each assessment. Nineteen times $1,000.00 $19,000.00 saved in one year. Say the full two thousand have worked on this rate ten years they would have $190,000.00 or $190,000.00. Why not co-operate, give cheaper insurance, and keep your money among home protection enterprises?

Nestling against the marshy shore, the lake lay, like a mirror. It was a beautiful spot and the man with the iron gray hair conceded it; but his object in coming was not to view the scenery. The object was a girl, and she sat high on a log fence and disdained him. As he parked his car close to the edge of the water she continued busily counting the stitches of her knitting; her own small car stood conveniently near on the green.

"Beautiful evening," she remarked, pleasantly. "Don't you like the way the sun turns the water to gold?"

The man frowned.

"I don't like," he said angrily, "the way you go roaming about the country alone. This is the third evening you have been absent from dinner. I asked Tibby about it and she told me that you had ordered an early luncheon and gone out in your car. So I deliberately followed—to find you here. This is all very much against my wishes. You know and still disobey."

The girl folded her knitting and, chin in hand, looked thoughtfully out over the reflecting waters.

"It is time," she answered decidedly, "that I do disobey. Else I shall continue the life of a prisoner. For I have been a prisoner, father, in your house all my life, with neither wish nor freedom of my own. If mother had lived I am sure it would have been different. I am past the age of guardianship. I want to learn something of life—and love, father"—the blue eyes challenged him—"do you know anything about love?"

The man laughed shortly.

"So that is it," he said. "You go riding around alone each evening in search of romance—of love. Have you found it?"

The girl nodded gravely.

"I have," she replied, "though I did not seek it. I came here first to be away from you and your sternness. He came along one evening on the way to his little fishing boat, which was tied along shore. Sometimes," the girl explained, "they fish all night in these waters. And something had gone wrong with my car, so the young man stopped and fixed it. It was a great deal of trouble, but he did not mind; he smiled." The girl regarded her father calmly. "I loved him," she said, "in that moment."

The man jumped from his car, furious with anger, and strode to the spot where she sat.

"Natalie," he cried, threateningly, but she eluded him and, slipping from her post on the top of the fence, ran lightly as some slim boy down the narrow path of the shore. Helplessly, her father watched her. She was like some woodland maid in her gracefulness. Far against the sky, it seemed, she waited, until presently a small boat floated inward.

The father could see a man's tall figure, two strong bared arms reached out to grasp her, then the two sat silhouette-like against the sinking sun. She, his daughter, had defied him for a fisherman. The gray-haired man smiled contemptuously, then pityingly. The scene was like one from the movies—the crude shacks along the shore, that dark-haired Apollo out in the brightly reflected boat, close, very close to the girl. Even here, he could see Natalie lean to him, bend her witching face to look up into the face of the fisherman. "Did he know anything of love?" John Burrows asked himself her question. He had thought that he knew love years ago, until Natalie's mother confessed to him, after marriage, that she had given herself to him because of his money and achievements. The man she had loved was forbidden her because of his humbleness. So John Burrows, in their mutual disappointment, determined as Natalie grew that she should know nothing of love or its heartaches.

John Burrows arose and then followed down the green trodden path. All this was unbelievable. He would see this fellow and force him in his place. The small boat was just touching shore. The fisherman tossed out his string of gleaming fish before he reached very tenderly for Natalie. Even in the dusk her father realized that tenderness. The man was big and good to look upon. John Burrows saw his flashing smile.

The young man swung sharply about.

"Why, Burrows," he cried, "so you came out to look the place over. I'll be with you in a minute. I have been practically camping here while I mapped out our job. Now the thing is complete. Take you into my shack in a minute and show you. Natalie—" The young man paused in helpless confusion. The girl's arm slipped through her father's.

"He doesn't know how to introduce me," she explained joyously. "You see, I thought it would be nice for he and I to take each other on trust for awhile just to prove the truth of our love. This," she explained to her lover, "is my father."

John Burrows grasped the young man's hand.

"Why, Natalie," he exclaimed, in vast relief, "I know of no person I would rather have you meet than Neil Gordon. He is our most valued engineer. Why, it was he who, almost single-handed, put through the big project of the Hanover fisheries bridge!"

Natalie folded away her knitting, her free arm crept through her lover's. "Is that so?" she asked with polite but unmoved interest.

But words are things, and a small drop of ink, falling like dew upon a thought, produces that which makes thousands, perhaps millions, think.—Byron.

SUMMER DISHES.

For a pint of cooked fresh beans, chop fine two slices of leek or a thin half-slice of Bermuda onion; add three tablespoonfuls of oil, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of paprika, half a teaspoonful of salt, half a chill pepper, chopped fine, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of red wine vinegar. Mix well and turn on a plate. Set slices of hard-cooked egg around the beans and a tablespoonful of mayonnaise on top. Garnish with a sprinkling of parsley.

Macedoine of Vegetables in Tomato Jelly.—Cook, very gently, two cupfuls of tomatoes, two branches of parsley, a stalk of celery, two tablespoonfuls of mushroom trimmings (the peel and stalks), two slices of onion, with two cloves, a small bit of bay leaf and one-half teaspoonful of salt 15 minutes; strain; add one-quarter of a package of gelatin, softened in one-quarter of a cupful of cold water; add a few drops of tobacco sauce. Chop fine the cooked white of an egg. Cut in bits any vegetables at hand, such as beans, asparagus and celery hearts, with cooked peas. Set eight molds in crushed ice; in the bottom of each put a portion of the egg white; add the prepared vegetables and any that is left of the egg to the tomato, which has been cooled somewhat; stir until the tomato holds up the vegetables, then use to fill the molds. Serve on heart leaves of lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Strawberry Jam Tart.—Make a flaky pastry and roll out and cut into rounds with a large cutter. With a very small cutter or pastry tube cut a circle of little rounds in one-half of the paste, but do not remove the centers. Set a generous spoonful of strawberry jam in the center of the plain rounds, cover with the other rounds after wetting the edges and firmly press the edges. Brush with milk and water and sprinkle with granulated sugar. Bake for 15 minutes.

Quinces are delicious baked in a casserole. Add boiling water, orange peel and sugar, filling the centers with sugar and butter.

And we have gone to a lot of extra trouble to give our customers exactly what they want for the day of Thanksgiving, and if some of you have nothing else to be thankful for—well, you ought to be thankful for that.

To us it certainly seems as though the Pilgrims had little to be thankful for. If the settlers in Plymouth could "sacrifice the sacrifices of Thanksgiving" in 1621, what pray, ought we to do in this year of our Lord? Think of the blessings which we enjoy as the commonplaces of the day, of which the Pilgrims never even dreamed! A vast territory mastered, surveyed and thickly settled—abundant treasures of farm and mine, forest and mill poured out for human use—immense inventions harnessed to the service of human efficiency and comfort—a great republic—constituted in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal—free political, educational and religious institutions, hitherto unknown and unparalleled, successfully established—a higher grade of material well-being, a wider diffusion of culture, a nobler ideal of happiness, a finer conception of democracy, achieved for all the people, than the world has ever seen before! It is true of course, that not all these have been suppressed, nor all blessings won. But because we have not yet achieved everything is no reason why we should not be glad that we have achieved much. Because we have not yet won the goal of life is no reason why we should not rejoice that we have advanced! The world today is better than it has ever been before. Men have less suffering, greater happiness and nobler opportunity than in any epoch past. Humanity is still fighting the same persistent ills and seeking the same elusive goods, but in new fields and on higher levels. The goal still lies far ahead, but behind is a long road of miseries conquered and battles won.

The continued shrinkage of the German mark on the exchange is causing alarm. Germany is beginning to find that reparations is not at the need of paying for starting war.

Origin of the Thanksgiving Day

The ancient Thanksgiving did not, as some have fancied, skip down the ages to find its home in America. In one way or another, it seems to have always been observed. Throughout Europe, before the Reformation, special days were set apart as days of religious thanksgiving. The American Thanksgiving Day is traced back to the Pilgrims.

Shortly after the landing of the Pilgrims, while searching for a suitable place in which to build their homes, they one day came upon some deserted Indian huts, in which they found some baskets filled with corn. From this supply they succeeded in saving enough to plant their first year's crop.

In the spring of 1621, the seed corn was sown and its growing watched anxiously by the people of the little colony. To their great joy, the harvest of the following October was a beautiful one. Governor Bradford ordered a three day's feast in celebration thereof. Wild turkeys, geese, ducks, and water fowl, corn bread and vegetables no doubt formed the chief constituents of their feast, not to speak of the fine deer brought in by a tribe of friendly Indians.

This festival supposed to be the first real Thanksgiving Day from which we date our celebration. This celebration although without doubt the origin of our national Thanksgiving day, may be looked upon as merely a local observance, being held by the Plymouth colony only. They were the forerunners of less local celebrations in Massachusetts and gradually in other colonies, for in 1630 a public Thanksgiving day was observed in Boston by the Bay Colony, and again in 1631.

During the next fifty years there were as many as 22 public Thanksgiving days appointed in Massachusetts, usually in October or November, after the gathering in of the harvests, or to celebrate some public benefit. It did not become a regular holiday until a long time afterwards.

In 1789 Washington issued the famous Thanksgiving proclamation recommending Thursday, November 26 as a national day to be devoted to prayer and thanksgiving. Washington's example was followed by other Presidents.

In 1863 President Lincoln appointed the fourth Thursday in November as the national Thanksgiving day. Since then the day has been observed annually without interruption.

LYRICS OF LIFE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHY NOT TELL HER SO?

OF COURSE you love her just the same
 As when at first you wed,
 Perhaps with not so hot a flame,
 But still the coals are red.
 The new-made blaze is bright with heat
 And ruddy with desire;
 But time shall give you something sweet—
 Peace, and the quiet fire.

Of course you love her as of old,
 Your love she ought to know,
 New loves burn hot, new loves turn cold.
 With all the winds that blow,
 But time shall bring the steady blaze,
 The flame that never died;
 Yea, time shall bring contented days,
 The quiet ingleside.

Of course you love her as of yore—
 The years that you have shared
 Have made you love her even more
 Than ever you have cared.
 Of course you love her just the same,
 Your love she ought to know,
 For time has brought the steady flame—
 But why not tell her so?

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?
 By C. N. LURIE

Common Errors in English and How to Avoid Them

"SPOONFULS," ETC.

IN CONSIDERING the proper form of the plurals of such words as "spoonful," "cupful," "armful," etc., it must be borne in mind that the unit considered is not the spoon, the arm, the cup, etc.; but the material that fills the spoon, etc. Thus, the unit is the spoonful, not the spoon, and as "spoonful" is the name of a thing in itself, the proper form of the plural is found by adding an "s" to the word "spoonful," and not to the part of the word "spoon."
 Of course, there are times when the unit is the spoon itself; that is, when two or more spoons are filled. When, for example, you have before you two spoons filled with sugar, you should say "two spoons full," and not "two spoonfuls." But when you take a spoon, fill it with sugar and empty it into your coffee cup, and repeat the process, you have taken two "spoonfuls" of sugar, and not two "spoons full."

CRANBERRY PUDDING—1-2 cup of butter, 1-2 cup of sugar, 3 eggs, 1-2 cups of cranberries, 3-4 cups of flour, 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 cup of milk. Cream the shortening, add the sugar gradually and eggs well-beaten. Mix and sift the dry ingredients and alternately add with milk to first mixture. Stir in berries that have been washed and sorted. Turn into buttered mold, cover and steam three hours.

Turn on platter. Serve with cream, sweetened and flavored with nutmeg.

DATE CUSTARD—1 pint milk, one cup of dates, 1-2 teaspoonful of corn starch, 1-2 cup of boiling water, 1-3 cup of sugar, two egg yolks, juice of one lemon, speck of salt, 2 egg whites, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar. Scald the milk in a double-boiler. Mix the dry ingredients with the egg yolks, gradually pour over them the scalded milk. Return the entire mixture to the double-boiler and cook until it thickens sufficiently to coat the spoon. Wash, stone and cut the dates in small pieces. Put in double boiler, add the boiling water and juice of half the lemon, sugar, and cook until the dates become soft. Combine the two mixtures and chill. Just before serving prepare a meringue of the egg-whites, powdered sugar and the remainder of the lemon; pile the spongy over the custard.

Corn-read or Johnny Cake

One cup of milk, 1-2 cup of sugar, (1-2 cup is enough unless you like it very sweet); 4 table-spoon of shortening, 1 cup of corn-meal, 3-4 cup of flour, 1-2 teaspoons of baking powder, and a little salt.

Bake in a rather quick oven. If short of milk, use water and a little more shortening.

Macaroon Custard

1 quart scalded milk, 1-2 cup of sugar, 1-8 teaspoon of salt, 1 teaspoon of vanilla, 4 eggs, 2 tablespoons of corn-starch, 8 crushed macaroons. Scald milk in a double-boiler and thicken with two tablespoons of corn-starch. Beat eggs, add sugar, salt and crushed macaroons and pour the hot mixture over them. Return to double-boiler and cook until custard thickens sufficiently to coat a spoon. Remove from fire, add vanilla and cool.

Cream Muffins With Dates

Mix together one cup of each of white and graham flour, a tablespoon of sugar, one-half teaspoon of salt, one and one-half teaspoons of baking powder and one-half cup of stoned dates cut small. Add about one and one-half cups of sour cream into which has been well-stirred one-third level teaspoon of soda. Beat thoroughly and bake in gem-pans in a rather quick oven. Bran rolled oats or wheat may be substituted for the cup of graham flour or all white flour may be used.

Thanksgiving Cake

1-2 cup of butter or butter substitute, 1 cup of sugar, 1-3 cup of molasses, and flour enough to roll, 1-2 cup of sour milk, 2 eggs, 1-2 teaspoon of soda, 1-2 teaspoons of vinegar. Heat the molasses to the boiling point and pour over the shortening. Cool mixture and add well-beaten eggs, then add the dry ingredients and sufficient amount of flour to roll the mixture. Chill thoroughly. Put the dough on a well-floured board and roll out one-eighth of an inch thick. Cut out with a turkey-shaped tin cutter and bake in a quick oven. Outline with chocolate icing the turkey-shape and indicate the wing and feathers with icing. The white icing can be put on to best advantage by using a pastry-bag.

The Y. W. A. girls of the Baptist church met Thursday afternoon, Nov. 10th, in the home of Mrs. W. E. Kirkpatrick, for a missionary lesson.

Following a song and prayer, Mrs. Reynolds read a part of "The Sermon on the Mount." Stressing many of the beautiful thoughts and promises contained therein.

The different phases of the home mission work were discussed, then followed a splendid quiz along that line.

We were glad to have Mrs. Kuhn present, who is to be leader hereafter, also welcomed Miss Rebecca Anderson and Madlee Watson as visitors.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick served tea and sandwiches while the girls enjoyed the social part of the meeting together. The next meeting will be held with Miss Maybelle Taylor, on the first Thursday in December. All of the girls have an invitation to be present.

Magazine Club Notes

The club did not meet as usual on Friday of the past week on account of the funeral services held that day, but met Saturday afternoon instead. The attendance was splendid and each member responded to roll call with a quotation from Byron's Poems.

The members were made very happy over the fact that the donations the past week would enable us to pay the debt against the building, and by unanimous vote of the club, it was decided to pay the amount in full. Mrs. Marchison expressed her appreciation through the generosity of our club friends, this had been made possible. The members cheered enthusiastically. It was decided to have a jubilee meeting on December 30th, then special invitations will be sent these friends who have been so generous.

Mrs. Reynolds conducted an excellent lesson on Byron, the man and his poems. Following were topics on program:

The effect of French Revolution on Byron. Mrs. Arthur Hughes.

Two contrasting elements in Byron Hunt.

Byron's Love for the Turbulent in Nature—Mrs. Fleidts.

Mrs. Murchison served delicious small cakes, with hot chocolate, and whipped cream, during the social hour.

It goes without saying that bags of all sorts are among those gifts that are always welcome. There are many new ones this year made of coarse canvas, or unbleached linen and trimmed with narrow satin ribbon and ribbon flowers. Baby ribbon may be drawn through the interstices of the canvas. Drawing threads out of either the canvas or linen makes it possible to weave wider ribbons over and under the remaining threads, in borders or ornaments. Flowers cut from cotton or linen, in various colors, are applied to the linen bags and buttonholed along their edges with cotton floss or yarn. Sweets for Christmas

You cannot think of anyone who will not be delighted to receive a gift like that illustrated here. It is a half-dozen glasses filled with jelly, preserves and marmalade, very attractively arranged in a wicker basket. The tin covers of the glasses are lacquered with black lacquer and a white gummed letter is placed in the center of each one. A spray of fruit or blossoms painted on the lid with sealing wax, together with the letter, tells the kind of jelly or preserves the glass contains, as apple, with a spray of apple blossoms and the letter "A," or currant with a cluster of currants and foliage and the letter "C." Sealing wax in several colors simulates shirred ribbon on the center glass which contains marmalade.

Christmas Candles

This year's candle shades made of gay silks or of crepe paper are shown in such variety that every one may be pleased. Sparkling silver tinsel strays over some of them, adding a holiday glitter to the pretty colors through which the light gleams. A shade decorated in this way is shown at the right of the two pictured. At the left a foundation of plain paper is covered with ruffles of crepe paper in two alternating colors, in this case white and green, and has daisies made of paper set about it.

Oil Cloth Table Sets

No housewife will fail to enjoy the new table sets of oilcloth with their cheerful borders of gay flowers and fruits. They are much handsomer than the stenciled pieces and many women use them for the dinner as well as the breakfast table. These sets consist of a centerpiece, plate dollies and smaller dollies. The fruits and flowers in the set pictured are in their natural colors and the oilcloth in a deep cream color.

Buy a pipe— and some P.A.

Get the joy that's due you!

We print it right here that if you don't know the "feel" and the friendship of a joyous jimmy pipe— GO GET ONE! And—get some Prince Albert and hang a howdy-do on the big smoke-gang!

For, Prince Albert's quality—flavor—coolness—fragrance—is in a class of its own! You never tasted such tobacco! Why—figure out what it alone means to your tongue and temper when we tell you that Prince Albert can't bite, can't parch! Our exclusive patented process fixes that!

Prince Albert is a revelation in a man's cigarette! My, but how that delightful flavor makes a dent! And, how it does answer that hankering! Prince Albert rolls easy and stays put because it is crimped cut. And, say—oh, go on and get the papers or a pipe! Do it right now!

Prince Albert is said to copy red lips, like red lips, hands one pound and half pound its hands and the grand royal pipe humidifier with sponge moisture top.

Senior Epworth League

The Senior Epworth League met at the usual hour, six o'clock, last Sunday night. An unusual feature of the program was a lively contest in finding passages of scripture quickly. This contest was won by Miss Annie Maude Cox who was the first to find more than half of the given passages first. This part of the program was followed by some interesting statistics about the Bible, then by stories of unique Bibles; as, the largest bible, the smallest one, the cripple boy's Bible, the one in shorthand, one in manuscript, and the blind man's Bible. The League is invited to visit the B. Y. P. U. next Sunday night to hear a special program given by that organization.

Wesley Applegate attended the Monday Poultry Show Saturday.

WIT AND HUMOR

He Knew the Signs

A teacher in a slum school was calling over the names of his scholars in order to ascertain which of them were likely to leave shortly.

"Please, sir," said one fellow, "I think I shall leave soon."

"Why, Tommy?" asked the teacher.

"Well, sir," he said, "I think we are going to leave our house, 'cause mother's burnt the coal-house door an' sold the cabbert door, and father's a-choppin' down the stairs this mornin'. We allus leave after we've burnt the stairs."

Too Exact

An American politician, who at one time served his country in a very high legislative place, passed away, and a number of newspaper men were collaborating on an obituary notice.

"What shall we say of him?" asked one of the men.

"Oh, just put down that he was faithful to his trust."

"Yes," answered another of the group, "that's all right, but are you going to give the name of the trust?"

A Standing Invitation

"Did the burglars overlook anything of value?" inquired the reporter.

"I'd rather not say," returned the victim.

"Why?"

"Because they will be watching the papers for a day or two to find out."

Cause of Complaint

Two small boys were quarreling over the possession of a toy bank when a noted local financier, who was passing, stopped and said to the younger:

"Shame on you my boy. Don't you want him to save his money?"

"I don't care what he does with his money," replied the youth, "But he wants to save mine along with it."

A Failure

"Jack will never be a success as a literary man."

"How's that?"

"He's submitted his love letters to very publisher in town, and they've all refused them."

The Old Doctor Helps

"It's a little hard for young doctors to get a start."

"I know, I'm raising whiskers."

"They will help you. And I'll loan you some of my magazines for 1876 to put in your anteroom."

We Thank You

The ladies of the Parent-Teachers Association wish to take this method of thanking Mrs. Marchison for her kindness in giving the ladies her plan for Midway school. It was very much appreciated, and from the hearts of everyone we thank her for the interest she has shown in our club work and community affairs. "May health and prosperity always dwell with her." Dainty Accessories

Innumerable pretty things in dress accessories and house furnishings are presented in the shops at Christmas time for women. The only difficulty is to make the right choice among them. Whoever determines to settle upon neckwear cannot go wrong; for no woman ever cries "hold, enough!" in this matter of dainty accessories. A vestee and collar of embroidered swiss, as pictured here, is a thing of sheer beauty that is sure to please.

Suited to Everyone

Here is a gift bag that may be depended on to please anyone who is fortunate enough to receive it and is suited to either men or women. It will answer many purposes and requires only a basket, a length of silk for the top, silk cord for hangers and small silk roses for trimming, to make it. In larger sizes it makes an attractive laundry bag.

Gift Ribbons

Each year brings in new sashes, girdles, hair-bows and a long list of other belongings to replace those that have had their bright day and passed with the year. Two ribbon girdles, as pictured here, make charming gifts. One of them is made of narrow satin ribbon bordered with a tinsel ribbon and decorated with ribbon flowers. The other is a wide sash of two-toned satin ribbon with loops at each side and a knot at the back.

A Merry Clown Doll

This merry youth is one of many dolls that may be made of the carded ribbed underwear or stockings. His head is made of a piece of white or pink ribbed stocking and his face painted with black and red paint. For the rest of him two colors are used and he is stuffed with cotton and has a white ruffie about his neck.
