This column may plainly exceed the bounds of good taste. In fact, I know it will. I'm going to try and be as civilized as I can about the subject, but it's simply too good to pass up!

We discovered, on our recent trip to the Netherlands, that the Dutch never seem to have two toilet flush levers the same!

No, I'm not kidding, they have a wider variety of flush levers than America has baseball teams.

And, it got to be quite a game among the 20 or so of us on tour together to compare the various kinds we encountered.

"How many types can there be?", you may be wondering.

Lots and lots.

There is, of course, your basic lever mounted on the tank, made out of silver metal, pretty much like ours. And there's a porcelain model very similar to that, which obviously causes no problems.

Then, there is the old fashioned "water closet" type, where the tank is mounted on the wall and a chain hangs down with a knob on the end. Those, also, require very little figuring out.

But what about the frosted glass square on the wall? Yes, that's what I said. After spending what seemed like thirty minutes scrutinizing the entire unit, I finally noticed this four inch square white frosted glass panel inset into the tile wall at about shoulder level. It had Dutch instructions, and a tiny little picture of a hand on it. So, adventurously, I placed my hand on the glass, and was rewarded with the desired results! When four or five of us gals met back on the bus to a woman, we were ready to comment about THAT one!

Then, there was the lever mounted under the tank for foot use.

And the little rubber "bump" on the floor.

And the plastic panel inset on the side of the tank.

And the lever that had to be pumped, kind of like a foot operated air pump.

And buttons, and knobs, and a bewildering variety of various mechanisms which required figuring out!

I'm not even going to go in to the various ways to wash hands, because they have quite as many different methods of turning on water faucets!

Do you know how inferior and inadequate it makes one feel to have trouble figuring out how a toilet works? After all, any three year old should be able to do THAT!

We haven't decided if they just like the variety, have few standards for plumbing to follow, or like to play games with the tourists!

I kind of favor that last one. I'm convinced that the native Dutch stand around and snigger as bewildered tourists emerge from the public restrooms going "wow, did you see how that one worked!"

Oh well, I'm glad we could provide some entertainment, anyway.

Tuesday was a very special Sunshine Club because it was the day Ms. Evelyn Mobbs and Andy Bowman were married. An attractive way to save energy

A ceiling fan can do more than add to the beauty of your home. It can also increase your home's energy efficiency. During hotter months, the moving air can make a room feel cooler, even with a higher thermostat setting. In the winter, a slow-moving ceiling fan can help force warm air downward.

For more ways to save energy with more common sense than dollars and cents, call or visit your local TNP office today.

CITY OF CANALS and shimmering lights, Amsterdam at night is beautiful. High facades and canals on every block, lit by clear lights, gives charm to

HOUSEBOATS-like many European cities, Amsterdam has a housing shortage. The canals which lace the city provide extra space...houseboats line virtually every inch, and serve as permanent residences. (Staff Photo by Nanalee Nichols)

Amsterdam Proves A Study In Contrast-Cultures

As we continue our trip tales we appreciate those who have expressed their pleasure in the stories we have run.

Amsterdam...the new and the old, the conservative and liberal, a city of astonishing beauty, and amazing tolerance.

As we pulled into the city of Amsterdam there was no way we could understand about this old, canal-laced city.

Our guide, Anne Marie, said "Amsterdam is an amazing city...you can do absolutely anything here...people do what they want as long as it doesn't interfere with others". It took an evening to figure out what she meant!

But first we were introduced to the city by the best of all means...and canal cruise.

Pristine white, sleek boats ply the ancient canals of this seaport city, loaded with tourists from all over the world. And it is by far the best way to see it, for the city was designed for most of its commerce to take place by boat.

The buildings that face the canals are narrow fronted...because they used to be taxed by their width.

Elaborate facades of marble and granite top these buildings, often showing what 17th century profession the owner was engaged in. Medical symbols, tobacco symbols, sea captains and Greek statues gave the brick buildings grandeur and scope.

From the top of almost every building would protrude a simple or elaborate beam.

This, we learned, was the hoist beam used to bring everything into the building. During Holland's "Golden Age" of empire, in the 17th century, it was common for families to have their offices on the first floor, homes on the second, and warehouses on the third floor.

Thus, furniture was transported by boat to the house, lifted by hoist to the floor, and goods were warehoused in the top floors, also installed by use of the hoist.

The stair ways had to be narrow because of the narrow fronts (remember the taxation), and today when people in Amsterdam move they still use those same, three hundred year old hoist beams!

We passed hundreds upon hundreds of broad beamed boats, tied up to the canal banks. These are permanent living quarters for thousands. Some are elaborate, and complete. Others are shabby, and lit with kerosene lanterns. That's because they aren't legal, paying no rent for the space, and can't have electric hook-ups without being detected.

We sailed by the "pussy cat boat" which houses 30 to 50 of the city's stray cats, cared for by an elderly woman and supported by donations. Everywhere we looked in Amsterdam there were cats sunning themselves in windows or on ledges.

Because it was a rare sunny day, the citizens themselves were out and about, lying in the sun, painting, airing clothing, generally getting into that liquid golden light that shows in so many famous Dutch paintings.

The canals were very, very clean, with almost no litter floating on them.

We passed the Lord Mayor's house, and toured the busy harbor. Then, it was time to go and view one of the reasons for Amsterdam's wealth...diamonds. The world's diamonds almost all pass through Amsterdam. We visited a factory, where we saw the sparkling gems laid out for our inspection by the hundreds. A few of us even purchased the brilliant, fiery stones, but Thomas and I weren't among them!

As our bus worked its way through the traffic of a European city (bicycles, trams, buses and cars) we noticed that one thing different in the city was the graffiti. Everywhere there was the ugly evidence of spray cans, and one didn't have to read Dutch to know that it was very much the same here as in a big American city.

Our hotel was located on Rembrandt Square, right in the heart of town.

A statue of the famous artist stood, surrounded by tulips and trees...and casinos, peep shows, cafes and various other things!

For that is the thing about Amsterdam. They have few laws governing pornography, drugs, alcohol, or any other of the "past times" that we generally label as vices!

For country kids, it was indeed a revelation! This city of such grace, such beauty, is also a city that sports a lot of neon advertising pursuits better left unmentioned here!

We quickly came to realize that the Dutch don't necessarily approve of this...they just believe in tolerating it.

This tolerance goes back for hundreds of years, and includes religious tolerance too, but it was still difficult for those of us unaccustomed to such things to comprehend!

That evening, after exploring our massive, charming old hotel, about six of us got up our "nerve" and decided to go out exploring.

Soon we found ourselves paying very little attention to the garish neon signs or loud music coming from windowless buildings. Instead we were enchanted with the arched bridges and houseboats lined with clear lights, shimmering on the canals.

We walked past gardens and apartments, over ornate bridges lined with light, we walked past cafes where people sampled cuisines from around the world, and snacked on a speciality of the city, "Frites". Frites are fried potatoes, served in a rolled paper cone, hot, delicious and served with curried mayonnaise. Inexpensively sold from sidewalk stands, they were a taste treat.

Finally we began to realize that as raunchy as some things in the city were, no one was going to bother us. Like any big city we had been told to keep a close grip on purses and billfolds, but there was no feeling of threat or danger, as there would be in some urban areas.

The biggest danger we discovered, was from cyclists, who come zooming around curves soundlessly, and make little effort to avoid gawking tourists!

This is no Trivia Question:

Q Considering that one out of every five Americans is in a traffic accident each year, what is a sensible precaution to take?

A Wearing a safety belt.

Minimum Standards Revised By TDHS

The Texas Department of Human Services announced recently the implementation of revised Minimum Standards for Registered Family Homes effective July 1, 1990. The changes will impact persons providing child care for three or more children, other than their own.

According to TDHS Commissioner Ron Lindsey, "The standards are the result of considerable input from parents, the State Advisory Committee on Child Care Facilities and the Ad Hoc Committee on Family Day Care. The proposed standards were published in the Texas Register and were sent to all registered caregivers for a 60-day public review and comment period. During August and September of 1989, the department held 18 statewide public hearings and received comments from over 1,500 people."

The major changes to the current standards, developed in 1982, involve caregiver qualifications and child health and safety. The 1982 standards required that a caregiver be at least 18 years old and there was no minimum education requirement. A 1988 registered family home provider survey undertaken by the Licensing Division shows that only 37% of registered caregivers are younger than 21 years old and 18% have less than a high school diploma. The new standards establish 21 as the minimum age, but provides alternatives to establish the competency of an 18 to 20 year old. Effective July 1, all persons who request to register must have a high school diploma, GED or similar credential. The education requirement does not apply to caregivers registered prior to July 1, 1990.

The new standards add requirements for pre-registration and post-registration training for caregivers. They will be required to maintain current certification in CPS and First Aid. Smoking in the registered family home will now be prohibited during hours of operation.

Current and potential RFH caregivers will be offered training to familiarize themselves with the new standards. All currently registered caregivers will receive letters notifying them of dates and times. Anyone desiring further information may contact Ms. Bobbie Lancaster at 785-7541.

Annie Sue Goodroe Honored With Retirement Party

Annie Sue Goodroe was honored May 19 by the faculty and teacher aides of Talco Elementary School with a retirement dinner in the banquet room of the Alps restaurant.

Stockton gave a note of appreciation to Mrs. Goodroe for her service. He read her last will and testament in which she left all her co-workers some of her individual "talents". Each member of the faculty and staff presented her with a gag gift of their choice, commemorating an event in her life or work. One of the most "touching" parts of the program was a tape made by students she works with depicting everyday happenings in the classroom and their best wishes for her retirement. A letter from one of the students expressing his care for her was read by Daphney Hood.

Neva Oats gave a delightful special selection of "Harper Valley PTA". Mrs. Goodroe was presented a gold pendant necklace from her co-workers and friends, and opal earrings from another group of friends. She made closing farewell remarks of her appreciation and thanks for her colleagues and friends.

Guests attending the special night were her daughter and son-in-law, Melea and Don Edwards, Christelle Cato, Virginia Wright, Vivian Westbrook, Jan Hargrove, Zeneth Hargrove, Henrietta Bass and Frankie

- 1 can (16 oz.) VEG-ALL Mixed Vegetables, drained
- 1 cup chopped tomatoes (about 2 medium)
- 1 1/2 cups (6 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
- 1 can (10 3/4 oz.) condensed cream of chicken soup
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1 1/2 cups biscuit mix
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1 can (2.8 oz.) French fried onions

In greased 8x12-inch baking dish, combine first 4 ingredients and 1 cup cheese and 1/2 can French fried onion. Blend soup and 3/4 cup milk; pour over casserole. Bake, covered at 400° for 15 minutes. Meanwhile, combine biscuit mix, milk, and remainder of fried onions; mix thoroughly. Drop by spoonfuls to form biscuits around edge of casserole. Bake, uncovered, 15 to 20 minutes, or until biscuits are golden brown. Top biscuits with remaining cheese and bake about 2-3 minutes, until cheese is melted.

A highlight of the evening was the program that followed the meal. Mr.
