Nichols Worth

By Nanalee Nichols

Jackie Griffin began my train of thought. Perhaps the rest of you can complete it!

Jackie was in town for a reunion over the weekend. He recalled that as a youngster in Deport he would cut through the alley between the hardware store and the grocery store. Painted on the wall was a huge advertisement for some brand of axe.

He can't remember what the brand name of the axe was...but he remembers the picture vividly.

The picture featured a forest with a log cabin, and a pioneer running towards a tree stump. Stuck in the tree stump was the ax. Pouring out of the forest were a few indians!

The caption, he recalls read something like "When a fellow really needs a friend" or "When a fellow really needs an axe".

In telling my father, who is 81, about this memory he recalled the Admiral Coffee ad painted in full color on the brick of the grocery store.

Both of these ads are long since plastered over.

This type of advertising is long since past. But it was once as common as a television ad campaign is today.

Ads could be found painted on the sides of buildings, barns and stores. Most are gone...painted over, or peeled into oblivion by the sun and rains of time.

But I would like to hear about the various ads that people remember.

In any town around here, advertising anything, I would like to start a little collection of this type of ad.

Perhaps they could be worked into a complete article some time?

So I'm sending out a plea to anyone who can remember ads painted on walls.

Please, send a written description of the ads, plus where they were located, to me. Or call me and let me take it down over the phone!

I'm sure there are lots of ads lodged in memories around here...and I'd like to unlock a few of those memories!

My address? Nanalee Nichols, P.O. Box 98, Deport, TX 75435. Phone: 903-652-4205 (office) or 903-652-5823 at home.

Driller On First Talco Well Returns For Visit, Reacquaintance

There are Father's Day gifts...and then there are Father's Day Gifts. C.A. (Mike) Langely received a most unusual gift from his son "Skip". He was brought back to Talco to the place where he drilled the first oil well in Talco, in 1936!

Both Mr. Langely and his son, a doctor, live in Corpus Christie now. But back in 1936 Mr. Langely was the driller for Hinton Oil Company, who drilled the Discovery Well on the Carr lease.

Mr. Langely is now 87 years old, and he has longed to return to Talco for years.

On Tuesday of last week his son brought him back to Talco for a stroll down Talco's streets...and memory lane.

At the Talco Post Office he found several people he knew, or whose family he remembered.

Among those whohe encountered was Mr. I.L. Hearron who worked for Mr. Langely on the Discovery Well "way back when".

After a visit with Postmaster Grace Hearron and other Talco residents the Langely's set off to ride around a town that is much quieter and with a smaller population than it had back in 1936.

The over-populated, bustling boom town that had people living in tents and shanties is gone now.

Mr. Langely took home another crop of memories this visit...he took home renewed acquaintances smiling faces and a Talco settled in it's ways.

It was a grad visit for him...and for those who met him again after so many years.

Homecoming Weekend in Talco

Reservations have been coming in, and we expect a large number to attend the Talco Homecoming again this year. Homecoming is always the last Saturday in June and falls on June 27, 1992. All who ever attended the school are invited to come and renew old acquaintances.

The new school was built and students moved into the beautiful new building in the early Spring of 1939. There were graduating classes from the old building, but 1939 was the first year for graduation from the new building. The students who were attending tell about everyone walking from the old school to their new classrooms. We wish there were pictures of that march across town, but have not found any. The schools of Talco and Bogata consolidated in 1965-1966 school year and the last class of Talco graduates was 1965. Homecoming was held for several years during the time school was held in Talco. There was a lapse of time when there was no school homecoming, after the consolidation. Then a group began to work on reunions and started a new homecoming. It seems to grow yearly and over 400 attended in 1991.

Registration and visitation begins at 9am, with a short program at 11:00. Lunch will be served in the cafeteria at 12:00. Remember the old school is not air-conditioned, so dress as cool as possible. The cafeteria is air-conditioned.

SHARING SOME of her favorite recipes this week in the Country Cooking Column is

Country Cooking

By Gerrie Bankhead

The Country Cooking Column is coming to you this week from the sun room of Dora Thompson of Bogata. Dora has lived in this area off and on for all of her life. She was born and raised here, went to Oklahoma for 40 years and decided to move back about 12 years ago after the death of her husband.

Hobbies of Dora's are knitting, crocheting, reading, traveling, playing cards and walking. She belongs to two local clubs which she hosts once a month. Dora makes afghans more than anything else. Over the past few years she has made over 90 of them. She enjoys giving them as gifts to members of her family and friends. She also makes many bedspreads.

Dora is a member of the First Methodist Church of Bogata.

She has seen most of the United States plus many areas outside the U.S. and has been on several cruises.

Dora has chosen a variety of recipes to share with us this week and we hope you enjoy them.

Her recipe for Pineapple Cake came from a friend, Roberta Anderson of Bogata, about two years ago. The Corn Salad came from a Methodist cookbook about six months ago. The Breakfast Casserole came from her sister, Marjorie Glover of Tyler, about 3 years ago.

The Pecan Crunchies came from her niece, Inez Freeman of Lake Kiowa last year. I sampled one of these and they are delicious. The old saying holds true "you can't eat just one."

The Bean and Pea Salad came from her sister last year, also.

If you've enjoyed the article, want to make a suggestion or a request, please call 652-5032 or write Rt. 1, Box 56C, Deport, TX 75435.

Have A Nice Weekend!!

Beta's Tour Washington, D.C.

The Twelfth Annual Beta Club Convention was held at the Sheraton Hotel in Washington, D.C. on June 17-21. There were 2,200 Betas in attendance, representing all 18 states in which Beta Clubs are located. Attending from the Rivercrest Beta Club were members Matt Childers, Jerry Francis, Mary McKelvey, Ashley Ross and Misty Taylor; and sponsor, Brenda Gunter.

Convention highlights included keynote addresses from three national officers and professional speaker Dan Clark of Salt Lake City, Utah. Special group talent performances were presented with the North Lamar High School group entry winning the national title. Twenty-one campaign speeches and skits were given and Bets elected national officers.

Time between convention sessions was spent sightseeing. The group toured the White House where they walked through the East Room, Red Room, Green Room, Blue Room, State Dining Room and past the Rose Garden; Supreme Court, where they viewed the courtroom; Capitol where they went inside the Senate Chambers; Bureau of Printing and Engraving, where they saw millions of dollars being made; Arlington National Cemetery, where they viewed the graves of President John F. Kennedy and Senator Robert Kennedy and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier where they witnessed the changing of the guards; Ford's Theatre where they saw the location where President Lincoln was shot and Peterson House where they saw the bed on which he died; and the National Archives, where they saw the original U.S. Constitution, Bill of Rights and Declaration of Independence. Their favorite exhibit when they toured the Smithsonian Institute was the Hope diamond, the world's largest, and in the National Museum of American History the favorite was the interior and exterior replica of the White House. They also visited the Vietnam Veteran's Memorial, Lincoln Memorial, Jefferson Memorial, Washington Monument, Kennedy Center, Iwo Jima Statue and the Pavilion at the Old Post Office which dates back to 1899. They saw the Library of Congress, FBI Building, Watergate Complex and visiting dignitary Boris Yeltsin and his motorcade. They heard a 21-gun salute given to Mr. Yeltsin during his departure ceremony.

The group shopped at Union Station Mall and on their last night in Washington, enjoyed eating at the Hard Rock Cafe.

After many trips on the subway, walking and sightseeing, little sleep and being in ten states of Maryland, Virginia and Michigan, the group was glad to return home with unforgettable memories.

Denny-Hicks Exchange Vows

Tracy Lynne Hicks became the bride of Michael Todd Denny in a formal ceremony at 7 p.m. Saturday, June 20 in the Blossom Church of God. Rev. Larry Bridge heard their double-ring vows.

After a wedding trip to San Antonio, the couple will make their home in Detroit.

The bride is a 1991 graduate of Prairiland High School and will be a sophomore at Paris Junior College this fall where she is majoring in agribusiness.

The bridegroom is a 1988 graduate of Rivercrest High School and attended Northeast Texas Community College and Paris Junior College. He is employed at Pyramid Pallets.

"Spike"-A Tail Of Six Kittens

By Jennifer Christie
 You see, it's as if Spike would make a good starter cat. She is so intensely grateful at having been taken in, she has never bothered to read any further in the book on how to adopt humans. She has not made it to the thick chapters on manipulative techniques for young felines.

Frankly, she has done it all wrong. She made friends with the dogs. She is polite to everyone and is thrilled to visit with anyone who has time to stop and chat for a second or two.

She even pretended she wasn't pregnant, mousing diligently until the last day. She popped the kittens out in broad daylight, one sunny afternoon, all six in the space of 45 minutes.

You mustn't tell the cat union or she'll be banned for life. When have you ever heard of a cat having he kittens at 3:30 in the afternoon on a sunny day? It's probably illegal.

The kittens are a matching set. All perfect. All healthy. Spike did not get as far as "Runt" in the glossary at the back of the book and so failed to produce one.

Spike accepted the first cardboard box offered to her, lined with an old towel. All six babies were born there and cleaned up there and the box was considered by Spike to be completely perfect until two weeks later when a much roomier box was provided with an even thicker towel for lining.

The new box became as completely perfect as the first.

Just whatever you have the inclination to feed Spike at any given moment will always be quite the most delectable treat she has ever encountered. It is never too much trouble for her to stop and eat anything to please you. She considers it to be fearfully ill-mannered not to polish her plate while you wait, just to let you hurry back with refills at your leisure.

Oh, if only we could all be just a little like Spike.

The kittens grow at the speed of light. We now see five are in the matching set and the sixth looks a little different and definitely walks alone. When all the people have gone to bed, in the still of the night, secret lessons happen. We wish we could observe but they are part of the timeless fabric of legends that Mama cat teaches each baby.

Each morning, as the sun wipes the sleepy from its eyes, the kittens are ready. Ready with new things learned in the dark to amaze and delight in the light of the new day. Yesterday, six heads lifted, today we crawl on our bellies, tomorrow we will learn to scratch behind our ears and not fall over. Washing is an amazing trick and it can so quickly evolve into an enormous fight with everyone; you can never tell who will pounce from where.

Tiger Lily, the Kitten Who Walks Alone has beautiful stripes and refused to open her eyes. She wanted to stay in her furry world of purring and feeding and warmth and safe darkness for as long as possible. For three days she had the air of a wag-about-town, sporting a jaunty wink, but reluctantly both eyes opened upon a world that wasn't so bad after all.

Ever since man invented a way to measure time he has been a white rabbit; always in a hurry and always late. There is a way to stop time, at least for a brief moment.

Force yourself to stop what you are doing and sneak off to the garden room and join Spike and the Spikellets for food. It's always a good idea to carry food with you when you go to visit for it would appear that all seven are permanently hollow; to a hollow cat, legs can look mighty inviting. Put down the food, pull up a chair and forget the world for five minutes.

Seven mouths attack the dish of food and only one chin stays clean; the Keeping Your Chin Clean While You Eat Lesson happens next Tuesday, so Spike tells me. Can you guess who is first to come and visit? Of course, it's the Kitten Who Walks Alone, Tiger Lily. She already owns a watch, has learned to tell time and as a consequence is always in a hurry and always too busy to stop and eat for long.

It takes but a moment for Alcatraz (such a set of stripes) to see that something is going on he should investigate and before long the whole eating thing has become totally boring for all six and we now have to do Pouncing. The rules for Pouncing are pretty flexible but you score absolutely maximum points if you pounce out of total hiding onto your prey. Tails are terrific targets, but people toes are good, too. A grocery bag makes a super hiding place.

As suddenly as if a bell were rung, it becomes Litter Box time. This is as fine an exercise in chaos as you will ever see, performed by six little characters who, like many children, believe the bathroom is for playing in.

The functions of a well-ordered kittens' litter box are various, but using it for bathroom function is well down the list of priorities. Eating bits of kitty litter is excellently amusing, it makes you cough which can really fret Mama, but the all-time star favorite game is getting all of the cat litter out of the box and on the floor. Of course, twelve paws are better than two for a job like this. Regrettably, right in the middle of the serious job of regrading the litter box, Tiger Lily decides it's time to use the facilities without delay and she puts something of a damper on everything!

Last night we learned Chair climbing. It's a vitally important skill to master because it is the forerunner of Destroying the Furniture. Clambering best describes the early techniques involved in Chair Climbing and indeed Chair Dismounting requires serious use of claws. Chair Climbing has opened up a whole new vista of games such as "I'm King of the Castle and I will bonk anybody on the nose who tries to climb up here" to "just wait til you're half-way up and I'll chew your tail from down here."

Another silent alarm sounds and Spike lays down on her side, Dairy Queen is open. The chairs all breathe a sigh of relief as the invasion retreats and Spike purrs and kneads the air in ecstasy as one by one, with a little jostling, the Spikellets all plug in to recharge.

Just a few minutes away from the books and the phones. Just a little sanity. Just a tinge of sadness. We took in just one homeless cat that needed a haven. From that small act of kindness, we are faced with the responsibility of finding good homes for the kittens. Ongear family has adopted Gremlin to live with them in Fulbright. Spike has her appointment with the Vet on Wednesday and will never have another kitten. Five more homes are needed and this is just for one cat. Look around your neighborhood. How many dogs are cats do you know of who have no permanent place to call home. A tiny, be-draggled puppy "appeared" in your yard last year, she is off for surgery along with Spike.

A delightful couple, who live nearby, feed and provide a safe, warm resting place for a lovely black and white cat who is unwell and cannot now fight off the dogs that roam the area. There are many such stories and folks will tell you that they get a lot of pleasure helping a small animal.

Please do your bit to help stem the tide of unwanted animals. Have your pets neutered or spayed as soon as possible. It is never too late.

"B" Roads And Big Cities On The Western Coast

Here is a continuation of our vacation in Scotland. For all of you who have told me, or written me, telling me you are enjoying the trips...thanks so much.

Several times now I've been asked how we manage to make "personal" contact with people while taking an organized tour. The secret is to talk...to anyone and everyone you encounter. During free times, while on a break, anytime you make a stop while on tour -talk to people! We also try to leave our group on breaks and always on free afternoons, instead of clustering in groups. Try to wander just a short way away from the coach to talk. Don't be shy, don't worry about being a problem. Ninety-nine percent of the people you talk to will enjoy the little visit. The other minority will let you know pretty quick they don't have the time or inclination to speak with you. This doesn't hurt my feelings at all.

Dogs or cats make one of the best conversation openers. At St. Andrews I had a lovely chat with an elderly man about his half Lab half Bovier dog. At Stirling castle Thomas and I were down on our knees exclaiming over a Westie and a Cairn Terrier. As we petted the handsome little dogs their proud owner exclaimed "Aye...and they can do with a lot of that!"

At antique shops I've made friends with cats...and consequently their owners.

I guess what I'm trying to say is...be friendly, admire people, their pets and their country. Don't make fun of things and for heaven's sake don't be "patronizing"-if you genuinely like the country say so. If not, keep your mouth shut!

But, enough of this, onward to the city of Glasgow. I made the mistake of pronouncing the "gow" to rhyme with cow...a mistake that so greatly amused our tour director that I thought he was going to hurt himself giggling. Rest assured...I learned quickly that it is pronounced GlasGO not gow!

We traveled on a "B" road...what we would refer to as a Farm To Market Road in Texas.

Here was more highland scenery to lift the heart. Yellow blooming gorse, the famous blue bells of Scotland and a bewildering variety of wildflowers kept our attention.

At the top of a hill we pulled over onto the gravelled side of the road to get off the coach and simply admire the view. Once more those mountains swept the eye into infinity, fading to a paler and paler blue until one could no longer tell mountain from sky. Snow fences lined the road, and although it was warm and sunny, it was easy to imagine the mountains scoured by the harsher snows of winter.

I walked away by myself, pondering whether anyone in the area needed someone to herd cows and had a "wee house" (small house) for rent! What a wonderful thing to live in such gorgeous surroundings.

At Glen Coe we stood once more on the side of a mountain, looking down into the glen (valley) where the MacDonalds were massacred years ago by the Campbells. One more tale of blood and betrayal to add to our collection...this one told of the English King sending the MacDonald's enemies, the Campbells to the MacDonald stronghold. There they were fed, sheltered from the storm and take care of for six days before arising and murdering the MacDonald Clan in their beds. It is now known as the Glen of Weeping, and is supposed to be "at it's best" on a rainy day. It was sunny the day we were there, but still a haunting spot.

Ben Nevis was visible for much of our drive. It's the tallest mountain in Britain and rears up almost from sea level.

We climbed up through the lonely moors and finally arrived at Glasgow.

Glasgow and Edinburgh are only 30 or 40 miles apart, yet they are as different as day from night.

I had pre-conceived notions about Glasgow, and was prepared not to like it much. It is a city of heavy industry, shipping and such, while Edinburgh is a professional city of doctors, the center of the church in Scotland and the government in Scotland.

However, if we had thought the people in Edinburgh were friendly the people in Glasgow were positively wonderful!

A big city, it isn't as breathtakingly beautiful as some, most cities that have industry in them aren't. But, in spite of "rough areas" which can be found in Every city in the world, it was clean, neat and attractive.

George Square is crowded with statues of various heroes and royalty.

We went to our hotel out by Glasgow's airport and enjoyed a meal of lamb, vegetables and potatoes last that evening.

For the only time we were on vacation we turned on the "telly" for an hour, scanning through news programs and sit coms before falling asleep ready for another day.
